

CWK - H05370 - 152 - LP2404

THE MADRAS LAW JOURNAL
(JOURNAL)

152

EDITOR

Mr.R.SRINIVASAN, B.A., B.L., High Court

REPORTERS

Mr.V.KRISHNASWAMY, B.Com., B.L., High Court
Mr.B.SANKARANARAYANAN, B.A., B.L., High Court

(1993)1 M.L.J.
JANUARY - JUNE

Published by R.NARAYANASWAMY

[All Rights Reserved]

1993

JUDGES OF THE HIGH COURT JANUARY TO JUNE, 1993.

CHIEF JUSTICE

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice V. Ratnam, B.Sc., B.L. (Acting Chief Justice.)

LP 186

PUISNE JUDGES

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice	P.S. Mishra, M.Sc., B.L.
“	K. Venkataswami, B.A., B.L.
“	K.M. Natarajan, B.A., B.L.
“	E.J. Bellie, B.A., B.L.
“	M. Srinivasan, B.A., B.L.
“	Mrs. Justice Padmini Jesudurai, B.A., B.L. (Assumed as Vice- Chairman, Central Administrative Tribunal, Madras Bench)
The Hon'ble Mr. Justice	S. Ramalingam, B.Sc., M.L. (Assumed as Chairman of Tamil Nadu Land Ceiling Appellate Tribunal)
“	T.S. Arunachalam, B.Sc., B.L.
“	K.S. Bakthavatsalam, B.A., B.L.
“	K.A. Thanikachalam, B.A., B.L.
“	Abdul Hadi, B.Com. (Hons.), B.L. (Upto 11.2.1993)
“	M.S. Janarthanam, M.A., B.L.
“	S. Govindaswamy, B.Com. (Hons.), B.L. (Upto 11.2.1993)
“	K. Swamidurai, B.Sc., B.L.
“	T. Somasundaram, B.Sc., B.L.
“	J. Kanakaraj, M.A., B.L.
“	D. Raju, B.A., B.L.
“	N. Arumugham, B.A., B.L.
“	A.R. Lakshmanan, B.A., B.L.
“	A. Thangamani, B.Com. (Hons.), B.L.
“	S. Pratap Singh, B.A., B.L.
“	S.M. Ali Mohammed, M.A., B.L.
“	C.V. Govardhan, B.Sc., B.L.
“	V. Rangaswamy, B.Sc., B.L.

LP 2404

Advocate General

Mr. K. Subramanian, B.Sc., B.L.

JOURNAL

Rational Approach For Rapid Justice and Speedy Trial in 'The Compensation Proceedings' in the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (Act 59 of 1988). By A. Lakshmanan, B.A., B.L., Additional Subordinate Judge (Additional Assistant Sessions Judge), Salem. ... 1

A Need to Amend Sec.15(1) of Hindu Succession Act, 1956. By Ms.T.Indrani, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Kumbakonam. ... 3

Order 21, Rule 90, Civil Procedure Code. A debacle if not a disease. By V.Lakshmanan, Advocate, Tirupur. ... 5

Immunity from arrest of Women under Civil Procedure Code-Its validity and tenability at present-constitutionally and otherwise. By Shri T.A.Varadarajan, M.A., B.L., D.P.P.A., Advocate, Madurai-625001. ... 9

Musings on 1992 by R.Srinivasan, Editor, M.L.J. ... 11

Commiserative Countenance For Compassionate Appointments. By Dr.P.Lakshmanan, M.A.(Econ), M.A. (Pub.Admin), M.B.A., B.A.L., D.S.S.A., Ph.D.Secretary, Tamil Nadu Labour Welfare Board, Madras-600006. ... 17

The right of a female heir to claim partition in a Dwelling House under Sec.23 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956. By M.R.Pradeep Kumar, M.L. (Formerly Junior Professor, Law College, Madurai), Advocate, Krishnagiri. ... 20

A Judge passes away ... 21

Some Reflections on Sec.8 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956. By R.Govindarajan, B.A., B.L., Advocate, Madurai. ... 21

Late Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy By R.Srinivasan, Editor, M.L.J. ... 23

Certificate of Registration of Trade Mark Ist Purport and Import and What it is not? By Shri T.A.Varadarajan, M.A., B.L., D.P.P.A., Advocate, Madurai-625001 (Tamil Nadu). ... 24

Can a Statutory Right be Nullified by Acquiescence or Waiver? By R.Govindarajan, B.A., B.L., Advocate, Madurai-625001. ... 25

BOOKS REVIEW

PUBLIC LAW IN BRITAIN AND INDIA By William Wade. Published by N.M.Tripathi Private Ltd. Price Rs.90. ... 16

THE POWERS OF ATTORNEY ACT (VII OF 1882), second edition, by D.P.Shah. Published by N.M.Tripathi Private Ltd. Price Rs.60. ... 16

PROFESSION TAX (Tamil Nadu Act 24 of 1992 with Rules), by K.S.Mahalingam, Advocate. Published by Tamil Nadu Law Notes Journal. Price Rs.30. ... 16

MARCH OF LAW - 1992

Introduction	1
Civil Procedure Code	1
Constitution of India	8, 36
Companies Act	12
Education	13
Evidence Act	13
Hindu Marriage Act	13
Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act	14
Mohammedan Law	14
Industrial Disputes Act	15
Land Acquisition Act	16
Limitation Act	18
Law Relating to Motor Vehicles Act	19
Tenancy Laws	22
City Tenants	24
Cultivating Tenants	25
Transfer of Property Act	26
Law Relating to Arbitration	28
Specific Relief Act	28
Miscellaneous	29
Approbate and Reprobate	29
Benami Transactions	29, 36
Carriers Act	30
Divorce Act	30
Letters Patent	31

Pleading, Practice, Procedure and Precedent	31
Insolvency	32
Sale of Goods	33
Succession Act	33
Wills	33
Words and Phrases	34
Supreme Court Rulings	34
Hindu Law	37
Land Acquisition	37
Landlord and Tenant	38

TABLE OF CASES REPORTED - SUPREME COURT

S.V.Chandra Pandian v. S.V.Sivalinga Nadar	...	41
Commissioner and Secretary to Government Taxes and Religious Endowments v. Sree Murugan Financing Corporation, Coimbatore	...	3
K.Gopinathan v. Union of India	...	33
A.A.Haja Maniuddin v. Indian Railways	...	38
Jammi Raja Rao v. Sri Anjaneya Swami Temple Varu	...	9
P.M.C.Kunhiraman Nair v. C.R.Naganatha Iyer	...	22
B.Lakshmipathi Naidu v. District Educational Officer	...	1
Mrs.Payal Ashok Kumar Jindal v. Captain Ashok Kumar Jindal	...	18
M.Ramaswamy Pillai v. Hazarath Syed Shah Mian Sakkaf Khadiri-Thaikal	...	35
Reserve Bank of India v. S.S.Investments	...	28

TABLE OF CASES REPORTED - MADRAS HIGH COURT FULL BENCH

R.Paramasivam v. The Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation Limited	...	284
---	-----	-----

OTHER CASES

Abdul Sathar v. Muhammad Ali	...	240
Amsath Ansari Jawahar v. S.Sikkandar Batcha	...	370
R.Anandavalli v. Alagammal	...	15
P.Andree v. The Tamil Nadu Medical Council	...	57
R.Arumugasamy v. The Divisional Development Officer, Cheranmahadevi, Tirunelveli District	...	325
R. Ashok v. R.Bhagavathi Ammal	...	492
The Assistant Collector of Central Excise v. M/s.Elgi Equipments Limited	...	128
The Assistant Commissioner, Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments (Administrative), Tirunelveli v. Peria Nadar	...	499
Avudalthingammal v. Petchimuthupandia Thevar	...	439
Ayyamperumal Chettiar v. Manivel Chettiar	...	421
S.A.Azizullah v. Sakthivelu	...	234
N.Babu Janardhanam v. M/s. Golden Films (P) Limited ... 10
N.M.Balasubramaniam v. The Management of Singaram Pillai Bus Transport	...	81
S.Balasubramanian v. Special Tahsildar (L.A.) III, Maraimalai Nagar Scheme, Kattangulathur	...	55
Baliah Nadar v. Rayappan	...	60
M.V.Balu v. The Chairman, Tamilnadu Housing Board	...	532
H.Belli v. Union of India	...	61
Bhavunambal v. N.Selvam Ammal	...	479
Chekkar Ramaniah v. S.Mariappan	...	406
N.Chellammal v. R.Gangammal	...	45
M.Chettyappan v. State Bank of India, Nungambakkam Branch, Madras-34	...	74
S.Chhaganmull Bafna v. Miss C.G.Rajalakshmi	...	20
Chidambaram Pillai v. Muthammal	...	535
Chief Engineer, Constructions v. M/s.Muthuswamy	...	40
P.R.Chockalingam v. The Director of Tourism, Government of Tamil Nadu	...	157
Church of Christ King, Aranthangi v. Mohammed Muthaliff Rowther	...	43
Commissioner, Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments (Admn.) Department, Madras v. G.Kuppusami Mudaliar	...	524

Commissioner of Regional Provident Fund, Tamil Nadu and Pondicherry v. P.G.Srinivasan	...	53
Corporation Bank v. M/s.E.W.Stevensors, 22, Jawaharlal Nehru Road, Calcutta	...	446
M.Devan v The Tamil Nadu Civil Supplies Corporation Limited, Dharmapuri District	...	214
P.Devendran v. The State of Tamil Nadu	...	133
Dhanalakshmi Ammal v. Perie D.Gonzaga	...	46
Dharmaraja Vellalar v. Ramachandra Vellalar	...	426
Ettiappa Mudaliar v. T.Subramanian	...	333
M/s.Glaxy Agencies, Madras v. The Food Corporation of India	...	403
M/s.Gold Star Line Ltd. v. Bafna Brothers	...	609
A.K.Gopal v. S.Vasanthan	...	226
M.Govindarajan v. The Indian Overseas Bank, Pondicherry by its Accountant	...	189
Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited v. The Inspector of Labour, Madras	...	1
Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd. v. M/s.Karthikeyan Agencies	...	150
Indirani Ammal v. E.Chandra	...	339
A.M.Jain College v. Government of Tamil Nadu	...	140
Janaki v. Kiliammal	...	35
Jayalakshmi Ammal v. K.Lakshmi Iyengar	...	95
Jayarama Naidu v. The State of Tamil Nadu	...	634
Jeeva Transport Corporation Limited v. The Industrial Tribunal, Madras	...	337
R.Kailasanathan v. The Managing Director, Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation Limited, Madras-14	...	289
G.Kaliayaperumal v. V.Annamalai Mudaliar	...	306
The Kancheepuram Kamakshi Amman Silk Handloom Weavers' Co-operative Production and Sales Society Limited v. Yamuna Bai	...	618
Kandasami Mudaliar v. Muthukrishna Moorthy	...	672
Kovilpatti Sri Dhandayuthapani Trust v. M.Tilakaraj	...	522
J.Krishnamoorthy v. The State of Tamil Nadu	...	629
M.Krishnappa Chetty v. P.E.Chandrasekaran alias Chandran	...	18
R.Krishnaswamy v. N.Arumugam	...	122
S.Kuppurathinam v. A.R.Munirathinam	...	507
L.Lakshmikantham v. The Tindivanam Co-operative Urban Bank Limited	...	380
M.A.A.Mahab v. Jayams Engineering and Company Limited, Madras	...	232
The Management of M/s.Air France v. The Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Madras	...	662
The Management of Indian Oil Corporation Limited, New Delhi v. The Presiding Officer-II, Additional Labour Court, Madras.	...	393
The Managing Director, M/s.Dunlop India Ltd. v. S.G.Krishnakumari	...	115
Managing Director, Repatriate Co-operative Finance and Development Bank Limited, Madras v. Deputy Commissioner of Labour-II	...	553
The Managing Director, Thanthai Periyar Transport Corporation Limited, Villupuram v. Sellamuthu	...	587
Mangathayee v. Govindaraji Mudaliar	...	530
A.Mani v. A.Chandranath	...	597
S.Manimudi v. State of Tamil Nadu	...	651
Meenakshi Apartments, Unit of M.I.G. Flats, Madurai v. The Tamil Nadu Housing Board	...	161
Mina Parikh v. Pondicherry Planning Authority, Anna Nagar, Pondicherry	...	550
S.Mohan v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	504
Moorco (India) Limited v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	51
L.T.Morais v. J.A.James	...	220
Munlappan v. Hazrathunnissa	...	605
Munuswami Chetty v. Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Administration), Madras	...	183
K.R.Murugesan v. The Chairman, Ex-Servicemen Welfare represented by the Collector, N.A.A.District, Vellore	..	512

V.Muthukumaran v. State of Tamil Nadu	...	631
Muthuswamy v. The State of Tamil Nadu	...	217
S.Nagarathinam v. S.Balakathiresan	...	678
Nallaya Gounder v. P.Ramaswami Gounder (died)	...	686
Nesamony Transport Corporation Limited v. John Bright (Minor)	...	365
Pachaiyappan v. Sri Kamatchi Amman Koil Devasthanam	...	137
E.S.R.Packirisamy Pillai v. Vijayalakshmi	...	105
C.Padma v. The Deputy Secretary to the Government (Ex-officio), Department of Labour and Co-operation, Government of Tamil Nadu	...	628
V.A.Padmanabhan v. M.A.Narasimhan	...	576
N.Palaniappan v. The Regional Transport Authority, Madras	...	623
Tvl.Pandian Roadways Coporation Limited v. Tvl.Flower Transport (P) Limited, Rajapalayam	...	343
R.Parthasarathy v. The Union of India	...	257
Tvl.Pattukottai Azhagiri Transport Corporation Limited v. Tvl.V.K.Velayutham and Sons, Imperial Motor Service, Vellore	...	249
M/s.Ponds (India) Ltd. v. Collector of Central Excise, Madras	...	355
P.Premchand Bandhia v. Mrs.Yashbala R.Prohit	...	4
A.Radhakrishnan v. Auvadai Ammal	...	375
Radhika Konel Parekh v. Konel Parekh	...	163
P.Radhakrishnan v. The District Collector, Dindugul	...	50
Raja D.V.Appa Rao Bahadur v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	455
Raja Devaputhran Cunniah v. The Regional Transport Officer, Salem	...	516
P.R.Rajagopalan v. Southern Structurals Limited	...	87
Rajammal v. The Idol of Sri Thanthaneeswaraswami by its hereditary trustee K.Appathurai	...	387
Rajammal v. Sellani Ammal	...	436
K.Raju v. M.Raju	...	518
G.S.Ramachar v. The Block Development Officer, Kaveripatnam	...	73
Ramadoss Motor Transport, Kakinada v. New India Assurance Company, Kakinada	...	301
Ramalakshmi alias Ranjitham v. Janaki	...	617
J.Ramamurthy v. M/s.Endas by Partner Moorjimal	...	145
K.Rama Naidu v. S.K.Parthasarathy Naidu	...	63
Ramaswami v. C.S.Venkitasubramania Iyer	...	585
Pe.Ramasamy Thevar v. Perumal Thevar	...	423
D.S.Ravindradoss v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	179
Rizwan International represented by M.Moosa, Managing Partner v. The Union of India	...	561
Rukmani Devi Arundale Trust v. S.Easwaran	...	41
A.Sankaralingam v. Arunachala Reddiar	...	472
Saraswathi v. Syed Ibrahim	...	321
Saroja Sethu v. State of Tamil Nadu	...	440
R.Sarojini v. Superintending Engineer, World Bank Circle, Tamil Nadu Housing Board	...	659
Seethalakshmi Ammal v. T.P.Srinivasa Naicker	...	615
Seetharaman v. Vaduvammal	...	175
Shailesh N.Shah v. The Regional Commissioner, Employees Provident Fund, Tamil Nadu and Pondicherry	...	328
M.Shakur Chathik v. Association of Private Schools affiliated to the Central Board of Secondary Education represented by its President, V.Venkatachalam	...	125
V.G.Shyamsundar Sah v. Sumitra Bai	...	622
N.Sivadasan v. The Appellate Authority under the Payment of Gratuity Act	...	212
Soopi Haji v. R.M.Ramanathan Chettiar	...	644
Sri-la-Sri Sivasubramanyananda Swami v. Sri-la-Sri Arunachalasamy Chidambaram	...	274
Sri Mahalakshmi Temple v. The Commissioner, H.R. and C.E. (Administration) Department, Madras	...	266

Sri Mahalingaswami Devasthanam v. The State of Tamil Nadu	...	527
R.Srinivasan v. Government of Tamil Nadu	...	384
The State of Tamil Nadu v. M.Kazim Khaleeli	...	681
Steel Authority of India Limited v. The Union of India	...	514
Subba Navithan v. Veluchami Gounder	...	476
L.Subbian v. The Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Coimbatore	...	174
V.Subramani v. Arumugham	...	451
V.Sudhakaran v. The Corporation of Madras	...	153
S.Sukumar v. M.Rammohan Shanmugham	...	416
M.Sundaram Servai v. Muslim Jamath (Public Wakf), Karaikudi	...	453
Sundara Rajan v. Sundaramoorthy	...	640
The Superintending Engineer v. Vel.Somasundaram	...	264
G.Suseela v. State of Tamil Nadu	...	197
The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board v. R.Srinivasan	...	235
V.Tamil Selvan v. The State of Tamil Nadu	...	26
Thirumuruga Kirupananda Variyar Thavathiru Sundaraswamigal Medical Educational and Charitable Trust v. Tamil Nadu Dr.M.G.R. Medical University	...	307
The Union of India represented by the Secretary, Ministry of Commerce, New Delhi v. Rizwan International	...	569
M/s.United India Assurance Company Limited, Namakkal v. Banakarappa Naicker	...	399
V.D.Swami and Company (P) Ltd. v. Southern Switchgear Limited, Madras-2	...	483
K.Varadhan v. Pattammal	...	259
M/s.Varalakshmi Chemind Private Limited	...
v. The Commissioner of Prohibition and Excise, Madras	...	205
Vedanayagi v. Porkilai	...	80
V.K.Veeraraghavan Reddiar v. Urudu Madarasa (Arabic School) by Secretary	...	296
P.J.Vincent v. Tamil Nadu Electricity Board	...	624

TABLE OF CASES CITED (SUPREME COURT)

A

Abu Hamid Zahir Ala v. Golam Sarwar, A.I.R. 1918 Cal. 865: 22 C.W.N. 301: 25 C.L.J. 396	...	31
Addanki Narayanappa v. Bhaskara Krishnappa, A.I.R. 1959 A.P. 380 (F.B.)	...	45
Addanki Narayanappa v. Bhaskara Krishnappa, A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1300: (1966)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 60: (1966)2 An.W.R. (S.C.) 60: (1966)2 S.C.J. 490: (1963)3 S.C.R. 400	...	45, 48
Ajudhia Pershad Ram Pershad v. Sham Sundar, A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 13	...	48
Allen Pering and John Keymer, In re. , (1835)3 Ad and E. 245: 111 E.R. 406 (K.B.)	...	31
Ambalavana Pandara Sannithi v. Meenakashi Sundareswarar Devasthanam, L.R. 47 I.A. 191: A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 97: 25 C.W.N. 1	..	17
Arunachalam Chetty v. Venkatachalapathi Guruswamigal, 37 M.L.J. 460: (1919) L.R. 46 I.A. 204: A.I.R. 1919 P.C. 62	..	15

B

Babu Bhagwan Din v. Gir Har Saroop, (1940)1 M.L.J. 1: (1939) L.R. 67 I.A. 1: A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 7	...	16
Balwant Rao Bishwant Chandra Chor v. Purun Mal Chaube, L.R. 10 I.A. 90. I.L.R. 6 All. 1	...	17

C

Commissioner of H.R. and C.E., Madras v. Shri Lakshmindra Thurtha Swamiar, (1954)1 M.L.J. 596: 1954 S.C.J. 335: 1954 S.C.R. 1005: A.I.R. 1954 S.C. 282	...	7
---	-----	---

D

Dalling v. Matchett, 125 E.R. 1138: (1740) Willes 215 (C.P.)	...	31
Deoki Nandan v. Murlidhar, (1957)1 M.L.J. (S.C.) 28: (1957)1 An.W.R. 28: 1956 S.C.R. 756: A.I.R. 1957 S.C. 133: 1957 S.C.J. 75	..	12, 16

H

Hingir Rampur Coal Company Limited v. State of Orissa, A.I.R. 1961 S.C. 459: (1961)2 S.C.R. 537	...	7
---	-----	---

K

Keshavsinh Dwarkadas Kapadia v. Indian Engineering Company, A.I.R. 1972 S.C. 1538: (1972)1 S.C.R. 695: (1971)2 S.C.C. 706	...	30
Kewal Krishan Puri v. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 1008: (1980)1 S.C.C. 416: (1979)1 S.C.R. 1217	...	6
Konijeti Venkayya v. Thammana Peda Venkata Subbarao, 1955 An.W.R. 207: A.I.R. 1957 A.P. 619	...	26

2

Kuppuswami Chetty v. B.V. Anantharamier, (1947)1 M.L.J. 297: A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 40 ... 31

L

Lala Hem Chand v. Lala Pearey Lal, (1943)1 M.L.J. 11: A.I.R. 1942 P.C. 64: 47 C.W.N. 46 ... 17

M

Mamidi Appayya v. Yedan Venkataswami, 24 M.L.T. 102: 1918 M.W.N. 477: A.I.R. 1919 Mad. 877 ... 31

Mundacheri Koman v. Thachangat Puthan Vittil Achuthan Nair, 67 M.L.J. 788:
L.R. 61 I.A. 405, 408: A.I.R. 1934 P.C. 230 ... 16

Municipal Corporation of Delhi v. Mohammed Yasin, A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 1617:
(1983)3 S.C.C. 229: 1983 S.C.C. (Tax.) 154: (1983)2 S.C.R. 999 ... 7

N

Narayan Bhagwantrao Cosavi Balajiware v. Gopal Vinayak Gosavi, (1960)1 S.C.R. 773, 780:
A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 100 ... 15, 16

Noratnal v. Mohanlal, A.I.R. 1966 Raj. 89: 1966 Raj.L.W. 484: I.L.R. (1966)16 Raj. 57 ... 26

P

The Poohari Fakir Sadavarthy of Bondlipuram
v. Commissioner, Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments, (1962)2 An.L.T. 274:
A.I.R. 1963 S.C. 510: (1962)2 S.C.R. (Supp.) 276 ... 15

R

Raja Har Narain Singh v. Chaudhrain Bhagwant Kuar, L.R. 18 I.A. 55: I.L.R. 13 All. 300 ... 17

S

S.Shanmugam Pillai v. K.Shanmugam Pillai, (1973)2 S.C.C. 312: (1973)1 S.C.R. 570, 582, 583 ... 17

Sheodutt v. Pandit Vishnudatta, A.I.R. 1955 Nag. 116: 1955 Nag.L.J. 258: I.L.R. 1955 Nag. 224 ... 32

H.H.Shri Swamiji v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E. Department, (1980)1 S.C.R. 368:
1980 S.C.C. (Tax) 16: (1979)4 S.C.C. 642 ... 7

Southern Pharmaceuticals and Chemicals, Trichur v. State of Kerala, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 1863:
(1981)4 S.C.C. 391: 1981 S.C.C. (Tax) 320: (1982)1 S.C.R. 519 ... 7

Sreenivasa General Traders v. State of A.P., A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 1246: (1983)4 S.C.C. 353 ... 6

Sri Sarangadevar Peria Matam v. Ramaswamy Gounder, (1966)1 S.C.R. 908: A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1603 ... 17

H.I.Sudhindara Thirtha Swamiar v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., Mysore, A.I.R. 1963 S.C. 966:
(1963)2 S.C.R. (Supp.) 302 ... 7

T

Troilokya Nath Basu v. Jyoti Perakash Nandi, L.L.R. (1903)30 Cal. 761: 8 C.W.N. 251	..	17
T.V Mahalinga Iyer v. State of Madras, (1981)1 S.C.C. 445: A.L.R. 1980 S.C. 2036	..	16

W

Winteringham v. Roberson, (1858)27 L J. Ex. 301	...	32
---	-----	----

TABLE OF CASES CITED - HIGH COURT

A

Abdul Jabbar v. Muniammal, A.I.R. 1981 Mad.112	...	303
Abdul Khader Rowther v. Sara Bai, (1989)4 S.C.C. 313	...	691
Abdullah v. Mohd. Muslim, A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1205	...	641
Abdul Nabbi Saheb v. Ramadassmahesh, A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 371	...	167
Abdul Ravoof v. The South Indian Tanners and Dealers Association, Ranipet, 76 L.W. 589	...	7
Abdul Razack v. Umapathy, (1965)2 M.L.J. 41 (S.N.)	...	513
Abdul Shukar Sahib v. Geethammal, 1977 T.L.N.J. 125	...	644
Acharya Jagadiswaran v. Commissioner of Police, 1983 Cr.L.J. 1872: (1983)4 S.C.C. 522: 1983 S.C.C. (Cr.) 1: A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 51	...	500, 501, 502
Adhiyaman Educational and Research Institutions v. State, A.I.R. 1991 Mad. 246	...	320
Agadei Mahkani v. Abhimanyu Mallik, (1988)34 Cut.L.T. 874	...	544
Aiyannah Chetty v. Mahalakshmayya & Company, (1956)2 M.L.J. 54	...	655
Aja Hasia v. Khalid Mujib, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 487: (1981)1 Lab.L.J. 103: (1981)1 S.C.C. 732	...	204
Ajantha Transports (P) Limited v. T.V.K.Transports, (1975)2 S.C.J. 320: A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 123	...	419
Akhil Bhartiya Soshit Karmachari Sangh v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 298	...	349
Alabi Koya v. Mussa Koya, I.L.R. 24 Mad. 513: 11 M.L.J. 227	...	242, 243
Alagammal v. Rajagopala Servai, (1976)2 M.L.J. 397	...	621
Alagappan v. Rajaguru and Co., (1985)1 M.L.J. 331	...	602
Dr.Alexander Educational Foundation v. University of Pondicherry, (1992)2 M.L.J. 97	...	10
Alka Ceramics v. Gujarat State Financial Corporation, Ahmedabad, A.I.R. 1990 Guj. 105	...	293
Amba Tankin and Pharmaceuticals v. Official Liquidator, Bombay, 45 Com.Cas. 457 at 465	...	12
Ambatti Narasayya v. M.Subba Rao, A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 119	...	477, 478, 479
Ameena Bibee v. Zeifa Bibee, 3 Cal W.R.Civ. Rule 37	...	245
Ameroonissa Khatoon v. Abadoonissa Khatoon, 16 Beng.L.R. 67: L.R. 21 I.A. 87	...	245
Amrit Lal v. State Bank of Travancore, (1968)2 S.C.J. 741: A.I.R. 1968 S.C. 1432	...	78

Andhra Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation v. P.V.Rammohan Chowdhary, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 888	...	254
J.M.Andrews v. Radio Engineering Company, A.I.R. 1963 Mys. 113	...	683
Angadu Narasimhalu Chettiar v. Selvarajan, (1991)2 M.L.J. (N.R.C.) 1 (D.B.)	...	167, 168
Ankush Narayan v. Janabai Rama Sawat, 67 Bom.L.R. 864: A.I.R. 1966 Bom. 174	...	498
Annakkili Ammal v. H.C.Hussain, 97 L.W. 116	...	124
Annamalai Chettiar v. Muthukaruppan Chettiar, 60 M.L.J. 1: 58 I.A. 1: A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 9	...	685
K.N.Anthappai v. Ahammed, (1992)2 L.W. 735 (S.C.)	...	514
K.Appa Rao v. Commissioner of Income Tax, Madras, (1962)2 M.L.J. 280. (D.B.)	...	413
A.K.Appaswamy v. The Pollachi Co-operative Marketing Societies by its Secretary, 1974 T.L.N.J. 37	...	557, 560, 561
The Appropriate Authority, Government of India v. Naresh M Mehta, (1992)1 M.L.J. 572	...	9
G.Appukuttan Pillai v. Government of India, A.I.R. 1970 Ker. 110	...	661
Arif v. Jadunath, 60 M.L.J. 588: 131 I.C. 762: 58 I.A. 91: 1931 M.W.N. 480: A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 79	...	519
Arputham v. Singarayyan Nadar, (1988)2 L.W. 245	...	659
Arulappa v. Union of India, (1992)1 M.L.J. 631	...	9
Arumugha Udayar v. Valliammal, A.I.R. 1969 Mad. 72	...	496
Arun General Industrial Limited v. Rishabab Manufacturers, A.I.R. 1972 Cal. 128	...	172
Asiatic Engineering Company v. Achhru Ram, A.I.R. 1951 All. 746	...	661
Aarumatidebi v. Surendra Deb, (1953)1 M.L.J. 710: A.I.R. 1953 S.C. 198: 1953 S.C.J. 300: 1953 S.C.R. 1159	...	167, 168
Assistant Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., Salem, etc. v. Nattamai K.S.Ellappa, etc., 100 L.W. 240.	...	500, 501, 502
M/s.Associated Traders v. T.M.A.Abdul Hameed, (1983)2 M.L.J. 583	...	147, 148, 149
Athiyappa Goundan v. Ramanathan Chettiar, (1940)1 M.L.J. 387	...	587
Avadh Kishore Das v. Ram Gopal, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 861: (1979)4 S.C.C. 790	...	17
Col.Avtar Singh v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 2041: (1981)1 S.C.R. 162	...	366, 369

Ayyammal v. M.Venkataraman, (1982)2 M.L.J. 432 ... 607

B

Babulal Khimji v. Jayaben, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 1786: (1981)4 S.C.C. 8 ... 374

Babu Syed v. Subaida Bee, (1991)1 M.L.J. 412 ... 483

Badri Prasad v. Smt. Kanso Devi, (1970)2 S.C.J. 114: A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 1963:
(1970)2 S.C.R. 95: 1970 M.L.J. (CrL) 509: 1970 CrL.L.J. 88 ... 110, 111, 112

Bai Malimabu v. State of Gujarat, (1978)1 S.C.J. 430: A.I.R. 1978 S.C. 515 ... 444

Bala Debi v. Santimoy, A.I.R. 1956 Cal. 575 ... 542

V.Balakrishnan v. The Assistant Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., (Admn.)
Department, Tirunelveli, (1978) T.L.N.J. 359 ... 503

Balasubramania Iyer v. S.P.Muthukumaraswamy Devasthanam, (1983)1 M.L.J. 280 ... 392, 642

S.Balasubramaniam v. Gulab Jan, 94 L.W. 102 ... 147

Dr.Balbir Singh v. Municipal Corporation of Delhi, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 339 ... 466, 471

Baldevdas Shival v. Filmstan Distributors (India) Pvt., Limited, (1970)1 S.C.R. 485:
(1970)1 S.C.J. 342: A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 406 ... 452

Ballard v. North British Railway Company, 1923 S.C. (H.L.) 43 ... 118

Bangalore Medical Trust v. B.S.Muddappa, A.I.R. 1991 S.C. 1902 ... 348, 506

Bank of Khulna Limited v. Jyoti Prakash Mitra, A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 147 ... 543

Bansal Exports (P) Limited v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1983 Del. 445 ... 571

Barkway v. South Wales Transport, (1950)1 All E.R. 392, 399 ... 118

Baru Ram v. Smt.Prasanni, A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 93 ... 104

Basant Kumar Sarkar v. The Eagle Rolling Mills Ltd., A.I.R. 1964 S.C. 1260:
(1964)2 S.C.J. 586 ... 666, 668

Basdeo v. John Smidt, I.L.R. 22 All. 55 at 61 ... 6, 8

Bashir Ahmed v. Menbdi Hasan, A.I.R. 1982 All. 321 ... 235

Basnar Venkata Row, In re., 14 I.C. 418 (Mad.): 36 Mad. 159 ... 99

Bawa Saib v. Muhammed, I.L.R. 19 Mad. 343 ... 243

Bengal Exports (P) Limited v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1983 Del. 445	...	564
Bhagat Singh Dugga v. Devan Jagbir, A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 670	...	278
Bhagwan Dass v. Khem Chand, A.I.R. 1973 P. and H. 477 (D.B.)	...	474
Bhagwathi Devi v. M/s.I.S.Goel, 1983 A.C.J. 123	...	366, 368
Bhanu Ram v. Balj Nath Singh, A.I.R. 1961 S.C. 1327: (1962)1 S.C.R. 358: (1962)1 S.C.A. 368	...	681
Bharat Barrel Company v. Employees' State Insurance Corporation, A.I.R. 1972 S.C. 1935: 41 F.J.R. 481: (1972)1 Lab.L.J. 854: 1972 Lab.I.C. 1074	...	466
Bharat Iron Works v. Bhagubhai, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 98	...	338
Bhargavakula Nainargal Sangam v. Arunachala, (1990)1 L.W. 46	...	641, 642
Bhargavakula Nainargal Sangam v. Chakravarthi, (1992)2 M.L.J. 83	...	390, 391, 392, 641
Bhikary Ram v. S.Hedait Mohammed Sahaji, A.I.R. 1958 Ori. 62	...	543
Bhikusa Yamuna Kshariya (P) Ltd. v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1963 S.C. 1591: (1963)1 Lab.L.J. 270: (1963-64) 24 F.J.R. 429	...	666, 669
Bhim Singh v. Kan Singh, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 727	...	192
Bhura Mal v. Har Kishan Das, I.L.R. 24 All. 383 (F.B.)	...	449
Bibi Khaver Sultan v. Bibi Bukha Sultan, 6 Bom.L.R. 983	...	243
Bibi Kanig Fathima v. Jainarayan, A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 334	...	244
Bimbadhar v. Orissa State, A.I.R. 1956 S.C. 469: (1956)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 13: 1956 S.C.J. 441: 1956 Cr.L.J. 831	...	395
Biswabani Private Limited v. Santosh Kumar Dutta, (1980)1 S.C.C. 185	...	519
Blake v. Blake, 7 Law Reports - Probate Division 102	...	102
The Board of Revenue v. Moideen Rowther, (1955)2 M.L.J. 635: I.L.R. 1956 Mad. 132: A.I.R. 1956 Mad. 207: 1955 M.W.N. 990 (F.B)	...	431, 434
Mt.Bodo v. Mt.Koklam, 59 M.L.J. 621: 127 I.C. 737: A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 270: 57 I.A. 825	...	683, 685
M/s.Bombay Ammonia Pvt. Limited v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1987 Del. 148	...	265
Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company Ltd. v. The State of Bombay, A.I.R. 1958 S.C. 328	...	658
Brathi v. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1991 S.C. 318: 1991 Cr.L.J. 409: (1991)

Brij Bihari v. Deoki Devi, A.I.R. 1978 Pat. 117	...	642
Brij Kishore v. Mushturi Khatoon, A.I.R. 1976 All. 399	...	641
Brindaban Agarwala v. Official Liquidator, Saraswathi Soap and Oil Mills Limited, (1952)22 Comp.Cas. 75: A.I.R. 1952 All. 113	...	14
Brundaban Misra v. Iswar Swain, A.I.R. 1982 Ori. 172	...	544
Buzloor Raheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 8 W.R. 3	...	540

C

Carrol v. Greenwich Insurance Company, (1905) 199 U.S. 401	...	351
M.M.B.Cauhodicos v. T.Panulo Ayira, A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 31	...	674
Central Bank of India Limited, New Delhi v. Prakash Chand Jain, (1969)2 L.L.J. 277	...	398
Central Brokers v. Beemnarayappa Podder and Company, (1954)2 M.L.J. 525: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 1052 (F.B)	...	167, 168, 171
Central Excise v. Balasapur Industries Limited, (1989) 43 E.L.T. 804: (S.C.)	.	363
Central Excise v. Easteno Paper Industries Limited, (1989) 43 E.L.T. 201 (S.C)	...	361
Century Flour Mills Limited v. Supplah, (1975)2 M.L.J. 54	...	277, 281
Dr.Chakradhar Paswan v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 959	...	160
Chander Mohan Khanna v. NCERT, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 76	...	93
M/s.Chandra and Company v. State, A.I.R. 1981 Raj. 217	...	521
Chandramathi Ammal v. Narayanaswami Aiyar, (1910) I.L.R. Mad. 241	...	646, 647
Chadravalli Bai Purshothamdass v. Poonamchand Mittal, (1976)1 M.L.J. 89	...	408
Charanji Lal v. Financial Commissioner, A.I.R. 1978 P. & H. 326	...	661
Chaudhri Mehadi Hasan v. Mohammed Hasan, L.R. 33 I.A. 68 at P.75	...	243
M/s.Chaurasiya & Company v. Smt. Pramulla Rao, 1974 A.C.J. 481	...	591, 594
Chennichi v. Srinivasan Chettiar, (1970)1 M.L.J. 234	...	370
Cheran Transport Corporation v. The State Transport Appellate Tribunal, (1978)2 M.L.J. 136	...	253
S.N.Chinna Kandar v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., I.L.R. (1980)2 Mad. 213	...	188

Chinnathambi Goundan v. Venkatasubramani, 49 L.W. 326	...	475
Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269	...	134, 135, 136
Churchill v. Crease, (1989) 135 U.S. 255	...	351
Collector of Central Excise v. Andhra Sugar Limited, (1988) 38 E.L.T. 564 (S.C.)	...	364
Collector of Central Excise v. Eastern Paper Industries Limited, (1989) 43 E.L.T. (S.C.) 201	...	363
Collector of Central Excise, Bombay v. M/s. Parle Exports (P) Limited, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 644: (1988) 38 E.L.T. 741 (S.C.)	...	364
The Collector of Madras v. A.R.Gajendran, (1988)2 L.W. 49	...	233
The Colonial Sugar Refining Company Limited v. Irving, 1905 A.C. 369	...	559
Commissioner, H.R. and C.E. v. K.Jothiramalingam, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 341	...	287, 272, 273
Commissioner, H.R. and C.E. v. Kacherichamy, (1981)2 M.L.J. 375	...	188
Commissioner, H.R. and C.E. v. P.Kanniappan Naicker, (1989) T.L.N.J. 232	...	188
Commissioner, H.R. and C.E. v. Maligai and Shop Varthagar Sangam, (1976)1 M.L.J. 17	...	186
The Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Sri Shirur Mutt, (1954)1 M.L.J. 596: 1954 S.C.J.335: 1954 S.C.R. 1005: 1954 M.W.N. 363: A.I.R. 1954 S.C. 282	...	502
Commissioner of Income Tax v. Balakrishna Malhotra, 81 I.T.R. 759	...	465
Commonwealth Assurance Company Limited v. V.P.Rahim Khan Sahib, A.I.R. 1971 Mad. 415: 1971 A.C.J. 295: 41 C.C. 727	...	302, 303
Constitution of India, Article 143, In re., 1951 S.C.J. 527: 1951 S.C.R. 747: A.I.R. 1951 S.C. 332	..	666
Cooke v. Gill, (1983) L.R. 8 C.P. 107 (116)	...	378
Coroline M Armystage v. Fredrick Wilkinson, (1978) 3 A.C. 355 at 370	...	364
C.P.Corrers v. Govt. of Pondicherry, (1975)1 M.L.J. 155	...	651
Cropper v. Smith, (1984) 26 Ch.D. 700 (710-711)	...	377

D

Dakshinamoorthi v. Ponnuswami, A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 78	...	651
Dalavai v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1978)1 M.L.J. 93: 91 L.W. 110	...	464, 466, 469, 470, 471

Davood Rowther v. Ramanathan, I.L.R. 1938 Mad. 523: 176 I.C. 858: A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 43	...	102
Deepak Patwa v. Lt. Governor of Delhi, (1984)4 S.C.C. 308: A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 1721	...	637
Deepak Saibal v. Punjab University, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 903	...	204
Delhi Cloth and General Mills Limited v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 2414	...	566
Delhi Cloth and General Mills Limited v. The Workmen, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 919	...	214
Delhi Water Supply and Sewerage Disposal Committee v. R.K.Kashyap, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 278	...	222
Deputy Commissioner, H.R. and C.E. Board v. Sidhivinayaga Mudaliar, (1971)1 M.L.J. 422	...	184, 186
Devadatan v. Union of India, (1963)1 LT.J. 123: (1963)2 S.C.J. 256: (1963)2 An.L.T. 254: (1963)49 I.T.R. 165: A.I.R. 1964 S.C. 880	..	674
Devan Daulat Rai Kapur v. New Delhi Municipality, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 541	...	466, 471
V.Dhandayuthapani v. S.P.Krishnamurthi, A.I.R. 1988 Mad.78	...	366, 367
Dhani Bai v. Neem Kanwar, A.I.R. 1972 Raj. 9	...	104
Dhani Ram v. Sushila, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 83	...	178
Dhian Singh Sobha Singh v. The Union of India, A.I.R. 1958 S.C. 274: 1958 S.C.R. 781	...	188
Dhiren Ballung v. Bhuruki, A.I.R. 1972 Gauhati 44	...	474
C.Dhyanand v. Jaamni Bi, (1982)1 M.L.J. 290: A.I.R. 1982 Mad. 311	...	304
Director of Income Tax v. Pooran, (1975)4 S.C.C. 568	...	136
Director of School Education v. G.Gunaraj, 1981 Writ L.R. 94	...	204
Direct Recruit Class II Engineering Officer's Association v. State of Maharashtra, A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 1607: 1990 Lab.I.C. 1304: (1990)2 S.C.C. 715	...	222, 223
Direndranath Gorel v. Sudir Chandra Goseph, (1965)1 S.C.J. 219	...	478, 479
K.P.Doctor v. State of Bombay, A.I.R. 1955 Bom. 220	...	314
A.P.Dorairaj v. State of Madras by Commissioner of Police, 1974 A.C.J. 174	...	595
Doraiswami v. Rathnammal, (1978)1 M.L.J. 456: A.I.R. 1978 Mad. 78	...	103
Dornan v. J.W.Ellis and Company Limited, (1962)1 All E.R. 303	...	378
M/s.Dovo Tax Company v. T.R.Ramnath, 99 L.W. 269	...	233
M/s.Doypack Systems (P) Limited v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 782	...	363

M.Duraiswami v. Sri Murugan Bus Service, A.I.R. 1986 S.C. 1980: (1986)2 S.C.J. 56	...	354
Duraisami Mudaliar v. Ramasami Chettiar, 92 L.W. 144	...	234, 235, 392
Durgai Ammal v. R.T.Mani, (1989)1 L.W. 155	...	412, 413, 416

E

Eastern Regional Bench of the Tribunal and F.D.C. Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1991) 55 E.L.T. 601	...	361
Easwari Amma v. M.K.Korah, (1972)1 M.L.J. 218	...	621
The Edward Mills Co. Ltd., Banwar v. The State of Ajmeer, A.I.R. 1955 S.C. 25: (1955)1 S.C.R. 735	..	666, 667, 669
A.Emberumanar v. K. Raghavan, (1988)1 L.W. 568	...	233
Emnabai v. Hajirabai, I.L.R. 13 Bom. 352	...	244, 248
Empire Industries Limited v. Union of India, (1985) 20 E.L.T. 179: (1985)3 S.C.C. 314	...	362
K.Eranna v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., A.I.R. 1970 Mys. 191	...	502
Erwsian Equipment and Chemical Ltd. v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 266	...	93
Executive Officer v. H.H.Srivan Satagopa Sri Vedantha Desika Yathindra Mahadesigan, (1989)1 L.W. 361		253

F

F.D.C.Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1991) 55 E.L.T. 601	...	361
Farid-Un-Nisa v. Mukhtar Ahmad, 52 I.A. 342: A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 204: 49 M.L.J. 758: 89 I.C. 649: 1925 M.W.N. 918	...	540, 545
Fathima Bivi v. Bhavasa Maracair, (1979)1 M.L.J. 409	...	246
Fayyarud-Din v. Kutab-ud-Din, A.I.R. 1939 Lah.309	...	540
Fertilizer Corporation Kamgar Union v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 344	...	349
Firm Prabhu Dayal v. Prabhu Mal, A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 692	...	603
Firm Srinivas Ram Kumar v. Mahabir Prasad, A.I.R. 1951 S.C. 177	...	377
Foster v. Mackinnon, (1969) L.R. 4 C.P. 704	...	261

G

Gallie v. Lee, 1971 A.C. 1004	...	282
-------------------------------	-----	-----

M/s.Ganesh Trading Company v. Moji Ram, A.I.R. 1978 S.C. 98	...	378
K.N.Gangappa v. A.M.Subramanya Mudaliar, 100 L.W. 306	...	600
Ganpat Singh v. Sher Bahadur Singh, A.I.R. 1978 All. 66	...	380
Garikapatti Veeraya v. N.Subbaiah Choudhury, (1957)1 M.L.J. (S.C.) 1: (1957)1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 1: 1957 S.C.J. 439: 1957 S.C.C. 399: 1957 S.C.R. 488: A.I.R. 1957 S.C. 540	...	559
Ghansilal v. Bhuridevi, A.I.R. 1964 Raj. 39	...	473
P.L.V.Giri v. A.Subramaniam, (1992)2 L.W. 237	...	478
Gobinda Dayal v. Inayatullah, I.L.R. 7 All. 775	...	243
Gobinda Narayan Singh v. Shant Lal Singh, 61 M.L.J. 9: 58 I.A. 125: 131 I.C. 753: A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 89	...	685
Gokuldas v. Appandanatha Nainar, 1990 T.L.N.J. 25	...	272
K.G.Gopal v. Lillybai by Power of Attorney Agent, A.C.Baktham, (1991)1 L.W. 559	...	278
Gopala Chetty v. Subbier, I.L.R. 26 Mad. 604	...	449
S.M.Gopala Krishna Chetty v. Ganeshan, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1750	...	146
Gopal Das v. Shri Thakurji, (1943)2 M.L.J. 51: A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 83: 267 I.C. 553: 70 I.A. 57	...	102, 474
Gopal Stores v. Arunachala Naicker, (1958)2 M.L.J. 617	...	513
Gopal Pillai v. Dr.Swamy, 93 L.W. 317	...	379, 380
Goswami Gordhan Lalji v. Goswami Maksudan Ballabh, I.L.R. 40 All. 648	...	284
Govindaraj v. Kandaswami Goundan, (1956)2 M.L.J. 578: A.I.R. 1957 Mad. 186	...	489
Govindarajulu v. Devar and Company, (1953)2 M.L.J. 413: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 240: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 399	...	167, 168
M.Govindarajulu v. M.Jayaraman, (1976)1 M.L.J. 408	...	147, 148
Grarod v. Crossville Motor Service Limited, (1953)2 All E.R. 753	...	303
Gulabbai v. Nalim Nersi Yohra, (1991)3 S.C.C. 483	...	147
Gulabbai Jain v. District Munsif, Poonamallee, (1969)2 M.L.J. 303	...	656
Gumalapura Taggina Retada Kotturawami v. Setra Veeravva, (1959)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 968: A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 577	...	110

S.P.Gupta v. President of India, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 149	...	348, 349
A.K.Gupta and Sons Limited v. Damodar Valley Corporation, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 96: (1967)1 S.C.J. 223	...	377, 380
Gurbaksh Singh v. Taran Jit, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 86	...	178

H

Hamdard Dvakhana v. The Union of India, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 554	...	666
G.Hanumantha v. Nagappa, A.I.R. 1972 S.C. 1401: 1972 S.C.D. 231: (1972)3 S.C.R. 360	...	498
Hanumantha Rao v. Hanumayya, I.L.R. 1966 A.P. 140	...	496
Harakchand Ramchand Bouthia v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 1453	...	666
M/s.Harihar Polyfibres v. Regional Director, E.S.I.Corporation, (1984)4 S.C.C. 324	...	669
Hari Nandan v. S.N.Pandia, A.I.R. 1975 All. 48	...	278
Harishankar Bagla v. The State of M.P., (1955)2 M.L.J. 211: 1954 M.W.N. 749: 1954 S.C.J. 637: (1955)1 S.C.R. 380: 55 Cr.L.J. 322: A.I.R. 1954 S.C. 465	...	666
Harris v. Knight, (1890)15 P.D. 170	...	100
Hemchandra v. Suradhani Debye, A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 134	...	545
Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1941. In re., 1941 F.L.J. 1: (1941)2 M.L.J. 12: 1941 F.C.R. 12	...	185
Hiralal v. Sitaram, A.I.R. 1952 Bom. 446	...	448, 450
Hodges v. Delhi and London Bank Limited, 27 I.A. 168	...	542
Humera Bibi v. Najmun-nissa Bibi, I.L.R. 28 All. 147	...	243
Hussain v. Shaik Mira, I.L.R. 133 Mad. 46	...	243
Huthegowda v. Chennigowda, A.I.R. 1953 Mysore 49	...	102
Hyderabad Construction Company v. Major E.Hussain, (1966)2 An.W.R. 373	...	482

I

Ibrahim Goolam Ariff v. Saidoo, I.L.R. 35 Cal. 1	...	242
Imperial Chemical Industries v. Shatwell, 1965 A.C. 656	...	303
Indian Bank represented by its Assistant General Manager v. R.S.Thiruvengadam, 1991 Writ L.R. 699	...	556

Indian Express Newspapers (Bombay) P.Limited v. Union of India, (1985)1 Comp.L.J. 115:U. (1985)1 S.C.C. 641: (1985)2 S.C.R. 287: A.I.R. 1986 S.C. 515	...	568, 573
Indian Institute of Human Resources Development v. National Institute of Human Resources Development represented by its Proprietor, S.Muthu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 168	...	10
Indramani Devi v. Raghunath Bhanja Birbar Jagadeb, A.I.R. 1961 Ori. 9	...	140
Indukuri Venkatarama Raju v. Totakura Narasa Raju, (1966)2 An.W.R. 134	...	101
M/s.International Ore and Fertilisers (India) Private Limited v. E.S.I.Corporation, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 78	...	155
Irani v. Chidambaram Chettiar, (1952)2 M.L.J. 221	...	654, 655
Irudayammal v. Selayath Mary, (1972)2 M.L.J. 508	...	101
Ismail v. Ranji Sambhaji, I.L.R. 28 Bom. 682	...	243
Ismail Bai v. M.Chinniah, (1990)1 L.W. 155	...	604
Ittyavira Mathia v. Varkey Varkey, A.I.R. 1964 S.C. 907	...	558, 560, 561

LP2404

J

J.K.Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills Company Limited v. Sales Tax Officer, (1965) 16 S.T.C. 563. (S.C.)	...	362
J.K.Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills Company Limited v. State of U.P., A.I.R. 1961 S.C. 1170	...	351
Jagat Ram v. State of Haryana, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 1033	...	639
Jagdish Das v. Emperor, A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 497: 40 Cr.L.L.J. 27	...	99
Jai Narain v. Kishan Chand, A.I.R. 1968 S.C. 1165	...	475
M/s.Jaipur Mineral Development Syndicate v. The Commissioner of Income Tax, New Delhi, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1348	...	277
Jaishi v. Salig Ram, A.I.R. 1981 N.O.C. 88	...	280
M/s.Jalan Trading Company (P) Ltd. v. Mill Mazdoor Sabha, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 691: 29 F.J.R. 408: (1966)2 Lab.L.J. 546: (1966)1 S.C.C. 189: (1967)1 S.C.R. 15	...	666
Jameena Beevi v. Easwarlal Patel, (1979)2 M.L.J. 355	...	7
Janakamma v. Rangaraj, (1960)1 M.L.J. 362	...	657
Janakiammal v. Natarajan, (1988)1 L.W. 416	...	659

Mst. Jasoda Kuar v. Janak Missir, A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 787	...	99
Jayanabibi v. Jayarabi, (1950)1 M.L.J. 209	...	244
P. Jayapal v. The Governor of Tamil Nadu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 34	...	10
Jeet Kumari v. Chittagong, A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 195	...	117
M/s. Jit Ram Shiv Kumar v. State of Haryana, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 1285	...	565
Jiwan Baksh v. Imtiaz Begum, I.L.R. 2 All. 93	...	245
Jolly George Varghese v. Bank of Cochin, (1980)2 S.C.C. 360	...	601, 604
Jones v. Great Western, (1930)47 T.L.R. 39	...	118, 231
Joshua Hands v. Herbert James, 2 Comyns. 531	...	100
Jotindra Mohan Tagore v. Bejoy Chand Mahatap, (1904) I.L.R. 32 Cal. 483	...	431, 434
Jugalkishore Devideen v. Sri Murugan Ghee Supply Company, 86 L.W. 135: A.I.R. 1973 Mad. 331	...	515
Jugal Kishore Paliwal v. Sat Jit Singh, (1984)1 S.C.C. 358	...	374

K

Kali Baksh Singh v. Ram Gopal Singh, 41 I.A. 23 (P.C.)	...	541, 544
Kaluram v. Baidyanath, (1965)2 S.C.J. 145	...	657
Kalyanpur Lime Works v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1951 Pat. 226	...	579, 581
Kalyan Singh v. State of U.P., A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1183	...	256
E.A.E. Kamal Pasha v. V.A. Tajuddin, 1974 T.L.N.J. 180	...	513, 514
Kameswara rao v. Somanna, A.I.R. 1955 A.P. 212	...	184, 185
Kanakavel Pillai v. Drugs and Chemicals, (1980)2 M.L.J. 392	...	324
M. Kandaswamy v. Chinnaswami, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 290	...	304
Kangu v. Ahmed Unnissa Begum, (1963)1 M.L.J. 97	...	655
Kanij Fatima v. Narain, (1944) 23 Pat. 216	...	242
R. Kannaiyan v. The Assistant Township Administration, (1992)1 M.L.J. 214	...	9
M. Kannan v. The Director, Government (Cinchona) Department, Udthagamandalam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 196	...	9

R Kannan v. The Director of Sugars, (1992)1 M.L.J. 54	...	10
Kanniammal v. P.Narayana, 1988 T.L.N.J. 310	...	368
Kanniappa v. Karupplah, (1962)2 M.L.J. 109: I.L.R. (1962) Mad. 441: 75 L.W. 119: A.I.R. 1962 Mad. 240 (F.B.)	...	489, 491
Kannu Naicker v. Kalaimani, 100 L.W. 922	...	510
Kantilal Shah v. A.C.Devarajulu Reddiar, (1977)2 M.L.J. 484 (D.B.)	...	621
Kanwarani Madna Vati v. Raghunath Singh, A.I.R. 1976 H.P.41	...	542
Mst Karmi v. Amru, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 745	...	112
Karuppanna v. Kolandaswami, (1953)2 M.L.J. 717: 1953 M.W.N. 799: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 486	...	475
Kashibai v. Vinayak, A.I.R. 1956 Bom. 65	...	102
P.Kasilingam v. P.S.G.College of Technology, 1984 Lab.I.C. 1134	...	317
Kasim Hussain v. Sharif-unnessa, I.L.R. 5 All. 287	...	245
Kasi Reddy Papaiah v. Government of Andhra Pradesh, A.I.R. 1975 A.P. 269	...	639
Kathoom Bivi Ammal v. S.Mohammad, (1990)2 M.L.J. 42: (1990)1 L.W. 284	...	195, 196
Kauk Sike v. Ong Hock Sein, A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 82	...	235
Kerala State Electricity Board v. T.P.K.K.Amson and Besom, Kerala, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 282	...	403, 405
Kesava Naicker v. Sivagnana Mudaliar, A.I.R. 1980 Mad. 225	...	658
Keshav Chandra Joshi v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1991 S.C. 204	...	223
Kewal Singh v. Lajwanti, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 161	...	656
Khadi Gram Udyog Trust v. Shri Ram Chundraj Vinjam Mandir, A.I.R. 1978 S.C. 287	...	658
Khagesh Chandra v. Chandra Kanta, A.I.R. 1954 Assam 183 (F.B.)	...	449
M.S.Khalsa v. Chiranji Lal, A.I.R. 1976 All. 290	...	648, 650
S.S.Khanna v. F.J.Dhillon, A.I.R. 1964 S.C. 497	...	452
M/s.Kharavela Industries Private Limited v. Orissa State Financial Corporation, A.I.R. 1985 Ori. 153	...	290, 291
Mst.Kharbuja Kuer v. Kangbahadur Rai, A.I.R. 1963 S.C. 1203: (1963)2 S.C.J. 382	...	540, 544
King v. General Commissioner, (1917)1 K.B. 486	...	661

Mst Kirpal Kaur v. Bachan Singh, 1958 S C R 948	.	523
Kisandas Rupchand v Rahappa Vithoba, (1909) I.L.R. 33 Bom. 644 at 651	...	378
Knanulla v. Jiben Mohan Roy, A.I.R. 1914 Cal. 360	...	646
Kovanti v Imbichi Koyan, (1946)1 M.L.J. 454	.	431
Krishna Beharilal v. Gulabchand, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 1041: (1971)1 S.C.J. 30	...	109
Krishnamurthy v. Paramasiva, A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 310	..	579, 580, 581
A.V.Krishnamoorthy v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1985)1 L.L.J. 46	...	398
M.L.Krishnamurthi v. The District Revenue Officer, Vellore, (1989)2 L.W. 442	...	256, 348
T.K.Krishnamurthy v. M/s Jagat Textiles, 94 L.W. 160	...	410
G.Krishnan v. Smt Thulasi Ammal, (1991)1 L.W. 513	...	275, 282, 283, 284
Krishnaswami Aiyangar v. Subramania Ganapatigal, 35 M.L.J. 304: 7 L.W. 210	...	586
Krishnasami Chetty v. The Licensing Officer, 100 L.W. 654	...	518
Krishnaswamy Mudaliar v. The Controller and Authorised Officer of Buildings, 99 L.W. 705	...	233
Krushna Charana Padhi v. Gourochandro Dyano Sumantto, (1939)2 M.L.J. 686	...	616
S.N.Kuba v. P.P.L Vaithyanathan, 1988 T.L.N.J. 1	...	370
Kuju Collieries v. Jharkhand Mines, (1974)2 S.C.C. 533: A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 1892	...	488
Kuncharamu v. Kerala State Transport Corporation, 1987 A.C.J. 1017	...	401
T.Kunhiraman v. Madhavan Nair, (1957)2 M.L.J. 28: A.I.R. 1957 Mad. 761	..	603
Kuriyan v. Ranganathan, (1991)1 L.W. 604	...	278
Kusum Products Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1990) 48 E.L.T. 50	...	363, 364

L

Lachiram v. Kumaresan, (1979)2 M.L.J. 135	...	657
Lachman Singh v. Surendra Bahadur, A.I.R. 1932 All. 527	...	102
Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Company Limited, A.I.R. 1963 S.C. 1279	...	547, 548
K.G.Lakshmana Aiyar v. Ramaswami Naicker, (1940)2 M.L.J. 827	...	586, 587

Lakshmann Shah v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., (1971)2 M.L.J. 495	188
Lakshmi Coffee Hotel v. Their Workmen, (1967)1 L.L.J. 258	213, 214
Lakshmi Narayanan Guin v. Nirajan Badak, (1985)1 S.C.C. 270	643, 644
Lakshmi Venkatesan v. Special Tahsildar Land Acquisition, (1978) 91 L.W. 1	136
Lalappa Lingappa v. Laxmi Vishnu Textile Mills, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 852: 1981 Lab.I.C. 307: (1981)1 Lab.L.J. 308. (1981)2 S.C.C. 238: 1981 Ser.L.J. 430	656
Y.Laxmi Prasannam v. Y. Narasayya, A.I.R. 1975 A.P. 91	432
Life Insurance Corporation of India v. D.J. Bahadur, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 2181	316, 317
Londa Abbayee of Pithapuram v. Badam Suryanarayana, (1947)1 M.L.J. 246: A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 9(1)	602
Lounkaran Sathia v. Iyyan E. John, (1977)1 S.C.C. 379: (1977)1 S.C.R. 853: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 336	675, 676

M

Madan Mohan Pathack v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1978 S.C. 803: 1978 Lab.I.C. 612: (1978)2 S.C.C. 56: (1978)1 Lab.L.J. 496: (1978)3 S.C.R. 334	313, 314, 316, 317, 318
Madhavakrishnan v. Sami, (1980)2 M.L.J. 398	538, 548
P.Madhavan v. Binny Limited, (1992)2 M.L.J. 1	10
Madhusudan v. Trimbak, A.I.R. 1961 Bom. 23	600
The Madras Christian College v. The State of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 544	9
The Madras Port Trust v. K.P.A.T. Annamalai Nadar, (1967)2 M.L.J. 594: I.L.R. (1966)1 Mad. 164	612, 614
Madras Port Trust v. Hymanshaw International, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 1144	203
Magna v. Rustom, A.I.R. 1963 Raj. 3	278
Mahadevamma v. B.S. Linga Raju, (1988)2 Karn.L.J. 388	582, 583
P.S. Mahal v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 1291: 1984 Lab.I.C. 176: (1984)2 Ser.L.J. 197: (1984)2 Lab.L.J. 282	222
Mahalakeshi Dawan v. Haripoda Mazumdar, A.I.R. 1988 Cal. 25	580, 581
Mahaliyamm Temple v. Vijayammal, (1983)2 M.L.J. 442	107

Mahesh Chandra v. Regional Manager, U.P.Financial Corporation, (1992)2 S.C. 326	...	294
Makhan Singh Tarsikka v. The State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1964 S.C. 381	...	666
Makineni Virayya v. Mad Amanchi Bopayya, (1945)2 M.L.J. 208: A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 492	...	341
The Management of Blue Star & Company Ltd. v. The Assistant Commissioner of Labour, Madras, (1989)1 L.L.J. 233	...	666, 679
The Management of L.T.Private Limited v. N Palaniswami, (1987)1 L.L.J. 458	..	86
A B.Manavala Chettiar v T.V.Selvarajan, 1991 T.L.N.J. 166	...	374
Mangal Singh v. Rattno, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1786	...	110, 423
Manikkam Pillai v. Thanikachallam Pillai, A.I.R. 1917 Mad. 706(1)(B)	...	185
Mani Mani v. Mani Jushua, (1970)1 S.C.R. 71	...	680
Mahoharlal v. Rajeswari Devi, A.I.R. 1977 All.36	.	543
Mahoharlal v. Seth Hiralal, (1962)1 S.C.R. (Supp) 460	..	280
Manohar Lal Chopra v. Rai Bahadur Rao Raja Seth Mirala, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 527	...	276, 278
Maria Christine v. Marai Zurma, A I R. 1979 S.C. 1352	...	559, 560, 561
Mari Ammal v. Kandaswamy, 1977 T.L.N.J. 499	...	324
Mary Vanitha v. Babu Royan, (1991)2 M.L.J. 231	.	380
Mayavaram Financial Corporation Limited, Mayiladuthurai v. The Registrar of Chits, Pondicherry, 1991 Writ L.R 519	...	127
Meenakshi Mills Limited v. Commissioner of I.T, Madras, (1957)1 M.L.J. 1: A I.R. 1957 S.C. 49	...	192
Meenakshisundaram v. Srinivasaga Reddiar, (1971)1 M.L.J. 44	...	423
M.Meenakshisundaram v. S.Venkatesh, (1981)2 M.L.J. 288: A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 277	...	25
Meenakshi Sundaram Pillai v. Chandrakasa Naicker, A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 550: 101 L.Q. 98: 1927 M.W.N. 294	...	447, 449, 450
Mettur Chemicals and Industrial Corporation Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1991) 52 E.L.T. 592	...	365
Mirja Sajjid Hussain v. Nawab Wazir Ali Khan, 23 M.L.J. 210	...	544
Mithilesh Garg v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 443	...	254, 256, 346, 348

S.P.Mittal v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 1: (1983)1 S.C.J. 45: (1983)1 S.C.R. 729: (1983)1 S.C.C. 51	...	500, 502
Mitsubish France v. Neyveli Lignite Corporation Limited, (1984)2 M.L.J. 369: A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 300	...	452
Modern Hotel, Gudur v. K.Radhakrishnaiah, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 1510: (1989)2 S.C.C. 686	..	412
Mogulsha v. Mohammed Sahib, I.L.R. 11 Bom. 517	...	243
Mohammadalli v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1964 S.C. 980: 24 F.J.R. 221: (1964)1 S.C.J. 329	...	666, 667
Mohammed v. Mohammed Haji, 1986 K.L.T. 134	...	280
Mohammed Buksh Khan v. Hosseini Bibi, I.L.R. 15 Cal. 684	...	242, 243
Mohamed Hamidulla v. Tehurenissa Bibi, I.L.R. 25 Cal. 155	...	449
Mohammed Ihtishan Ali v. Jamna Prasad, 20 M.L.J. 961: A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 56: 48 I.A. 355: 64 I.C. 299	...	101, 102
Mohamed Meera v. Thirumalaya, (1966)1 S.C.R. 574: A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 430	...	559, 560, 561
Mohd.Sabar Ali v. Mubarak Begum, (1982)1 An.W.R. 195	...	482
Mohammad Sadiq Alikhan v. Fakhir Jahan Begum, (1931) 62 M.L.J. 320	..	244, 247
Mohammed Swalles v. IIIrd Additional District Judge, Meerut, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 94	...	256
Mohammed Usman Military Contractor, Jhansi v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1969 S.C. 474	...	404
Mohan v. Santha Bai Ammal, (1989)II L.W. 197	...	343
Moothalayandam Chettiar v. Renganathan and Company, 81 L.W. 383	...	658
Motilal Padampat Sugar Mills Co. (P.) Ltd. v. State of U.P., (1979)2 S.C.C. 409: 44 S.T.C. 43: (1979)2 S.C.J. 185: A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 621	..	565, 566
Mouna Mutt Kuttalai Estate v. Andiappan, 82 L.W. 77 (S.N.)	..	389
Mullick Abdool Gaffoor v. Muleka, I.L.R. 10 Cal. 1112 at P. 1123	...	243
S.S.Munnalal v. S.S.Rajkumar, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1493: (1962)3 S.C.R. (Supp.) 418	...	108, 109
Munni v. Bai Abdul Gani, A.I.R. 1939 M.P. 225	...	246
Munshi Ram v. Malava Ram, A.I.R. 1917 Lal. 194	...	449, 450
S.F.Munuswami v. Erasu Goundar, A.I.R. 1975 Mad. 25	...	581, 582, 583
Muralidhar Chatterjee v. International Film Co. Ltd., (1943)2 M.L.J. 869: A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 34	...	490

Muruga Mudaliar v. Subba Reddiar, (1950)2 M.L.J. 818 (F.B.)	...	523
K.Murugappa v. Kuppaswami, (1948)2 M.L.J. 458	...	282, 283
S Murugesan v. Bank of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 247	...	9
Murugesan v. Collector of North Arcot, (1966)2 M.L.J. 290	...	466
Mysore Kirloskar Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1990) 50 E.L.T. 175	...	364

N

Nabob Amiruddaula Muhammad Kakya Hussain Khan Bahadur Amirjung v. Nateri Srinivasa Charlu, 6 M.H.C.R. 356	...	243
A.V.Nachane v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1982 S.C. 1126: 1982 Lab.I.C. 181: (1982)1 S.C.C. 705: (1982)1 Lab.L.J. 110	...	314, 316, 318
Naganada Iyer v. Krishnamurthi Iyer, (1941) I.L.R. 34 Mad. 97	...	646
Nagarajan v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., Madras, (1970)2 M.L.J. 599: A.I.R. 1971 Mad. 295 ...	...	273
The Nagar Rice and Flour Mills v. Teekappa Gowda and Brothers, (1970)2 S.C.J. 473: A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 246	...	256, 348
Namachivaya Mudaliar v. P.J.A.Manickavelu, (1972)2 M.L.J. 78: A.I.R. 1972 Mad. 292	...	602
Dr.K.C.Nambiar v. State of Madras, (1953)1 M.L.J. 49	...	655
Nanavati V.Digbijai Singh and Sajjad Hussain v. Wazir Ali Khan, 39 I.A. 156	...	540
Nanda Rao v. Lakshmanaswami Mudaliar, (1969)1 M.L.J. 153	...	656
Narain Singh v. Rukmani, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 93	...	179
Narasimhappa v. Hanumanthappa, (1976)2 Kar L.J. 33 S.N.C. 40	...	284
Narayana v. Madras State Palm Gar Sammelan, A.I.R. 1974 Mad. 281: 87 L.W. 39	...	302, 304
Narayanan Chettiar v. Rathinasabapathy Ayyar, 29 M.L.J. 464	...	376
Narayanappa v. Bhaskara Krishnappa, (1966)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 80: (1966)2 An.W.R.(S.C.) 80: (1966)2 S.C.J. 490: A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1300	...	71
Narayana Reddy v. Secretary, Regional Transport Authority, Cuddapah, (1960)2 An.W.R. 91	...	353
Narayanawamy v. Sundari, (1980)1 M.L.J. 278	...	152
Narayan Bhagwant Rao Gosavi Balajiwal v. Gopal Vinayak Gosavi, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 100. (1960)1 S.C.R. 773	...	17

Nasbhai Motibhai Desai v. Roshan Kumar, Haji Bashir Ahmed, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 578	...	256, 348
Natarajan Chettiar v. Balachandran, (1990)2 L.W. 394	.	511
S.V.R.Natarajan Chettiar v. State of Madras, I L.R. 1960 Mad. 449	...	368, 369
Natesa Mudaliar v. Thanapal Bus Service, A.I.R. 1964 Mad. 136	...	352
Natesa Naicker v. Vedagiri, (1975)1 M.L.J. 301	...	642, 643
Nathulal v. Gomti Kaur, A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 160	...	675, 676
M/s.National Hotel v. Rukaiyabai, A.I.R. 1985 Bom. 403	..	366, 367
Navalka and Sons v. Ramanya Doss, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 2037	..	12
Neelakanda Rao v. State of Mysore, A.I.R. 1960 Mys. 87	..	523
New India Assurance Company Limited v. Minque Lourence Corriea, 1986 A.C.J. 646	..	369
Nilkanth Prasad v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1135: (1962)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 728	...	253
Nurbai v. Abhram Muhammad, A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 149	..	248

O

Official Trustee v. S.N.Chatterjee, (1969)2 S.C.J. 123: (1969)3 S.C.R. 92: A.I.R. 1969 S.C. 823	..	148
Omanhene Kwamin Bassavin v. Omanhene Bendentu, A.I.R. 1937 P.C. 274. 170 L.C. 423	...	546
Orient Paper Mills v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1969 S.C. 48	...	364
Orissa Cement Limited v. Superintendent, Customs and Central Excise, (1992)61 E.L.T. 256	...	567, 574
Ouseph Chacko v. Raman Nair Raghavan Nair, A.I.R. 1989 Ker. 317 ... 191, 196	...	191, 196

P

M/s.P.Orr and Sons (P) Limited v. M/s.Associated Publishers (Madras) Limited, (1990)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 12: (1990)2 L.W. 547	...	149
Padam Sen v. The State of Bihar, (1961)1 S.C.R. 884	..	276, 281
Padayachi v. State of Madras, (1952)2 M.L.J. 298: I.L.R. 1952 Mad 982: 1952 M.W.N. 677: A.I.R. 1952 Mad 756	...	444
Pahalajmal Khatumal v. K.Govindarajulu, Power of Attorney Agent of T.V. and Brothers and Abhaichand Vendavan, 74 L.W. 828: (1961)1 M.L.J. 150	...	6, 7
A.Palaniandi Pillai v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., Madras, 93 L.W. 12	...	503

Palaniappa Chettiar v. Ponnuswami Pillai, (1970)1 S.C.W.R. 487	..	514
S.Palanivelu v. K.Varadammal, (1978)1 M.L.J. 212	...	388
Palaniyandi Malavarayan v. Vadamalai Vidayan, 29 M.L.J. 685: A.I.R. 1916 Mad. 1001: 2 L.W. 723	...	185
Pandit Banarsi Das Bhumat v. The State of M.P., A.I.R. 1958 S.C. 909	...	666, 667
Pandiyan Roadways Corporation Limited v. Thiru M.A.Egappan, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 958	...	253
Panji Achan v. Marutha Veera Kavundan, 22 M.L.J. 543	...	447
Panyam Thirumalappa v. Alasyam Ramappa, A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 133	...	17
Para Prasanna Sen v. Shandi Bibi, (1922) I.L.R. 49 Cal. 68	...	246
B.Paras Devi v. M/s Vijaya Auto Parts, 100 L.W. 319	...	147
Parasnath Rai v. Tlleshra Khauar, 1965 All.L.J. 1080	...	543
Parle Products (P) Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1992)57 E.L.T. 152	...	361
Parvathi Ammal v. Pallavan Transport Corporation, 1984 A.C.J. 342	..	402
Smt.Patel Bala Debi v. Santimoy Majumdar, A.I.R. 1956 Cal. 575	...	542
Periyar and Parekanni Rubbers Limited v. State of Kerala, A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 2192	...	314, 315, 318
Perumal v. Muthuswami, (1962)2 M.L.J. 218: A.I.R. 1962 Mad. 447	...	657
K Perumal Chettiar v. V.Muthusami, (1962)2 M.L.J. 218 (F.B.)	...	415, 416
Pichamma v. Sreeramulu, 34 M.L.J. 24: A.I.R. 1918 Mad. 143(2)	...	646, 651
Pirgond Hongonda Patil v. Kalgonda Shidgonda, 1957 M.L.J. (Crl.) 314: 1957 S.C.R. 657: 1957 S.C.J. 392: A.I.R. 1957 S.C. 363	...	378
Ponds India Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1988)38 E.L.T. 351	...	361
P Pon Kailasam v. The Secretary, Saraswathi Narayan College, (1992)2 M.L.J. 55	...	10
Ponnuswami Goundan v. Kalyanasundaram Ayyar, A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 770	...	100, 101
Ponnuswami Goundan v. Kalyanasundaram Ayyar, 66 M.L.J. 712: I.L.R. 57 Mad. 662: 149 I.C. 267: A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 365	...	100
Poosathurai v Kannappa Chettiar, 38 M.L.J. 349	...	549
K.P.Poulose v. State of Kerala, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1259	..	265

Pournami Oil Mills v. State of Kerala, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 590.	...	566, 573
Prem Raj v. D.L.F.Housing and Construction (P) Ltd., (1968)3 S.C.R. 648	...	691
Pren Raj Brahmin v. Bhani Ram Brahmin, I.L.R. (1846)1 Cal. 191	...	72
Pretty v. Solly, (1859)53 E.R. 1032	...	351
Province of Madras v. I.S. and C.Machado, A.I.R. 1955 Mad. 519	...	590, 594
Pulchand Motilal v. Madhar Lal, A.I.R. 1973 Pat. 196	...	172
Punjab Distilling Industries v. Income-tax Commissioner, A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 346	...	362
Punjab Engineering College v. Sanjay Gulati, A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 580: (1983)3 S.C.C. 517: (1983)2 S.C.J. 26	...	126, 204
Pusaram v. Manmal, A.I.R. 1955 Raj. 186	..	99
Pushpa Bai v. Ranjig G. and P. Company, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1735	...	303
Pushraipurushotham Udeshi v. Ranjit Ginning and Pressing Company, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1735: 1977 A.C.J. 345	...	304
B.K.Puttaramiah v. H.I.E. & Sons, A.I.R. 1959 Mys. 94	...	602
Pyare Lal Sharma v. Managing Director, J.K.Industries Limited, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 1854	.	398

Q

Quilon District Private Bus Operators Association v. State Transport Appellate Tribunal, Ernakulam, A.I.R. 1992 Ker. 267	...	256, 348
---	-----	----------

R

R v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, (1968)1 All E.R. 763	...	282, 283
Radhakrishnan v. Seethalakshmi, (1988)1 L.W. 67	...	124
Radhakrishnan v. Shridhar, I L.R. 1950 Nag. 532	...	559
Radha Raman v. State of U.P., A.I.R. 1954 All. 700	..	443
V.K.S.Raghavan v. K.B.Dayathi, 100 L.W. 303	...	410
Raghava Naicker v. Abdul Hussain Hazarally and Company, 1936 M.W.N. 1096	...	389
* Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad, 46 M.L.J. 610	...	548
Rahim Khan v. Khurshid Ahmed, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 290	...	104

Rajagopala v. Avadai Velar, (1961)1 M.L.J. 193: 74 L.W. 29: A.I.R. 1961 Mad. 251	...	676
S.Rajagopala Chettiar v. Hamsaveni Ammal, (1991)4 S C C. 383	.	114, 115
Rajagopala Naidu v State Transport Appellate Tribunal, A I.R. 1964 S.C. 1573	.	364
Rajah Muthiah Medical College Students Council v. State of Tamil Nadu, 1991 Writ L R 959	...	315
Rajani Kanta Barui v. Bonbehari Sarkar, A I.R. 1952 Cal. 7	...	103
Raja Venkataramayya v. Kamiseti Ghattayya, 53 M.L.J. 216	...	100, 101
Rajendran v The Presiding Officer, Principal Labour Court, Madras, (1992)1 M.L.J. 551	..	9
Rajitram v Kateswarnath, 18 All. 396	...	8
Dr Rajkumar v. Gulbarga University, A.I.R. 1990 Karn. 320	...	160
Rajmal v Islam Mahomed, A I R 1958 Raj. 6	.	99
Raju Chetty v. Jagannatha Das Govindas, (1949)2 M.L.J. 694	...	654
C.R.Ramachandra Gowder v C.P.Nanjappa, (1973)1 M.L.J. 189: A.I.R. 1973 Mad. 179	...	71
M Ramachandra Iyer v. Thomas Mathai, A.I.R. 1966 Ker. 65	...	603
Ramakrishnan, M.R.S. v. The Assistant Director of E.S.W., etc., Board, 95 L.W. 450	...	520, 521
C.V.Raman v. The Management of Bank of India, Madras, (1985)2 M.L.J. 439	...	92
Rama Rao v. Shantibai, A.I.R. 1977 M.P. 222	...	649, 650
Ramaswami Chettiar v. Kanniappa Mudaliar, 60 M.L.J. 237	...	374
Ramaswami Jadayya Gounder v V.T Elaiya Pillai, A I.R. 1972 Mad. 336	...	546
Ramaswamy Gounder v. Venkatachalam, (1976)1 M.L.J. 243	...	690
S.N.K.Ramaswamy Pillai v. Karmega Thevar, (1964)2 M.L.J. 89	...	324
Ramayya v. Mahalakshmi, A I R. 1922 Mad. 357	...	341
Ramineni Satyanarayana, In re. , A.I.R. 1980 A.P. 129	...	651
Ramkrishna Verma v. State of U.P., J.T. (1992)2 S.C. 545	...	254
Ramrup Rai v. Cheodhari Kuer, A I.R. 1980 Pat. 197	...	235, 392
Ram Nandan Sharma v. Mt.Maya Devi, A.I.R. 1975 Pat. 283	...	658
M.S.Ram Singh v. B.S.Surana, A.I.R. 1972 Cal. 190	...	523

Y Ranganathan v. P.L.N.Gupta, A I R 1985 Mad. 348	265
P.G.Ranganatha Padayachi v Mayavaram Financial Corporation, (1973)2 M.L.J. 93: A.I.R. 1974 Mad. 1	599, 600, 601, 602, 604
Rangaraja Iyengar v. Achikannu Ammal, (1959)2 M L J. 513	475
Rangaswami Reddi v Duraiswami Reddi, (1957)2 M L J. 196: 70 L.W. 583: I.L.R. 1957 Mad. 987: 1957 M.W.N. 434: A I R. 1957 Mad. 715	676
Rangayya Appa Rao v. Bobha Sriramulu, I.L R 27 Mad. 148	683, 685
Rani Purnima Debi v Kumar Khagendra Narayan Deb, (1962)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 27: (1962)2 An.W R. (S.C.) 27: (1962)1 S.C J 725: A.I R 1962 S.C. 567	101
Dr.N R.Rao v. Premier Auto Electric Private Limited, (1980)1 M.L.J. 1 (F.B.)	513
Rasoi Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1990)49 E.L.T. 522	360, 361, 363
Rathnam Naicker v. Mani Naicker, (1955)1 M.L.J. 2 (S.N.)	513
Dr.V.Rathnaswamy v. Director of Medical Education, 1986 Writ L.R. 207	126, 127
M/s.Raval & Company v. Ramachandran, (1966)2 M.L.J. 68	655
Rayapati Audemma v Pothineni Narasimhan, A.I.R. 1971 A.P 53	279
I.J.J.Rebello v. C.C.Rev.Authority, A I R. 1971 Mys. 318	72
Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Trivandrum v. K.Kunhambu, A.I.R 1980 S.C. 350: (1980)2 S C.R. 260	668, 669
Revanna v. Dr.A.V.Ranga Rao, A.I.R. 1952 Mysore 119 ... 102
Rex v. Kerusingson Income-tax Commissioner, (1917)1 K.B. 486	661
Rishi Kesh Singh v. State, 1969 All.L.J 657: I.L.R (1969)1 All. 362: A.I.R. 1970 All. 51: 1970 Cr.L.J. 132	674
Robinson v. Union Property Corporation Limited, (1962)2 All E R. 24	378
Rooplinga Chettiar v. Deputy Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., Madras, 97 L.W. 424	273
Roshanlal v. State of U.P., A I R. 1965 S.C. 991: (1965)2 S.C.J. 721: (1965)1 S.C.R. 841	517
Roshan Singh v. Zile Singh, (1989)2 M.L.J. 18	523
Rukhmabai v. Laxminarayana, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 335	685

A.V.Sabha v. H.C and R.I. and E. Commissioner, Hyderabad, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 475	...	503
Sachidanand Pandey v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 1109: (1987)2 S.C.C. 295	...	182, 258, 348
Sadachi Ammal v. Rajathi Ammal, 1939 M.W.N. 651: A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 315	...	103
Sadhabi Debi v. Parmananda Misra, 4 Cut.L.T. 6	...	543
Sajjad Hussain v. Wazir Ali Khan, 39 I A 156 (P.C.)	...	541
Samarth Transport Corporation (P) Limited v. The Regional Transport Authority, Nagpur, A.I.R. 1961 S.C. 93	...	252
N.Sambandam v. S.Khader Sheriff, A.I.R. 1966 Mad. 1: I.L.R. (1964)2 Mad. 631	...	254
Sambudamurthi Mudaliar v. State of Madras, (1970)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 58	...	185, 186
Sankarakumara Nadar v. Assistant Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., (1975)1 M.L.J. 12	...	501, 503
R.Sankaran v. Additional Labour Court, Madras, 1977 Lab.I.C 1338	...	86
Sales Tax Officer v. Abraham, (1967)20 S.T.C 367	...	466
P.Saraswathi v. Lakshmi, (1977)2 M.L.J.179: A.I.R. 1978 Mad. 361	...	547
K.R.Saraswathi v. Vadivelu Chettiar, (1967)2 M.L.J. 81	..	656
Satyadeo Prasad v. Smt.Chanderjoti Debi, A.I.R. 1966 Pat. 110	...	544
Satyanandam v. Namayya, A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 307	...	434
Satyanarayana v. Vellohi Rao, (1965)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 145: (1965)2 An W.R. (S.C.) 145: (1965)2 S.C.J. 678: A.I.R. 1965 S.C. 1405	.	621
Savani Transports (P) Limited v. Jamal Mohammed, (1989)1 L.W. 172	...	233
P.Savits v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 1124	...	238, 239
Sawan Ram v. Kalwanti, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1761	...	496
Scott v London and St., Katherine Docks, (1865)3 H and C 596, 601	...	117
Seeni Kutta v. Kunhi Pathumma, 33 M.L.J. 320. I.L.R. 40 Mad 1040: A.I.R. 1919 Mad. 972 (F.B.)	...	185
Seenı Nadar v. Thangamuthu, 1990 T.N.L.J. 335	...	379
Selvam Mudaliar v. Raju Mudaliar, (1962)2 M.L.J. 657	...	374

R.Selvaraj v. R.Radhakrishna Pillai, (1976)1 M.L.J. 105	...	17
Sendamarai Ammal v. Vijaya Rajagopal Chettiar, (1984)1 M.L.J. 324: A.I.R. 1984 Mad. 122: 97 L.W. 85: 1984 T.L.N.J. 199	...	675
Sengara Singh v. State of Punjab, (1984)1 L.L.J. 161	...	396
Sethu Madhavarao v. Food Corporation of India, A.I.R. 1985 Guj. 27	..	426
Shah Babulal Khimji v. Jayaben, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 1786	...	168
Shaik Ibrahim v. Shaik Suleman, I.L.R. 9 Bom. 146	...	243
Shamu Pattar v. Abdul Kadir Ravuthan, 23 M.L.J. 321: 16 I.C. 250: 39 I.A. 218: 1912 M.W.N. 935	...	103
Shankarappa v. Sushilabai, A.I.R. 1984 Kant. 112	...	99, 101
Shankaralal Patwari v. Hiralal Murarka, A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 180	...	147, 148
Shankarrao Gangadhar v. Ramji Harjivan, I.L.R. 28 Bom. 58: 5 Bom.L.R. 663	...	99
Sheikh Muhammad Mumtaz Ahmed v. Zubaida Jan, (1889) L.R. 16 I.A. 205: I L R. 11 All 460 (P.C.)	...	243, 247, 248
The Shipping Corporation of India Ltd., Bombay v. The Union of India, A I.R. 1976 A.P. 261	...	614
Shivaji Works Limited v. Collector of Central Excise, (1990)50 E L.T. 50	...	364
Shivalingappa v. P.B.Puttappa, A.I.R. 1971 Mys. 273	...	616
M/s.Shiv Chand Amolak Chand v. The Regional Transport Authority, A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 9: (1983)4 S.C.C. 433: 1984 Lab L.J. 1: (1984)1 Comp.L.J. 214	...	354
Shyam Sunder v. State of Rajasthan, A I.R. 1974 S.C. 890	...	117, 119, 231
Sitabai v. Ramchandra, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 343: (1970)1 S.C.J. 476: (1970)2 S.C.R. 1: 1970 S.C.D. 420: (1970)1 S.C.A. 222	...	497
Sita Ram v. Radha Bai, (1968)2 S C J 251: A.I.R. 1968 S.C. 534	...	487
Sitaram Motilal v. Santanuprasad Jaishanker, A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1697	...	303
K.R.Sivagami v. Mahabobh Niss Bi, (1981)94 L.W. 1: A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 138	...	304
Somavanti v. State of Punjab, (1963)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 18: (1963)2 An.W.R. (S.C.) 18: (1963)2 S.C.J. 35: A I.R. 1963 S.C. 151: (1963)2 S.C.R. 774	..	444
Smt.Sonia Parshini v. Sheikh Moula Baksha, A.I.R. 1955 Cal. 17	...	540, 542, 543
Soudamini Roy Chowdhury v. Satyendranath Sekar, 85 C.W.N. 958	...	280

Soundarajan v. Khake Mohammed Ismail Saheb, A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 42: 186 I.C. 11	...	14, 15
Soundararajan v. Saiyee Finance, (1986)1 M.L.J. 214	...	602, 604
Sorra Reddi v. Chenna Reddi, (1950)1 M.L.J. 83: A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 306	...	335
South India Insurance Company Limited v. P.Subramaniam, (1971)2 M.L.J. 198: A.I.R. 1972 Mad. 49	...	303
Sri Agastheeswarar Perumal Devasthanam v. Narasimhan, (1982)2 M.L.J. 70	...	643
R.Sridharan v. Commissioner of Wealth-tax, Madras, (1971)1 M.L.J. 249: A.I.R. 1970 Mad. 308	...	324
Sri Konaseema Cooperative Central Bank Limited v. N.Seetharama Raju, A.I.R. 1990 A.P. 171	...	93
Sri Kothanadaraswami Devasthanam v. Gopal Naidu, (1992)2 L.W. 363	...	392
Sri Mahant Paramananda Das Goswami v. Radhakrishna Das, (1926)51 M.L.J. 258	...	186
Srinivasan v. Subramaniam, (1965)2 M.L.J. 502	...	425
H.H.Srivan Satagopa Sri Vedantha Desika Yathindra Mahadesikhan, (1991)2 L.W. 599	...	188
State Bank of Saurashtra v. Chitranjan Ranganath, A.I.R.1980 S.C. 1328	...	78
State Bank of Travancore v. Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Coimbatore, (1981)1 L.L.J. 393	...	666, 670, 671
State of Andhra Pradesh v. Raja Reddy, (1968)1 M.L.J. (S.C.) 8: (1968)2 S.C.J. 857: (1967)2 LT.J. 777: A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1458	..	464
State of Bombay v. Hospital Mazdoor Sabha, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 610	...	363
State of Haryana v. Smt.Darshana Devi, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 855: 1979 A.C.J. 205	...	356, 367, 368
State of Kerala v. Gwalior Rayon Silk Manufacturing (Weaving) Company Limited, (1974)1 S.C.R. 671: A.I.R. 1973 S.C. 2734	...	565
State of Kerala v. K.G.Madhavan Pillai, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 49	...	314, 321
State of Madhya Pradesh v. Kaluram, (1967)2 S.C.J. 823: (1967)1 S.C.R. 268: 1967 Lab.L.J. 55: A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1105	...	76, 78
State of Maharashtra v. Sh.Chandra Kant, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 148: (1977)1 S.C.R. 993	...	188
State of Tamil Nadu v. K.M.Dhanasekaran, 93 L.W. 207	...	683, 684
State of Tamil Nadu v. V.V.Vaniaperumal and Company, (1990)76 S.T.C. 203 (F.B.)	...	362
State of West Bengal v. Atul Krishna Shaw, A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 2205	...	506

Staveley Iron and Chemical Company Limited v Jones, 1956 A C. 627	...	303
Steel Authority of India v Indian Steamship Co by Agent, 1979 T.L N.J. 196	...	611, 613
Steel Authority of India Limited v The Union of India, etc., (1981)1 M L.J. 126	..	516
St.Stephen's College v. The University of Delhi, (1991)2 Scale 1217: (1992)1 S.C.C. 558	...	142, 144
Sterling General Insurance Company Limited v. Plinters Airways (P) Limited, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 415	...	404
Subal Kumar Dey v Purna Chandra Giri, A.I.R. 1989 Ori. 214	...	280
Subba Chetty v. Madras Stainless Emporium, (1979)1 M.L.J. 504	...	298, 301
A.S.Subbaraj v. M Muthiah, (1953)2 M.L.J. 377: A I.R. 1954 Mad 336	...	6, 8
M.Subbarao v. P.V.K.Krishna Rao, A.I.R. 1989 S C 2187	...	390, 391, 641
Subbarayalu v. Tatayya, 1957 M W.N. 1158	..	621
Subbhas Chandra v. Ganga Prasad, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 878	...	547, 548
Subol Chandra Dutta v. Chimai Charan Nandy, A I R 1980 Cal. 126	.	280
Subramania Patta v. Poruthama Andi, (1942)2 M.L.J. 303	...	677
Subramania Pillai v. Trustees, Temple Group, (1981)2 M.L.J. 77	...	187
S.Sundaram v. V.R.Pattabhiraman, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 582	...	659
Sundaram Chetty v. The Queen, LL.R 6 Mad. 203	...	282, 283
Sundaram Iyer v. Sarojini, (1984)1 M.L.J. 255	...	139, 140
Sunkur Subramanian Chetty v. V.K.R.Gurusami Chetty and Company, (1972)1 M.L.J. (S.N.) 37	...	301
Surendra Bahadur v. Behari Singh, (1939)2 M.L.J. 762: 181 L.C. 216: 1939 M.W.N. 867: A.I.R. 1939 P.C. 117	...	473
Surendrapal v. Saraswati, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 1999: (1974)2 S.C.C. 800	...	102
Surendra Rao v. Regional Transport Authority, Gorakhpur, A.I.R. 1992 All. 211	...	256, 348
Surjit Pal v. Prabin Kumar Sin, A.I.R. 1986 Cal. 220	...	278, 280
Swadeshi Cotton Mills v Union of India, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 818: (1981)1 S.C.C 664: 51 C.C. 210: 58 F.J.R. 190: (1981)2 S.C.R. 533	...	469
Swami Motor Transport (P) Limited v. Raman and Raman (P) Limited, (1965)1 M.L.J. 594	...	353

Syed Mohammed & Company v. State of Madras, (1952)2 M.L.J. 598: 54 Cr.L.J. 277: 1952 M.W.N. 847: A.I.R. 1953 Mad. 105	...	666, 667
--	-----	----------

T

Taff Vale Railway Company v. Jenkins, 1913 A.C. 1.	..	121
Taj Clay Works Limited v. Official Liquidator, A.I.R. 1960 A.P. 429: (1960)3 Com.Cas. 434: 1960 An.L.T. 320	...	14
The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board Retired Officials' Association v. The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board, (1992)1 M.L.J. 481	...	9
Tamil Nadu Freedom Fighters Association v. The Government of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 582	...	10
Tapti Oil Industries v. State of Maharashtra, A.I.R. 1984 Bom. 161 (F.B.)	...	567, 574
The Tata Iron and Steel Company Ltd., In re , (1950)2 L.L.J. 1943	...	666, 670, 671
P.N.Thakershie v. Pradyumen Singhji, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 1273	...	366, 367, 369
P.K.Thimayya v. Krishnaswami Naidu, 89 L.W. 604	...	380
Timmayya Dundappa v. Channava Appaya, A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 322.	...	102
H.L.Thirupathi v. Dayamanthi Devi, A.I.R. 1988 Pat. 123	...	579
Thota Sesharathamma v Thotta Manikyamma, (1991)4 S.C.C. 312	...	112, 114, 115
The Trustees of the Port of Madras v. K.V.Shaik Mohammed Rowther and Company, (1963)2 S.C.R. (Supp.) 915	...	612, 613
Tshering Wongli v. Somam Pintso, A.I.R. 1981 Sikkim 1	...	582
V.Tulasamma v. V.Sesha Reddi, (1978)1 S.C.J. 29: (1978)1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 6: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944	...	107, 109, 112, 113
M/s.Tulsidas Paul v. Second Labour Court, (1971)1 L.L.J. 526	...	85

U

Union of India v. M/s.L.K.Ahuja and Company, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 1172	...	403, 405
Union of India v. Anglo Afghan Agencies, A.I.R. 1968 S.C. 718: (1968)2 S.C.R. 366	...	564, 572
Union of India v. Chakra Tyres Limited, (1990)45 E.L.T. 3 (Mad.)	...	567, 574
Union of India v. Godfrey Philips India Limited, (1985)4 S.C.C. 369: (1986)1 Comp.L.J. 46: (1986)50 Com.Cas 536: A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 806	...	565

Union of India v. Hindustan Platinum Private Limited, (1989)44 E.L.T. 443 (Bom.)	...	567, 574
Union of India v. J.K.Industries Limited, (1990)49 E.L.T. 511	..	567, 574
Union of India v. Mohammed Ramzan Khan, A.I.R. 1991 S.C. 471	...	382, 626
Union of India v. M/s.Ralli Bros. Ltd., (1968)2 M.L.J. 199	...	611, 614
Union of India v. S.K.Sharma, (1992)2 S.C.C. 728	...	223
Union of India v. Tulsiram Patel, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 1416	...	294, 327
M/s.United Bleaders v. South East Asia Shipping Company (P) Ltd., 1978 T.L.N.J. 35	...	613, 614
United India Fire and General Insurance Company Ltd. v. M.S.Durairaj, A.I.R. 1982 Mad. 287	...	304
United India Insurance Company v. Gurdev Singh, 1990 A.C.J. 946	...	402
Universal Dyestuff Industries, In re. , 63 Comp.Cas. 842	...	14
Uttam Singh v. Hukam Singh, I.L.R. 39 All. 112	...	100

V

Vadari v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219	...	134, 135, 136
K.A.Vadivelu v. R Govindarajulu, (1992)1 L.W. 190	...	147
Vadla Nagiah v. Valuru Divakara Mudaliar, 1917 M.W.N. 583	...	103
Vahzullah Sahib v. Boyapati Nagayya, 17 M.L.J. 562. LL.R. 30 Mad. 519	..	242
Valliammal v. Rakkie Gounder, (1991)2 M.L.J. 478	...	102
Valliammal Achi v. Nagappa Chettiar, (1968)1 M.L.J. 347	...	680
R.Valliammal v. Commissioner, H.R. and C.E., Madras, (1975)2 M.L.J. (N.R.C.) 7	...	466
The Vanguard Insurance Company Limited v. Chinnammal, 1969 A.C.J. 226	...	303
Varadachariyar v. The Commissioner of Police, (1969)2 M.L.J. 1	...	283
K.Varadhan v. Pattammal, (1992)2 M.L.J. 209	...	538
M/s.Variety Emporium v. R.M.Mohammed Ibrahim, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 207	...	147
Vasant v. Tukaram, A.I.R. 1960 Bom. 485	...	448
K.Vasantha v. Venugopal Achari, 1987 T.L.N.J. 196	...	595

F

Vedachala Naicker v. Durai Mualiar, (1950)1 M L J 732	...	642, 643
S.Vedanthacharya v. Highways Department, 1987 A.C.J. 783	..	590, 594
J.Velan v. G.Muthu, (1990)2 M.L.J. 417	...	335
Velu Padayachi v. Sivasoorian, (1950)1 M.L.J. 315: 63 L.W. 234: I.L.R. 1950 Mad. 987: A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 444 (F.B.)	...	489
Velur Vaidyanathaswami Devasthanam v. State of Madras, (1967)1 M L.J. 43	...	528
Venkatachala v. B.N.Thimmajamma, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 443	...	227, 228, 231
Venkatappa v. Venkatappa, A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 650: I.L.R. 1944 Mad. 266	..	434
Venkata Sastri and Sons v. Rahilna Bi, A.I.R. 1962 Mad. 111	...	102
Venkat Dharmaji v. Vishwanatha, A.I.R. 1983 Bom. 413	..	580
R.Venataswami Naidu v. Narasuram Naraindas, (1966)1 M L.J. (S.C.) 1	...	655
S.K.Verma v. Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, New Delhi, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 422: (1980)4 S.C.C. 443. (1981)1 S.C.W.R. 89: 1981 Ser.L.J. 107: (1981)1 Lab.L.J. 388: (1981)1 S.C.R. 789: 1980 Lab.I.C. 1292	...	656
K.K.Verma v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1954 Bom. 358	...	521
Vidya Charan Shukla v. Tamil Nadu Olympic Association, A.I.R. 1991 Mad. 323	...	277
Vidya Varuthi v. Bailtsami Ayyan, A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 123	...	455
M/s.Vij Resins Private Limited v. State of Jammu and Kashmir, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 1629: (1989)3 S.C.C. 115	...	314, 566, 574
Vikrant Tyres Limited v. Union of India, (1992) E L.T. 381	...	567
Vinaj Rampal v. State of J. and K., A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 1199	...	204
Vinayak Bhagwan Shetty v. Kismat (P) Limited, (1984)1 L.L.J. 203	...	86
Visalakshi Ammal v. Dhanalakshmi Ammal, (1989)2 L.W. 414	...	510
M.Viswanatha Rao v. Emperor, 28 L.W. 406	...	282, 283
— Vyapuri v. Vijayan, 1978 T.L.N.J. 62	...	690
Vythianathan v. Murugayya Padayachi, 1985 T.L.N.J. 265	...	676, 677
W
Wazirchand Mahajan v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 990	...	404

West Bengal State v. Birendra Nath, A.I.R. 1955 Cal. 601	..	521
D.W.Winton v. Brecon, (1858)28 L.J. Ch. 598	...	351
Workmen, Ennore Foundries v. Manager, (1978)2 L.L.J. 222	...	86
Workmen of Assam Match Company Limited v. Labour Court, (1978)2 L.L.J. 279	...	85
Workmen of the Motor Industries Company Limited v. Management of Motor Industries Company Limited, A.I.R. 1969 S.C. 1280; (1969)19 F.L.R. 375	..	395
Workmen of United Bleachers v. United Bleachers, (1968)1 L.L.J. 529	.	85
Wulff and Billing v. Jay, (1872)7 Q.B. 756	...	77, 78

X

Xavier v. Canara Bank Ltd., 1969 K.L.T. 927	...	601, 602
---	-----	----------

Y

B.Yamuna Bai v. N.Ramaswamy, (1977)1 M.L.J. 223	...	147, 149
Yenugu Achayya v. Venkatasubba Rao, A.I.R. 1957 A.P. 854	...	582, 583
Yeshwant Singh v. Jagdish Singh, (1968)2 S.C.J. 244; (1968)2 S.C.R. 208: A.I.R. 1968 S.C. 620	...	521
Young v. Edward Box and Company, (1951)1 T.L.R. 789	...	303
Yusuf Rowther v. Yusuf Rowther, (1958)1 M.L.J. 14	...	247

- ANDHRA PRADESH CHARITABLE AND HINDU RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS AND ENDOWMENTS ACT (XVII OF 1986), Sec.77 - Public being allowed to visit a temple, if indicative that the trust is public trust ... 9
- ARBITRATION ACT (X OF 1940), Secs 3 and 8 and Schedule I, Clause 4 - Agreement between parties providing for arbitration by arbitrators and the appointment of an umpire - One arbitrator making an award - Other arbitrator writing award later coming to different conclusion - Master referred to umpire - Awards if made without joint deliberations of umpires and therefore vitiated - Umpire, if can enter upon the reference. 28
- CIVIL SERVICES - Deputation - Person on deputation - Subsequently absorbed in deputation post - Basic pay - Fixation - Basic pay cannot be reduced even though overall pay on absorption is higher. .. 33
- CONSTITUTION OF INDIA (1950), Art 136 - Concurrent finding that temple is public temple - Interference by Supreme Court - Scope for. ... 9
- EDUCATIONAL SERVICE - Special Rules for the Tamil Nadu Higher Secondary Educational Service - Post of Headmaster of Aided Higher Secondary School - Rule requiring experience of not less than ten years as B T Assistant or Pandit in a Secondary School or Higher Secondary School after obtaining a teaching degree - Person working as Telugu Pandit from 1975, but acquiring teaching degree only in 1983 - Whether eligible for appointment as Headmaster in 1986 . 1
- FAMILY COURTS ACT (LXVI OF 1984), Sec 10 - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.5, Rules 9, 10, 20 and 21 - Natural justice - Principles of - Divorce proceedings pending before Family Court, Pune - Wife filing petition before Supreme Court for transfer case from Pune to Family Court, Delhi - Interim stay granted - Transfer petition dismissed and stay vacated - Thereafter notices sent by Family Court, Pune, to wife at her addresses at Naida and Delhi coming back with endorsement 'not found' - Substituted service in newspaper published - Thereafter ex parte order of divorce passed - Legality. .. 18
- MADRAS CITY TENANTS PROTECTION ACT (III OF 1922), Sec.9 - Landlord filing suit for possession of suit MADRAS CITY TENANTS PROTECTION ACT (III OF 1922), property on the ground that the appellant was a tenant holding over - Tenant filing petition under Sec.9 - Appellant, if can take different plea that appellant was not a tenant and so was not entitled to relief under Sec.9. ... 35
- PARTNERSHIP ACT (IX OF 1932) - Partnership firm - No legal entity - Property would vest in all partners - Rights of partners during its subsistence and on its dissolution. .. 41
- PLEADINGS - High Court cannot make out a new case beyond the pleadings. ... 35
- RAILWAY CLAIMS TRIBUNAL ACT (LIV OF 1987), Secs 13(1), 15 and 18(1) - Railway Claims Tribunal Rules (1989), Rules 6 and 44 - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.33 - Indigent person if can be permitted to prefer claim without payment of fee, on principle of O 33, C.P.C. . 38
- REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908), Sec.17(1) - Partnership Act (IX of 1932), Sec.48 - Dissolution of partnership - Settlement of accounts - Residue divided among partners Arbitrators allotting lands and buildings of the firm or jointly owned by the partners to one or other or jointly, to some of the partners - Award - Whether confers exclusive rights to the allottees - Award, if requires registration. ... 42
- Sec.17(1) - Partnership Act (IX of 1932), Sec 48 - Dissolution of partnership - Distribution of assets of firm amongst partners of firm - If amounts to partition of immovable properties - Whether amounts to relinquishment or extinguishment of share in immovable property - Award so distributing if requires registration. 42
- TAMILNADU CHIT FUNDS RULES (1964), Appendix II, Articles 1 (as amended) and 8-A as inserted by the Amendment - Validity of ... 3
- TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT (IV OF 1882), Sec.111(f) - Implied surrender of lease - Lessor granting a new lease to third person with asset of the lessee under existing lease - Lease directing his sub-tenant to pay rent direct to landlord - If amount to implied surrender. ... 22

GENERAL INDEX (HIGH COURT)

2

ADVERSE POSSESSION - Purchaser from one co-owner entitled only to equity and not to possession - He cannot claim title by adverse possession - His remedy is to ask for partition. .. 46 APPEAL - Act conferring right of appeal - Repealed - Repealing enactment providing a new forum - Effect of ... 553 ARBITRATION ACT (X OF 1940) - Arbitrator appointed under - It has power to send for documents required by any of the parties - Court if can direct production of documents . 264 --Sec.20 - Limitation Act (XXXVI of 1963) Schedule I, Art.137 - Clause in arbitration agreement stipulating a period of limitation - Suit under Sec.20 filed beyond that time, if barred - Limitation for applications under Sec.20. ... 403 BENAMI TRANSACTIONS (PROHIBITION) ACT (XLV OF 1988), Secs.2(a), 3, 4 and 7(1) - Sham and nominal transactions - If hit by Act - Parties if prohibited from contending that transaction is sham and no title passes under it. ... 189 CENTRAL EXCISE AND SALT ACT (I OF 1944), Sec.2(f) - Central Excise Tariff Act (1985), Chapter Notes of Schedule - Central Excise Rules 57-A, 57-D, 57-F , Plastic Granules known as LDPE, HDPE and PVC compound used in the manufacture of plastic jars etc., used as containers for Excisable goods - Whether packaging materials and inputs - Said granules if entitled to benefit of MODVAT. . 355 --Sec.11-B (as amended by Central Excise Amendment Act (XL of 1991) - Refund of excise duty - High Court directing Excise Authorities to refund excise duty on 8.1.1991 - Writ appeal filed and pending - Amended Act coming into force on 20.9.1991 - Act if will apply barring the court to direct refund. .. 128 CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908), Sec 2(12) - Mesne Profits - Suit for partition, separate possession and mesne profits decreed - Decree confirmed on appeals - Plaintiff filing interlocutory applications - Claiming mesne profits - Ordered in part - Appeals against such orders - Maintainable . .. 439 --Sec.10 - 'Matter directly and substantially in issue in ---	CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908), former and subsequent suits' - Whether should be the same in all respects. 163 --Sec.10 - Stay of suits - Matter in issue in two suits not similar - Parties in the suits different - Stay of further proceedings in the earlier suit, if can be ordered 45 --Sec.11 - Preliminary decree for partition passed and decree given to plaintiff along as co-owner - Such decree does not determine number of items of properties - Items of properties left out can be subject of partition in the course of final decree or in separate suit - Purchaser from one co-owner cannot be non suited on ground that in previous suit, preliminary decree has been granted in favour of another purchaser from another co-owner. ... 46 --Sec.11 - Prior partition suit dismissed for default - No decision on merits - Second partition suit if barred by res judicata - Right of co-sharers to maintain suit for partition - Suit for partial partition, if barred. 60 --Sec.11 - Res judicata - Suit for declaration that will concerning suit properties and other properties invalid and for maintenance of plaintiff if will was found valid - Compromised and decree passed - No issue framed in suit regarding the nature of the suit properties - Decree if operates as res judicata in subsequent suit for declaration of title of plaintiff to suit property, recovery of the same and for mesne profits. .. 436 --Sec.51, Proviso and O 21, Rules 37(1), (2), 40(3) and 40(4) - Arrest of judgment-debtor for non-payment of decree amount when can be ordered - Court should give a finding that reason for such order exists - Nature of enquiry to be held. .. 597 --Sec.99 (as amended by Act CIV of 1976) - Suit by President and Secretary of a Wakf - Objection as to frame of suit in second appeal stage - Maintainability .. 453 --Sec.115 - Powers of High Court sitting in revision 95 --Sec.115 and O.14(2)(a) - Petitioner raising question of pecuniary jurisdiction of court and praying for that issue to be decided first - Petition dismissed - Revision against order, if lies. ... 451
--	---

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908),

--Sec.115 (as amended by Act CIV of 1976) - Interim order not causing irreparable injury or failure of justice - Revision against, if maintainable. ... 451

--Sec.115 and O.14, Rule 2 - Petitioner raising question of pecuniary jurisdiction of court on ground that suit is not properly valued - Praying that that issue be decided as a preliminary issue - Application, if maintainable. ... 451

--Sec.148-A and O.52, Rule 6 - Proper procedure to be followed in cases where caveat has been filed - Filing of separate vakalat in suit or application by counsel of caveator - If necessary - Procedure to be followed if counsel for caveator evades service. ... 18

--Sec.151 and O.39, Rule 2-A - Exercise of inherent powers under Sec.151 - Scope - Civil Courts if can issue directions to police to extend their aid in the execution of decrees and orders or to implement order of injunction passed by civil courts. ... 274

--O.1, Rules 1, 9, 13 and O.2, Rule 7 - Objection as to misjoinder of parties or cause of action - Objection not taken before settlement of issues - Effect. ... 423

--O.6, Rule 17 - Suit for permanent injunction restraining defendants from interfering with his possession - Defendants claiming that they were in possession of suit properties - Plaintiff therefore filing petition to amend the plaint praying for declaration that he is absolute owner of the suit property or in the alternative for a direction to defendants to deliver vacant possession of suit properties - Amendment held must be allowed. ... 375

--O.8, Rules 10, 6, 9 and 9(2) - Civil Rules of Practice, Rule 32 - Suit instituted against four persons initially - Petitioner added as fifth defendant - Not filing any written statement in spite of grant of time - Set ex parte - Suit dismissed for default against all the defendants - Plaintiff filing application for restoration of suit - Petitioner not made party - Suit restored - Ex parte decree against the defendants 1 to 4 and also the petitioner - Sustainability. ... 150

--O.9, Rule 13, Proviso 1 - Ex parte decree passed against more than one defendant - First defendant, principal debtor - Defendants 2 and 3 sureties - First defendant alone applying for setting aside ex parte decree - Decree, if to be set aside against the other defendants also. ... 446

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908),

--O.14, Rule 2 - Preliminary issue - Mixed question of law and fact - If can be taken as a preliminary issue. ... 451

--O.17, Rules 2 and 3 and Explanation to Rule 2 (as amended by Act CIV of 1976) - One of the parties absent on date of hearing - Suit can be disposed of only under Rule 2 - Rule 3 not attracted in the absence of party - Evidence of party not taken at all or some evidence taken but substantial portion of evidence of that party yet remains to be taken - Party absent - Court, if can be proceed with the case. ... 644

--O.21, Rule 37(1), (2) - Petition for arrest and detention - Judgment-debtor appearing before executing court and filing counter - Paying several amounts towards decree - Not appearing before court on one day and not paying amount directed to be paid by him on that day - Decree-holder filing affidavit stating that judgment-debtor had means to pay - Court satisfied with the affidavit - Ordering arrest of the judgment-debtor - Order whether legal. ... 597

--O.21, Rules 64 and 66 - Decree amount of Rs.6,020 - Lands of judgment-debtor worth Rs.67,200 if can be brought to sale in execution. ... 476

--O.21, Rule 99 - Decree for mere declaration - Cannot be executed for recovery of possession. ... 80

--O.33, Rule 11 (as amended in Madras) - Person instituting suit as a pauper dying - Legal representatives brought on record - Suit dismissed - Court-fees if can be recovered from legal representatives. ... 631

--O.33, Rule 14 - Revenue Recovery Act (1890) - Limitation Act (XXXVI of 1963), Article 136 - Person instituting suit as indigent dying - Legal representatives brought on record - Suit dismissed - Court ordering recovery of court-fees from the legal representatives - Copy of decree forwarded to Collector for recovery - Collector taking proceedings for recovery more than twenty years after decree - Proceedings, if sustainable. ... 631

--O.39, Rule 7 - Mandatory injunction - Grant of - Plaintiff guilty of laches, not entitled to mandatory injunction. ... 73

--O.41, Rule 22 - Preliminary decree for partition - Defendant filing appeal against decree - Plaintiff preferring

GENERAL INDEX (HIGH COURT)

4

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908),

cross-objection after a delay of over 6 years - Memorandum of cross-objections whether can be dismissed on ground of delay - Period of limitation for cross-objections.

... 370

--O.41, Rule 23 - Suit whether can be remanded by appellate court merely to give opportunity to a party to let in additional evidence.

... 507

--O.41, Rule 27 and O.13, Rule 2 - Documents available in court - Omitted to be marked due to inadvertence - Party, if can be allowed to mark them by appellate court.

... 507

--O.47 - Motor Vehicles Act (IV of 1939), Sec.110-C(2) - Tamil Nadu Motor Vehicles Rules, Rule 18 - Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal, if can review its judgment.

... 365

CIVIL SERVICES - Disciplinary enquiry - Punishing authority differing from enquiring authority - Reasons for taking different decision to be given - Order passed without application of mind, cannot be sustained - High Court whether can go into the question of quantum of punishment.

... 504

--Seniority - Ad hoc Advice, if can be counted - Person appointed as Section Officer on 1.7.1963 - Rule requiring three years previous' experience for initial appointment introduced subsequently - Appointment if can be said to have been made not according to rules - Seniority if can be reckoned from 1.7.1963.

... 220

CIVIL SERVICES DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS - Copy of order of enquiry officer not served - Second show cause notice proposing punishment - Order if vitiated.

... 532

COMPANIES ACT (I OF 1956) - Sole agent - Not defined - Legal relationship of principal and agent - Not that of employer and employee.

... 483

--Sec.294(1), (2) and (2-A) as substituted by Amending Act (LXV of 1960) - Contract Act (IX of 1872), Secs.64 and 65 - Agreement between parties - Failure of company to place agreement before the next general body meeting of the company - Whether invalid - Court not considering whether plaintiff was in pari delicto - Agreement whether would give plaintiff right to realise obligations - To the extent of the advantage + received by defendant not considered - Order set aside. ... 483

COMPANIES ACT (I OF 1956)

--Secs.456, 457 and 460 - Companies (Court) Rules (1959), Rule 272 - Winding up of company - Official Liquidator appointed - Property of company whether vests in Official Liquidator - Liquidator selling movable and immovable property and actionable claim of company with sanction of court - Sale whether required confirmation by court - Liquidator's acts affecting property of company - Right of creditors and contributories to move court - Principles applying to court sales under C.P.C., whether applies to sale by Liquidator.

... 10

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA (1950), Arts.14 and 16(1) -

Order of termination of services of a servant of an instrumentality of State-charges levelled but no enquiry held into them - Termination of services for reason that he disobeyed an order of transfer - Termination contrived to avoid enquiry into charges - Order, held to be stricken by arbitrariness and hit by malice.

... 88

--Arts.14 and 265 - G.O.Ms.No 1178, dated 10.12.1987 relating to levy of property tax - In respect of property situate in the City of Madras - On and from 1.4.1993 - Whether illegal - Ultra vires of the rule making powers - Whether violative of rights guaranteed under the Constitution.

... 465

--Art.16(4) - Reservations to public appointments - Only one post to be filled up - If rule of reservation can be applied.

157

--Arts.29(2) and 30(1) - Minority institution giving preference to the religious minority candidate in their own institution - If amounts to discrimination and violative of Art.29(2).

.. 140

--Art.30(1) - Minority institution - Admission of students from minority communities to - Resolution of State Government Order directing the institution to make available not less than 30% of annual permitted strength in each branch - Faculty to other condition - If valid - Supreme Court's direction that minority institutions shall make available atleast 50% of annual admission to members of communities other than the minority community - Interpretation

... 140

--Art.226 - Action complained of, against person whose office is not situate within territorial jurisdiction of High Court - Order impugned having no impact in State in which High Court is situate - Petition under Art 226 - Maintainability. ... 257

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA (1950),

--Art.226 - Alternative remedy - Existence of - If bars petition under Article - Pondicherry Town and Country Planning Rules. ... 550

--Art.226 - Claim by nominee for Provident Fund relying on Secs. 107 and 108 of Evidence Act - Rejection by Provident Fund Authorities - Remedy open - Proceedings under Art.226, if will lie. ... 328

--Art.226 - Delay and laches - Termination of services of servant of Government managed company - Petitioner questioning validity of termination order under the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act - Appeal rejected as not maintainable - Moving High Court by a writ in 1983 - Filing a second writ petition in 1991 to avoid a technical objection - Delay, held, cannot vitiate the proceedings. ... 88

--Art.226 - Discretionary jurisdiction under - Exercise of - Petitioner is guilty of suppression of material facts - Furnishing of misleading statements - Whether entitled to relief under discretionary jurisdiction. ... 659

--Art.226 - Locus standi - Writ if can be maintained at instance of person not aggrieved. ... 249

--Art.226 - Natural justice - Principles of Nature of. ... 179

--Art.226 - Natural Justice - Tamil Nadu Water Supply and Drainage Board installing overhead tank in a village imposing condition that individual house service connections, should not be given - Panchayat passing resolution to provide house service connection and giving connection to certain persons - Beneficiaries filing writ petitions to enforce such right - If maintainable. ... 325

--Art.226 - Public interest litigation - Maintainability of - Conditions for. ... 179

--Art.226 - Public interest litigation - Petitioner raising question of public importance making allegation - Allegations denied by concerned department by communications to petitioner - Writ, if can issue. ... 61

--Art.226 - Public interest litigation - What is - When can be entertained. ... 257

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA (1950),

--Art 226 - Relief - Subsequent events - Court, if can take note of to grant relief. ... 197

--Art.226 - Writ petition - Petitioner suppressing relevant and materials facts and trying to mislead court - Not entitled to any relief - Award of heavy costs justified. ... 28

--Art.226 - Writ petition under - if can be maintained by an unregistered association. ... 179

--Art.226 - Writ proceedings under Order of Court in collateral review of - Competency - Powers of Judge sitting in a collateral proceeding. ... 125

--Arts.226 and 12 - 'Authority' for the purposes of - Decision on - Criterion for ... 87

--Arts.226, 14 and 16 - Writ - If can be issued for violation of any non-statutory direction. ... 153

--Art.311(2) (After the Forty-second Amendment) - Domestic enquiry - Delinquent not supplied with copy of enquiry report along with second show cause notice proposing punishment issued by disciplinary authority - Final order passed - Legality. ... 380

CONTRACT ACT (IX OF 1872), Sec.16 - Allegations of fraud and undue influence - Burden of proof. ... 535

--Secs.140 and 141 - Principal debtor obtaining loan from Bank - Goods, produce and merchandise offered as security - Security bond executed - Executing shipping agreement in respect of stock of Canned strimpere letter of undertaking to hold in trust all the goods pledged to the bank - Persons in management of company - Playing fraud and depriving bank of the securities - Bank if can claim full debt from sureties - Sureties whether discharged to extent of security lost to Bank - Rights of sureties. ... 74

DECREE - Execution - Decree granting possession of suit site to plaintiff with mandatory injunction to defendant to remove superstructure thereon - Execution petition - Decree for mandatory injunction alone time barred - Execution petition if liable to be dismissed in toto. ... 234

DEED - Construction - Unborn child - Father executing a settlement - Mother to get absolute estate after the death of the father in case there is no issue - Condition that no property cannot be sold by one without the consent of the other - Nature of interest conferred. ... 530

GENERAL INDEX (HIGH COURT)

6

DEED

DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS - Misconduct of number of workmen - Evidence with regard to identical - Different punishments, if can be meted out to different workmen. ... 393

--Petitioner employed of the Tamil Nadu Housing Board - Two separate charges levelled against him - Two separate incidents - Two separate enquiries - Show cause notice issued referring to both the memos - Report of the enquiry officer not served on the petitioner - Petitioner removed from service - Procedure adopted illegal. ... 532

DOMESTIC ENQUIRY - Charges framed against petitioner for tampering with document - Document not produced during enquiry - Petitioner not given opportunity to make submissions with reference to the said document - Enquiry not concluded having been adjourned at the instance of the petitioner - Termination of services of petitioner, held illegal. ... 214

EDUCATION - Admission - Applications for - Not in order or bereft of particulars - Effect. ... 384

--Admission cannot be granted contrary to rules and regulations and against conditions of admission as noted in the prospectus. ... 384

EMPLOYEES PROVIDENT FUNDS AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS ACT (XIX OF 1952), Sec.14-B and Proviso (Introduced by Act XL of 1973) - Levy of damages under Section - Affected party, if to be given notice. ... 53

EVIDENCE ACT (I OF 1872), Sec.17 - Admission made by landlord in application for fixation of fair rent - Can be explained by him. ... 232

--Sec.21 - Admission - Evidentiary value of - Defendant making admission - Not showing that admission was wrong - Court, if can think that it may not be true. ... 15

--Sec.67 - Mode of proof of document - Objection as to - When should be taken. ... 472

--Sec.67 - Piece of evidence not proved in proper manner

EVIDENCE ACT (I OF 1872),

admitted without objection - If can be challenged at a later stage. ... 472

--Secs.101 and 102 - Burden of proof - Rule of non est factum - Special cloak of Protection applied to Pardanashin women, whether can be extended to Illiterate Woman - Illiterate Woman - Alleging that settlement deed was executed without knowing its character and contents - Whether asked for further pleadings or proof of undue influence and fraud. ... 535

--Secs.101 and 102 - Plaintiff illiterate woman signing document, unaware of contents - Later on alleging misrepresentation and fraud - Onus of proof - On whom lies. Maxim non est factum" ... 259

--Secs.107 and 108 - Effect of - Burden of proof that a person is alive - When shifted to person affirming it. ... 339

--Secs 107 and 108 - Person shown to be alive within 30 years - Claiming to have him died - Burden of proof - Person proved to have not been heard of for seven years - Claim that such person is alive - Burden of proof. ... 328

--Sec.114 - Will - Registration of. .. 95

--Sec.115 - Doctrine of promissory estoppel, if can be applied against enforcement of new policy issued under a statute. ... 569

--Sec.115 - Doctrine of promissory estoppel - If available as against Governmental action in exercise of statutory power. ... 561

--Sec.115 - State Government allotting rectified spirit to petitioner company - Petitioner putting up plant and machinery at a huge cost - Commissioner of Prohibition allotting denatured spirit with 5% ether instead of rectified spirit - Legality - Government if estopped. ... 205

FRENCH CIVIL CODE, Art.745 - 'Descendant' - Meaning of - If includes wife. ... 137

FRENCH CODE DE COMMERCE, Arts.179 and 185 - Promissory note - When becomes - Demand for payment of sum due under pronote - If necessary before pronote becomes immaterial - Pronote whether void on that ground ... 672

- GUARDIAN AND WARDS ACT (VIII OF 1890), Sec.17 - Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act (XXXII of 1956), Sec.6 - Minor child - Father if can substitute another person to be guardian, during his life time - Father entrusting custody of minor child to another - If can desire return of child to his custody. ... 333
- Secs.17 and 25 - Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act (XXXII of 1956), Sec.6 - Minor Child - Guardianship - Right of father. ... 333
- HINDU ADOPTIONS AND MAINTENANCE ACT (LXXVIII OF 1956), Secs.8 and 11 - Widow having no child - Co-widow having a child through her husband - Widow whether can adopt a son or daughter to herself - Effect of such adoption. ... 492
- HINDU LAW - Adoption - Person dying before 1956 - Having son born to him - If can adopt a son. ... 524
- HINDU MARRIAGE ACT (XXV OF 1955), Sec.5 (iii) and 11 - Marriage of Minor girl - Not made void under statute - Courts, if can hold such marriage void. ... 622
- Secs.13(1-A) and 26 - Suit for divorce and for declaration that she is entitled to the custody of her minor child filed by wife in Family Court, Bombay - Husband filing petition in Madras High Court seeking his appointment as guardian of the minor son and for grant of interim custody - Questions involved in both proceedings if same - Judgment of one court delivered earlier, if would operate as res judicata in the other ... 163
- Secs.27 and 28(1) and (2) - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.105(1) - Petition by wife under Sec.27 of Hindu Marriage Act for return of jewellery - Dismissed - Appeal against dismissal, if can be maintained. ... 175
- HINDU SUCCESSION ACT (XXX OF 1956), Sec.14 - Scope and applicability - Widow executing sale deed before coming into force of Act but continuing to be in possession - Section if applies. ... 421
- Sec.14(1) and (2) - Will executed by husband conferring life estate on certain properties in favour of his wife - Widow in possession of the property on the date Hindu Succession Act, 1956 came into force - Interest whether enlarged under Sec.14(1) - Absence of pleading that Will under which the widow entered upon the property was executed in recognition of a pre-existing right against the property - If bars widow from contending that will only
- HINDU SUCCESSION ACT (XXX OF 1956), recognised a pre-existing right. ... 105
- IMPORTS AND EXPORTS (CONTROL) ACT (XVIII OF 1947), Sec.3 - Order under prohibiting export of red sanders wood and its products in any form - Held unreasonable and arbitrary in so far as it prohibits export of finished goods which are ready for export. ... 569
- Sec.3 - Policy banning export of any product made out of red sanders wood framed for 5 years commencing from 1.4.1992 - If arbitrary and unreasonable. ... 561
- INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT (XIV OF 1947), Secs.10-A(3), (4) and 17 - Non-compliance with Sec.10-A(3) - Decision rendered by Deputy Commissioner of Labour in such cases - If can be said to fall within purview of the Act - Such decision if can be directed to be published under Sec.17. ... 51
- Sec.11-A and Sch.III, Item 11 - Charges relating to misconduct not proved in one case - There was no fair enquiry in another case - Labour Court awarding compensation instead of ordering reinstatement - Order if can be sustained. ... 81
- Sec.33(2)(b) - Application for approval of dismissal of worker - Findings recorded at domestic enquiry, if can be referred by Industrial Tribunal. ... 337
- JUDICIAL ORDER - Must be a speaking order. ... 40
- LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I OF 1894), Board Standing Orders, No.90 of 32 - Land acquired - Possession taken - Not used for purpose for which acquisition was made - If should be returned to the original owner - Land vested with Government for a long time - Likely to be again required for public use - Procedure. ... 628
- Sec.4(1) - Acquisition of land - Notification under - Delay of 25 days in publication of substance of notification at convenient places in the locality and in public offices - Effect. ... 217
- Sec.4(1) - Land already being used for a public purpose - If can be acquired for another public purpose. ... 440
- Sec.4(1) - Notification under - Publication of Some defect in notice - Court thinking that mandatory require ment of publication of substance of notification has not been complied with - Effect - If automatically nullifies acquisition proceedings. ... 634

LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I OF 1894),

-Secs.4(i), 6 and Proviso as inserted by Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act(LXVIII of 1984), Sec.4(1) - Notification published on 9.8.1978 - Declaration under Sec.6 published on 8.8.1981 - Declaration challenged in writ petition - Stay of declaration not obtained - Writ petition allowed and appeal against dismissed on 1.3.1990 - Fresh declaration published afterwards - Legality - Limitation prescribed by Proviso to Sec.6 if applies - Decision in Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, held would apply and not that in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269. ... 133

-Sec.4(1) and Rule 3 under Sec.5-A - Publication of primary notification under section 4(1) and publication of substance of such notification at convenient places in the locality - If mandatory - Notice in Form I in Rule 3 under section 5-A containing substance of notification whether would satisfy the requirement of publication of substance of notification. ... 634

-Sec.5-A - Enquiry under - Owner of land to be acquired, dead - Authorities not making proper enquiries to find out heirs of owner - Accepting claim made by son-in-law that the lands had been given to him by some arrangement - Allowing him to participate in enquiry - Entire proceedings if vitiated. ... 217

-Sec.6 - Declaration under - Name of owner found in, known to be dead to the authorities - Notification, if valid. ... 217

-Sec.6, Proviso - Notification for acquisition of land published in Gazette on 16.11.1988 - Substance of notification published in public office on 20.12.1988 - Declaration under Sec.6 issued on 20.11.1989 and published in Gazette on 27.11.1989 - Declaration, if within one year of publication. ... 217

-Sec.11-A as introduced by Amendment Act (LXII of 1984) - Validity. ... 55

LETTERS PATENT (MADRAS), Clause 15 - Order passed on application for stay of proceedings - If 'judgment' - Appeal from such order, if maintainable - (Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.10). ... 163

LETTERS PATENT (MADRAS),

--Clause 15 - Single Judge of High Court dismissing cross-objections on the ground of limitation - Appeal against - If maintainable. ... 370

LIMITATION ACT (XXXVI OF 1963), Art.52 - Suit for enhanced rent - Limitation for - Starting point. ... 681

MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT (IV OF 1919), Sec.100 - Schedule IV, Rules found thereunder - Revision of property tax - With effect from 1.4.1993 - Of the property tax in the Madras City - Based on the returns furnished by the owners/occupiers - Calling upon them to file the pro forma return - Whether illegal. ... 455

-Sch.IV as amended by the Rules, Municipal Administration and Water Supply G.O.Ms.No.1178, dated 10.12.1987 - Levy of property tax - In respect of property situate in the City of Madras on and from 1.4.1993 - Whether illegal - Ultra vires of the rule making powers .. 455

MADRAS ESTATES (ABOLITION AND CONVERSION INTO RYOTWARI) ACT (XXVI OF 1948), Sec.3(b) - All natham properties whether Government or Panchayat properties. 472

MADRAS PORT TRUST ACT (II OF 1965), Sec.39 (3) and Major Port Trusts Act (XXXVIII of 1963), section 42 - Gratuity immunity under section 39 (3) - Ship owner delivering goods to the port Trust - If absolved of liability to the consignee. ... 609

MAXIMS - In pari delicto potior est conditio defentis. ... 483

MAXIM - 'Res ipsa loquitur' - Scope and Applicability of - (Maxims - Res ipsa loquitur). ... 118

MOHAMEDAN LAW - Gift - Objection to validity on the plea of 'musha' - Effect. ... 240

-Gift of undivided share in property which is capable of partition or division - Whether valid. ... 240

-Gift - Validity of - Delivery of actual physical possession of subject - matter of gift - If essential - Construction possession, if sufficient. ... 240

-Wakf - Concept of - Rights of Mutawalli or Sajjadanishin ... 463

MOTOR ACCIDENTS - Corporation - Quantum - Payment made to claimants on the death of person as ex-gratia - Amount, if can be deducted from amount of compensation payable to them. ... 588

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT (IV OF 1939), Sec.2(3) and (29) - Vehicle not picking up passengers en route - Conductor collecting separate fares from passengers - Vehicle whether can be said to have been used as a stage carriage and not as a contract carriage. ... 516

--Sec.95 - Motor accident - Persons travelling with their goods carried in lorry - Dying in accident caused by rash and negligent driving - No proof that owner had forbidden owner of the goods to travel with the goods or that driver had not authorised it - Liability of insurer and owner to pay compensation. ... 301

--Sec.110-A - Death in motor accident - Compensation for parents of deceased minor child - Assessment of - Factors to be considered. ... 399

--Sec.110-A - Motor accident - Heavy rain fall - Trees falling across road - Warning to bus driver at bus-stand - Driver fully aware of weather conditions - Driving bus over narrow bridge - When water was overflowing the bridge - Driver of bus prevailing upon passengers not to get down from bus - Driver held to be rash and negligent. ... 587

--Sec.110-A - Motor accident - Number of person dying or sustaining injuries - Number of petition for compensation filed - Claim petitions need not be considered independently. ... 587

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT (XLVII OF 1982), Sec 72(1) - State Transport Appellate Tribunal if can curtail the permit by suitable modification. ... 249

--Secs.89(ii)(a) and 103(2)(a) and (3) - Regional Transport Authority mentioning in order that 'application is rejected as not in consonance with public interest' - Order does not amount to refusal to entertain the application - Order is appealable. ... 249

--Sec.90 - Order of Regional Transport Authority found improper and illegal - Order, if can be revised by State Transport Appellate Tribunal. ... 249

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT (LIX OF 1988), Sec.7(1) - State Transport Appellate Tribunal granting 'permit to ply'

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT (LIX OF 1988), buses between two points not falling within approved scheme - Petitioner, State Transport undertaking objecting to the grant of such permit - Filing writ petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India - Maintainability - Constitution of India (1950), Art.226. ... 343

--Secs.74 and 88(8) - Exemption under - G.O.Ms.No.894, dated 29.5.1991 - Applicability - Basic permit issued to vehicle to operate within a radius of 2 Kms. from place of business of permit holder - Holder, if can be considered holder of permit under Sec.74 - Special permit issued by State other than Tamil Nadu permitting vehicle to pick up passengers and get them down in State of Tamil Nadu - Exemption granted under G.O., if applicable to such vehicle. ... 629

--Sec.80(3) - Whether contains a special rule for stage carriage permits - Application for inclusion of a new route or alteration of a route whether will not lie in the case of a stage carriage permit. ... 343

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT (XXVI OF 1881), Sec.87 - Material alteration - Endorsement of repayment on promissory note - If a negotiable instrument - Material alteration in endorsement - If material alteration of the negotiable instrument. ... 615

PARTNERSHIP ACT (IX OF 1932), Sec.6 - Partnership - Existence of - Determination - Sharing of profits or of gross returns arising from property by persons holding a joint or common interest in the property by itself if makes such persons partners. ... 63

--Sec.14 - Property of Partnership firm - What constitutes - Nothing on record to show that suit property was either originally brought by the partners into stock of the partnership or subsequently acquired by purchase or otherwise in the course of business of firm - Suit property, if can be said to be property of the firm. ... 63

PAYMENT OF GRATUITY ACT (XXXIX OF 1972), Sec.2(s) - "Wages" - If includes cash equivalent of tiffin and meals supplied. ... 212

PLEADINGS - Motor accident case - Transport Corporation putting forward plea of act of God - Issue tried as preliminary issue and adverse finding given - Finding becoming final - Corporation, if can reargue the plea in appeal proceedings. ... 588

PLEADINGS

--Material facts available - Consequence has to follow if law is applied to such facts - Party not raising the pleadings, whether can be allowed to avail of the ground.

... 440

--New case not raised in pleadings - If can be allowed.

... 333

--Plea not put forward - Evidence on, if can be looked into.

... 472

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE - Law Officer of High Court making a statement before Court - Statement made without instructions from Government - Government if can, contend that it was not binding on Government

... 307

--Learned Judge of High Court laying own a principle in law - Principle held - Applicable to cases of similar nature - Respondent expected to have understood the provision of law and implication of the order.

... 623

--Reference to a Full Bench - When can be made - Writ Petition dismissed in limine - L.P. Appeal admitted - Notice ordered to Respondents - Matter referred to Full Bench without giving opportunity to respondents to state their case - If justified - No pre-existing conflict of opinions - Order not stating that even if there was no conflict of opinions, the question arising in the case was of such importance that it should be decided by a Full Bench - No formulation of any question of law - Reference to Full Bench, held improper. (F.B.) 284

--Will - Genuineness of, in question - Evidence in piecemeal, if can be allowed - When the genuineness of an alleged - Will is in question and the evidence has to be let in by the plaintiff, it would be just and necessary that all the witnesses who would speak as to the genuineness of the Will should be examined on the same day.

... 617

PRECEDENTS - Decisions of Customs, Excise and Gold (Control) Appellate Tribunal - Binding nature of.

... 355

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT - Agent in management of property of principal effecting improvements to same - Termination of agency - If can be restrained from interfering with possession of principal before his dues are paid.

... 41

PRIVATE TRUST - Scheme decree - Appointment of trustees - Person applying for a specific post must be considered for appointment to that post only - Scheme decree authorising appointing authority not to rigidly follow the norms - Interpretation violating the interest and objectives of trust ought not to be permitted.

... 416

PROFESSIONAL ETIQUETTE - Duty of lawyers to place all matters before Court stressed - Conduct of counsel in the present case strongly disapproved.

... 27

REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908), Secs.17 and 49 - Lease for rent of Rs.700 per month - Unregistered document filed showing that lease was extinguished and also showing that possession of premises was handed over to the lessor - If can be admitted in evidence.

... 522

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT (1963), Secs.9 and 10 - Person asking for specific performance - Not coming forward with clean hands - Relief refused.

... 686

--Secs.9 and 10 - Suit for specific performance of agreement - Un-explained silence and wanton delay in approaching Court - Plaintiff if disentitled to relief - Plaintiff's witnesses not speaking truth before Court - Relief, if can be refused.

... 618

--Sec.41(c) - Injunction - Grant of - Considerations - Balance of convenience should be taken into account.

... 63

STAMP ACT (II OF 1899), Sec.2(15) and Sch.I, Art.45 - Final decree for partition passed by Civil Court not engrossed on proper non-judicial stamp paper - Effect

... 426

--Sch.I, Art.45 - Final decree for partition passed - First defendant, one of the sharers applying for copy of decree - Copy application returned for furnishing general stamp papers - Value of general stamp papers not mentioned - Stamp papers not furnished within time specified - Copy application if can be struck off.

... 426

STATE FINANCIAL CORPORATIONS ACT (LXIII OF 1951), Sec.2(c)(iv) - 'Industrial concern' - Meaning of - Lorry or motor vehicle, whether an 'Industrial concern'.

... (F.B.) 284

--Sec.29 - Agreement between Corporation and debtor concern - Terms of Agreement authorising seizure of hypothecated assets without notice - Non-issue of notice

STATE FINANCIAL CORPORATIONS ACT (LXIII OF 1951), whether opposed to principles of natural justice.

... (F.B.) 284

--Sec.48 - Legal Manual containing instructions to Officers of Corporation - Binding nature of. ... (F.B.) 284

SUCCESSION ACT (XXXIX OF 1925), Sec.63 - Evidence Act (I of 1872), Secs.68 and 69 - Will - Attesting witness not found - How to be proved. ... 95

--Sec.180 - Doctrine of election - Principles - Election when arises - Legatee if can accept and reject the same instrument - Election once made, if can be revoked. ... 678

TAMIL NADU AGRICULTURISTS RELIEF ACT (IV OF 1938), Sec.25-A (as amended by Act VIII of 1973) - Orders passed under the Act - Appeals against - Provisions of Civil Procedure Code - Applicability. ... 306

--Secs.8 and 10(2)(ii) (as amended by Act VIII OF 1973) - Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), Sec.55(4)(b) - Property sold by plaintiff to defendants for Rs.40,000, Rs.20,000 paid in cash - For balance of Rs.20,000, mortgage created in respect of the same property - Suit on foot of mortgage - Amount due whether can be scaled down. ... 585

--Sec.20 (as amended by Act VIII of 1973) and Sec.19 - Judgment-debtor, making application under Sec.20 for stay of decree passed in respect of debt prior to 1.3.1972 - Duty of Court and judgment-debtor. ... 306

TAMIL NADU BUILDINGS (LEASE AND RENT CONTROL) ACT (XVIII OF 1960) (as amended by Act XXXIII of 1973) - Object of provisions of Act, if should protect only tenants. ... 651

TAMIL NADU BUILDINGS (LEASE AND RENT CONTROL) ACT (XVIII OF 1960), Secs.2(6), 10(8) and 10(3)(a)(i) (As amended by Act XXIII OF 1973) - Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Rules (1974), Rule 11(3) - Eviction petition signed and verified by general power of attorney agent - Maintainability - Bona fide requirement of landlady held established. ... 4

--Sec.3(5), Proviso - Fair rent fixed for building taken over by Government - When becomes effective. ... 681

--Sec.4 - Proceedings for fixation of fair rent - Market value

'TAMIL NADU BUILDINGS (LEASE AND RENT CONTROL) ACT (XVIII OF 1960), of site - To be considered on the basis of entire evidence on record. ... 232

--Secs.10(2)(i) and 10(3)(a)(i) - Spinster landlady living with aged mother and aged mother's brother - Filing eviction petition in order to induct her brother for the sake of her protection - Requirement for occupation by brother, if bona fide - Wilful default - Proof. ... 20

--Secs.10(2)(i) and 11 - Sections if inconsistent with such other. ... 652

--Secs.10(2)(i) and 11 (As amended by Act XXIII of 1973) - Sections if inconsistent with such other. ... 652

--Secs.10(2)(i) and 11(4) - Petition for eviction filed under Sec.10(2)(i) on ground of wilful default in payment of rent pending - Further arrears of rent after filing petition - Landlord, if can file another petition under Sec.10(2)(i) or should only resort to proceedings under Sec.11(4). ... 406

--Sec.10(2)(ii)(a) - 'Subletting' - What is - Premises let out for partnership business - Partnership dissolved - Business allotted to a partner - Tenancy, if amounts to subletting. ... 296

--Sec.10(2)(ii)(b) - Building leased for cycle shop business - Business not abandoned - Substantial quantity of liquor found stored in building - Building if can be said to be used for a purpose other than that for which it was leased. ... 512

--Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) - Landlady requiring premises for running a mess to feed about 10 persons - Possession of necessary funds to run the mess, held sufficient to show that she has taken steps in furtherance of starting business. ... 321

--Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) - Premises in occupation of more than one tenant - Landlord requiring building for own occupation - One single petition for eviction against all the tenants, if maintainable. ... 406

--Sec.10(3)(a)(iii), proviso (d) - Applicability - Lease agreement providing that if tenant committed default in payment of rent for consecutive period of two months, petition for eviction can be filed - Petition for eviction on such ground during subsistence of lease agreement if barred by

GENERAL INDEX (HIGH COURT)

TAMIL NADU BUILDINGS (LEASE AND RENT CONTROL) ACT (XVIII OF 1960), the proviso. ...	406	TAMIL NADU CITY TENANTS' PROTECTION ACT (III OF 1922), --Secs.9 and 11 - Landlord suing for declaration of title and possession - Tenant filing application under Sec.9 to purchase suit property - Contending in written statement in suit that suit was not maintainable for want of valid notice - Notice under Sec.11, whether necessary - If can be considered to have been waived by implication. ...	640
--Sec.10(3)(c) - Petition for eviction under by landlord for additional accommodation - No averment as to relative hardship as contemplated by proviso to section - Maintainability. ...	122	TAMIL NADU CULTIVATING TENANTS' PROTECTION ACT (XXV OF 1955), Sec.3(4)(b) - Default in payment of rent - Eviction on ground of - Revenue Court not giving time to tenant to deposit rent - Order, if can be sustained. ...	605
--Sec.11 (As amended by Act XXIII of 1973) - If violative of provisions of Constitution of India. ...	652	TAMIL NADU Dr.M.G.R. MEDICAL UNIVERSITY ACT (XXXVII OF 1987) as amended by Act (XXXII of 1990) - Provision requiring prior permission of State Government for starting a private medical college - High Court passing order to amount that prior permission of Government should not be insisted upon - Right crystallised in favour of the party - State Government, if can insist on prior permission being obtained in view of the amended provision. ...	307
--Sec.11 (As amended by Act XXIII of 1973) - Scope and object of - If runs counter to the object of the Act. ...	651	TAMIL NADU ELECTRICITY BOARD EMPLOYEES' DISCIPLINE AND APPEAL REGULATIONS, Regulation 8(f) - Initiation of disciplinary action against any employee by any officer in Class I or Class II without authorisation of competent authority - Effect - Entirety of proceedings if vitiated. ...	624
--Sec.11 (As amended by Act XXIII of 1973) - Section enabling collection of the rent, the recovery of which is barred by limitation - It's unconstitutional on that ground. ...	652	TAMIL NADU HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS ACT (XXII OF 1959) - 'Religious denomination' - Conditions for. ...	499
--Sec.11 (As amended by Act XXIII of 1973) - Section whether bad for not containing guidelines ...	652	--Sec.6(11) - Hereditary' trusteeship - Title to - If can be acquired by prescription in the absence of any trustee against whom adverse possession could be claimed - Hereditary trustees - Kinds of. ...	183
--Sec.11(4) - Petition under - Enquiry as to quantum of arrears - Tenant to be given opportunity to show cause why he was not able to pay the amount - Procedure not followed - Order, if sustainable. ..	479	--Secs.6(20) and 45(1) - Temple in question held to be a religious institution - Founder of temple not a hereditary trustee, if entitled to notice under Sec.45(1), before appointment of Executive Officer for temple. ...	266
--Secs.14(1)(b) and 19 - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.11 - Petition filed under Sec.14(1)(b) dismissed as not maintainable - Findings given on merits also - Finding if operates as res judicata or as bar under Sec.19. ...	145	--Sec.45(1) - Temple of recent origin - Office of trusteeship of temple cannot be claimed to be hereditary - Temple held to have been built by raising funds from public - Commissioner of Endowments if can appoint executive for administration of the temple. ...	266
TAMIL NADU CITY TENANTS' PROTECTION ACT (III OF 1922), Sec.1(3) (as amended by Act of 1979) - Tenancy created prior to amendment - Act, if applies to. ...	387
--Sec.9 - Right to purchase vacant site - Claim for - Separate written application, if necessary. ...	387
--Secs.9 and 9-A - Tenant filing application for receiving additional written statement and supporting affidavit denying title of landlord - Additional written statement not received by Court - Tenant, whether could be said to have denied title of landlord - Denial of title of landlord after filing of suit for eviction - Tenant if disentitled to benefits of Act. ...	387

- TAMIL NADU HOUSING BOARDS ACT (XVII OF 1961)
and Rules made thereunder - Contract between Housing Board and allottee of flat providing for recovery of difference of cost within a stipulated period - Housing Board, if entitled to fix final cost beyond that period. ... 161
- TAMIL NADU INAM ESTATES (ABOLITION AND CONVERSION INTO RYOTWARI) ACT (XXVI OF 1963), Sec.15(4) and (5) - Scope - Lessee of inam land putting up structure thereon before notified date - Becomes owner of both building and site from notified date. ... 43
- TAMIL NADU INDUSTRIAL ESTABLISHMENTS (CONFERMENT OF PERMANENT STATUS TO WORKMEN) ACT (1981), Sec.5(b) and Rule 6(4) of the Rules framed under the Act - Persons claiming benefits under Act - Procedure to be followed by Labour Inspector - Discussions held with the persons and management - No settlement reached - Inspector proceeding to pass orders - Sustainability of order. ... 1
- TAMIL NADU LEVY OF RYOTWARI ASSESSMENT ON FREE-HOLD LANDS ACT (XXXI OF 1973) - Object of - Determination of issuance of rough patta to occupiers of lands - Permissibility. ... 527
- TAMIL NADU MEDICAL REGISTRATION ACT (IV OF 1914), Sec.9-A(3) and By-law 70 - Resolution passed by Executive Committee for suspension of Registrar of Medical Council - Sustainability - President of Council, if can order suspension of Registrar. ... 57
- TAMIL NADU MINERAL CONCESSION RULES (1959) - Notification preceding holding of auction, proceedings relating to confirmation of auction and lease deeds entered into and registered stipulating that lessee should produce only rough stones, jallies etc., but not block stones dressed and undressed for polishing and for export etc., - No express inhibition in the Rules - Lessee if can produce block stones. ... 50
- TAMIL NADU MOTOR VEHICLES RULES (1940), Rule 3(e) - Aggregate distance of town service or city service route - Permit containing two routes - Distance whether to be computed with reference to each route. ... 343
- TAMIL NADU PENSION RULES, Rules 45(5) and 48 - Pension and death-cum-retirement - Gratuity of public servant - Nomination for - Nomination in respect of pension in favour of person who is not the legally married wife
- TAMIL NADU PENSION RULES,
- Nomination in favour of son while legally wedded wife is alive - Validity of. ... 35
- TAMIL NADU PRIVATE ELECTRICITY SUPPLY UNDERTAKINGS (ACQUISITION) ACT (1973), Sec.15 - Tamil Nadu Private Electricity Supply Undertakings (Acquisition) Rules (1973), Rule 17(1) - Person in category of Engineer-in-charge under the Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company transferred to the Tamil Nadu Electricity Board on the former being taken over - Fitted into category of Assistant Divisional Engineer on the basis of his experience - Order, if sustainable. ... 235
- TAMIL NADU SHOPS AND ESTABLISHMENTS ACT (XXXVI OF 1947), Secs.4(1)(a) and 5 - Applicability of Act - Exclusion of certain categories of employees and establishments by Sec.4(1)(a) - State Government issuing orders making Act applicable to those categories by virtue of power under Sec.5 - Sec.5 if invalid for excessive delegation. ... 662
- Secs.4(1)(a), 5 and 41(2) - Act, if applicable to person employed in a position of management? ... 174
- Secs.6 and 41 - Tamil Nadu Co-operative Societies Act (LIII of 1961), Sec.11 - Appeal by the dismissed employee before Deputy Commissioner of Labour - Jurisdiction of the Deputy Commissioner. ... 553
- TORTS - Damages for short delivery of goods - Consignment partly carried by Railways and partly by Railways belonging to the Madras Port Trust - Liability for shortage. ... 514
- Damages for short delivery of goods - Railway receipt showing 51.660 M.T., was consigned - 48.300, M.T. alone delivered - Endorsement of consignee that contents received in tact fully - It will absolve Railways from liability. ... 514
- Negligence - Accident - Proof of negligence - Onus. ... 116
- TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT (IV OF 1882), Sec 11(g) - Tamil Nadu City Tenants' Protection Act (III of 1922), Sec.11 - Defendant tenant of site let into possession by Vendor of plaintiff - Putting up superstructure on site - Plaintiff seeking for declaration of title and possession - Defendant setting up sale agreement in his favour - Lessee, if determined in the absence of notice. ... 640

GENERAL INDEX (HIGH COURT)

14

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT (IV OF 1882),

--Sec.35 - Scope of - "Same transaction" - Transactions if should be under one document only. ... 339

--Sec.53-A - Transferee in possession of property in part performance of contract - Rights of - If entitled to injunction on allegation of threat of dispossession. ... 576

--Sec.106 - Tenancy lawfully terminated by notice - Tenant unlawfully dispossessed from demised property - Tenant, if can seek redelivery. ... 518

--Sec.107 - Lease of land for 5 years not by registered deed - It bars 9 findings of a monthly tenancy in favour of the tenant. ... 518

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT (IV OF 1882),

--Sec.109 - Original lessor assigning his interest - No agreement between assignee and tenant of original lessor - Fresh attornment by tenant to assignee, if necessary. ... 640

WILL - Construction - Nature of bequest made - Whether given absolutely or endowed to the deity for performance of Kattalai. ... 436

--Execution - Proof - Cordinal principles. ... 226

WORDS AND PHRASES - " (அபிமான ஸ்திரீயினர்)

- Meaning - Whether refers to wife or concubine. 339

NOTES OF RECENT CASES

M/s.A.B.T.Parcel Service by Proprietors, Annamalais Bus Transport (P) Ltd., Pollachi v. City Palayakat Company its Managing Partner	...	40
Abdul Salam v.T.R.Vinod Kumar	...	42
C.T.Abraham v. J.P.James	...	19
The All India Amitabh Bachchan's Fans Association v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	13
The Annamalai Club, Valparai, Coimbatore v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	13
Arumugasamy v. The Divisional Development Officer, Cheranmaadevi, Tirunelveli District	...	22
The Assistant Collector of Central Excise, Coimbatore v. M/s.Elgi Equipments Limited, India	..	5
S.A.Azisullah v. Sakthivelu	...	12
Balu Chettiar v. Solaimalai Chettiar	..	17
P.R.Chockalingam v. The Director of Tourism, Government of Tamil Nadu	...	1
Coimbatore Seva Nilayam v. R.Narayanaswami Naidu	...	17
The Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras v. V.P S Nammalwar	...	40
M.Devan v. The Tamil Nadu Civil Supplies Corporation Limited, Dharmapuri District	...	12
P Devendran v The State of Tamil Nadu	...	6
K.M.Duraiswami v. The Special Officer, The Coimbatore Divisional Rural Co-operative Housing Society Ltd.	...	46
M/s.Ekambaranathan Chettiar Firm represented by its Partner E.Kanagasabapathy v. The Commercial Tax Officer, Tuticorin.	...	46
Gannon Dunkerley and Company (Madras) Ltd. (In liquidation) rep. by the Official Liquidator, High Court, Madras v.The Government of Tamil Nadu.	...	39
M/s.Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited v. M/s.Karthikeyan Agencies represented by its partners	...	3
Ibrahim Ismail v. The Superintendent of Customs Pool, Madras Air Port	...	2
Indirani Ammal v. E.Chandra	...	23
A.M.Jain College by Honorary Secretary, Madras v. Government of Tamil Nadu	...	10
M.James v. S.Issac Banerjee	...	40
Jayarama Naidu v. The State of Tamil Nadu	...	36

Jeeva Transport Corporation v. The Industrial Tribunal, Madras	...	24
Kalianna Kounder v. Marappa Kounder	...	45
Kamakshi v.Minor Ramalingam alias Munusami	...	44
Kasi Nadar v. V.Doraiswami Nadar	...	15
Kodaikanal Lorry Owners Association v. State of Tamil Nadu	...	18
Kovilpatti Sri Dhandayuthapani Trust v. Tilakaraj	...	33
R.Krishnaswamy v. N.Arumugam	...	4
S.Kuppurathinam v. A.R.Munirathinam	...	35
L.Lakshmikantham v. The Tindivanam Co-op. Urban Bank Limited	...	22
Managing Director, Repatriate Co-operative Finance and Development Bank Ltd. v. Deputy Commissioner of Labour-II, Madras-6	...	33
P.Manogarane, Secretary, The Pondicherry Bar Association, Pondicherry v. Union of India	...	30
Manoj Kumar Somthalia v. Nariman Point Building Services and Trading (P) Ltd., Bombay.	...	37
Meenakshi Apartments, Unit of MIG Flats, Madurai v. The Tamil Nadu Housing Board, Madras	...	8
S.Mohan v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	37
K.R.Murugesan v.The Chairman Ex-Servicemen Welfare, represented by the Collector, Vellore.	...	35
Nallya Gounder v. P.Ramaswami Gounder (died)	...	46
Nanjammal (died) v.Palaniammal	..	41
Nazimuddin Ahmed represented by his wife and P.A.A.Nameeza Ahmed v. K.Narasimha Rao	...	45
Pachaiappan v. Sri Kamatchi Amman Koil Devasthanam	...	7
R.Radhakrishnan v. Auvadai Ammal	...	23
Radhika Konel Parekh v. Konel Parekh	...	8
Raja D.V.Appa Rao Bahadur v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	25
Rajambal Ammal v.The Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Coimbatore	...	43
Rajammal v. The Idol of Sri Thanthonneeswaraswami by hereditary trustee K.Appathurai	...	20

R.V.Ramalingam v. Abdul Muthaliff	...	17
S.Ramamoorthy v. The Post Master General	...	13
J.Ramamurthy v. M/s.Endas by partner Moorjimal	...	2
M/s.Rolab Polymers (P) Ltd. v. M/s.Subbadra Enterprises	...	37
Sarada Devi v. Revathi	...	14
C.S.Sastri (died) v. The Collector of Chengalpattu District at Kancheepuram	...	44
Seetharaman v. Vaduvambal	...	10
S.Senthil Kumar v. The Government of Tamil Nadu	...	38
M.Shakur Chathik (Minor) v. Association of Private Schools affiliated to the Central Board of Secondary Education	...	5
M/s.Sita Decor. Prop.Vasantha Raj v. The State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission	...	16
Sri-la-Sri Sivasubramanyanda Swami v. Sri-la-Sri Arunachalasamy, Chidambaram	...	1
Sri Mahalingawami Devasthanam, Thiruvudaimurthur v. State of Tamil Nadu		34
R Srinivasan v. Government of Tamil Nadu	...	21
V.Srinivas (Minor) v. The University of Madras	...	15
The State of Tamil Nadu v. M.Kazim Khaleeli	...	43
Steel Authority of India Ltd. Madras v.The Union of India	...	34
L.Subbien v. The Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Coimbatore	...	9
V.Sudhakaran v. The Corporation of Madras	...	7
The Superintending Engineer, Fishing Harbour Projects Circle, Nagercoil v. M/s Andhra Civil Construction Company, Madras	..	42
Theatre Anna, A partnership firm represented by its Managing Partner A.Mylswamy v. The Secretary, Home Department	...	14

INDEX OF RECENT CASES

APPEAL - Act conferring right of appeal - Repealed - Repealing enactment providing a new forum - Effect of. ...	33	CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908), -Sec.24 and O.39, Rule 1 - Interim injunction obtained by one party - Other party insisting that application may be heard - Court insisting on hearing the application - Transfer of case from that Court on that ground - If can be made. ...	42
ARBITRATION ACT (X OF 1940) - Arbitration proceedings - Payment of excise duty under the Central Excise and Salt Act - Statutory liability of - If can be adjudicated in arbitration proceedings - Contracting parties if can confer jurisdiction in such proceedings by agreement - Condition in contract making it obligatory on either party to pay taxes etc. - If can be subject of arbitration. ...	42	-Sec.92 (as amended by CIV of 1976) - Applicability - Grant of leave - Conditions for - Averment in the plaint - That church is a religious trust - That the affairs have not been administered according to provisions stipulated - Praying for a scheme - Requirements of section whether satisfied. ...	40
-Sec.34 - Expression - 'Any matter agreed to be referred' - Meaning of - Company admitting its liability for a particular amount - Not making payment - Petitioner filing winding up of the company - Matter whether can be said to have been agreed to be referred to proceedings - Whether can be stayed. ...	37	-Sec.103 - Lower appellate court not giving into a question of factum of marriage - But gave a finding - High Court, if can go into the question in second appeal. .	44
CARRIERS ACT (III OF 1865), Secs.8 and 9 - Carrier's liability - Genuine way bill sent by consignors to consignee presented to carrier for delivery of goods - No specific instruction to carrier regarding persons who would bring way bills for taking delivery of goods - Staff members of carrier dealing with several customers - Carrier, if liable for negligence when goods are delivered to the person presenting genuine way bill. ...	40	-Sec.151 and O.39, Rule 2-A - Exercise of inherent powers under Sec.151 - Civil courts if can issue directions to police to extend their aid in the execution of decrees and orders or to implement orders of injunction passed by civil courts ...	1
CENTRAL EXCISE AND SALT ACT (I OF 1944), Sec.11-B (as amended by Central Excise Amendment Act (XL of 1991) - Refund of excise duty - High Court directing Excise Authorities to refund excise duty on 8.1.1991 - Writ appeal filed and pending - Amended Act coming into force on 20.9.1991 - Act if will apply barring the court to direct refund. ...	5	-O.6, Rule 17 - Limitation Act (XXXVI of 1963), Arts.137 and 142 - Suit for declaration of title and for recovery of possession of vacant land - One of the defendants putting up construction on land during pendency of suit - Plaintiff filing petition to amend plaint - Limitation for petition - Article of Limitation Act applicable. .	17
CENTRAL SALES TAX ACT (LXXIV OF 1956), Sec.10-A and C Form - Goods purchased with a view to resell - Put to use before resale - No loss of revenue to State alleged - No contravention of conditions of C Form - Penalty, held, cannot be levied. ...	46	-O.6, Rule 17 - Suit for permanent injunction restraining defendants from interfering with his possession - Defendants claiming that they were in possession of suit properties - Plaintiff therefore filing petition to amend the plaint praying for declaration that he is absolute owner of the suit property or in the alternative for a direction to defendants to deliver vacant possession of suit properties - Amendment held must be allowed ...	23
CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908), Sec.10 - Matter directly and substantially in issue in former and subsequent suits - Whether should be the same in all respects. ...	8	-O.8, Rules 10, 6, 9, 9(2) - Civil Rules of Practice, Rule 32 - Suit instituted against four persons initially - Petitioner added as fifth defendant - Not filing any written statement in spite of grant of time - Set ex parte - Suit dismissed for default against all the defendants - Plaintiff filing application for restoration of suit - Petitioner not made party - Suit restored - Ex parte decree passed against the defendants 1 to 4 and also the petitioner - Sustainability. ...	3
-Sec.24 - Transfer petition - Remarks called for - Court stating that it had no objection for the transfer - Case, if can be transferred on that ground. ...	42

INDEX OF RECENT CASES

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1908),

--O.9, Rule 13(1) - 'Sufficient cause' - Party filing application to set aside ex parte decree stating that she could not attend court due to disputes in the husband's family about which a complaint was given to the police - Also that she was not well - No contra evidence on behalf of respondents - Complaint and certificate showing that appellant not unwell not filed in Court - Inference that appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from coming to Court, if can be drawn. ... 14

--O.38, Rule 6, Appendix F, Form No 6 - Security - Defendant, if can furnish third party security, personal or property. ... 45

--O.41, Rule 23 - Suit whether can be remanded by appellate court merely to give opportunity to a party to let in additional evidence. ... 36

--O.41, Rule 27 and O.13, Rule 2 - Documents available in court - Omitted to be marked due to inadvertence - Party, if can be allowed to mark them by appellate court. ... 35

CIVIL SERVICES - Disciplinary enquiry - Punishing authority differing from enquiring authority - Reasons for taking different decision to be given - Order passed without application of mind, cannot be sustained - High Court whether can go into the question of quantum of punishment. ... 37

COMPANIES ACT (I OF 1956), Secs.446, 456 and 457 - Company in liquidation - Assets of - Disposal of - Court alone empowered to give directions for. ... 39

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA (1950), Arts.14 and 255 - G.O.Ms.No.1178, dated 10.2.1987 relating to levy of property tax - In respect of property situate in the City of Madras - On and from 1.4.1993 - Whether illegal - Ultra vires of the rule making powers - Whether violative of rights guaranteed under the Constitution. ... 25

--Art.16(4) - Reservations to public appointments - Only one post to be filled up - If rule of reservation can be applied. ... 1

--Arts.29(2) and 30(1) - Law and institution - Minority institution giving preference to the religious minority candidate in their own institution - If amounts to discrimination and violative of Art.29(2). ... 10

--Art.30(1) - Minority institution - Admission of students

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA (1950),

from minority communities to - Resolution of State Government Order directing the institution to make available not less than 30% of annual permitted strength in each branch - Faculty to other condition - If valid - Supreme Court's direction that minority institutions shall make available atleast 50% of annual admission to members of communities other than the minority community - Interpretation. ... 10

--Art.226 - Admission to professional colleges for academic year 1992-93 - Division Bench of Madras High Court directing admission on the basis of results of the entrance examination - In appeals state accepting suggestion of Supreme Court for an increase of number of seats limited to 10% of the total seat - Supreme Court remitting matter to High Court - Held, order has to be read as giving direction to decide the modality of admission and not to increase the number of seats beyond 10% of seats. ... 38

--Art.226 - Admission to professional courses for academic year 1992-93 - Petitioners aggrieved by order of Government moving Court - Court issuing directions to provide seats for them - Students or candidates not actually before court, if can be considered ... 38

--Art.226 - Jurisdiction under - Court, if can create additional seats in Medical Colleges. ... 38

--Art.226 - Natural justice - Action in violation of principles of natural justice - Effect - Court whether can interfere in writ jurisdiction. ... 13

--Art.226 - Natural justice - Applicability to administrative orders - Rights accrued in favour of person - If can be denied or taken away without hearing that person. ... 13

--Art.226 - Natural justice - Tamil Nadu Water Supply and Drainage Board installing overhead tank in a village imposing condition that individual house service connections, should not be given - Panchayat passing resolution to provide house service connection and giving connection to certain persons - Beneficiaries filing writ petition to enforce such right - If maintainable. ... 22

--Art.226 - Natural justice - Petitioner appointed irregularly in breach of rules - Services terminated without giving opportunity to show cause - Termination order, if can be sustained. ... 46

--Art.226 - Pondicherry Judicial Service - Ineligible per

INDEX OF RECENT CASES

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA (1950),

sons appointed in contravention of relevant Rules - Locus standi of Pondicherry Bar Association to challenge by filing writ of certiorari or quo warranto. ... 30

--Art 226 - Writ of certiorari or quo warranto challenging appointment to a post - If and when liable to be dismissed on the ground of laches. ... 30

--Art.226 - Writ of mandamus- If lies against provisions of a statute. .. 38

--Art.226 - Writ procedure under order of court is collateral review of - Competency - Powers of Judge sitting in a collateral proceeding. ... 5

--Arts.226, 14 and 16 - Writ - If can be issued for violation of any non-statutory direction .. 7

--Arts 233 to 237 - Gist of the provisions discussed. ... 30

--Art.311(2) - (After the Forty-second amendment) - Domestic enquiry - Delinquent not supplied with copy of enquiry report along with second show cause notice proposing punishment issued by disciplinary authority - Final order passed - Legality. ... 22

CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT (1986), Secs 18 and 12 to 14 - Consumer Protection Rules, Rule 9(6) - Appeal from order in complaint under Sec.12 - Notice to respondent, if obligatory. ... 16

CUSTOMS ACT (LII OF 1962), Sec.124, Proviso - Proviso enabling authority to dispense with the issue of a written notice and making of written representation at the request of the person concerned - Object of - Provision, if constitutional violating Arts.14, 21 and 300-A of the Constitution of India - (Constitution of India (1950), Arts.14, 21 and 300-A). ... 2

DECREE - Decree granting possession of suit site to plaintiff - Mandatory injunction to remove superstructure thereon - Execution petition - Mandatory injunction alone time barred - Execution petition - If liable to be dismissed in toto. ... 12

DOMESTIC ENQUIRY - Charges framed against petitioner for tampering with document - Document not produced during enquiry - Petitioner not given opportunity to make submissions with reference to the said document -

DOMESTIC ENQUIRY

Enquiry not concluded having been adjourned at the instance of the petitioner - Termination of services of petitioner - Held, illegal. .. 12

EDUCATION - Admission - Applications for - Not in order or bereft of particulars - Effect. ... 21

--Admission cannot be granted contrary to rules and regulations and against conditions of admission as noted in the prospectus. .. 21

EVIDENCE ACT (I OF 1872), Sec.35 - Birth extract - Whether can be relied on to prove marriage between the parents. ... 44

--Secs.107 and 108 - Effect of - Burden of proof that a person is alive - When shifted to person affirming it. ... 23

--Sec.115 - Promissory estoppel - Prospectus for admission to B.E. Degree course not specifically notifying about cut-off date for passing qualifying examination - Candidates who passed qualifying examination on 31.7.1991 admitted to the course - Director of Technical Education not granting approval for their admission on the ground of not passing qualifying examination on or before 1.7.1991 - Held, principle of promissory estoppel would apply. ... 15

FRENCH CIVIL CODE, Art 745 - 'Descendant' - Meaning of - If includes wife ... 7

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT (XXV OF 1955), Sec.11 - Marriage between two persons not proved - Parties to marriage if under obligation to seek declaration of nullity of marriage. .. 44

--Secs.13(1-A) and 26 - Suit for divorce and for declaration that she is entitled to the custody of her minor child filed by wife in Family Court, Bombay - Husband filing petition in Madras High Court seeking him appointment as guardian of the minor son and for grant of interim custody - Questions involved in both proceedings if same - Judgment of one Court delivered earlier, if would operate as res judicata in the other. ... 8

--Sec.16 - Applicability - Factum of marriage not proved - Section if applicable. ... 44

--Secs.27 and 28(1) and (2) - Civil Procedure Code (V of

INDEX OF RECENT CASES

HINDU MARRIAGE ACT (XXV OF 1955), 1908), Sec.105(1) - Petition by wife under Sec.27 of Hindu Marriage Act for return of jewellery - Dismissed - Appeal against dismissal, if can be maintained. ...	10	MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT (IV OF 1919), --Sch.IV as amended by the Rules - Municipal Admini- stration and Water Supply G.O.Ms.No.1178, dated 10.12.1987 - Levy of property tax - In respect of property situate in the City of Madras on and from 1.4.1993 - Whether illegal - Ultra vires of the rule making powers. ...	25
INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT (XIV OF 1947), Sec.33(2)(b) - Application for approval of dismissal of worker - Findings recorded at domestic enquiry if can be referred by Industrial Tribunal. ...	24	MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS ACT (II OF 1927), Tamil Nadu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XXII of 1959) - Defini- tion of 'math' or under both Acts same with only difference that math should have properties under later Act - Deci- sion of High Court holding that institution was 'math' under old Act - Can be followed even after passing of the later Act. ...	41
LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I OF 1894), Sec.4(1) - Notifi- cation under - Publication of - Some defect in notice - Court thinking that mandatory requirement of publication of substance of notification has not been complied with - Effect - If automatically nullifies acquisition proceedings. ...	36	--Sec 9(7) - Earlier decision of the High Court - Holding an institution a 'math' - Later decision stating that the insti- tution was only a samadhi as a passing comment - Earlier decision, held will prevail. ...	41
--Secs 4(1) and Rule 3 under Sec.5-A - Publication of pri- mary notification under Sec.4(1) and publication of sub- stance of such notification at convenient places in the locality - If mandatory - Notice in Form I in Rule 3 under Sec 5-A containing substance of notification whether would satisfy the requirement of publication of substance of notification. ...	36	PASSPORTS ACT (XV OF 1877), Sec.10(3)(h) - Impound- ing of passport under - Powers of court - If can be exercised by a Civil Court. ...	19
--Secs.4(1), 6 and Proviso as inserted by Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act (LXVIII of 1984), Sec.4(1) - Notification published on 9.8.1978 - Declaration under Sec.6 published on 8.8.1981 - Declaration challenged in writ petition - Stay of declaration not obtained - Writ petition allowed and appeal against dismissed on 1.3.1990 - Fresh declaration published afterwards - Legality - Limitation prescribed by the proviso to Sec.6, if applicable - Decision in (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, held would apply and not that in (1980)2 M.L.J. 269. ...	6	--Sec.10(3)(h) - Power of Court under - Exercise of - Scope and ambit of. ...	20
LETTERS PATENT (Madras), Clause 15 - Order passed on application for stay of proceedings - If 'judgment' - Appeal from such order, if maintainable - (Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec 10). ...	8	PONDICHERRY JUDICIAL SERVICE RULES (1980), Rule 8 - Rule providing for appointment of 'Legal Advisers to Government' as District Judges - If ultra vires Art.233(2) of the Constitution of India. ...	30
LIMITATION ACT (XXXVI OF 1963), Art.52 - Suit for enhanced rent - Limitation for - Starting point. ...	43	--Rules 8, 9, 11, 12, 30 and 31 - Scope - Appointment of officers to Junior Scale of Pondicherry Judicial Service under Rules 8 and 9 - Proper procedure - Person appointed to Junior Scale (Grade II) not joining post, but serving in executive post - If can be promoted to Junior Scale (Grade I) - Promoting Executive Officer to discharge judicial func- tions, if violative of basic structure of the Constitution. ...	30
MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION ACT (IV OF 1919), Sec 100 - Schedule IV, Rules found thereunder - Revision of property tax - With effect from 1.4.1993 - Of the property tax in the Madras City - Based on the returns furnished by the owners/occupiers - Calling upon them to file the performa return - Whether illegal. ...	25	REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908), Secs.17 and 49 - Lease for rent of Rs.700 per month - Unregistered docu- ment showing that lease was extinguished and also show- ing that possession of premises was handed over to the lessor - If can be admitted in evidence. ...	33

INDEX OF RECENT CASES

REQUISITIONING AND ACQUISITION OF IMMOV- ABLE PROPERTY ACT (XXX OF 1952), Sec 8(3) - Acqui- sition of property under compensation payable - Fixation of - Principles for	44	TAMIL NADU BUILDINGS (LEASE AND RENT CON- TROL) ACT (XVIII OF 1960) hardship as contemplated by proviso to section - Main- tainability.	4
SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT (XLVII OF 1963) - Suit for specific performance of agreement - Agreement made out to be true - Court, if bound to enforce agreement.	41	--Sec.10(4)(i) - Premises let out to conduct of post office - If entitled to exemption from eviction.	13
--Secs.9 and 10 - Person asking for specific performance - Not coming forward with clean hands - Relief refused. /	46	--Secs.14(1)(b) and 19 - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.11 - Petition filed under Sec.14(1)(b) dismissed as not maintainable - Findings given on merits also - Finding if, operates as res judicata or as bar under Sec.19.	2
--Sec.10 - Clause in agreement - Breach on part of defen- dant - He shall pay twice the amount advanced to plaintiff - Remedy of plaintiff - Whether claim only amount - Plaintiff, if can ask for specific performance of the con- tract.	41	--Sec.18-A - Order of Rent Controller refusing to appoint a Commission - If appealable.	17
--Sec.41 - Injunction - Grant of - Right of plaintiff infringed - Injunction, if can be granted	37	TAMIL NADU CINEMA (REGULATION) ACT (IX OF 1955), Sec 9-B - Revision against order revoking 'C' Form licence - Revisional Authority confirming orders of lower authorities - Whether should give reasons.	14
STAMP ACT (I OF 1899), Sec.35 - Agreement for sale - Agreement between seller and purchaser that it would be treated as conveyance if no conveyance was effected within six months from the date of agreement - If a document conveying title, chargeable to stamp duty and penalty.	15	TAMIL NADU CITY TENANTS' PROTECTION ACT (III OF 1922), Sec.1(3)(as amended by Act of 1979) - Tenancy created prior to amendment - Act, if applies to.	20
TAMIL NADU BUILDINGS (LEASE AND RENT CON- TROL) ACT (XVIII OF 1960) - Applicability - Person not proved to be a tenant - Such person denying title of landlord - Act, held will not apply.	17	--Sec 9 - Right to purchase vacant site - Claim for - Separate written application, if necessary	20
--Sec.3(5), proviso - Fair rent fixed for building taken over by Government - When becomes effective.	43	--Secs.9 and 9-A - Tenant filing application for receiving additional written statement and supporting affidavit denying title of landlord - Additional written statement not received by Court - Tenant, whether could be said to have denied title of landlord - Denial of title of landlord after filing of suit for eviction - Tenant if disentitled to benefits of Act.	20
--Sec.7(2) - Tenant making an advance of Rs.3,000 to landlord - Excess amount not refunded by landlord - Tenant not asking landlord to adjust that amount towards arrears of rent - Tenant, if can be said to have committed wilful default in payment of rent.	45	TAMIL NADU HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARI- TABLE ENDOWMENTS ACT (XXII OF 1959), Sec.53(4) - Two persons declared hereditary trustees of a temple - One of them placed under suspension pending enquiry into charges - Fit person, if could be appointed to perform the functions of the disabled trustee.	43
--Sec.10(2)(ii)(b) - Building leased for cycle shop business - Business not abandoned - Substantial quantity of liquor found stored in building - Building if can be said to be used for a purpose other than that for which it was leased.	35	TAMIL NADU HOUSING BOARDS ACT (XVII OF 1961) and Rules made thereunder - Contract between Housing Board and allottee of flat providing for recovery of differ- ence of cost within a stipulated period - Housing Board, if entitled to fix final cost beyond that period	8
--Sec 10(3)(c) - Petition for eviction under, by landlord for additional accommodation - No averment as to relative I

INDEX OF RECENT CASES

TAMIL NADU LEVY OF RYOTWARI ASSESSMENT ON FREE-HOLD LANDS ACT (XXXI OF 1973) - Object of - Determination of issuance of rough patta to occupiers of lands - Permissibility. ...	34	Madras Act VI of 1938) - Levy of tolls by G.Os. on motor vehicles entering major entry points to the Kodaikanal Township, Nilgiris District and Yercaud Township - Validity - If an unreasonable restriction on the Fundamental Rights under Art.19(1)(g) and violative of Arts.301 to 304 of the Constitution of India - Charging provision if suffers from vice of excessive delegation. ...	18
TAMIL NADU SHOPS AND ESTABLISHMENTS ACT (XXXVI OF 1947), Secs 4(1)(a), 5 and 41(2) - Act, if applicable to person employed in a position of management. ...	9	TORTS - Damages for short delivery of goods - Consignment partly carried by Railways and partly by Railways belonging to the Madras Port Trust - Liability for shortage ..	35
--Secs.6 and 41 - Tamil Nadu Co-operative Societies Act (LIII of 1961), Sec.11 - Appeal by the dismissed employee before Deputy Commissioner of Labour - Jurisdiction of the Deputy Commissioner. ...	33	--Damages for short delivery of goods - Railway receipt showing 51 660 M.T., was consigned - 48,300, M.T. alone delivered - Endorsement of consignee that contents received intact fully - It will absolve Railways from liability. ...	34
TAMIL NADU URBAN LAND CEILING AND REGULATION ACT (XXIV OF 1978), Sec 21 - Object of Act (XXIV of 1978), Sec.21 - Object of Act - Company in liquidation - Disposal of excess vacant urban land - Exemption from provisions of Act - Government, if can refuse. ...	39	TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT (IV OF 1882), Sec.35 - Scope of - "Some transaction" - Transactions if should be under one document only. ...	23
TOLLS ACT (VIII OF 1851), Sec.2 (as substituted by

THE MADRAS LAW JOURNAL

I]

JOURNAL

[1993

Rational Approach For Rapid Justice and Speedy Trial in 'The Compensation Proceedings' in the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (Act 59 of 1988)

By

A.Ratnavelu, B.A. B.L., Additional Subordinate Judge (Additional Assistant Sessions Judge), Salem.

The salient provisions as to the Compulsory Insurance of Motor Vehicles, Liability of the Insurance Company towards the victims and the Transfer of Insurance policy of the Vehicles as enunciated in Secs.146, 147(2)(5) and 157(2) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (Act 59 of 1988) - (Secs.94, 95(2) and 103-A(2) of M.V.Act, 1939), require pragmatic deeds in the sphere of 'backlog cases' in the Courts. The Socio-economic conditions prevailing in our downtrodden Society also seek further scrutiny on the said aspects.

Rational Approach Required: According to the provisions incorporated in the Sec.146 of M.V.Act 1988, the Motor Vehicles plying on the public Road have to be compulsorily insured. The holy object of compulsory insurance of Motor Vehicles is to ensure and provide the definite compensation amount to the injured persons and the Legal Representatives of deceased. Further, they provide statutory protection to the victims for their livelihood by way of definite compensation. The Compulsory Insurance for the Motor Vehicles plying on the Public Road is mandatory one which provides speedy trial and quick Justice to the victims.

For instance, 'A' purchased a Motor Vehicle on the basis of Hire Purchase Agreement through a Nationalised Bank on 1.10.1992 and the said Vehicle is insured for the period of one year. He sells the said Motor Vehicle to the 'B' on 2.11.1992. The Motor Vehicle in the custody of 'B' meets with the accident on 6.11.1992 and the name of owner of said vehicle is not yet changed in the R.C.Book. 'A' has not sent an application in the 'Prescribed Form' about the said Transfer to the Insurance Company immediately.

Now the question arises whether the Transfer of Motor Vehicle has to be allowed to put an end to the Insurance policy OR Whether the mere Transfer of Motor Vehicle entangles the statutory protection of definite compensation amount to the victims? OR Whether the Application in 'Prescribed Form' is mandatory one? It is worthwhile to study the provision of Sec.196 of M.V.Act, 1988 (Sec.125 of M.V.Act, 1939) that the driving of an uninsured Motor Vehicle is an offence, requiring punishment for 3 months OR fine of One Thousand Rupees. If so, the insurance policy of Motor Vehicles as contemplated in the said Sec.146, is not to be construed as an optional one and it need not be considered as mere contract based purely on the policy of 'Good Faith'.

According to the provision of Sec.157(2) of M.V. Act 1988, the transfer of the said Motor Vehicle puts an end to the Compulsory Insurance Policy itself as the Application in the 'Prescribed Form' is not sent to the Insurance Company. As the said vehicle is hypothecated by the Nationalised Bank, it will get back the Motor Vehicle from said 'A'. Who has no immovable property in his name. Now, the transfer of Motor Vehicle to the said 'B' is complete as per the Sale of Goods Act. In such circumstances, the poor victims are shoved to the Sea of Troubles for their inability of getting the compensation amount in time or enjoying the fruits of Court decrees, from 'A'. The Compensation proceedings are being protracted even for ten years. Apart from that, the Insurance Company could escape from the clutches of statutory liability of paying definite compensation amount.

It has to be borne in mind that the said Insurance Policy is valid for one year, as per the Compulsory Insurance Policy as contemplated in the Sec.146 of M.V. Act, 1988. The moot point which I put forth herein, is that the compulsory insurance for the Motor Vehicle and the statutory protection to the victims for the definite compensation amount as enshrined in the Sec.146 of said Act, need not be allowed to be curtailed due to the said 'Transfer of Vehicle OR so called 'Prescribed Form' stated in Sec.157(2) of said Act at any cost. Of course, Sec.157(2) of said Act is an exception to the proposition of Law relating to the lapse of insurance policy on the Transfer of the Vehicle to some extent.

The vital point is that the Secs.157(2) and 146 of M.V. Act, 1988 will have to be allowed to be consonant with the concept of 'Rapid Justice' for the victims in the Motor accidents irrespective of the 'said Transfer'. Considering the Socio-economic aspects in India, the 'Rapid Justice' has to be brought forth from the Cocoon of the legal-hyper technicality as adumbrated in the Secs.146 and 157(2) of M.V. Act 1988. It does not mean that 'Such Concept' is derogatory to the defences available to the Insurance Company in the Sec.149(2) of the said Act. So, the Secs.146 and 157(2) of the M.V. Act 1988 require further scrutiny on the automatic lapse of Insurance Policy of the Vehicle due to the "Transfer".

Implication of the Limited Liability of the Insurer: According to the Sec.147(2) of M.V. Act 1988, the liability of Insurance Company is restricted to the Victims - passengers of Bus for the Compensation amount in the accident. The liability of Insurance Company for the 'Risk of Passenger in the Bus' is somewhat different from the 'Third Party Risk'. It is appropriate to study the decision reported in (1992)1 L.W. 477 (Mad.), which considered the term 'Passenger in the Bus' and the 'Limited Liability of Insurer for the quantum of compensation in the Bus Accident elegantly, as per the Sec.147(2) of the M.V. Act, 1988.

For instance, the Bus carrying the Passengers, catches fire suddenly, causing the death of 20 passengers or the bus capsizes suddenly and falls down from the tall bridge into the valley, causing the death of Ten Passengers. In such cases, the risk of precious life is applicable to both the passenger of a bus and the 'Third party Risk' equally.

Now, the question arises, whether the discriminating Insurance Policy has to be applied for the passenger in the Bus and the Third Party Risk in the Motor Accident in respect of Quantum of Compensation?

In view of the Sec.147(2) of the said Act, the Insurer is not bound to indemnify the injured passenger OR legal representatives of the deceased passengers in the Bus accident, fully as in the case of third party risk, due to its limited liability. The crux of this, is that, the option is provided to the Insurance Company in respect of compensation amount. Such a 'distinction' between the passenger of a Bus and the Third Party Risk in the accident with regard to the Quantum of Compensation, will make the Insurance Company wriggle out of the Statutory liability of paying the 'Just Compensation amount' as contemplated in the Sec.146 of the said Act itself. Further, especially, in the case of 'Passenger in the Bus Accident' the Insured (Owner of the Bus) is forced to face the Himalayan Burden of paying huge excess compensation amount, due to the limited liability of the Insurer. Again, the hapless victims will have to face the uphill task of getting the compensation amount by protracted proceedings in the M.A.C.T. Cases (Motor Accident Claims Tribunal Cases).

So, the simple question as to the term 'passenger' in the bus accident or the liability of Insurer thereof, in the Sec.147 of said Act, need not be allowed to be proceeded up to the Apex Court under the game of Legerdemain, for the quantum of compensation. The vital point which has to be considered rationally is that there should be a uniform insurance policy for the passenger of Bus and the Third party Risk in the Motor Accident in respect of the liability of Insurance Company for quantum of compensation amount, without any glimpse of option OR limit.

Effective Amendments required: The Amendments are to be considered in the following manner: In Sec.146 of the M.V. Act 1988 (59 of 1988),

1. (i) The Insurance Policy has to be allowed to run with the Motor Vehicle irrespective of the transfer of said Vehicle.

(ii) The Insurance policy will not be allowed to be lapsed due to the 'Transfer' automatically.

(iii) The Insurance Policy has to be made Valid for 'the period' to which the Vehicle is insured.

2. In Sec.147(2) of the said Act, the uniform insurance policy has to be inserted for both 'passenger' in the Bus' and the 'Third Party Risk' without 'limit' OR 'Option' in respect of the liability of Insurer for the 'Quantum of Compensation'.

3. In Sec.157(2) of the said Act, 'the Application in the prescribed Form' to the Insurance Company about the transfer of Motor Vehicle need not be mandatory one and the mere intimation to the Insurance Company about the Transfer of Vehicle by any written Form is sufficient one.

If such amendments are made in Secs.146, 147(2)(5) and 157(2) of M.V. Act, 1988, certainly, they will accelerate the process of "Rapid Justice" to the hapless victims by speedy trial and pave the way for speedy disposal of backlog cases in the M.A.C.T. cases, to a great extent.

A Need to Amend Sec.15(1) of Hindu Succession Act 1956

By

Ms.T.Indrani, M.A.,B.L., Advocate, Kumbakonam.

As per Sec.15(1) of Hindu Succession Act the property of a female Hindu dying intestate except the property inherited from her father or mother shall devolve upon the heirs of the husband in the absence of sons and daughters (including the children of any pre-deceased son or daughter) and the husband. But as per Sec.8 of Hindu Succession Act the property of a Male Hindu dying intestate shall devolve upon the mother, Widow of a pre-deceased Son, Son of a predeceased Son of a pre-deceased Son, daughter of a pre-deceased Son of a pre-deceased son, Widow of a pre-deceased son of a pre-deceased Son along with Sons and daughters including the Children of a pre-deceased Son and daughter and Widow as Class I heirs.

If there is no Class I heirs alive the property of a Male Hindu shall devolve upon the father. If no father then upon the brother, sister, daughter's son's son, daughter's son's daughter equally, If no one is alive in the second entry than on third entry etc. If there is no Class I and Class II heirs then on agnates and lastly on cognates of the Male Hindu deceased. If no one is alive then the property will be taken by the Government. In nowhere the heirs of wife get any place as heirs of deceased male in the Act.

Only when there is no heirs of the husband alive the property of a female Hindu dying intestate instead of going to Government devolves upon the mother and father who had taken good care of the daughter upto her marriage, who had given good education, who had given her the capacity to earn. Why such inequalities between male and female? Are the females, not having the heart of saving their parents from poverty at their old age? Will any female would like to give her property to her husband's heirs like his mother, his father, his sister, his brother etc., than to her blood relatives like father and mother etc. if she is alive? In fact no woman would like to give her property to her husband's relatives. But it is happening in the event of her unexpected death. Is it not against her will and wish?"

Job opportunities, Working conditions etc., are all same to all except some concessions that too showed towards females by Government and not by husband or the relatives of husband. Why the intestate properties of a deceased female should go to the heirs of the husband? Is it not injustice?

A.I.R. 1976 Mad. 154. Amount gifted to a female at the time of her marriage will devolve upon husband according to Sec.15(1).

A.I.R. 1978 Bom. 44. Female inherits her brother, Succession is governed by Sec.15(1).

In Desa Bakthudu v. Dilli Achari, It is decided that all properties absolutely held by a female Hindu except the property inherited from her father or mother will devolve upon the heirs of the husband in the absence of a heir or heirs coming under Class I.

Now-a-days people are advised to give birth only to one or two children though both the children are born as females. If the intestate property of a female goes to the heirs of the husband then who will save the parents of the female? At the life time of the female the parents can get maintenance. If she dies intestate what will happen?

To make a sound and good law what are the amendments to be done in the Hindu Succession Act, 1956?

1. Sec.15(1) to be repealed completely.
2. As consequential amendment in Sec.15, sub clause (2)(a) the words "not upon the other heirs" referred to in Sub-sec.(1) in the order specified therein but" to be repealed.
3. As consequential amendment in Sec.15, sub clause (2)(b) the words "not upon the other heirs" referred to in sub-sec.(1) in the order specified therein but" to be repealed.
4. As consequential amendment Sec.16 with all 3 rules also to be repealed.
5. Since Sec.15(1) has been repealed to govern the intestate property of a deceased female the Word males in Sec.8 is to be taken away and the word Hindus to be inserted, and
6. The word widower to be added or inserted at the place next to widow by putting a bar like a vertical line in the Schedule of class I heirs.

If the learned Law Commission think that the aforesaid amendments are not possible at the present atleast the sub-clause (b) of Sec.15(1) may be repeated or may be put at last as a fifth class or entry.

Order 21, Rule 90, Civil Procedure Code -

A debacle if not a disease

By

V.Lakshmanan, Advocate Tirupur.

A judgment-debtor whose intention is to legally prolong a litigation cannot think of a more lethal weapon in his arsenal than an application under O.21, Rule 90, C.P.C. to set aside a court sale. Courts of all grades have been repeatedly confronted with the intricacies of the said provision comprising of complex situations and they have been presented with problems in plenty basically due to the inherent wide scope of the said provision. It has become the order of the day that whenever there is a court sale it is automatically followed by an application to set aside the same since an application of this type throws new avenues of offence to attack a court sale. It is the last resort and it is intended to bring the decree-holder around for a compromise despite the court sale.

It will not be possible to discuss law of various High Courts on this point. I would like to refer to citations of our High Court and Supreme Court. But there are some rulings of importance from other High Courts as well without reference to which this article may sound mundane.

It would only be proper on my part to deal with case laws topic-wise as I intend presenting a wholesome and worthwhile reading:

Furnishing of Security: This is one aspect about which one awaits a pronouncement from a bench of Madras High Court or from Supreme Court as the position is not definite. The earliest judgment was reported in 1972 T.N.L.J. 36. But this judgment by a single judge relates to a case where mortgagor filed a petition to set aside the court sale. Madras High Court would observe that in cases where mortgaged property itself had been sold (which related to a secured debt), courts should not insist on furnishing of security. It further reads that courts must not insist on furnishing of security if the property the value of which would be much more than the amount due under the decree. The full text of the said judgment is not available to this writer.

Padmini Jesudurai, J. sitting singly had observed in Janakirama Iyer's case, (1987)2 M.L.J. 284: (1988)1 L.W. 6, that Madras High Court amendment requiring the judgment-debtor to furnish security is inconsistent with O.21, Rule 90, and hence, there was no need to furnish security.

But Khader, J. in A.Shannugam v. Lakshmipathy Naidu and another, A.I.R. 1988 Mad. 42: 100 L.W. 99: (1987)1 M.L.J. 320, had taken a more acceptable view by holding that the amendment was not inconsistent and hence, furnishing of security was mandatory.

A similar view has been expressed in (1988)1 L.W. 18, wherein it has been held that furnishing of security was absolutely necessary.

Treatment: To attack a court sale, an identical provision is available to a judgment-debtor under Sec.47, C.P.C. If O.21, Rule 90, deals with irregularities in the publishing and conducting sale, Sec.47 deals with all questions relating to execution of decree. A raging controversy has been going on about the powers of court to treat an application under O.21, Rule 90 even though it has been filed under Sec.47 and vice versa. Divergent views have been expressed by various High Courts about maintainability or rejection of such petitions.

A Full Bench of the Madras High Court in A.P.V. Rajendran's case, (1980)1 M.L.J. 198: 93 L.W. 47, had the occasion to deal with a petition filed under Sec.47 to set aside court sale on the grounds of irregularities. The Full Bench observed that the petition can be construed to be one under O.21, Rule 90 (as it complains about irregularities in the publishing and conducting sale) though it has been filed under Sec.47. The most important point is that this matter went upto Supreme Court and the Apex Court had confirmed the Madras view in 95 L.W. 35. The said observation of the Supreme Court has been relied upon in a subsequent judgment of Madras High Court in (1982)2 M.L.J. 258. (Ratnam, J.)

While things remain so, A.I.R. 1963 All 319, is emphatic that if some of the grounds relate to O.21 Rule 90 and some relate to Sec.47, the application can be treated partly under O.21, Rule 90 and partly under Sec.47, C.P.C.

This controversy has been effectively put an end to in a very recent Supreme Court judgment reported in A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 1857. It is a case wherein an application under O.21, Rule 89, C.P.C. has been filed to set aside a court auction on deposit. But the discussion was about possibility of treating a Sec.47 application as one under O.21, Rule 90. The Apex Court has not minced words when it expressed its view as follows:

"An application under Sec.47, C.P.C., cannot be treated as application under O.21, Rule 90 of the Code when some of the grounds of the objections set out in the application under Sec.47 are not such as are covered by O.21, Rule 90. Hence, the bar prescribed under sub-rule (2) of O.21, Rule 189 would not come into play at all. Merely on the reason of the pendency of the objections under Sec.47 it could not be said that the application under O.21, Rule 89 would be necessarily barred."

This Full Bench decision puts an end to the argument that quoting of wrong provision of law by itself cannot be a ground for dismissal (1989)2 M.L.J. 223. The said Madras ruling is no longer good law in view of the recent Supreme Court ruling.

Inadequacy-Irregularity-Injury-The nexus factor:- Even after a detailed consideration of the rulings on this point, one would not get to know that substantial injury is all about. The judgment-debtor is bound to prove the same and ultimately lose the petition even if he satisfies a court of law that his petition would survive on other points. Invariably, all rulings on O.21, Rule 90, C.P.C. deal with this point (only to reject the petition).

A.I.R. 1983 Delhi 317, is one purposeful ruling as it lays down the gist that mere irregularity or fraud in the conduct of the sale cannot be the ground for setting aside sale unless it is proved that it resulted in substantial injury. It also reads that mere inadequacy of price is not a good ground for setting aside a sale.

Law on this point gained momentum in the recent past. After referring to various rulings of Madras High Court and Supreme Court, K.M. Natarajan, J. in (1986)1 M.L.J. 155, had held that since judgment-debtor did not prove that he sustained substantial injury and hence, there was no question of setting aside the sale. This view had been expressed even after it had been proved the judgment-debtor was not served with notice under O.21, Rule 66(2), C.P.C.

A.I.R. 1987 M.P. 106, is one ruling which every advocate for decree-holder would like to remember. Law has been further simplified that any objection which the judgment-debtor would have raised but did not raise before the sale cannot be raised by way of a petition under O.21, Rule 90, C.P.C. The ruling further emphasises that there must be a clear nexus between the irregularity and the inadequacy of price which had resulted in substantial injury to judgment-debtor. The said ruling is important as it states the legal heirs of judgment-debtor cannot be permitted to raise grounds which the deceased judgment-debtor himself did not raise. On the same line, we have an earlier ruling in (1979)1 M.L.J. 180, (Ramanujam, J.) wherein it had been held that a judgment-debtor, who prefers to remain ex parte on receipt of notice under O.21, Rule 22, C.P.C., cannot be allowed to set up objections by way of a petition under O.21, Rule 90, C.P.C.

Srinivasan, J. in (1992)1 L.W. 437, and in (1992)2 L.W. 542, had rightly insisted upon nexus between the alleged irregularity and the alleged consequences resulting in substantial injury. Ratnam, J. in (1990)1 M.L.J. 134, says that if the judgment-debtor, by way of answer to O.21, Rule 66, C.P.C. did not file his objections, cannot subsequently complain of irregularity in the proclamation.

The nexus factor got settled by a Full Bench of the Supreme Court in A.I.R. 1991 S.C. 770. Though this ruling was about permission to be granted to a decree-holder to bid and set off, there has been a reference to the nexus to be established while dealing with an application under O.21, Rule 90, C.P.C. This writer is duty bound to extract the concerned passage from para.3 which reads as follows:

"For, O.21, Rule 90, it is not sufficient for the appellant to contend that there was an illegality or irregularity in the conduct of the sale; he must also prove by adducing sufficient facts that some substantial injury has been caused to the petitioner as a result of the order under O.21, Rule 72 having been passed without such notice."

A comprehensive ruling is available to the decree-holder on this point in (1992)2 M.L.J. 75. Any objection regarding misdescription of property in the sale proclamation, the sale of more extent of property than required, existence of irregularity or fraud in the publishing and conducting sale must be raised before the sale and not afterwards. Even assuming that there was material irregularity, the judgment-debtor is expected to prove the substantial injury which he had suffered due to such material irregularity and inadequacy of price.

(Mis) Description of property:- This is one of the areas where the helpless judgment-debtor would like to attack the sale fervently. Here also nothing is assured of. Usually the judgment-debtor would plead that some of the components like, well, house, etc., have not been specifically mentioned in the description of property with the result the property had fetched a lesser price than what it would have if the components have been mentioned in the proclamation.

One such occasion had arisen for consideration before Madras High Court in (1988)2 L.W. 234. Ratnam, J. in his own inimitable style, had held that non-mention of electrification or existence of a well or vacant space was not fatal since description of property by four boundaries was sufficient.

But one comes across a dismetrically opposite view expressed by Orissa High Court in (1990)3 S.C.C. 128, wherein the sale was held to be irregular for non-mention of house in the description of property.

The view expressed in (1988)2 L.W. 234, has been confirmed, though in a different manner, by Srinivasan, J. in (1991)2 M.L.J. 9. The said ruling is based on O.21, Rule 90(3), C.P.C. that any objection regarding description of property which should have been taken before the settlement of proclamation if not taken, is deemed to have been waived, and so cannot be raised under O.21, Rule 90.

While considering these aspects one cannot lose sight of A.I.R. 1988 All. 204, as this is one of the most resourceful rulings. The judgment-debtor who makes part payments of decretal amounts prays for adjournment of sale waiving fresh proclamation. Such a waiver goes to the root of the matter as the judgment-debtor courts disaster. Such waiver of fresh proclamation would estop the judgment-debtor to challenge the sale on the ground of irregularity in the publishing and conduction sale.

Duty of Court:- Certain well-recognised restraints have been placed upon the powers of courts when they order for sale of judgment-debtor's property. One of them is the extent of property that must be sold for realisation of decretal amount in cases where the decree amount is small but the property sought to be sold is large. (1985) 2 M.L.J. 123: 98 L.W. 352, deals with a case where several items were brought for sale. Madras High Court is emphatic that all items should not be put up for sale and only those items which would be sufficient to satisfy the decree amount alone must be ordered to be sold.

A similar view has been expressed in a recent ruling of Supreme Court in A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 119, which runs as follows:

"It is of importance to note from O.21, Rule 64 that in all execution proceedings, the Court has to first decide whether it is necessary to bring the entire attached property to sale or such portion thereof as may seem necessary to satisfy the decree. If the property is large and the decree to be satisfied is small, the Court must bring only such portion of the property, the proceeds of which would be sufficient to satisfy the claim of the decree-holder. It is immaterial whether the property is one or several. Even if the property is one, if a separate portion could be sold without violating any provision of law only such portion of the property should be sold. This is not just a discretion, but an obligation imposed on the court. Care must be taken to put only such portion of the property to sale the consideration of which is sufficient to meet the claim in the execution petition. The sale held without examining this aspect and not in conformity with this requirement would be illegal and without jurisdiction."

The non-adherence to this duty by the executing court would only expose it before the appellate court.

Though this is an article under O.21, Rule 90, C.P.C., a hallmark judgment of recent origin reported in A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 1857, pertaining to O.21, Rule 89, C.P.C. will have to be referred to. The Apex Court had directed the judgment-debtor to deposit not only the amount spent by the auction-purchaser in taking the property, but also interest at the rate of 12% from the date of sale by way of equitable relief. If there is going to be a similar direction to the judgment-debtor while dealing with an application under O.21, Rule 29, C.P.C., it will be the day on which the judgment-debtor would stop being frivolous. Anyway, that day is not far off.

To conclude, the dreaded disease has a definite cure. But it remains as a debacle to the executing court every time a petition under O.21, Rule 90 is pressed into service as it is the execution court which conducts the sale.

Immunity from arrest of women under Civil Procedure Code Its validity and tenability at present - constitutionally and otherwise.

By

Shri T.A.Varadarajan, M.A.B.L., D.P.P.A., Advocate, Madurai-625001.

Eversince the passing of the C.P.C. in 1908, uptill the present, women have been exempted from arrest, in enforcement of a decree for payment of money. Sec.56, C.P.C. enacts:

“Notwithstanding anything in this Part, Court shall not order the arrest or detention in the civil prison of a woman in execution of a decree for the payment of money.”

The reasons that impelled the then law makers, to secure the above protection for the softer gender were manifold; viz., their social position, custom, poverty and want of literacy, etc.- Whatever might have been the motive, for the rule made nearly a century ago, it is imperative now, for us to give a second look, and find out, whether there is any need or relevance to continue the above concession or bar, as on today.

First and foremost, sentiment and custom have no place at all, in this matter in our secular state, where the rule of law, prevails. These have become shibboleths and ceased to be cursive coin, at the present age.

Economic conditions, status in society etc. among women have by now improved by leaps and bounds. They like men have been given full franchise to vote in electing the members of Parliament and State Assemblies. Compulsory free education of them upto the age of 14 (fourteen) is imparted by the State; They have become entitled to inherit, and hold properties, with absolute rights over them, as in the case with men, under various statutes, dating back at least from 1956 onwards. They have reached equal and highly distinguished status and positions in the fast changing conditions of our society today. Vast number of ladies in several thousands, if not in lakhs, are holding top posts, in political, governmental, administrative and defence services, scientific, Industrial, Commercial, Judicial, Art, Film, Educational and Sports fields. They have exhibited superior mettle than men in certain spheres of activity. It can safely be proclaimed, that there is no branch of activity where the Fairer Sex, have not yet entered and acquitted themselves remarkably well.

Last but not least, the founding fathers of our Constitution, have also as early as 26.1.1950 enacted and emphasised the Equality of men and women, in the eye of law and its non discrimination against one or the other of them, as follows:

Art.14: “The State shall not deny to any person equality before the law, and equal protection of the laws within the territory of India.”

I feel convinced, that this article by itself is more than sufficient, to neutralise Sec.56, C.P.C., as one opposed to the equality fabric of our Constitution. It can have no more vires at all. To add to the above, we have,

Art.15(1): “The State shall not discriminate against any citizen, on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth or any of them.”

This immunity of Sec.56 acts as a clog or handicap for women themselves, in that, they cannot have free and easy credit facilities from money lending classes, financial and banking institutions. This shackle of immunity (though it may sound paradoxical) is a factor that will make creditors, hesitate to advance loans to women without any property, since they do not have any coercive sanction of arrest of women, as is the case with men. Thus it is discriminatory and detrimental to their interests and welfare.

It is my plea, that after the declarations of equality, and non-discrimination among the two sexes, in our Constitution, there is no place for the survival of Sec.56, C.P.C. at all.

It is unfortunate that in spite of the lapse of nearly five decades from 26.1.1950 the Parliament has not thought it fit to do away with this retrograde section in C.P.C. in the teeth of the above Constitutional mandate, and also in spite of the huge strides that have been made in the cause of woman as described above.

Some among the Protagonists or women in this country murmur and point out to Art.15(3) which runs as follows:

“Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for women and children.”

The above sub clause cannot cut ice against quashing Sec.56, C.P.C. for the following reasons:

(a) It cannot prevail over the all embracing ambit and amplitude of the Arts.14 and 15(1). Sec.56, C.P.C. cannot survive the majestic sweep of these two provisions any more. The Rule of Law will not tolerate or suffer such reserved pockets for women.

(b) Further Art.15(3), is clearly indicative of only prospective beneficial provisions and cannot resurrect an invalid retrospective protective piece of legislation of Sec.56, C.P.C., to life.

Even assuming, without conceding, that Art.15(3) is any, hindrance, I assert that after the phenomenal progress women have made in this land, as illustrated above, there is no justification, for the umbrella of Sec.56, C.P.C. to continue any more.

Now, there are three remedies, open to annul the effect of Sec.56, C.P.C.:

(a) Parliament can repeal or delete the impugned section by an Amending Act of its own. This will be a very slow long drawn process to happen;

(b) The invocation of the powers of High Court and/or Supreme Court, in execution proceedings, seeking arrest of women judgment-debtor, challenging the vires of Sec.56, C.P.C. The difficulty, is to find out a decree holder against a woman, who is prepared to bell the cat. This is equally not a quick remedy.

(c) The only feasible and quick method is to initiate a public interest litigation before High Court and/or the Apex Court, by filing a suitable writ proceeding, seeking the Central Government to justify the continuance of Sec.56, C.P.C. which has become obsolete and invalid for all the above reasons.

MUSINGS ON 1992

By

R.Srinivasan, Editor, M.L.J.

It is wistful thinking that one should be like the ancient Roman God Janus which is credited with two heads one looking back into the old year and one forward into the new commanding both hindsight as well as foresight, so that warned about the shoals and rocks of the immediate future one might use the experiences and wisdom of the immediate past in meeting them. Each year has its own momentous events involving as they do individuals and countries which matter. Judged by any standard the expiring year has been an eventful year.

International:

U.S.A.: President Mr. George Bush visited Sydney on Asian Pacific Tour. U.S.A. established full diplomatic ties with South Africa. U.S. and Japan signed a declaration for a just, peaceful and prosperous world. U.S. agreed to fly food to Common Wealth of Independent States of the erstwhile Soviet Union.

In May, 1992 U.S. suspended duty benefits granted for some Indian goods under the Generalised System of Preferences as India failed to protect U.S. intellectual property rights. It was decided to retain India on Special 301 list for another year. In Los Angeles emergency was declared violence erupted after four white policeman who were involved in the beating of Mr. Rodney King, a black motorist was acquitted and therefore national guard was ordered out. U.S. warned India saying that it would take retaliatory action if India does not protect U.S. pharmaceutical patents. President Mr. George Bush outlined U.S. Defence strategy in Post Cold War era. U.S. had to function as a strong strategic deterrent.

In June, 1992, Mr. George Bush, got republican party nomination and Mr. Bill Clinton, Democratic Party nominee for the next U.S. Presidential election. U.S. announced fresh missile contract sanctions agreement with India, China, Iraq, North Korea and 17 other countries. The Central Intelligence Agency (C.I.A.) targeted India, Pakistan, Iran Libya and North Korea for surveillance of their military weapon programme. President Mr. George Bush agreed in principle to go ahead with the proposal to provide $10 billion in loan guarantees for four lakh Jewish migrants in Israel from the former Soviet Union. Mr. George Bush told the republican convention at Houston that elimination of the Cuba leader Dr. Fidel Castro's brand Marxism would be a target in the next four years. The Congress called for a new auto theft law to deal with one of America's fastest growing crimes after the tragic death of India Housewife Mrs. Pamela Bush. Mr. Bill Clinton was elected as U.S. President and the power was grabbed by the democrats after 12 years. He sent out message of continuity in foreign policy.

RUSSIA: In the month of January Russia and Ukraine arrived at Shaky Compromise to divide black sea fleet into strategic and non-strategic parts and give Ukraine control over the non-strategic part. There was unrest in Russia and rallies were formed and private shops were attacked. Important steps to preserve the unity as autonomous ethnic republics and region sign federal treaty on decision of power between centre and local Government. Russia and Ukraine agreed to suspend rival decrees taking over the black sea fleet. President Mr. Boris Elstin won effective vote of confidence from Russia's Supreme Legislature. Rocket Technology to India was resumed after expert approval. President Mr. Boris Elstin stood by Rocket engine deal with India. U.S. and Russia agreed to resume joint space flights.

U.N.: In January, 1992 the Security Council asked Libya to surrender for trial two of its nationals accused of complicity in the blowing up of Pan America's Airliner in Scotland. Security Council imports and embargo on sale of weapons to combatants in Somalia. In February, 1992 Summit meeting security council was held at New York with a call by the British Prime Minister Mr. John Major for a firm attachment to the people of collective security. World leaders of Security Council meeting laid down principles of a new world order. British Prime Minister Mr. John Major read out a joint statement focussing on the responsibility of the world body to maintain world peace. Security Council agreed to set up protection force for Civil War. Security Council condoned Iraq's failure to begin destroying Saudi missile facility and warns of serious consequence. Security Council slapped trade sanctions and harm embargo on Libya for failing to surrender suspects in territories acts on Jetliners. Five permanent members of Security Council, U.S., Russia, Britain, France and China agreed to set 10 guidelines to prevent spread of weapons of mass destructions. U.N. Conference on Environment Development was held at Rio de Janeiro Brazil. The Security Council authorised use of force as a last resort to ensure humanitarian aid to the deceased civilians in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Other Countries: In the month of January, Israel and Palestine launched historic negotiations in Washington on Palestinian autonomy. China agreed to protect U.S. patents and averts penal action hours before expiry of a deadline. Bulgarian President Mr. Zhelyu Zhelev won new five year term. United Arab Emirates (UAE) cut oil outputs by 50,000 barrels a day. Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) cut oil production to stabilise world oil prices.

Palestine Liberation Organisation boycotted West Asia Peace Conference in Moscow following U.S. refusal for a bigger PLO delegation. British Prime Minister submitted a new and tougher draft for the U.N. Summit. Italian President Mr. Francesco Cossiga dissolved Parliament five months early and called for elections on April 5. 150 Myanmar Muslim refugees including women killed in a boat capsize while trying to cross over to Bangladesh. 28 killed in a French chartered airliner crash near Senegal. High level inspection team for International Atomic Energy Agency from U.S. leave for Iran to inspect nuclear facilities there. Western countries started sending food supplies and medicines to the Commonwealth of Independent States of the erstwhile Soviet Union. Russian Parliament ratified border treaty concluded between the Soviet Union and China in 1991. Ousted Georgian President Mr. Gamsakhurdia surfaced after six weeks of hiding declared to fight for restoration of legitimate power to Georgia. President of Yugoslav Republic of Bosnia Mr. Alija Izetbegovic, proclaimed Muslim dominated republic's independence. Mauritius became a republic. Bade goodbye to British Monarch as head of State. South African whites gave a massive mandate to their President Mr. F.W. de Klerk to end apartheid and share power with black majority. French Prime Minister Mrs. Edith Cresson resigned; Finance Minister Mr. Pierre Berégovoy appointed Prime Minister. Conservative party led by Mr. John Major claws its way to power in the U.K. securing for Tories an unprecedented fourth term in office. Former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega found guilty on eight out of 10 drug and racketeering charges by a Federal Court Jury. Dr. Najibullah, Afghan President deposed as Coalition took over. Afghan Government ceded power to Mujahideen leaders. 12 nations signed Climate Treaty to curb gas emission that affect environment at Rio Summit. India proposes a Planet Protection Fund to help buy environment friendly technology worldwide and make it available to any country seeking access to it at the Rio Summit. World Bank sought support of developed nations to set up Earth Increment Fund as part of International Development Association. Agenda 21 Comprehensive document that will set the planet on a new course of sustainable development adopted at Rio Summit. Mr. Fidel Ramos declared elected President Philippines. Slovak nationalist leader Mr. Vladimir Meciar and Czech conservative Mr. Vaclav Klaus announced an agreement on the break up of Czechoslovakia. $850 million Japanese aid this year for India. The All India Consortium of Western donors pledged an enhanced aid package of $7.2 billions to India for the year. The caretaker President Mr. Sibaotullah Mujaddidi hands over power to leadership council in Kabul Afghanistan. Israel's Prime Minister Mr. Yitzhak Rabin formed a coalition with moderates, a good augury for the West Asia Peace process. Mrs. Hanna Suchoka became the first woman to head the Polish Government. The ousted Panamanian dictator Mr. Manuel Noriega sentenced to 40 years in jail on drug and racketeering charges. Cuba's Parliament increased the Constitutional powers of the President, Dr. Fidel Castro. Pope John Paul II appeared in public on Sunday for the first time after undergoing intestinal surgery on July, 15. Across a 2,415 Km. from the Indian ocean coast to Sudan's Western deserts, millions are threatened with starvation. The region encompassing Sudan, Kenya, Ethiopia, Eritrea, Somalia and Djibouti is mired in famines and warfare that orphan increasing number of people each year. The British Government decided in conjunction with France and the U.S. to impose an air exclusion zone to protect shias against alleged atrocities of the Saddam Hussein regime. Indonesia to take over the chairmanship of the non-aligned movement before the start of the summit. The tenth non-aligned summit opened at Jakarta. President Suharto of Indonesia the new chairman gives the lead in expressing the widespread feeling within the NAM that it should reaffirm its validity in the new international context. French vote narrowly in favour of the Maastricht Treaty. India and Britain signed a historic extradition treaty and an agreement on confiscation of extremists assets. The British Cabinet Minister Mr. David Mellor resigned after an extra-marital affair with an actress was plastered all over the tabloid press. The Prime Minister Mr. P. V. Narasimha Rao held talks with the French leaders in Paris. India concluded a deal for purchase of about one million tonnes of wheat from U.S. at subsidised rates. China agreed to open markets to the U.S. The OPEC deadlocked over ways to curb high production and support weak oil prices. Ecuador became the first oil producer to leave the OPEC in its 31 year history.

National:

So far as our country is concerned, so many important changes, for political and otherwise have taken place and it is for the people of our country to decide whether it is good or bad. Some of the political parties have become stronger and form a strong opposition to the ruling party while some others have become weak and have become non-recognised parties.

Ayodhya and B.J.P.: Mr. L.K. Advani of B.J.P. started his Ratha Yatra to reach the Ayodhi, the birth place of Sri Rama where a construction of a temple for Srirama was under consideration. The Jammu and Kashmir Government invited Ekta Yatra Participants to join the official republic day celebrations at Srinagar. Ekta Yatra ended abruptly on the outskirts of Udhampur and Dr. Murali Manohar Joshi was flown by I.A.F. helicopter to Srinagar. Dr. Murali Manohar Joshi, B.J.P. President hoisted the National Flag amidst tight security at the Lal Chowk in Srinagar. The Lucknow Bench of the Allahabad High Court stayed construction work at Ayodhya on 16th July, 1992. The activities continued at Ayodhya despite the Court's stay order. But thereafter construction work at Ayodhya site came to a halt and U.P. Government took control of it. The Supreme Court appointed a commission headed by its Registrar General Mr. S. Rai to report inter alia on the nature, size and alignment of all structure (including the platforms existing on the 2.77 acres of the acquired land adjacent to Ram Janmabhoomi Babri Masjid complex at Ayodhya. The Babri panel agreed to attend Ayodhya talks. After a gap of 19 months representatives of the Vishwa Hindu Parishad and the All India Babri Masjid Action Committee met on the 4th October, 1992 to discuss about the construction of a temple for Sriram at the disputed place. The third round of talks on the Babri Masjid-Ramjanmabhoomi issue derailed with the Vishwa Hindu Parishad refusing to withdraw its call for Kar Seva from December 6th was held on the 9th November, 1992. The National Integration Council gave green signal to Government take steps to uphold the Constitution and the Rule of Law to ensure that the orders of the Court in the Ayodhya dispute are implemented. The U.P. Government assured that no construction material men and machinery would be moved to the 2.77 acres of acquired land adjacent to the Ramjanmabhoomi-Babri Masjid complex. B.J.P. Assured Kar Seva without construction work. But the saints deferred face-off in Ayodhya. On 6th December, 1992 which is considered as a black letter day in the history of India. karsevas demolished 450 years old Babri Masjid which was condemned by all the political parties throughout India. As a result of it there was a bitterness between Hindus and Muslims. Bombay witnessed big riots. Central rule was proclaimed in the U.P. State and curfew was imposed in the U.P. Town and army was alerted. B.J.P. leaders L.K. Advani, Ashok Shinghal, M.M. Joshi and V.H.P. leaders arrested. The Allahabad High Court invalidated land acquisition by the Government at Ayodhya. Ayodhya related violence toll 1,150 and Mr.Vajpayee, B.J.P. leader detained briefly started his fast.

Scam: Another interesting and important event which has become very notable and a day-to-day word is "Stock Scam". The Stock Scam was deducted in the month of May and the Central Bureau of Investigation was asked to inquire into and investigate the same. Mr.K.Margabandhu, Chairman and Managing Director of the United Commercial Bank and the Deputy Managing Director of State Bank of India Mr.C.L.Khemani incharge of Bank's treasury and investment portfolio asked to leave in connection with the stock scam. On 16th May, 1992, the Bombay Stock Exchange authority announced a closure of the market. The Janakiraman Committee of the Reserve Bank of India which was investigating the stock scam put the amounts of bank funds involved in the scam at Rs.3,078 crores. Another victim that was asked to go on leave is the Chairman of the State Bank of India Mr.M.N.Goiporia. Mr.Harshad Mehta, who is described as the big bull and his brother Mr.Ashwin and their three associates and three bank officials were arrested in connection with stock scam. The multi crore stock scam claimed its first victim. Mr.P.Chidambaram, who was the Minister of State for Commerce, resigned and the Government agreed to set up a Joint Parliamentary Committee to probe into the stock scam. The Lok Sabha Speaker Mr.Shivraj Patil designated Mr.Ram Niwas Mirdha as Chairman of the Joint Parliamentary Committee set up to probe the securities scandal. Mr.Harshad Mehta who is familiarly known as the 'big bull' returned as free man on the order of the Bombay High Court since he is arrested as prime accused in the security scandal. Mr.Harshad Mehta the big bull admitted that payment as large as 1 crore was made in Bombay to well connected companies.

TELUGU DESAM: Telugu Desam party split with eight of its M.Ps. in Lok Sabha formally requesting the Speaker Mr.Shivraj Patil, to recognise the group led by Mr.B.Vijayakumar Raju as the real 'Telugu Desam' and allot it a separate block in the House. Lok Sabha speaker Mr.Shivaraj Patil accorded formal recognition of TDP break up and allotted separate seats to six members led by Mr.B.Vijaykumar Raju and with the admission of six members break away Telugu Desam group in the Lok Sabha, the Congress (I) secured a simple majority in the Lok Sabha. Mr.P.Upendra, former Union Minister of Janata Dal and an important leader of Telugu Desam Party was expelled from the party.

Miscellaneous:

Bharat Ratna title was conferred posthumously on Nethaji Subash Chandra Bose and Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, India's first indigenously built submarine INS Shalki was commissioned by the Defence Minister Mr.Sharad Pawar. Mahamakam festival was celebrated at Kumbakonam. The State Government made elaborate arrangements at a heavy cost. Chief Minister Selvi J.Jayalalitha attended the festival. Bharat Ratna was conferred on Satyajit Ray the film mastro. Oscar for life achievement was also presented to him. Justice Kanthakumari Bhatnagar was appointed as the Chief Justice of Madras High Court. It was decided to have a separate police force to protect temples and idols in Tamil Nadu. First all woman police station was opened in Madras. The Augmented Satellite launch vehicle (ASLV) was launched from Sriharikota. Indira Gandhi prize for peace disarmament and development for 1991 awarded to Rajiv Gandhi posthumously. Bengal Poet Subash Makhopathiyay was awarded Jnanpith award for 1991. India's second intermediate range ballistic missile Agni was successfully test fired with a higher payload. Dr.Mrs.Najma Hephthullah was re-elected as Deputy Chairperson in the Rajya Sabha. Vice President Mr.Shankar Dayal Sharma was elected President of the country. The Prime Minister Mr.P.V.Narasimha Rao's Government won confidence vote. Supreme Court held that levy of capitation fee by any educational institution is illegal. Delhi High Court quashed both the First Information Reports (FIR) against Win Chanda and two letters regotory issued in 1990 in Bofors case. A Full Bench of the A.P. High Court quashed as unconstitutional Sec.3-A of the A.P. Educational Institutions (Regulation of Admission and Prohibition of Capitation Fee Amended Act), 1992. The Defence Research and Development organisation scientist successfully sent three flights of the indeginomously designed and development piloted target aircraft "Lakshya" at the interim first test range near Chandrapur in Orissa on September 16, 17, 18. Mr.K.R.Narayanan was sworn in as the Vice President of India. Karnataka Chief Minister Mr.Bangarappa staged a 'Sadhana Samavesha' for a show of strength. Some of the Ministers resigned from the Karnataka Ministry. Mr.G.Ramaswamy, the Attorney General of India resigned in the wake of the controversy relating to his remarks on an 'anti south' bias at the centre. Mr.S.Bangarappa, Karnataka Chief Minister resigned. Mr.Vecrappa Moily was chosen as Karnataka Chief Minister. Mr.Milan Kumar Banerjee has been appointed as Attorney General of India. The A.P. Chief Minister Mr.Janardhana Reddy resigned and Mr Vijayabhaskara Reddy has been appointed as new Chief Minister.

Sports:

Bhuvaneswari won national award for the 16th time and equalled guiness record. Tamil Nadu men took national Volley Ball Battle. India claimed Indira Gandhi World Cup in Hockey. Anupama Gokhale regained national chess title. Kamallesh Mehta won men's national title tennis for a record seventh time. Niyal Shah regained women's carem. Kerala won Santosh Trophy Foot Ball. Denmark the Giant-killer, lifted European cup football. Steffi Graf won at Wimbledon. Agasi became the new man's champion at Wimbledon. Barcelona Game concluded on 10th August and the United team topped the medal take. Geet Sellu won world professional billiard title. Ganrav Natekar and K.V.Nirupama claimed national tennis. United States defeated Switzerland to win the Davis Cup Tennis title

Notable Deaths:

Former Union Minister and the President of T.N.C.C. Mr.O.V.Alagesan passed away at the age of 81. Bharat Bhushan noted Hindi Film Actor died. H.C.Kothari noted Industrialist died at Madras. Satyajit Ray, the veteran film maker died at Calcutta. Marlene Dietrich, film actress died at the age of 90 at Paris. Maharajapuram Santhanam, the foremost Carnatic Musician died in an accident at the age of 69. Shivaji Rao Bhawe Gandhian and younger brother of Vinoba Bhawe died in Wardha. Kannan Devi legendary film glamour queen died in Calcutta. Britain's most decorated pilot Lord Leonard Cheshire World War II hero died at the age of 74. Sri Azhagia Singar the 4th head of the Ahobala Mutt in Srirangam died at the ripe old age of 97. Mr.N.Subramania Iyer aged 97 years, President Ramakrishna Mutt Students Home died. Mr.P.Neelakantan aged 76years, Tamil Film Director and script writer died in Madras. The dayon of Hindustani Music Mr.Malikarjuna Mansoon died at 82 in Dharwar. The former Chief Justice and Vice President of India Mr.Hidayathullah died in Bombay at the age of 87. Mr.K.V.K.Sundaram, former Election Commissioner died. Mr.Honappa Bhagavatar, musician and film actor and producer died on the 1st day of October in Bangalore at the age of 78. Mr.Prem Nath, film actor died at Bombay when he was 67 years. Mr.Alexander Dubeck former Czechoslovak leader of the 1968 Pargue Spring Liberation Movement at Pargue died. Mr.Jothi Venkatachalam, former Governor of Kerala and Minister of Tamil Nadu died at the age of 87 at Madras.

Thus ends 1992, an eventful year both at the home and abroad and on to 1993

BOOKS REVIEW

PUBLIC LAW IN BRITAIN AND INDIA By William Wade. Published by N.M.Tripathi Private Ltd. Price Rs.90.

This book under notice contains the lectures delivered in connection with late M.K.Nambiyar Lectures. There are four lectures in this book. The first lecture under the heading Constitutions - Bedrock or quicksand was delivered by the Hon'ble of His M.H.Kania, Chief Justice of India. The second lecture was delivered by the Hon'ble of his P.D.Desai the topic being Judicial Review - The Foundation. The third lecture was delivered by Sri S.P.Barucha, Chief Justice of Karnataka High Court on the topic Judicial Review New Horizons. The fourth and last lecture was delivered by the Hon'ble Sri N.P.Singh, Chief Justice of West Bengal on the topic Government Judiciary and Profession. The author has given a brief note about late M.K.Nambiyar. This book under notice dealing with lectures will be a good addition to any library and will be useful to those who are interested in knowing Constitutions.

THE POWERS OF ATTORNEY ACT (VII of 1882), second edition, by D.P.Shah. Published by N.M.Tripathi Private Ltd. Price Rs.60.

Almost all educated people know as to what is Powers of Attorney. But many do not know about the provisions of Powers of Attorney Act. Therefore, a good book dealing with Powers of Attorney Act is absolutely necessary.

The book under notice is a concise book dealing with Powers of Attorney Act. There are only six sections in this Act. The author has given a critical notes. Important case laws are also referred to. The author of the book under notice has given the forms and precedents. A table of cases is given in the beginning. This book under notice will give an idea of the Powers of Attorney Act. This book will be a welcome addition to any library.

PROFESSION TAX (Tamil Nadu Act 24 of 1992 with Rules). By K.S.Mahalingam, Advocate. Published by Tamil Nadu Law Notes Journal. Price Rs.30.

This book under notice deals with Profession Tax. Mr. Justice P.S.Mishra of the Madras High Court has written the foreward. The text of the Act and the Rules are given. Few important cases are also given at the end. The book under notice contains corresponding provisions in other enactments. For the people engaged in Professions, Trades, Calling and Employments it is necessary to know about the law relating to that. This book gives a ready answer. People who carry on Professions, Trades, Callings and Employments will find this book useful. It will definitely serve the purpose for which it is written. The author of the book K.S.Mahalingam a practising lawyer this the City of Madras has taken pains to bring about this book with necessary details.

SATTA KADIR. "Satta Kadir is a Tamil Law Journal edited by Sri V.R.S.Sampath and published by Madras Education Trust. The first issue of the journal was published November, 1992. The journal contains the judgments of the High Court and the Subordinate Court in the vernacular language. The meaning of the words such as "attestation", "receipt", are briefly explained. Articles on different topics are also published. The law on various topics is explained by means of a drama.

This journal will be popular among the lawyers practising in the City as well as in the Districts.

COMMISERATIVE COUNTENANCE FOR COMPASSIONATE APPOINTMENTS.

By

Dr.P.Lakshmanan, M.A. (Econ), M.A. (Pub.Admin), M.B.A., B.A.L., D.S.S.A., Ph.D., Secretary, Tamil Nadu Labour Welfare Board, Madras - 600 006.

1. The Scheme: The fate of a Government servant who dies in harness, leaving his family in agony is akin to a rudderless ship abandoned by the captain. To mitigate this agony, schemes had been devised by Governments to help the family by providing employment to the heir of the deceased employee. The Government of Tamil Nadu in G.O.Ms.No.225, Labour Department, dated 15.2.1972 introduced a scheme providing employment assistance to a dependent of a Government servant who dies in harness, leaving his family in indigent circumstances. Government in G.O.Ms.No.73, Employment Services dated 26.10.1983 redrafted the scheme with the amendments made to the scheme till that date. The appointment will be on regular basis, in relaxation of the normal procedure for recruitment. The dependents of the deceased, eligible for employment are the widow or the husband, son, unmarried daughter, legally adopted son, and legally adopted unmarried daughter. The candidate should possess all the prescribed qualifications for the posts concerned. For Masalchis of class III and categories in class IV of Tamil Nadu Basic Service Rules the educational qualification is "ability to read and write Tamil" vide Government Letter No.5484/N1/82-9 Labour Employment Department, dated 16.6.1983. The upper age limit for consideration of appointment is 30/40 on the date of death of the deceased. The dependent can be considered for appointment in any Department and not necessarily in the Department where the deceased worked. Government in the subsequent G.Os. had given many clarifications. The concession will be available even in case the Government servant dies during the period of extension of service and not during the period of reemployment. (G.O.Ms.No.41, Employment Department, dated 23.3.1988).

In the implementation of this scheme, many questions had cropped up, warranting judicial scrutiny. In many cases administrative or procedural delays cause hardship to the claimants of compassionate appointments. Whether economic prosperity of the family can be a reason to reject employment on compassionate grounds? When one son is already in employment of the same organisation can employment to the other son be denied? These and other questions settled by law will make an interesting reading.

2. Existence of vacancies-Is it a prerequisite?: Compassionate appointment cannot be denied on the plea that there is no vacancy. In case there is no vacancy a temporary candidate sponsored by Employment Exchange, with less than 1 year of service can be ousted, to accommodate the compassionate candidate, according to the instructions of the Government of Tamil Nadu vide G.O.Ms.No.2521, Labour and Employment Department, dated 7.11.1981. The Supreme Court which deprecated delay in making compassionate appointments, explained that the purpose of giving appointments on compassionate grounds is to mitigate the hardship due to death of the bread-earner in the family. The Government of Tamil Nadu has in G.O.Ms.No.314, Labour and Employment Department, dated 13.11.1991 directed that the Officer should forward the application for compassionate appointment, to the Head of the Department within a month and the latter should issue orders of appointment within 15 days. Justice M.P.Singh and B.P.Singh of Allahabad High Court in the case of Dinesh Ravi v. District Inspector of Schools, 1991 Lab.I.C. 739, decided that it was mandatory on the part of State Government to create a post and appoint the heir.

However, Justice B. Dikshit of the Allahabad High Court in the case of Dinesh Kumar Mishra v. State of Uttar Pradesh and others, (1992) 2 L.L.J. 527, held that the Government could deny employment on the ground that there was no vacancy.

If there is no suitable post for appointment, super-numerary post should be created to accommodate the candidate. (Smt. Sushma Gosein v. Union of India, 1989 Lab.I.C. 2014; A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 1976).

3. When family is not indigent?: According to the order of the Government of Tamil Nadu in Letter No.36907/N1/81-6, Labour and Employment Department, dated 5.5.1982, the concession is not admissible even in cases where the earning member of the family of the deceased Government servant is married and living separately and or not extending, his full support to the family of the deceased Government servant. If a member of the family is regularly or permanently appointed in State Government service, or public Sector Undertaking of Central or State Government or in Local Bodies or in co-operative societies or in private industries other members are not eligible for employment on compassionate ground. (G.O.Ms.No.40, Labour and Employment (Q1) Department, dated 5.1.1990).

The Central Administrative Tribunal New Bombay Branch (M.B. Myumdar Member (J) and M.Y. Prolkar Member (A)) in Arunfakirnath Sonavane v. Union of India and another, 1990 Lab.I.C. 443, held that younger son could not claim appointment, on compassionate ground if the widow receives pension of Rs.535 p.m. and substantial lump sum amount of Rs.33,000 and the elder son is also employed in Government Fakirnath Sonavane was a Plater in the Naval Dock Yard Bombay.

The Kerala Government's Scheme for giving employment for the heirs of Government servants dying in harness, laid down income qualification for family. That qualification applies to cases upto 1.7.1983. In respect of those who died after 1.7.1983 no such income qualification was prescribed. It was held by Kerala High Court in the case of Suresh Kumar v. State of Kerala, (1991) 2 L.L.J. 833, that once the limit has been taken away, there is no justification for further classification in respect of persons who died before a particular date.

The G.O.Ms.No.1044, Labour and Employment Department, dated 23.11.1990 of the Government of Tamil Nadu clarifies that if any of the dependent of the deceased Government servant is or are employed in Military Service, any one of the other dependent is eligible for appointment in Government Departments and Government Undertaking on compassionate grounds.

In one case the son of the deceased employee was already employed with the Board where the deceased was working, before his death. After the death whether employment to the second son could be denied? It was answered by the Karnataka High Court (Justice N. Venkatachala and Justice N.D.V. Bhatt) in the case of K. Raj v. Karnataka Electricity Board and others, 1991 Lab.I.C. 778, holding that the second son was eligible for employment.

One A.V. Krishnamurthy, employee of L.I.C. died in 1989. His wife filed a petition to the L.I.C. to appoint his son A. Seshagiri. The L.I.C. rejected the claim stating that Thiru Seshagiri's brother A. Babu Rao was employed in L.I.C. The latter joined L.I.C. before the death of the deceased. He severed all the connections with father's family. His another brother was securing employment on casual basis. It was held by Justice Bhaskara Rao of Andhra Pradesh High Court in A. Seshagiri v. L.I.C., (1992) 2 L.L.J. 326, that before rejecting the request for appointment on compassionate grounds, the employer should consider whether the gainfully employed son or unmarried daughter are members of the family. When the employee died during service, it is for the person claiming job on compassionate ground to prove that his eldest brother is separated from the joint family and living separately and has no connection with the family.

4. When death is disputed?: Justice B.N.Kripal and Justice D.K.Jain dealt with the case of Sashi Mittal v. Union of India, (1992)2 L.L.J. 438. In that case the wife claimed employment on compassionate grounds saying that her husband was presumed dead. But the employer contended that her husband was alive and was dismissed from service. The Labour Court came to the conclusion that her husband was alive and he was not interested in continuing the dispute. It was held that her husband's services were terminated and that she had no right for employment on compassionate grounds.

5. Is attainment of majority a necessity?: In the case of Rajendra Prasad Poodar v. State of Bihar and others, 1991 Lab.I.C. 959, the Patna High Court had to consider an interesting case. The applicant's father died in harness on 28.12.1980. At that time the applicant was 17 years and few months. The application was turned down because the petitioner did not attain the age of 18 years. His date of birth was 10.2.1966. On 9.4.1985 within five years of the death of his father, he having attained majority, sent another application. To his fluster and dismay it was rejected on 16.8.1985 on the ground that two years limitation from the date of death was expired. The personnel and Administrative Reforms Department had fixed the period of limitation as two years for filing the application for appointment on compassionate grounds. It was held that such persons are to be saved from the critical condition of life on account of economic backwardness and it was only with a view to save such person from difficulty that the person concerned given appointment on compassionate grounds. In this case when he presented an application, he was under-aged and did not fulfil the prescribed age of 18 years. When he attained the age of 18, his application was turned down stating that he was beyond the period of two years limit. The situation was beyond the control of the petitioner. Any technical objection will be a fly in the appointment defeating the object behind such appointment on compassionate ground. Hence the Regional Deputy Director was directed to appoint the petitioner for suitable post in accordance with law and on compassionate ground within a period of two years from the date of the order.

As far Tamil Nadu Government is concerned, there is no bar in appointing a candidate under compassionate grounds below the age of 18 years. Vide Letter No.66813/Q1/91-3, dated 22.11.1991 of the Labour and Employment Department.

6. Give opportunity before cancelling Order: The Madras High Court in P.Chinnasamy v. Tamil Nadu Electricity Board, (1992)2 L.L.J. 51, held that once the legal heir is appointed, subsequent cancellation of the order of appointment on the ground that their family is not in indigent circumstances is the violation of 'audi alteram partem' rule and hence the cancellation order was set aside.

7. Competence to the post: Justice Nainar Sundaram and Justice Somasundaram of Madras High Court held that a concession must certainly go by the terms by which it is granted and not beyond or besides it. In that case, the petitioner was appointed temporarily and before regularisation of the services, before the lapse of one year, the irregularity and infirmity in his appointment was found out and if there had been a termination on that basis, there is no scope of bringing in any theory of equitable estoppel.

Can a person be given appointments in a post which is lower than the one to which he is eligible? The Allahabad High Court in Shailesh Kumar Panday v. State of U.P., (1992)2 L.L.J. 237, held that the intention of the rules is that persons are not only given appointment, on the death of the breadwinner, but such appointment should be to such posts for which the person applies is really eligible and competent. Even if no post is available, super-numerary post should be created to accommodate the person.

The right of a female heir to claim partition in a Dwelling House Under Sec.23 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956.

By

M.R.Pradeep Kumar, M.L.
(Formerly Junior Professor, Law College, Madurai)
Advocate, Krishnagiri.

The process of conferring right to property on Hindu women is very gradual, through various legislative measures. Under the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1937, a Hindu widow of a deceased coparcener had a right to demand partition but the exact share, that she would receive cannot be ascertained till partition is made. The property cannot be alienated without the concurrence of all the members of the family except for legal necessity. In short, it was only a 'restricted or limited estate'. Next, Sec.6 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, is another step in conferring a right to property on Hindu women in the coparcenary property. By means of 'Notional partition', as contemplated by virtue of the proviso to Sec.6, Hindu women have come to acquire shares in the coparcenary property. It is remarkable to note, that not only a widow but also mother and daughters of the intestate are given equal shares. Anyhow, the status of 'coparcenership' was not conferred upon a daughter of a Hindu coparcener.

By virtue of Sec.14(1) of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, the concept of 'limited ownership' has been wiped out in regard to the property acquired in the modes described therein, except those that are specifically provided under Sec.14(2) of the Act.

Yet another move under the Act I of 1990, was made in the matter of improving the status of women, especially a daughter of a Hindu coparcener, which is, though a very serious inroad into pure Hindu Law, certainly a drastic, rather beneficial provision for Hindu women. Till the passing of the Act I of 1990, in view of several judicial pronouncements under Hindu Law, the position of a daughter of a coparcener was not equated with a son, who gets a right by birth in the coparcenary property. Under Sec.29-A of the Act I of 1990, that a daughter of a coparcener shall by birth become a coparcener in her own right in the same manner as a son.

At this juncture, a question arises as to how Sec.23 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 has escaped from the scrutiny of the 'Law Makers' even after such drastic changes were made, altering the basic tenets of Hindu Law.

As per Sec.23 of the said Act, 'where a Hindu intestate has left surviving him or her both male and female heirs specified in class I of the Schedule and his or her property includes a dwelling house, wholly occupied by members of his or her family, then notwithstanding anything contained in the Act, the right of any such female heir to claim partition of the dwelling house shall not arise, until the male heirs choose to divide their respective shares therein.

The effect of this section is to suspend the right of a female heir, to claim partition in a dwelling house, wholly occupied by the members of intestate's family, during the period when the male heirs keep 'mum' without claiming their respective shares by way of partition. For the purpose of depriving a female heir of her right to claim partition, the male heirs may not choose to divide the house between themselves. Thus, the right of a female heir to claim partition, in the dwelling house rests with the choice of the male heirs. Further, the phrase 'a dwelling house, wholly occupied by the members of his or her family' is susceptible of various interpretations according to the facts and circumstances of each case. If this section is literally construed, that in case, a part of the house is tenanted out, the other portion, being occupied by the members of the intestate's family it would constitute a ground for a female heir to claim partition in the house, on the pretext, that it is not wholly occupied by the members of the family.

Where the intestate has only one property, viz., a dwelling house the female heirs are left without any remedy or relief and it is totally unfair to deprive them of their statutory right of claiming partition in view of certain conditions imposed by the section. In fact, she has been given the 'right of residence' which cannot certainly be equated with 'her right' in the house. My suggestion is that suitable legislative changes in the said section should be made, however drastic they might be, so as to make the female heirs not dependant upon the 'choice' of the male heirs in the matter of claiming partition in a dwelling house.

A JUDGE PASSES AWAY

The news of the passing away of Justice S. Govindasamy on 12th February 1993 at Madras was received with sincere regret by the members of the Bench and the Bar alike as well as by those who had come into contact with him. Born on 8th August 1934 in an Agricultural family in Meimathur Village of Thanjavur District, Justice S. Govindasamy had nearly three and a half years service at the Bench as a judge of the High Court. Having practised at the Bar for many years and served in the chambers of the Former Chief Justice Mr. M. M. Ismail, Justice S. Govindasamy was appointed judge of the High Court of Judicature at Madras on 15.2.1990. Throughout his judicial career Justice S. Govindasamy had the reputation of being a patient, considerate and courteous judge. He was practically at home while disposing of Writ Petitions. He was conscious of the fact that the Administration of Justice has a social function and that the judicial process is only a part of larger social process. He was fully alive to the dangers of hard constructions and strained inferences. His judgments are marked by thoroughness in appreciating the facts bearing the law. He shunned the limelight of publicity and took no particular interest in publication of his judgment. He was a pious, soft spoken, gentle warm hearted man. He was humane in his approach and conscientious in the discharge of his duties. MAY HIS SOUL REST IN PEACE!

Some Reflections on Sec.8 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956.

By

R. Govindarajan, B.A., B.L., Advocate, Madurai.

The triple enactments in the year 1956, though they have made phenomenal changes, have not abrogated the basic concepts of Hindu Law. One such enactment is Act XXXII of 1956.

Prior to 1956, the father, kartha-manager or the manager of a coparcenary or Hindu joint family, can alienate the property of the minor, either his share in the coparcenary of joint Hindu family or his separate property. The said transaction is only voidable at the instance of the minor and this has not been put an end to by Act XXXII of 1956.

The Act while keeping in tact powers of natural guardian of a minor to do all acts necessary or reasonable and proper for the benefit of the minor or for the realisation, protection or benefit of the minor's estate, but circumscribes the alienation of the minor's property with the permission of the Court. The natural guardian in no case can bind the minor by a personal covenant. The alienation by the natural guardian sans Court's sanction is only voidable under Sec.8(3), at the instance of the minor or any person claiming through him. The section further restricts the sanction of the Court only to cases of necessity or for an evident advantage to the minor and in no other transaction.

The first question that confronts one is whether the permission of the court is a sine qua non for the alienation and if so whether such an alienation ipso facto becomes non est in law or void. The second question is what is the mode of avoidance of the alienation either by conduct or otherwise and does the avoidance make the transaction void either from its inception or from the time of avoidance.

The third question is whether any transferee from the minor after attaining majority steps into the shoes of the minor and can he ignore the alienation in toto. The fourth question will be whether the alienee can defend the transaction and justify it in case the minor avoids it or is avoided by any other person claiming through him?

To answer all the above questions one has to bear in mind the basic difference between a void and voidable transaction. This is best explained by Chief Justice Rajamannar and T.L. Venkatarama Iyer, J. in Appanna v. Jami Venkatappadu and others, 1953 Mad. 611, as follows: "Now the authorities have established that for this purpose there is a distinction between voidable and void transactions and that while the former class of transactions should be set aside, the latter need not be. The reason for this distinction is that in the case of a voidable transfer, the title to the properties vests in the transferee on the execution of the deed and that it can revert in the transferee only by a decree of court rescinding the transfer". In a void transaction, it does not vest title in the transferee. In an earliest case in I.L.R. 59 Mad. 687 Justice Stone has said "it is preferable to regard such an alienation as perfect unless and until it is set aside".

Because of the distinction in the concept, the legislature has thought fit to make the transaction sans court's permission as voidable and not void in Sec.8(3) of Act XXXII of 1956. We find a different interpretation against the statute has been given in some of the judicial precedents. I will give a short resume of some of the decisions for consideration.

In Thilakam v. Radhika, (1985)1 M.L.J. 407, Justice P.R. Gokulakrishnan and Maheswaran, has held as follows: "So far as the present case is concerned, the plaintiff by her lawyer notice Ex.P-5 dated 11.2.1980 has clearly stated that the agreement Ex.D-21 is not binding on her. This is a clear repudiation and as such the agreement Ex.D-21, even assuming for the sake of argument that the same has been executed by a natural guardian is void from its inception". The case deals with the lease by the mother, who is a de facto guardian only. The learned judges follow the principles laid down in 1984 T.L.N.J. 403, which is a case of lease by the father who is the natural guardian. Perhaps the learned judges have in mind the definition of a natural guardian under Sec.6 of the Act, which lays down that after the father, the mother is the natural guardian. In this connection I would invite the readers' attention to my article reported in (1992)2 M.L.J. 12 (Journal section). A similar view has been expressed in G. Annamalai Pillai v. The District Revenue Officer, South Arcot, 1984 T.L.N.J. 403 consisting of by Justices Ramaswami and David Annusami and they have not followed the principles laid down in (1976)2 M.L.J. 243 (F.B.), wherein the learned Judges have upheld a transaction which is valid at its inception. In voidable transactions they are valid at its inception and the same has to be set aside by a judicial process.

In a recent judgment reported in (Nallathambi Gownder v. Gopalakrishna Gownder and others, (1992)1 M.L.J. 259, Justice Abdul Hadi has held as follows: "In the present case, admittedly the previous permission from court as contemplated under Sec.8(2) has not been obtained. So the plaintiff can avoid the transaction. In this context the trial court has erred in stating that in order to succeed the plaintiff has to prove that the transaction is tainted with immoral or illegal purposes or that it must be shown that there is no family necessity. The trial court has erred because no such proof by the plaintiff is necessary under the abovesaid Act". The learned Judge has further said "he could avoid the alienation in this regard by any act or conduct on his part showing his intention to avoid that following Santha v. Chennukutty, A.I.R. 1972 Ker. 71'. In the Kerala case Justice Krishna Iyer has held "when a minor is entitled to avoid a transfer effected by his guardian on the ground of absence of permission of the court it becomes a nullity on his unilateral act. He can merely avoid it by his conduct and there is no need to file a suit for avoiding the transfer". The case deals with the transfer by a mother, a de facto guardian.

If this extreme view is permitted to stay on, I would submit that an alienee will be estopped from putting forward his defence in any manner known to law to justify the transaction, which right he has under general law as laid down in the evergreen Hanumanprasad's case.

In this state of judicial thinking, the twin transactions, one excepted by Sec.8 and the transaction sans judicial permission, both are voidable and different yardstick is applied as regards its binding nature with regard to a minor. In the excepted transaction regarding a minor's undivided share in a joint family property, the alienee has a right to uphold the same and period is definitely 3 years within which a minor has to avoid the transaction on attaining majority. In the other type of transaction though voidable under the Section, is held to be void and can be avoided by the minor only by conduct and not by any other mode.

If this dichotomy is not put an end to by an authoritative pronouncement, it will cause unnecessary and endless litigation which is sought to be put an end to by the enactments and the beneficial aspects will pale into insignificance.

Late Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy

By

Mr.R.Srinivasan, Editor, M.L.J.

We record with deep regret the passing away of Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy, Senior Advocate on 9th April, 1993 at Madras. He was 77 and died after a brief illness.

It was barely two years ago that I was privileged to write a few words about our dear and most respected Senior Advocate Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy, published in our esteemed Law Journal to felicitate him on his completion of 50 years at the bar. I had the least idea then that I was to lose him within a short period. This is no occasion to dwell at length on the life of the departed soul. His life as a practising lawyer, as a Social Reformer and worker, as a Philanthropist entertaining conversationalist and sociable person is well known to all the members of the bar and the bench.

Tall and well built fair complexioned with sharp features, with a voice that commanded respect and bearing that instilled deference the Late Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy will be remembered as one of the most impressive and popular Advocate. Almost everything about him, his stately deportment, measured steps steady and resonant voice, full and complacent posture, measured conversation, sharp and pleasant look made him a respectable Senior Advocate and a gentleman inch by inch. Himself being meticulous in every detail he was thorough in his preparation of cases and effective in his submissions. He kept up the high tradition of the bar both in advocacy and professional conduct. Whoever was the judge and whichever was the Bench Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy never hesitated to make his submissions.

Looking back on the years it could be said without any hesitation that Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy had many friends and no enemies. He had a winning smile on his face. Spotlessly clean and meticulous in his dress, distinctive air of care-free life, everything about Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy had a style of its own which was admired by everybody. A gentleman from top to toe he envied nobody and his pleasant manners were liked by everyone.

Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy has earned a high place among the lawyers of this country and his name would be long remembered by the posterity. In recent years, the profession of law was his all absorbing interest. The reported cases in the volumes of the Law Reports would bear ample testimony of to Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy's ability as a Lawyer. He was well versed in every branch of law though Labour Law was his favourite. He was held in high esteem by both the Junior and Senior members of the bar. He was the President of both Madras Advocates' Association and the Bar Association.

Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy had a great liking for Carnatic Music and was actively connected with the Music Academy, Lady Sivaswamy Iyer's Girls' Higher Secondary School, Mylapore Club, Dr.Venkataraman's Sathabishakem Trust are the other Institutions with which Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy was closely knit. Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy was pious, religious and god fearing.

A great and good man who lived a rich, full and useful life has now left us. His death has created a void which cannot be filled up. I conclude by quoting Thiruvalluvar, the great Saint "சென்றவர் புகழ் மறையா" Mr.M.R.Narayanaswamy lived with fame as an ideal man.

May his soul rest in peace!

Certificate of Registration of Trade Mark Ist Purport and Import and What it is not?

By

Shri T.A.Varadarajan, M.A., B.L., D.P.P.A., Advocate, Madurai-625 001. (TAMIL NADU).

1. Laws, relating to Trade and Merchandise Marks, Copy Right, Patents and Designs, Video Piracy etc., have in Modern times assumed much importance.

2. Trade Marks Law, as enacted in Indian Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 (Central Act 43 of 1958) totalling 136 sections, with its schedule of amendments upto date, rules and notifications, does not exhaust all the situations that confront the traders in their day to day commercial activities. Gaps and Lacunae in it are getting resolved by our Superior Courts from time to time.

3. In the above backdrop, I am now confining to a close discussion of the scope and utility of the certificate of Registration of Trade Marks issued by the Trade Mark Registry, popularly known as, T.M.R., in commercial circles and what it connotes to its holder and the trading public.

4. I have brought out the essence of the contents of the T.M.R. certificate, and also ventured to disabuse some misapprehensions entertained by a few among business and legal circles in regard to some particulars found therein.

5. T.M.R. is concerned only with the recording in its certificate, of a particular symbol, or label, or name, or pictorial representation and the like, (any one or more of them), connected with the particular class of Trade goods, or wares alone, as the Trade Mark annexed to the certificate, Vis-a-Vis, its or their owner, or Proprietor, described therein acquiring reputation for the above annexed symbol/Trade Mark associated with their goods in the market.

6. T.M.R. assigns also a particular Number or Numbers to that symbol/Trade Mark, and registers the same in its Certificate in the name or names of the applicants who are entitled to trade with or under that, symbol/Trade Mark supported by the Trade Mark Number. Thus, the T.M.R. Certificate, is solely and only concerned with the descriptive symbol/Trade Mark alone annexed thereto, and the persons entitled to use it in the market.

7. There is no difference, in the import of the certificate, as set out above be it one issued generally and usually under Sec.23(2) read with Rule 65(1) or under Sec.24, where the applicants declare in terms of their joint ownership of their trade assets.

8. Secs.29(2) and 106 and other Provisions in the Act deal with the delinquent trader (new or old) who offends the holders of the certificates issued by T.M.R. and protects them (holders) with grant of injunctions (Preventive and mandatory) damages, and other reliefs by civil courts (mostly District Courts-Vide Sec.105 of the Act.)

9. The mere fact, that the T.M.R. Certificate, after the enumeration of the name, or names, entitled to trade with the Trade Mark contains the address of the said persons or holders of the certificate, it does not suggest or signify, that those persons are conditioned by the T.M.R., to carry on their business only at that place along and no where else in the whole world.

10. Such an interpretation, is obnoxious and violative to the freedom of trade guaranteed to every Indian Citizen under Art.19(g) of the Constitution. Further it offends the basic common sense of every Indian trader not to better himself over his place of commercial activity. It is also neither fair nor proper, to attribute such a stringent invalid stipulation to the Trade Mark registry which is headed and manned by the Registrar, Deputy and Assistant Registrars, who all are equipped with legal and judicial talent and experience.

11. Last but not least, is the N.B. found in the end of the T.M.R. certificate itself to the effect.

"Upon any change of ownership of the Trade Mark, or change in address of the principal place of business, or address for service in India, application should at once be made to register the change."

The above proclaims clearly that the insertion of the address in the certificate, is only an official routine of the place of the business, of the applicants as found in their petition. It has no other significance of any substantial nature at all.

12. It is unfortunate that such a wild and untenable meaning should have been ventilated over the place or address of the business found in the T.M.R. certificate by Commercial folk in their Trade Mark bulletin etc. The certificate concerns and confines itself only, to the symbol/Trade Mark with its number, and the names of person entitled to trade with that Mark; Any or all other particulars, if any, found in the certificate will be only superfluous and non-est in law and has no legal validity at all.

Can a Statutory Right be Nullified by Acquiescence or Waiver?

By

R.Govindarajan, B.A., B.L., Advocate,
Madurai-625 001.

It is well settled that a statutory right cannot be given up either by acquiescence or waiver. It is also well settled that there is no estoppel against statute. While so we have before us the decision of the Apex Court reported in (1992)1 S.C.C. 370, presided over by Chief Justice Renganatha Mishra and Justice T.K.Thommen. The facts briefly stated is that a landlord files an application on the ground of wilful default and change of user of the residential building into non-residential without his written consent. The tenant has lost throughout and came before the Apex Court, where he succeeds. The court while holding there is no wilful default, has allowed the appeal on the ground of acquiescence on the part of the landlord regarding change of user. In para 6 of the judgment the following is the crisp utterance that is found. "Counsel for the respondent does not dispute that from 1973 there has been a change of user. The petition for eviction is in 1980. It follows that for seven years no objection was raised for change of user and for the first time when eviction was sought, conversion was made the second ground. In these circumstances, we are prepared to accept the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant that the landlord accepted the user to be also other than residential". I have taken this crisp observation of the Apex Court for discussion. Can this be taken as a correct statement of law as it goes against the statute?

A look at the Sec.10(2)(ii) of the Tamil Nadu Rent Control Act, under which the appeal has arisen will be useful in appreciating my view in the matter. The section reads as follows: That the tenant has after 23.10.1945, without the written consent of the landlord (a) transfer his right under the lease or sublet the entire building or any portion thereof if the lease does not confer on him any right to do so or (b) used the building for purpose other than that for which it was leased. If the above conditions are satisfied the landlord is entitled to eviction. From that it is clear that the "written consent of the landlord" is a sine qua non for subletting and change of user. This is a statutory right in the landlord by virtue of the statute. This right cannot be denied to the landlord even if he had knowledge of the subletting or change of user and the non-exercise of this right by the landlord for some length of time, will not disentitle him to get the order of eviction. The mandatory nature of the section prohibits the tenant from pleading waiver, acquiescence or estoppel.

Viewed as above, the decision of the Apex Court is not sound and cannot be acted upon by the subordinate judiciary. I am going to place before the readers several judgments of the Apex Court itself laying down a contrary view and also the dictum of the Madras High Court construing Sec.10(2)(ii) of the Tamil Nadu Rent Control Act.

In A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 689, while dealing with the Bombay Rent Act, the Apex Court has held "The Bombay Rent Act prohibits subletting and so any agreement permitting subletting would be void and the plea of waiver cannot be raised because as a result of giving effect to that plea the court would be enforcing an illegal agreement and this contravenes the statutory provision of Sec.15 based on public policy and produce the very result which the statute prohibits and makes illegal. By enforcing the contract, the consequence will be the enforcement of an illegality and infraction of a statutory provision which cannot be condoned by any conduct or agreement of parties. A stipulation of the strongest form to waive the objection would be tainted with the vice of the original contract and void for the same reason. Wherever the contamination reaches, it destroys”.

In a case which arose under the Delhi Rent Control Act and came, before the Apex Court in (1988) 1 S.C.C. 70, it has been held “though every one has a right to waive and agree to waive the advantage of a law made solely for the benefit and protection of the individual in his individual capacity, but here there was no case of waiver. Moreover, in view of the statutory requirement, which is in public interest there cannot be any question of waiver of a right dealing with the rights of the tenants or the landlord”. In that case, the learned Judges followed what has been laid down in A.I.R. 1964 S.C. 1305 at 1312 as follows: “mere knowledge of the landlord that a person other than the tenant is in possession does not lead to the inference that he had knowledge of the subletting”. In (1990) 1 S.C.C. 169, Justices G.M.Sharma and V.Ramaswami has held, “the mere permission or acquiescence will not do”. “The words used in the section are “without obtaining the consent in writing of the landlord”. If the words were “without consent of the landlord”, it might mean without consent express or implied and in that sense question of waiver may arise. The question of implied consent will not arise, if the consent is to be in writing”. In (1991) 1 S.C.C. 422, Justices B.C.Ray and R.M.Sahai have held a similar view following several prior decisions of the Apex Court. All the cases referred to above arose under the Rent Control enactments of different states containing the same provision as in the Tamil Nadu Act. It will be useful to refer to the observation of R.S.Pathak and O.Chinnappa Reddi, JJ., in (1980) 4 S.C.C. 88, wherein they have opined “if a State Rent Act makes provision for eviction on certain specified grounds, eviction cannot be refused on the basis of right conferred by the T.P. Act.”.

Now I will also refer to some of the decisions of the Madras High Court, which will also lay down the law in consonance with that of the Apex Court referred to above.

In an earliest case reported in (1956) 2 M.L.J. 282, Justice Somasundaram has held “merely because a landlord had knowledge of the subletting by the tenant, he cannot be deemed to have given any consent or implied permission. Nor could it be said that he is estopped from availing himself of the provisions of the Act. The act curtails and modifies the ordinary law and has to be construed strictly. Merely because the act is intended to benefit the tenants, there is no reason that every section must be construed in favour of the tenant and against the landlord”. The learned Judge has further held following 60 M.L.J. 441 (P.C.), “there is also the well known proposition that there can be no estoppel against the provision of a statute”. In (1978) 1 M.L.J. 536: 91 L.W. 231, Justice Nainar Sundaram, held a similar view following the dictum of Justice Ramamoorthy in (1964) 2 M.L.J. 281: 77 L.W. 503. In 1973 T.L.N.J. 70, it has been held “it has to be observed that there is no estoppel against the provisions of a statute and there cannot be acquiescence by the landlord which could override the plain requirements of the statute”. In 1978 T.L.N.J. 538, it has been held, “a written consent cannot have a substitute or an equation”. “So long as such a written consent is not there, it would be difficult to find that, such a prescription in the act can be substituted by long user and acquiescence by the landlord”. The view of the Andhra Pradesh High Court is seen in A.I.R. 1985 A.P. 38, “mere oral consent or waiver is not a substitute for the written consent of the landlord to avoid eviction on the ground of subletting. The section clearly states that a tenant will be liable to be evicted if he sublets the premises without the written consent of the landlord”. In an earlier judgment reported in A.I.R. 1972 A.P. 335, Justice Parthasarathi, has opined “A breach of covenant in regard to the user of the premises is a continuing breach. If a landlord takes no exception for the changed user but acquiesces in the breach, it would not constitute an irrevocable sanction to the changed user at a later period or for all times to come”. The Bombay view is expressed by Justice Jahagirdhar in A.I.R. 1980 Bom. 270, as follows: “The concept arising under the general law including provisions under Sec.111, T.P.Act are not relevant for working out the rights and liabilities of the parties under the Bombay Rent Act. The rights and obligations of the landlord and tenant must be found within the four corners of the Rent Acts. The acquiescence or waiver does not save the tenant from the decree of eviction if he used the premises for a purpose other than that for which it was let”.

When such judicial dictum galore with diametrically opposite view, the judgment of the Apex Court under review will place the subordinate judiciary in a dilemma to follow it. This crisp decision sans reasoning and devoid of any reference to the earlier view of the Apex Court noticed above requires reconsideration, so that this kind of volatile judicial thinking is put an end to.

THE MADRAS LAW JOURNAL

I]

MARCH OF LAW

[1993

MARCH OF LAW - 1992

Introduction: Law must be stable and yet it cannot stand still (Roscoe Pound Interpretation Legal History Page 1). It must march on. It ought to give answers which everywhere fit the facts to be a glare and be reasonable certain and predictable. Yet it often appears arbitrary. (Prof. H.S. Lawson Hanlegn Lecturers third series). Law has necessity to bear many burdens of human life. Law making is exclusively the function of the Legislature. Judicial legislation is interstitial but nevertheless appreciable. Law expands and grows through interpretation. Interpretation can be said to accelerate the development of law. No doubt the function of the Judges is to interpret the laws. But interpretation must be done in such way that by that process the settled laws should not be unsettled or lead to absurdity. By interpretation it can be described as law broadening from precedent to precedent. The pace and degree of the broadening of law depends largely on the psychology and outlook of the judge dealing with particular fact situations. There can be no precedent on questions of fact. A case is decided on its own facts, but when the facts materially vary the law selectively shifts its focus.

Time was when the apex courts had come to be looked upon as infallible and their statements of law as final. According to justice S.M.N. Raina (Law Judges and justice P.66) judges are of two kinds constructive judges and liberal judges. A constructive Judge takes the law as it stands and prefers to follow the beaten track. To him justice is merely a synonym for what is lawful, and therefore he assumes that justice automatically follows when a case is disposed of in one of the ways known to law. There is no doubt justice according to law but it is technical justice. A liberal Judge too has to do justice according to law but he finds a way to mitigate the rigour of the law so as to avoid hardship to a party and thus strives to do substantial Justice. Thus while a constructive Judge is merely concerned with deciding a case according to law, but a liberal judge in his just for justice finds ways and means to do substantial justice taking care his decision does not go against the existing law. Apart from anxiety to do "substantial Justice" the need for rationalisation may also motivate interpretation of law whether judicial activism amounts to legislation or not, it is to be noted that the Supreme Court has been striving during the last three or four years through judicial process to transform and reorient legal ideology and to make law serve social justice. Since it is now generally held that judicial process must even be linked with social change the outlook in regard to precedents has necessarily to change. While respect for precedents affords a certain amount of certainty, its weight should not become unduly burdensome and shall not have a crushing effect. The discipline of precedent should not become a mere tyranny and loyalty should not degenerate into perpetuating blindly what a court believes to be a bad or out worn law.

The following review considers the march of law through decisions rendered chiefly by our High Court during the year 1992-under some of the relatively more important titles of law.

Civil Procedure Code: In Sameera Rasheed by her power Agent M. Abdul Rasheed v. Amina Bai, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 420, it is held Sec.50 of the Civil Procedure Code uses the word 'may'. The option is given to the decree holder to file an application before the court which passed the decree. But nothing prevents him from filing an application before the executing court to implead the legal representative as parties to the execution proceedings as he is concerned only with the execution of the decree. In Kamalam v. Gopal, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 292, it is held that the order made in an appeal against an order is unsustainable as it is one allowing an appeal at the admission stage without any notice to the respondents or giving an opportunity to him to be heard. Such an order cannot bind the respondents. In Natesan Pillai v. Sethumani Ammal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 8, it is again stated that a question of law relating to jurisdiction of court can be raised in appeal though not taken in a trial court. While dealing with the scope and applicability of Sec.100, Civil Procedure Code, the court has stated in S.Raju Pillai v. Paramasivam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 467, that the lower appellate court is final court and even if there is any grievous error committed by the lower appellate court it is not open to the High Court in second appeal to interfere with the findings of fact arrived at by the lower appellate court. It is stated in S.P.Manickavasagam v. Special Tahsildar, (L.A.) Aruppukottai, (1992)1 M.L.J. 2, that the court had no jurisdiction to suo moto pass an order cancelling the direction to issue cheque. The direction to issue cheque was made pursuant to the order of this Court permitting the petitioner to withdraw the amount. If the petitioner advocate has got a claim as against the petitioner he should have taken appropriate orders preventing the petitioner from withdrawing the amount. In the absence of such orders, it is not open to the court to pass a suo moto order of cancellation of the direction made earlier to issue cheque. In Smt.Ayyanmal v. Vellappa Gounder, (1992)1 M.L.J. 208, it is held that unless sufficient cause is shown for non-appearance on the date on which the suit is fixed for hearing, there will be no jurisdiction or justification for the trial court to set aside the ex parte decree. If this principle is applied, the court below has no jurisdiction to condone the delay of 104 days in seeking to set aside the order of dismissal for default. The court below completely ignored the provisions of O.9, Rule 9, Civil Procedure Code and proceeded to dispose of the application before it on wrong notions of principle of natural justice. When the court below overlooked the express provision of law by which it is bound, the High Court is certainly entitled to interfere under Sec.115, Civil Procedure Code. It is held in Lakshmikantam v. Thiruvengadam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 297, that no party can dispossess the other party during the pendency of the suit and claim an advantage on the face of it. When the plaintiffs were in possession of the suit property on the date of filing of the suit and prayed for injunction for protecting their lawful possession and interim injunction has been granted, it is not open the other side to forcibly enter into possession of the suit property and then when the plaintiffs come forward with the absolute prayer for recovery of possession resist it stating that the petitioners are not cultivating tenants of the property. Once they are proved to be lessees having been in possession of the land under a contractual lease or as cultivating tenants, their possession as on the date of suit is bound to be protected and if during the pendency of the suit, the possession was forcibly removed, even without an amended prayer for recovery of possession. By virtue of the inherent powers of the court the court is competent and the court is obliged to put back the parties in their original possession by restoring possession to the plaintiffs and court should not allow anybody to take the law in his own hands and dispossess the plaintiff when the court is seized of the matter. In Ramachandran v. Vellianimal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 188, it is held that the suit by one co-owner can certainly be maintained for ejecting them and recovering possession. The suit for recovery of possession was only for the benefit of all co-owners in the event of there being other co-owners. The position of law is also well settled that one of several co-owners can maintain an action in ejectment against a trespasser without joining the other co-owners as parties to the action. The court has observed in C.M.S.Mohammed Jaffar v. C.M.A.Mohammed Ibrahim, (1992)1 M.L.J. 405, that the first court rightly pointed out that in the absence of any details or particulars of the alleged coercion, undue influence and fraud as required under O.6, Rule 4, Civil Procedure Code in the pleadings the defendants were not called upon by the pleadings to meet any case of the alleged fraud, undue influence and coercion and that the plaintiffs cannot now be allowed to raise such plea at this belated stage. This view of the first court appears to be quite correct on the basis of the earlier decision on this point. It is held in Jayakanthi Rathinasabapathy v. G.S.D.Prasad, (1992)1 M.L.J. 565, it cannot be stated in the case on hand, but the amendment sought for and allowed by the court below, introduced any cause of action and all that the plaintiff sought to do was to complete the cause of action for specific performance for which relief he had already prayed for and have no question of causing any injustice to the first defendant on that account would arise. It is stated in Sumitra Bai v. V.G. Shyamasundar Sah, (1992)1 M.L.J. 595, that O.9, Rule 13, Civil Procedure Code contemplates that if a party is prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the court shall make an order setting aside the decree as against him upon such terms as to costs. That section does not contemplate the conduct of the party or of the advocate previously appeared for him when the party was called upon to answer as to how he was prevented from appearing before the court by giving sufficient cause, the court has to restore the application upon such terms and costs only and nothing else. The court has held in Sainab Bibi v. Syed Bhaudeon Sahib, (1992)1 M.L.J. 446, a share of income from the properties which is due to a co-sharer cannot be treated as mesne profits. It is really a part of the divisible properties. When the petitioner seeks to execute a decree and realise the amount, there is no necessity to attach the properties allotted to the share of the accounting party. It is automatically a charge over the property which can be allotted to the accounting party. Hence the decree can be executed straightway for realising the amount by bringing to the properties which are allotted to the accounting party under the decree. The court below is in error in dismissing the petition for execution on the ground that no attachment had been prayed for by the petitioner. In Balasubramaniam v. A. Mariammal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 271, the court has stated that it is seen from O.43, Rule 1(j) of the Code of Civil Procedure that an order under Rule 72 or Rule 92 of O.21, Code of Civil Procedure setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale, is made appealable. In this case, the order is one of rejection of the application even at the threshold. That would, certainly, amount in law to refusal though it is one of rejection in form. The rule does not refer to 'dismissal' or 'rejection'. Hence the expression refusing to set aside the 'sale' would cover the rejection of the application without numbering the case and taking it on file. Further, it is seen that though the application was not numbered formally, both sides were heard by the court below. Even when the application was filed, a copy was served on the advocate for the first respondent decree-holder who made an endorsement acknowledging receipt of copy and prayed for time to file counter. The court passed the order after hearing both sides. Hence, there is no substance in the contention that the application not having been numbered by the court below the order passed by the court below is a revisable one and not appealable under O.43, Rule 1(j) of the Code of Civil Procedure. In Jubodubai v. Lakshmi Ammal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 479, it is stated that O.21, Rule 98 contemplates an adjudication of the questions referred to the Rule 101, Civil Procedure Code unless an order amounts to an adjudication it cannot be treated as a decree and no appeal can be filed against it. In the present case, the order of dismissal is only on the footing that the petitioners counsel reported no real evidence. It is not an order in any sense or the terms within the meaning of O.21, Rule 98, Civil Procedure Code. Hence it has to be treated only as a closure of the application for statistical purpose. By filing the present application for removal of obstruction the decree-holders are only reminding the executing court of its duty to adjudicate the question and decide the matter one way or the other. It is really, in effect an application for revival of the earlier application and continuation of the same in the eye of law. The present application for removal of obstruction is maintainable. In Kalaiyaran v. Gnanambal Achi, (1992)1 M.L.J. 425, while considering the scope and applicability of O.33, Rule 15-A of the Code introduced in 1976 certainly enables the court while rejecting the application, to grant time to the applicant to pay the requisite court-fee within such time as may be fixed by the court and upon payment of the cost of the application. The expression 'appears' occurring in clause (d-1) inserted in the State of Tamil Nadu in O.33, Rule 5 of the Code, clearly indicates that the enquiry as to the bar of limitation is a limited one and not a final one. Equally so, the language of clause (f) or O.33, Rule 5 of the Code bears out that the enquiry and finding are only prima facie and not conclusive. In T. Srinanga Nachiyar v. G.V. Srinivasa Naicker, (1992)1 M.L.J. 449, it is held that the relief of injunction is an equitable remedy and the person who seeks the same must come to court with clean hands. He who seeks equity must do equity. The Bench has held in K.Appa Rao (died) v. State Bank of India, Hyderabad, (1992)2 M.L.J. 15, Sec.34 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that in so far as the decree is for payment of money the court may, in the decree order interest at such rate as the court from the date of the suit to the date of the decree, in addition to any interest adjudged on such principal sum for any period prior to the institution of the suit with further interest at such rate and exceeding six per cent as the court deems reasonable on such principal sums from the date of the decree to the date of payment or to such as to earlier date as the court thinks fit, provided that where the liability in relation to the sum so adjudged had arisen out of a commercial transaction the rate of such further interest may exceed six per cent per annum, but shall not exceed the contractual rate of interest or where there is no contractual rate of interest, the rate at which moneys are lent or advanced by nationalised banks in relation to commercial transactions. On the question of res judicata in Ambiah v. Rev.J.George Robinson, (1992)2 M.L.J. 38, it is stated that once the court has found that the suit was incompetent for defect of want of leave under Sec.92, Civil Procedure Code the court ought not to have considered the other issues in the suit and instead it should have rejected the plaint. Therefore, the findings given on other issues have to be taken as no findings at all and as such they cannot operate as res judicata in the present suit against the defendants. While considering the scope and applicability of O.21, Rules 64, 66 and 90, it is stated in P.L.V.Giri v. A.Subramanian, (1992)2 M.L.J. 75, that the so-called mis-description of the property as well as bringing more extent of property than what is required for purposes of satisfying the decree, to say, offending respectively. Rules 64 and 66 of O.21, Civil Procedure Code cannot at all be construed as vitiating or nullifying circumstances rendering the sale itself invalid and if at all such factors can be termed as irregularities which would be taken into consideration in an application filed under O.21, Rule 90, Civil Procedure Code. In G.Swaminatha Mudaliar v. The Land Acquisition Officer-cum-Revenue Divisional Offi- cer, Tirunelveli, (1992)2 M.L.J. 203, it is held when the claimants are entitled to interest on compensation awarded that interest must be directed to be paid to them in the order of the court. And if there is no such direction that will be indeed an accidental slip or omission. Therefore, it clearly comes within the purview of Sec.152, Civil Procedure Code. Even otherwise, if for any reason it is to be held that Sec.152, Civil Procedure Code is not attracted, even then the court is bound to order payment of interest atleast under Sec.151, Civil Procedure Code. In Ramachandran v. Janardhanam, (1992)2 M.L.J. 214, it is held that O.31, Rule 2(1) is mandatory and it says that documents shall not be received unless good cause is shown to the satisfaction of the court for the non-production thereof at an early stage. A similar rule is found in O.7, Rule 18, Civil Procedure Code. Under that Rule a document which ought to be produced in court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented or to be entered in the list to be added or annexed to the plaint and which is not produced or entered accordingly shall not, without the leave of the court, be received in evidence on behalf of the plaintiff at the hearing of the suit. Thus, the Code of Civil Procedure compels the party to file a list of documents either along with the plaint or at an early stage within the time prescribed therefor. It is brought to the notice of the court that in spite of the Rules, courts are taking it for granted that as and when documents are produced before the court before the conclusion of the trial, then can be taken on file. The courts should desist from doing so. The courts should Keep in mind the mandatory rules of the Code of Civil Procedure and act strictly. It is held in Sathya Engineering Contractors, Madurai v. S.Nachammal, (1992)2 M.L.J. 221, a Commissioner's report can be accepted and acted upon unless it appears to the court that the Commissioner shall be examined. In Nallathambi Udayar (died) v. Jayaraman, (1992)2 M.L.J. 362, it is held that after the 1976 amendment, an order passed under Sec.47, Civil Procedure Code is not a decree and is appealable only if it falls under Sec.104(1), Civil Procedure Code. Otherwise only a revision would lie. However, on that ground along an order under O.22, Rule 5, Civil Procedure Code cannot be equated with an order under Sec.47(3), Civil Procedure Code. At the time when the fruit of any decree has to be given to the decree-holder, it has necessarily to be conclusively determined whether any party claiming to be the representative of the decree-holder is entitled to claim the fruit of the decree. Therefore, the determination under Sec.47(3), Civil Procedure Code is a conclusive one and cannot be called a summary determination as it is a case in enquiry under O.22, Rule 5, Civil Procedure Code. Further it must be noted the term used in Sec.47(3), Civil Procedure Code is 'representative' of a party while the term used in O.22, Rule 5, Civil Procedure Code is 'legal representative' of a deceased plaintiff or a deceased defendant. The latter term legal representative has been given a specific definition in the Civil Procedure Code. While it is not so in the case of the term 'representative'. The term 'legal representative' is defined under Sec.2(11), Civil Procedure Code. According to the said definition, the said term means a person who in law represents the estate of a deceased person and includes any person who intermediates with the estate of the deceased. Thus, even a person who intermediates with the estate of the deceased comes under the definition. So when a party to a proceeding dies, even a person who intermeddles with the estate of the deceased party could be brought on record as legal representative for proceeding further without allowing it to be abated. But this legal position cannot be attributed to the term 'representative' used in Sec.47(3), Civil Procedure Code. The court has stated in Kuttiappa Gounder v. P.M.Ranagasami, (1992)2 M.L.J. 362, that under O.5, Rule 15, C.P.C., if the defendant is absent from his residence at the time when the service of summons is sought to be effected on him, the process server must be satisfied, (1) that there is likelihood of the defendant being found at the residence within a reasonable time, and (ii) he has no agent empowered to accept the service of summons on his behalf and in that event, service may be made on any adult member of the family, whether male or female, who is residing with him. O.5, Rule 17 is to the effect that when the defendant or his agent refuses to sign the acknowledgment or where the serving officer after using all due and reasonable diligence cannot find the defendant who is absent from his residence and there is no likelihood of his being found at the residence within a reasonable time and if there is no agent or other person to receive the summons, the serving officer shall affix a copy of the summons on the outer door or some other conspicuous part of the house, in which the defendant ordinarily resides and shall then return the original to the court with report endorsed thereon or annexed thereto stating that he has so affixed the copy, the circumstances under which he did so and, the name and address of the person by whom the house was identified and in whose presence the copy was affixed. In V.Ganthimathi v. The Commissioner, Pudukottai Municipality, Pudukottai, (1992)2 M.L.J. 488, under the amended provision of Sec.115 of the Code of Civil Procedure, revisional jurisdiction can be invoked, only if the order under revision amounts to a 'case decided'. The clauses (a) to (d) of the said section set out the circumstances in which the jurisdiction is to be exercised. The two parts of the section are not only separate and distinct but have entirely different ambit and rule. The first part enumerates the circumstances in which the jurisdiction may be exercised. Although for invoking the revisional jurisdiction the condition prescribed in the first of the section would suffice, yet for exercising the jurisdiction, in addition to the satisfaction of the condition laid in first part, the attraction of any one or more of clauses (a) to (d) is also required. The term 'case decided' is not confined to the decision of the case as a whole but would also include part of a case which decides a substantial question in controversy between the parties. The touchstone, therefore, would be to find out if the order under revision has determined some right or claim between the parties which is legally enforceable. If it has, it would be a case decided and jurisdiction under Sec.115, Civil Procedure Code may be invoked and not otherwise.

(to be continued)

In Kuttiappa Gounder v. P.M.Rangasami, (1992)2 M.L.J. 362, while discussing the question of service of summons it is held that under O.5, Rule 15, Civil Procedure Code, if the defendant is absent from his residence at the time when the service of summons is sought to be effected on him, the process server must be satisfied, (1) that there is likelihood of the defendant being found at the residence within a reasonable time, and (ii) he has no agent empowered to accept the service of summons on his behalf and in that event, service may be made on any adult member of the family, whether male or female, who is residing with him. O.5, Rule 17 is to the effect that when the defendant or his agent refuses to sign the acknowledgment or where the serving officer after using all due and reasonable diligence cannot find the defendant who is absent from his residence and there is no likelihood of his being found at the residence within a reasonable time and if there is no agent or other person to receive the summons, the serving officer shall affix a copy of the summons on the outer door or some other conspicuous part of the house, in which the defendant ordinarily resides and shall then return the original to the court with report endorsed therein or annexed thereto stating that he has affixed the copy, the circumstances under which he did so and, the name and address of the person by whom the house was identified and in whose presence the copy was affixed. In H.M. Mahesh, (1992)2 M.L.J. 444, it is held that Sec.15, Civil Procedure Code lays down that a suit shall be filed in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try the same. But this section enacts a rule of procedure and if does not affect the jurisdiction of a Court of a higher grade to try the suit entertainable by a Court of lower grade. When a suit triable by a Court of lower grade is instituted in a Court of higher grade, the latter Court is not bound to return the plaint. It is only discretionary on the part of such latter Court (i.e. to say, the Court of higher grade) either to try the suit itself or return the plaint for presentation in the Court of lower grade. Clause 12 of the Letters Patent expressly confers jurisdiction on the Original Side of this Court to try all suits other than suits of a small cause nature of the value of Rs.100 and below. Now only has this jurisdiction not been taken away by subsequent legislation but the course of subsequent legislation has recognised and proceeded on the basis that the jurisdiction of the High Court even small cause suits of the value of over Rs.100 is concurrent with that of the Small Causes Court. Thus, it is seen that Sec.15 of the Civil Procedure Code has no application to the High Courts exercising Ordinary Original Jurisdiction when there is conflict between the Original Jurisdiction of this Court and the City Civil Court constituted under the Madras City Civil Courts Act. Hence, the question as to whether Sec.15 of the Code of Civil Procedure governs Chartered High Court has to be answered in the negative. The Original Jurisdiction of this Court is derived under Clause 12 of the Letters Patent which empowered this Court in the exercise of its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction. In Yakub Rowther v. Poongavanam, (1992)2 M.L.J. 419, it is held that a decision rendered in a claim suit filed under O.21, Rule 63, where the claimant is plaintiff and the judgment-debtor is defendant or one of the defendants that decision will operate the res judicata if the requisite conditions laid down in Sec.11, Civil Procedure Code, viz., the subject matter of the suits and the issue involved for decision being the same are present. In Nachayee Ammal v. Pichaimuthu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 498, it is held that under O.21, Rule 22 of the Code of Civil Procedure the executing court shall issue a notice to the person against whom execution is applied only if the execution petition is made more than ten years after the date of the decree or it is made against the legal representative of a party to the decree or it is made against the assignee or receiver in insolvency. If the execution petition is filed within two years after the date of the decree, there is no necessity for the executing court to issue notice to the judgment-debtor. However, the Court has if appears as a matter of practice, issued a circular to the Subordinate Courts that execution shall not be granted without notice to the judgment-debtor. In V. Ganthimathi v. The Commissioner, Pudukottai Municipality, (1992)2 M.L.J. 488, it is held that under the amended provisions of Sec.115 of the Code of Civil Procedure revisional jurisdiction can be invoked only if the order under revision amounts to a 'case decided'. The clauses (a) to (d) of the said section set out the circumstances in which the jurisdiction is to be exercised. The two parts of the section are not only separate and distinct but have entirely different ambit and role. The first part prescribes the basic conditions for invoking the revisional jurisdiction while the second part enumerates the circumstances in which the jurisdiction may be exercised. Although for invoking the revisional jurisdiction the condition prescribed in the first part of the section would suffice, yet for exercising the jurisdiction, in addition to the satisfaction of the condition laid in the first part, the attraction of any one or more of Clauses (a) to (d) is also required. The term 'case decided' is not confined to the decision of the case as a whole but would also include part of a case which decides a substantial question in controversy between the parties. The touchstone therefore, would be to find out of the order under revision whether has determined some right or claim between the parties which is legally enforceable. It has, it would be a case decided and jurisdiction under S.115, Civil Procedure Code may be invoked and not otherwise. In A.P.S. Bahurdeen v. Antony, (1992)2 M.L.J. 563, it is observed that it has been accepted by the courts the permission to withdraw a suit with liberty to file a fresh suit can be granted if the suit has to fail by reason of a formal defect or a ground analogous thereto. But courts are uniform in holding that plaintiff who has failed to establish his case on merits, is not entitled to as of a right to withdraw the suit and file a fresh suit. On a reading of the two clauses in Sub-rule (3) of O.23, Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure is clear that the legislature has advisedly used a distinctly different language. While clause (a) refers to the pending suit which must fail by reason of some formal defect. Clause (b) refers to the suit to be instituted with the leave of the Court. If a matter falls under Clause (a), the Court is concerned only with the question whether the suit must fail by reason of a formal defect. On the other hand, if Clause (b) is invoked by a party, then the Court must address itself to the question whether there are sufficient grounds for allowing the party to institute a fresh suit for the same subject matter or part thereof. Hence, it is not correct to say that sufficient grounds should be read ejusdem generis with formal defect or that they should be analogous thereto. Sufficient grounds would cover a wider field and not restricted to formal defect or a similar defect. However, when the question arises before an appellate court after the adjudication of the matter on merits by one court or two courts, the test will be whether the court is justified in depriving the defendant of the benefit of a finding rendered in his favour after a full trial. It is well known that when a court grants leave to file a fresh suit on the identical cause of action, the withdrawal of suit had no existence in the eye of law. It is not available for any purpose and the parties are relegated to the same position which they occupied before the suit was brought. Hence, the Court has to consider in each case when an application is filed in the appellate stage for withdrawing the suit with liberty to file a fresh suit, whether the defendant should be drawn back to original position in which he was prior to the filing of the suit, even though he has come out successful after a full trial. Non-joinder of necessary parties is not a formal defect. Permission to withdraw a suit cannot be granted for the purpose of enabling the plaintiff to adduce fresh evidence or more evidence in a fresh suit. In Dr. Kamala Dakshinamurthi v. The Board of Trustees, (1992)2 M.L.J. 604, while considering O.1, Rule 8, Civil Procedure Code, it is held that O.1, Rule 8, Civil Procedure Code notice into a benefit, the other persons who have some interest as that of the plaintiff in the suit. The plaintiff and other applicants have mentioned in the plaint that they are having a common interest in the sense all of them have interest in the matter of allotment of plot to the notice issued on 9.9.1992. They acquired common interest by virtue of that notice. Hence, the suit is maintainable under O.1, Rule 8, Civil Procedure Code. It is stated in Duraiswami v. Munisami, (1992)2 M.L.J. 638, that once the Court declares the possession of one party and grants permanent injunction restraining the other party from interfering with such possession on the ground that the party was entitled to be in possession under Sec.53-A of the Transfer of Property Act, it is not open to the defendant in that suit to file a separate suit and claim recovery of possession. In D. Nityanandam v. M.D.S. Habeen Aysha, (1992)2 M.L.J. 640, it is held that the general rule is and this should not be lost sight of or blurred that the evidence of a witness is an action, be he or she a party or not should be given in a public court and tested by cross-examination. Inability to attend court on ground of sickness, or infirmity or detriment to the public service would justify the issue of a commission. The Court has got a discretion to relax the rule of attendance in court whether the person sought to be examined as witness resides beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court. This discretion may be exercised even if a person happens to be no other than the defendant. There can of course, be no rule of law demarcating the boundaries and the areas of the discretion to be exercised in these matters. What can however, be stated is that the Court of nisi prices must be set judicially having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the desirability of the physical presence of the witness in Court to enable is to observe his or her demeanor and not unusual fact that convenience and economy of expenses for the application may involve his opponent in great inconvenience and considerable expense.

Constitution of India: In A.Natarajan v. The Registrar of Co-operative Societies, (1992)1 M.L.J. 63, the Court has held that it is well settled that Art.226 of the Constitution makes no distinction between various kinds of writs to hold that in one case, a writ of mandamus will issue but a writ of certiorari will not issue, or in another, a writ of certiorari will issue but a writ of mandamus will not issue. All the writs, directions, orders that can be issued by this Court in exercise of its power under Art.226 of the Constitution. In Tamil Nadu Electricity Board v. N.K.Shanmugasundaram, (1992)1 M.L.J. 499, the Bench has held that though the employees of the Board are not members of the Civil Service of the State, the appellant Board is indisputably 'State; within the meaning of Art.12 of the Constitution of India and thus the action of the appellants shall answer the requirements of Arts.14 and 16 of the Constitution of India which in turn will ensure compliance with the principles of reasonableness, fairness and justness as opposed to arbitrariness and action at whimsically and capriciously. In Dravidar Kazhagam represented by the General Secretary, K.Veeramani v. The Chairman, United India Insurance Company Limited, (1992)1 M.L.J. 530, it is held that Secularism does not mean irreligion or anything anti religious. To say so is negative and neither positive nor constructive anti religious. To say is negative and neither positive nor constructive meaning of the same. Secularism merely implies "sarva dharma sambhava" that is a believer in secularism while remaining an ardent follower of his own religion looks upon all other religious as different pathways to the same goal God. Thus, in substance, it is only a modern term for the old phrase 'religious tolerance' or 'sarvamatha sammathe'; So far as the State is concerned it implies that our State does not identify itself with any particular religion. The Gayathrimantra is said to be "Shabda Brahman" and is said to appear in the Rig Veda, as the tenth mantra in the sixth sutra of the third mandala. It is considered to be all pervasive, synonymous with divinity and valued as an universal prayer which does not ask for any mercy or pardon but seeks for a clear intellect so that truth may be reflected therein without distortion. It therefore, is supposed to purify, rescue or protect the chanter who contemplates the glory of light that illuminates the three worlds or the religious experience as they are called with a prayer for final liberation through the awakening of the immate intelligence that pervades the Universe as light. As one having its origin in Vedas and Vedic times, it will be anachronistic for any one to contend that it signifies or relates to any particular religion. Gayatri Mantra is the key to Vedic wisdom. The Vedas have been in existence long before any of the present day organised religions came into being. They do not preach any religion nor are concerned with propagating religion. In R.Kanuppannan v. The Tamil Nadu Water Supply and Drainage Board, (1992)1 M.L.J. 303, it is held that it is one of fundamental principle of natural justice that merely because facts are admitted or are indisputable, it does not follow that natural justice need not be observed. The Court has stated in Tamil Nadu Markergal Sangam v. The Government of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 348, that Art.23 of the Constitution of India strikes at every form of forced labour. It prohibits begging. It also prohibits other similar forms of forced labour. The element of compulsion in forced labour need not necessarily be by reason of enforcement of contractual obligations. Social or economic compulsion, may also be the basis of forced labour. The word 'forced' used in Art.23 of the Constitution must be construed to include not only physical or legal force, but also force arising from the compulsion of economic circumstances which leave no choice or alternatives to a person in want and compels him to provide labour or service even though the remuneration received for it is less than the minimum wage. Every person who provides labour or service to another is entitled at the least, to the minimum wages and if anything less than minimum wage is paid to him he can complain of violation of his fundamental right under Art.23 and as the court to direct payment of minimum wage to him so that the breach of Art.23 may be abated. It is stated in R.Ponnusamy v. The Registrar, Anna University, (1992)1 M.L.J. 540, that it is well settled that the right under Art.16 of the Constitution of India is only to that a person should be considered for the appointment and he cannot insist that he should be appointed. The second respondent has been considered by the Selection Committee and the Selection Committee consisted of Educationists and Academicians well versed in subjects and it is not for this Court to sit in appeal to interfere with the decision of the Selection Committee with regard to the suitability of the candidate for that particular post. In educational matters, it is for the Authorities concerned to decide about the suitability of the candidate and it is for the Court sitting under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to decide such issues unless there is infringement of fundamental right and also violative of Arts.15 and 16 of the Constitution. The Madras Christian College, Madras v. The State of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 544, the Bench has stated that when the provisions is found to be constitutionally ultra vires, it is no solace to advance a theory that appeal is a remedial measure and on that ground this Court shall not look into the grievance of the petitioner founded on violation of Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. It is held by the Bench in The Appropriate Authority, Government of India v. Naresh M. Mehta, (1992)1 M.L.J. 572, that when the Supreme Court dismisses the special leave petition without assigning any reason, there may be no scope for saying that the Supreme Court has not, by such non-speaking order, affirmed the decision by accepting all the reasons given by the High Court. But where the Supreme Court gives its opinion that the conclusion reached by the High Court is correct and dismisses the special leave petition, then it cannot be said at all that the Supreme Court has not affirmed the decisions of the High Court. In R.Kannan v. The Assistant Township Administration, (1992)1 M.L.J. 214, it is stated that The Tamil Nadu Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act (XL of 1971), provides for an appeal and the petitioner has not exhausted that remedy. So the writ petition has to fail on that ground. The Bench has held in The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board Retired Officials' Association v. The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board, (1992)1 M.L.J. 481, when once it has been found that the petitioners could not be denied the reliefs on the ground of laches, there cannot be a mutilation of the reliefs on the ground of delay in the disposal of the writ petition. That will be a very harsh rule, because no litigant need be put to prejudice on account of any act of Court. When that principle is remembered there is no justification for denying the pensionary benefits. In Rajendran v. The Presiding Officer, Principal Labour Court, Madras, (1992)1 M.L.J. 551, it is stated that it is well settled that the High Court sitting under Art.226 of the Constitution is not an appellate forum as if sitting on appeal over the findings of the Labour Court. Under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, this Court's jurisdiction to interfere with the order of the Labour Court is very limited. In S.Murugesan v. Bank of Tamil Nadu Ltd., (1992)1 M.L.J. 247, the Court held that the petitioner admitted the lapses on his part unequivocally. This the petitioner had done after the enquiry was over and after the second show cause notice was given. The petitioner having found that he cannot get any order in his favour from the authorities and cannot escape from the changes had admitted to make good the loss to the first respondent-Bank and wanted time so that the first respondent-Bank can consider about the quantum of punishment. Having taken such a stand after the issue of notice with regard to the punishment, the petitioner cannot challenge the enquiry itself now and plead that there is a violation of the principles of natural justice. As such, no principle of natural justice has been violated so that this Court can interfere with the impugned order as it is settled that in orders of dismissals, the jurisdiction of this Court is very limited in the sense that the Court cannot reappraise the evidence. In Arulappa v. Union of India, (1992)1 M.L.J. 631, it is held that the prescription of a minimum cut off mark is not at all indicated in the selection procedure given in the advertisement. The learned counsel for the second respondent is also not in a position to point out any rule or regulation which gives power to the Chairman of the Board to fix the minimum cut-off mark the reason given by the respondent in the impugned order and in the counter-affidavit found selecting the petitioner cannot be sustained and the impugned order is liable to be set aside. It is held in M.Kannan v. The Director, Government (Cinchona) Department, Udhagamandalam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 196, that the question whether there is a breach of contract and whether petitioner is entitled to refund as claimed by him are all matters to be agitated in a competent civil court on a properly laid suit. No writ can be issued under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to compel the respondent for refund security deposit and earnest money deposit. On the mere fact that the respondent happens to be an officer of the State Government, it is not open to the petitioner to invoke the writ jurisdiction. The Full Bench has held in R.Kannan and another v. The Director of Sugars, (1992)1 M.L.J. 54, that the Court is of the view that a Co-operative Society is not an authority nor an instrumentality or agency of the Government to attract under Art.12 of the Constitution of India and therefore not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Art.226 of the Constitution. On the question of directive principles of State policy the Bench has in Tamil Nadu Freedom Fighters Association v. The Government of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 582, that the Courts in India found that something which is opposed to public interest cannot be claimed as a right by a citizen under Art.19 of the Constitution. The Supreme Court has said that freedom of trade, business or commerce cannot extend to freedom to indulge in crimes or to act against public interest. If such would be not the rule there may be many who would not see anything immoral in prostitution slavery or bounded labour. It is obvious that the State has to play a role by imposing reasonable restriction and if restrictions are warranted by the call of the interest of the public, court shall find it justifiable. If the State takes a reverse role and decides to revive or legalise prostitution, one may come and say that it is without the law making competence of the State Legislature and Parliament and since it is without the legislative competence courts would strike off without any demur. Once this legal position is understood it is no more in doubt, and that widespread, consumption of liquor has been noticed as an evil, it has to be conceded that anything done to encourage the production and trade in liquor will be opposed to public interest. One can understand a State taking shelter under the directive principle of the State policy. In P.Pon Kailasan v. The Secretary, Saraswathi Narayan College, (1992)2 M.L.J. 55, it is held that Sec.14(1)(c) of the Tamil Nadu Private Colleges (Regulation) Act specifies that the College Committee shall have the power to take disciplinary action against the teachers of the Private College. The said Act does not specify that such a power can be exercised by any other Authority other than the College Committee.

To be Continued

In P.Madhavan v. Binny Limited, (1992)2 M.L.J. 1, the Bench has stated that the basic rule has been settled without any antiquity that the condition for the issue of a mandamus is that there is one claiming it, a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by one against whom it is sought. The rights, privileges and the significance of the post are those discernible from the statutory provisions and the petitioner, the incumbent in the post of a Welfare Officer is certainly entitled to those statutory rights, privileges and significance and correspondingly there is a duty cast upon the respondent, the management to preserve them without abrogating them except in the manner known to law. When there is a breach of terms certainly, this Court can issue the writ of mandamus to restore those rights and privileges and repair the damage done to them. In P.Jayapal v. The Governor of Tamil Nadu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 34, the Bench has stated that the law is well settled that the High Court has the exclusive disciplinary 'control' over the subordinate judiciary, which includes proceedings against an officer departmentally, and that if the High Court, while exercising disciplinary control over the subordinate judiciary finds after a proper inquiry, that the officer is unfit to be retained in service, it shall make a recommendation to the Governor to pass the appropriate order. In view of the all pervasive control of the High Court over the subordinate judiciary, the recommendation of the High Court should always be accepted by the Governor. It was at a meeting of the Judges of the High Court that the report of the enquiry officer came to be considered and a decision was taken in their collective wisdom to make a recommendation to the Governor for termination of the services of the appellant on being satisfied that the charges of corruption had been established against him. Allegations of mala fide against the collective body of judges of the High Court are totally meaningless. The Bench has held in Dr.Alexander Educational Foundation, Tambaram v. University of Pondicherry, (1992)2 M.L.J. 97, that the factual averments in the petitioner's affidavits having been disputed in the counter-affidavits of the 1st respondent, the Court cannot go into those questions of facts in the present jurisdiction under Art.226 of the Constitution of India. In Indian Institute of Human Resources Development, represented by its Founder and Honorary Director, P.Govindarajan v. National Institute of Human Resources Development reprtd by its Proprietor S.Muthu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 168, the Bench has held that any recognised activity including establishment and administration, of an educational institution will be a business and fall under Art.19(1)(g) of the Constitution. Such activity to qualify for the right under Art.19(1)(g) must not be opposed to any public policy and must not be an act in the nature of an offence. There is yet another reason to take the view. It will always be correct to say that trade or business emanating from a contract will be a right guaranteed under Art.19(1)(g) of the Constitution. But no such right can be claimed under a void agreement such as an agreement void for uncertainty, void by way of wager, void in restraint of marriage, void in restraint of trade or void in restraint of legal proceedings etc., If, in a case, where a fraud is contemplated but not perpetrated, the Court may think that such a contract is fraudulent and shall never allow a fraud to be perpetuated. These illustrations give some insight to understand and the Court accordingly holds that the freedom under Art.19(1)(g) apart from and subject to the restrictions of law made under Article, that public policy would create and if some one is engaged in trade or business and contemplated a fraud or is regarded as immoral or opposed to public policy, he shall not have any fundamental right under Art.19(1)(g) to claim. In Dr. Shivaram Raghuvaran Singh v. The Director General of Health Services, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 216, it is held that it is settled law though the prayer asked by the petitioner cannot be given straightaway, to suit the occasion, the Court can mould the prayer. It is held in A. Periasamy v. The State of Tamil Nadu, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 229, that the writ of mandamus cannot be issued to enforce an illegal order. In K. Muthuswamy v. The Chairman, Neyveli Lignite Corporation Ltd., Neyveli, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 430, held that the writ of mandamus cannot be issued to compel the corporation to carry out the terms of the contract. It is settled law that no one can ask for mandamus without a clear legal right. In P.S. Viswanathan v. The Union of India, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 460, it is stated that there is no question issuing a mandamus striking down certain sections of a legislation nor a mandamus declaring that certain persons will be entitled to maintenance in the absence of a provision in a legislation to that effect. A writ cannot be issued in the absence or in the vacuum declaring any particular provision of law to be void or invalid. It is held by the Bench in the Society of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart, Jesus, Palayamkottai v. The State of Tamil Nadu, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 514, that if a particular provision of enacted law offends Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India, it is not possible to sustain it on a theory that it is only a temporary phrase. The Court has stated in A. Jothiv. The State of Tamil Nadu, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 525, that it is well settled that a mere bald allegations of mala fide cannot be a ground for setting aside any proceedings. The Apex Court of the land has held that on the basis of mere bald allegations of mala fides a petition under Art.226 of the Constitution cannot be entertained. It is well settled that in a petition praying that for the issue of writ of certiorari if no counter affidavit is filed then records can be produced to prove that there is compliance of Rules. The Bench has held in Thirubhuvanam Silk Handloom Weavers Co-operative Production and Sales Society Ltd. v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 260, that even a plain reading of Art.213 of the Constitution would indicate that it has got two distinct aspects one being positively objective and the other being entirely subjective. The objective and the factual aspects is that the legislature, where it is a unicameral one must not be in session and where it is a bicameral one, both the Houses of the legislature should not be in session. If the legislature is in session, the power of the Governor to issue ordinance is negative. The other aspect which is purely subjective is with regard to the existence of circumstances which necessitate the immediacy of the promulgation of the Ordinance. Clause (2) of the Article declares that the ordinance shall have the same force and effect as an act of the legislature of the State assented by the Governor. Thus it is no less an Act of Legislature than an enactment by the legislature. What this may be the scope of judicial review of such legislative action, when it is not a dispute that when the ordinance was promulgated, the legislature of the State which is unicameral one was not in session and thus this factual requirement existed. A long time of unbroken precedent that the satisfaction of the Governor General or the Government with regard to the immediacy in the Ordinance making power under the Government of India Act, 1915 and 1935 in the pre Constitution era is available saying that the satisfaction was not justiciable. In the post-Constitution era, when the Court examined such contentions, it always accepted the necessity of immediate action for promulgating an ordinance being a matter purely the subjective satisfaction of the Governor who acted with the aid and advice of the Council of Ministers in promulgating the Ordinance is beyond the judicial review and the validity of the ordinance cannot be examined on the grounds, bona fides and mala fides of the advice of the Council of Ministers or the satisfaction of the Governor. But the Court, however may examine whether in purporting the promulgate an ordinance, the executive has in sum and substance gone beyond its competence meaning the competence of the legislature and/or violated any provision in Part III of the Constitution (Fundamental Rights) or any other provision of the Constitution.

Companies Act: In D.A.Swamy v. India Meters Limited, Ambattur Estate, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 523, the Bench has held that to constitute a class members belonging to the class must form a homogeneous group with commonality of interest and those who have such common interest, thus must be found to constitute one class, whereas those whose interests of such a group have to be treated as a separate class. In L.R.M.K.Narayanan v. The Puthuthotam Estates (1943) Limited, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 253, the Company Court has held that when once a petition is validly presented, it is well open to a shareholder to ask for substitution and prosecute the proceedings even though such a shareholder by himself could not have presented a petition under Sec.397 for want of required share qualification. The court has to only consider whether the petition was a valid petition at the time of its presentation. If a valid petition has been presented any shareholder can ask for substituting himself as the petitioning creditor. It has been laid down by the Supreme Court that the validity of a petition must be judged on the facts as they were at the time of its presentation. When once there is a valid petition the shareholder who seeks to substitute himself wants to merely continue such a valid petition and such a shareholder need not hold 10 per cent of the share capital. The requirements to the share qualification is relevant and material only at the time of institution of the proceedings. Further, it is not incumbent on the court to dismiss a petition because a proceeding under Sec.397 or 398 of the Act is a representative proceeding. Even if the original petitioner does not want to continue the proceedings, the court cannot be compelled to dismiss the action. Even then it is open to the court to consider the merits of the case without dismissing the petition. It is well settled that the court has inherent powers to make such order as is necessary to do justice on the facts of the case.

Likewise the court has discretion to substitute any creditor who does not want to proceed. Rule 9 of the Company Court Rules, 1959 deals with inherent powers of court. Nothing in the said Rule can be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the inherent powers of the court to make such directions or orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the court. Rule 9 of the Company Court Rules declaring inherent powers of the court gives the court authority to transpose the other party as applicant in the interest of justice. In B.Viswanathan, Prop. Meenakshi Paper Mart v. M/s.Seshasayee Paper and Board Limited, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 232, the court has held that under Sec.434 of the Indian Companies Act the deemed inability to pay the debts will arise when a creditor to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding Rs.500 has served on the company by causing it to be delivered at its registered office a demand requiring the company to pay the sum so due and the company has for three weeks thereafter neglected to pay the sum or to secure or compound for it to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor. Unless the statutory notice is in conformity with the mandatory requirements of Sec.434(1)(a) of the Act the presumption of inability cannot be raised in the present case, the notice is addressed only to the Managing Director and not the company. The notice purporting to have been issued under Sec.434 is not only one addressed to the Managing Director, but also the pin code number given is 638007. Therefore, the statutory notice does not conform to the mandatory requirements of Sec.434(1)(a) of the Act. The consequence of the statutory notice being not in accordance with the mandatory requirements of Sec.434 of the Act is that the presumption contemplated under the said section cannot be raised against the respondent. But that does not preclude the petitioner from still proving by other evidence that the Company is unable to pay its debts. In the present case, there is no evidence at all to establish that the respondent-company is unable to pay its debts. Hence, the present petition is also liable to be dismissed on the ground that the statutory notice issued by the petitioner does not meet the requirements of Sec.434 of the Act. It is settled principle of law that the relief of winding up is a discretionary relief and the court has to find out whether winding up would be in the interest of justice and also public interest. In

S. Varadarajan, v. M/s. Venkateswara Solvent Extraction Private Limited and others, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 130, the court has held: a shareholder of a company possessing the numerical strength as required by the Act has the right to requisition an Extraordinary General Meeting. Such a shareholder cannot be restrained by injunction from calling the meeting and he is not bound to disclose the reasons for the resolutions proposed at the meeting. Nor are the reasons for the resolutions subject to judicial review. Though Sec. 169 uses the expression 'such number of members of the company in the plural yet the requirements of the provisions would be satisfied even if one member holding the requisite number of shares or voting rights makes the requisition. It is also well settled that words in the plural include the singular. Companies Act (I of 1956), Sec. 173(2) notice of meeting explanatory statement to obligation to annexe - requisitionist calling for a meeting under Sec. 169 is obliged to annexe explanatory statement to notice. The obligation to annexe explanatory statement to the notice of the meeting is only on the company, when it called for a meeting to transact special business. When requisitionists call for an extraordinary general meeting under Sec. 169 there is no obligation on the requisitionists to annexe an explanatory statement to the notice of the meeting. Companies Act (I of 1956), Sec. 284 scope and applicability. Sec. 284 of the Act deals with the removal of Directors. This section does not deal with the power of the Board of Directors to revoke the appointment of Managing Director. The Board of Directors in the meeting of the Board appoint a Managing Director. When the authority given to the Managing Director is sought to be revoked by the Directors the provisions of Sec. 284 would not come into play.

Education: In D. Jayabalan v. The Registrar, Madurai Kamaraj University, Madurai, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 7, the court has held that since the order refusing permission to the petitioner, a practising lawyer to register for Ph.D. Degree is very cryptic and no reason is given in that order it has got to be set aside as it is well settled now that an order passed administratively also should contain reasons.

Evidence Act: In N. Sabapathy and others v. Pattammal and others, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 187, the court has held that under Sec. 108 of the Indian Evidence Act a person who has not been heard of for seven years is presumed to be dead. The presumption is raised as to the fact of death at the expiry of seven years, but not to the date of death at any particular point of time during those seven years. The onus of proof of death at any particular point of time within the period of seven years lies on the party who claims a right to the establishment of which that fact is essential. In Raju Naicker v. Ananthakrishnan Naicker and others, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 163, it is held that mere attestation of a document will not create an estoppel and it should be proved that the contents of the document were known to the attestor and that other circumstances were known to him and yet he did not protest against the recitals. In Dehuxe Roadlines represented by its Partner Kushalchand B. Shah v. P.K. Palani Chetty, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 481, it is held that it is well settled proposition of law that mere production of accounts will not be sufficient to charge any person with any liability. The requirements of Sec. 34 of the Evidence Act will not be satisfied by the production of accounts simpliciter. In Terminated Full Time Temporary L.I.C. Employees' Welfare Association v. Senior Divisional Manager, Life Insurance Corporation of India Ltd., Thanjavur Division, Thanjavur, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 574, the court has held that it is too well settled that there can be no estoppel against a statute. The fact that the LIC did not object to the dispute being decided by the national tribunals on the earlier occasions would not prevent them from raising a contention that the applicability of the Industrial Disputes Act is excluded from the field occupied by Sec. 48(2C) of the Life Insurance Corporation Act.

Hindu Marriage Act: In Sumitra Bai v. V.G. Shyamsundar Sah, (1992) 1 M.L.J. 595, it has held that the legislature has not contemplated the case of an ex parte decree as in the present appeal. No provision has been made for restoring the appeal which has been dismissed for default in the Hindu Marriage Act. In the absence of any provision under Sec. 28 of the Hindu Marriage Act. Sec. 21 of the Hindu Marriage Act alone has to be followed wherein the procedure contemplated under the C.P.C., has to be taken as guidance for disposing of an appeal. Even Sec. 21 of the Hindu Marriage Act does not prohibit the provisions of C.P.C., to be followed while disposing of an appeal. What Sec.21 of the Hindu Marriage Act says is subject to the other provisions contained in this Act and to such rules as the High Court may make in this behalf all proceedings under this Act shall be regulated as far as may be by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. There is no prohibition for invoking the provisions of the C.P.C., while disposing of an appeal especially when there is no specific provisions in the Hindu Marriage Act for setting aside the ex parte decree or order. In such contingency the provisions of the C.P.C., alone has to be followed as per Sec.21 of the Hindu Marriage Act. The application has been filed by the wife under O.41, Rule 19, C.P.C., for setting the lower appellate court and this application is maintainable. In R.Anita Marginic v. R.Annadurai, (1992)2 M.L.J. 11, it has held that, when the factum of marriage is disputed evidence regarding performance of marriage according to Hindu rites must be brought on record to show that there had been a valid marriage. The registration is not the sole proof of marriage in order to become a valid marriage.

Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act: While considering the provisions of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act the Bench has held in Nallathambi Koundar v. Gopala Krishna Koundar and others, (1992)1 M.L.J. 259, the alienations are by the father of the plaintiff as guardian of the plaintiff and so Sec.8(2) and (3) of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, was attracted. Sec.8(2) says that a natural guardian shall not without the previous permission of the court alienate the property of the minor. Sec.8(3) says that any disposal of any immovable property by the natural guardian in contravention of Sec.8(2) is voidable at the instance of the minor. In the present case, admittedly the previous permission from the court has contemplated under Sec.8(2) has not been obtained. So the plaintiff can avoid the transaction. In this context the trial court has erred in stating that in order to succeed, the plaintiff has to prove that the transaction is tainted with immoral or illegal purposes or that it must be shown that there is no family necessity. The mere fact that the plaintiff has filed the suit shows that he wants to avoid the alienation. He could avoid the alienation in this regard by any act or conduct on his part showing his intention to avoid them. In Dhanasekaran v. Manoranjithammal and others, (1992)2 M.L.J. 116, the Bench has held that in Sec.12 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, adult member would include both male and female. The management spoken to in Sec.12 need not necessarily be management as kartha but would include even the management otherwise. Sec.12 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act statutorily recognises the principles which was laid down consistently by several High Courts that under the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, no guardian can be appointed of minor's undivided interest in the joint family properties where the property is under the management of an adult. Yet, it has been held even under the Guardians and Wards Act a guardian can be appointed in cases where the minor is the sole surviving co-parceners. Therefore, the case of the interest of the sole surviving co-parcener in the joint family property is treated as if it were a separate property. Therefore, Sec.8 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act would also cover the case of such an interest. In view of what is stated in Sec.8 there is an implied exclusion of minor's interest in the joint family property from it. In other words, the very content of Sec.8 suggest, though not expressly that the said section does not operate in the case of minor's undivided interest in the joint family property. But while reading Sec.11 the court does not get the impression that it cannot operate with reference to minor's interest in the joint family property. Further, Sec.6 mentions who are all natural guardians for the minor's property other than his interest in the joint family. While so when the succeeding Sec.8 deals with powers of a natural guardian, it is but natural to imply when there is nothing to indicate contra in that section that the said powers are that of a natural guardian of minor's property other than his interest in the joint family property. So Sec.11 will apply to all properties of a minor including the minor's interest in the joint family property.

Mohammedan Law - Wakf: In dealing with N.R.Abdul Azeez and others v. E.Sundaresa Chettiar and another, (1992)1 M.L.J. 535, the court has held that it is a fundamental principle of the Mohammedan Law of Wakf that when a mosque is built and consecrated by public worship it ceases to be the property of the builder and vests in God. A mosque once so consecrated cannot in any case revert to the founder and every Mohammedan has the legal right to enter it and perform devotions according to his own tenets so long as the form of worship is in accordance with the recognised rules of Mohammedan ecclesiastical law. A mosque from its very nature is indicated for worship and is open to all Muslims local and others. Once the mosque was constructed it stood dedicated to God and the owner is divested of his right title and interest in the property. The very concept of a private mosque is unknown to Muslim Law. Once the founder dedicates a particular property for the purpose of a public mosque no Muslim can be denied the right to offer prayer therein on the ground that the mere fact that in the village plan a mosque is shown to have existed in the year 1938 this disputed piece of land has become a wakf by user although there is no evidence of an express dedication and any attempt on the part of the respondents to prevent the appellants from coming over to the property and saying their prayers cannot be permitted.
[to be continued]

Industrial Disputes Act: In Rajendran v. The Presiding Officer, Principal Labour Court, Madras and another, (1992)1 M.L.J. 551, the court has held that under Sec.2(s) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, the petitioner is a workman because the said provision includes an apprentice also as a workman. Assuming for a minute that the petitioner is entitled to get any of the benefit under the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act he has not worked for the required number of days which is prescribed in any other sections of the Act. (sic.) The petitioner is not entitled to the benefits enshrined under Sec.25-F of the Industrial Disputes Act, since he has worked less than a year. Even if a workman who is retrenched under Sec.25-F of the Industrial Disputes Act to get the benefits he ought to have worked for a period of not less than a year. In Ashok Leyland Ltd., Ennore, Madras v. The Presiding Officer, II Additional Labour Court, Madras and others, (1992)1 M.L.J. 263, the court has held that the nature and scope of the proceeding under Sec.33-C(2) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, have been many times looked into and settled by the highest court in the land and the first rule is that such proceeding is generally in the nature of an execution proceeding. The said proceeding cannot take in any investigation as to the right of the claimant to relief and the corresponding liability of the opponent including the question as to whether the opponent is liable or not an adjudication upon the same. However, such proceeding where the right has been already founded can take in an investigation as to the extent of the opponent's liability if any. For the purpose of making the requisite computation under Sec.33-C(2) of Act, 1947, it may be open to the Labour Court to interpret the award of the settlement on which the right of the workman rests. This is on the principle that it is permissible for the Executing Court to interpret the decree for purpose of execution. But, this principle cannot be availed of to enlarge the right or to bring in a new right, especially when there is a dispute over the same. Here the controversy does not centre round a bare interpretation of the settlement. Larger questions are involved. One is as to the application of the amended provisions of the Act to the situation spoken to in the settlement. The other is with regard to the question as to whether the disbursement under the settlement already done could be reopened and the difference claimed. These questions in our view only parkatē the character of an industrial dispute and cannot be made to stand only at the level of a bare interpretation of the settlement; and they fall outside the purview of a proceeding under Sec.33-C(2) of the Act, 1947. In Veeramani v. The Management of Tamil Nadu Electricity Board and another, (1992)2 M.L.J. 58, the court has held that the normal rule is that award of full back wages must follow when the relief of reinstatement given and if there is going to be a departure from the normal rule compelling circumstances necessitating such departure must be established by the employer. In E.I.D. Parry (India) Ltd. and another v. The Presiding Officer, Industrial Tribunal, Madras and another, (1992)2 M.L.J. 382, the court has held that it is well established principle to interpret the provisions of a statute as harmoniously as possible so that there is no conflict of the provisions and likewise that no provision is rendered otiose. It is also well established under Sec.10(1) of the Act is purely an administrative function while referring to a dispute under Sec.10(4) of the Act the Legislature has conferred on the Government a power to issue an order under Sec.10-B of the Act by Tamil Nadu Act 36 of 1982. The insertion of Sec.10-B of the Act has not taken away the power of the tribunal under Sec.10(4) of the Act to pass an interim order. The power under Sec.10-B is given to the Government to give an interim relief to the workers including the payment of money by employer. Sub-secs.(2) and (3) of Sec.10-B stated that such an order shall cease to operate on the expiry of a period of six months from the date of the order or on the date of the award of the Labour Court or the tribunal as the case may be whichever is earlier and that the money which has been paid can be adjusted. So, if the Government while referring the dispute has passed an order under Sec.10-B of the Act giving an interim relief to the workmen then the power under Sub-sec.(4) of Sec.10 cannot be exercised by the tribunal. For instance, when the adjudication is pending before the tribunal no interim relief can be tasked for, if an order has already been passed under Sec.10-B of the Act granting some interim relief to the workmen under Sec.10-B of the Act. At the same time if no interim relief has been given while making a reference, the sole authority to decide the dispute and as a matter incidental thereto the tribunal has got the power before whom the proceeding is pending. So, the power of the Government to pass an order under Sec.10-B of the Act has to be exercised immediately after a reference made it cannot be contended that the tribunal has lost its power to grant an interim relief. Apart from that quasi judicial power under Sec.10(4) of the Act cannot be taken away by conferring an administrative power on the Government by amendment. It is also settled law that the repeal by implication is not favourable and such interpretation is not to be adopted unless it is inevitable. The presumption is always against the principle of repeal. Any reasonable construction which offers an escape from implied repeal must be considered in consonance with the true intention of the legislature. So, two provisions can co-exist side by side even though one may to some extent overlap the other.

In The Management of Tamil Nadu Mercantile Bank Ltd., represented by its Chairman, Tuticorin v. T.Venkatesan, (1992)2 M.L.J. 435, the court has held that the law that prevailed before the advent of the Industrial Disputes Act did not recognise any right in an employee to question an order of the employer falling strictly within the terms of the contract on the ground that it was a mala fide act of victimisation. It is only under the provisions of the Act such right is created by the legislature enabling the workers to challenge orders of transfer made by the management. Before the Industrial Disputes Act was passed there was no fetter on the powers of the employer to transfer an employee when the terms of contract of employment expressly provided therefor. In fact contracts of service were governed by the provisions of the Contract Act and the Specific Relief Act. It is too well-settled that a contract of personal service cannot ordinarily be specifically enforced and there were only three well recognised exceptions to the rule; viz., (i) Where a public servant is sought to be removed from service in contravention of the provisions of Art.311 of the Constitution of India, (ii) where a worker is sought to be reinstated on being dismissed under the industrial law, and (iii) where a statutory body acts in breach or violation of the mandatory provisions of the statute. The respondent having initiated proceedings under the Act is not entitled to maintain the suit in the civil court even if his case is governed by principle No.2 formulated by the Supreme Court.

Land Acquisition Act: The Full Bench has held in Seethalakshmi Ammal v. The State of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 606, that the concept of person aggrieved is not in any way different from a person interested. There can be variety of interest, and different persons may have different interest. It is also possible that a person surrendered some interests but fought for other interests, such as the owner found no tenable objection to the acquisition but questioned the adequacy of the compensation. The locus standi to question the acquisition will not be available to him. He can, however, question the quantum of compensation. Similarly a purchaser of a piece of land under acquisition who came in the picture only after the stage of objection under Sec.5-A but before the dispute of compensation was decided may enter into the proceeding and question the compensation amount but may not demand inquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act. If he purchased after the notice under Sec.9 he cannot be heard to say that he was entitled to a notice. A purchaser may have a right to raise objections to the award and or even acquisition such as the objection that the proceeding elapsed because the award was not made within the stipulated period and like but not the objections which the owner availed or had opportunity to avail under Sec.5-A of the Act. If his purchase is after the award, but before possession is taken by the Collector, he may not be heard to question the acquisition because his vendor never questioned the acquisition. These however will depend upon facts as well as law attracted to the fact situation of each case. Thus it will be a misconception to say that a purchaser shall have no locus standi.

But it will be equally misconceived if it is said that the purchaser shall have locus standi in all circumstances. In C.Narayanasami Nadar v. The Government of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 308, the Bench has held that the specification of the provisions of Sec.17(1) and (4) of the act in the notification under Sec.4(1) enables the respondents to exercise the power available under the aforesaid subsections and it has necessarily to be exercised in the instant case. The provision of Sec.17(4) relates to the dispensation of the enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act. In the instant case, it is only after the publication of the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act and after issuance of notices as contemplated, the Government have to exercise the power available under Sec.17(1) of the Act. In A.Vembuli Naicker v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 26, the Bench has held that the rule 1 of the Rules clearly prescribed that the notice should be published at convenient places the said locality and copies thereof should be fixed up in the offices of the Collector, the Tahsildar and in the nearest Police Station. It is obligatory on the part of the respondents not only to see that the notice is published in the convenient places in the said locality but also to see that copies thereof are affixed in the offices of the Collector, the Tahsildar and in the nearest police station. Notification is not suffice but notice should be published at convenient place in the locality and copies thereof should be fixed up in the offices of the Collector, the Tahsildar and in the nearest police station and that is mandatory and failure to do so vitiates the acquisition proceedings. It is clear that the procedure prescribed under Rule 1 of its rules framed under Sec.55 of the Act for giving public notice of the 4(1) notification is mandatory and failure to follow the procedure will vitiate the entire proceedings. In the instant case, except the averments that public notice of the substance of the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act publication was given in the locality by beat of tom-tom under rules on 1.10.1985 there is nothing on record to show that the respondent has allowed the prescribed procedure for giving public notice of the substance of the Notification in the locality viz., publication of the notice at convenient places in the said locality and affixing copies thereof in the offices of the Collector the Tahsildar and in the nearest police station. Having regard to the aforesaid peculiar circumstances of the case the impugned proceedings are liable to be quashed. The Full Bench has held in M.D.Govindarajan v. State of Tamil Nadu represented by its Commissioner, (1992)1 M.L.J. 470, that under the first proviso to Sec.11(1) no award shall be made under Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.11 without the previous approval of the appropriate Government may authorise in this behalf. Under the second proviso it shall be competent for the appropriate Government to direct that the Collector may make such award without such approval in such class of cases as the appropriate Government may specify. In the present case the appropriate Government is the State Government. One of the objects and reasons for introduction of the amendments appears to be that pendency of acquisition proceedings for long periods often causing hardship to the affected parties and rendering unrealistic the scale of compensation offered to them, should be avoided and as a measure for fresh assessment, the Collector is required before making the award to obtain the previous approval of the appropriate Government or any officer of that Government authorised in this behalf. The court does not think that the obtaining of the previous approval can be skipped over and as per the express language of the first proviso introduced, a breach of the requirement of obtaining previous approval will vitiate the passing of the award. By the infirmities suffered in the passing of the award in the proceedings under the Act prosecuted against the petitioners and taking note of which infirmities the awards will have to be struck down the proceedings under the Act could not be prosecuted at all against the petitioners on the basis of the notification under Sec.4(1) and the consequent declaration under Sec.6 of the Act so as to pass any fresh awards, because the amendments to Sec.6 of the introduction of Sec.11-A into the Act by Act 68 of 1984 will come into play. In The Special Tahsildar (L.A.) Marudhanadhi Reservoir Scheme, Dindigul, Madurai District v. R.Sundarsekar, (1992)1 M.L.J. 378, the Court has held that when the lands to be acquired under the Land Acquisition Act are yielding income the proper method in ascertaining the market value of those lands would be by income capitalisation method according to Chapter 15 of the Act. In C.Narayanasami Nadar v. The Government of Tamil Nadu, (1992)1 M.L.J. 307, the court has held that when the real urgency exists it is not for the court to investigate whether the materials on which the Government came to the conclusion for invocation of the urgency process while acquiring the land are sufficient. The court cannot go into the question of adequacy of material or evidence for the purpose of invocation of urgency. If the court is satisfied with reference to the existence of urgency it is sufficient. The court cannot investigate whether the materials available on record for the purpose of invocation of urgency clause are sufficient or not. In N.Subramaniam v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 239, the Bench has held that a reading of Secs.39 and 65(2) of the Tamil Nadu Town and Country Planning Act, 35 of 1972 and Secs.3(aa) and 6 of the Land Acquisition Act clearly shows that the acquisition in this case is for local authority, even though Chapter IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1971, is invoked for requiring the lands for the purpose of constructing a bus stand. But the declaration made under Sec.6 of the Land Acquisition Act clearly shows that the entire compensation of the acquisitions is paid out of the public revenue. As rightly pointed out by the learned counsel for the writ petitioners on this ground alone, the declaration made under Sec.6 of the Land Acquisition Act is bad in law. The Full Bench has held in A.Jothi v. The State of Tamil Nadu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 525, that it is well settled that the decision of the Government is final and what all the authority who holds the enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act is to do is to send a report to the Government and the report is not binding on the Government and the Government can differ from that. So the finality of the proceedings is reached only at the stage of the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act when the Government decides to proceed with the acquisition. As such there is no substance in the contention that justice because the enquiry officer overruled the objections and but the report to the Government, the Government has not applied its mind. The declaration under Sec.6 of the Act itself will show that the Government has come to the conclusion to acquire the land. It is well settled that in a petition praying for the issue of a writ of certiorari if no counter affidavit is filed then records can be produced to prove that there is compliance of Rules. In The Government of Tamil Nadu represented by its Secretary Adi Dravidar and Tribal Welfare Department, Fort St. George, Madras-9 v. S.Jayaraman, (1992)2 M.L.J. 294, the court has held that a plain reading of the words namely the last of the dates of such publication and of the giving of such public notice being hereinafter referred to as the date of publication of the notification introduced in Sec.4(1) by Central Act 68 of the 1984 will only mean that the date on which public notice of the substance of the notification is given at convenient places in the locality is to be taken as the date of publication of the Notification in Sec.4(1) of the Act for the purpose of computing the period of one year contemplated under clause (ii) of proviso to Subsec.(1) of Sec.6 of the Act. It is obvious on a plain reading of the said Amendment that for the purpose of finding out the last of the dates the publication and giving of public notice are made inseparable in the Amendment and therefore that date on which public notice of the substance of the 4(1) notification was given at the convenient places in the locality cannot be ignored for the purpose of finding out the last of the dates. There must be continuity of action in the publication of the Sec.4(1) notification in the Official Gazette and in the newspapers and also in giving public notice of the substance of the Sec.4(1) notification at convenient places in the locality and if there is any long delay and or break in the continuity in any individual case, it is open to the court to quash the acquisition proceedings. Unless there are convincing reasons such as these granted by courts or competent Authorities or otherwise, the delay between the publication of the 4(1) notification in the Official Gazette and the public notice of the substance at convenient places of the locality should not exceed two months. If it exceeds two months it is liable to be questioned.

Limitation Act: In O.N.A.Nagamani Chettiar (died) v. Shanmugham Finance Company by its Proprietor K.P.S.Shanmugam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 603, the court has held that the written statement filed in the suit itself cannot be called in aid for the purpose of Sec.19 of the Limitation Act. In Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras v. P.V.Subramania Ayyar, (since deceased), (1992)1 M.L.J. 1, it has held that

Sec.60 of the Limitation Act applies only where possession is also transferred to the alienee and in the present case, and as such in the document does not purport to make any transfer of the suit land. Art.60 does not apply and the suit is not barred by limitation. The Court has held in Ramachandran v. Valliammal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 188, that when there is no pleading before court the court ought not to have allowed any evidence to be let in by the parties. It is well settled that no amount of evidence without a plea can be looked into by the court. It is well settled that a party who is in possession of the best evidence and a party who is the best person to give evidence on certain matter should enter the witness box and place the facts before the court and in the event of his failure to do so the court is bound to draw an adverse inference against him. In M/s. The Kotsan Engineering Corporation Partnership Firm represented by its partner, Sri.Ch.Sambasiva Rao v. The General Manager, Southern Railway, Madras-600 003, (1992)1 M.L.J. 267, it has held that all that Art.137 lays down is that Limitation Act shall apply to the proceedings before the Arbitration and it has nothing to do with the application for appointment of an arbitrator. There is no provision in the Arbitration Act which lays down within which time an application for arbitration should be made. The application for arbitration in my view can only be made when the dispute arises between the parties to the agreement. Art.137 which is a residuary Article will apply to a petition under Sec.20 of the Act and hence the period will be three years from the time the right to apply accrues and the time begins to run from the period when the right to apply accrues. In this case the right to apply accrues to the plaintiff after his demand to refer the dispute to Arbitration. The court has held in Vasuki Ammal v. R.Joseph, (1992)2 M.L.J. 363, that there is not much difference between the two articles. Under Art.7 the period of limitation starts running from the date when the wages accrue due. Under Art.55 compensation for breach of contract, the period of limitation starts running from the date of the breach of contract. It has been held that in matters of employment, the employee cannot file a suit unless and until the order of dismissal is set aside by a competent authority. Otherwise any suit will be dismissed in limine on the ground that his service had been terminated and therefore the question of payment of salary would not arise. In Muniammal v. Venkitammal, (1992)2 M.L.J. 425, the court has held that Art.58 falls in para III of the schedule to the limitation act. This part deals with suits relating to declaration. Part V deals with suits relating to immovable property. Art.65 thereof reads that for possession of immovable property or any interest therein based on title, the period of limitation is twelve years. The instant suit based upon Ex.A-1 is undoubtedly a suit for interest based on title in immovable property. The period of limitation in such a situation will be 12 years and not three years.

Law Relating to Motor Vehicles Act: In New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. D.Kamalam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 41, the court has held that Sec.110-C(2A) is in the nature of a power exercisable by the Tribunal in the course of any enquiry in a proceeding before it. The requirements to be fulfilled before the Tribunal can permit the insurer to contest the claim on all or any of the grounds that are available to the person against whom the claim has been made are these: (1) the tribunal should be satisfied that there is collusion between the claimants and the person against whom the claim is made, or (2) the person against whom the claim is made has failed to contest the claim, (3) the tribunal should record reasons in writing for directing that the insurer should be made a party to the proceeding, and (4) on such impleading, the insurer shall have the right to contest the claim on all or any of the grounds that are available to the person against whom the claim has been made. In this case there was no plea of collusion between the claimants and the owner of the car put forward by the appellant. The only other circumstance is that the owner of the car though initially had filed a counter had subsequently remained ex parte. By the filing of a counter the owner of the car had contested the proceedings whatever be the nature of the contest. This cannot therefore be regarded as a case of a failure on the part of the owner of the car to contest the claim. It is true that the owner of the car which was involved in the accident had subsequently remained ex parte. The circumstances that the owner of the car remained ex parte in the proceedings before the Tribunal does not in the view of the court either by itself or even necessarily lead to the sole inference that there had been a failure to contest the claim on his part. By mere non-appearance on a particular date on which the case is posted a party may be set ex parte but that by itself would not lead to the conclusion that there was a wilful default in appearance with a view to allow the claimants to succeed in the claim petition. The power of the tribunal under Sec.110-C(2A) of the Act can be properly exercised in cases where the insurance company has not already been impleaded as a party to the proceedings but an attempt is made collusively by the claimants and the owner of the vehicle to secure an award fastening liability on the insurance company without even so much as being heard. If the insurance company is already a party to the claim petition then its defences would be restricted to the grounds specified in Sec.96(2) of the Act. If, however, the insurance company for some reasons is not yet made a party to the claim petition but yet there is an attempt by the claimants and the owner of a vehicle to mulct the insurance company with payment of compensation collusively then the insurance company which may be made liable to pay compensation as a result of the collusion between the claimant and the owner of the vehicle is enabled to be impleaded as a party to the claim petition and on being so impleaded the insurance company has the right to contest the claim as grounds available even to the owner of the vehicle apart from the defences statutorily made available under Sec.96(2) of the Act. The use of the words that the insurer shall be impleaded as a party to the proceeding contemplates cases where in the course of an enquiry the tribunal realises that as a result of collusion between the claimants and the owner of the vehicle liability for payment of compensation is sought to be fastened on the case the tribunal is enabled to exercise its power under Sec.110-C(2A) of the Act to implead the insurer as a party to the proceedings for reasons to be recorded in writing and the right of defence available to the insurer so impleaded would in vehicle against whom the claim has been made. The court is therefore of the view that the powers conferred under Sec.110-C(2A) of the Act on the tribunal is in the nature of a special power exercisable on the fulfilment of the conditions enumerated therein and not in a case like this where there was no whisper of any collusion between the claimants and the owner of the car or that there was a failure on the part of the person against whom the claim has been made to contest it. The Court has held in Mariyayee alias

Rajalakshmi Ammal v. M. Basheer, (1992) 2 M.L.J. 144, that the liability of the insurance company is purely contractual and necessarily therefore, that would depend upon the terms and conditions incorporated in the policy as well as the availability of one or more of the defences permitted to be raised by the insurance company under the provisions of the Act and on a consideration of the Tamil Nadu Motor Vehicle Rules framed under the Act. While under Sec.3(1) of the Act a person can derive a motor vehicle only if he holds an effective driving licence authorising him to drive the vehicle by Rule 39 of the Rules, that had not been made applicable to a learner. A combined reading of Sec.3(1) and (2) of the Act and Rule 39 of the Rules thus clearly establish that an effective driving licence contemplated under Sec.3(1) of the Act and a learner's licence as provided under rule 39 of the Rules are not the same. Indeed Rule 39 of the Rules creates a separate class of licence known as learner's licences distinct from the licences contemplated by Sec.3(1) of the Act. Under Sec.96(2)(b) of the Act it is open to the insurer who is made a party to a claim proceeding, to defend such an action on receipt of notice on the ground that there has been a breach of a specified condition of the policy being one of the conditions enumerated thereunder. Sec.96(2)(b)(ii) of the Act states that if there is a breach of a condition excluding driving by a named person or persons then it would be open to the insurer to defend the claim for compensation on that ground. In this case the condition in the policy excludes driving by holders of learner's licence. The provision under Sec.96(2)(b)(ii) of the Act excluding driving by a named person or persons cannot be construed only as referring to individuals A, B or C but would also be applicable to a class of persons named learners. In other words, the provision under Sec.96(2)(b)(ii) of the Act could be read as excluding driving by persons all of whom would be under one name learners. The word named cannot be literally interpreted to refer to the name of a particular person but as comprehending specified person or persons cited as instance. So construed even though the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident in this case held only a learner's licence on the date of the accident such licence had been excluded from the purview of the liability under the policy and that exclusion has been incorporated in the policy as a condition that driving by holders of a learner's licence cannot be regarded as either holding a valid driving licence or as having held a permanent driving licence. In New India Assurance Co. Tuticorin v. Meenal, (1992)2 M.L.J. 389, the court has held that it is elementary that for maintaining any action for compensation the wrong or tort committed by the owner of the vehicle must be specifically pleaded. But the claim petition does not show any wrong on the part of the owner of the car. There is absolutely no allegation in the claim petition that the owner of the vehicle has committed any tort. Not only there is no plea that the owner committed any wrong there is also no plea to that effect. Further there is also no plea that there was any master servant relationship between the owner of the car and the said driver. In such a case no vicarious liability also will arise or can be foisted on the owner. It is also well settled law that when the owner insured is not liable the insurer cannot be held liable. Taking all these into account the present claim by the claimants is absolutely misconceived and they cannot claim any compensation from the owner of the vehicle and consequently they cannot have any claim against the insurance company also. In M/s. Venkataswami Motor Service, Coimbatore v. C.K. Chinnaswamy, (1992)2 M.L.J. 463, the court has held that to establish that a certain person was a passenger it should be seen how he acted and how those responsible to carry him as a passenger behaved. It is not in doubt and it cannot be doubted that a person becomes a passenger by contract express or implied. The expression passenger ultimately refers to one who travels either in a bus and one who travels and nothing else. When the relationship of a carrier and a passenger begins with reference to the vehicle concerned must be found varying from fact to fact and case to case. A person rushing to a vehicle and attempting to board when in fact it had started moving the Court found not to be a passenger. One who had alighted from the vehicle is also not a passenger. But a passenger alighting from a vehicle may still be a passenger until he had reasonable opportunity to reach a place of safety meaning thereby that he was away from the vehicle. While there can be no hesitation in holding that insurance of a motor vehicle against third party risks is a sort of indemnity to the insured it cannot be visualised that in the garb of enjoying such indemnity a negligent carrier can escape the liability for damages. How can he be allowed to say:

look here my vehicle is insured. Therefore, I can throw out a passenger and then say that since he was found on the street he was not a passenger. It is one thing to say as to what defence is available to the insurer and quite another as to whether any person including the owner of the vehicle can saddle the insurer with something beyond its liability. The statute had fixed a limit. The insurer is obliged to act as provided thereunder. If something more than the law is said and done the insurer can always say that anything beyond the law shall not bind it. Here is a case in which the tribunal has recognised the statutory limitation and fixed the liability of the insurer strictly in accordance with law. The owner of the vehicle had appeared and suggested that it is not his but that of the insurer's liability because the victim was a third party and not a passenger. How then the insurer cannot say that the victim was not a third party and that he was a passenger. In such cases, the argument that the insurer can raise no defence other than the defence made available to it under Sec.96(2) of the 1939 Act cannot be accepted. Unlike Sec.95(2) of the 1939 Act wherein there is mention of a limit as to insurer's liability for each individual passenger etc., there is no provision in the 1988 Act imposing any such limitation. It however must be borne in mind that Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.147 of the new Act is controlled by Sub-sec.(1) thereof. It will be thus for the insured to see that there is a policy insuring against the death of or bodily injury to any passenger of a public service vehicle or against any liability which may be incurred in other cases. A public service vehicle cannot be confused with any State owned operation. It has a definite connotation under the Act and that can be gathered from the definition. Sec.2(35) has defined public service vehicle to mean any motor vehicle used or adapted to be used for the carriage of passengers for hire or reward and included a maxi cab, motor cab contract carriage and stage carriage. In view of the above it is not possible to find any change introduced by the new law that would destroy what actually accrued as a right to the claimants and or the insurer or in the same view to find any such right accruing to the owner of the vehicle which can enter into a claim arising under 1939 Act. The mention in Sub-sec.(4) of Sec.217 of Sec.6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 shall automatically make such claims subject to the principles that are generally recognised under the said provision.

Tenancy Laws - Houses and Rent: In Rajagopal Vandaiyar and Sons v. D. Joseph Nadar (died), (1992)1 M.L.J. 287, the court has held that the inclusion of hut in the definition and other indication in Sub-clauses (a) and (b) of Sec.2(2) of the Act point to the fact that the word 'building' is used to denote a structure of the nature of a house intended for human habitation or for using it for non-residential purpose such as carrying on business. Hence if the definition of the building is taken along with the purpose of the Act it includes not only a building, but even a part of it. A building consists of not only the superstructure but also the site on which the superstructure stands. In Badrudin Mohamedally v. T. & B. Dehganwala Estate by its Co-owner Tayebally Mohamedally, (1992)1 M.L.J. 428, it has held that Sec.2(2) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act defines a building as any building or hut or part of a building or hut let or to be let separately for residential or non-residential purposes. In the case of co-owners none of them is entitled to claim that a particular portion of the property belongs to him as a co-owners. Every co-owner is entitled to every inch of the property so long as there is no division of the property among the co-owners. Therefore any lease by some co-owners in favour of one of them or another co-owner will not be a separate letting. What is let out is only an undivided share in the property. So long as there is no separate letting of a portion of the buildings or building itself, it will not fall within Sec.2(2) of the Act. Sec.2(6) of the Act gives an inclusive definition for the term 'landlord'. It reads that landlord includes the person who is receiving or is entitled to receive the rent of a building. Similarly Sec.2(8) of the Act defines a 'tenant' as any person by whom or on whose account rent is payable for a building. If the amount payable under the arrangement between the parties is not 'rent' in the real sense and it is only a compensation payable by the petitioner it will not bring the parties within the definition in Sec.2(6) and Sec.2(8) of the Act. The term 'rent' has not been defined in the Act. The real nature of the transaction and the legal relationship of the parties cannot be decided by the nomenclature used by the parties. It has to be decided on the basis of the substantial terms of the agreement between the parties. The court has held in Natesan Pillai v.

Sethumani Ammal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 8, that as per Sec.10(1) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act a tenant shall not be evicted whether in execution of a decree or otherwise except in accordance with the provisions of that Section or Secs.14 to 16. Therefore, it is imperative that the plaintiff has to initiate proceedings for eviction against the defendant in a rent control proceeding. To this Sec.10(1) an exception is provided under the Second proviso according to which where the tenant denies the title of the landlord or claims right by permanent tenancy the controller shall decide whether the denial of title is bona fide and if he records a finding to that effect the landlord shall be entitled to sue for eviction in the Civil Court and the Court may pass a decree for eviction on any of the grounds mentioned in the said section notwithstanding that the court finds that such denial does not involve forfeiture of the lease or that the claim is unfounded. In K.N. Ramakrishnan and Brothers v. Thammaraj, (1992)1 M.L.J. 31, it is held that on a plain reading of Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act it is clear that the arrears of rent contemplated by Sec.10(2)(i) is arrears of rent due by the tenant in respect of the building. The provision does not say or require that the arrears of rent should be due to a particular landlord. The requirement is that the tenant should not have paid or tendered any rent due by him in respect of the building. Therefore, in the opinion of the court the petitioner who is a purchaser of the demised premises from the original landlady and who had cleared the arrears of rent payable by the respondents (tenants) to the original landlady is entitled to file the application for eviction of the respondents under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act on the ground of arrears of rent due and payable to the previous landlord. The court has held in SP.S.S. Medical Hall a partnership business represented by one of its partners SP.S.S. Shanmugam Chettiar v. S. Ibrahim & Co., a regd. partnership represented by one of its partners S.I. Mustafa Kamal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 472, that no doubt it is not for the tenant to suggest as to which of the portion would be suited for the business of the landlord. But the point in order under the given circumstances whether the requirement of the landlord of the petition premises under Sec.19(3)(a)(iii) of the Act is bona fide when the other portions in the same premises are available for the landlord's godown purposes. A close scrutiny of the facts arising in this case would go to show, that the requirements of the landlord of the petition premises under Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) of the Act appears to be not genuine. Even if the possession of the petition premises is not given that would not cause great hardship to the landlord. Therefore even looking at this angle also the request of the landlord is not bona fide. The point is whether carrying on business in a particular commodity and storing the same commodity in a godown are two different kinds of business, as contended by the learned counsel for the landlord. This contention cannot be accepted because storing the commodities in a godown and selling the same in the business premises of its own are different components of the same business and they are not two different kinds of business. Even assuming that the landlord is using the rented its own for different purpose viz., for selling the goods on this basis also eviction of the petition premises cannot be asked for under Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) of the Act. Since eviction on this basis is not envisaged under the abovesaid provision of the Act. According to the fact arising in the present case the landlord is not carrying on two different business in two different commodities as in the present case. In Partners of Satyanarayana & Co. v. The Official Assignee, High Court, Madras, (1992)2 M.L.J. 634, the court has held that a statutory tenancy under the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act is not property within the meaning of Sec.17 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act so as to vest in the Official Assignee. There is no scope for bringing in the Official Assignee within the ambit of the definition of a tenant. Therefore, the Official Assignee on whom the properties of the insolvents would vest under Sec.17 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act cannot become a tenant as defined in Sec.2(8) of the Tamil Nadu Act 18 of 1960 as amended. The insolvents right of occupation is only statutory under the provisions of Rent Control Act and is not property which can vest in the Official Assignee. The court has held in M.Nemichand Jain v. P.Ethirajan, (1922)2 M.L.J. 422, that Sec.2(2) of the Act defines a building as any building let or to be let separately for residential or non-residential purposes and includes the garden grounds etc., In this case, the building that was let out was only the shop which was occupied by the petitioner herein and another teashop in the front portion of No.62, Kandappa Chetty Street.

The rear portion was always in the occupation of the landlord for the purpose of his residence. Hence there is a severance and carving out of the portion let out from the entire building. The portion let out has been used for his residential purpose. Even after he vacated it, it was not let out and it was kept vacant and therefore it continued to be a residential building. Hence, it cannot be treated as part of the building let out to the tenant within the meaning of Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. Under Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) of the Act a landlord may subject to the provisions of clause (d) apply to the controller for an order directing the tenant to put him in possession of the building in case it is a non-residential building if the landlord or any member of his family is not occupying for purpose of a business which he or any member of his family is carrying a non-residential building in the city town or village concerned which is his own. The language is quite clear and it cannot be said that the landlord is occupying a non-residential building of his own for the purpose of his son's business. The question of bona fide has to be considered only on the basis of all the circumstances available in the case. It is not possible to contend that the court should advert to one of such circumstances only and decide the question of bona fide. In M/s Wren Bennett & Co. India Ltd. v. Dr.C.P.Gupta, (1992)2 M.L.J. 410, it has held that the maintainability of the petition for fixation of rent is a plea that will have to be taken by the respondent at the earliest stage to the R.C.O.P. itself and when such a plea has not been taken in the counter filed in the R.C.O.P. itself, it will not be open to the respondent to raise the plea either in the appeal filed before the appellate authority or in revision before the High Court. The definition of landlord given under Sec.2(6) of the Act is an inclusive definition. The inclusive definition in Sec.2(6) of the Act adds to the normal concept of landlord certain other categories of persons such as the person who is receiving or entitled to receive the rent of a building whether on his own account or on behalf of another or on behalf of himself and others as an agent etc. A person who is actually receiving or who is entitled to receive the rent of a building will be a landlord within the meaning of Sec.2(6) of the Act and such a person can maintain a petition for fixation of fair rent against the tenant. In the present case, the petition for fixation of fair rent is not filed in the firm name but in the name of the individual partners. The firm is merely a compendious name for partners who constituted it and when the firm purchased the petition-mentioned property, the purchase is really by the partners and after the purchase of the petition-mentioned property the partners become the landlords within the meaning of Sec.2(6) of the Act as they are entitled to receive the rent for the petition-mentioned property as an agent of the firm from the tenant. It is needless to point out that every partner of a firm is an agent of the firm and as an agent of the firm the partners are entitled to receive the rent for the petition-mentioned property from the tenant. In these circumstances in view of the inclusive definition of landlord contained in Sec.2(6) of the Act and inasmuch as the petitioner as partners of the unregistered firm are entitled to receive the rent due for the petition-mentioned property and actually received the same, there is no difficulty in holding that the petitioners are landlords within the meaning of Sec.2(6) and the petition for fixation of fair rent filed by them is maintainable. A careful reading of Sec.4 of the Act shows that the fair rent is fixed for the building and it is payable by the tenant for the building occupied by him. In other words, what is fixed under Sec.4 of the Act is the fair rent for the building let out by a landlord to a tenant. The court has held in Deluxe Road Lines represented by its partner Kushalchand B. Shah v. P.K. Palani Chetty, (1992)2 M.L.J. 481, that an unexplained default is undoubtedly wilful. A reading of the main section and proviso makes it clear that it is for the tenant to prove that his default is not wilful. It is only the tenant who knows the relevant facts and he should plead the same and prove them before the Controller in order to satisfy the controller that the default was not wilful. If the tenant is not able to satisfy the controller that there were circumstances which prevented him from carrying out his contractual or statutory obligation of having paid the rent then the necessary consequential inference is that the default is wilful. No doubt the explanation introduced by the Amending Act of 1973 is to the effect that a default should be construed as wilful if the tenant fails to pay even after issue of two months notice by the landlord claiming the rent. But it is not necessary in every case that a notice should have been issued by the landlord to the tenant in order to hold that the default is wilful. Even in cases where there was no notice calling upon the tenant to pay the rent the default could still be held to be wilful. The court has held in K.A. Vadivelu v. R. Govindarajulu, (1992)2 M.L.J. 341, that bona fides is a question of fact. What will be sufficient evidence will vary from case to case and the court will have to carefully scrutinise such materials before accepting or rejecting the bona fide of the landlord or the landlady as the case may be. It is a matter of common knowledge that rent control proceedings do take some years before a final decision is arrived at or rendered by the court at the top in the vertical order. A sanctioned plan obtained necessarily has to be renewed or reobtained depending on the nature of pendency of the Rent Control proceedings. It cannot always be insisted that without a sanctioned plan the landlord cannot claim bona fides. It is in this context if one refers to Sec.14(2)(b) of the Act the requirement is clear that the demolition in material part must be commenced within one month and completed within three months. The second does not speak of commencement of new construction within that period. In K.A. Syed Ali v. Saradambal, (1992)2 M.L.J. 111, the court has held that if the Rent Controller had come to certain conclusions on the questions of res judicata and jurisdiction then it might have given to an appeal. The Rent Controller said that the question raised by the petitioner could not be gone into as a preliminary issue and it could be decided in the proceedings only after trial and the recording of evidence is closed. The order not having decided any rights of the parties was not appealable.

City Tenants: In Pandian Automobiles Private Ltd. v. Tirunelveli Sivakasi Hindu Nadar Pothu Abhiviruthi Sangam, (1992)2 M.L.J. 185, the court has held that once the tenant suffers forfeiture he loses the character of tenant and consequently the rights of protection afforded under the Act will cease to have any application and therefore there is no need to provide a separate section under the Act to enable the landlord to evict the tenant on the basis of denial of title. Sec.2 of the City Tenants Protection Act while giving definitions to certain words appearing in the statute, expressly states that the definition as given in Sec.2 will apply unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context. Therefore, if the context requires to read the word tenant in a different manner there is nothing wrong in doing so. It cannot be disputed that if in the context it will be repugnant to hold that a particular person is a tenant as defined in Sec.2(4)(ii)(a) of the Act then the section must be construed in a manner which will be in harmony with the settled principles of law and enquiry. Sec.2(4)(ii)(a) states that a tenant is said to include a person who continues in possession of the land after the determination of the tenancy agreement. Obviously it can apply only to cases of determination of the tenant agreement otherwise than by forfeiture. Under Sec.111(g) of the Transfer of Property Act the tenancy is forfeited. Sec.111 of the Transfer of Property Act deals with various modes of determination of lease. So far as the Transfer of Property Act is concerned it makes no difference whether a lease is determined under one sub-clause or other. But for purposes of the City Tenants Protection Act which is a special statute intended to confer benefits on tenants who are continuing in possession in the hope of being able to do so till they pay a fair rent to the landlord a case of forfeiture of tenancy will be on entirely a different plane. It will be absurd to contemplate that a man who is deprived of his tenancy by reason of forfeiture because of his denial of title will be entitled to claim that he is retaining the character of a tenant for the purpose of the said Act. Basically such an interpretation will be against all notions of justice and equity. The act never intended to confer benefits on such person who having entered a land under a tenancy choose to deny the same or set up independent title. Therefore it is clear that when the section uses the expression a person is liable to pay rent in respect of such land under a tenancy agreement express or implied including one who continues in possession of the land after the determination of the tenancy, he is not entitled to any right unless there is a holding over under Sec.116 of the Act. In order that Sec.116 applies the lessor should accept the rent or otherwise assent to the lessee continuing in possession. There may be several cases in which the lessor may not be willing to accept rent or assent to the lessee's continuing in possession though the lessee may be willing to pay the rent and will be anxious to continue as a tenant and be in possession. It is only to benefit of such persons who are desirous of continuing the relationship of landlord and tenant the section includes the persons who continue in possession after determination of the tenancy agreement in the definition of tenant. If a person claims that he has got an agreement for sale in his favour and his possession is under the agreement and he is not liable to pay rent as a tenant he cannot claim that he is a tenant under Sec.2(4) of the City Tenants' Protection Act.

Cultivating Tenants: In Lakshmikanthan v. Thiruvengadam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 297, the court has held that no party can dispossess the other party during the pendency of the suit and claim an advantage on the date of filing of the suit and prayed for injunction for protecting their lawful possession and interim injunction has been granted. It is not open the other side to forcibly enter into the possession of the suit property and then when the plaintiffs come forward with the alternative prayer for recovery of possession resist it stating that the petitioners are not cultivating tenants of the property. It is proved by unassailable evidence that plaintiffs were in possession under a lease. It does not make any difference whether they were contractual lessees or cultivating tenants. Once they are proved to be lessees having been in possession of the land under a contractual lease or as cultivating tenants their possession was forcibly removed, even without an amended prayer for recovery of possession by virtue of the inherent powers of the court the court is competent and the court is obliged to put back the parties in their original possession by restoring possession to the plaintiffs and court should not allow anybody to take the law in his own hands and dispossess the plaintiff when the court is seized of the matter. Only when the primary relief sought for is one of declaration of status of their party as a cultivating tenant the civil court may not have jurisdiction to decide the controversy. The provisions of Sec.6 of the Tamil Nadu Cultivating Tenants' Protection Act are not attracted when the party already in possession is dispossessed when the court is seized of the matter. The rent court does not have jurisdiction to try the matter in dispute in this case. The court has held in Chenniammal v. Diamond Jubilee Governing Council represented by its Secretary, (1992)1 M.L.J. 186, that under Sec.4 of the Tamil Nadu Cultivating Tenants Protection Act (38 of 1990) any cultivating tenant who is in arrears of rent payable to the landlord for the fasli year ending with the 30 days of June 1989 and for any previous fasli year and outstanding on the date of the publication of the Act shall within two months exercise his option in writing to pay the current rent and the one fourth or one third of the arrears of rent for availing relief under the Act from payment of the said arrears of rent. It was contended that Sec.6 of the Act providing for the stay of suit was an independent provision and would not depend on the exercise of the option under Sec.4. The language of Sec.4 of the Act is very clear. Unless the option is exercised under that section no person can claim the benefit of the Act. In M.Palanichamy v. Muthiah Pillai, (1992)2 M.L.J. 523, the court has held that in Sec.4 of the Act the significant expression is arrears of rent payable to the landlord for the fasli year ending with 30th day of June, 1989 and for any previous fasli year and outstanding on the date of the publication of this Act. That expression itself shows that the section refers only to the amount due to the landlord on the date of the publication of the act after giving credit to the amounts already paid to him. Further, clause (2), Sub-sec.(1) expressly refers to the said amount as said arrears of rent. Hence, the section contemplates only the amount due and payable on the date of publication of the Act. Sec.5 of the Act no doubt uses the expression total amount of arrears of rent. That expression itself shows that it refers to the amount remaining due after giving credit to the payments already made. The contention that the expression total amount of arrears of rent would mean total amount of rent fixed between the parties cannot be accepted. When the section uses the term arrears it would automatically mean that the amount payable is only rent due after taking into account the amounts already paid. The word arrears is defined in the Concise Oxford Dictionary as outstanding debts: what remains not done. Hence, there is no difficulty in holding that under Sec.5 of the Act the tenant is bound to pay the current rent plus 1/4th of the amount due and payable on the date of the publication of the Act with regard to the rent payable for fasli year ending with 30th June, 1989 and previous fasli years. It can never mean that the tenant is bound to pay 1/4th of the total amount of rent fixed between the parties inclusive of amount already paid. If the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is accepted it would tantamount to refixing the rent at one fourth of the agreed rent in all cases when the tenant is in arrears. There is no warrant for such a construction. If the legislature intended to wipe out all arrears in cases where the tenants had paid earlier one fourth of the total rent or more, it would have said so expressly. Such provisions are found in some of the Debt Relief Acts. No such provision is found in the Act. The legislature has intended to give only a concession and reduce the burden of arrears as on the date of the said Act. Learned counsel submits that the Preamble of the Act indicates that the tenant should not be made to pay again if he had already paid some amount towards the rent due. The Legislature has made it clear that the relief that is granted in the Act is only with reference to the arrears of rent. The name of the Act itself shows that it pertains to arrears of rent due on the date of the Act. The Preamble also refers only to arrears of rent. Hence, the Act does not refer to the amounts already paid. The Act is concerned only with the arrears of rent due as on the date of publication of the Act. In Subbu Reddiar v. The District Revenue Officer, Trichy, (1992)2 M.L.J. 64, the court has held that it could be seen from the provisions of Sec.2(aa) of the Act that even a heir of a deceased tenant could claim benefits only if the heir contributed his own physical labour or that of any member of his family in cultivation of suit lands and consequently it has to be established by anyone claiming benefits of the Act that he is an heir and that he contributed his own physical labour or that of any member of the family in the cultivation of such lands. The mere fact that a person who cannot otherwise be classified as an heir was assisting the erstwhile tenant cannot confer him with any tenancy rights in his own right or as a successor in interest of the erstwhile tenant.

Transfer of Property Act: In K.Mohanakrishnan v. Seetha Natarajan, (1992)1 M.L.J. 240, the court has held that a rule which has received universal recognition and needs no reiteration, however, seems to have been overstretched by the mortgagee in the sense that a mortgagee with a power of sale is not a trustee of the power of sale; it is a power given to him for his own benefit to enable him better to realise his mortgage debt. If he exercises it bona fide for that purpose, without corruption or collusion with the purchaser the court will not interfere even though the sale be very disadvantageous unless indeed the price is so low as to itself be evidence of fraud. In S.Sarojini (died) v. The Nungambakkam Saswatha Dhanarakshaka Nidhi Ltd., (1992)1 M.L.J. 627, the court has held that A puisne mortgagee is entitled to purchase the property in the auction brought under Sec.69 of the transfer of Property Act by the first mortgagee. Nothing in law prevented the puisne mortgagee from making a purchase. In The Tamil Nadu Handloom Weavers Co-operative Society Ltd., represented by its Chief Marketing Officer, Madras v. M/s.Glamour Saree Museum represented by its partner, No.843, Anna Road, Madras-2, (1992)1 M.L.J. 555, the court has held that if Sec.106 of the Transfer of Property Act is declared unconstitutional, the very requirement of notice to terminate the tenancy will cease to exist in the statute. The defendant cannot argue that if its lease was not for agricultural or manufacturing purposes, in its case also six months notice should be the law. For that a legislation will be needed. The court cannot usurp the functions of the Legislature except in cases where for making a provision, workable, legislative words hold that since the rule of six months notices applies to agricultural and manufacturing leases, the same would be applied to all other kinds of leases. Courts ordinarily do not go into the motive behind the legislation. It is a matter exclusively for the legislatures to decide whether for reasons they have in their mind a particular class of people should be subjected to a particular law or not. Such classification may be based on the difference in the nature of the persons trade, calling or occupation. There may be some degree of hostility on account of the peculiar nature of the trade or calling or the transactions that are subjected to a classification. Indeed, every classification shall have some degree of hostility or bias for or against a certain section of the society. It is the overall effect of the law that will determine whether certain classification is unreasonable and hit by Art.14 of the Constitution. In order to find out whether there has been any inequality so as to strike off a certain piece of legislation the test to be applied is not the degree of inequality but the reality of it. Thus the presumption is always in favour of the constitutionality of an enactment since it must be assumed that the Legislature understands and correctly appreciates the needs of its own people. It will be for those who challenge to rebut the presumption. They can do so undoubtedly by reference to the contents of the law itself and also by intrinsic evidence. The legislative intent in providing for longer period of notice in the case of agricultural lease as well as manufacturing lease is not beyond comprehension. Manufacturing which essentially is trading, is a kind of operation which cannot be easily shifted from one place to another and evidently a longer duration will be necessary for the manufacturer to find out another suitable accommodation. Agricultural operations are generally seasonal; durations of which vary depending upon the type of crop grown in the land. For the obvious geographical and historical reasons, agricultural tenancies are protected by different tenancy laws and regulations of the States. The two purposes specifically chosen for a longer period of notice thus constitute a reasonable basis of classification and a special legislation for such purposes only leaving other purposes as a separate class. The purposes for which manufacturing lease and agricultural lease have been treated as a separate clause are based on firm foundation of the nature of the activities historically recognised as activities of distinct significance for people involved in them as well as for the people at large. There can be no equation available in the duration or the time as such to find any aggravation or enhancement of the degree of hostility if at all any such hostility existed in the classification of the two types of leases, namely agricultural and manufacturing for a longer period of notice. The Court has held in Marappa Gounder v. Chennimalai Gounder, (1992)2 M.L.J. 140, that the object of Sec.52 of the Transfer of Property Act is to afford protection of law in respect of a property which is the subject matter of litigation being alienated to the prejudice of the decree which may ultimately result in the pending suit. The law does not allow litigant parties but also on those who derive title under them by alienations pendente lite. In Pandian Automobiles Private Ltd. v. Tirunelveli, Sivakasi Hindu Nadar Pothu Abhiviruthu Sangam, (1992)2 M.L.J. 185, the court has held that a notice under Sec.111(g) of the Transfer of Property Act is required only when the tenancy is subsisting. This is because it cannot be disputed that a tenancy can be determined by issuing a notice in accordance with Sec.106 read with Sec.111(g) of the Transfer of Property Act. A careful reading of Sec.111(g) would suggest that a separate notice under that section is necessary only if the lease had not been otherwise terminated.

Law Relating to Arbitration: In M/s. The Kotson Engineering Corporation, Partnership Firm represented by its Partner Sri Ch. Sambasiva Rao v. The General Manager, Southern Railway, Madras-3, (1992)1 M.L.J. 267, the court has held that in order to attract the provision of Sec.20 of the Act the following conditions must be satisfied: (a) The parties must have a valid and subsisting arbitration agreement between them; (b) The agreement was executed before the institution of a suit relating to the subject matter of the agreement; (c) Existence of a difference to which the agreement applies; (d) the application is made to a court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates. Under Sec.20 of the Act the court has to ensure about the existence of an arbitration agreement between parties and the covering of the dispute by the agreement. The existence of a dispute is absolutely essential for a reference under Sec.20. The court has held in M/s. Muthuswamy v. Chief Engineer Construction Works Branch, Southern Railway, Madras, (1992)1 M.L.J. 121, that in order to attract the provisions of Sec.20 of the Arbitration Act the following conditions must be fulfilled, (a) The parties must have a valid and subsisting arbitration agreement between them, (b) the agreement was executed before the institution of a suit relating to the subject matter of the agreement, (c) the existence of a difference to which the agreement applies, (d) the application is made to a court having jurisdiction in matter to which the agreement relates. Under Sec.20 the court has to ensure about the existence of an arbitration agreement between parties and the covering of the dispute by that agreement. The existence of a dispute is absolutely essential for a reference under Sec.20. In The Tamil Nadu Cements Corporation Ltd. v. M/s. Sathiapal and Company, (1992)2 M.L.J. 303, the court has held that the only inhibition which courts have recognised upon the jurisdiction of the arbitrator to award interest is that interest could not be awarded for the period prior to the suit in the absence of an agreement for the payment of interest or any usage of trade having the force of law or any provision of the substantive law entitling the plaintiff to recover interest and that it must be assumed that the arbitrator will have the same power to award interest as the court. The instant case is not one in which without reference to the contents of the contract and various terms and conditions therein, it will be possible to say that award of interest has been illegal and thus the arbitrator misconducted himself in making such an award.

Specific Relief Act: In M. Elumalai v. Devi alias Perundevi, (1992)1 M.L.J. 113, the court has held that under the Specific Relief Act the plaintiff must prove before the court that he is always ready and willing to perform his part of the contract and it is only to show that he has performed his part of the contract the deposit of the balance of sale consideration. It is not open to the plaintiff decree holder to contend that the judgment-debtor could not withdraw the same. The entitlement to enforce specific performance depend upon the deposit made by the decree-holder. Unless the decree-holder makes the deposit he would not be entitled to enforce the decree against the defendant. Once the money is deposited as per the provisions of the Specific Relief Act or the decree it is earmarked for payment to the judgment-debtor. The court holds the money for the benefit of the defendant. If it earns interest on account of deposit in a Bank such interest should go to the decree holder. It is contended that in one sense the respondents are decree holders and that petitioner is a judgment-debtor to that extent. Even so the petitioner being bound by law to make the deposit in order to get a decree for specific performance he could not be entitled to claim interest on the amount. On the other hand the petitioner may be entitled to claim possession of the property as a consequence of execution of sale deed in his favour. Hence the petitioner cannot claim interest which had accrued on the amount deposited. In S. Raju Pillai v. Paramasivam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 467, the court has held that no doubt the burden was on the plaintiff to prove the execution of the document. But the question of burden loses its importance after both the parties have chosen to adduce evidence before the court and the court was certainly entitled to come to a conclusion on facts after considering the entire evidence. The lower appellate court had done only the same. It is well settled that in a contract relating to immovable property time is not the essence of the contract.

Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act: In The Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. Department, Tiruchy v. S.Rama Iyengar, (1992)1 M.L.J. 48, the Court has held that any property which was set apart under Sec.63(f) for the purposes of religious trust cannot thereafter be said to be a private property or a private secular trust property. In A.Shanmugha Mudaliar v. P.V.Rajagopal (died), (1992)2 M.L.J. 416, the court has held that the proviso relates only to Sec.64(5)(a) and not to Sec.64(5)(b). Only underneath Sec.64(5)(a) the proviso is found in the enactment and thereafter only come Sec.64(5)(b). No doubt both Secs.64(5)(a) and 64(5)(b) deal with modification of any pre-existing scheme by the Deputy Commissioner. But Sec.64(5)(b) deals with modification by the Deputy Commissioner where he is satisfied that there is the abovesaid inconsistency. On the other hand Sec.64(5)(a) deals with modification of any scheme. There may be even any other factual necessities for modifications would come under Sec.64(5)(a). But though Sec.64(5)(a) is worded generally in view of Sec.64(5)(b) providing for a particular situation as stated above Sec.64(5)(a) should be held to be providing for a modification other than the modification contemplated under Sec.64(5)(b). So in that sense Sec.64(5)(a) and Sec.64(5)(b) are mutually exclusive. Only in the case of Sec.64(5)(a), the proviso therein will apply that is in certain cases of court Schemes modification could be done by the Deputy Commissioner subject to such conditions and restriction as may be prescribed. But that qualification to the power given to the Deputy Commissioner is not there in the case of his power to modify under Sec.64(5)(b). If really he is satisfied that there is the abovesaid inconsistency he is free to modify the original scheme and the Legislature has not thought it fit to fetter the said power with any restrictions or conditions as contemplated in the case of modification under Sec.64(5)(a) of the Act. In Seeni Thevar v. M.S.Velayutha Raja, (1992)2 M.L.J. 530, the Court has held that the question whether a temple is public one (coming under the Act) or a private one (not coming under the Act) can be decided only by the Deputy Commissioner H.R. & C.E. Department under Sec.63(a) of the Act and not by the Civil Court.

Miscellaneous: Appellate Side Rules of Madras High Court: The Full Bench has held in Terminated Full

Time L.I.C. Employees Welfare Association v. Senior Divisional Manager, L.I.C. of India Ltd., Thanjavur Division, Thanjavur, (1992)2 M.L.J. 573, that it is not necessary for the purpose of reference to a Full Bench that a question of law should arise. Under Rule 6, O.1 of the Appellate Side Rules of the High Court the Chief Justice may direct that any application, petition, suit appeal or reference shall be heard by a Full Bench notwithstanding anything in the earlier rules. Once the reference is made by the Chief Justice the competence of the Full Bench to hear the matter cannot be challenged on the ground that such a question of law does not arise.

Approbate and Repröbate: The Bench has held in Samsuddin Rowther v. Avvammal, (1992)2 M.L.J. 252, that when both the appeals were pending in this Court and the parties agreed that the question of title could be decided in this second appeal and independent of the same, the S.T.A. could be disposed of it is no longer open to the plaintiffs to turn round and contend that this Court has no jurisdiction to decide the question of title.

Benami Transactions Act: In Greaves Cotton and Company Madras v. J.Jamal Mohammed Abdulla, (1992)2 M.L.J. 236, the Bench stated that the pronouncement of the Supreme Court in Mithilesh Kumari v. Prem Behari Khare, (1989)2 S.C.C. 95, has exhaustively assessed the scope, purport and intendment of the Act and in spite of that this court will not be in order to construe the set of expressions on behalf of a person claiming to be the real owner of such a property occurring in Sec.4 as excluding from its ambit and purview a decree holder who has no other case except to say that the properties though not standing in the name of the judgment-debtors are only his so as to be available for being proceeded against in execution. The decree holder puts forth a case that the judgment-debtor is the real owner of the properties. That is the basis for proceeding in execution against the properties. The court can only view that as a case on behalf of and projecting a claim of a person namely the judgment-debtor as the real owner of the properties. The decree holder indirectly confers the benefit of ownership on the judgment-debtor and wants to proceed against the properties in discharge of decree debts of the judgment-debtor so as to exonerate him therefrom. It is significant to note here that the judgment-debtor was not made a party to the proceedings and was never called upon to make his say on the question. It is only the voice of the decree holder the appellant herein which spoke and that voice was only to say that the real owner is the judgment-debtor and not the respondent herein in whose name the properties stood. The present case will certainly come within the mischief of Sec.4. On facts the court is not prepared to accept the construction put forth by the learned counsel for the appellant on the provisions of Sec.4.

Carriers Act: The Court has held in The Manager Doars Transport (P) Ltd. v. The Canara Bank represented by its Branch Manager, Chennimalai Erode Taluk, (1992)1 M.L.J. 454, that as per Sec.8 of the Carriers Act any carrier shall be liable for loss or damage where such loss or damage shall have arisen from the criminal act of the carrier or any of his agents or servants or where such loss or damage has arisen from the negligence of the carrier or any of his agents or servants. The second defendant cannot be made liable by virtue of Sec.8 of the Carriers Act in view of the positive finding of the lower appellate court that there was no negligence or misconduct on the part of the servants of the second defendant. Sec.9 provides that the plaintiff need not prove that such loss or damage or non-delivery was owing to the negligence or criminal act of the carrier his servants, as agents. The duty is not cast upon the plaintiff to prove these factors, but the common carrier can prove that non-delivery was not due to its negligence or criminal act of his servants. The finding of the lower appellate court is there was no such negligence or misconduct while so neither under Sec.9 the second defendant can be made liable. Looking the case from any angle the finding of the lower appellate court that as an insurer, the second defendant is liable though there was no negligence or misconduct on the part of the servants of the second defendant cannot be sustained. So the second defendant is also not liable for the suit claim.

Divorce Act: It has held in R.Anitha Marginic v. R.Annadurai, (1992)2 M.L.J. 11, that if either of the parties is a christian, it would be sufficient to invoke the jurisdiction of the court under the provisions of Divorce Act. The High Court alone is empowered to entertain an application for nullity of the marriage on the grounds stated in Sec.19 of the Divorce Act. In Winfred Dhanraj Samuel v. Betsy Ramakumari, (1992)2 M.L.J. 106, the bench has stated that the condition precedent to satisfy the requirements of Sec.37 of the Divorce Act are two-fold: (1) there must be a decree absolute declaring the marriage to be dissolved, and (ii) a decree of judicial separation obtained by the wife. In that event court can grant permanent alimony. In the instant case, the suit filed by the husband has been dismissed and hence the grant of maintenance ordered is irregular. Sec.36 of the Indian Divorce Act provides that the wife may present a petition for alimony pending the suit. The court on being satisfied of the truth of the statements therein contained, may make such order on the husband for payment to the wife of alimony pending the suit as it may deem just. Sec.15 of the Indian Divorce Act also provides that in any suit instituted for dissolution of marriage, if the respondent opposed the relief sought on the ground in case of such suit instituted by husband of the adultery, and cruelty the court may in such suit give to the respondent or his or her application the same relief to which he or she would have been entitled in case he or she had presented a petition seeking such relief and the respondent shall be competent to give evidence of or relating to such cruelty or desertion. Thus it is seen that the court has a power to grant maintenance pending suit under Sec.36 of the Indian Divorce Act and had power to order maintenance under Sec.37 of the Indian Divorce Act only when a decree is made absolute declaring the marriage to be dissolved or on any decree of judicial separation obtained by the wife. Permanent alimony and maintenance can only be granted in case divorce is granted and if the marriage between the parties subsists. If the petition by the husband as in the instant case fails then no decree is passed. The decree is denied to the husband. Alimony cannot therefore be granted in a case where decree for divorce is refused. Ultimately alimony on a permanent basis maintenance given to an ex-spouse and if a petition fails then the marriage still subsists unaltered by the intervention of any decree and the normal rights of the parties to be found in the legal system under which they are married has to prevail. There is no question of granting alimony in such cases, because the matrimonial rights of the parties are to be found in the legal system which operates, requiring one of the parties to support the other and if there is failure to do so then the other partner can seek maintenance by recourse to the civil or criminal court. There is no question of granting alimony in such cases. The word decree is used in matrimonial cases in a special sense different from that in which it is sued in C.P.C.

Letters Patent: The Bench has held in K. Murugesan v. Seethalakshmi, (1992)1 M.L.J. 396, that it shall always be in relation to the subject matter of the dispute that the Court will decide whether to nonsuit the plaintiff for the reason that one or some of the defendants are residing and carrying on business within the jurisdiction of the court but some are not and if cause of action is found common to all of them by dint of residence of one or some of the defendants or otherwise it would be enough to hold that since cause of action is not wholly but in part has arisen within the jurisdiction of the court the suit is maintainable. In Tuticorin Alkali Chemicals and Fertilizers Ltd. v. M/s. Cochin Silicate & Glass Industries a partnership firm represented by its Managing Partner, Mr. A.J. Shelat, the Bench has held that the words determine suits of every description if the cause of action shall have arisen or in case the leave of the court shall have been first obtained in part within the local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction in clause 12 of the Letters Patent clearly establish the right of litigant to institute a suit on the original side of this court if the cause of action would have arisen wholly within the local limits of the Ordinary Original Jurisdiction of the court. The leave of the court is required only in a case in which the cause of action would have arisen in part within the local limits of the Ordinary Original Jurisdiction. It is thus not possible to ignore the case of a litigant who decided to file the suit on the Original Side of the court on the plea that most part of the cause of action had arisen within the City of Madras, only on the ground that the defendant had pleaded otherwise and alleged that no part of the cause of action had arisen in Madras, but had arisen at Cochin.

Pleading, Practice, Procedure and Precedent: In O.N.A. Nagamani Chettiar (died) v. Shanmugam Finance

Company by its Proprietor, K.P. Shanmugam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 603, the court has held that the written statement filed in the suit itself cannot be called in aid for the purpose of Sec.19 of the Limitation Act. The court has held in Ramachandran v. Valliammal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 188, that when there is no pleading before court the Court ought not to have allowed any evidence to be let in by the parties. It is well settled that no amount of evidence without a plea can be looked into by the court. It is well settled that a party who is in possession of the best evidence and a party who is the best person to give evidence on certain matter should enter the witness box and place the facts before the Court and in the event of his failure to do so, the court is bound to draw an adverse inference against him. In State Bank's Staff Union (Madras Circle) v. State Bank of India, (1992)1 M.L.J. 133, the Bench has held that in a case where there are two pronouncements of the highest court in the land suggesting or indicating contrary views the rule of guidance for the High Court is to adopt the ruling of the decision rendered by a larger Bench. In Vijayalakshmi v. Vasantha, (1992)2 M.L.J. 152, the court has held that it is the duty of the court to give effect to the inference to be drawn from the evidence on record even if the finding is not consistent with the pleadings of either party. The Full Bench has held in Philip Jeyasingh v. The Joint Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Chidambaram Region, Tuticorin, (1992)2 M.L.J. 309, that it is common knowledge that Full Benches are constituted specially for deciding specific questions referred to them. The judgment of the Full Bench is binding precedent as it expresses that collective opinion of the court as such. It is binding on a single judge as well as a Division Bench until it is reversed by a higher court. Mere expression of dissatisfaction by their Lordships of the Privy Council about the principles decided by a Full Bench of a High Court was not sufficient to take away their authority until the Privy Council expressed a definite disagreement with them. A Full Bench is a final court of appeal in an Indian High Court unless the case is referred to a Full Bench and one Division Bench should regard itself bound by the decision of another Division Bench on a question of law and if the later Bench does not accept as correct the decision of the earlier Bench the only right and proper course to adopt is to refer the matter to a Full Bench. The following principles can be culled out from the myriad case laws. (a) A single Judge is bound by the decision of a Division Bench and if he does not agree with it he shall refer it to a larger Bench, (b) a fortiori he is bound by the judgment of a Full Bench and if he does not agree with its ratio, he shall place the papers before the Chief Justice to consider whether a larger Bench should be constituted for considering the question, (c) A Division Bench is bound by the decision of another Division Bench and if it wants to differ it shall refer the matter to the Full Bench, (d) a fortiori, a Division Bench is bound by the decision of a Full Bench and if it wants to differ it shall place the papers before the Chief Justice to consider whether a larger Bench should be constituted for reconsidering the question, (e) the decision of a Full Bench is binding on the court including a subsequent Full Bench until it is overruled by a larger Bench specially constituted by the Chief Justice for deciding the question, (f) Even the obiter dicta of a Full Bench is entitled to great weight, (g) the binding effect of a prior decision does not depend upon whether a particular argument was considered therein or not provided that the point with reference to which an argument was subsequently advanced was actually decided, (h) the decision of the Supreme Court is binding on the High Court and the latter cannot ignore it on the ground that some relevant provisions of law were not brought to the notice of the Supreme Court or some aspects of the matter in question were not considered by the Supreme Court.

Insolvency: In S.P. Govindaraj v. A Palaniappan, (1992)1 M.L.J. 486, the court has held that in clauses (ii) and (iii) of Sec.6(d) three situations are contemplated. One, the debtor departs from his dwelling house or usual place of business. Two, the debtor absents himself otherwise from his dwelling house or usual place of business. Three, he secludes himself so as to deprive his creditors of the means of communicating with him. In the first of the contingencies, the act of insolvency is complete as soon as the debtor departs from his dwelling house or usual place of business with intent to defeat or delay his creditors. The second contingency arises when the debtor absents himself from his dwelling house or his usual place of business without actual physical absence. In a case where the debtor takes an assumed name so as to conceal himself and be out of reach of his creditors it will be an absence otherwise than by departure. Even if the debtor conceals himself in a room of the house or place of business on a false pretext that will also fall within the second part of clause (ii). But in the case of absenting himself it is a continuing act of insolvency so long as he is absent. The act is not completed on the first day on which he absents himself but it continues until he presents himself. It is a continuing act of insolvency giving rise to a cause of action for filing a petition for adjudication every day and every moment till the absence comes to an end. Similarly in the third contingency also there is no necessity for the debtor to leave his dwelling house or usual place of business. Even without doing so he could seclude himself in such a way as to deprive his creditors of the means of communication with him. In that case also it is a continuing act of insolvency so long as he continues to seclude himself. Thus the cause of action is a continuing cause of action and it arises every day for the purpose of Sec.9(1)(c) of the Act. The expression used in Sec.9(1)(c) of the Act is has occurred. In the case of a debtor remaining out of the territories absenting himself otherwise than by departure and secluding himself the act of insolvency is occurring every moment of his remaining outside the territory remaining absent and secluding himself. Sec.9(1)(c) of the Act does not use the expression has first occurred. Hence the intention of the legislature is very clear that the period of three months mentioned in Sec.9(1)(c) of the Act will have to be calculated from the date on which the act of insolvency it occurs on every day until the act of insolvency continues to exist. In A.G. Krishnamoorthy v. V. Kannammal, (1992)2 M.L.J. 343, the Bench has held that there can be no dispute that in case of a benami transaction the most important issue is as to who paid the consideration money purchase money if at all there was such consideration involved. It is indeed a mistake to imagine a dispute raised by a third party as the title in some one other than the person in whose name the property stands. Sec.59 of the Evidence Act provides that the contents of documents cannot be proved by oral evidence. Sec.91 of the Evidence Act says that when the terms of a contract or of a grant or any other disposition of property have been reduced to the form of a document and in all cases in which any matter is required by law to be reduced to the form of a document no evidence shall be given in proof of the terms of such contract grant or other disposition of property or of such matter except the document itself or secondary evidence of its contents in cases in which secondary evidence is admissible subject to the exceptions that are enumerated within Sec.92 excludes evidence as to oral agreement which will have the effect of contradicting, varying or adding to or subtracting from the terms of the document reduced to writing. Benami is a concept derived from the use and practice in India of any immovable property by the real owner keeping himself in hiding and projecting ostensibly someone else as the owner. The ostensible owner thus has all the rights and privileges of the owner of a property except against the real owner who enjoyed the privilege of asserting his title against ostensible owner. If anyone could assert any right or interest in the property that stood in the name of K in the title deed that was the real owner viz., the husband if at all K was only ostensibly the owner and the property in fact had been purchased by V. The court cannot see any possibility of a creditors who may have a claim against the debtor say that his debtor is the real owner of the property although the property stood in the name of another person. The most vital of the questions that was required to be answered is the source from which the purchase money came and then only the nature of possession of the property after the purchase and the other issues as aforementioned have to be examined. As observed by the Supreme Court in Gapadibai v. State of M.P., A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 1040, the title deeds are solemn documents. It cannot easily be ignored and no inference drawn against its contents unless as again observed by the Supreme Court the person asserting the transaction to be benami is able to show that the ownership although ostensibly show in the name of a certain person was in reality with another

Sale of Goods: In The Food Corporation of India represented by its Zonal Manager, Madras v. The Bengal Trading company represented by its partner, Madras-1, (1992)1 M.L.J. 225, the bench has held that Sec.42 of the Sale of Goods Act provides a legal fiction of deeming acceptance of the goods by the buyer under certain circumstances enumerated therein. They are: (1) when he intimates to the seller that he accepted the goods, or (2) when the goods have been delivered to him and he does any act in relation to them which is inconsistent with the ownership of the seller, or (3) when after the lapse of a reasonable time he retains the goods without intimating to the seller that he has rejected them. The instant case squarely falls under the category of circumstances enumerated in (2) and (3) as above. In Tirumala Tirupathi Devasthanam represented by its Marketing Officer V.Venkataramana Reddy, Tirupathi v. Madras Port Trust represented by the Traffic Managers, (1992)2 M.L.J. 159, the court has held that it is true that under Sec.43 of the Sale of Goods Act, the buyer is not bound to return rejected goods but it is sufficient to intimate the seller that he refused to accept the same. But in view of the provisions of Sale of Goods Act with regard to the sale of goods on sample with regard to the position of law laid down by this Court with regard to C.I.F.

Succession Act: The Bench has held in G.Vaidehi v. Govindarajan, (1992)2 M.L.J. 393, that it cannot be contended by any stretch of imagination that in case where attesting witnesses were dead, a will could not be proved otherwise. The method in such a situation will be one as envisaged under Sec.69 of the Evidence Act. All that is required is to prove the attestation by bringing on record the evidence of a witness that the attestation was in the handwriting of that person who was described as the attesting witness and that he had put his signature.

Wills: In Palaniammal v. Chinnammal, (1992)1 M.L.J. 460, the Bench has held that the principles governing proof of wills as recognised by judicial precedents run as follows: (i) The onus probandi lies in every case on the propounder of the testament so that he is bound to satisfy the conscience of the court that the instrument is the last Will of a free and capable testator, (ii) If the propounder takes an active part in the preparation of the Will under which he takes a benefit that is a circumstance which would excite the suspicion of the court and justify the vigilance and jealous scrutiny before accepting the Will and the same principle will stand extended to what may be termed suspicious circumstances or factors in general of course, attendant upon the execution of the Will or in some clear manner related to that issue, (iii) it is for the propounder to satisfy the conscience of the court by dispelling those suspicions in the light of the evidence and its probabilities and if he fails to do so and the conscience of the court is not satisfied the court will decline to accept the Will. The suspicious circumstance may be as to the genuineness of the signature of the testator the condition of the testator's mind, the dispositions made in the Will being unnatural improbable or unfair in the light of the relevant circumstances, if there might be other indications in the Will to show that the testator's mind was not free.

Words and Phrases: In Dravidar Kazhakam represented by the General Secretary, K. Veeramani v. The Chairman, United India Insurance Company Ltd., (1992)1 M.L.J. 530, the court has held that the Gayathrimantra is said to be shabda Brahman and is said to appear in the Rig Veda, as the tenth mantra in the sixth sutra of the third mandala. It is considered to be all pervasive synonymous with divinity and valued as a universal prayer which does not ask for any mercy or pardon but seeks for a clear intellect so that truth may be reflected therein without distortion. It, therefore, is supposed to purify rescue or protect the chanter who contemplates the glory of light that illuminates the three worlds or the religious experience as they are called with a prayer for final liberation through the awakening of the innate intelligence that pervades the Universe as light. As one having its origin in Vedas and Vedic times, it will be anachronistic for any one to contend that it signifies or relates to any particular religion. Gayatri-mantra is the key to Vedic wisdom. The Vedas have been in existence long before any of the present day organised religions nor are concerned with propagating religion.

Supreme Court Rulings: While considering the scope and applicability of Sec.100, C.P.C. In Ramaswamy Kalingarayar v. Mathayan Padayachi, (1992)1 M.L.J. 19 (S.C.), the Supreme Court has held that suggested shortcomings in the findings of fact recorded by the lower courts would not alter the situation that those were findings of facts, unquestionable under the provisions of Sec.100, C.P.C., which defines the contours of the power of the High Court in second appeal. Sufficiency of proof can be no ground for the High Court to interfere in a finding of fact. In Mohammad Mahibulla v. Seth Chamanlal (dead) by L.Rs., (1992)1 M.L.J. 12, the Supreme Court has held that reading the provisions of Secs.107(2) and 149 of the C.P.C. together and keeping fairness of procedure in view it must be held that when the lower appellate court came to hold that the memorandum of appeal had not been sufficiently stamped an opportunity should have been given by the Court to the appellant to make good the balance court fee within a time to be indicated and if there was failure to comply with the direction of the Court the memorandum of appeal could have been dismissed. This opportunity having not been given the dismissal of the appeal was not appropriate. In Byram Pestonji Gariwala v. Union Bank of India, (1992)2 M.L.J. 1, the Supreme Court has held that there is no reason to assume that the Legislature intended to curtail the implied authority of counsel engaged in the thick of proceedings in court to compromise or agree on matters relating to the parties even if such matters exceed the subject matter of the suit. The relationship of counsel and his party or the recognised agent and his principal is a matter of contract and with the freedom of contract generally the legislature does not interfere except when warranted by public policy and the legislative intent is expressly made manifest. So long as the system of judicial administration in India continues unaltered and so long as Parliament has not evinced an intention to change its basic character, there is no reason to assume that Parliament has though not expressly; but impliedly reduced counsel role or capacity to represent his client as effectively as in the past. On a matter of such vital importance, it is most unlikely that parliament would have resorted to implied legislative alteration of counsel capacity or status or effectiveness. The court may however hasten to add that it will be prudent for counsel not to act on implied authority except when warranted by the exigency of circumstances demanding immediate adjustment of suit by agreement or compromise and the signature of the party cannot be obtained without undue delay. In these days of easier and quicker communication, such contingency may seldom arise. A wise and careful counsel will no doubt arm himself in advance with the necessary authority expressed in writing to meet all such contingencies in order that neither his authority nor integrity is ever doubted. This essential precaution will safeguard the personal reputation of counsel as well as uphold the prestige and dignity of the legal profession. Considering the traditionally recognised role of counsel in the common law system and the evil sought to be remedied by Parliament by the C.P.C. Amendment Act, 1976, namely attainment of certainty and expeditious disposal of cases by reducing the terms of compromise to writing signed by the parties allowing the compromise decree to comprehend even matters falling outside the subject matter of the suit, but relating to the parties the legislature cannot in the absence of express words to such effect be presumed to have disallowed the parties to enter into a compromise by counsel in their cause or by their duly authorised agents. Any such presumption would be inconsistent with the legislative object of attaining quick reduction of arrears in court by elimination of uncertainties and enlargement of the scope of compromise. To insist upon the party himself personally signing the agreement or compromise would often cause undue delay loss and inconvenience especially in the case of non-resident persons. It has always been universally understood that a party can always act by his duly authorised representative. If a power of attorney holder can enter into an agreement or compromise on behalf of his principal so can counsel possessed of the requisite authorisation by vakalathnama act on behalf of his client. Not to recognise such capacity is not only to cause much inconvenience and loss to parties personally, but also to delay the progress of proceedings in court. If the legislature had intended to make such a fundamental change even the risk of delay inconvenience and needless expenditure, it would have expressly so stated. Accordingly it must be held that the word in writing and signed by the parties inserted by the C.P.C. (Amendment) Act 1976 must necessarily mean to borrow the language of O.3, Rule 1, C.P.C. any appearance, application or act in or to any court required or authorised by law to be made or done by a party in such court may except where otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force be made or done by the party person or by his recognised agent or by a pleader appearing or acting as the case may be on his behalf. Provided that any such appearance shall if the court so directs, be made by the party in person. A judgment by consent is intended to stop litigation between the parties just as much has a judgment resulting from a decision of the court at the end of a long drawn out fight. A compromise decree creates an estoppel by judgment. The Supreme Court has held in Ramesh Hirachand Kundanmal v. Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay, (1992)2 M.L.J. 55, that it cannot be said that the main object of the Rule 10(2) of O.1, C.P.C. is to prevent multiplicity of actions though it may incidentally have that effect. But that appears to be a desirable consequence of the rule rather than its main objective. The person to be joined must be one whose presence is necessary as a party. What makes a person a necessary party is not merely that he has relevant evidence to give on some of the question involved that would only make him a necessary witness; It is not merely that he has an interest in the correct solution of some question involved and has thought of relevant arguments to advance. The only reason which makes it necessary to make a person a party to an action is so that he should be bound by the result of the action and the question to be settled therefore, must be question in the action which cannot be effectually and completely settled unless he is a party. The line has been drawn on a wider construction of the rule between the direct interest or the legal interest and commercial interest. It is therefore necessary that the person must be directly or legally interested in the action in the answer i.e. he can say that the litigation may lead to a result which will affect him legally that is by curtailing his legal rights. It is difficult to say that the rule contemplates joining as a defendant a person whose only object is to prosecute his own cause of action. In Dalpat Kumar v. Prahlad Singh, (1992)2 M.L.J. 49, the Supreme Court has held that O.39, Rule 1 is primarily concerned with the preservation of the property in dispute till legal rights are adjudicated. Injunction is a judicial process by which a party is required to do or refrain from doing any particular act. It is in the nature of preventive relief to a litigant to prevent possible future injury. In other words the court on exercise of the power of granting ad interim injunction is to preserve the subject matter of the suit in the status quo for the time being. It is settled law that the grant of injunction is a discretionary relief. The exercise thereof is subject to the court satisfying that, (1) there is a serious disputed question to be tried in the suit and that on the facts before the court, there is probability of his being entitled to the relief asked for by the plaintiff/defendant, (2) the court's interference is necessary to protect the party from the species of injury.

In other words, irreparable injury or damage would ensure before the legal right would be established at trial, and (3) that the comparative hardship or mischief or inconvenience which is likely to occur from withholding the injunction will be greater than that would be likely to arise from granting. Therefore, the burden is on the plaintiff by evidence aliunde by affidavit or otherwise that there is a prima facie case in his favour which needs adjudication at the trial. The existence of the prima facie right and infraction of the enjoyment of his property or the right is a condition for the grant of temporary injunction. Prima facie case is not to be confused with prima facie title which has to be established on evidence at the trial. Only prima facie case is a substantial question raised, bona fide which needs investigation and a decision on merits. Satisfaction that there is a prima facie case by itself is not sufficient to grant injunction. The court further has to satisfy that non-interference by the court would result in irreparable injury to the party seeking relief and that there is no other remedy available to the party except one to grant injunction and he needs protection from the consequences of apprehended injury as dispossession. Irreparable injury however, does not mean that there must be no physical possibility of repairing the injury but means of only that the injury must be a material one namely one that cannot be adequately compensated by way of damages. The third condition also is that the balance of convenience must be in favour of granting injunction. The court while granting or refusing to grant injunction should exercise sound judicial discretion to find the amount of substantial mischief or injury which is likely to be caused to the parties if the injunction is refused and compare it with that which is likely to be caused to the other side if the injunction is granted. If on weighing competing possibilities or probabilities of likelihood of injury and if the court considers that pending the suit the subject matter should be maintained in status quo an injunction would be issued. Thus the court has to exercise its sound judicial discretion in granting or refusing the relief of ad interim injunction pending the suit. Undoubtedly in a suit seeking to set aside the decree the subject matter in the earlier suit though became final the court would in an appropriate case grant ad interim injunction when the party seeks to set aside the decree on the ground of fraud pleaded in the suit or for want of jurisdiction in the court which passed the decree. But the court would be circumspect before granting the injunction and look to the conduct of the party the probable injuries to either party and whether the plaintiff could be adequately compensated if injunction is refused.

Benami Transactions: The Supreme Court has held in Om Prakash v. Jai Prakash, (1992)2 M.L.J. 38, that this Court in Mithilesh Kumari v. Prem Behari Khare, (1989)2 S.C.C. 95, has already held that the expressions shall lie in Sec.4(1) and shall allow in Sec.4(2) of the Benami Act are prospective and shall apply to present future stages and future suit claims or actions only. The expression any property held benami is not limited to any particular time, date or duration. In a suit for recovery of benami property if any appeal is pending on the date of coming into force of Sec.4, the appellate court can take into account the subsequent legislative changes. In that case, this Court considered the 130th report of the Law Commission submitted to the Government on August 4, 1988. Benami Transaction (Prohibition) Bill, 1988 was drafted after getting the report and the Bill was introduced in the Rajya Sabha on August 1, 1988 and then the Bill was passed. The Law Commission's view was that the legislation replacing the Ordinance should be retrospective in operation and that no locus penitentie need be given to persons who had entered in the benami transaction in the past. The court is not convinced to take a different view from that already taken by this Court in Mithilesh Kumari v. Prem Behari Khare, (1989)2 S.C.C. 95.

Constitution of India: In Special Tahsildar Land Acquisition Visakhapatnam v. A. Mangala Gowri, (1992)1 M.L.J. 6, the Court has held that it is settled law that the High Court and the reference court when made wrong application of a principle on important points affecting valuation has been overlooked or is applied this Court would under Art.136 correct the same. The Supreme Court has held in Workmen represented by Secretary v. Rep-takos Brett and Co. Ltd., (1992)2 M.L.J. 16, that the tribunal and the High Court in this case has acted in total oblivion of the legal position as propounded by the Supreme Court in various judgments. Manifest injustice has been caused to the workmen by the award under appeal. The court sees no force in the contention that so long as there is some basis some material to validate the award the jurisdiction under Art.136 stands repelled.

Hindu Law: In B.T.Govindappa v. B.Narasimhaiah, (1992)1 M.L.J. 3, the Supreme Court has held that there can be no manner of doubt that a Hindu woman is the full owner and entitled to deal with her Stridhana property as shebaities. She can also put any restriction or constituent of her rights by her own consent and free will in her stridhana property.

Land Acquisition: In Nutakki Sesharatanam v. Sub-Collector, Land Acquisition, Vijayawada, (1992)1 M.L.J. 26, the court has held that the acquisition of the land is bad in law because the substance of the notification under Sec.4(1) of the said Act was not published in the locality within forty days of the publication of the notification in the Government Gazette. The time limit of forty days for such publication in the locality has been made mandatory by Sec.4(1) of the said Act by Andhra Pradesh (Amendment) Act. It is well settled that such non-compliance renders acquisition bad in law. The Supreme Court has held in State of Tamil Nadu v. A.Mohammed Yousf, (1992)1 M.L.J. 14, that Chapter VII of the Madras State Housing Board Act containing Secs.35 to 69 deals with the framing of the scheme. The Act has laid down separate procedures for the different types of schemes. The different types of schemes according to necessity and suitability. Some of the schemes do not require acquisition of land which is however essential for constructing residential buildings under the house scheme. Sec.39 of the Act therefore, while enumerating the matters to be included in the scheme specification mentions acquisition of land in clause (a). If the acquisition is contemplated as a subject matter of the scheme itself it follows that it must await the preparation of the scheme where it will be included. The Act requires the proposed scheme to be published permitting objections to be made and if they are found to be valid under Sec.53 the scheme to be modified or abandoned. Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.49 directs the notice of the draft housing scheme to include and specify the following information as contained in clause (b) for the purpose of the publication and information to the general public the place or places at which particulars of the scheme a map of the area and details of the land which it is proposed to acquire and of the land in regard to which it is proposed to recover a betterment fee may be seen at reasonable hours. The words of the land which it is proposed to acquire reaffirm the position that the acquisition of the land has to be a part of the scheme which can be executed only after its publication. Apart from the provisions of Sec.53, Sec.56 further clothes the Board with the power to alter or cancel the scheme even after it is finally sanctioned. The language of clause (b) of the proviso to the section once more leads to the same conclusion that acquisition of land has to await the framing of the scheme. In A.Viswanatha Pillai v. Special Tahsildar for Land Acquisition No.IV, (1992)1 M.L.J. 1, the Bench has held that a co-owner is as much an owner of the entire property as to a sole owner of the property. It is not correct to say that a co-owner's property was not its own. He owns several parts of the composite property along with others and it cannot be said that he is only a part owner or a fractional owner of the property. That position will undergo a change only when partition takes place and division was effected by metes and bounds. Therefore, a co-owner of the property is an owner of the property acquired, but entitled to receive compensation pro rata. The State would plead no waiver nor omission of other co-owners to seek reference nor disentitle than to award to the extent of their legal entitlement when in law they are entitled to since the acquired property being the ancestral co-parcenary and continued to be kept in co-owners among the brothers and the income derived therefrom was being shared in properties their shares by all brothers it remained a joint family property. When one of the co-owners a coparceners made reference in his application that himself and his brothers are dissatisfied with the award made by the Collector and that they are entitled to higher compensation it would be clear that he was making a request though not expressly stated so but by necessary implication that he was acting on behalf of other co-owners or co-parceners and was seeking a reference on behalf of other co-parceners as well. What was acquired was their totality of right title and interest in the acquired property and when the reference was made in respect thereof under Sec.18, they are equally entitled to receive compensation as per their share. The Bench has held in Bhagwathula Samanna v. Special Tahsildar and Land Acquisition Officer, Visakhapatnam Municipality, Visakhapatnam, (1992)1 M.L.J. 9, that in awarding compensation in acquisition proceedings the court has necessarily to determine the market value of the land as on the date of the relevant notification. It is useful to consider the value paid for similar land at the material time under genuine transactions. The market value envisages the price which a willing purchaser may pay under bonafide transfer to a willing seller. The land value can differ depending upon the extent and nature of the land sold. A fully developed small plot in an important locality may fetch a higher value than a larger area in an undeveloped condition as situated in a remote locality. By comparing the price shown in the transactions all variables have to be taken into consideration. The transaction in regard to smaller property cannot therefore be taken as a real basis for fixing the compensation for larger tracts of property. In fixing the market value of a large property generally a deduction is given taking into consideration the expenses required for development of the larger tract to make smaller plots within that area in order to compare with the small plots dealt with under the sale transaction. The principle of deduction in the land value covered by the comparable sale is adopted in order to arrive at the market value of the acquired land. In applying the principle it is necessary to consider all relevant facts. It is not the extent of the area covered under the acquisition which is the only relevant factor. Even in the vast area there may be land which is fully developed having all amenities and situated in an advantageous position. If a smaller area within the large tract is already developed and suitable for building purposes and have in its vicinity roads, drainage, electricity, communications, etc. then the principle of deduction simply for the reason that it is part of the large tract acquired may not be justified. The proposition that large area of land cannot possibly fetch a price at the same rate at which small plots are sold is not absolute proposition and in given circumstances, it would be permissible to take into account the price fetched by the small plots of land. If the larger tract of land because of advantageous position is capable of being used for the purpose for which the smaller plots are used and is also situated in a developed area with little or no requirement of further development the principle of deduction of the value for the purpose of comparison is not warranted. In Mir Fazeelath Hussain v. Special Deputy Collector, Land Acquisition, Hyderabad, (1992)2 M.L.J. 59, the Supreme Court has held that there is a slight distinction in the case of award of solatium and the award of interest on the amount of compensation. The solatium is given on account of compulsory acquisition while the interest is awarded to compensate the delayed payment of the amount of compensation to which the claimant becomes entitled as soon as possession is taken from him till the payment is made in the court. Thus, so far as the grant of solatium for compulsory nature of the acquisition is concerned it comes into operation on the date when the award is given by the Collector or the court and the rate of solatium would be governed according to the rate prevailing on the date of award made by the Collector or the court. But, so far as the payment of compensation is concerned the grievance continues till the entire amount is paid to the claimant.

Landlord and Tenant: The Bench has held in D.C. Oswal v. V.K. Subbiah, (1992)2 M.L.J. 23, that in the several statutes operating in the different States regulating the law relating to landlord and tenant wilful default is not. A situation where the landlord has consented to collect rent for two to three years at a time non-payment of rent for three months at the time of filing of the case the court is prepared on the basis of the evidence on record that it was not a case of wilful default.

Pratap Singh, J.

Kovilpatti Sri Dhanadayuthapani Trust, through its Hugdar A.Seethalakshmi v.
Tilakaraj.

17th February, 1993.

C.R.P.No.3431 of 1992.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), Secs.17 and 49 - Lease for rent of Rs.700 per month - Unregistered document showing that lease was extinguished and also showing that possession of premises was handed over to the lessor - If can be admitted in evidence.

Held:- The prohibition against admissibility enacted by Sec.49 of the Registration Act is not an absolute one, but the section renders the unregistered document inadmissible only for the two limited purposes specified in clauses (a) and (c) and leaves it available to be used in evidence for other purposes. The last sentence of the document sought to be filed would amount to extinguishment of the lease. As such this is a document compulsorily registrable under Sec.17 of the Registration Act inasmuch as monthly rent was Rs.700. So to evidence extinguishment of the lease, this document cannot be received as evidence. But the penultimate sentence would indicate that possession was handed over by 'T' to 'S'. For the purpose of showing that possession was handed over, this document can be received in evidence since it is for a collateral purpose. If we apply the proposition of law which the court has deduced above, this document is made available to be used in evidence for the other purpose viz., with regard to handing over possession.

K.Alagiriswamy, Senior Counsel, for T.Ravikumar, P.T.S.Narendravasan and T.Muruganandan, for Petitioner.

P.P.Peppin Fernando, for Respondent.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

V.Ratnam, Acting Chief Justice and Somasundaram, J.

Managing Director, Repatriate Co-operative Finance and Development Bank Ltd. v.
Deputy Commissioner of Labour-II, Madras-6.

2nd February, 1993.

W.A.No.1008 of 1989.

(A) Appeal - Act conferring right of appeal - Repealed - Repealing enactment providing a new forum - Effect of.

The right of appeal is a substantive right and gets vested in a litigant no sooner the lis is commenced in a suit in a Court of first instance and such right or any remedy in respect thereof will not be affected by any repeal of the enactment conferring such right. Unless the repealing enactment either expressly or by necessary implication takes away such right or remedy in respect thereof. However, the forum where such an appeal can be lodged is a procedural matter and therefore if the repealing Act provides a new forum where the remedy by way of appeal or legal proceedings in respect of such vested right can be perused after the repeal, the forum must be as provided in the repealing Act.

(B) Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act (XXXVI of 1947), Secs.6 and 41 - Tamil Nadu Co-operative Societies Act (LIII of 1961), Sec.11 - Appeal by the dismissed employee before Deputy Commissioner of Labour - Jurisdiction of the Deputy Commissioner.

When the special by-laws were registered before the Registrar under Sec.11 of the 1961 Act on 12.4.1978, by virtue of G.O.Ms.No.5780, the appellant bank is exempted from the provisions of Sec.41 of the Act and only the new forum provided under the special by-laws namely the Central Registrar can hear and dispose of the appeal filed by the second respondent against the order of the appellant bank dismissing him from service. The second respondent was dismissed from service on 21.7.1975 and on that date, the second respondent had the right of appeal under Sec.41 of the Act and, as a matter of fact, the second respondent had filed on appeal before the first respondent on 25.8.1975 and the appeal was pending before the first respondent when the special by-laws were registered under Sec.11 of the 1961 Act on 12.4.1978. Therefore, from 12.4.1978, the appellant bank gets an exemption from the provisions of Sec.41 of the Act and thereafter, only the provisions of the special by-laws dealing with the dispensing with the services of the employees of the appellant bank, the right of appeal available to such employees whose services has been dispensed with and the forum of appeal will apply in the place of Sec.41 of the Act. Again clause 6(d) of the special by-laws provides the forum before which an appeal can be filed against the order of the appellant bank dispensing with the services of any employee of the bank. The vested right of appeal available to the employees of the appellant bank to prefer appeals against the orders of the appellant Bank dispensing with their services is not taken away by the incorporation of the model by-laws in the registered by-laws of the appellant Bank and by the registration of such by-laws under Sec.11 of the 1961 Act, but such right of appeal is preserved and kept in tact under Clause (d) of the special by laws. On 12.4.1978 when the special by-laws were registered, they have repealed Sec.41 of the Act and the clause 6(d) of the Special by-laws provides a new forum of appeal before which an appeal can be filed against the order dispensing with the services of the employee of the appellant bank. The appeal filed by the second respondent and which was pending before the first respondent could be pursued after the registration of the special by-laws only before the new forum viz., the Central Registrar. After the registration of the Special by-laws under Sec.11 of the 1961 Act on 12.4.1978, the second respondent ought to have asked for the transfer of the appeal to the new forum provided under Clause 6(d) of the special by-laws or the first respondent himself should have transferred the appeal in the Central Registrar. In these circumstances, it has to be held that after 12.4.1978, the first respondent had no jurisdiction to hear and dispose of the appeal filed by the second respondent under Sec.41 of the Act and which was pending on that day.

B.S. ----- Appeal allowed.

Janarthanam, J.

Sri Mahalingawami Devasthanam, Thiruvudaimurthur v.
State of Tamil Nadu.

3rd February, 1993.

W.P.No.6918 of 1984.

Tamil Nadu Levy of Ryotwari Assessment on Freehold Lands Act (XXXI of 1973) - Object of - Determination of issuance of rough patta to occupiers of lands - Permissibility.

Held:- It is clear that the object of the Act is only to provide for the levy of ryotwari assessment as free-hold land in the State of Tamil Nadu. It does not purport to affect or alter in any manner other rights in the free-hold land. Ryotwari settlement of free-hold land can be effected in accordance with the settlement notification framed and published by the Government for the purpose. The object of various notices now under challenge is not only to bring the lands in question on par with similarly situate ryotwari lands for the purpose of assessment but also for the purpose of deciding the question as to the entitlement of rough patta of these lands by the occupiers.

B.Kumar, for Petitioner.

V.Raghupathy, Government Pleader, for Respondents.

B.S. ----- Petition allowed in part.

Bellie, J.

Steel Authority of India Ltd. Madras-6 v.
The Union of India, owning South Eastern Railway, Calcutta.

8th February, 1993.

A.S.No.328 of 1982.

(A) Torts - Damages for short delivery of goods - Railway receipt showing 51.660 M.T., was consigned - 48.300, M.T. alone delivered - Endorsement of consignee that contents received intact fully - It will absolve Railways from liability.

As per Ex.B-1 railway receipt, the weight of the consignment was 51.660 M.T., This being the case, the Railways are bound by that weight and it is not open to them to contend that the medicals consigned were not of that weight. It has to be held that while loading, the consignment was of the weight of 51.660 M.T. That being the case, if, on arrival at the destination any storage is found, only the defendants are responsible for that shortage. Ex.B-3 endorsement 'Received (8) intact fully' for whatever reason it was made by the plaintiff, will not absolve the defendants from their liability.

(B) Torts - Damages for short delivery of goods - Consignment partly carried by Railways and partly by Railways belonging to the Madras Port Trust - Liability for shortage.

It is not the case of defendants 1 and 2 that the shortage has occurred while the consignment was in transit in the Railways of the third defendant Port Trust or it was in their (Port Trust's) Custody and it is not the case of the third defendant that the storage occurred when the consignment was to transit in the first and second defendant's railway. In this position, it would be quite reasonable and lawful to hold that both the defendants 1 and 2 as well as the third defendant are jointly and severally liable to make good the shortage.

B.Rajagopalan, for Appellant.
R.G.Rajan, and P.S.Srisailam, for Respondent.

B.S. ----- Appeal allowed.

Abdul Hadi, J.

K.R.Murugesan v.
The Chairman Ex-Servicemen Welfare, represented by the Collector, Vellore.

18th January, 1993.

C.R.P.No.47 of 1993.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.10(2)(ii)(b) - Building leased for cycle shop business - Business not abandoned - substantial quantity of liquor found stored in building - Building if can be said to be used for a purpose other than that for which it was leased.

From the fact that a very substantial quantity liquor bottles had been stored in the demised building, it is not difficult to infer that at least a substantial part of the building was used by the petitioner for the liquor trade. Therefore, every assuming that the original cycle business was not altogether abandoned, the relevant clause in Sec.10 would be satisfied.

K.R.Ramabhadran, for Petitioner.

B.S. ----- Petition dismissed.

Thangamani, J.

S.Kuppurathinam v.
A.R.Munirathinam

22nd January, 1993.

A.A.O.No.852 of 1985.

(A) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.41, Rule 27 and O.13, Rule 2 - Documents available in court - Omitted to be marked due to inadvertence - Party, if can be allowed to mark them by appellate court.

It is true that the provisions of O.41, Rule 27, C.P.C. should be strictly complied with by the lower appellate Court. However, it cannot be gainsaid that only by inadvertence, the documents available in Court were omitted to be marked during trial by the present respondent. At the most, it can reflect only on the carelessness of the counsel concerned in conducting the case. It is unfortunate that even in the lower appellate court, the advocate appearing for the present respondent had not cared to file an application seeking permission to put in additional evidence. However, the party need not be penalised for the mistake of the counsel. Under O.13, Rule 2, C.P.C. additional evidence could be received at any subsequent stage of the proceedings if good cause is shown to the satisfaction of the court for the non-production thereof. While, so interests of justice as contemplated under O.41, Rule 23 requires that the respondent herein is given an opportunity to mark the documents already available in Court as additional evidence and have a decision on consideration of the entire materials on record in respect of his liability to render accounts in case he has functioned as an agent under the present appellants.

(B) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.41, Rule 23 - Suit whether can be remanded by appellate court merely to give opportunity to a party to let in additional evidence.

There cannot be any remand merely for the purpose of affording an opportunity to a party to let in additional evidence. The expression 'interest of justice' occurring in O.41, Rule 23 does not wider the powers of the appellate court to remand a suit in the sense that irrespective of the fact whether it comes to the conclusion that the judgment and decree of the trial court are liable to be reversed or set aside or not, if the appellate court is of the opinion that the interests of justice require that there should be a fresh trial, it can remand the suit for fresh disposal. There is no principle or authority to support such a contention. It is clear from the scheme of the rules that generally speaking, only where it is not possible to apply O.41, Rules 24 to 27, C.P.C., a remand should be resorted to under O.41, Rule 23, C.P.C.

*P.Veeraraghavan, for Appellants.
C.Jaganathan, for Respondent.*

B.S. ----- Appeal allowed.

Mishra, J.

Jayarama Naidu v.
The State of Tamil Nadu.

9th November, 1992.

W.P.No.4067 of 1984.

(A) Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Secs.4(1) and Rule 3 under Sec.5-A - Publication of primary notification under Sec.4(1) and publication of substance of such notification at convenient places in the locality - If mandatory - Notice in Form I in Rule 3 under Sec.5-A containing substance of notification whether would satisfy the requirement of publication of substance of notification.

It has been settled by now that there is no ambiguity of any kind in the principle that publication of primary Notification under Sec.4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act is mandatory and not only the publication in the official gazette but publication of the substance of such notification at convenient places in the locality is also mandatory.

(B) Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Secs.4(1) - Notification under - Publication of - Some defect in notice - Court thinking that mandatory requirement of publication of substance of notification has not been complied with - Effect - If automatically nullifies acquisition proceedings.

In case where there is some defect in the notice of a sort that a Court may think that the mandatory requirement of the publication of the substance of the notification under Sec.4(1) has not been complied with, the Court shall not for the reason of non-compliance of this requirement alone nullify any acquisition proceedings unless it is shown that the petitioners have suffered for want of notice in the sense that they lost the opportunity to participate in the enquiry under Sec.5(1) of the Act for the reason of want of notice or could not make any representation in the case of urgency acquisition to the proper authorities to show that it was not a case for the acquisition of their lands. No remedy is extended unless it is required to redress an injury. Unless such injury is sustained, no remedy is required. The court may not, for the reason of a mere non-compliance with the requirement of a mandatory provision like to interfere with a concluded proceeding unless the petitioners without such interference have suffered any legal injury.

V.Raghavachari, for Petitioner.

B.S. ----- Petition dismissed.

K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

S.Mohan v.
The Government of Tamil Nadu.

26th November, 1992.

W.P.No.2527 of 1990.

Civil Services - Disciplinary enquiry - Punishing authority differing from enquiring authority - Reasons for taking different decision to be given - Order passed without application of mind, cannot be sustained - High Court whether can go into the question of quantum of punishment.

On a perusal of the materials placed before the court, it has to be held that the impugned order shows the non-application of mind. The impugned order proceeds on the footing as if 'demand' and 'acceptance' are proved by the enquiry authority. A reading of the enquiry report does not show that the enquiry authority has held that only the demand portion alone is proved. But the punishing authority has come to the conclusion that it has been clearly proved, on the report of the enquiry officer, the charge stands with regard to 'demand' and 'acceptance' of the bribe. No reasons are stated in the impugned order as to how such a conclusion has been arrived at when the punishing authority normally, differs from the enquiry report, the least what could be expected is that reasons should be stated therein as to why a different decision has been taken. A reading of the impugned order shows that no reasons are stated therein for differing from the report of the enquiry officer. In such a circumstances, the impugned order has got to be set aside.

*S.Sundar for Aiyar and Dolia, for Petitioner.
P.Balasubramaniam, Additional Government
Pleader, for Respondent No.1.
S.Doraisamy, for Respondent No.2.*

B.S. ----- Petition allowed.

A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

M/s.Rolab Polymers (P) Ltd. v.
M/s.Subhadra Enterprises.

9th February, 1993.

C.A.No.1168 of 1992 in C.P.No.112 of 1991.

Arbitration Act (X of 1940), Sec.34 - Expression - 'Any matter agreed to be referred' - Meaning of - Company admitting its liability for a particular amount - Not making payment - Petitioner filing winding up of the company - Matter whether can be said to have been agreed to be referred to proceedings - Whether can be stayed.

Held: It would be seen from Sec.34 of the Arbitration Act, that the legal proceeding which can be stayed should be a proceeding in respect of any matter agreed to be referred. The expression "any matter agreed to be referred" makes it clear that, unless the matter has been agreed to be referred, the proceeding cannot be stayed even though it may incidentally have a bearing upon the contract providing for arbitration. In the instant case, it cannot, by any stretch of reason, be said that the parties contemplated that any reference to arbitration for winding up the applicant-company was possible or could be done by an arbitrator. In that view, the company petition is not liable to be stayed.

*Hajee P.K.Jamal Mohammed, for Applicant.
A.Chandramouleeswaran, for Respondent.*

B.S. ----- Petition dismissed.

A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

Manoj Kumar Sonthalia v.
Nariman Point Building Services and Trading (P) Ltd., Bombay.

24th February, 1993.

Appln. No.5130 of 1992 in C.S.Nos.1246 and 1247 of 1992.

Specific Relief Act (XLVII of 1963), Sec.41 - Injunction - Grant of - Right of Plaintiff infringed - Injunction, if can be granted.

The jurisdiction to grant a perpetual injunction is discretionary. In deciding whether an injunction should be granted, the Court has to consider (a) whether the right of the plaintiff has been infringed and (b) whether under all the circumstances of the case, an injunction ought to be granted as the proper and appropriate remedy for such infringement. In this case, the right of the plaintiff has not been infringed at all and the plaintiff only speaks for 'K' and against the appointment of 'P.C.' and makes allegations against 'P.C.' in his absence. Under the circumstances, the Court is of the view that an injunction as prayed for cannot be granted since granting of injunction is not the proper and appropriate remedy in the instant case.

Arvind P. Datar, for Plaintiff.

P. Chidambaram, Senior Counsel, G.E. Vahan Vati, Senior Counsel, Arun Jaithey, Senior Counsel, Darius Khambatta Senior Counsel and Nowroz Seervai, Senior Counsel, for Defendant.

B.S. ---- Application dismissed.

K.S. Bakthavatsalam and
D. Raju, JJ.

S. Senthil Kumar, represented by father and Natural Guardian N. Subbarayan v.
The Government of Tamil Nadu, rep. by its Secretary, Health Department,
Madras-600 009.

13th October, 1992.

W.P. Nos. 10337, 10453, 10482, 10483 etc. of 1992.

(A) Constitution of India (1950), Art. 226 - Admission to professional colleges for academic year 1992-93 - Division Bench of Madras High Court directing admission on the basis of results of the entrance examination - In appeals state accepting suggestion of Supreme Court for an increase of number of seats limited to 10% of the total seat - Supreme Court remitting matter to High Court - Held, order has to be read as giving direction to decide the modality of admission and not to increase the number of seats beyond 10% of seats.

If the order of the Supreme Court is read as a whole (it has to be done normally), certainly the State Government has accepted the suggestion of the Supreme Court for an increase of number of seats but limited to 10% of the seats in all professional course for the academic year 1992-93. So, in the opinion of the court, it is not possible to accept the contentions raised by the learned counsel who have appeared for the various petitioners that it is possible for this court to read something into the order of the Supreme Court and increase the number of seats. It is clear from the order of the Supreme Court that this Court has to give opportunity to all the petitioners of being heard and then decide on the way the seats have to be filled by whether by taking the entrance marks into consideration or the usual method of taking into consideration the marks in the qualifying examination and the marks in the entrance examination. So, a reading of the order of the Supreme Court shows a limited direction is given to this Court to decide about the modality of admission.

(B) Constitution of India (1950), Art. 226 - Writ of mandamus - If lies against provisions of a statute. It is well-settled that no mandamus can lie against the provisions of a statute.

(C) Constitution of India (1950), Art. 226 - Jurisdiction under - Court, if can create additional seats in Medical Colleges.

Unless the State Government and the Indian Medical Council consent for creation of additional seats, a counter sitting under Art. 226 of the Constitution cannot increase the number of seats, or in other words, create additional seats.

(D) Constitution of India (1950), Art. 226 - Admission to professional courses for academic year 1992-93. Petitioners aggrieved by order of Government moving Court - Court issuing directions to provide seats for them - Students or candidates not actually before court, if can be considered.

While the court has decided to issue suitable directions to provide seats for all those who are before this Court and when are found eligible and satisfying the required and respective out off marks in terms of the criteria stipulated in the prospectus, the court cannot take into consideration the students or candidates who are not actually before court by invoking the jurisdiction of the Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India.

R. Gandhi, Senior Counsel, for K. Ravichandra Babu, T.S. Sivagnanam, R.G. Narendran, N. Paul Vasanthakumar, L. Chandrakumar and N. Kandaswamy, for Petitioners.

K. Subramanian Advocate-General Assisted by A.S. Venkatachalamoorthy, Special Government Pleader, for State.

S. Subbiah, for M/s. Row and Reddy and Vellaichamy, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Directions issued

A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

Gannon Dunkerley and Company (Madras)
Ltd. (In liquidation) rep. by the Official Liquidator, High Court, Madras v.
The Government of Tamil Nadu.

18th February, 1993.

Com.Appln.No.596 of 1992
in C.P.No.83 of 1968.

(A) Companies Act (I of 1956), Secs.446, 456 and 457 - Company in liquidation - Assets of - Disposal of - Court alone empowered to give directions for.

(B) Tamil Nadu Urban Land Ceiling and Regulation Act (XXIV of 1978), Sec.21 - Object of Act (XXIV of 1978), Sec.21 - Object of Act - Company in liquidation - Disposal of excess vacant urban land - Exemption from provisions of Act - Government, if can refuse.

The Official Liquidator of the High Court was appointed as Official Liquidator of the Gannon Dunkerley and Company. He filed C.A.No.692 of 1982 for quashing the order of the Government in respect of a delectation made for the company's and as surplus and applied for exemption from the provisions of the Tamil Nadu Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulations) Act. During the hearing, the Advocate General represented that the State Government had issued an order under which companies in liquidation would be given exemption in relation to land held by them. The Court directed the Official Liquidator to apply for the exemption. But his application was rejected by the Government. A fresh application was made but it was also rejected on the ground that the lands had already vested in the Government. The Official Liquidator filed an application to direct the Government to quash the orders.

Held:- It is to be seen that the land and other assets of the company in liquidation are vested in the Court and no action can be taken by any statutory authority without the leave of the Court under Sec.446 of the Companies Act and in respect of the properties which vest in Court by virtue of Sec.456 of the Companies Act, 1956, only the Court is empowered to give direction Under Sec.457 of the Companies Act and the Court may exercise the power under the said section by quashing the impugned order dated 21.2.1992 and permit the Official Liquidator to sell the land.

The object of the Act is to impose a ceiling on vacant land and to regulate the construction of building thereon with a view to prevent the concentration of urban land in a few hands and to prevent speculation and profiteering in such lands apart from the object of achieving equitable distribution of land to subserve common good. Sec.21 of the Act empowers the Government to exempt any vacant land in public interest and also in cases where such exemption is considered necessary to avoid undue hardship to any person. It is to be noticed that the power to exempt under Sec.21 of the Act is a power coupled with a duty and when the facts so warrant or exist, the discretion must be used and the authority cannot refused to exercise the power of discretion. It is now well-settled that the words which are permissive in character will become obligatory where the thing to be done is for public benefit or in advancement of public justice. By giving the exemption sought for from holding the excess vacant land and for sale of the same, the dominant purpose of the legislature is not at all defeated. Unless a fair value at current market price is realised for the vacant lands of the company, it would become impossible to pay those creditors even a fraction of the amount due which will cause them considerable hardship. The large body of creditors comprising of workmen, employees, traders and persons who had advanced loans belonging to different walks of life are eagerly looking forward to receive at least a portion of the debt due to them and granting exemption for direct sale of the vacant land would only meet the ends of equity and social justice.

Vedantham Srinivasan, for Applicant.
R.Swaminathan, Additional Government Pleader, T.R.Mani, Senior Counsel and A.S.Kailasam, for Respondents.

B.S.

Direction given.

Bellie, J.

Mishra and
S.M.Ali Mohamed, JJ.

M/s.A.B.T.Parcel Service by Proprietors Annamalais Bus Transport (P) Ltd., Pollachi v.
City Palayakat Company its Managing Partner
M.Subbaraya Mudaliar.

M.James v S.Issac Banerjee.

2nd February, 1993.

25th January, 1993.

A.S.No.783 of 1982.

O.S.A.No.198 of 1986.

Carriers Act (III of 1865), Secs.8 and 9 - Carrier's liability - Genuine way bill sent by consignors to consignee presented to carrier for delivery of goods - No specific instruction to carrier regarding persons who would bring waybills for taking delivery of goods - Staff members of carrier dealing with several customers - Carrier, if liable for negligence when goods are delivered to the person presenting genuine way-bill.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.92 (as amended by (CIV of 1976) - Applicability - Grant of leave - Conditions for - Averment in the plaint - That church is a religious trust - That the affairs have not been administered according to provisions stipulated' - Praying for a scheme - Requirements of section whether satisfied.

When the genuine waybill sent by the consignors to the consignee is presented to the defendant for delivery of goods, the defendant has to deliver the goods. In this case, there is no special instruction by the plaintiff regarding the persons who would bring the waybills for taking delivery of the goods or regarding the staff members who only would make the authorisation. It is the further case of the defendant that their staff members are transferred from one branch to another. Therefore, they cannot be expected to be familiar with the staff members of the customers. Further, the staff members of the defendant have to deal with several customers who present several waybills and therefore when genuine waybills are presented, normally they are expected to deliver the goods unless there is anything glaring which should arouse their suspicion. For these reasons, it cannot be said that the defendants were negligent in delivering the goods.

After amendment of Sec.92, C.P.C. under Act CIV of 1976, leave of the Court has to be obtained instead of written consent of Advocate General. The discretion of the court to grant leave or not to grant leave under Sec.92, C.P.C. has to be exercised according to known principles of law. It is clear that there are sufficient averments in the plaint to the effect that the church is a religious trust and the affairs of the religious trust have not been administered in accordance with the provisions stipulated and there is also a prayer for framing a scheme. The averments made in the plaint prima facie satisfied the requirement of the suit filed under Sec.92, C.P.C. The merits of the issue will not arise at the stage of granting leave or refusal to grant leave under Sec.92, C.P.C.

S.Dhamakhan, for Appellant.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

N.C.Rangarajan, for Appellant.
C.N.Sivakumar, for Respondent.

Bellie, J.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

The Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras v.
V.P.S.Nammalwar.

12th February, 1993.

A.S.No.749 of 1982.

(A) Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (II of 1927), Sec.9(7) - Earlier decision of the High Court - Holding an institution a 'math' - Later decision (stating) that the institution was only a samadhi (as a passing comment) - Earlier decision, held will prevail.

(B) Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (II of 1927) - Tamil Nadu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XXII of 1959) - Definition of 'math' under both Acts same with only difference that math should have properties under later Act - Decision of High Court holding that institution was 'math' under old Act - Can be followed even after passing of the later Act.

The respondent filed a suit under Sec.70 of the Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1959 for setting aside the orders passed by the Deputy Commissioner and the Commissioner holding that the Dhakshinamoorthy Math was a math. The trial court relied on a decision of the High Court in A.S.No.2 of 1963 holding that it was only a samadhi in preference to an earlier Division Bench in A.A.O.No.472 of 1951.

Held: In A.S.No.2 of 1963, it was not a point for decision whether the Dhakshinamoorthy math was a math or samadhi. No such issue had been framed. It was only while giving a decision whether the first defendant therein was ineligible to be the trustee of the math, the High Court has made the statement that the math was only a samadhi. It is only a passing comment made by the High Court and it is not a finding. In the earlier Division Bench judgment of the High Court in A.No.472 of 1957, the direct question was whether 'Dhakshinamoorthy math' was a math or not and it was decided that it was a math. Therefore, on the question as issue, this earlier judgment of the High Court would prevail.

If the definition of 'math' in the earlier Act is substantially the same as the definition in the later para and there is no significant change, then it would be quite justified to follow the decision of the High Court rendered under the earlier Act. A close scrutiny of the definitions of 'math' in the two Acts would show that the only difference in that while as per the later definition properties shall be attached to the institution in question, in the earlier definition there is no such thing. In all other respects, the definitions are similar. Hence, if there are properties attached to 'Dhakshinamoorthy math', then there is no difficulty in relying on the finding given in the earlier judgment of the High Court to hold that the institution is a math or not. In the plaint itself it is mentioned that 'Dhakshinamoorthy math' has its own properties.

P.M.Bhaskaran, Assistant Government Pleader, for Appellant.

B.Kumar, for Respondent.

B.S. ----- Appeal allowed.

Srinivasan and Thangamani, JJ.

Nanjammal (died) v.
Palaniammal.

2nd March, 1993.

A.S.No.205 of 1987.

(A) Specific Relief Act (XLVII of 1963) - Suit for specific performance of agreement - Agreement made out to be true - Court, if bound to enforce agreement.

The normal rule is that once the truth of the agreement is made out, the Court shall enforce it unless there are circumstances which would prove that equity suffer by enforcing the agreement for sale.

(B) Specific Relief Act (XLVII of 1963), Sec.10 - Clause in agreement - Breach on part of defendant - He shall pay twice the amount advanced to plaintiff - Remedy of plaintiff - Whether claim only amount - Plaintiff, if can ask for specific performance of the contract.

The court is unable to accept the contention of the defendant that the plaintiff is not entitled to specific performance of contract in view of the provision for payment of damages in the event of breach by the defendant. There is no question of any option having been given by the agreement to the plaintiff to make an election. Hence, it is only a normal term of the contract fixing the liquidated sum of damaged. That does not prevent the plaintiff from enforcing the contract.

B.S. ---- Appeal dismissed.

Pratap Singh, J.

Abdul Salam v.
T.R. Vinod Kumar.

19th February, 1993.

C.R.P.No.2389 of 1992.

(A) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.24 and O.39, Rule 1 - Interim injunction obtained by one party - Other party insisting that application may be heard - Court insisting on hearing the application - Transfer of case from that Court on that ground - If can be made.

When a party had obtained an order of interim injunction and the other party insisted that the application may be heard, the Court should generally insist that application would be heard. A party in whose favour there is an injunction should be ready to argue the case particularly when the other side has already filed counter and was ready. It is seen from the petition that counter was filed on 24.4.1992 and the Sub Judge, had adjourned it to 28th, 1992 for arguments, though initially the learned Judge insisted the counsel for the petitioner to argue the matter. Simply because the Judge was anxious to dispose of the matter quickly, nothing can be imparted against him. On that score, a transfer cannot be made.

(B) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.24 - Transfer petition - Remarks called for - Court stating that it had no objection for the transfer - Case, if can be transferred on that ground.

The learned District Judge, has referred to the remarks submitted by the Sub Judge, in which he has referred the allegation that he made observation as alleged by the petitioner before him and has finally stated that he has no objection in transferring the case and taking that factor into account had transferred the case. Neither that can be a premises for transfer of a case from one court to another court.

*T.R.Rajagoplan, for Petitioner.
S.V.Sudheer, for Respondent.*

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

*Mishra and
S.M.Ali Mohamed, JJ.*

The Superintending Engineer, Fishing
Harbour Projects Circle, Nagercoil v.
M/s.Andhra Civil Construction Company, Madras.

17th February, 1993.

O.S.A.No.205 of 1992.

Arbitration Act (X of 1940) - Arbitration proceedings - Payment of excise duty under the Central Excises and Salt Act - Statutory liability of - If can be adjudicated in arbitration proceedings - Contracting parties if can confer jurisdiction in such proceedings by agreement - Condition in contract making it obligatory on either party to pay taxes etc. - If can be subject of arbitration.

It is only the authorities specified under the Central Excises and Salt Act, who have the jurisdiction to decide whether excise duty is attracted for casting of delouses and whether the same is manufacturing process. As per the Central Excises and Salt Act, excise duty is levied on manufacture of excisable goods, the person who is liable to pay is the manufactures viz. the persons who manufacture excisable goods. It is not open to contracting parties to oust the jurisdiction of authorities specified under the Act and confer jurisdiction to decide the matter in arbitration proceedings before the arbitrator the court is not unaware that parties themselves can create a contract and make obligatory on either of them payment of taxes, etc., and such a condition in the contract can be a subject of arbitration, if it is so provided in the contract. The Court, however, has not been persuaded to accept the extreme contention that a contract of this kind shall also mean a determination of the obligation of either party which would ultimately bind a statutory authority. The jurisdiction in this behalf created under a statutory authority shall remain unaffected and the authority concerned shall always proceed against the party obliged under the law concerned to pay the taxes.

R.Swaminathan, Additional Government Pleader, for Appellant.
T.Raghavan, for Respondent.

B.S. ----- Appeal allowed in part.

Janarthanam, J.

Rajambal Ammal v.
The Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Coimbatore.

24th February, 1993.

W.P.No.8127 of 1984.

Tamil Nadu Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XXII of 1959), Sec.53(4) - Two persons declared hereditary trustees of a temple - One of them placed under suspension pending enquiry into charges - Fit person, if could be appointed to perform the functions of the disabled trustee.

In the case on hand, it is not as if 'K' who had been placed under ad interim suspension on account of certain grave charges of acting against the interests of the temple pending enquiry is the lone and sole hereditary trustee. But the petitioner herein, namely, 'R' was also declared as a hereditary trustee alongwith 'K'. When such a hereditary trustee is available in flesh and blood who could very well be in effective charge of the administration of the temple in discharging the duties as well as performing the functions of the disabled 'K' there could have been no need for the appointment of respondent 2 as a fit person.

K.Jayaraman for Subramanya Rao and Ram Mohan, for Petitioner.

P.M.Bhaskaran, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondent.

B.S. ----- Petition allowed.

Mishra and
S.M.Ali Mohamed, JJ.

The State of Tamil Nadu represented by the Collector of Madras (Accommodation Wing), Madras v.
M.Kazim Khaleeli.

21st January, 1993.

O.S.A.Nos.175 and 176 of 1986.

(A) Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.3(5), proviso - Fair rent fixed for building taken over by Government - When becomes effective.

The fair rent fixed for the building taken over by the Government operates retrospectively from the date of tenancy subject to the law of limitation.

(B) Limitation Act (XXXVI of 1963), Art.52 - Suit for enhanced rent - Limitation for - Starting point.

The right to sue for enhanced rent accrues when the enhanced rent is ascertained.

B.S. ----- Appeal dismissed.

Srinivasan and Thangamani, JJ.

Abdul Hadi, J.

C.S.Sastri (died) v.
The Collector of Chengalpattu District at Kancheepuram.

Kamakshi v.
Minor Ramalingam alias Munusami.

12th January, 1993.

23rd February, 1993.

S.A.No.920 of 1982.

A.S.No.747 of 1982.

Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property Act (XXX of 1952), Sec.8(3) - Acquisition of property under compensation payable - Fixation of Principles for.

Under Sec.8(3) of Central Act XXX of 1952 compensation payable for the acquisition of any property shall be the price which the requisitioned property would have fetched in the open market if it had remained in the same condition as it was at the time of requisitioning and been sold on the date of acquisition. And there is no dispute that the lands under acquisition are dry cultivable lands. The market value envisages the price which a willing purchaser may pay under bonafide transfer to a willing seller. The land value can differ depending upon the extent and nature of the land sold. The principle of deduction in the land value covered by the comparable sale is thus adopted in order to arrive at the market value of the acquired land. In applying the principles, it is necessary to consider all relevant facts. The Supreme Court has pointed out in Chimanlal v. Special Land Acquisition Officer, Poona, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 1652, the factors that have to be borne in mind. The evaluation of those factors, of course, depends on the facts of each case. There cannot be any hard and fast or rigid rule. Common sense is the best and most reliable guide.

B.S. ----- Appeal dismissed.

(A) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.103 - Lower appellate court not giving into a question of factum of marriage - But gave a finding - High Court, if can go into the question in second appeal.

The lower appellate court has not specifically gone into the question of factum of marriage though it held that the marriage was void in view of the subsistence of the 1st defendant's earlier marriage. In the above context, in view of Sec.103, C.P.C., the court itself could go into the question of factum of marriage.

(B) Evidence Act (I of 1872), Sec.35 - Birth extract - Whether can be relied on to prove marriage between the parents.

The birth extract of the plaintiff cannot be relied on to prove the parentage of the plaintiff or, in other words, to prove the factum of marriage between the 1st defendant and 'S'.

(C) Hindu Marriage Act (XXV of 1955), Sec.16 - Applicability - Factum of marriage not proved - Section if applicable.

If the factum of marriage has not been proved, there is no scope for the application of Sec.16 of the Hindu Marriage Act.

(D) Hindu Marriage Act (XXV of 1955), Sec.11 - Marriage between two persons not proved - Parties to marriage if under obligation to seek declaration of nullity of marriage.

In Mulla's Hindu Law, Sixteenth Edition at page 648, it has been observed by way of commentary to Sec.11 of the Hindu Marriage Act that neither party is under any obligation to seek a declaration of nullity under Sec.11, though, of course, such a declaration may be asked for the purpose of precaution or record. The language used in Sec.11 also makes the said position clear.

19th February, 1993.

R.Subramaniam, for Appellant.
S.Swaminathan, for Respondent.

C.R.P.No.250 of 1993.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.7(2) - Tenant making an advance of Rs.3,000 to landlord - Excess amount not refunded by landlord - Tenant not asking landlord to adjust that amount towards arrears of rent - Tenant, if can be said to have committed wilful default in payment of rent.

Pratap Singh, J.

Kalianna Kounder v.
Marappa Kounder.

22nd February, 1993.

C.R.P.No.1638 of 1992 and
A.A.O.No.509 of 1992.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.38, Rule 6, Appendix F, Form No.6 - Security - Defendant, if can furnish third party security, personal or property.

It is evident that O.38, Rule 6, C.P.C., merely refers to the security. It does not refer to the nature of security. It does not indicate that it is not open to the defendant to furnish the third party security, personal or property. A reading of Form No.6 in Appendix F of C.P.C., would show that if the personal security of third party is not contemplated under O.38, Rule 5, C.P.C., the said form could not have been prescribed. The security referred to in O.38, Rule 6 is the security as contemplated under O.38, Rule 5, C.P.C.

R.Sekar, for Petitioner.
V.K.Muthusami, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition and appeal allowed.

Sec.7(2) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1960 makes it very clear that any amount paid by the tenant in excess of the agreed rent and one month advance if stipulated by the landlord shall be refunded by the landlord to the tenant. Thus, there is mandate of law to the landlord to refund that amount even though the tenant has not asked for that. But an option is given to the tenant to tell the landlord to adjust that amount towards rent and that the landlord shall do. The question is when the landlord has not refunded the said excess amount as enjoined on him by law even though the tenant has not asked him to adjust that amount towards the arrears of rent, can it be said that the tenant has committed wilful default in payment of rent. Obviously not, when the tenant's amount is with the landlord which the landlord ought to have refunded and he failed to do so, and the amount is more than the alleged arrears of rent, it does not lie in the mouth of the landlord to say that the tenant committed default much less wilful default in payment of rent because rent amount payable by the tenant and even more is already with the landlord.

T.P.Sankaran for Mrs.C.R.Rukmani, for Petitioner.
T.V.Ramanujam, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Bellie, J.

Nazimuddhin Ahmed represented by his wife and P.A.A.Nameeza Ahmed v.
K.Narasimha Rao.

Janarthanam, J.

K.M.Duraiswami v.
The Special Officer, The Coimbatore
Divisional Rural Co-operative Housing Society Limited.

10th March, 1993.

W.P.No.8357 of 1984.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Natural justice - Petitioner appointed irregularly in breach of rules - Services terminated without giving opportunity to show cause - Termination order, if can be sustained.

There is no pale of controversy that before even the petitioner was terminated from service, he was not given any notice to show cause why his services should not be terminated on the ground of his appointment having been irregular. Such a non-giving of an opportunity is definitely bad in law. The order of termination passed, as such, suffers from the vice of non-observation of the principles of natural justice and, therefore, such an order cannot at all be sustained and is accordingly quashed.

C.Xavier for P.Sharmugham, D.Balasundaram and K.Suguna, for Petitioner.
A.Ramanathan, for Respondent No.1.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Srinivasan and
Thangamani, JJ.

Nallya Gounder v.
P.Ramaswami Gounder (died)

25th Feburary, 1993.

A.S.No.817 of 1982.

Specific Relief Act (XLVII of 1963), Secs.9 and 10 - Person asking for specific performance - Not coming forward with clean hands - Relief refused.

In the present action, the court has no hesitation in negating specific performance for the reason that the plaintiffs have not come forward with clean hands in asking for the equitable relief.

G.Subramaniam, Senior Counsel, for K.Govindarajan, for Appellants.
K.Doraiswami, Senior Counsel, for Mrs.Muthumani Doraiswami, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

Srinivasan, J.

M/s.Ekambaranathan Chettiar Firm represented by its Partner E.Kanagasabapathy v.
The Commercial Tax Officer, Tuticorin.

12th March, 1993.

W.P.Nos.5715 to 5718 of 1987.

Central Sales Tax Act (LXXIV of 1956), Sec.10-A and C Form - Goods purchased with a view to resell - Put to use before resale - No loss of revenue to State alleged - No contravention of conditions of C Form - Penalty, held, cannot be levied.

It is clearly pronounced by this Court in T.C.Nos.564 and 565 of 1975 (Revision Nos.129 and 130 of 1975), that the law does not prevent the goods from being used before resale. The only condition is that the goods covered had been purchased with a view to re-sell. When that condition is satisfied, then there is no question of loss of revenue and the department cannot be aggrieved by the same.

K.Srinivasan, for Petitioner.
D.Francis Ashok, Government - Advocate, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petitions dismissed.

THE MADRAS LAW JOURNAL

I]

NOTES OF RECENT CASES

[1993

Ratnam and Somaśundaram, JJ.

Sri-la-Sri Sivasubramanyananda Swami v.
Sri-la-Sri Arunachalasamy, Chidambaram.

14th October, 1992.

C.M.P.No.14049 of 1990 in
App.No.730 of 1987.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.151 and O.39, Rule 2-A - Exercise of inherent powers under Sec.151 - Scope - Civil courts if can issue directions to police to extend their aid in the execution of decrees and orders or to implement orders of injunction passed by civil courts.

Sec.151 of the Civil Procedure Code confers power to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of process of court. Every court is constituted for the purpose of doing justice according to law and must be deemed to possess as a necessary corollary and as inherent in its very constitution, all such powers as may be necessary to do the right and to undo the wrong in the course of the administration of justice.

There is no provision in the Code providing for the implementation of the order of temporary injunction or decree for perpetual injunction granted by the courts. Therefore, when a party has obtained an order of temporary injunction from a court under O.39, Rule 1 of the Code and the other party against whom the order of injunction is passed disobeys the same, the aggrieved party can certainly approach the court invoking the power of the Court under Sec.151 and pray for police aid for the enforcement of the order of temporary injunction.

In view of the above position of law it has to be held that in appropriate cases, directions under Sec.151 of the Civil Procedure Code can be issued by the civil courts to the police authorities to extend their aid and assistance in the execution of decrees and orders or to render aid to aggrieved parties for the due and proper implementation of injunction orders granted by civil courts.

(1991)1 L.W. 513, overruled.

View of Shanmukham, J. in C.M.P.No.352 of 1986 in A.S.No.297 of 1980, approved.

G.Subramaniam for B.Kumar, for Appellant.
Ilango, for Respondent.

V.K. --- Petition allowed.

Lakshmanan, J.

P.R.Chockalingam v.
The Director of Tourism, Government of Tamil Nadu.

21st September, 1992.

W.P.No.3173 of 1990

Constitution of India (1950), Art.16(4) - Reservations to public appointments - Only one post to be filled up - If rule of reservation can be applied.

In the selection to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and counter service, the fourth respondent was selected in preference to the petitioner though the latter was placed in the waiting list No.1 on the sole ground that the Executive Committee had decided to fill up the vacancy from backward classes. The petitioner challenged the selection.

Held: The decisions reported in A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 959 and A.I.R. 1990 Kant. 320, are very clear that when there is only one post, the same has to be filled up without applying the rule of reservation. Admittedly, the Executive Committee after interview had decided to fill up the post from Backward Community candidate. This is not at all permissible in law. The competent authority has decided to fill up the post only from open competition. On the sole ground, the impugned order is liable to be set aside.

R.Krishnamurthi, Senior Counsel for M.S.Kandasami, K.Sukumar and Ravichandrababu, for Petitioner.

P.Shanmugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondent Nos.1 and 2.

K.Sridhar, for Respondent No.3.

R.Ganesan, for Respondent No.4.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Venkataswami, J.

J.Ramamurthy v.
M/s.Endas by Partner Moorjimal.

21st September, 1992.

C.R.P.No.3376 of 1989.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Secs.14(1)(b) and 19 - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.11 - Petition filed under Sec.14(1)(b) dismissed as not maintainable - Findings given on merits also - Finding if operates as res judicata or as bar under under Sec.19.

The landlord's earlier petition for eviction under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act was dismissed on the ground that he was only a life estate holder and that his claim was not bona fide. After the decision of the Supreme Court in A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1750, holding that a life estate holder could also file an eviction petition, the petitioner filed another petition for eviction under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act. It was allowed by the Rent Controller but that order was set aside by the appellate authority on the ground that the petition was barred under Sec.19 of the Act. In revision, Held: A perusal of the judgments in A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 80, (1976)1 M.L.J. 406 and (1983)2 M.L.J. 583 will clearly support the contention that when the dismissal of the earlier petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act was mainly on the ground that it was not maintainable any findings given on merits in that case will not operate as res judicata or as a bar under Sec.19 of the Act.

K.Sarvabhauman, Senior Counsel for M.S.Krishnan and S.Parthasarathi, for Petitioner.

S.V.Jayaraman, for S.K.Narayanan, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Srinivasan, J.

Ibrahim Ismail v.
The Superintendent of Customs,
Air Customs Pool, Madras Air Port.

14th September, 1992.

W.P.No.13125 of 1992.

Customs Act (LII of 1962), Sec.124, proviso - Proviso enabling authority to dispense with the issue of a written notice and making of written representation at the request of the person concerned - Object of - Provision, if constitutional violating Arts.14, 21 and 300-A of the Constitution of India - (Constitution of India (1950), Arts.14, 21 and 300-A.)

The purpose of the proviso is quite obvious. In several cases, the person concerned may be in a hurry to have the adjudication process completed within a short time so that he would know where exactly he stands. It depends on various circumstances including the immediate necessity for the release of the goods to the person affected. Quite often, it may depend on the nature of the goods too. In order to enable the persons affected to get the adjudication completed. Orally the Parliament has thought fit to introduce the proviso. It is only for the benefit of the persons affected and it does not in any way confer any right on the authorities to dispense with the procedure prescribed under Clauses (a) and (b) of the section at their sweet will and pleasure. The language of the proviso is very clear and there is no ambiguity whatever. The proviso can be invoked only when a request is made by the person concerned and not otherwise. There is no substance in the argument that the proviso is vague or arbitrary and that it does not provide for any guidelines for the invocation thereof. In view of the unambiguous terminology of the proviso, there is no necessity for any further guidelines or explanations. There is no merit in the contention that different officials may be handling different situations, some of them may be junior officials who may not know all the provisions of the Act, Rules and Notifications. No such presumptions can be made with reference to statutory authorities and as that ground, no provision of the statute can be invalidated. The contention that the cases to which the proviso is applicable are not specified and, therefore, the proviso is vague is also not acceptable. The proviso will apply to all cases in which order of confiscation of any goods or imposition of penalty is proposed to be made irrespective of the value of the goods. If the oral notice is in a language which can be understood by the person concerned and if the said notice satisfies the requirements of the law in that it informs the person concerned of all the grounds for the proposed order. It is sufficient compliance with the law and it gives a reasonable and fair opportunity to the person concerned. It cannot be said in such cases that he is deprived of an opportunity to know the grounds put against him. Incidentally, learned counsel contends that the proviso does not prescribe the language in which the oral notice should be given. Advisedly, the Parliament has not mentioned it as it is implied that the oral notice should be in such a language which can be understood by the person concerned. There is a reasonable classification in the section. The main section provides for a procedure to be adopted by the authorities in all cases generally. The proviso is an exception which can be invoked in cases where a specific request is made by the persons concerned. The persons who have made such a request to form a separate class different from others. The object of the section is in no way defeated by the notice and the representation being oral. They can be as effective as a written notice and a written representation. Thus, the proviso is not in any way unconnected with the object of the section. The contention that if a person makes a request for issue of oral notice, he will be waiving his fundamental right and that is opposed to law is unsustainable. There is no fundamental right to any particular procedure. The fundamental right is to have a fair and reasonable opportunity to make a representation and thereafter have a fair hearing. In other words, the right is to have a fair enquiry which is in accordance with the principles of natural justice. When a person prefers to have an oral notice under the proviso, he is not giving up his right to have a notice. He has not waived any right by that. He is only choosing the mode of such notice. The principle that a fundamental right cannot be waived by a person has no applicability to cases falling under the proviso. There is no must in the contention that Art.21 of the Constitution of India is violated by the proviso. Similarly, the contention that Art.300-A of the Constitution is violated has no basis whatsoever.

P.R.Krishnan, Senior Counsel for R.Thyagarajan and K.Geetha, for Petitioner.

C.A.Sundaram, Additional Central Government Standing Counsel, for Respondent.

B.S. ----- Petition dismissed.

Ratnam, J.

M/s.Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited

v.

M/s.Karthikeyan Agencies represented by its Partners.

21st August, 1992.

C.R.P.No.1411 of 1992.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.8, Rules 10, 6, 9, 9(2) - Civil Rules of Practice, Rule 32 - Suit instituted against four persons initially - Petitioner added as fifth defendant - Not filing any written statement in spite of grant of time - Set ex parte - Suit dismissed for default against all the defendants - Plaintiff filing application for restoration of suit - Petitioner not made party - Suit restored - Ex parte decree passed against the defendants 1 to 4 and also the petitioner - Sustainability.

The respondent instituted a suit O.S.No.143 of 1977 for declaration and for permanent injunction. Defendants 1 to 4 were originally the defendants. On 16.6.1978, it was brought to the notice of the court that the first defendant stood amalgamated with Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited the petitioner herein. The petitioner was impleaded as the fifth defendant. The petitioner did not file any written statement and he was set ex parte. The court did not pronounce judgment against the petitioner. The respondent filed an application to restore the suit. The petitioner was not made a party to it. The suit was restored. After several adjournments, on 16.11.1989, an ex parte decree was passed against the petitioner as well as the other defendants. The petitioner prayed that the ex parte decree passed against it on 16.11.1989, be set aside. It was dismissed and an appeal against that order was also dismissed. The correctness of the order was questioned in revision.

Held, apart from Rule 32 of the Civil Rules of Practice even under O.9, Rule 9(2), Code of Civil Procedure, notice of the application should be served on the opposite party. However, what had happened in this case is that one of the opposite parties, viz. the petitioner herein was not made a party at all, with the result that there was no restoration. Whatever of the suit dismissed for default against the petitioner and the subsequent proceedings taken on the footing that the suit against the petitioner had also been restored and that the petitioner had remained ex parte which justified the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner, are not in order. In other words, it would follow that having regard to the dismissal of the suit against the petitioner on the earlier occasion and the failure on the part of the respondent to have it restored against the petitioner also, the trial court was in error in proceeding to deal with the suit as if the suit had been restored against the petitioner also and that for the absence of the petitioner on 16.11.1989, there was justification for the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner. Inasmuch as the view above taken, there was no restoration of the suit dismissed for default against the petitioner there was no question thereafter of the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner on 16.11.1989 as if the suit against the petitioner was pending on that date. Under those circumstances, the courts below fell into an error in dismissing the application filed by the petitioner for setting aside the ex parte decree.

R.Krishnamurthy, for K.Kumar, for Petitioner.
S.Parthasarathy, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Thanikkachalam, J.

R.Krishnaswamy v.
N.Arumugam.

18th August, 1992.

C.R.P.No.3237 of 1988.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.10(3)(c) - Petition for eviction under, by landlord for additional accommodation - No averment as to relative hardship as contemplated by proviso to section - Maintainability.

In a petition for eviction filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act, the landlord should clearly state that he required the petition premises by way of additional accommodation. But according to the proviso, the Controller shall reject the application if he is satisfied that the hardship which may be caused to the tenant by granting it will outweigh the advantage to the landlord. In order to decide this question of hardship, there must be proper pleadings in the petition. If the hardship is not pleaded in the petition, that is fatal to the petition.

In the present case, the petition filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act contains no averment with regard to the hardship as contemplated under the proviso to Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act and hence the petition is not maintainable. Therefore, it is liable to be dismissed.

T.R.Rajagopalan, for Petitioner.

T.R.Mani, Senior Counsel, for J.M.Hariharan, for Respondent.

V.K. ---- Petition allowed.

Mishra and Janarthanam, JJ.

M.Shakur Chathik (Minor) represented
by his father and natural guardian A. Mohammed Abdul Habeeb v.
Association of Private Schools affiliated to the Central Board of Secondary Education represented by its President, V.Venkatachalam.

14th August, 1992.

W.M.P.No.17001 of 1992 in
W.P.No.7656 of 1992.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Writ proceedings under order of court is collateral review of - Competency - Powers of Judge sitting in a collateral proceeding.

A judgment of the Court is final subject to appeal and if there is any mistake or error therein is found, it is corrected by the appellate court or by way of review in accordance with the procedure prescribed therefor and constructively recognised by the Courts in India and accordingly applied to the writ proceedings. The decision of the Court in the case of 1991 Writ L.R. 519, completely rules out any collateral review and interference thus in the orders or directions issued by a Bench of the Court. The collateral proceedings, unless are in the nature of review petitions are incompetent and no court can make any order of any kind in such proceedings whether a single Judge or a larger Bench. A Judge sitting in a collateral proceeding can go into the question of any obiter dicta or the judgment being per incuriam only for the purpose whether he would be bound by one or the other judgment as the rule of obiter dicta and per incuriam are the rules attached to the ratio decidendi of the judgment and thus for deciding whether one or the other judgment is a binding precedent and not for the purpose of review of any of the two judgments on the plea that one is wrong and the other is right.

K.Chandru, for Petitioner.

B.S. ---- Petition ordered.

Ratnam and Somasundaram, JJ.

The Assistant Collector of Central Excise, Coimbatore v.
M/s.Elgi Equipments Ltd., India.

6th August, 1992.

W.A.No.187 of 1991.

Central Excise and Salt Act (I of 1944), Sec.11-B (as amended by Central Excise Amendment Act (XL of 1991) - Refund of excise duty - High Court directing Excise Authorities to refund excise duty on 8.1.1991 - Writ appeal filed and pending - Amended Act coming into force on 20.9.1991 - Act if will apply barring the Court to direct refund.

The respondent is a manufacturer of Service Station Equipments. The first appellant demanded a sum of Rs.1,15,502.57 towards the differential duty for the period from 10.1.1979 to 31.3.1980. This order was set aside by the Collector of Central Excise (Appeals), Madras. The first appellant was directed to approve the price list based on the sales value at the factory gate. The first appellant, basing on the above order approved the price list. The respondent filed an application for refund of Rs.19,83,225.64 before the first appellant. This was rejected. An appeal against that order was allowed with a direction to the first appellant to decide the refund claim, if admissible otherwise. Pursuant to this order, the respondent submitted an application for refund. It was dismissed and an appeal against that order was also dismissed. He filed a writ petition. A learned single Judge allowed the writ petition and directed the appellants to refund Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent with interest at 12% per annum from 23.6.1987 within four weeks from 8.1.1991. In appeal, it was contended that by reason of Sec.3 of the Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991, no refund can be made to the respondent except as provided in Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.11-B of the Act of 1940.

Held: Admittedly, during the pendency of the present writ appeal, Sec.11-B of the Act was amended by the Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991, with effect from 20.9.1991. The Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991 will apply to the facts of the present case because the order of the learned single Judge passed in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 has not become final on the date when the Amendment Act, 1991 came into force. The order in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 is challenged by the appellants by filing the present writ appeal and when the Central Excise (Amendment) Act XL of 1991 came into force, the whole matter was pending in the present writ appeal. As per the amended Sec.11-B, all pending claims for refund on or from 20.9.1991, that is, the date on which the Amendment Act came into force will have to be dealt with and disposed of only in accordance with the Amended provision of law. By reason of the amended Sec.11-B(3), notwithstanding the direction given by the learned single Judge by the order made in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 to refund a sum of Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent, no refund can be made to the respondent except as provided in Sub-sec.(2) of Act XL of 1991. As rightly contended by the learned counsel for the appellant, the order of the learned single Judge under appeal is subject to Sec.11-B of the Act as amended by Act XL of 1991. Therefore, it is for the respondent to seek refund of the concerned amount from the Assistant Collector as provided in Sub-sec.11-B(1)(2) of the Act as amended by the Amendment Act XL of 1991 and in compliance of the Rules and Regulations framed thereunder.

K.Jayachandran, Additional Central Government Standing Counsel, for Appellant.

V.Santhanam, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

P.Devendran v.
The State of Tamil Nadu.

17th July, 1992.

W.P.No.2173 of 1991.

Land Designation Act (I of 1894), Secs.4(1), 6 and Proviso as inserted by Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act (LXVIII of 1984), Sec.4(1) - Notification published on 9.8.1978 - Declaration under Sec.6 published on 8.8.1981 - Declaration challenged in writ petition - Stay of declaration not obtained - Writ petition allowed and appeal against dismissed on 1.3.1990 - Fresh declaration published afterwards - Legality - Limitation prescribed by the Proviso to Sec.6 if applies - Decision in (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, held would apply and not that in (1980)2 M.L.J. 269.

The Government sought to acquire certain lands including the petitioner's lands by a notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act which was published in the Gazette on 9.8.1978. The declaration under Sec.6 of the Act was published in the Gazette on 8.8.1981. The petitioner challenged the declaration under Sec.6 by way of a writ petition. It was allowed and on appeal against the order was dismissed on 1.3.1990. Thereafter, the petitioner received a notice on 28.1.1991 calling on him to appear and submit his objections to the notification under Sec.4(1) dated 9.8.1978. He filed a petition challenging the proceedings contending that a declaration cannot be made after three years after the publication of the notification under Sec.4(1). He relied on the proviso to Sec.6 inserted by Central Act LXVIII of 1984. He further contended that the ratio in (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, would apply to the facts of this case. Relying on the Full Bench decision in (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, it was contended by the respondent that it was enough if the first declaration was made within three years from the date of notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act.

Held: The Court of the view that the facts of the case which are placed before it, in all force are one and the same to the case decided in (1990)1 M.L.J. 219. The reliance of the decision of a Full Bench of this Court in (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, is wholly unsustainable. That was a case which arose before the Central Act LXVIII of 1984 came into force. After coming into force of Act LXVIII of 1984, the principle laid down by the Full Bench of this Court in the above mentioned case will not hold good. The Full Bench of this Court in the decision cited supra, applied the maxim actus curiae neminem gravabit and took note of the fact that there was no stay in that case in favour of the petitioner. After the passing of the Central Act LXVIII of 1984, an express provision has been made regarding the period of limitation when a stay order of the court is in operation. So, the decision in (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, will not apply to the facts of this case.

M.Raghavan, Senior Counsel for M.Subramanian, for Petitioner.

Kalaiselvi, Government Advocate (Housing), on behalf of Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Thanikkachalam, J.

Pachaiyappan and others v.
Sri Kamatchi Amman Koil Devasthanam.

15th July, 1992.

S.A.No.521 of 1982.

French Civil Code, Art. 745 - 'Descendant' - Meaning of - If includes wife.

According to the definition of the term 'descendant' as contained in Art.745 of the French Civil Code a wife cannot claim herself as the descendant of her deceased husband. Further, this Court while considering the meaning of the word 'santhathi' in (1984)1 M.L.J. 255, took a similar view. In view of the abovesaid decision and on the plain reading of Art.745 of the French Civil Code it remains to be seen that the plaintiff in the present suit cannot claim herself as the descendant of her husband. If that is so, she would not have any right under the Will dated 1.1.1913 either to collect the rental income from the suit property or to perform the Thai Poosam festival as claimed by her.

R.Gopalakrishnan, for Appellant
K.S.Ahmed, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Appeal dismissed.

Bakthavatsalam, J.

V.Sudhakaran v.
The Corporation of Madras.

10th July, 1992.

W.P.No.298 of 1991.

Constitution of India (1950), Arts.226, 14 and 16 - Writ - If can be issued for violation of any non-statutory direction.

It is well-settled that any violation of any non-statutory direction cannot be made a cause of action to approach the High Court under Art.226 of the Constitution unless the provisions of the Constitution are violated especially Arts.14 and 16 of the Constitution.

Miss.R.Vaigai, for Petitioner.
R.Swaminathan, Standing Counsel for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

Srinivasan, J.

able - (Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.10).

Meenakshi Apartments, Unit of MIG. Flats, Madurai-20 v.
The Tamil Nadu Housing Board, Madras-35.

24th August, 1992.

W.P.Nos.7061 to 7064 of 1986.

Tamil Nadu Housing Boards Act (XVII of 1961) and Rules made thereunder - Contract between Housing Board and allottee of flat providing for recovery of difference of cost within a stipulated period - Housing Board, if entitled to fix final cost beyond that period.

This Court held in S.A.83 of 1982 by judgment dated 20.8.1982 that the clause fixing a period for determination of the final cost is a clause of limitation. The respondents (Tamil Nadu Housing Board and the Executive Engineer and Administrative Officer, Madurai Housing Unit) are not entitled to make any demand over and above the cost already fixed in the contract as the respondents are not entitled to fix the final cost beyond the period of limitation prescribed in the contract.

E.Padmanabhan, for Petitioner.
S.Doraisami, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petitions allowed.

Mishra and Mrs.Padmini Jesudurai, JJ.

Radhika Konel Parekh v.
Konel Parekh.

12th August, 1992.

O.S.A.Nos.93 and 94 of 1992.

(A) Letters Patent (Madras), Clause 15 - Order passed on application for stay of proceedings - If 'judgment' - Appeal from such order, if maintain-

(B) Hindu Marriage Act (XXV of 1955), Secs.13(1-A) and 26 - Suit for divorce and for declaration that she is entitled to the custody of her minor child filed by wife in Family Court, Bombay - Husband filing petition in Madras High Court seeking him appointment as guardian of the minor son and for grant of interim custody - Questions involved in both proceedings if same - Judgment of one Court delivered earlier, if would operate as res judicata in the other.

(C) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.10 - 'Matter directly and substantially in issue in former and subsequent suits' - Whether should be the same in all respects.

Respondent Konel Parekh and the appellant Radhika were married in accordance with Hindu rites on 1st April, 1990 and a male child was born to them on 30th March, 1991. On 16.12.1991 the respondent filed O.P.No.694 of 1991 in the Madras High Court seeking his appointment as the guardian of the son and also for other reliefs. He applied for a direction that he be given interim custody of the minor son in an application in that petition. The appellant stated in reply that she had moved the Family Court at Bombay seeking reliefs inter alia of divorce and the interim custody of the minor and restraint orders and that the Bombay Family Court had restrained appellant from removing the minor from her custody. She filed an application for stay of the proceedings in this Court. A learned single Judge was of the view that the question involved in the O.P.No.694 of 1991 and the proceedings in the Family Court at Bombay could not be the same and that therefore there could be no stay of proceedings. He rejected the request of the respondent for the interim custody of the minor, but permitted him to visit the child as frequently as he felt so with liberty to take the child for outings also. The appellant filed two appeals. The respondent contended that as an order passed as an application for stay of the proceedings under Sec.10, Civil Procedure Code was not a judgment, no appeal could be maintained against that order.

Held: Since the Supreme Court has already declared the law in A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 1786, and the Court is obliged to follow it, it has to be held notwithstanding the judgment of the Full Bench of this Court in A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057 (F.B.), that the appeal is maintainable. Srinivasan, J.

A mere glance at this provisions shows that in a suit seeking divorce, the Court can make provisions in the decree itself with respect to the custody of the child and may after the decree upon application by petition filed for the purpose, make from time to time, all such orders and provisions with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of such children as might have been made by such decree. Thus, the prayer in the Family Court suit at Bombay for a decree cannot be equated with the decree for interim custody in the sense of an order pendante lite. In most of the cases custody orders have to be made for limited purpose. No minor can be ordered to be always in custody of another, the limit being the statutory age of majority. Once however, the question of custody of a minor child is an issue on fact and law in the proceeding before the Family Court, if the same issue is brought between the same parties in another court, the judgment of one delivered earlier has to operate as res judicata in the other. It is not in dispute that the child is below five years. Ordinarily thus the custody has to be with the mother. The mother has accordingly prayed for a decree for such a custody in the Family Court at Bombay. The father, who is the respondent can have every say and thus can say to the Court that the child's custody with the mother may not be in the interest of child. The court is constrained to observe that the suit has been filed in this Court by the respondent has brought in substantially the same questions of fact with respect to the custody of the child which have to be decided by the Family Court.

It is not necessary, as has been held by different High Courts and about there is a consensus of judicial opinion, that the matter directly and substantially in issue in former as well as subsequent suits, should be the same in all respects.

C.A.Sundaram, for Appellant.
R.Krishnaswami, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Appeals allowed.

L.Subbien v.
The Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Coimbatore.

7th August, 1992.

W.P.No.10018 of 1992.

Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act (XXXVI of 1947), Secs.4(1)(a), 5 and 41(2) - Act, if applicable to person employed in a position of management?

The petitioner who was employed as a supervisor for more than 35 years in the second respondent-company drawing a salary of Rs.2,075 per mensem was discharged from service by oral order on 1.11.1988. In spite of his demand for restoration of services, the second respondent was not inclined to do so. The petitioner filed an appeal under Sec.41(2) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act to the first respondent. Holding that the Act did not apply to a person employed in a position of management, the first respondent dismissed the appeal. He filed a petition for the issue of a writ of certiorari filed mandamus to quash the orders of termination.

Sec.4(1)(a) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act provides that nothing contained the Act shall apply only to the persons employed in any establishment in a position of management. But Sec.5 thereof empowers the Government to issue a notification applying all or any of the provisions of the Act to any class of persons or establishments mentioned in Sec.4 of the Act, other than those mentioned in Clauses (e) and (f) of Sub-sec.(1). Thus, with regard to Sec.4(1)(a) of the Act, the Government is entitled to issue a notification to the effect that the Act will apply to persons covered by the said sub-section. The Government has issued a notification G.O.Ms.No.4074, Industrial Labour and Housing (Labour), dated 5th October, 1966 by exercising the powers conferred under Sec.5 of the Act, applying all the provisions of the Act to the clause of persons mentioned in Clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Sec.4. Thus, the Act applied to all persons who are employed in any establishment in a position of management. Hence, the Act will apply to the petitioner also, though he is employed as a supervisor, in a position of management. Hence, the first respondent is clearly wrong in dismissing the appeal of the petitioner on that ground.

K.Chandru, for Petitioner.

T.S.Gopalan, for Respondent.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

of the jewels is an interim order and not of a permanent nature as contemplated under Sec.28, it has to be said that the respondent is not entitled to maintain an appeal against the said order.

V.Prabhakar, for Petitioner.

R.Yashodhavaradhan, for Respondent.

B.S

Petition allowed.

Maruthamuthu, J.

Seetharaman v.
Vaduvambal.

7th August, 1992.

C.R.P.No.3072 of 1991.

Hindu Marriage Act (XXV of 1955), Secs.27 and 28(1) and (2) - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.105(1) - Petition by wife under Sec.27 of Hindu Marriage Act for return of jewellery - Dismissed - Appeal against dismissal, if can be maintained.

Sec.105 of the Code of Civil Procedure makes it clear that the respondent cannot prefer an appeal against the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989. The order against which the respondent seeks to prefer appeal is not one passed under the Civil Procedure Code but under Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act. In view of Sec.28(1) of the Hindu Marriage Act, it can be stated that the decree passed by the trial Court for dissolution of marriage under Sec.3 is a decree which is appealable, but it cannot be so in the case of the order passed under Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act in I.A.No.184 of 1989. The said order is only an order passed in an interim application and not decree. A combined reading of Sec.28(1)(2) makes it abundantly clear that appeals can be only from orders of permanent nature under Secs.25 and 26. Since the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989 for return

Lakshmanan, J.

A.M.Jain College by Honorary Secretary, Madras v.
Government of Tamil Nadu.

14th July, 1992.

W.M.P.No.11880 of 1992 in
W.P.No.8211 of 1992.

(A) Constitution of India (1950), Art.30(1) - Minority institution - Admission of students from minority communities to - Resolution of State Government order directing the institution to make available not less than 30% of annual permitted strength in each branch - Faculty to other condition - If valid - Supreme Court's direction that minority institutions shall make available at least 50% of annual admission to members of communities other than the minority community - Interpretation.

(B) Constitution of India (1950), Arts.29(2) and 30(1) - Law and Institution - Minority institution giving preference to the religious minority candidate in their own institution - If amounts to discrimination and violative of Art.29(2).

The petitioner A.M.Jain College was founded in 1952 and was primarily meant for the benefit of the young men of the Jain community, but it is open to young men of all communities. The institution has been declared a minority institution. As the Jain community is essentially engaged the trading business and industry, education in commerce and business related subjects were taught to the Jain students. In 1992, 124 Jain students were admitted to B.Com., (evening college) as against the capacity of 150. Similarly, the day college provisional admission cards were issued to 103 Jain students. Jain students were given preference in B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) courses. The Supreme Court in (1991)2 Scale 1217: (1992)1 S.C.C. 558, directed that the minority institution shall make available atleast 50% of annual admissions to members of communities other than the minority community. After referring to the above decision the State Government issued G.O.Ms.No.561, Education, dated 15.6.1992 directing that the intake of candidates of minority communities should not exceed 50% of the annual permitted strength in each Branch/Faculty and that the minority educational institutions shall make available not less than 50% of the annual permitted strength in each Branch/Faculty to the members of the community other than the minority community. The petitioner challenged the order on behalf of the State, it was contended that the 50% directed by the Supreme Court indicated only 50% of seats in every Branch/Faculty and that the institutional preference for admission based on religious was violative of Art.29(2) of the Constitution of India.

Held: The Supreme Court states that the State may regulate the intake of students from the minority community with due regard to the need of the community in the area which the institution intended to serve. The petitioner college is undoubtedly intend to serve the Jain community in Madras, Tamil Nadu. The Jain students in Madras generally and basically join B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) course and not in other courses. The impugned G.O. restricting intake of minority community students to 50% in each Branch/Faculty affects the Jain community students in B.Com and B.A. (Corporate) courses also. This will very adversely affect the Jain community people in Madras, which the petitioner college intend to serve, and this also violates the law and the judgment of the Supreme Court. It will also violate Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. The impugned G.O. is trying to stretch the Supreme Court judgment beyond its scope and intends and lays down fresh rule which interfere with the right guaranteed under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. The language used by the Apex Court should be interpreted by to reason that 50% of the total number of seats in the annual admission of the institution should made available to students of other communities and not 50% in each Branch/Faculty as directed by the State Government in the impugned G.O.

Any preference given to the religious minority candidate in their own institution cannot be a discrimination falling under Art.29(2) of the Constitution of India. The institution in answer is established for the transit of the Jain community and if they are prevented from admitting their own community candidate, the very purpose of establishing the institution would be defeated. Minority institutions are entitled to admit their candidates by preference or by reservation. They are also entitled to admit them to the exclusion of all others and that right, flows from the right to establish and administer the educational institutions guaranteed under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. The State can lay down reasonable conditions for obtaining and for admission of students in their institutions but the State has no right to compel the minority institutions to give up their right under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India.

R.Krishnamurthi, Senior Advocate for M/s.Surana and Surana, for Petitioner.

P.Shannmugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondents.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

Abdul Hadi, J.

S.A.Azisullah v.
Sakthivelu.

16th October, 1992.

C.R.P.No.173 of 1992.

Decree - Decree granting possession of suit site to plaintiff - Mandatory injunction to remove superstructure thereon - Execution petition - Mandatory injunction alone time barred - Execution petition - If liable to be dismissed in toto.

Where a decree in suit grants possession of the suit site and also grants a mandatory injunction directing the defendants to remove the superstructure put up by them on the suit site, an execution petition filed by the plaintiff cannot be dismissed in toto merely because the decree for mandatory injunction cannot be executed because of bar of limitation under Art.135 of the Limitation Act. The Court cannot dismiss the E.P. in toto but should order the E.P. relating to the possession of the suit land. In such a case the court should grant an opportunity to the judgment-debtors to remove the superstructure. If within the time allowed the judgment-debtors do not remove the superstructure, then the executing Court shall direct delivery of both the site and superstructure to the decree-holder.

V.Krishnan, for Petitioner.
N.Sathiamoorthy, for Respondent.

V.K. ---- Petition allowed.

Srinivasan, J.

M.Devan v.
The Tamil Nadu Civil Supplies
Corporation Limited, Dharmapuri District.

18th August, 1992.

W.P.No.183 of 1985.

Domestic enquiry - Charges framed against petitioner for tampering with document - Document not produced during enquiry - Petitioner not given opportunity to make submissions with reference to the said document - Enquiry not concluded having been adjourned at the instance of the petitioner - Termination of services of petitioner, held illegal.

Two charges were framed against the petitioner that he concealed the fact that he did not have the requisite educational qualification for the post of Assistant Quality Inspector and obtained that appointment by giving an application containing false information and that he tampered with the temporary certificate issued by the University by erasing the word 'Mathematics' and writing the word 'Botany' and thus forged the certificates. The petitioner denied the charges and prayed for the production of the documents on which reliance was placed by the respondent. The Enquiry Officer put some questions to the petitioner on 19.9.1984. The petitioner filed a petition for adjournment till the production of the relevant documents. The Enquiry Officer made an endorsement that the enquiry was adjourned. But he submitted a report stating that both the charges were proved to be correct and his services were terminated on the basis of the report. The order was challenged by way of a writ petition.

Held: There can be no doubt whatever that the enquiry has not been conducted properly in accordance with law apart from the fact that the enquiry was not conducted by the Enquiry Officer and sufficient evidence was not on record to substantiate the two charges framed against the petitioner. The respondent ought to have produced the documents before the Enquiry Officer which are relevant for the purposes of the enquiry and which prove the two charges framed against the petitioner and the petitioner ought to have been given an opportunity to make his submissions with reference to the said documents. As the said procedure has not been followed, the Court has no option, but to quash the impugned order passed by the respondent.

Venkataraman, for Petitioner.
V.V.Bhanu for G.Bhaskaran, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Thanikkachalam, J.

S.Ramamoorthy v.
The Post Master General

7th August, 1992.

C.R.P.No.4274 of 1987.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.10(4)(i) - Premises let out to conduct of Post Office - If entitled to exemption from eviction.

The respondents took the premises on lease for the purpose of conducting a Branch Post Office and for the purpose of residence of the Post Master of that branch. The petitioner filed a petition for eviction of the respondents.

Held: In exercise of the powers under Clause (i) of Sub-sec.(4) of Sec.10 of the Act, the Governor of Madras notified that all Departments of State and Central Governments in the State of Madras will be deemed to be engaged in an essential service for the purpose of the said Sub-sec.(4) of the Act. This notification still holds good. It is neither held as invalid or struck down as ultra vires. Therefore, the tenant in the present case is entitled to claim exemption under Sec.10(4) of the Act.

G.Subramaniam, Senior Counsel for B.Rajagopal, for Petitioner.
Mrs.Meera Gupta, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

AR.Lakshmanan, J.

The Annamalai Club, Valparai,
Coimbatore v.
The Government of Tamil Nadu.

17th August, 1992.

W.P.No.7160 of 1992.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Natural justice - Action in violation of principles of natural justice - Effect - Court whether can interfere in writ jurisdiction.

It has been the consistent view of Courts that when there is a violation of basic principles of natural justice, the action impugned is void ab initio and this Court has to interfere. It has already been found that the action of the respondents is illegal and the petitioner was not heard. If the action of the respondent is unreasonable and arbitrary, this Court can exercise its writ jurisdiction.

R.Krishnamurthi, Senior Counsel for V.Achuthan and P.Vijayakumar, for Petitioner.
P.Shannmugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondent Nos.1 and 2.
P.K.Denny, for Respondent No.3.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

AR.Lakshmanan, J.

The All India Amitabh Bachchan's Fans
Association v.
The Government of Tamil Nadu.

21st August, 1992.

W.P.No.8416 of 1992 and
W.M.P.No.17568 of 1992.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Natural justice - Applicability to administrative orders - Rights accrued in favour of person - If can be denied or taken away without hearing that person.

It is settled position of law that even administrative orders should conform to the principles of natural justice.

When the petitioner-Association has been granted permission to erect a statue at the junction of the Club House Road, rights have accrued in its favour to erect the statue. That right which had accrued in favour of the petitioner-Association cannot be denied or taken away without hearing the petitioner-Association.

S.Govind Swaminathan, Senior Advocate for 14th September, 1992.
V.K.Sethukumar, for Petitioner.

P.Shanmugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondent Nos.1 to 3.

R.Muthukrishnan and K.A.Ramakrishnan, for Respondent No.4.

L.P.A.No.121 of 1992.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

Theatre Anna, A partnership firm represented by its Managing Partner,
 M.Mylswamy v.
 The Secretary, Home Department.

4th September, 1992.

W.P.No.12997 of 1992.

Tamil Nadu Cinemas (Regulation) Act (IX of 1955), Sec.9-B - Revision against order revoking 'C' form licence - Revisional Authority confirming orders of lower authorities - Whether should give reasons.

The revisional authority need not find out any new reasons for confirming the orders of the lower authorities. The revisional authority cannot search for new reasons to confirm the orders of the appellate authority when he is satisfied with the reasons given by the appellate authority. On a perusal of the impugned order, it is seen that the revisional authority has given a careful consideration to the orders of the appellate authority. As such it is almost a confirmation order of the appellate authority. In the light of the decision of this Court in Chinnasamy Chettiar v. The State of Tamil Nadu, 1985 Writ L.R. 813, it cannot be said that the impugned order is passed without assigning any reasons therefor.

R.Thiagarajan, for Petitioner.
M.M.Sunderesh, Government Advocate, for
 Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.
Mishra and
Mrs.Padmini Jesudurai, JJ.

Sarada Devi v.
 Revathi alias Jagada Pichiammal.

*Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.9, Rule 13(1)
 - 'Sufficient cause' - Party filing application to set aside ex parte decree stating that she could not attend Court due to disputes in the husband's family about which a complaint was given to the police - Also that she was not well - No contra evidence on behalf of respondents - Complaint and certificate showing that appellant not unwell not filed in Court - Inference that appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from coming to Court, if can be drawn.*

Held: True the appellant's husband deposed that he gave a complaint to the police on 14.6.1986 and also that he had a doctor's prescription to support the illness of his wife. But these documents were not produced in Courts. All that can be found on the basis of the above is that there has been evidence on behalf of the appellant and her husband that they were prevented from coming to the Court. There is no contra evidence on behalf of the respondents. If the complaint that the appellant's husband allegedly filed with the police or any certificate showing that the appellant was unwell were not filed in Court all that can be said on this basis is that some corroborative evidence which would have strengthened the case of the appellant was not produced. A Court, in the absence of corroborative evidence, can undoubtedly reject the oral testimony of evidence. In the instant case, however, it seems non-production of the complaint or any certificate to support ailment of the appellant was not on account of any deliberate laches but for the reason that there was no serious challenge to the allegations about the quarrel with the brother as well as the ailment, for the respondents never led any evidence against the same. The Court is inclined, for the above reasons to take a compassionate view and hold that on such facts it is reasonable to infer that the appellant was prevented by a sufficient cause from coming to the Court.

P.Rathinadurai, for Appellant.
P.Peppin Fernando, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

V.Srinivas (Minor) represented by Mr.Babu Rao, father and natural guardian v.
The University of Madras.

16th September, 1992.

W.P.Nos.13657 to 13660 of 1992.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), Sec.115 - Promissory estoppel - Prospectus for admission to B.E. Degree course not specifically notifying about cut-off date for passing the qualifying examination - Candidates who passed qualifying examination on 31.7.1991 admitted to the course - Director of Technical Education not granting approval for their admission on the ground of not passing qualifying examination on or before 1.7.1991 - Held principle of promissory estoppel would apply.

The petitioners were selected by the Selection Committee constituted and were admitted to the B.E. Degree course. They paid the fees for the academic year 1991-92. According to the prospectus issued by the College, the last date for submission of applications was 31.7.1991. The petitioners were issued hall-tickets for writing their examination. When they were writing examination, they were informed orally that the approval of their admission was still pending with the Director of Technical Education, Madras. Subsequently, the petitioners came to know that the approval was not granted in view of their not having passed the qualifying examination on or before 1.7.1991. They filed writ petitions against the action contending that the prospectus issued by the College did not stipulate such a condition and that they could not be penalised for the fault committed by the college authorities.

Held: In these cases, the petitioners are not at fault. It is the management which failed to specifically notify in the prospectus about the cut-off date for passing the qualifying examination. The students may not know whether their admission is subject to the grant of approval by the Director of Technical Education, unless it is specifically notified in the prospectus. In these cases, the petitioners have continued their course for more than a year and have paid their fees for examination, obtained their hall-tickets and also wrote the examination. At this stage, it is not proper for the respondents to say that the petitioners are not eligible to continue their course. The petitioners herein should not be penalised for the mistake committed by the management. It is not stated that the petitioners have given any incorrect information regarding their qualification or their eligibility. They were under the bona fide impression that they can continue their course once they have been admitted by the third respondent-college. In view of the rulings of the Apex Court of the land as well as this Court with regard to cases of innocent students being penalised for the sins of the management, a direction has to be issued in these cases.

R.Gandhi for M.Kandasamy, L.Chandrakumar, K.Geetha Ravi and P.Selvi, for Petitioner.

P.Jothamani, for Respondent No.1.

Sundaresh, Government Advocate, for Respondent No.2.

B.S.

Petitions allowed.

Janarthanam, J.

Kasi Nadar v.
V.Doraiswami Nadar.

30th September, 1992.

C.R.P.No.934 of 1992.

Stamp Act (I of 1899), Sec.35 - Agreement for sale - Agreement between seller and purchaser that it would be treated as conveyance if no conveyance was effected within six months from the date of agreement - If a document conveying title, chargeable to stamp duty and penalty.

The respondent filed a suit for the relief of declaration and consequential injunction in respect of two items of suit properties based on a sale deed. The petitioners (defendants) contended that the first item of the suit properties originally belonged to one Seenai Chettiar who had executed an agreement of sale on 6.10.1982 with the petitioners and that the entire sale consideration had been paid and possession had also been delivered. It was also contended that it was agreed that if the vendor did not execute a sale deed within six months from the date of agreement, the agreement had to be construed as a sale deed. During the trial, the petitioner wanted to mark the agreement of sale to which the objection was raised by the respondent that it could not be marked unless the Stamp Duty and penalty payable therefor was paid under Sec.35 of the Stamp Act. The trial Court passed an order directing the petitioners to pay a sum of Rs.12,755 as stamp duty and penalty. The petitioners filed a revision petition against that order.

Held: In the backdrop of the principles in the decisions in Khaji Beev v. Timmalaippa, (1907)17 M.L.J. 308, Mt. Viboo v. Raj Saheb Goharam Singh, A.I.R. 1937 All. 101, Ram Rattan v. Parama Nand, A.I.R. 1946 P.C. 51, Parathapatti Nageswara Rao v. Moka Narayanamurthi, A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 75 and The Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, Board of Revenue, Madras v. Thirtiala, (1979)2 M.L.J. 361, a legal fitment, if given to the facts and circumstances of the case, it goes without saying that the view of the learned District Munsif that the agreement for sale dated 6.10.1982 has to be construed as a document conveying title chargeable to stamp duty and penalty under Sec.35 of the Indian Stamp Act cannot at all be stated to be not maintainable.

P.Seshadri, for Petitioner.

K.Radhakrishnan, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

Srinivasan, J.

M/s.Sita Decor, Prop. Vasantha Raj v.
The State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission.

26th October, 1992

C.R.P.No.2723 of 1992.

Consumer Protection Act (1986), Secs.18 and 12 to 14 - Consumer Protection Rules, Rule 9(6) - Appeal from order in complaint under Sec.12 - Notice to respondent, if obligatory.

Sec.18 of the Act itself states that Secs.12 to 14 would be applicable only with such modifications as may be necessary for the purpose of disposal of the appeal. In the case of original petition before the District Forum, it is absolutely necessary to issue a notice to the respondent as the District Forum will not be in a position to decide the case of the petitioner without hearing the respondent. It cannot, even without giving notice to the respondent pass an order allowing the application filed by the complainant. Consequently, a notice is a must in an original petition. However, the position in the case of appeal is entirely different. The appellant has to make out a case that the order of the District Forum suffers from errors or defects. If the State Forum is not convinced that there was any error or defect in the order of the District Forum, there is no necessity at all to issue notice to the respondent and drag him before the Court. It cannot be said that even after giving notice to the respondent he shall be heard by the appellate forum. After giving notice to the respondent and after hearing the appellant, if the appellate forum thinks that no case has been made out by the appellant, it is certainly entitled to dismiss the appeal without calling on the respondent to argue the same. Thus, the appellate forum is vested with the discretion to decide whether notice should be issued to the respondent on the facts and circumstances of the case. There is no Rule compelling the State Forum to issue notice to the respondent in every appeal whether there is merit in the appeal or not. Sub-rule (6) of Rule 9 provides if in an appeal, a date of hearing is fixed and in such cases if the notice had been issued to the respondent and service had been effected, then the parties or their agent shall be present. Sub-rule (6) does not compel the State Forum to issue notice in every appeal.

Ashok Menon, for Petitioner.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

Venkataswami, J.

Balu Chettiar v.
Solaimalai Chettiar.

24th November, 1992.

C.R.P.No.3225 of 1990.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960) - Applicability - Person not proved to be a tenant - Such person denying title of landlord - Act, held will not apply.

For the purpose of rent control proceedings, the essential factor to be established is that there is a relationship of landlord and tenant. The petitioners could have denied the title of the respondents in any other capacity. Simply because on the basis of a sale deed, the respondents have been found to prima facie the owners of the premises in question, it cannot be presumed that the petitioner is a tenant under the respondents. At the most, he could be treated as a person in unauthorised occupation. But, to evict such a person, the provisions of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act cannot be invoked.

R.Subramaniam for K.Samipath, for Petitioner.
E.Padmanabhan for P.T.S.Narendravasan, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

AR.Lakshmanan, J.

R.V.Ramalingam v.
Abdul Muthaliff.

14th December, 1992.

C.R.P.No.98 of 1992.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.18-A - Order of Rent Controller refusing to appoint a Commission - If appealable.

The order of the Rent Controller refusing to issue commission for inspection and preparation of a plan of the premises is a mere procedural order not affecting any right or liability of the parties. The issue of a commission is only a step for assisting the parties in the prosecution of their case. It is open to canvass the error, defect or irregularity if any in the order in an appeal from the final order passed in the proceedings for eviction, but no appeal from the order lay to the Appellate Authority. The order refusing to appoint a Commissioner will not affect the rights of the parties. When the rights of both parties are not in any manner affected by the refusal of the Court to appoint a Commissioner the said order is not appealable.

R.Muthukumaraswami, for Petitioner.
Sathush Sundar for B.Kumar, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

AR.Lakshmanan, J.

Coimbatore Seva Nilayam represented by its Secretary, T.V.Thilliammal,
Coimbatore v.
R.Narayanaswami Naidu.

14th December, 1992.

C.R.P.No.1688 of 1992.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.6, Rule 17 - Limitation Act (XXXVI of 1963), Arts.137 and 142 - Suit for declaration of title and for recovery of possession of vacant land - One of the defendants putting up construction on land during pendency of suit - Plaintiff filing petition to amend plaint - Limitation for petition - Article of Limitation Act applicable.

The petitioner filed a suit for declaration of title and for recovery of possession of a vacant piece of land. During the pendency of the suit, the 13th defendant put up some construction on the land. The petitioner filed an application for amendment of the plaint. It was dismissed by the trial Court as time barred. In revision,

Held: The order of the trial Court in dismissing the amendment application as time barred is wrong. The learned District Munsif is wrong in stating that Art.137 of the Limitation Act is against the petitioner. The petition for amendment was filed during the pendency of the suit and the amendment sought is in relation to a subsequent event, viz., putting up a construction in the suit property. By allowing the amendment, the nature of the suit or the relief asked for is not at all altered. The relief asked for is declaration of the petitioner's title to the suit property and if it succeeded, then only it will be entitled to the incidental relief of possession of the suit property as on the date of the suit and on that ground, the learned District Munsif ought to have allowed the amendment in the interest of the parties. That apart, the learned District Munsif has also failed to notice the provisions of O.6, Rule 17, Civil Procedure Code, which permits the amendment at any stage of the proceedings provided it does not alter the character of the suit. It is well settled by catena of decisions of this Court and also of the Apex Court that by merely allowing an application for amendment, there is no adjudication of the merits of the amended pleas introduced, that the merits of the amended pleas have got to be adjudicated upon after allowing the opposite side to put forth additional pleadings in answer to the same and that certainly the additional pleadings may take in also the plea of bar of limitation. It is also well settled that the Court may in appropriate cases allow the amendment even after the statutory period of limitation. In the instant case, the suit was originally filed by the petitioner for declaration of title and for recovery of possession of the suit property. Since the petitioner was dispossessed of the land subsequent to the filing of the suit the proposed amendment petition was filed praying for delivery of possession. To such a suit, as held by the Supreme Court in the decision reported in Abdul Waheed Khan v. Bhawani, A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1718, only Art.142 of the Limitation Act applies. By allowing the amendment, no injury or injustice is caused to the respondents herein. No jurisdictional error is also involved in this case because of the amendment being ordered.

P.Kulandaivadivelu, for Petitioner.

A.Kulasekaran, for Respondents.

B.S. ----- Petition allowed.

A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

Kodaikanal Lorry Owners Association v.
State of Tamil Nadu.

14th December, 1992.

W.P.Nos.8072, 8763, 9258, 9563 and 9834 of 1992.

Tolls Act (VIII of 1851), Sec.2 (as substituted by Madras Act VI of 1938) - Levy of tolls by G.Os. on motor vehicles entering major entry points to the Kodaikanal Township, Nilgiris District and Yercaud Township - Validity - If an unreasonable restriction on the Fundamental Rights under Art.19(1)(g) and violative of Arts.301 to 304 of the Constitution of India - Charging provision if suffers from vice of excessive delegation.

By the impugned G.Os. the Government decided to levy tolls on the motor vehicles entering the major entry points to the Kodaikanal Township, Udhagamandalam District and Yercaud Township. The petitioners filed petitions for the issue of a writ of certiorari or any other writ, directions or order quashing the above Government orders contending that the levy of the toll was an unreasonable restriction on the fundamental rights guaranteed under Art.19(1)(g) of the Constitution of India; that the levy was violation of Arts.301 to 304 of the Constitution of India, that the levy was not fair and reasonable and that the Government Orders were unconstitutional and ultra vires the Tolls Act.

Held: A toll is a compensatory tax as pointed out by the Supreme Court in the decision reported in Automobile Transport Rajasthan Ltd. v. State of Rajasthan, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1406. It cannot be said that the power to levy toll is unfettered and unguided and therefore arbitrary. There are enough guidance in the Act itself. It is also significant to notice that none of the petitioners has challenged the validity of the charging section. What is challenged in the writ petitions is only the Notification issued by the Government in exercise of the powers conferred under the Act. The need of the State Government for compensating itself for the expenses incurred in the construction or maintenance of the roads and bridges is sufficient guidance to fix rates of tolls. Power to levy toll can be exercised for the purpose of creating fund for construction of new bridges and roads in future and maintenance of the existing roads and bridges. Therefore, in respectful agreement with the views expressed by the learned Judge of the Calcutta High Court in Sushan Chandra Pal v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1976 Cal. 32, the contentions urged by the petitioners that the charging provision suffers from the vice of excessive delegation and that the actual cost of constitution should be mentioned in the notification has to be reflected. The toll levied by the Government is not only for recovering the expenses incurred by them but also for future maintenance of the repairs of the roads. The petitioners who are benefited by using the roads cannot complain that the compensatory character of the toll is lost because of the creation of the fund for the future maintenance and repairs of the roads in the respective districts. The impugned Government Orders relate to levy of toll in Hill areas like Nilgiris, Kodaikanal and Yercaud. It cannot by calamity like rain, landslip, etc., cause great damage to the roads in the Hill areas and the cost of maintenance will be much more than the amounts extended on the plains. A reading of the counter-affidavits in each of these cases shows that the toll is only compensatory in character and therefore, it cannot restrict the freedom of trade and commerce as contended by the learned counsel for the respective petitioners. It is also impossible, as the Apex Court has said to judge the compensatory nature of a tax by a meticulous test. Hence, the contention that the impugned notification violates Arts.301 and 304(b) of the Constitution of India cannot be accepted. The nature of the toll is only compensatory and the details of the expenditure incurred as disclosed in the counter-affidavit show that the toll is neither disproportionate nor unreasonable nor arbitrary.

V.Radhakrishnan, for Petitioner in W.P.No.8072 of 1992.

Mohan Parasaran, for Petitioner in W.P.No.8763 of 1992.

Malini Ganesh, for Petitioner in W.P.No.9258 of 1992.

M Krishnappan, for Petitioners in W.P.Nos.9563 and 9834 of 1992.

P.Shanmugham Additional Government Pleader, for Respondents.

B.S. ----- Petitions dismissed.

A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

C.T.Abraham v.
J.P.James.

17th November, 1992.

C.M.P.No.11866 of 1992 in
A.S.No.874 of 1991.

(A) Passports Act (XV of 1877), Sec.10(3)(h) - Impounding of passport under - Power of Court - If can be exercised by a Civil Court.

The power of the Court under Sec.10(3)(h) of the Passports Act has to be exercised either by prohibiting the passport holder from departing India or issuing summons or warrant for appearance or warrant for arrest. The argument that a warrant or summon has to be issued by a Criminal Court on a complaint, either in police case or private complaint and that a disputed money claim in a Civil Court cannot trigger an order for impounding a passport cannot be accepted. Sec.10(3)(h) of the Passports Act provides that the passport authority may impound a passport pursuant to an order issued by the Court if it is satisfied that a warrant or summons has been so issued or an order has been so made. Thus, it enables both the Criminal Court and the Civil Court to issue appropriate directions in exercise of its power provided under Sec.10(3)(h) of the Passports Act, 1967. It cannot be gainsaid that summons for personal appearance or arrest of a person can be ordered by both Civil and Criminal Courts. There is no warrant for restricting the applicability of Sub-clause (h) of Sec.10(3) of the Passports Act only to summons or warrants issued by Criminal Courts. In the absence of any such restriction, either express or implied, the aforesaid provision has to be interpreted so as to embrace within the purview of the summons of Civil Courts as well.

(B) Passports Act (XV of 1967), Sec.10(3)(h) - Power of Court under - Exercise of - Scope and ambit of.

The power of the Court under Sec.10(3)(h) of the Passports Act to pass an order prohibiting the departure of a person from India has to be made only in exceptional and rare cases where there are necessary grounds and reasons and that power cannot be exercised liberally.

C.Jose Ukkur, for Petitioner.

M.A.Sadanand, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

Abdul Hadi, J.

Rajammal (died) v.
The Idol of Sri Thanthonneswaraswami by hereditary trustee
K.Appathurai.

16th November, 1992.

S.A.No.464 of 1982 and C.M.P.No.15259
of 1982.

(A) Tamil Nadu City Tenants' Protection Act (III of 1922), Sec.1(3) (as amended by Act of 1979) - Tenancy created prior to amendment - Act, if applies to.

(B) Tamil Nadu City Tenants' Protection Act (III of 1922), Sec.9 - Right to purchase vacant site - Claim for - Separate written application, if necessary.

(C) Tamil Nadu City Tenants' Protection Act (III of 1922), Secs.9 and 9-A - Tenant filing application for receiving additional written statement and supporting affidavit denying title of landlord - Additional written statement not received by Court - Tenant, whether could be said to have denied title of landlord - Denial of title of landlord after filing of suit for eviction - Tenant if disentitled to benefits of Act.

The respondent filed a suit, by its hereditary trustee for the possession of the suit land after removal of the superstructure put up therein by the appellant and for a sum of Rs.144. The defendant-appellant claimed the benefits of the Tamil Nadu City Tenants' Protection Act in the written statement and did not file any separate application for it. The appellant also denied the title of the landlord to the suit site in an application for acceptance of additional written statement and the supporting affidavit. But the additional written statement was not received. The trial Court held that the appellant was not entitled to the benefits of the Act as he did not establish that the tenancy began prior to 1955. On appeal, the lower appellate court set aside the decree and judgment of the trial court and directed the appellant to deliver possession of the suit land after removing the superstructure. The lower appellate court did not deal with the question whether the appellant was entitled to the benefits of the Act. The appellant preferred an appeal. The respondent contended that as the appellant did not file a separate application under Sec.9 of the Act, he was not entitled to claim the benefits of the section and that he was not entitled to purchase the site as he had denied the title of the landlord. The appellant on the other hand contended that the denial of title was only in application for receipt of additional written statement which should not be taken and subsequent to the filing of the suit.

Held: The trial Court was in error in assuming that only to tenancies prior to 1955, the Act applies. In view of the amendment to Sec.1(3) of the Act by the Amendment Act of 1979 which came into force from 3.3.1980, the Act will be applicable even to a tenancy which came into being prior to the said amendment. There is also no dispute and that the abovesaid tenancy came into being prior to 3.3.1980.

The decisions in the Mouna Mutt Kuttalai Estate v. Andiappan, 82 L.W. 77 (S.N.) and Raghava Naicker v. Abdul Hussain Hazarally and Co., 1936 M.L.N. 1096, holding that a separate written application under Sec.9 of the Act was not necessary lay down the correct law.

It cannot be contended that what is contained in the additional written statement and the supporting affidavit to the application should not be taken note of in deciding the suit. The said additional written statement, though was not actually received, in view of the dismissal of the application for its reception, yet the affidavit filed in support of the said application cannot be said to be not a part of the record in the suit. There in a sworn statement, the defendant has stated that she has denied the title of the plaintiff to the suit site and if she is not allowed to file the said additional written statement she would be put to great loss. So from the said affidavit itself, it is clear that the defendant has denied the title of the landlord/plaintiff.

The principle on which (1990)1 L.W.46, held that the denial of title would disentitle the defendant to get the benefits of the Act would equally apply to a case where denial of title is subsequent to the commencement of the suit.

M.N.Padmanabhan, for Appellant.
M.V.Krishnan, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Appeal dismissed.

K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

R.Srinivasan v.
Government of Tamil Nadu.

14th October, 1992.

W.P.No.12676 of 1992.

(A) Education - Admission - Applications for - Not in order or bereft of particulars - Effect.

(B) Education - Admission cannot be granted contrary to rules and regulations and against conditions of admission as noted in the prospectus.

The petitioner who belongs to a Backward Class and is a handicapped person appeared for the entrance examination for B.L. evening course for the academic year 1992-93. He applied for the course under the handicapped quota. According to newspaper reports, he was selected against the quota. But he did not receive any intimation card.

He contacted the Principal of the Law College, Madras, but did not get any response. He filed a petition for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the respondents to admit the petitioner in the B.L. evening course. The respondent contended that another candidate who had secured more marks than the petitioner in the entrance examination was selected under the category of Schedule Tribe, that the later as he informed that he belonged only to a Backward Class and was handicapped and that therefore he might have to be selected in the place of the petitioner as he had got more marks.

Held: It is well-settled that in cases of admission, the applications have to be rejected if they are not in order or bereft of particulars. When a candidate sends an application form with incorrect particulars, the result always will be that the application has to be rejected summarily.

The petitioner should not suffer because of the action of the respondent authorities who have erred in discharging their duties as per the norms prescribed for admission. The respondent cannot take shelter stating that a candidate who described himself as belonging to a schedule tribe now wants to get an allotment in the backward community-handicapped quota stating that he belongs to backward community. If the admission is granted contrary to the Rules and Regulations meaning thereby against the conditions of admission as noted in the prospectus, the respondent cannot take such a stand before this Court and try to explain why the petitioner has not been admitted into the B.L. course even though he was selected. Hence, the respondents are directed to admit the petitioner into the B.L. three year evening degree course.

K.S.Gnanasambandam, for Petitioner.
Sundaresh, Government Advocate, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Ratnam and Somasundaram, JJ.

L.Lakshmikantham v.
The Tindivanam Co-op. Urban Bank Ltd.

21st September, 1992.

W.A.No.281 of 1989.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.311(2) - (After the Forty-second amendment) - Domestic enquiry - Delinquent not supplied with copy of enquiry report along with second show cause notice proposing punishment issued by disciplinary authority - Final order passed - Legality.

It is the settled position of law that where the disciplinary authority and the enquiring authority are different authorities and when the enquiry officer sends a report of the enquiry proceedings to the disciplinary authority, the delinquent is entitled to a copy of the report of the enquiry officer and the failure on the part of the disciplinary authority to send a copy of the report of the enquiry officer to the delinquent along with the second show cause notice proposing the punishment would amount to violation of the principles of natural justice and will render the final order illegal.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

Srinivasan, J.

Arumugasamy v.
The Divisional Development Office, Cheranmahadevi, Tirunelveli District,

16th September, 1992.

W.P.Nos.7591 and 9423 of 1992.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Natural justice - Tamil Nadu Water Supply and Drainage Board installing overhead tank in a village imposing condition that individual house service connections, should not be given - Panchayat passing resolution to provide house service connection and giving connection to certain persons - Beneficiaries filing writ petitions to enforce such right - If maintainable.

Under the Rural Water Supply Scheme, the Tamil Nadu Water Supply and Drainage Board installed an overhead tank for the benefit of the villagers of Kundakulam Panchayat in 1988. While handing over charge of the tank to the Panchayat, the Board imposed a condition that no individual house service connection should be given. The District Collector of Tirunelveli issued an order in 1988 to all the Panchayat Union Commissioners that no individual house service connection should be given from the overhead tanks installed under the above scheme. The Commissioner of the Radhapuram Panchayat Union also passed a similar order to all the Presidents of the Panchayats within his jurisdiction. However, the Kudankulam Panchayat passed a resolution in April, 1989 to provide house service connection and gave connection to some persons. The petitioners in W.P.No.7591 of 1992 filed a writ petition for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the respondents to disconnect all the service connections thus given. The petitioners in W.P.No.9423 of 1992 filed the petition for forbearing the respondents from disconnecting the connections without furnishing the particulars of G.O.No., Rules, directions referred to in the notice sent by the respondents.

Held: On the facts referred to, the petitioners cannot claim any right in them to continue the water connections given to their houses. The very basis of giving connections to their houses was illegal and it was pursuant to a resolution passed by the Panchayat contrary to the instructions given by the authorities and contrary to the conditions stipulated at the time of handing-over the overhead tank to the Panchayat. When the connections given to the petitioners were based on an illegality at the inception, they cannot claim any right to have them continued and contend that they are entitled to get some more particulars from the authorities concerned. All the relevant particulars were made available to them in the counter-affidavit filed by the first respondent in W.P.No.11292 of 1990. Apart from that no particulars are necessary to be given to the petitioners herein or the petitioners in W.P.No.9423 of 1992.

In any event, it has been held by the Supreme Court in several cases that the principle of natural justice need not apply as a matter of rule in every case. They can be excluded in certain cases. In the present case, it has been pointed out by the authority that it is against the interest of the general public of the village to grant house service connection as they would not be able to have sufficient supply of drinking water if individual house service connections are given. That is why even when the tank was handed-over to the Pan-chayat, a condition was imposed. When it is against the interest of the public at large, the Court should take into account only such interest and should not give credit to the grievance of a few individuals of the village. Particularly, when the said benefits were given to the said individuals by the authorities illegally. Hence, the petitioners in W.P.No.9423 of 1992 have no right to be enforced under Art.226 of the Constitution of India. They cannot contend that the connections given to their houses should be continued on the only ground that they have not been furnished with the orders of the authorities and the documents referred to by the authorities in their notice.

P.Peppin Fernando, for Petitioner.

V.R.Rajasekaran, Government Advocate, for Respondent Nos.1 and 3.

B.S. ---- *W.P.No.7591 of 1992 allowed/
W.P.No.9423 of 1992 dismissed.*

Bellie, J.

Indirani Ammal v.
E.Chandra.

4th September, 1992.

A.S.No.452 of 1992.

(A) Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), Sec.35 - Scope of - "Some transaction" - Transactions if should be under one document only.

Sec.35 of the Transfer of Property Act contemplates 'some transaction' and not 'same instrument'. To be the same transactions, the transaction need not necessarily be under one document only.

(B) Evidence Act (I of 1872), Secs.107 and 108 - Effect of - Burden of proof that a person is alive - When shifted to person affirming it.

A combined effect of Secs.107 and 108 of the Evidence Act would show that it is only upon proof that a person concerned has not been heard of for seven years by those who would have naturally heard of him if he had been alive, the burden of proving that he is alive is shifted to the person who affirms that he is alive.

N.Varadarajan, for Appellant.

R.Srinivasan and A.L.Somayaji, for Respondent.

B.S. ---- Appeal partly allowed.

Swamidurai, J.

A.Radhakrishnan v.
Auvadai Ammal.

3rd September, 1992.

C.R.P.No.1096 of 1992.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.6, Rule 17 - Suit for permanent injunction restraining defendants from interfering with his possession - Defendants claiming that they were in possession of suit properties - Plaintiff therefore filing petition to amend the plaint praying for declaration that he is absolute owner of the suit property or in the alternative for a direction to defendants to deliver vacant possession of suit properties - Amendment held must be allowed.

The petitioner originally filed a suit for a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with his peaceful possession of the suit properties and for costs. The defendants stated in the written statement that they were in possession of the suit properties. Therefore, the plaintiff filed an application for amendment seeking two new prayers, (i) for a declaration that the plaintiff was the absolute owner of the suit property, and (ii) for a direction to the defendants to deliver vacant possession of the plaint properties failing which to direct the Officer of the trial Court to put the plaintiff in vacant possession of the suit properties. The trial Court dismissed the application holding that the amendment would change the nature of the suit. In revision, Held: The plaintiff has stated all the facts with regard to his title and also his possession and by way of the amendment, he seeks to introduce a new prayer based on the pleadings already brought by him in the plaint. Applying the ratio in the decision in A.K. Gupta and Sons Ltd. v. Damodar Valley Corporation, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 96, the plaintiff is entitled to have the plaint amended and the contention of the learned counsel for the respondents that the plaintiff is introducing a new cause of action or a new case cannot be countenanced. Even after the closing of the evidence, the plaint was allowed to be amended in the judgment reported in 93 L.W. 317. Therefore, the defendants will not be prejudiced in allowing this amendment and in the circumstances the order of the lower appellate court refusing to amend the plaint is not in accordance with law.

T.V. Ramanujam, for Petitioner.
D. Nellaiappan, for Respondents.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

Held: The tribunal has found, after discussing the evidence on record that the evidence is totally insufficient to hold that the charges are proved. Thus, the tribunal has considered the evidence on record and come to the conclusion that the findings recorded by the domestic enquiry officer are perverse. That, the tribunal is entitled to do.

Mrs. Bhagirathi Narayanan, for Petitioner.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

Srinivasan, J.

Jeeva Transport Corporation v.
The Industrial Tribunal, Madras.

27th August, 1992.

W.P.No.12954 of 1992.

Industrial Disputes Act (XIV of 1947), Sec. 33(2)(b)
- Application for approval of dismissal of worker - Findings recorded at domestic enquiry, if can be referred by Industrial Tribunal.

D.Raju, J.

Raja D.V.Appa Rao Bahadur v.
The Government of Tamil Nadu
by Secretary, Municipal Administration and Water Supply Department, Madras.

5th February, 1993.

W.P.Nos.1421 to 1428 of 1993.

(A) Madras City Municipal Corporation Act (IV of 1919), Sch.IV as amended by the Rules, Municipal Administration and Water Supply G.O.Ms.No.1178, dated 10.12.1987 - Levy of property tax - In respect of property situate in the City of Madras on and from 1.4.1993 - Whether illegal - Ultra vires of the rule making powers.

(B) Madras City Municipal Corporation Act (IV of 1919), Sec.100 - Schedule IV, Rules found thereunder - Revision of property tax - With effect from 1.4.1993 - Of the property tax in the Madras City - Based on the returns furnished by the owners/occupiers - Calling upon them to file the proforma return - Whether illegal.

(C) Constitution of India (1950), Arts.14 and 265 - G.O.Ms.No.1178, dated 10.12.1987 relating to levy of property tax - In respect of property situate in the City of Madras - On and from 1.4.1993 - Whether illegal - Ultra vires of the rule making powers - Whether violative of rights guaranteed under the Constitution.

Held: The court is of the view that the apprehension of the petitioners that the proposed revision of the property tax is sought to be made on the basis of the plinth area and not really on the annual value has no basis in law or otherwise. Apart from the candid admissions made by the second respondent in the counter affidavit filed. It is by now well settled by catena of decisions of this Court and that of the Apex Court that the rateable value of a building. Whether tenanted or self occupied is limited by the measure of standard rent arrived at by the Assessing Authority by applying the principles laid down in the Rent Act and cannot exceed the figure of the standard rent so arrived at though in a given case. It may be lower than such standard rent. It has been held and the law as beyond controversy that within the upper limit of the rateable value of the premises so fixed the Assessing Authority would have to determine the reasonable rent by evaluating factors such as site, situation, locality and condition of the premises and the amenities thereon provided. It has been held that annual value cannot exceed the standard rent and even landlord actually receiving higher rent in an individual case matters very little for determination of the annual value for levying and collecting property tax.

There is no dispute that the proforma return, as such has not been prescribed by the State Government or that any specific authorisation of the second respondent is so made to formulate any such form. But the question would be as to whether the absence of such enabling power undermines the efficiency of the form published. The rules contained 1-C(1) prescribes the particulars that should be furnished by the owner/occupier and the period within which such form should be filed by those liable. In the light of such prescription made, the fact that a format has been devised by the second respondent for the convenience of an owner/occupier or does not militate against its efficiency merely because the format of the return itself has not been so prescribed under rules. The plea on behalf of the petitioners that no time limit or period of limitation as such could have been prescribed under the rules in the absence of specific conferment of power in this regard and the reliance placed upon two decisions of the Apex Court are incorrect and inappropriate. Unlike the ordinary rule making power that was the subject matter of consideration in the decisions of the Apex Court relied upon for the petitioners, the rules in question though made by the State Government are made after two drafts of the same is moved and placed before the Legislature and specifically approved by the State Legislature as required under Sec.347(5) of the Act. That apart, it is a well accepted principle of statutory construction that the rules in the Schedule to the Act are as much part and parcel of the statutes itself and the infirmity alleged cannot be said to exist in such cases so as to affect the legality and validity of the notification prescribing the time limit within which the return visualised has to be filed and the relevant particulars are furnished to facilitate a time bound finalisation of the assessment proceedings to ensure the effective collection of the tax due to the second respondent.

The notification also states that if no return was filed within the notified time, the Corporation will suo moto revise the assessment of the property and the owner of the property shall not be entitled to file an appeal against such assessment, as per the act. The legality or otherwise of the provision disabling on assessee who has not filed his return from filing an appeal will be separately dealt with and need not concern the consideration of this stage. A reading of the rule 1-C(1) of Part 1-A would go to show that the return envisaged thereunder is not of the conventional nature as prescribed in the other taxation laws. Apart from the non-prescription of the form as such the rules contemplate a return containing certain details and information which have been stipulated by the rules themselves. Rule 2 provides also that in case of default in the filing of the return within the notified time the preparation of the return by a person authorised by the Commissioner by entering upon and making an inspection of the assessable item. As a matter of fact, the explanatory note appended to the motion of the draft rules submitted before the Legislature under Sec.47(3) of the Act.

Therefore, it could be seen that the object of the rules itself is to allow participation of the owner/occupier in the very process of assessment/revision by enabling him to disclose certain relevant details relating to the assessable item, in his own interest and even in cases of default cause such details to be ascertained by the inspection assessable item by a person authorised to facilitate assessment/revision. Even under the old rates for assessment/revision the ultimate burden to make the assessment/revision was that of the authorities and the introduction of the system of filing of a return, does not make any change in this regard, except that it extends an extent of participation in the process by the owner/occupier himself of the property concerned. Consequently, the second respondent cannot also be said to be exonerated or relieved of his duties and obligations to cause a due verification of the relevant details relating to the assessable item before proceeding to assess/revise the tax liability of an assessee, in accordance with the well-settled principles relating to the levy and collection of property tax under the Act. Merely because the owner/occupier fails to file a return as envisaged, the second respondent cannot arbitrarily or whimsically assess/revise the liability in any manner he thinks. It is a well accepted principle of law that the phraseology "Having regard to" do not mean having regard to only those mentioned and that the authority could not take into other relevant, vital or necessary materials or particulars or that such materials not specified are excluded from consideration. Likewise the absence of guidelines issued by the council or even the existence of guidelines do not affect the exercise of power of assessment/revision objectively taking into account only the provisions in the Act, Rules and the law declared by Courts. The guidelines if any, could only fill up any gaps or at any rate, serve as guidelines and cannot either override the law or have any binding effect so as to fetter or freeze the exercise of discretion and discharge powers and duties objectively and independently. I find nothing wrong in the Commissioner being enjoined to have regard to the annual value of the assessable item as on 1st October, 1978, since that was the last of the general revisions made, for purpose of further revision now contemplated. The relevance of the existing assessment for further revision cannot totally be ruled out and no basic or legal infirmity can be said to affect the exercise made by the Commissioner, which as referred to supra, has to be only in accordance with Sec.100 of the Act and the law already declared by the decisions of this Court, keeping in view to the extent possible and permissible the rules in question.

The right of appeal, no doubt, is a creature of the law and the absence of any provision for an appeal or revision against a decision, in the context of modern development of law is viewed as a serious infirmity, particularly in view of the fundamental principle of rule of law enshrined under Art.14 of the Constitution of India. So far as the case on hand, there is no controversy that there is a right of appeal to the taxation appeal tribunal and a further appeal to the Principal Judge, City Civil Court. The question is whether the said right of appeal could be denied to an owner/occupier merely because he failed to file the return envisaged under Rule 1-C(1) of Part 1-A of the IV Schedule. The failure on the part of the owner/occupier to file the return disclosing the details sought, as held already by me does not absolve the second respondent of his obligation and duty to verify about those details relating to the assessable item or the obligation cast upon him to act objectively and reasonably while exercising his powers of assessment/revision. Consequently, no immunity from challenge could be afforded to an assessment revision made by the second respondent even in such cases and there is no rhyme or reason in Rule 13. In a taxing law, normally orders passed ex parte or to the best of judgment due to the non-cooperation of the assessee to complete the assessment process, are also made subject to a right of appeal and or revision and the stipulation contained in Rule 13 not only sounds illogical, arbitrary and unreasonable, but smacks of draconian devilry and cannot be said to be justifiable for any good reason or on sound principle of law or logic. An owner/occupier, who has failed to file a return, called for, is as much entitled to file an appeal as one who has filed a return. Consequently, Rule 13 of the Part V of the IV Schedule to the Act is struck down as arbitrary, unreasonable and violative of Art. 14 of the Constitution of India and declared null and void.

Even under the old and substituted rules when the assessment books have been prepared for the first time and whenever a general revision of such books has been completed, the Commissioner had to give a public notice specifying the time whom and the place where the books may be inspected and stating that revision petitions will be considered if preferred within 15 days from the date of such notice and the rules also provided that in cases of enhancement in the assessment, a special notice shall issue to the owner/occupier and only after hearing the said person shall amend the assessment books. This Court in the decision reported in 91 L.W. 110, has held that such notice of enhancement should disclose the reasons or basis for such enhancement to enable the assessee to put forward any effective objections to the same. But, the new rules, apparently for the reason that the assessment invariably would be made on the return filed provides for an assessment/revision without any such opportunity. Rule 6 provides for such an opportunity only in cases where the Commissioner, on verification made of the particulars in the return after a general revision and before the next general revision seeks to modify the assessment already made from the date on which the assessment was made and not otherwise. No doubt, there is an appeal to the Taxation Appeal Tribunal and a further appeal to the Principal Judge, City Civil Court. A careful analysis of the rules under challenge disclose the following:

(a) After the stage of filing the return or ascertaining particulars in the absence of any such return, the Commissioner assess the property tax or revise the existing assessment of the property to tax;

(b) There is no provision for pre-decisional hearing or making representation as against the proposal of the Commissioner for revision and enhancement;

(c) No provisions exist for communicating the order passed or disclosing the reasons or basis for the enhancement of the levy or for assessment/revision;

(d) Only the supply of a property tax card, with details mentioned therein, and that too to only those who filed the return is contemplated;

(e) Provision has been made for filing an appeal to the Taxation Appeal Committee and a further appeal to the Principal Judge, City Civil Court. The appeal to the Tribunal cannot be entertained unless the appellant deposits in the Corporation the existing tax and also fifty per cent of the difference between the existing tax and the tax as assessed by the Commissioner, in the revision.

It is now well-settled that rules of natural justice or the principle of audi alteram partem are not rigid rules but they are not only flexible, but their application depends upon the setting and background of a statutory provisions, nature of the right which may be affected and the consequences which may entail its application or non-application. It is also well-settled that the application of the uncodified rules can be excluded by express provisions or by implication of course subject to the rights of this and the other competent authorities to adjudicate on the constitutionality of doing so. Wherever the law contemplates by making a suitable provision for a post decisional hearing amounting to a full review of the original order on merits, it can be construed as an exclusion of the audi alteram partem principle and if the law is silent with regard to the giving of a pre-decisional hearing to the person affected and the decision taken by the authority involves civil consequences and no full review or appeal on merits against the decision is provided. Courts would hesitate to construe an exclusion of the duty to afford a hearing. Unless viewed pragmatically it would paralyse the administrative process or frustrate the need for utmost promptitude. The courts of law have been enjoined to always make every effort to salvage the cardinal rule of audi alteram partem to the maximum extent possible with situation modifications and ensure as far as possible that the person affected has a reasonable opportunity of hearing or showing cause against the proposed action against him.

So far as the cases on hand are concerned, there can be no two views on the claim of the Corporation that a revision of the property tax is long overdue and imminent, having regard to the fact that the last general revision was only in 1978 and the further facts that not only there had been steep rise in the annual value, but substantial increase in the commitments of the Corporation to provide basic amenities and that the increase in the cost of providing such amenities to the residents warrant and justify such a revision. The justification of that cannot justify the adoption of any means or procedure, ignoring completely the prejudice that may be caused to the citizen. Rule 3 obliging the Commissioner to assess the property tax and forming part of Part 1-A relating to assessment of property tax does not exclude the principles of natural justice. Unlike the earlier set of rules there was no opportunity given to make representations by means of a revision to the Commissioner before actually amending or revising or enhancing the assessment and enforcing the same. The rules are silent about giving of any reasons or disclosing the basis of enhancement either before or immediately thereafter by serving any order or proceeding except supplying a property tax card, apparently containing the details relating to property, annual value fixed and the property tax assessed to be paid. In the absence of any of those details or disclosure of the basis or reasons for enhancement, it would not hold the assessee to effectively even vindicate or his rights in the appeal provided for and formulate the grounds on which the enhancement can be challenged. As a matter of fact, prior to the impugned amendments and even under the earlier rules when an occasion like this arose, this Court in the decision in 91 L.W. 110, pointed out all these and emphasised the need for disclosing the basis and reasons for enhancement. The Legislature has not and could not be said to have nullified or altered the said position of law by the impugned amendments, particularly in the absence of specific rule or provision to the contrary. The insertion of Rule 21-A to the extent that notwithstanding anything contained in any rule "in this part" it shall not be necessary for the Commissioner to serve any notice for the levy and collection of property tax under Sec.98 cannot have the effect of disposing with the requirements of principles of natural justice at the stage of assessment/revision and enhancement of the levy by the Commissioner. This is obvious from the fact that Rule 21-A has been inserted in Part VI relating to collection of taxes and the rule is also meant to be a non obstante clause in respect of anything contained to the contrary or in any rule in Part VI and not the other parts of the IV Schedule particularly Part I-A.

There can be no serious controversy the position that the assessment, levy and collection of tax involve civil consequences. The rules relating to assessment are also silent on the exclusion of the principles of natural justice at the stage of assessment or revision as the case may be. While so, merely from the fact that after an assessment or revision, there is a provision for appeal particularly when the rules do not cast an obligation on the Commissioner to write an order with reasons and communicate them to the assessee, for enabling the assessee to effectively challenge the assessment or enhancement of the tax made. The long lapse of time between the present revision proposed and the earlier general revision in 1978 or the justification or imminent need for a general revision is no ground to jettison the application of rules of fair play. Instead suitable directions may and have to be issued to adjust and harmonise the need for speed and also the obligation to set fairly and modify the measure of its application in reasonable proportion to the exigencies of the situation. The assessment and communication of the demand either in the form of a notice or the property tax card or both need not necessarily be in the beginning or the first day of the commencement of the half year and it may be either in the course of the first half year or by the close of the succeeding half year concerned (Vide Rule 20(3)). This would be in conformity with the mandate of Sec.100(2) of the Act that the annual value of lands and buildings shall be deemed the gross annual rent at which they may 'at the time of assessment' reasonably be expected and inevitably the assessment is an event to follow the date of commencement of the half year concerned. In view of the above the second respondent would not suffer any damage or injury by being directed to adhere to the principle of natural justice to the required possible extent. Consequently, though there is no justification to stall the assessment process set in motion by the issue of the impugned notification under the rules under challenge, it is necessary, for the second respondent to serve a provisional notice containing the proposed revision and the reasons or basis for the enhancement before passing final orders under Rule 3 and give the assessment atleast a period of 15 days time to submit the objections of the assessee and consider them before passing final orders of assessment/revision under rules, though not a personal hearing at that stage. This procedure shall be adopted in respect of all irrespective of the fact whether they filed a return or not as called for under the impugned notification. The adoption of the said course would be in the best interests of both parties before this Court.

For all these reasons stated above, the court summarises its conclusions and directions in the matter as hereunder:

(1) The assessment/revision of the property tax shall be only in accordance with Sec.100 of the Act on the annual value to be ascertained and determined on the principle laid down in A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 541, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 339 and (1978)1 M.L.J. 93: 91 L.W. 110, as also conceded by the second respondent.

(2) The owners/occupiers liable to submit their returns shall have further time to do so till 28th

February, 1993 and the returns may be either in the same format or any other form but must contain all the relevant details and information stipulated in the format and rules or such further or other details relevant for the purpose.

(3) On receipt of the said returns and even where there are no returns filed, the Commissioner shall be at liberty to proceed with the assessment process by serving a provisional notice of enhancement wherever there is reasons for the enhancement giving atleast 15 days time to enable the assessee to file their representations against the proposal, consider the said objections and pass final order, amending the books of assessment.

(4) The assessment so made shall be effective from the first half year of 1993-94 (with effect from 1-4-1993) as notified subject to the provisions governing revision and appeals.

(5) The provisions of Rule 13 is struck down as arbitrary unreasonable and violative of Art.14 of the Constitution of India and consequently null and void. The assessee shall be entitled to file an appeal or submit their representations irrespective of the fact whether they have actually filed the returns or not.

(6) Subject to the above declaration and directions, the respondent shall be entitled to and be at liberty to proceed further with the assessment process initiated by the notification issued on 3.1.1993, and

(7) The impugned rules issued in G.O.Ms.No.1178, Municipal Administration and Water Supply, dated 10.12.1987, published in the Tamil Nadu Government Gazette (Extraordinary) dated 10.12.1987 are held valid, but their enforcement shall be subject to the declaration of law and directions given above in this order.

These writ petitions shall stand ordered in the manner and to the extent indicated above. In all other respects the relief claimed shall stand rejected.

K.C.Rajappa, for Petitioner.

P.Sathasivam, Government Pleader, for Respondent No.1.

N.R.Chandran, Senior Counsel for Respondent No.2 conducted by N.Kannadasan.

[Full report of the above judgment will be published shortly - Ed.]

R.S. ----- Petitions ordered.

A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

P.Manogaranc, Secretary, The Pondicherry Bar Association,
Pondicherry v.
Union of India, Union Territory of Pondicherry represented by the Chief Secretary, Government of Pondicherry.

21st January, 1993.

W.P.Nos.3642, 9391 and 14035 of 1992.

(A) Pondicherry Judicial Service Rules (1980), Rule 8, 9, 11, 12, 30 and 31 - Scope - Appointment of officers to Junior Scale of Pondicherry Judicial Service under Rules 8 and 9 - Proper procedure - Person appointed to Junior Scale (Grade II) not joining post, but serving in executive post - If can be promoted to Junior Scale (Grade I) - Promoting executive officer to discharge judicial functions, if violative of basic structure of the Constitution.

Held on facts: The appointment of the 3rd respondent in the post of Junior Scale (Grade II), Pondicherry Judicial Service, by invoking Rule 8 of the Pondicherry Judicial Service Rules (1980), is bad since the initial recruitment under the Rules were already done earlier. Rule 8 is a transitory provision. It works itself out as the first recruitment is over. Therefore, Rule 8 even though continues in the statute book, shall cease to have effect, use and force for being invoked for the second or third time. Initial recruitment having been made in respect of the entire sanctioned strength of the service, there cannot be subsequent second initial recruitment in respect of the same posts as and when vacancies arise in the said post on account of retirement etc. of initially recruited officers.

Further, a bare look into the bio-data of the 3rd respondent shows that all the offices listed in the bio-data and the service particulars are neither judicial nor part of any judicial service, but are appointments under the control of the executive. It is also not disputed that he never acted in any judicial office. Hence, the 3rd respondent was not qualified for appointment as an officer in the Junior Scale (Grade II), Pondicherry Judicial Service and later to be promoted to Junior Scale (Grade I) of the Pondicherry Judicial Service.

Needless to state that the independence, efficiency and integrity of the judiciary can only be maintained by selecting the best persons in accordance with the procedure provided under the Constitution of India.

Nor could the appointment of the 3rd respondent be sustained under Rule 9 of the Rules. For regular appointment under Rule 9 read with Rules 11 and 12 of the Rules, a person in Government Service cannot be hand-picked and considered without resorting to Rule 12. Any such selection shall be wholly violative of not only Rule 12 of the Rules, but also Arts.14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. Equality of opportunity of public employment and guarantee against discrimination are constitutional rights which cannot be violated by the Government, much less by the High Court be it in the administrative or judicial jurisdiction.

The 3rd respondent after his appointment to the Pondicherry Judicial Service did not join the service and failed to submit himself to the control of the High Court under Art.235 of the Constitution of India. As a matter of fact, the 3rd respondent continued in the Law Department and even enjoyed several promotions in that department. Hence, a person who had not joined the service cannot claim seniority, promotion and other benefits in the said service. For this reason, the promotion of the 3rd respondent in the higher post of Junior Scale (Grade I) of the Pondicherry Judicial Service cannot be sustained.

The 3rd respondent, who is essentially an executive officer, cannot be promoted to discharge judicial functions violating the basic structure of the Constitution of India, viz., the rule of law and the independence of the judiciary.

If the 3rd respondent's promotion from Junior Scale (Grade II) to Junior Scale (Grade I) without a day's experience in the lowest post could be sustained, similar promotion from Junior Scale (Grade I) to Senior Scale (Grade II) and then to Senior Scale (Grade I) can also be sustained. In such an event, a person could be given paper appointment to a lower post in the judicial service and allowed to work indefinitely outside the Pondicherry Judicial Service in the executive wing of the Government and one fine morning he could be promoted and appointed as a the Senior most District Judge without any experience as Munsif and Subordinate Judge. If the same analogy is extended, the said person even without working as District Judge, on paper may claim for consideration for appointment to the High Court. If such a thing is allowed to happen, it will be a travesty of independence of judiciary and dispensation of justice and separation of judiciary from executive.

The quality of justice will depend upon the quality of the men who preside over the judiciary and hand down the judgments. Inducting into the judiciary, more particularly, subordinate higher judiciary, men, from the executive who have no proper training and experience in judiciary, shall almost to denial of justice which is a basic structure of the Constitution. Every litigant is entitled to have his case judged by a qualified, trained and experienced judge and not by any other men. Denial of the same shall be violative of a citizen's constitutional right to have real and proper justice.

(B) Constitution of India (1950), Art. 226 - Pondicherry Judicial Service - Ineligible persons appointed in contravention of relevant Rules - Locus standi of Pondicherry Bar Association to challenge by filing writ of certiorari or quo-warranto.

The present writ petitions filed on behalf of the Pondicherry Bar Association are maintainable as the members of the Bar are aggrieved parties and have personal interest in the independence of judiciary, rule of law and dispensation of justice. Writ of certiorari shall also lie in this case since the petitioners individually and the Pondicherry Bar Association are aggrieved persons as their interest and rights are affected inasmuch as the 3rd respondent's appointment both to Junior Scale (Grade II) and Junior Scale (Grade I) of the Pondicherry Judicial Service were made even though he was not eligible and was not recruited in accordance with Rules. Writ of quo warranto shall also issue in this case since the 3rd respondent's appointment to the post of Junior Scale (Grade II) and his subsequent promotion to Junior Scale (Grade I) were made in contravention of the Recruitment Rules as he was not eligible to those posts and the methods adopted to recruit and promote him were contrary to the Rules.

(C) Constitution of India (1950), Art. 226 - Writ of certiorari or quo-warranto challenging appointment to a post - If and when liable to be dismissed on the ground of laches.

Even though the 3rd respondent was selected to the post of Junior Scale (Grade II), Pondicherry Judicial Service and his appointment was notified in the Gazette on 2.7.1984, he had not joined the service as a judicial officer for more than seven years and eight months and had not discharged judicial functions in any court until he was promoted to the post of Junior Scale (Grade I), Pondicherry Judicial Service on 28.2.1992. Hence, the writ petition filed on 11.3.1992 immediately on his assumption of charge in the promoted post is not belated. The writ petition can be filed immediately after the assumption of office by the 3rd respondent. Since, the 3rd respondent had not joined the service and assumed the judicial post until 28.2.1992, the writ petition was not filed challenging his appointment and the same was filed as soon as he assumed charge of the office. Hence, it is not hit by laches.

Further, each day the 3rd respondent is in office it gives rise to fresh cause of action. No usurper can sustain his position on the ground of long usurpation, that too, when public interest is affected. Public interest shall override individual inconvenience or injury. Standard of vigilance demanded from a party seeking remedy to his personal benefit as against another individual, cannot be bodily imported in cases instituted in general and public interest. As regards cases in which illegal acts affecting public interest are exposed, the principle to be applied shall be "better late than never" since Rule of Law and majesty of justice shall prevail above all men and matters.

However, the case of respondents 2 to 5 in the other writ petition is different. They were inducted under the Pondicherry Judicial Service Rules, 1980, as early as 2.7.1984 and if the petitioner wanted to challenge their appointment, he should have done so in 1984 itself. Hence to file a writ petition after eight years is an abuse of the process of courts and the petitioner is trying to unsettle the settled things. Hence, the writ petition is not maintainable.

Even in a quo warranto the High Court can reject an application if it is affected by laches.

(D) Pondicherry Judicial Service Rules (1980), Rule 8 - Rule providing for appointment of 'Legal Advisers to Government' as District Judges - If ultra vires Art.233(2) of the Constitution of India.

Obiter: Rule 8 of the Pondicherry Judicial Service Rules insofar as the same provides for the appointment of 'Legal Advisers to Government' as District Judges (Senior Scale in the Pondicherry Judicial Service) is ultra vires Art.233(2) of the Constitution of India. As such, any rule and/or appointment made in contravention of Art.233(2) of the Constitution shall be illegal and ultra vires the Constitution. Hence, an executive from the law department cannot be appointed to Higher Subordinate Judiciary.

(E) Constitution of India (1950), Arts.233 to 237 - Gist of the provisions discussed.

G.Masilamani, Senior Advocate for T.P.Manoharan, for Petitioner in W.P.Nos.3642 and 9391 of 1992. S.Mahimai Raj, for Petitioner in W.P.No.14035 of 1992.

R.Krishnamurthi, Senior Advocate, for K.S.Ahmed, Government Pleader, Pondicherry for Respondent Nos.1, 2 and 4 in W.P.Nos.3642 and 9391 of 1992 and for Respondent No.1 in W.P.No.14035

of 1992.

R.Muthukumaraswami for S.Mala and P.Punithavathi for Respondent No.3 in W.P.Nos.3642 and 9391 of 1992 and for Respondent No.6 in W.P.No.14035 of 1992.

N.R.Chandran, Senior Advocate for S.Manikumar, for Respondent Nos.2 to 5 in W.P.No.14035 of 1992.

A.S.Venkatachalamoorthy, Special Government Pleader, for Respondent No.5 in W.P.Nos.3642 and 9391 of 1992 and for Respondent No.7 in W.P.No.14035 of 1992.

V.K.

Order accordingly.

THE MADRAS LAW JOURNAL

I]

REPORTS

[1993

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Miss.Kantha Kumari Bhatnagar, C.J. and Srinivasan, J.

W.A.No.1503 of 1988 8th July, 1992

Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd., by Deputy General Manager ... Appellant
v.

The Inspector of Labour, Madras-6 and others
... Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Industrial Establishments (Conferment of Permanent Status to Workmen) Act (1981), Sec.5(b) and R.6(4) of the Rules framed under the Act - Persons claiming benefits under Act - Procedure to be followed by Labour Inspector - Discussions held with the persons and management - No settlement reached - Inspector proceeding to pass orders - Sustainability of order.

Respondents 2 and 3 claiming to be entitled to the benefits of the Tamil Nadu Industrial Establishments (Conferment of Permanent Status to Workmen) Act filed a petition before the Labour Inspector on 11.2.1984. The Inspector issued a notice to the appellant and a counter statement was filed by the appellant. A reply to that statement was filed. The Labour Inspector held discussions on 6.8.1984 and 18.8.1984 and finally on 4.9.1984. No settlement could be reached. The Labour Inspector passed an order dated 20.9.1984 directing the appellant to confer permanent status on respondents 2 and 3. The appellants filed a writ petition which was dismissed. In appeal, it was contended that the appellant was not given a proper opportunity to prove its stand.

Held: The Act as well as the Rules contemplate that the Inspector in charge shall make such enquiry as may be necessary to decide whether the claim put forward by the persons concerned is true or not. In the present case, the claim of respondents 2 and 3 was that they were entitled to be conferred permanent status in view of the fact that they were workmen within the meaning of the Act and that they had put in the period of service as required by the Act. But the procedure adopted by the Inspector in this case does not seem to be in consonance with the provisions of the Act and the Rules. After finding that there can be no settlement between the parties, the Inspector ought to have given an opportunity to both the parties to produce relevant evidence to substantiate their respective cases. In the absence of such an opportunity, it is certainly open for the affected party to contend that the order of the Inspector of Labour is vitiated. [Para 11]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Mohan, J., dated 15.7.1988 and made in the exercise of the Special Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in W.P.No.127 of 1985 presented under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a writ of certiorari calling for the records of the 1st respondent in D.Dis.No.865 of 1984 and quash his orders No.D.Dis.865 of 1984, dated 20.9.1984.

M.R.Narayanaswami, Senior Counsel, for T.S.Gopalan, P.Ibrahim Kallifullah and S.Ravindran, for Appellant.

M.A.Sadanand, Government Pleader and K.M.Ramesh, for Respondents.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Srinivasan, J.:- The appellant is a corporation which according to their stand engages the services of certain persons as pump-fitters on specific contracts. According to the appellant, such fitters are engaged only on contracts for particular work and such persons who are employed by the appellant are entitled to work for others also. In short, the case of the appellant is that such persons are free-lance fitters.

2. The respondents 2 and 3 claimed that they are entitled to the benefits of the Tamil Nadu Industrial Establishments (Conferment of Permanent Status to Workmen) Act, 1981. They filed a petition before the Inspector of Labour under the said Act on 11.2.1984. They claimed that they were working as pump-fitters for five years prior to that date and they were being paid wages at Rs.530 and Rs.350 respectively per mensem. Their complaint was that their names were not shown in the register of permanent employees. The Inspector of Labour issued notice to the appellant and a counter-statement was filed by the appellant. In the said statement, the appellant took the stand that the respondents 2 and 3 were free-lance fitters who were free to take up any assignment and that they were not required to work under the supervision of the officials of the appellant-corporation. It was also stated that there was no compulsion they should attend to the break-down calls of the dealers of the appellant. It was also stated that they are not required to report at the office of the appellant-Corporation.

3. A reply to the said statement was filed on 6.8.1984. Unfortunately, a copy of the same is not made available to us. It is seen from the order of the Inspector of Labour that he had discussions with the parties on several dates. The first discussion was on 6.8.1984. On that date, the respondents filed their statement dated 4.8.1984 and along with it, they filed a wage slip and copies of letters issued by the appellant-corporation and its predecessor. On that date, the appellant-corporation was not present for the discussion.

4. Again discussions were held on 18.8.1984. It was represented by the appellant that it would discuss the issue with the head-office and try to settle the matter including payment of arrears from 1982 to respondents 2 and 3 herein. The matter was adjourned further. Final discussions were held on 4.9.1984, on which date both the parties reported since there was no settlement, they stick to their original stands taken in the statements dated 15.6.1984 and 4.8.1984 respectively.

5. The Inspector of Labour proceeded to pass an order on 20.9.1984. After referring to the discussions, he extracted the provisions of the Act and referred to the documents filed before him by the parties along with their respective statements. Ultimately, he observed as follows:

"There is no dispute with regard to the number of years of service put in by the petitioners as they are employed from 1972 and 1978 respectively. Even on the day of meeting on 18.8.1984, the respondent-management expressed their willingness for a discussion of the issue of permanency with their head-office and to try to settle the issue including the payment of arrears from the year 1982. But they did not do so for the reasons best known to them and stuck to their original stand. On the other hand, the petitioners and the union have filed their records along with their letter dated 4.8.1984 to substantiate their stand. Even from the enclosures sent by the respondent-corporation with their letter dated 15.6.1984 it is proved beyond doubt that the petitioners are workmen coming under the definition of Sec.2(4) of the above Act, 1981, and they are entitled to inclusion of their names in the register of workmen in Form No.1 under Rule 6(1) of the Rules, 1981 and the respondent-management should have exhibited the list as per Rule 6(2)."

6. He concluded that on the materials placed by the parties before him at the time of the enquiry conducted by him on various dates, he was convinced that respondents 2 and 3 were workers as defined in the Act and they have got prescribed service as stipulated in Sec.3(1) of the Act for conferment of permanent status to them. Hence, by exercising the powers conferred by Rule 6(4) of the Rules framed under the Act, he directed the appellant-management to confer permanent status to respondents 2 and 3 on the date on which they had completed the service as contemplated in the Act and issue necessary orders in that regard.

7. Aggrieved by the said order, the appellant filed W.P.No.127 of 1985. The writ petition was heard by a learned single Judge of this Court and by order dated 15.7.1988, the writ petition was dismissed. The learned Judge referred to the three letters which were produced by respondents 2 and 3 before the Inspector of Labour along with the statement dated 4.8.1984. The first letter was dated 1st March, 1972, It was written by Esso, the predecessor of the appellant corporation, introducing one of the respondents as their new company fitter. It was addressed to one of the dealers. The next letter is dated 20.5.1975. It was written by the appellant. In that letter, one of the respondents was introduced as a new pump fitter for Tirunelveli area. In that letter that is a reference about his salary being fixed at Rs.400 per month. It is also stated that in addition to the salary, actual conveyance and batta of Rs.5 per day is to be paid for staying outside headquarters. The last letter is dated 21.5.1975 again by the appellant-Corporation to all the dealers in Tirunelveli sales area and introducing one of the respondents as the Company's fitter.

8. Relying on the above letters, the learned Judge held that it was not open to the management to contend that respondents 2 and 3 are not their workmen within the meaning of the Act. The learned Judge proceeded to observe as follows:

"The management is trying to set up this case presently without laying any foundation before the officer concerned. It wants to take advantage of its own omission and cries hoarse saying that no opportunity has been given. As a matter of fact, I was even inclined to grant a remand. But, the reason why I refuse is, if the management is grossly negligent in putting forth its case, it cannot now be allowed to improve its case, when the three documents clinch the issue. The proceedings of the Inspector of Labour will have to be necessarily upheld. It is found that the workmen and the union have filed a record along with their letter dated 4.8.1984 to substantiate their stand."

The learned Judge then dismissed the writ petition upholding the order of the Inspector of Labour.

9. In this appeal it is contended by learned counsel for the appellant that a proper opportunity was not given to the appellant-Corporation to prove its stand taken before the Inspector of Labour. It is stated that in the course of discussion a representation was made that the matter shall be settled by consulting with the head office and in the next discussion when the Inspector of Labour was informed that there was no settlement, he proceeded to pass the order impugned in the writ petition, without any enquiry. According to learned Counsel, if an enquiry had been held by the Inspector of Labour, the appellant would have proved that respondents 2 and 3 were not workmen as defined by the Act and they were only contractors for service and not contractors of service.

10. Sec.2(4) of the Act defines "workman" as a person employed in any industrial establishment to do any skilled or unskilled, manual, supervisory, technical or electrical work for hire or reward, whether the terms of employment be express or implied. It is not necessary to refer to the exceptions mentioned in the definition. Sec.3 of the Act provides for conferment of permanent status to workmen if certain conditions are satisfied. Sec.4 of the Act provides for appointment of Inspectors. The powers and duties of such inspectors are set out in Sec.5 of the Act. Under Sec.5(b) of the Act, the Inspector may, within the local limits for which he is appointed, make such examination of the industrial establishment and of any registers, records and notices and take on the spot or elsewhere the evidence of such person as he may deem necessary for carrying out the purposes of the Act. In the Rules framed under the Act, Rule 6 provides for maintenance of registers by employers, Rule 6(4) is relevant for the purpose of this case. It reads as follows:

"Any employee who finds his name not entered in the list referred to in Sub-rule (2) or finds that the entries have not been made correctly or finds that though entries regarding his service have been made correctly but he has not attested the entries in the register of workman in Form I may make a representation to the Inspector concerned. The Inspector after examining the representation or after making enquiries may issue suitable directions to the employer for the rectification of the register in Form 1 or for the issue of orders conferring permanent status to the workman concerned."

Rule 6(4) contemplates examination by the Inspector of the representation and making enquiries and thereafter issuing suitable directions to the employer for the rectification of the register, if necessary.

11. Thus, the Acts as well as the Rules contemplate that the Inspector incharge shall make such enquiry as may be necessary to decide whether the claim put forward by the persons concerned is true or not. In the present case, the claim of respondents 2 and 3 was that they were entitled to be conferred permanent status in view of the fact that they were Workmen within the meaning of the Act and that they had put in the period of service as required by the Act. But the procedure adopted by the Inspector in this case does not seem to be in consonance with the provisions of the Act and the Rules. After finding that there can be no settlement between the parties, the Inspector ought to have given an opportunity to both the parties to produce relevant evidence to substantiate their respective cases. In the absence of such an opportunity, it is certainly open to the affected party to contend that the order of the Inspector of Labour is vitiated.

12. In the present case, no doubt some documents were filed by respondents 2 and 3 along with their letter dated 4.8.1984. Similarly, the appellant could have also filed documents along with the statement dated 15.6.1984. Undoubtedly, the appellant filed an enclosure with the statement dated 15.6.1984, but the copy of which is not made available to us. We do not know what exactly the enclosure contains. In the statement dated 15.6.1984, it is stated that the enclosure is a copy of the bill submitted by one of the free-lance fitters wherein he had clearly indicated that he is a contractor of Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd. If that statement is correct, then the document is certainly relevant for the purpose of deciding the question whether respondents 2 and 3 are workers or not. But no reference is made to the document by the Inspector in his order.

13. Reliance is placed on the Letters issued by the appellant in 1975 and its predecessor in 1972. No doubt, they refer to one of the respondents as company's fitter and they also refer to the salary fixed. But the specific case of respondents 2 and 3 in the statement filed before the Inspector of Labour as well as in the Counter affidavit filed in the writ petition is that they were employed for five years prior to the presentation of the petition to the Inspector of Labour. That would take them to 1979 only. Whether they should be pinned down to that statement and whether the documents of 1973 and 1975 on which reliance is now placed by them are relevant or not have to be considered and that can be done only if proper opportunity is given to respondents 2 and 3 to explain their statement made in the first petition given to the Inspector of Labour and the statement made in the counter affidavit in this Court.

14. Thus, we are satisfied that both sides did not have sufficient opportunity to put forward their respective cases and establish the same before the Inspector of Labour. It is the only ground on which we think that the matter should go back to the Inspector of Labour. We are not deciding the merits of the case as to whether respondents 2 and 3 are workmen within the meaning of the Act. That can be decided only after entire evidence is recorded and considered by the authority in question, namely, the Inspector of Labour, II Circle, Madras-600 006.

15. We are aware that the matter is very old and the interests of justice require an early disposal of the matter. The Inspector of Labour is directed to conclude the enquiry on or before 30.9.1992. Both parties shall place all the records on which they want to rely before the Inspector of Labour within the time to be given by him for such purpose. If any party is at default with regard to filing of records, such party has to suffer. The matter should not be prolonged beyond 30.9.1992.

16. The writ appeal is allowed with the above direction. The order of the learned single Judge dated 15.7.1988 made in W.P.No.127 of 1985 and the order of the Inspector of Labour dated 20.9.1984 are set aside and the matter is remanded to the file of the Inspector of Labour, II Circle, Madras-600 006 for fresh disposal in the light of the observations made above and in accordance with the relevant provisions of Law. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Ratnam, J.

C.R.P.No.1840 of 1992 4th September, 1992 and 25th September, 1992.

P.Premchand Bandhia

... Petitioner

v.

Mrs. Yashbala R.Prohit

... Respondent.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960 as amended by Act XXIII of 1973), Secs.2(6), 10(8) and 10(3)(a)(i) - Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Rules (1974), Rule 11(3) - Eviction petition signed and verified by general power of attorney agent - Maintainability - Bona fide requirement of landlady held established.

It is seen from Secs.2(6) and 10(8) of the Act as well as the Rules, that a general power of attorney agent, as in this case, duly empowered to initiate proceedings in eviction, can also sign and present applications for and on behalf of the principal and such an application cannot be said to be not maintainable for the reason that it has not been signed by the landlady herself. The signing of the application as well as the verification therein, by the general power of attorney, as in this case, cannot be regarded as a defect, which affects the jurisdiction of the Controller to entertain the application.

[Para 7]

In other words, a general power of attorney agent, as in this case, when he signs the application for eviction, under Rule 11(3) of the Rules, it shall be as good as having been signed by the applicant landlady herself. Thus, on a due consideration of the provisions of the Act, the contents of the power executed by the landlady in favour of the agent and on the facts of this case, it cannot be said that there was any violation of Rule 11(3) of the Rules framed under the Act and the application for eviction was rightly entertained.

[Para 7]

Held on facts that the need of the landlady to join her husband along with her children, in a premises of her own, cannot be characterised to be lacking in bona fides.

[Para 10]

Cases referred to:

Basdeo v. John Smidt, I.L.R. 22 All. 55 (Paras 4 and 7).

A.S. Subbaraj v. M. Muthiah, (1953) 2 M.L.J. 377: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 336 (Paras 4 and 7).

Pahalajmal Khatumal v. K. Govindarajulu, 74 L.W. 828: (1961) 1 M.L.J. 150 (Paras 4 and 6).

Abdul Ravooof v. South Indian Tanners & Dealers Association, Ranipet, 76 L.W. 589 (Paras 4 and 7).

Jamena Beevi v. Easwarlal Patel, (1979) 2 M.L.J. 355 (Paras 4 and 7).

Bichawa v. M. Venkatesan, 92 L.W. 589 (Para 6);

Rajitram v. Kateswarnath, 18 All. 396 (Para 7).

Petition under Sec. 25 of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act 18 of 1960 as amended Act 23 of 1973 praying the High Court to revise the order of the Appellate Authority, Court of Small Causes (VII Judge), Madras, dated 27.4.1992 and made in R.C.A.No.1080 of 1990 (R.C.O.P.No.1550 of 1986 on the file of the Court of the Small Causes (XIII Judge), Rent Controller, Madras.

K. Doraisami, Senior Counsel, for M/s. Muthumani Doraisami, S. Venkateswaran and T. Mathivanan, for Petitioners.

R. Sundaravaradhan, Senior Counsel, for M/s. P.B. Ramanujam and J.R.K. Bhavanantham, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER: 4.9.1992: This civil revision petition, at the instance of the tenant, has been preferred against the order of eviction passed against the petitioner, by the Appellate Authority, on an application taken out by the respondent herein, under Sec. 10(3)(a)(i) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act 18 of 1960 as amended by Act 23 of 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'). Briefly stated, the circumstances giving rise to this C.R.P., are as follows:

The premises bearing door No. 60, Ellis Road, Madras-2, belongs to the respondent and the petitioner is in occupation of the first floor in that property, as a tenant, on a monthly rent of Rs. 625. The respondent was in occupation, as a tenant, of door No. 4, IV Cross Road, C.I.T. Colony, Madras-4, belonging to one Sri T.A. Ramachandran and the furniture and other house-hold articles belonging to her, were kept in the rented premises, when the landlady was obliged to be away from Madras and the respondent as well as the other members of her family, stayed in the rented premises, whenever they were in Madras. In order to secure her own premises for her use and occupation, as she did not have any other residential premises of her own in the city of Madras, the respondent issued a notice to the petitioner on 16.9.1984 calling upon him to vacate and hand over vacant possession, for which, the petitioner sent a reply declining to comply with the demand. The respondent stated that she requires the premises in the occupation of the petitioner for her own use and occupation, viz., residence for herself and other members of her family whenever they are at Madras and also for keeping her furniture and other household articles, valuables, etc., and that she bona fide requires the first floor in the occupation of the petitioner for her own use and occupation. Accordingly, she prayed for an order of eviction against the petitioner under Sec. 10(3)(a)(i) of the Act.

2. In the counter filed by the petitioner, he put forward the plea that the petitioner was not residing as a tenant at Door No. 4, IV Cross Road, C.I.T. Colony, Madras-4 and further denied that the respondent did not own any other property in the city of Madras. That the respondent was bona fide in need of the building, was also denied by the petitioner. Stating that the respondent belongs to Gujarat and her husband was employed, in the Sultanate of Oman and she is permanently settled with her husband at Muscat, the petitioner questioned the bona fides of the requirement of the respondent and prayed for the dismissal of the eviction petition.

3. Before the Rent Controller (XIII Judge, Court of Small Causes), Madras, on behalf of the respondent, Exs.P-1 to P-4 were marked and P.Ws.1 and 2 gave evidence, while, on behalf of the petitioner, Exs.R-1 to R-6 were filed and R.Ws.1 and 2 were examined. In the course of the proceedings before the Rent Controller, the petitioner also raised an objection that the application for eviction filed by the respondent, was defective, in that, it did not conform to the requirements of Rule 11(3) of the Rules framed under the Act. On a consideration of the oral as well as the documentary evidence, the learned Rent Controller took the view that the eviction petition filed by the respondent had been signed by the power of attorney agent of the respondent and not by herself and that would render the application for eviction not maintainable. Dealing with the question of bona fides of the requirement of the respondent, the Rent Controller found that the inaction of the respondent from 1981-82 to 1984 and again between 1984 and 1986, in the matter of taking proceedings against the petitioner seeking his eviction, would throw doubts on the bona fides of the requirement of the respondent and that, therefore, the respondent was not entitled to an order of eviction as prayed for by her. Ultimately, the Rent Controller dismissed the eviction petition filed by the respondent, against which, the respondent filed R.C.A.No.1080 of 1990, before the Appellate Authority (VII Judge, Court of Small Causes), Madras. On a consideration of the definition of the word 'landlord' under Sec.2(6) of the Act and the contents of the power of attorney, the Appellate Authority took the view that the power of attorney empowered the agent to initiate action for eviction and the verification of the application having been made in accordance with the terms of the power, the conclusion of the Rent Controller that the application was not maintainable, as there was no compliance with Rule 11(3) of the Rules framed under the Act, was not correct. In addition, the Appellate Authority, on a consideration of the evidence of P.Ws.1 and 2 and R.W.1, found that the respondent did not own any other residential premises of her own, but that she was a tenant in Door No.4 IV Cross Road,

C.I.T. Colony, Madras-4 and that she and the members of her family, whenever they visited Madras, stayed in the rented premises and the respondent cannot be denied the relief of eviction against the petitioner on the ground that such a claim lacked in bona fides. On the conclusions so arrived at, the Appellate Authority reversed the order of the Rent Controller and ordered eviction of the petitioner from the premises in his occupation, the correctness of which is questioned in this C.R.P.

4. In support of the revision, learned counsel for the petitioner, inviting attention to Rule 11(3) of the Rules framed under the Act, contended that the eviction petition had been signed, verified and presented by the power of attorney agent of the respondent and this is in violation of Rule 11(3) of the Rules, which requires the application to be signed by the applicant and his counsel. Elaborating this, learned counsel pointed out that the signing of the application should be done by the applicant and his counsel, though the presentation of the application to the Controller or the officer authorised by him, may be either by the applicant personally or by his recognised agent or counsel and that, in this case, there has been a violation of the first part of Rule 11(3) of the Rules, requiring the signing of the application by the landlady. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent, referring to the power of attorney, marked as Ex.P-1 and Secs.2(6) and 10(8) of the Act, submitted that the power of attorney himself is the landlord for the purposes of the Act, in this case, as there was no restriction on the scope of his authority, as contemplated under Sec.10(8) of the Act and that there was no violation whatever of Rule 11(3) of the Rules, under those circumstances. Maintaining that the signing and verification of an application, are matters collateral to the main application, and would not in any manner affect the jurisdiction of the court to entertain the application, learned counsel invited attention to the decisions reported in Basdeo v. John Smidt, I.L.R. 22 All. 55 and A.S.Subbaraj v. M.Muthiah, (1953) 2 M.L.J. 377: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 336. In addition, reference was also made to the decisions reported in Pahalajmal Khatumal v. K.Govindarajulu, Power of Attorney Agent of T.V. & Bros. and Abhaichand Vendavan, 74 L.W. 828: (1961) 1 M.L.J. 150, Abdul Ravoof v. South Indian Tanners & Dealers Association, Ranipet, 76 L.W.

589, Jameena Beevi v. Easwarlal Patel, (1979)2 M.L.J. 355.

5. From the eviction petition filed, it is seen that Mr. M. Subramania Rao, in his capacity as the power of attorney agent of the respondent, has signed the application as well as the verification and had also presented it. Ex.P-1, dated 4.1.1984 is the general power of attorney executed by the landlady in favour of the power of attorney agent. From the provisions of Ex.P-1, it is seen that the agent has been authorised to receive rents, damages for use and occupation, in respect of the property bearing Door No.60, Ellis Road, Madras-600002, issued valid receipts and discharges for the payments received, induct tenants, execute lease deeds and receive advance of rents, in respect of whole or portions of the property, to institute suits, petitions and proceedings for ejectment and possession of whole or portions of the property, to sign and verify complaints, petitions, pleadings, for the purpose of institution of suits, petitions and proceedings, to levy execution of decrees, obtained in suits, petitions and proceedings and take delivery of possession, to take possession of properties and be in actual possession of whole or portions of the property and to do all other acts incidental to secure the aforesaid objects. Further, the landlady has also undertaken to ratify all the acts done by the agent within the scope of the power. Under Sec.2(6) of the Act, which contains an inclusive definition of the expression 'landlord', a person receiving or is entitled to receive the rent of a building, whether on his own account or on behalf of another, or as an agent, trustee, etc., would also be a landlord. Sec.10(8) of the Act provides that a person, who is receiving or is entitled to receive the rent of a building, merely as an agent of the landlord, shall not, except with the previous written consent of the landlord, be entitled to apply for the eviction of a tenant. Considering the scope of the power executed by the landlady in favour of the agent, that cannot be construed to be one executed merely for the receipt of rents of a building, without anything more. In other words, in view of the wide scope of the authority conferred on the agent by the landlady in this case, under the terms of Ex.P-1, he would himself be the landlord, for the purposes of the Act under Sec.2(6) of the Act and the signing and verifying of the application for eviction by the agent, has to be regarded as having been done by the landlady herself.

6. In Pahalajmal Khatumal v. K. Govindarajulu, Power of Attorney Agent of T.V. & Bros. and Abhaichand Vendavan, (1961)1 M.L.J. 150: 74 L.W. 828, the order of eviction was assailed on the ground that the agent of the landlord, who filed the eviction petition, was not authorised to file such a petition. The learned District Judge took the view that the general power of attorney conferred the necessary power upon the agent and was not against the tenor of Sec.7(7) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act 1949. In dealing with the contention that the eviction petition was not maintainable because the agent was only collecting the rent, Srinivasan, J. pointed out that the argument that notwithstanding that the agent holds a general power of attorney, which specifically includes the power of attorney agent to take steps in eviction proceedings, on behalf of the landlord, even then, there should be a separate written consent for that purpose, could not be accepted and that the power of attorney rendered the agent competent to appear, continue, prosecute and defend all the legal proceedings and that included a right to take eviction proceedings and therefore, the application filed by the agent, was maintainable. In V. Bichawa v. M. Venkatesan, 92 L.W. 589, a Division Bench has approved of the view taken by Srinivasan, J. in Pahalajmal Mutumal v. K. Govindarajulu Power of Attorney Agent of T.V. & Bros. and Abhaichand Vendavan, (1961)1 M.L.J. 150: 74 L.W. 828.

7. In Abdul Ravoof v. The South Indian Tanners & Dealers Association, Ranipet, 76 L.W. 43 (S.N.), it was held that an application laid by a non-member paid secretary authorised by a resolution of the Executive Committee of the Association, responsible for carrying on the administration, according to the objects of the Association to sign applications for eviction and to engage counsel for the conduct of proceedings before, the appropriate forums, was not in any way repugnant to the provisions of the Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act 18 of 1960, as the application was competently laid by the Secretary acting as the representative of the registered Society. In Jameena Beevi v. Easwarlal Patel, (1979)2 M.L.J. 355. Ramprasad Rao, C.J., had occasion to consider the question of the maintainability of an application filed by a power of attorney agent under the terms of the power of attorney, which enabled the agent to initiate proceedings for eviction of the tenants, fixation of fair rent, etc., before the competent authorities. It was held that the definition of the word 'landlord' under Sec.2(6) of the Act, would include a power of attorney agent and so long as such agent was not merely an agent for collection of rent, proceedings in eviction could be initiated and that an undertaking given by the power of attorney in that case, satisfied the requirements of Sec.14(2)(b) of the Act. It is thus seen from Secs.2(6) and 10(8) of the Act as well as the Rules, that a general power of attorney agent, as in this case, duly empowered to initiate proceedings in eviction, can also sign and present applications for and on behalf of the principal and such an application cannot be said to be not maintainable for the reason that it has not been signed by the landlady herself. The signing of the application as well as the verification therein, by the general power of attorney, as in this case, cannot be regarded as a defect, which affects the jurisdiction of the Controller to entertain the application. It would be useful in this connection to refer to Rajitram v. Kateswarnath, 18 All. 396 (M), where a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court observed that it would be difficult to imagine any case in which a defective verification of a plaint could affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court. Again in Basdeo v. John Smidt, I.L.R. 22 All. 55 at 61, the learned Judges, quoted with approval the following passage from Mr. Venflee's Law of Collateral Attack on Judicial Proceedings. 'The statutes require many kinds of petitions to be verified. This includes generally all complaints and petitions in special proceedings, the bill in equity, the libel in admiralty and in some States, complaints or petitions in all cases. Such verification adds no allegation to the pleadings and tenders no issue. Its only object is to show the good faith of the petitioner..... Like any other formal merits, its absence is waived by a failure to object and if its entire absence does not affect the jurisdiction, of course, more defects in it cannot'. The observations to similar effect in A.S.Subbaraj v. M.Muthiah, (1953)2 M.L.J. 377: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 336, may also be referred. Venkatarama Ayyar, J. dealing with the question of the need to dismiss an election petition for defective verification, took the view that defective verification is a mere irregularity and does not affect the jurisdiction of the court to entertain the proceeding, notwithstanding the fact that the rule provided that the verification shall be in the manner prescribed therein. Even on the footing that the application for eviction and the verification therein had been made by the general power of attorney and not the landlady, that would at best be a mere irregularity and would not in any manner affect the jurisdiction of the Rent Controller to entertain the petition. It is also significant that while the first part of Rule 11(3) refers to signing by the applicant and his counsel, the latter part relating to presentation speaks of the same by the applicant himself personally or by his recognised agent. The difference in the language employed in the first and latter parts of the rule is also not without significance, as, in the latter part, the presentation should be by the applicant personally or by recognised agent, while, with reference to the signing by the applicant, it has not been stated that it should be signed personally by the applicant. In other words, a general power of attorney agent, as in this case, when he signs the application for eviction, under Rule 11(3) of the Rules, it shall be as good as having been signed by the applicant herself. Thus, on a due considerations of the provisions of the Act, the contents of the power executed by the landlady in favour of the agent and on the facts of this case, it cannot be said that there was any violation of Rule 11(3) of the Rules framed under the Act and the application for eviction was rightly entertained.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner next contended that the application for eviction filed by the landlady lacked in bona fides. According to learned counsel, the landlady is a citizen of United Kingdom and cannot at her will, visit this country and if she is not able to obtain the necessary visa, there is no question of her coming down to India for the purposes of staying in the premises in the occupation of the petitioner and this would establish that the requirement is not bona fide, but oblique and motivated. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the evidence of P.Ws.1 and 2 clearly established that the respondent as well as the members of her family were living here in a rented house and had also kept their furniture, valuables and other belongings in the rented house and the respondent desired only to have her own premises for keeping her house-hold articles and other valuables and to use the same whenever she came down to this country. Indeed, learned counsel drew attention to the specific evidence of P.W.2 to the effect that she was preparing to come down to this country once and for all with bag and baggage and that would necessitate her staying permanently in this country and contended that when her husband is already here and she desires to join him along with her children, the requirement of that purpose, cannot at all be characterised to be lacking in bona fides.

9. The premises in the occupation of the petitioner is the only residential building in the City owned by the landlady. There is no dispute regarding this. Though the petitioner denied that the landlady was in occupation of a tenanted premises, Ex.P-2 clearly establishes that she was in occupation of the first floor of Door No.4, IV Cross Road, C.I.T. Colony, Madras-4, as a tenant under one Mr.T.A.Ramachandran. The husband of the landlady, examined as P.W.1, has also spoken to this. The petitioner, examined as R.W.1, had also accepted that the husband of the landlady is living in Door No.4, IV Cross Road, C.I.T. Colony, Madras-4 and that he was permanently staying in Mylapore and whenever he was in Madras, he used to stay at that place in C.I.T. Colony. R.W.1 also accepted that from 1968, the landlady had let out her premises and was living in a rented premises. From this, it is seen that the landlady was in the occupation of a rented premises only. Though in the course of his evidence, the petitioner, as P.W.1, stated that the husband of the landlady owned door No.58, he admitted that that building was a non-residential building. The landlady or any member of her family, is thus established to be not occupying a residential building of their own in the City of Madras. The only other requirement to be made out is the bona fides of the claim. In this connection, the evidence of P.Ws.1 and 2 is relevant. P.W.1 in his evidence, had stated that he had retired in 1984, after serving in Muscat in 1980. He had also spoken to the landlady and his second son having come down to India in 1986, to enable his son to complete his studies in Ahmedabad. Referring to his coming down to Madras in 1989. P.W.2 stated that he intended to stay here permanently and that his wife and second son were expected to come down in August or September, 1989. P.W.1 also referred to his temporary stay in a room in the house belonging to his brother and stated that he cannot stay there permanently. P.W.1 had also referred to his wife having stayed for 25 years in the building from 1956 till 1981 and that his wife and another daughter had also decided to come down to this place. A suggestion that his wife and second daughter are going to permanently stay in U.K. was denied by him. Yet another suggestion that the application for eviction was the outcome of a refusal to accede to the demand for payment of enhanced rent, was also denied by P.W.1. P.W.1 had also stated that whenever his wife and other children desired to come, they could do so. Examined as P.W.2, the landlady stated that she came down to India on 26.11.1989 and that she was proceeding to London on 21.3.1990 to bring back the family with bag and baggage. In the course of her cross examination, P.W.2 stated that at the time of her examination in Court on 20.3.1990 she was a tenant of door No.44, Habibullah Road, T.Nagar, Madras-17 and its owner was one A.R.Srinivasan, P.W.2 further stated that the premises in the occupation of the petitioner, was required for her own use and the use of her husband and family. She also stated that she cannot permanently stay in the U.K., but that she can go out. A suggestion that she did not have any idea whatever of coming down and staying at Madras, was denied by her. Yet another suggestion that the refusal of the petitioner to pay a higher rent occasioned in the filing of the eviction petition, was denied by her. The petitioner, examined as R.W.1, stated that P.W.1 was living permanently in Mylapore as a tenant in Door No.4, IV Cross Road, C.I.T. Colony, Madras-4 and that he used to stay in that place in C.I.T. Colony, Madras-4, whenever he came down from Muscat. R.W.1 also stated that there was a demand for enhanced rent and that he was not agreeable, though he also accepted that he had not stated so in his counter. The brother-in-law of the petitioner examined as R.W.2, in his evidence stated that in 1982, the landlady was residing as a tenant in C.I.T. Colony and that she and her husband used to come down. He had also referred to the demand for enhanced rent and the refusal of the petitioner to pay that. In his cross examination, he admitted that he had not received summons for giving evidence and that at the instance of his uncle, he came and gave evidence.

10. On a consideration of the evidence thus made available, it is seen that though P.W.1 earlier was outside this country in connection with his work, he has since retired and is now permanently in Madras, living in a small room belonging to his brother. The landlady has also in her evidence as P.W.2, stated that she is desirous of coming down to Madras along with her children. The evidence also discloses that the landlady and the members of her family, whenever they are in Madras, have been staying only in a rented premises, either in C.I.T. Colony or in some other place. The need of the landlady, wife of P.W.1 to join her husband along with her children, in a premises of her own, cannot be characterised to be lacking in bona fides. Though it was said that the landlady and her children may not be permitted to come down to India, that in my view, is not really decisive of the question of bona fides, especially when the evidence clearly establishes that on a prior occasion, the landlady and her children had been here along with P.W.1 and had stayed here also. The only other circumstance that was sought to be put against the respondent as showing lack of bona fides, was that there was a demand for a higher rent and the petitioner refused to pay the same. To support this, there is absolutely no material. The petitioner had not even raised a plea to this effect in the counter filed by him, though something about that had been stated in the oral evidence. There is no other material at all to doubt the bona fides of the requirement of the landlady. A consideration of the available materials, clearly establishes that the landlady, whose husband is now permanently in Madras, is desirous of joining him along with the children or other members of the family, and to come to live with her husband permanently in Madras and that requirement of the landlady is clearly established to be genuine and bona fide and not oblique or motivated. The appellate authority was, therefore, quite right in its conclusion in this regard. No other point was urged. The C.R.P., is, therefore, dismissed with costs.

11. At the conclusion of the hearing of the revision, counsel on both sides were asked to inform the court about the time that may be required in the event of the order of eviction passed by the appellate authority being upheld. Learned counsel for the respondent was fair enough to agree to grant four months' time to the petitioner for vacating and handing over vacant possession of the premises in the occupation of the petitioner, but learned counsel for the petitioner wanted a year's time, to which, learned counsel for the respondent was not agreeable. Under those circumstances, the petitioner is granted four months' time from today to vacate and hand over vacant possession of the premises in his occupation to the respondent, but this will be subject to the petitioner filing an affidavit of undertaking to that effect before this Court within 10 days from to-day, failing which, the order of eviction can be put into execution forthwith.

The Court made the following ORDER 25-9-1992: While disposing of C.R.P.No.1840 of 1992 on 4.9.1992, four months time from that date was granted to the petitioner to vacate and hand over vacant possession of the premises in his occupation to the respondent, but that was made subject to the filing of an affidavit of undertaking by the petitioner in the civil revision petition to that effect before this Court within ten days from 4.9.1992. What was intended was the filing of an affidavit of unconditional undertaking by the petitioner, as a condition precedent for the grant of time. The affidavit now filed does not conform to the order passed. Therefore, that part of the order in the C.R.P. granting time, will stand deleted.

V.K.

Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Mishra and Padmini Jesudurai, J.

O.S.A.Nos.75 and 76 of 1985 29th July, 1992.

N.Babu Janardhanam ...Appellant
v.

M/s.Golden Films (P) Ltd., (In Liquidation) by Official Liquidator, High Court, Madras and another ...Respondents.

Companies Act (I of 1956), Secs.456, 457 and 460 - Companies (Court) Rules (1959), Rule 272 - Winding up of company - Official Liquidator appointed - Property of company whether vests in Official Liquidator - Liquidator selling movable and immovable property and actionable claim of company with sanction of court - Sale whether required confirmation by court - Liquidator's acts affecting property of company - Right of creditors and contributories to move court - Principles applying to court sales under C.P.C., whether applies to sale by Liquidator.

In dealing with a case of a company, on a winding up order being made, the property of the company does not vest in the Official Liquidator as in the case of insolvency. The property of the company remains the property of the company and the liquidator is only given custody of the property. Sec.456 of the Companies Act, 1956 leaves no ambiguity in this behalf. The liquidator thus appointed gets his powers under Sec.457 of the Act with the sanction of the court for the sale of the movable and immovable property and actionable claims of the company by publication or private contract with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or body corporate or to sell the same in parcels. But even this power has been subject to the right given to the creditors and contributories under Sec.457(3). It may be pertinent to say that the liquidator's custody of the company under liquidation is next to that of the court and for any act affecting the properties of the company under liquidation, he has to obtain the sanction of the court and if there is any act of the liquidator in this behalf not acceptable to the creditors and contributories, they have been given the right to move the court for suitable directions and orders. If the facts of the instant case are seen in the light of the aforementioned legal provisions, it has to be noticed that the order of the court directing the liquidator to sell the property to the first respondent-Corporation only conforms to the rule that the liquidator on his own could not sell the property; he had to do so only with the sanction of the court. The order to sell which, in the instant case, came in the hands of the liquidator stipulated conditions that the corporation had to pay a sum of Rs.5 lakhs within one week of the order and the remaining 15 lakhs of rupees on delivery of possession. There is nothing on the record to show how the liquidator without any sanction of the court devised a mode of delivery of possession in parcels also received payments from the corporation in instalments. There were some acts of the Official Liquidator affecting the properties which undoubtedly gave to the creditors and the contributories occasion to come to the court to question the conduct of the liquidator and that of the purchaser-Corporation and the object to the confirmation of the sale in favour of the corporation. A mere glance at Rules 272 of the Companies (Court) Rules, 1959 is enough to convince that liquidator must have first the sanction of the court to sell the property and after such sanction alone he should sell the property. After sale, there is a requirement of confirmation by the court because the sale by the liquidator with the previous consent of the court unless confirmed will not become final. The principles which apply with respect to the court sale under O.21 and confirmation under Rule 92, C.P.C. as prescribed thereunder are applied with respect to the sale by a liquidator with the consent of the court or under the orders of the Court. [Paras 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9]

Cases referred to:

Navalka and Sons v. Ramanys Doss, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 2037. (Para 4).

Amba Tankin and Pharmaceuticals v. Official Liquidator, (Bombay 45 Comp.Cas. 457 @ 465). (Para 4).

Universal Dyestuff Industries, In re., 63 Comp.Cas. 842 (Para 9).

Taj Clay Works Ltd. v. Official Liquidator, A.I.R. 1960 A.P. 429: (1960)30 Comp.Cas. 434: 1960 An.L.T. 320 (Para 9).

Brindaban Agarwala v. Official Liquidator, Saraswathi Soap and Oil Mills Ltd., (1952)22 Comp.Cas. 75: A.I.R. 1952 All. 113 (Para 9).

Soundararajan v. Khake Mohamed Ismail Saheb, A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 42: 186 I.C. 11 (Para 9).

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent read with O.36, Rule 11 of Original Side Rules and Sec.483 of the Companies Act against the order of Shanmukham, J., dated 19.4.1985 and 11.3.1985 and made in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction.

P.Seshadri for N.S.Nandakumar, R.Mahesh and R.Radhakrishnan, for Appellants.

G.Viswanathan, for Respondent No.1.

N.Veeramani for S.Seshadri, for Respondent No.2.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- These two appeals arise out of a proceeding in C.P.No.30 of 1963. Since our judgment in O.S.A.No.76 of 1985 is going to give to the appellant in O.S.A.No.75 of 1985 opportunity to have a say at the stage of confirmation of sale of the property in question we propose to deal with only the order in Application No.768 of 1984 in C.P.No.30 of 1963.

2. Most of the facts are admitted on all sides and they only need a narration. Briefly stated however, the facts are that by an order in C.P.No.30 of 1963 the Golden Films Private Ltd., hereinafter referred to as 'the Company', was directed to be wound up and the Official Liquidator was appointed as the Liquidator thereof. A sister concern of the Golden Films (P) Ltd. by name Golden Studios (P) Ltd. was also ordered to be wound up in C.P.No.8 of 1972. By an order dated 23.12.1976 a learned single Judge of this Court directed sale of 23 acres and 66 cents of land belonging to the company to Mrs.B.Sakunthala, the appellant, for a consideration of 22 lakhs payable in six equal monthly instalments. She, however, paid no instalment and thus, the question of sale came up for consideration again. Some persons gave their offers of amounts higher than Rs.22 lakhs but the learned company Judge decided to order for the sale in favour of the Central Warehousing Corporation, hereinafter referred to as 'the Corporation', for a sum of Rs.20 lakhs only. The learned Judge, it seems, had reasons for doing so although the amount offered by the Corporation was less than the amount offered by others.

3. The order, however, in this behalf stipulated that the Corporation shall pay a sum of Rs.5 lakhs within one week from the date of the order viz., 17.12.1976 and the balance within a week after taking delivery of possession. It appears, however, that the Corporation paid a sum of Rs.5 lakhs within one week of the order but delivery of possession of the entire extent of land sold was not effected on one date but on several dates and the balance of amount of Rs.15 lakhs of the purchase money of Rs.20 lakhs was also not paid in one lump sum as ordered but in different instalments. So much so even though the entire property was handed over to the Corporation it kept some money with it and deposited it later on applications in the proceedings before the learned company Judge.

4. The appellant, aforementioned, however, raised several objections and filed a petition saying that she intended to purchase the property and objected to the sale in favour of the Corporation. The learned company Judge, however, who has disposed of the petition, (No.768 of 1984), noted as follows:

"The present applicant would now seek is set aside the sale deed pursuant to the order made on 17.12.1976 on the ground that the purchaser was shown certain concessions by the Official Liquidator himself in the former making the payments, that the Official Liquidator had arbitrarily delivered possession of the property at various stages, that there were felling down of trees by the Official Liquidator without the permission of the court and that virtually from and out of the income of the property, the first respondent purchaser had made the payments subsequently. It is emphasised by Mr.V.Suresham, learned counsel for the applicant that the total payment came to be made more than two years, after the date of the order directing the sale. The learned counsel also brought to my notice the decision of the Supreme Court in Navalka and Sons v. Ramany Doss, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 2037, and also the decision in Amba Tankin and Pharmaceuticals v. Official Liquidator, Bombay, 45 Comp.Cas. 457 @ 465). He would submit that the sale is yet to be confirmed by this Court and, therefore, this court has the competence to interfere and pass such necessary orders as would promote the interest of the members of the company as also its creditors. It is no gainsaying that the application is laid eight years after the said order and also that the price of immovable property has shot up beyond imagination. But for the escalation in price, I am quite certain that the present application would not have been before this Court."

"In view of the order made by Suryamurthy, J. I am unable to entertain the argument that the sale made to the first respondent is subject to confirmation of court. I had already referred to the text of the order, in particular the direction that the Official Liquidator shall execute a sale deed in favour of the Central Warehousing Corporation. There is also specific direction directing the Official Liquidator to sell 23 acres and 66 cents of land, building, etc., belonging to the company to the Central Warehousing Corporation for a sum of Rs.20,00,000. Thus the court itself had directed sale and also directed the Official Liquidator to execute the sale deed. In the teeth of such directions, it is impossible to countenance the argument that the sale is subject to confirmation of court. On the other hand, there had been a sale by this Court itself except that the Official Liquidator was called upon to execute a sale deed to accept the purchase price and to effect delivery of the property to the purchaser-first respondent."

"If the parties were really aggrieved against the said order made by the learned Judge, their remedy is to have preferred an appeal. That was not done. The order has, therefore, become final and sitting in the company court I shall respect it. Above all, it is relevant to notice that an attempt to review the said order was negatived by the same learned Judge in C.A.No.656 of 1976. Thus, it is patent that the order of the learned Judge dated 17.12.1976 had become final."

5. It has to be borne in mind, however, in dealing with a case of a company, that on a winding up order being made the property of the company does not vest in the Official Liquidator as in the case of insolvency. The property of the company remains the property of the company and the liquidator is only given custody of the property. Sec.456 of the Companies Act, 1956 leaves no ambiguity in this behalf as it says,

"(1) Where a winding-up order has been made or where a provisional liquidator has been appointed, the liquidator or the provisional liquidator, as the case may be shall take into his custody, or under his control, all the property, effects and actionable claims to which the company is or appears to be entitled."

and sub-sec.(2) thereof reads,

(2) All the property and effects of the company shall be deemed to be in the custody of the court as from the date of the order for the winding-up of the company."

6. The liquidator thus appointed gets his powers under Sec.457 of the Act with the sanction of the court for the sale of the movable and immovable property and actionable claims of the company by publication or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or body corporate, or to sell the same in parcels. But even this power has been subject to the right given to the creditors and contributories under sub-sec.(3) thereof which reads as follows:

"Sec.457. Powers of Liquidator: (3) The exercise by the Liquidator in a winding-up by the Court of the powers conferred by this action shall be subject to the control of the Court; and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to the exercise or proposed exercise of any of the powers conferred by this section."

The law in various provisions of the Companies Act has given to the Official Liquidator many freedoms to deal with the assets of the company under liquidation but the control of the Court has been acknowledged at every place and besides, the Court's power in this behalf, as noticed above, under sub-sec.(6) of Sec.460 of the Act wherein it is stated that,

"(6) Any person aggrieved by any act or decision of the liquidator may apply to the court; and the Court may confirm, reverse or modify the act or decision complained of, and made such further order as it thinks just in the circumstances."

certain rights to the creditors and the contributories such as the one in sub-sec.(1) of Sec.460 of the Act, which reads,

"Sec.460: Exercise and control of liquidator's powers: (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act the liquidator shall, in the administration of the assets of the company and the distribution thereof among its creditors, have regard to any directions which may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting or by the committee of inspection" are given."

7. It may thus be pertinent to say that the liquidator's custody of the company under liquidation is next to that of the court and for any act affecting the properties of the company under liquidation, he has to obtain the sanction of the Court and if there is any act of the liquidator in this behalf not acceptable to the creditors and contributories, they have been given the right to move the court for suitable directions and orders. If we see the facts of the instant case in the light of the aforementioned legal provisions, we have to notice that the order of the court directing the liquidator to sell the property to the first respondent-Corporation only conforms to the rule that the liquidator on his own could not sell the property; he had to do so only with the sanction of the court. The order to sell which, in the instant case, came in the hands of the liquidator stipulated conditions that the corporation had to pay a sum of Rs.5 lakhs within one week of the order and the remaining 15 lakhs of rupees on delivery of possession. There is nothing on the record to show how the liquidator without any sanction of the court devised a mode of delivery of possession in parcels also received payments from the corporation in instalments. These were some acts of the Official Liquidator affecting the properties which undoubtedly gave to the creditors and the contributors occasion to come to the court to question the conduct of the liquidator and that of the purchaser-Corporation and the object to the confirmation of the sale in favour of the Corporation.

8. What has really struck most to us is the approach taken by the learned company Judge that since the court ordered for sale in favour of the Corporation the sale became final and no confirmation of sale was required by the court thus in effect taking away altogether the right of the creditors and contributories to complain to the Court about the violations of the order of sale by the Corporation and the liquidator. We have Companies (Court) Rules, 1959 framed by the Supreme Court of India after consulting the High Courts, in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-secs. (1) and (2) of Sec. 643 of the Companies Act in which rules with regard to sales by the Official Liquidators have been framed. Rule 272 says,

“272. Sale to be subject to sanction and to confirmation by Court: Unless the Court otherwise orders, no property belonging to company which is being wound up by the court shall be sold by the official liquidator without the previous sanction of the court and every sale shall be subject to confirmation by the court.”

A mere glance at this rule is enough to convince that liquidator must have first the sanction of the court to sell the property and after such sanction alone he should sell the property. After sale, there is a requirement of confirmation by the court because the sale by the liquidator with the previous consent of the court unless confirmed will not become final.

9. A Division Bench of the Gujarat High Court dealt with a case of sale of property of a company under liquidation as directed by the court in the case of Universal Dyestuff Industries In re., 63 Comp.Cas. 842. That was a case in which the learned company Judge directed the liquidator to sell the property to the highest bidder. The court, however, declined to confirm the sale. One of the highest bidders appealed. The Bench hearing the appeal noticed the argument of the learned counsel, similar to the one dealt with by the learned company Judge in the instant case, in these words:

“Mr. Shah, learned counsel appearing for the appellant, mainly contended that the direction dated December 11, 1987, has specifically given powers to the provisional liquidator to sell all the articles on an “as and where is” basis after inviting offers from the intending purchasers and accepting the highest offer. Thus, from the order itself, it is clear that the Court has impliedly given confirmation of the provisional liquidator accepting the highest offer for the articles in question, Mr. Shah further submits that there is automatic confirmation of the offer of the highest bidder. In support of his contention, Mr. Shah invited our attention to the decision in the case of Taj Clay Works Ltd. v. Official Liquidator, A.I.R. 1960 A.P. 429; (1960) 30 Comp.Cas. 434; 1960 An.L.T. 320. This decision has followed the rulings in Brindaban Agarwala v. Official Liquidator, Saraswathi Soap and Oil Mills Ltd., (1952) 22 Comp.Cas. 75; A.I.R. 1952 All. 113 and Soundarajan v. Khake Mohamed Ismail Saheb, A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 42; 186 I.C. 11. In this Andhra Pradesh Judgment, it has been specifically held in paragraph 8 as under (at page 435 of Taj Clay Works Ltd. v. Official Liquidator, 30 Comp.Cas.):

“The observations of the learned Judges in that case are pertinent in the present context:” It is only right and proper that the sale should be subject to the confirmation of the court. The condition is a safeguard against irregularity of fraud in connection with the sale and against property being sold at an inadequate price’.

This principle has been strictly followed in the present case also. The observation and the principles enunciated in this decision and other decisions referred to above clearly support the order passed by the learned judge.”

Dealing further with the law on the subject in the above judgment, Universal Dyestuff Industries, In re., 63 Comp.Cas. 842, it is said that,

“Sec. 457 of the Companies Act, 1956, deals with the powers of the liquidator. This section clearly enumerates the power of the liquidator in winding up proceedings ordered by the court. Sec. 457(3) provides that the exercise by the liquidator in a winding up by the court of the powers conferred by this section shall be subject to the control of the court; and any creditor or contributory may apply to the court with respect to the exercise of proposed exercise of any of the powers conferred by this section' This, reading both the section and the rule, it is clear that the control of the court for the purpose of deciding as to the genuineness of sale and confirming the same is paramount and it cannot be said that the court has abdicated its power by simply asking the provisional liquidator to sell the property to the highest bidder. At the stage of confirmation, as stated in the decision referred to above, the inadequacy of the price can be a relevant ground for the court to interfere in such sales and that in the interest of the company, the court can make such direction for the purpose of getting an adequate price for the properties belonging to the company in liquidation."

10. The case before a Bench of this Court in Soundararajan v. Khake Mohamed Ismail Saheb, A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 42: 186 I.C. 11, referred to in the Gujarat judgment above, was one with respect to a court sale under O.21, Rule 92, C.P.C. It is obvious thus that the principles which apply with respect to the court sale under O.21 and confirmation under Rule 92, C.P.C. as prescribed thereunder are applied with respect to the sale by a liquidator with the consent of the court or under the orders of the court. The Bench of this Court in Soundararajan v. Khake Mohamed Ismail Saheb, A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 42: 186 I.C. 11, has observed that 'it is only right and proper that the sale should be subject to the confirmation of the Court. The condition is a safeguard against irregularity or fraud in connexion with the sale and against property being sold at an inadequate price'.

11. We have exercised restraint and not entered into any controversy on the merits for, if we do so, we shall be really doing what the learned company Judge must do with respect to the sale which is yet to be confirmed. When we have observed that creditors and contributories can make complaint and noticed certain irregularities alleged by them we have done so only for the purpose of showing how the appellant got locus standi to appear to object to the confirmation of sale and we should not be understood to have held that what they allege is true and acceptable.

12. Since we have found that an error of law has been committed by the learned company Judge in holding against the appellant that no confirmation was required because the sale had been ordered by the court, we are inclined to interfere with the impugned order but propose to remit the whole matter for a rehearing and disposal in accordance with law.

13. In the result, the appeals are allowed. The impugned order is set aside and the case is remitted to the learned company Judge for a rehearing and decision whether to confirm the sale or not. No costs. In view of the assistance that learned counsel for the liquidator has offered to the court we fix his hearing fee at Rs.2,500.

B.S.

Appeals allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Bellie and Thanikkachalam, JJ.

A.S.No.680 of 1981 3rd July, 1992.

R.Anandavalli ...Appellant

v.

Alagammal and others ... Respondents.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), Sec.21 - Admission - Evidentiary value of - Defendant making admission - Not showing that admission was wrong - Court, if can think that it may not be true.

Admission is the best form of evidence and the plaintiff can certainly rely on it. In the present case, no attempt whatsoever has been made by the defendants to show that the said admission was wrong. When the defendants themselves have not given any explanation, the court cannot on some presumption think that the admission may not be true. [Paras 11 and 12]

Cases referred to:

R.Selvaraj v. R.Radhakrishna Pillai, (1976)1 M.L.J. 105. [Para 10]

Narayan Bhagwant Rao Gosavi Balajiware v. Gopal Vinayak Gosavi, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 100: (1960)1 S.C.R. 773. [Para 12]

Avadh Kishore Das v. Ram Gopal, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 861: (1979)4 S.C.C. 790. [Para 12]

Panyam Thirumalappa v. Alasyam Ramappa, A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 133. [Para 13]

K.S.Ahmed, for Appellant.

M.Velusamy for Respondent Nos.1 to 6.

V. Kunchithapatham, for Respondent No.9.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Bellie, J.:- The appellant-plaintiff R. Anandavalli is one of the daughters of Raju Konar, the first defendant being his wife, defendants 2 to 6 sons and defendants 7 and 8 daughters.

2. The case of the plaintiffs is that her father Raju Konar has himself earned money and acquired the properties and the bank deposits described in the suit schedule from his meat shop. Raju Konar died intestate on 12.3.1971. Each of the plaintiff and defendants 1 to 8 are entitled to equal share in the properties. While so the defendants producing a false release deed alleged to have been executed by the plaintiff withdrew the deposit amount from the bank on 13.12.1974. The plaintiff has claimed 1/9 share in the suit properties.

3. Defendants 1 to 6 defended the case by filing written statement. They denied that the suit properties are the self-acquired properties of Raju Konar and the plaintiff is entitled to 1/9 share. They contended that the plaintiff received a sum of Rs.8,000 in cash and executed a release deed dated 13.12.1974 relinquishing her right in the suit properties. It is further contended that she is not entitled to any share in the amount deposited in the bank. Raju Konar inherited the meat shop business from his father Subbaiya Konar and the properties were acquired from out of the income of the meat shop. The said meat shop left by Subbaiya Konar was being run by Raju Konar and also defendants 2 to 4 and out of the income earned from that joint family business Raju Konar purchased the suit properties and some amounts were deposited in banks. The plaintiff was entitled to only 1/54th share in the suit properties but even that share she relinquished by executing the said release deed. Thus the plaintiff is not entitled to any share in the suit properties. It is also contended that Raju Konar did not leave any gold jewels described in the schedule.

4. Defendants 7 and 8 remained ex parte. Defendants 9 and 10 banks filed written statements stating that since the plaintiff executed a release deed they paid the bank deposits to the second defendant with the consent of others.

5. The trial court on consideration of the evidence held that the suit properties were not self-acquired properties of Raju Konar as pleaded by the plaintiff and they are joint family properties and therefore the plaintiff was entitled to 1/54 share as contended by the contesting defendants. It further held that the plaintiff failed to prove that Raju Konar left any gold jewels or promissory note or any movables described in the schedule. On these findings the trial Court decreed the suit in favour of the plaintiff for 1/54th share in the suit properties excepting the alleged gold jewels and promissory note-items (a); (b) and (c) in Part III and movables in Part IV schedule properties. Aggrieved the plaintiff has filed this appeal.

6. The main point that was argued by Mr. K.S. Ahmed, learned counsel for the appellant-plaintiff is that the finding of the trial court that the suit properties are joint family properties is erroneous.

7. As regards the issue whether the plaintiff, as contended by the defendants, executed Ex.B-18 release deed, the finding of the trial court is perfectly right and there is absolutely no reason to interfere with that. The release deed itself has not been filed and only a certified copy has been produced. None of the defendants has gone into the witness box to speak with regard to the alleged release deed whether the plaintiff and her husband have testified as P.Ws. 1 and 2 that the alleged release deed is false and fabricated one. This is sufficient to hold that the alleged release deed is a false one.

8. The only main point that has to be considered is whether the finding of the trial court that the suit properties are not the self-acquired properties of Raju Konar as pleaded by the plaintiff is not correct. It is not in dispute that the suit properties (Items I and II immovables) were purchased by Raju Konar. No document has been filed, but according to the plaintiff they are with the second defendant and that is quite possible because the second defendant is the first son of Raju Konar and he is the eldest of all the sons and daughters. The question is whether the said properties were purchased out of the income earned by Raju Konar himself or out of the income of any joint family business as contended by the defendants.

9. As stated above the properties were purchased by Raju Konar. If it is contended that they were purchased by him out of the income of the joint family business and therefore they are joint family properties that has to be proved. The defendants case appears to be that Raju Konar's father Subbaiya Konar was having a meat shop business and that business was inherited by Raju Konar and the suit properties were purchased out of the income from that business. In this regard there is no clear averments in the written statement. Even without stating that Subbaiya Konar had a meat shop it is merely stated, as if it is admitted that there was a meat shop, that "Subbaiya Konar the father of Raju Konar was running the mutton shop?" It is not stated as to where the meat shop was.

10. May be Subbaiya Konar had a meat shop but from that alone it cannot be stated that the very meat shop was inherited by Raju Konar. It is quite possible that Subbaiya Konar had a meat shop in one place and Raju Konar had a meat shop in another place. In this connection Mr. K.S. Ahamed, learned counsel for the appellant-plaintiff relied on a Division Bench judgment of this Court in R. Selvaraj v. R. Radhakrishna Pillai alias R.R. Krishna Pillai and another, (1976) 1 M.L.J. 105, wherein it is held that,

"There is no presumption that a business conducted by a member of the joint family is a joint family business. On the other hand the presumption is to the contrary. The person alleging such a state of affairs should prove the same by acceptable and clinching evidence. The fact that the business started by one of the members was of the same nature as the business which was carried on by his ancestors will not by itself be a sufficient discharge of the burden of proof on the part of the person alleging that such business is ancestral business."

11. Whereas the plaintiff who has examined herself as P.W.2 and also her husband as P.W.1 have asserted that no meat shop was inherited by Raju Konar none of the defendants have got into the witness box to repudiate it. On the other hand in Exs. B-11 and B-13 Claim Forms sent by the defendants in connection with the amount deposited by Raju Konar in the banks they have clearly stated that the amount was the self-acquired property of Raju Konar. No reason whatsoever has been given as to why they have said so if really the amount was not self-acquired property of Raju Konar. In view of this admission of the defendants it does not lie in their mouth now to say that it was joint family property. Admission is the best form of evidence and the plaintiff can certainly rely on this.

12. The Supreme Court in Narayan Bhagwant Rao Gosavi Balaji wale v. Gopal Vinayak Gosavi and others, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 100: (1960) 1 S.C.R. 773, has stated that,

"An admission is the best evidence that an opposing party can rely upon, and, although it is not conclusive, is often decisive of the matter unless it can be successfully withdrawn or proved to be erroneous."

In another judgment in Avadh Kishore Das v. Ram Gopal and others, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 861: (1979) 4 S.C.C. 790, the Supreme Court has held that,

"Evidentiary admissions are not conclusive proof of the facts admitted and may be explained or shown to be wrong but they do raise an estoppel and shift the burden of proof on to the person making them or his representative-in-interest. Unless shown or explained to be wrong, they are an efficacious proof of the facts admitted."

In the present case, no attempt whatsoever has been made by the defendants to show that the said admission was wrong. When the defendants themselves have not given any explanation, the Court cannot on some presumption think that the admission may not be true.

13. Varadachariar, J. in Panyam Thirumalappa v. Alasyam Ramappa and others, A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 133, observed that,

"A Judge when asked to consider the weight of an admission by a party cannot ignore it on some guess of his own without plea or explanation by the party making the admission."

Therefore the said admissions in Exs. B-11 and B-13 must be given the full weight.

14. Further in a meat shop there will not be any stock in trade. Every day the stock of meat got in the morning has to be disposed of latest by the evening. Even if it is true that Raju Konar had his meat business in the same place where his father was doing business it cannot be stated that Raju Konar inherited from his father his meat business. As stated above none of the defendants has chosen to get into the witness box to speak in support of their case; instead they have examined D.W.1 one Samraj Moses who has nothing to do with the family and he alone has stated that Raju Konar inherited the meat shop business of his father Subbaiya Konar. He too has not stated in the chief examination in which place the meat shop of Subbaiya Konar was and only in the cross examination he has stated that "the meat shop was in the place belonging to a minor in G.S.T. Road." He has then stated that he does not know what asset Subbaiya Konar left behind. This witness is a retired man who was working as an Accountant in a school. I do not think that it would be proper to rely on this evidence of a sole witness who was not connected with the family in any manner without any corroborative evidence of any other witness. This is more so in the face of the abovesaid admission by the defendants in Exs.B-11 and Ex.B-13. All these would lead to the only legitimate conclusion that the suit properties are the self-acquired properties of Raju Konar as pleaded by the plaintiff. Therefore the plaintiff will be entitled to 1/9th share on the date of suit. It is now said that one of the children of Raju Konar died. In that case the plaintiff will be entitled to 1/8th share. Accordingly the judgment of the trial court is modified. The appeal is thus allowed. Considering the relationship of the parties and other circumstances of the case there will be no order as to costs. The respondents will pay the court fees due to the Government.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

C.R.P.No.2956 of 1992 5th November, 1992.

M.Krishnappa Chetty and another ...Petitioners
v.

P.E.Chandrasekaran @ Chandran ... Respondent.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.148-A and O.52, Rule 6 - Proper procedure to be followed in cases where caveat has been filed - Filing of separate vakalat in suit or application by counsel of caveator - If necessary - Procedure to be followed if counsel for caveator evades service.

The proper procedure to be adopted in all cases where caveat has been filed is for the plaintiff/petitioner to serve copies of the plaint and application on the caveator's counsel or the caveator before filing them in court. He must inform the caveator or his counsel as the case may be, the date on which he will move the application before court. He must also file acknowledgments of the receipt of copies obtained from the caveator's counsel or the caveator as the case may be, in court along with the application. On receiving such papers the office of the court shall, while fixing the date for the first hearing of the application prepare a note and bring it to the notice of the presiding officer concerned that caveat has been entered and the caveator's counsel or the caveator has been served with copies of plaint and the application. The presiding officer shall direct the office of the court to issue notice to the caveator's counsel or the caveator, as the case may be, specifying the date on which the matter will be heard in the first instance. The court shall inform the petitioner's counsel also of the said date and on that date both sides shall be heard before any interim order is passed. This procedure shall strictly be followed by all the subordinate courts. There shall be no lapse in following this procedure. [Para 4] There is no necessity for the caveator's counsel to file a separate vakalat in the suit or the application once again. The vakalat filed in the caveat will hold good for the main suit as well as the application filed therein unless the caveat has expired before the filing of the suit and application.

[Para 5]

It is said that sometimes the caveator's counsel evades service deliberately with a view to delay the matter. Such conduct on the part of counsel will amount to grave dereliction of duty and wilful obstruction in the administration of justice. It is hoped that no lawyer will adopt such dilatory tactics. In such cases the court can record a finding as to such wilful evasion and proceed to pass interim orders in the application and direct notice to the party himself. In all such cases, such counsel shall file fresh vakalat in the main proceedings if they want to appear therein. [Para 6]

Petition under Art.227 of the Constitution of India praying the High Court to revise the order of the City Civil Court (18th Assistant Judge) Madras, dated 16.8.1991 and made in I.A.No.13577 of 1991 in O.S.No.5731 of 1991.

N.Jothi, for Petitioners.

T.Thirumaran, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- This revision has been filed against an order dated 16.8.1991 in I.A.No.13577 of 1991 in O.S.No.5731 of 1991 on the file of the 18th Assistant Judge, City Civil Court, Madras. The said order is one granting interim injunction.

Originally the matter was posted to 2.9.1991 for service of notice. Again, the interim order was extended and the matter was being adjourned from time to time. Ultimately, on 22.10.1991 the order passed was,

“Hearing advanced from 29.10.1991 to to-day as per order in I.A.No.16229 of 1991. Counter filed, Stayed by P.O. in C.M.P.No.1341 of 1991 till 8.11.1991.”

All that happened in the court of the Fourth Assistant Judge, City Civil Court, Madras. Thereafter the proceedings were transferred to the file of the 18th Assistant Judge by order of the Principal Judge, City Civil Court, Madras. Then onwards the matter was being adjourned from time to time without any reasons being recorded by the Judge for such adjournments. It is now stated by learned counsel for the respondent that there is no interim order as the injunction order was not continued after 29.10.1991. As at present, the interlocutory application stands posted to 13.11.1992, the said application shall be disposed of immediately. Though there is no interim order, it is in the interests of justice that the court hears both parties and disposes of the application which is one under O.39, Rules 1 and 2, C.P.C. Hence with the consent of parties who are appearing before me, I direct the 18th Judge, City Civil Court, Madras, to hear I.A.No.13577 of 1991 on 13.11.1992 and if necessary, on subsequent dates continuously and pass appropriate orders in accordance with law. Orders shall be passed in the said application on or before 30.11.1992 and a report thereof submitted to this Court.

2. The petitioners have got another grievance which is more important than the grievance set out earlier. That is this. The petitioners had entered caveat in the proceedings and as per the provisions of Sec.148-A and O.52, C.P.C. the respondent before filing the suit and the interlocutory application for injunction had served copies thereof on the petitioners' counsel. But at the stage neither the suit nor the application was numbered and no date had been fixed with the result that the copies served on the petitioners' counsel did not contain the number of the suit and the number of the interlocutory application. Petitioners were not, therefore, in a position to know the date to which the suit and the application were posted; nor were they informed by the respondent's counsel that he would be moving the application for orders on a particular date.

3. Under Sec.148-A(3) and Rule 6 of O.52 of the C.P.C., where after a caveat has been lodged, any application is filed in a suit, appeal or revision or any other proceeding the court shall serve a notice of the application on the pleader for the caveator, if any, or the caveator in the manner provided for service on defendant, respondent or opposite party of summons to appear and all provisions applicable to such summons shall apply to the service of such notice. Thus the rule imposes a duty on the court to serve a notice of the application on the caveator's pleader or caveator just in the same manner as a summons would be served. In this case, the court did not serve any notice on the caveator's counsel or the caveator after fixing the date for the hearing of the application in the first instance. The court passed an order of interim injunction on 16.8.1991 and directed notice to the defendants-respondents. The procedure adopted by the court is clearly erroneous and in violation of Sec.148-A(3) and Rule 6 of O.52, C.P.C.

4. The proper procedure to be adopted in all cases where caveat has been filed is for the plaintiff/petitioner to serve copies of the plaint and application on the caveator's counsel or the caveator before filing them in court. He must inform the caveator or his counsel as the case may be, the date on which he will move the application before court. He must also file acknowledgments of the receipt of copies obtained from the caveator's counsel or the caveator as the case may be, in court along with the application. On receiving such papers the office of the Court shall, while fixing the date for the first hearing of the application prepare a note and bring it to the notice of the presiding officer concerned that caveat has been entered and the caveator's counsel or the caveator has been served with copies of plaint and the application. Then the presiding officer shall direct the office of the court to issue notice to the caveator's counsel or the caveator, as the case may be, specifying the date on which the matter will be heard in the first instance. The court shall inform the petitioner's counsel also of the said date and on that date both sides shall be heard before any interim order is passed. It shall not pass any order before a notice is served on the caveator or his counsel as per Rule 6 of O.52, Civil Procedure Code. This procedure shall be strictly followed by all the subordinate courts; otherwise the purpose of introduction of Sec.148-A and O.52, Civil Procedure Code will be lost. There shall be no lapse in following this procedure.

5. There is no necessity for the caveator's counsel to file a separate vakalat in the suit or the application once again. The vakalat filed by the counsel for the caveator in the caveat will hold good for the main suit as well as the application filed therein unless the caveat has expired before the filing of the suit and application. The office of the court shall enter the number of the suit and the application on such vakalat and kept it on record.

6. It is brought to my notice that sometimes the caveator's counsel refuses to receive notice in the application or evades service deliberately with a view to delay the matter. Such conduct on the part of counsel will amount to grave dereliction of duty and wilful obstruction in the administration of justice. I hope no lawyer will adopt such dilatory tactics. In such cases the court can record a finding as to such wilful evasion and proceed to pass interim orders in the application and direct notice to the party himself. In all such cases, such counsel shall file fresh vakalat in the main proceedings if they want to appear therein.

7. With the above directions, this civil revision petition is dismissed and as directed earlier the 18th Assistant Judge, City Civil Court, Madras, shall pass orders on I.A.No.13577 of 1991 on or before 30th November, 1992 and report to this Court. No costs.

V.K

Order accordingly.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Thanikkachalam, J.

C.R.P.Nos.26 and 27 of 1987 4th September, 1992.

S.Chhaganmull Bafna and others ...Petitioners
v.

Miss.C.G.Rajalakshmi ...Respondent.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Secs.10(2)(i) and 10(3)(a)(i) - Spinster landlady living with aged mother and aged mother's brother - Filing eviction petition in order to induct her brother for the sake of her protection - Requirement for occupation by brother, if bona fide. Wilful default - Proof.

Held:- The fact remains that the landlady is an unmarried person and she is residing with her aged mother and her aged mother's brother. Therefore there is some substance in stating that she required some male assistance and protection from her brother. In fact, there is nothing wrong or improper or unreasonable on the part of an unmarried sister in seeking the help of her brother for her protection. Therefore the conclusion arrived at by the authorities below that the landlady required the residential portion under the occupation of the tenants bona fide for the use and occupation of her brother is in order. Accordingly the order of eviction passed by the authorities below under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) cannot be interfered with.

[Para 15]

Held further, that the Rent Control Appellate Authority was correct in coming to the conclusion that the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent for the petition period in respect of both the residential and non-residential portions and hence they are liable to be evicted on this ground also.

[Para 14]

Case referred to:

M.Meenakshisundaram v. S.Venkatesan, (1981)2 M.L.J. 288: A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 277. [Para 14]

G.V.Subramania Iyer, M/s.Surana and Surana, for Petitioners.

T.Thirumaran for N.Srivatsamani, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- Civil revision petition No.26 of 1987 is directed against the order passed in R.C.A.No.1293 of 1984, which in turn arose out of the order passed in R.C.O.P.No.3583 of 1982. C.R.P.No.27 of 1987 is directed against the order passed in R.C.A.No.1314 of 1984, which in turn arose out of the order passed in R.C.O.P.No.3798 of 1982. The tenants are the petitioners in both these revisions. The 1st petitioner and the 2nd petitioner are the husband and wife. The landlady is common in both these revisions. The petition premises is situate at No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras-7.

2. The case of the landlady in H.R.C.O.P.No.3583 of 1982 is as under:

This petition for eviction was filed under Sec.10(2)(i) and Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, Act 18 of 1960 as amended by Act 23 of 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'). The tenants are in occupation of a residential portion consisting of four big rooms, a bath room and a flush-out in the downstairs of the premises at No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras on a monthly rent of Rs.400. Besides the rent, a sum of Rs.70 is payable for electricity charges every month. The tenants failed and neglected to pay the rent from 1.9.1981 to 31.7.1982 and thus committed wilful default in payment of rent and thereby rendering themselves liable to be evicted under Sec.10(2)(1) of the Act. The landlady's brother C.B.Gopalakrishnan is residing in a rented premises at No.64, Guruvappa Chetty Street, Chintadripet, Madras-2. The landlady's brother is not having any premises of his own in Madras City. He is paying Rs.275 per month towards rent for the premises in which he is residing. The landlady is an unmarried person and she is residing with her aged mother in the front of the premises at No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras. For the sake of protection and assistance, she is desirous of having her brother with her in the premises in which she is residing. Therefore, she required the petition premises under the occupation of the tenants bona fide under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act. The landlady sent a notice dated 28.4.1982 to the tenants calling upon them to pay the arrears of rent as well as to quit and deliver vacant possession of the petitioner premises. On 11.5.1982 the tenants sent a reply refusing to vacate the petition premises.

3. In the counter filed by the tenants, it is stated as under:

The rent for the petition premises is Rs.180 per month, and not Rs.400 per month as alleged by the landlady. So far as the electricity charges are concerned, it is only Rs.25 per month and not Rs.70 per month as alleged by the landlady. It is not correct to state that the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent. The tenants paid the rent regularly upto June, 1979. On 5.6.1979, the landlady executed a promissory note for a sum of Rs.40,000 with interest at 18% per annum in favour of the 2nd respondent, who is the wife of the 1st respondent. On the very same date, a rental agreement was also executed between the parties. According to the rental agreement, the tenants need not pay the rent and the landlady need not pay the interest on the sum of Rs.40,000. Therefore, it is not correct to state that there is arrears of rent from 1.9.1981 to 31.7.1982. Therefore, the tenants did not commit any wilful default in payment of rent. There is no bona fide on the part of the landlady in requiring the petition premises for the occupation of her brother. Her brother is living along with his family elsewhere and there is no need for him to come and reside in the petition premises. The landlady is being looked after by her mother and her maternal uncle. Therefore, it is not correct on her part to state that she requires the presence of her brother for her help and protection. It was, therefore, pleaded that there is no bona fide on the part of the landlady in requiring the petition premises under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act.

4. The landlady examined herself as P.W.1 and her brother was examined as P.W.2. Chhaganmull Bafna examined himself as R.W.1. The landlady filed three documents. The tenants filed 31 documents.

5. Considering the facts arising in this case, the Rent Controller came to the conclusion that the tenants did not commit wilful default in payment of rent as alleged by the landlady. However, the rent controller came to the conclusion that the requirement of the petition premises by the landlady for the occupation of her brother is bona fide. Accordingly, the Rent Controller ordered eviction under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act. Aggrieved, the tenants preferred an appeal, R.C.A.No.1293 of 1984. The Rent Control Appellate Authority, on appraising the facts arising in this case came to the conclusion that the Rent Controller was correct in holding that the landlady required the petition premises bona fide under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act. In so far as the ground relating to wilful default in payment of rent is concerned, the Rent Control Appellate Authority set aside the order passed by the Rent Controller and held that the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent for the petition period. Accordingly, eviction was ordered under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act also. In the result, the Rent Control Appellate Authority ordered eviction on both these grounds.

6. In so far as the petition for eviction H.R.C.O.P.No.3798 of 1982 is concerned, it was filed under Secs.10(2)(i) and 10(3)(a)(i) of the Act. In the said eviction petition, the case of the landlady is as under:

The tenants are in occupation of a portion admeasuring 14 feet x 11 feet in premises No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras-7. According to the landlady, the portion is meant for a garage to park the vehicle. The tenants are carrying on their pawn broking business in the said portion. The landlady required the said portion bona fide for the purpose of parking her vehicle and the vehicle of her brother. According to the landlady, the rent for that petition premises is Rs.100 per month. Apart from that the tenant is also liable to pay electricity charges amounting to Rs.20 per month. According to the landlady, the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent from 1.9.1981 to 31.7.1982 and thereby rendering themselves to be evicted under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act. The landlady sent a notice on 5.12.1982 calling upon the tenants to pay the arrears of rent and to quit and deliver the vacant possession of the petition premises. The tenants sent a reply on 11.5.1982 refusing to vacate the petition premises. Hence, the petition for eviction.

7. In the counter filed by the tenants, it is stated as under:

The tenants are using the petition premises for the purpose of their pawn broking business and the rent for the petition premises is Rs.50 and not Rs.100 per month as alleged by the landlady. According to the tenants, the electricity charge is Rs.20 per month as alleged by the landlady. The tenants submitted that the landlady is not having any vehicle of her own. Therefore, her requirement of the petition premises for parking her vehicle bona fide is not correct. In so far as the arrears of rent is concerned, according to the tenants, they did not commit any wilful default in payment of rent as alleged by the landlady. According to the tenants, the landlady executed a promissory note for a sum of Rs.40,000 in favour of the wife of Chhaganmull Bafna, promising to repay the same with interest at 18% per annum. On the very same date, an agreement was also entered into between the parties. According to the said agreement, the tenants need not pay the rent for the petition premises and the landlady need not pay the interest on the abovesaid sum of Rs.40,000. It was, therefore, pleaded that there is no arrears of rent as alleged by the landlady.

8. Considering the fact arising in this case, the Rent Controller came to the conclusion that there is no bona fide on the part of the landlady in requiring the petition premises under Sec.10(2)(a)(ii) of the Act. So also the Rent Controller came to the conclusion that the tenants did not commit wilful default in payment of rent as alleged by the landlady. Accordingly, the petition for eviction was dismissed. On appeal, appraising the facts arising in this case, the Rent Control Appellate Authority came to the conclusion that the Rent Controller was correct in holding that there is no bona fide on the part of the landlady in requiring the petition premises under Sec.10(3)(a)(ii) of the Act. In so far as the ground relating to Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act is concerned, the Rent Control Appellate Authority held that the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent for the petition period. Accordingly, the Rent Control Appellate Authority reversed the order of the Rent Controller passed under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act, and ordered eviction.

9. Aggrieved over the orders passed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority in R.C.A.Nos.1293 of 1984 and 1314 of 1984, the tenants are in revision before this Court.

10. Learned counsel for the tenants/petitioners herein submitted as under:

The authorities below were not correct in holding that the rent for the residential portion is Rs.400 per month and the rent for the non-residential portion is Rs.100 per month. The authorities below were also not correct in holding that the electricity charges for the residential portion is Rs.70 per month. On the other hand, the rent for the residential portion is Rs.180 per month and the rent for non-residential portion is Rs.50 per month. Ex.R-28 is the Corporation tax receipt, which would go to show that the half yearly tax is only Rs.351.66. Therefore, the authorities below ought to have accepted the contentions of the tenants that the rent is only Rs.180 per month. In fact, if the rent is Rs.400 per month for the petition premises, then the half yearly tax would have been more than Rs.600. Therefore, the authorities below were not correct in determining the rent at Rs.400 per month for the petition premises. The electricity charges for both these portions is only Rs.50 per month. There is no evidence on the side of the landlady to prove the rate of rent and the electricity charges as pleaded by her. Since the landlady is in occupation of the premises, the petition for eviction ought to have been filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. The petition premises is predominantly a residential one. The landlady, her mother and her mother's brother are residing in the front portion of the premises at No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras-7. The portion under their occupation is sufficient for their use. Therefore, they are not in need of the portion under the occupation of the tenants. The landlady filed these eviction petitions only as a counterblast to the suit O.S.No.5402 of 1982 filed by the tenants to recover a sum of Rs.40,000 due from the landlady on a promissory note executed by her. Ever since the marriage, the brother of the landlady and his family were happily living elsewhere and they do not require the petition premises for their own occupation. The landlady is also having a portion in the upstairs. She let out the same recently. If she really required any further accommodation she could have been utilised the same. But she did not do so. The present premises where the brother of the landlady is residing is situate by the side of his mother-in-law's house. Therefore, there is no necessity for him to come and reside in the petition premises along with the landlady. Therefore, her requirement of the petition premises for the use and occupation of the brother is not bona fide. On the date when the promissory note was executed by the landlady in favour of the 2nd petitioner herein, an agreement was entered into between the parties. According to the said agreement, the tenants need not pay the rent and the landlady need not pay interest on the amount due on the promissory note. Therefore, it is not correct to state that the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent for the petition period. The originals of Exs. R-30 and R-31 had stolen away as evidenced by Exs.R.29 and R-32 which are complaints made to the police. In view of the above said agreement Exs.R-30 and R-31 the tenants are not bound to pay the rent for the petition premises to the landlady. Since the originals of Exs.R-30 and R-31 were lost, the xerox copies of the same were filed. Under Sec.65 of the Indian Evidence Act, secondary evidence is permissible when the original is got lost. It was, therefore, pleaded that the Rent Control Appellate Authority was not correct in ordering eviction under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act in so far as both the petitions are concerned and under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act in so far as the petition R.C.O.P.No.3583 of 1982 is concerned. 11. On the other hand, learned counsel appearing for the landlady/respondent herein submitted as under:

The landlady is employed as Superintendent in Industrial Investment Corporation of India. She is unmarried and living with her mother and her mother's brother. Four big rooms, one bath-room and a flush-out in the downstairs of premises No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras were let out to the tenants on a monthly rent of Rs.400. The garage in the abovesaid premises was let out to the tenants on a monthly rent of Rs.100. The electricity charges for the residential portion is Rs.70 per month and for the non-residential portion is Rs.20 per month. The tenants are carrying on their pawn broking business in the garage. The tenants failed and neglected to pay the rent for both the residential and non-residential portions from 1.9.1981 to 31.7.1982 and thus committed wilful default in payment of rent and thereby rendering themselves liable to be evicted under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act. It is not correct to state that the rent for the residential portion is Rs.180 per month and the rent for the non-residential portion is Rs.50 per month. It is also not correct to state that electricity charges for both these portions is Rs.50 per month as alleged by the tenants. There is no evidence on the side of the tenants to substantiate their version on this aspect. It is not correct to state that the landlady executed a promissory note as alleged by the tenants. There is also no agreement between the parties as alleged by the tenants. The tenants did not produce the originals of the alleged promissory note and the alleged agreement. The tenants filed a false suit against the landlady to recover the alleged amount of Rs.40,000 due on the promissory note with interest. In the absence of any evidence on the side of the tenants, the authorities below were correct in accepting the rate of rent and the electricity charges as stated by the landlady. Since the landlady is a spinster living with her aged mother and the aged brother of her mother, she requires some protection. Therefore, she is desirous of having her brother with her. Her brother is residing with his family in a rented premises. He is not having any premises of his own in the city of Madras. It is not correct to state that the landlady and his brother are not in good terms. Simply because half yearly Corporation tax for the premises at No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras-7 is Rs.351-66, it does not mean that the rent should not be at Rs.400 plus Rs.100 per month as alleged by the tenants. It is not correct to state that premises at No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras-7 is predominantly a residential building. The tenants are carrying on their pawn broking business in a portion of the building. Therefore, it is both residential and non-residential. Under such circumstances, the tenants were not correct in stating that the petition should be filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act instead of Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act. The landlady required the inspection of the promissory note. But that was not given to her. In O.S.No.5402 of 1982, the alleged agreement is not the subject matter. Both the authorities concurrently came to the conclusion that the requirement of the landlady of the residential portion for the use and occupation of her brother is bona fide under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act. Therefore, no interference is called for with the findings on this aspect. In so far as the wilful default in payment of rent is concerned, the 1st appellate court on appraising the facts arising in this case held that the tenant committed wilful default in payment of rent for both residential as well as non-residential portions. Inasmuch as this conclusion was arrived at on the basis of facts, no interference is called for with regard to this finding also. No argument was advanced with regard to the bona fide requirement of the garage portion.

12. I have heard the rival submission.

13. The fact remains that the respondent in both these revisions is the landlady in respect of the premises No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras-7. The petitioners herein are husband and wife. They are tenants under the landlady in respect of four big rooms, a bath-room and a flush-out in the downstairs of the said premises. The tenants are also in occupation of a garage in the abovesaid premises. The same is being used by the tenants for conducting their pawn broking business. There is no dispute with regard to the relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties. So far as the extent of the portion occupied by the tenants also there is no dispute. The dispute is with regard to the monthly rent and the rate of electricity charges payable by the tenants. According to the landlady, the rent for the residential portion is Rs.400 per month along with the electricity charges of Rs.70 per month. In so far as the non-residential portion is concerned, the rent is Rs.100 per month and the electricity charge is Rs.20 per month. But according to the tenants, the rent for the residential portion is Rs.180 per month and the rent for the non-residential portion is Rs.50 per month. In so far as the electricity charges are concerned, for both these portions the amount payable is Rs.50 per month. In support of their contention that the rent is only Rs.180 per month for residential portion and Rs.50 per month for the non-residential portion and the electricity charges payable for both is Rs.50 per month, the tenants relied upon Ex.R-28 Corporation tax extract. According to Ex.R-28, the half yearly tax is only Rs.351-66 for the abovesaid premises. Therefore, according to the tenants, the rent could not be Rs.400 for residential portion and Rs.100 for the non-residential portion. But this line of argument based upon Ex.R-28 cannot be accepted because it is always not necessary that the premises should be let out in accordance with tax payable per half year. Apart from this, there is no other evidence on the side of the tenants to show that the electricity charges for both these portions is Rs.50 per month. The tenants submitted that there is a written rental agreement between the parties. The original of the said agreement was not produced. The landlady sent a notice (Ex.A-2) dated 28.4.1982 to the tenants, wherein she has clearly stated that the rent for residential and non-residential portions are Rs.400 and Rs.100 respectively and the electricity charges for both is Rs.90 per month. Since there is no evidence on the side of the tenants to prove the rate of rent as alleged by them, both the authorities below accepted the rate of rent furnished by the landlady for both these portions. Even before this Court, no further material was produced to dislodge the concurrent findings given by the authorities below on this aspect. Therefore, I do not see any infirmity in the findings given by the authorities below, that the rent for the residential portion is Rs.400 per month and the rent for the non-residential portion is Rs.100 per month and the electricity charges payable for the residential and non-residential portions are Rs.70 per month and Rs.20 per month respectively.

14. The landlady submitted that the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent from 1.9.1981 to 30.1.1982. According to the landlady, inspite of repeated demands, the tenants failed and neglected to pay the rent for the petition period. Therefore, they are liable to be evicted under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act. According to the tenants they are not liable to pay the rent to the landlady. They pleaded that the landlady executed a promissory note on 5.6.1979 for Rs.40,000 in favour of the 2nd petitioner herein, promising to repay the same with interest at 18% per annum. According to the tenants on the very same day, an agreement was entered into between the parties, whereby it was agreed that the landlady need not pay the interest due under the promissory note and the tenants need not pay the rent to the landlady. The landlady sent a notice to the tenants on 28.4.1982 calling upon the tenants to pay the arrears of rent as well as to vacate and hand over vacant possession. No doubt the tenants sent a reply on 11.5.1982, refusing to vacate the petition premises. According to the tenants, the rent is adjustable towards the interest payable on Rs.40,000 borrowed by the landlady. Therefore, it is for the tenants to prove that the landlady borrowed the sum of Rs.40,000 and executed a promissory note as alleged by the tenants. The originals of the said promissory note and the subsequent agreement dated 5.6.1979 were not produced before the Court. The tenants have produced only the xerox copies of the said documents. According to the tenants, the originals of these two documents were stealthily removed by somebody which were kept in a bag in a two-wheeler, while the 1st petitioner was attending to the repairs towards the two-wheeler. According to the tenants they have also given a police complaint. The original police complaint given to the police is marked as Exs.R-29 and R-32. The authorities below were not prepared to act upon the xerox copies of the documents filed before them by the tenants. Therefore, the Rent Control Appellate Authority came to the conclusion that there was no evidence on the side of the tenants to show that they are not liable to pay the rent as alleged by them. According to the learned counsel for the tenants based upon these two documents the authorities below ought to have held that there is no wilful default in payment of rent for the petition period as alleged by the landlady. In support of this contention, the learned counsel for the tenants relied upon a decision of this Court reported in M. Meenakshisundaram v. S. Venkatesan, (1981) 2 M.L.J. 288; A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 277. The learned counsel further submitted that Exs.R-29 and R-32 would go to show that what was stated by the tenants in respect of the loss of the original documents is true and believable. Ex.R-37 is the xerox copy of the alleged agreement. This was not written in the regular stamp paper. The tenants seem to have paid Rs.27.50 by way of penalty. As already stated it is the tenants who came forward with the case that there was a promissory note and an agreement and according to those documents, they are not liable to pay the rent, therefore, the burden is on them to prove the same. But they did not discharge the burden placed upon them. Further, the facts on record would go to show that the tenants are unable to establish the case put forward by them in this regard. The authorities below rightly refused to act upon these xerox copies. According to the tenants, the landlady always used to obtain financial assistance from them. In support of this contention Ex.R-2 was filed by the tenants. According to the 1st appellate court, this document would go to show that the 1st petitioner is rendering financial assistance to the landlady. According to the 1st petitioner the landlady used to borrow monies for the purpose of putting up constructions in the premises at No.3, Kariappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam, Madras-7 and in that process she owes a sum of Rs.40,000 to him. It is under these circumstances, the 1st petitioner states that the promissory note was executed by the landlady in favour of the 2nd petitioner, who is the wife of the 1st petitioner. The landlady sought permission to inspect those two disputed documents by notices dated 9.6.1982 and 10.6.1982. But she was not permitted to inspect those documents. But the fact remains that in the absence of original promissory note the case put forward by the 1st petitioner cannot be accepted. It is significant to note that the tenants filed the Suit O.S.No.5402 of 1982 against the landlady to recover the amount due on the alleged promissory note along with the interest. When the tenants demanded the amount due on the promissory note along with interest, at the same time they cannot plead that the interest due on the promissory note is adjustable for the arrears of rent. Further according to the alleged promissory note the interest is payable on the principal sum at the rate of 18% per annum. The interest at the rate of 18% per annum on Rs.40,000 would come to Rs.7,200 per year. If that is so, for a month it amounts to Rs.600. If the rent is adjustable towards interest due as alleged by the tenants, the interest should be proportionate to meet the liability of the rent. The rate of rent as pleaded by the tenants and the rate of interest chargeable under the promissory note do not go to support the case put forward by the tenants. Therefore, ultimately the fact remains that the tenants did not pay the rent for the petition period. Hence, in the absence of the alleged original promissory note and the agreement, the Rent Control Appellate Authority was not prepared to accept the defence put forward by the tenants that they are not liable to pay the rent and therefore they did not commit wilful default in payment of rent. On a careful consideration of the facts arising in this case, I am also of the opinion that the Rent Control Appellate Authority was correct in coming to the conclusion that the tenants committed wilful default in payment of rent for the petition period in respect of both the residential and non-residential portions and hence they are liable to be evicted on this ground. Therefore, the order of eviction passed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority in respect of both residential and non-residential portions under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act, is in order. Accordingly, I am not inclined to interfere with the same.

15. In R.C.O.P.No.3583 of 1982, the landlady required the petition premises bona fide under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act. According to her she is a spinster. She is residing along with her aged mother and her mother's aged brother. Therefore, she required the assistance of her brother, who is residing in a rented premises. The landlady stated that her brother is residing in a rented premises at No.28, Gurusvappa Chetty Street, Madras-2 on a monthly rent of Rs.275. When the landlady states that her brother is residing in a rented premises and he is not having any premises of his own, there is no evidence contra on the side of the tenants to disprove this version. The fact remains that the landlady is an unmarried person and she is residing with her aged mother and her aged mother's brother. Therefore there is some substance in stating that she requires some male assistance and protection from her brother. The tenants submitted that the sister and the brother are not in good terms. But there is no evidence on record to support this version. The tenants further submitted that her brother is residing in a premises which is next to the premises of his mother-in-law. Therefore according to the tenants he would not come to the petition premises. This line of argument is not acceptable because it is always not proper for a son-in-law to live by the side of the premises of his mother-in-law. In fact, there is nothing wrong or improper or unreasonable on the part of an unmarried sister in seeking the help of her brother for her protection. Therefore, the conclusion arrived at by the authorities below that the landlady required the residential portion under the occupation of the tenants bona fide for the use and occupation of her brother is in order. Accordingly, I am not inclined to interfere with the order of eviction passed by the authorities below under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act in so far as the residential portion is concerned. On the side of the landlady the ground relating to the requirement of the non-residential portion for parking the vehicle under Sec.10(3)(a)(ii) of the Act was not pressed. In that view of the matter, the order of eviction passed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority under Sec.10(2)(i) of the Act in respect of both the residential and non-residential portions is sustained. In addition to that the order of eviction passed under Sec.10(3)(a)(i) of the Act in respect of the residential portion is also sustained.

16. Accordingly, both the revisions are dismissed with costs. Time of eviction three months.

V.K.

Petitions dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

W.P.Nos.6503 and 6504 of 1992

13th October, 1992.

V.Tamil selvan

...Petitioner

v.

The State of Tamil Nadu represented by its Secretary, Industries Department, Madras and others
...Respondents.

(A) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Writ petition - Petitioner suppressing relevant and materials facts and trying to mislead court - Not entitled to any relief - Award of heavy costs justified.

The remedy under Art.226 of the Constitution is an extra-ordinary and discretionary remedy. The High Court would be fully justified in refusing to exercise its discretion in favour of a person who has abused the process of court and suppressed material and relevant factors and obtained orders from the High Court. It is on the strength of such orders, the petitioner is now claiming relief in the present writ petitions. The court should not be a party and extend its helping hand to a person who has played a fraud on court. [Para 28]

The petitioner has not come to court with clean hands and failed to disclose material facts. If all the relevant facts are mentioned in the present writ petitions, the court would not have even entertained the writ petitions. The petitioner has been misleading the court and obtained favourable orders and is trying to mislead the court further. Hence this Court should decline to grant any relief to the writ petitioner in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Art.226 of the Constitution of India. [Paras 29 and 33]

Accordingly both the writ petitions in the present case are dismissed with costs of Rs.2,500 in each case. The award of heavy cost is justified in view of the unfair conduct of the petitioner. (A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 953, Rel. on) [Para 33]

(B) Professional etiquette - duty of lawyers to place all matters before court stressed - Conduct of counsel in the present case strongly disapproved.

Per A.R.Lakshmanan, J.:- ".....lawyers as officers of court owe a duty to the court to place all matters before the court..... It would be the saddest day if counsel behave in a manner making the court lose faith in the words and representations of lawyers. However, I cannot help observing that the conduct and behaviour of the petitioner as well as his counsel M/s.V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan are most reprehensible and deserve to be deprecated. The petitioner and his counsel have not even tendered unqualified apology and sought mercy from the court. However, M/s.V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan have very cleverly sought permission of this court to permit them to withdraw the writ petitions, which was rejected by me. They wanted to withdraw the writ petitions on coming to know of the turn of events that has taken place in the present writ petitions during the course of hearing. I, however, part with this case with a heavy heart expressing my strong disapproval of their conduct and behaviour." [Para 36]

Cases referred to:

K.Marappa Gounder, K.M.S.Bus Service v. The Central Road Traffic Board, Madras, (1956)1 M.L.J. 324. [Para 33]

Dr.Vijay Kumar Kathuria v. State of Haryana, A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 953: (1983)3 S.C.C. 333. [Para 33]

V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan, for Petitioner.

P.Shannugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondents.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT:- These two writ petitions have a chequered history. These two writ petitions can be cited as an example as to how people like the writ petitioner abuses the process of Court by obtaining orders by fraudulent means and by suppression of material and relevant facts.

2. Before advertng to the facts of the present two writ petitions, it is necessary for this Court to refer to the previous writ petitions and the writ appeal filed by the very same petitioner for the same subject matter. The first in the series is W.P.No.1835 of 1991. The prayer in the said writ petition is as follows:- To issue a writ of certiorarified mandamus or any other appropriate writ or direction, calling for the records of the 2nd respondent/ District Collector, Salem, relating to his Proceedings Roc.No.515 of 1989 dated 22.6.1989 and Clause 4 of the lease deed relating to the period of expiry of the lease, quash the same as illegal, and direct the 2nd respondent to grant quarry lease for complete three years from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993 in respect of carrying on quarry operation in Survey No.2 (Part) and Survey No.61/1 (part), measuring in all an extent of 6.15 acres at Ettikuttapatti Village, Omalur Taluk, Salem District.

3. The averments made by the petitioner in W.P.No.1835 of 1991 are as follows:- According to the petitioner, he participated in the public auction conducted by the Tahsildar of Omalur, and was declared as the highest and successful bidder in the auction held on 13.2.1989 for leasing out the stone quarries situate in Survey No.2 (part) over an extent of 5.15 acres in Adaikanur village, Omalur Taluk and in Survey No.61/1 (part) over an extent of 1 acre in Ettikuttapatti Village, Omalur Taluk, Salem District. He had also remitted the bid amount along with local cess and local cess surcharge into the State Bank of India and that the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem, in his proceedings Roc.No.515 of 1989 (Mines-B) dated 22.6.1989 confirmed the lease in favour of the petitioner for both the quarries mentioned above, for a period of three years. According to the petitioner, the lease agreement was executed on 19.7.1990 and was registered as Document No.1346 dated 26.9.1990 in the Office of the Sub Registrar, Omalur. He was given possession of the demised area after demarcation only on 26.9.1990 after the registration of the lease agreement.

4. Even though the petitioner has remitted the lease amount along with local cess and local cess surcharge for the second year in the State Bank of India by chalan dated 7.11.1990, he was permitted to commence quarrying operation only on 26.9.1990. The petitioner objected to the stipulation regarding expiry of the lease period as 30.6.1991. According to the petitioner, the notification granting quarry lease by public auction specifically stated that the lease would be granted for three years and on the basis of such representation, he was forced to knockdown for the highest amount. There was considerable delay in holding the public auction, confirmation of lease, execution of the lease agreement and handing over possession. Having notified that the lease would commence on 1.7.1988, the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem, should have arranged for holding the public auction and execution of the lease agreement well in advance to the date of commencement of the lease, i.e., 1.7.1988, whereas the public auction was held on 13.2.1989 and the confirmation order was passed on 8.3.1990 and the lease was executed on 19.7.1990. The petitioner was permitted to quarry from the date of registration of the lease on 26.9.1990 and the 2nd respondent acted arbitrarily in incorporating a stipulation that the lease would expire on 30.6.1991, while the notification mentions that the lease would be for three complete years. Hence, the action of the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem, is arbitrary in stipulating that the period of lease would commence on 1.7.1988 and expire on 30.6.1991. According to the petitioner, the quarry operation was commenced only on 19.7.1990 and the lease would expire only on 18.7.1993 whereas the District Collector, Salem, has issued the impugned proceedings in Roc.No.515 of 1989 dated 22.6.1989 containing a stipulation that the lease would expire on 30.6.1991.

5. The said W.P.No.1835 of 1991 came up for admission before K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J., on 14.2.1991 and the learned Judge dismissed the writ petition at the admission stage itself. It is useful to extract paragraph 4 of the said order, which runs as follows:-

"After considering the arguments of the learned counsel for the petitioner, I am not able to agree with the learned counsel on the contentions raised. It is true that the auction was for three years from 1.7.1988 to 30.6.1991 and the petitioner was also given possession when the lease agreement was executed on 19.7.1990. But, there is a clause which was inserted in the lease deed, as extracted above, which limits the period to 30.6.1991. The petitioner with open eyes has accepted the lease deed and executed the lease deed. Having executed the lease deed, I do not think, the petitioner can turn back and say that he is entitled to have the lease for three years. Even otherwise, Condition 10 of the confirmation order says that the petitioner has to remit the security deposit before the execution of the lease deed. The petitioner has not remitted the security deposit of Rs.2,000 till November, 1989, and it is not on the part of the respondents to delay the execution of the lease deed. Taking into consideration the delay made by the petitioner in paying the security deposit, I am not able to say that the respondents are bound by the principle of promissory estoppel. Even otherwise, with open eyes, the petitioner has entered into a lease deed, in which it is stated that the lease will come to an end on 30.6.1991. In my view, it is not open to the petitioner to get out of the lease deed executed by him accepting the conditions of the lease deed."

6. Aggrieved against the order of K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J., dated 14.2.1991 in W.P.No.-1835 of 1991, the petitioner filed W.A.No.429 of 1991. It is pertinent to notice that the Writ Appeal was filed by the very same counsel M/s.V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan. The Division Bench consisting of the Hon'ble Chief Justice Dr.A.S.Anand (as he then was) and D.Raju, J., dismissed the Writ Appeal by order dated 9.4.1991 at the admission stage itself. The judgment of the Division Bench is reproduced hereunder.

"Invoking the doctrine of promissory estoppel, the appellant herein filed W.P.No.1835 of 1991 which came to be dismissed by a learned single Judge vide judgment dated 14th day of February, 1991. Hence this appeal.

2. The appellant participated in the auction for stone quarry over an extent of 6.15 acres in Ettikuttapatti Village. The auction was for a period of three years from 1.7.1988 to 30.6.1991. After the auction the appellant was requested to furnish the security deposit. The same was done by him on 17th November, 1989. After the security deposit was remitted, the agreement was executed between the parties on 19th of July 1990. Clause 4 of the agreement provided that the premises shall be held by the lessee for the term of period from 19th day of July, 1990, to the 30th day of June, 1991, which shall, however, be determinable in the manner provided in the agreement itself. According to Clause 4, the period of lease would expire on 30th of June, 1991. Alleging that the appellant had relied upon some representation and assurance as given by the authorities and invested huge amount and thereby changed his position, the appellant sought that the period of three years should commence from 1990 and end in 1993. This argument had been raised before the learned single Judge and was rightly repelled. It has been reiterated before us. The argument is thoroughly misconceived. Even though there is not even the minimal factual foundation laid down in the writ petition for invoking the doctrine of promissory estoppel, for the sake of argument even if it be assumed that there was some understanding between the parties prior to the execution of the lease agreement on 19th of July, 1990, that understanding stood superseded by the document executed between the parties wherein it was clearly stipulated that the period of lease would expire on 30th of June, 1991, unless determined earlier. The appellant executed the document and he is bound by it. The so-called earlier representation cannot be preferred to the written agreement executed between the parties. The effort of the appellant appears to be to rewrite the lease agreement and substitute Clause 4 through writ proceedings. That cannot be permitted. The writ petition was rightly dismissed by the learned single Judge and we see no reason to take a different view.

The appeal fails and is dismissed."

7. The very same petitioner filed another writ petition viz., W.P.No.9008 of 1991 on 1.7.1991 through M/s.S.Silambannan and P.Venkatachalapathi. I may state here that the writ petitioner has purposely engaged a different counsel in order to obtain an order from this Court by suppressing material facts, which I will deal with in the later part of this judgment.

8. W.P.No.9008 of 1991 was filed for the following relief:- To issue a writ of certiorarified mandamus calling for the records of the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem, relating to his proceedings Roc.No.515 of 1989 dated 22.6.1989 and Clause 4 of the lease deed relating to the period of expiry of the lease, quash as illegal and direct the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem, to grant quarry lease for complete three years commencing from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993 in respect of carrying on quarry operation in Survey No.2 (part) and Survey No.61/1 (part), totally measuring an extent of 6.15 acres at Ettikuttapatti Village, Omalur Taluk, Salem District.

9. It is seen from the affidavit filed in support of W.P.No.9008 of 1991, that the very same allegations, which have been made in W.P.No.1835 of 1991, have been repeated in this writ petition. That apart, as in W.P.No.1835 of 1991, Clause 4 of the lease deed relating to the period of expiry of lease has also been challenged. It is significant to note that the petitioner has purposely and with an ulterior motive has failed to mention about the dismissal of his earlier writ petition (W.P.No.1835 of 1991) for the same relief and the confirmation of the order of the learned single Judge in W.P.No.1835 of 1991 by a Division Bench in W.A.No.429 of 1991. The affidavit is very silent on this aspect. The prayer in the present writ petition (W.P.No.9008 of 1991) is to grant quarry lease for complete three years commencing from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993 in respect of the quarry in question. W.P.No.9008 of 1991 was dismissed by S.Ramalingam, J., at the admission stage itself on 4.7.1991 by permitting the petitioner to submit an application for renewal on or before 30.7.1991 and further directing the District Collector, Salem, to dispose of the said application for renewal within three weeks from the date of receipt of such application. The order of S.Ramalingam, J., in W.P.No.9008 of 1991 is as follows:-

"The prayer in the writ petition is for quashing Clause 4 of the lease deed relating to the period of expiry of the lease and for a direction to the 2nd respondent to grant quarry lease for a complete period of three years commencing from 19.7.1990 and expiring on 18.7.1993. Since the quarry lease was only for the concerned faslis which expired on 30.6.1991, the petitioner cannot have a vested right to claim that the period of lease should be according to English Calendar year for three years commencing from 19.7.1990 and ending with 18.7.1993. However, taking note of the fact that the lease is normally granted for a period of three years and it would be economic and viable if the lessee is permitted to enjoy the quarry rights for a full period of three years, there will be an order in this writ petition directing the 2nd respondent to entertain an application from the petitioner for renewal of the quarry rights and pass orders thereon so as to enable the petitioner to have the privilege of quarrying at least for three full calendar years. The petitioner is enabled to submit an application for renewal on or before 30.7.1991 and on receipt of that application, orders thereon shall be passed by the 2nd respondent within three weeks from the date of receipt of such application. Till the disposal of the application for renewal, the quarry shall not be leased to any third parties. The writ petition is ordered on the above terms. No costs."

10. It is seen from the file produced before this Court by the learned Additional Government Pleader, that the order of S.Ramalingam, J., in W.P.No.9008 of 1991 has not so far been challenged by the respondents by filing a Writ Appeal, though they were contemplating to file a Writ Appeal against the said order.

11. On going through the file, I also find that the very same petitioner has filed W.P.No.5793 of 1992 to quash the proceedings of the District Collector, Salem, in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 18.3.1992. It is appropriate to notice at this stage the proceedings of the District Collector, Salem in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 18.3.1992. It is a notice issued by the District Collector, Salem, to the petitioner, on receipt of information of illicit quarrying of rough stones in Survey Nos.2 (part) and 61/1 (part), poramboke land in Ettikuttapatti Village. It is seen from the notice that the Deputy Director of Geology and Mines, Salem, along with the Special Deputy Tahsildar, Assistant Geologist No.1, Salem and the Sub Inspector of Survey (Mines), Salem, inspected the said land on 12.2.1992 and reported that the lessee V.Thamilselvan/writ petitioner quarried and removed the quantity of 366 lorry loads of rough stone from 1.7.1991 till date of the said notice and that the quantity of 1,905 lorry loads of rough stone was quarried and removed by the lessee upto 30.6.1991 from the date of executing the lease deed i.e., 19.7.1990 and that totally, a quantity of 2,271 lorry loads of rough stone was quarried and removed by the lessee from the date of the execution of the lease deed i.e., 19.7.1990. It is further averred in that notice that the lessee has got transport permit only for the quantity of 117 lorry loads of rough stone and that he has not got transport permit for the remaining quantity of 2,154 lorry loads of rough stone. It is also stated in that notice that the lessee/writ petitioner has violated the lease deed condition Nos.6(4), 6(7) and 10(5). The District Collector, Salem, has directed the petitioner to show cause within 15 days from the date of receipt of the notice as to why a penalty amount of Rs.11,50,775 should not be levied under Rule 3(3) of the T.M.M.C.Rules, 1959, and under Sec.25 of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957, for having quarried and transported blue metal without valid permits from Survey Nos.2 (part) and 61/1 (part) in Ettikuttapatti Village, Omalur Taluk. The lessee/writ petitioner was also directed to explain in writing within 15 days of receipt of the said notice for having violated the lease deed conditions laid down in 6(4), 6(7) and 10(5) of the lease deed.

12. The petitioner submitted his written explanation during April, 1992. The exact date is not mentioned but the same was received by the Deputy Director of Geology and Mines, Salem, on 16.4.1992. But, however, it is seen from the letter dated 30.4.1992 of Mr.P.Gunaraj, Addl. Government Pleader, High Court, Madras, addressed to the Secretary to Government, Industries Department, Madras-9, with a copy to the District Collector, Salem, that the petitioner has challenged the proceedings of the District Collector, Salem, in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 18.3.1992 by filing W.P.No.5793 of 1992, and the same was dismissed by this Court on 23.4.1992 by J.Kanakaraj, J. The petitioner has thereafter filed the present two writ petitions W.P.Nos.6503 and 6504 of 1992.

13. The prayer in W.P.Nos.6503 of 1992 is as follows:- To issue a writ of mandamus forbearing the respondents from interfering with the quarrying operations of the petitioner in Survey Nos.2

(part) and 61/1 (part), totally measuring an extent of 6.15 acres in Ettikuttapatti Village, Omalur Taluk, Salem District, till 18.7.1993 pursuant to the proceedings of the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 12.9.1991, for rough stones, jellies, blue metal, etc., and transporting the same to a business place of the petitioner's choice and consequently direct the respondents to issue necessary permit for the transportation of the quarried rough stones jellies, blue metal, etc.

14. The prayer in W.P.No.6504 of 1992 is as follows:- To issue a writ of mandamus directing the respondents to allow the petitioner to execute the lease deed in favour of the respondent in respect of the quarry comprised in Survey Nos.2 (part) and 61/1 (part), totally measuring an extent of 6.15 acres and situate in Ettikuttapatti Village, Omalur Taluk, Salem District, for a period of three years from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993.

15. As stated above, W.P.No.5793 of 1992 was filed on 22.4.1992 by the petitioner challenging the proceedings of the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem, in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 18.3.1992, and the same was dismissed by this Court on 23.4.1992. The present writ petitions viz., W.P.Nos.6503 and 6504 of 1992 were filed on 29.4.1992 by the petitioner through M/s. V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan. The petitioner has signed the affidavit on 24.4.1992, i.e., the next day after the dismissal of W.P.No.5793 of 1992, and filed the same into Court on 29.4.1992. In the affidavit filed in support of the writ petitions, after setting out the previous history, the petitioner has referred to W.P.No.9008 of 1991 filed by him, wherein also he has challenged Clause 4 of the lease deed relating to the period of expiry of the lease. It is further stated in the affidavit by the petitioner that as per the directions of S.Ramalingam, J., in W.P.No.9008 of 1991, the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem, passed an order for carrying out quarrying operations by the petitioner in the said quarries from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993, that the petitioner was put in possession of the quarries and permitted to carry on mining operation by virtue of the orders passed by the District Collector, Salem, and the Deputy Director of Geology and Mines, Salem, that in spite of several representations to the District Collector, Salem, to issue transport permit to the petitioner for local sales in respect of the quarried blue metal jelly, the same was not given to him and that the respondents are keeping his application pending for long time since 14.2.1992. Hence, the petitioner is approaching this Court to direct the respondents to issue necessary permits to him in respect of the quarried rough stone jellies, etc., for transporting them for local sales. Thus, the petitioner has filed W.P.No.6503 of 1992 for a mandamus forbearing the respondents from interfering with the quarrying operations by the petitioner of the subject quarry pursuant to the proceedings of the 2nd respondent/District Collector, Salem in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 12.9.1991, and to direct the respondents to issue necessary permits for the transportation of the quarried stones, etc.

16. On the very same allegations, W.P.No.6504 of 1992 was filed by the petitioner through the very same counsel and on the very same date. In this writ petition also, the petitioner has made a reference only to W.P.No.9008 of 1991 wherein he prayed for extension of lease, and after referring to the order of S.Ramalingam, J., the petitioner has prayed to issue a writ of mandamus directing the respondents to allow the petitioner to execute the lease deed in favour of the respondents in respect of the quarry in question for a period of three years from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993.

17. Both the writ petitions were admitted by J.Kanakaraj, J., on 30.4.1992, and on the same date notice was ordered to the respondents in the two Writ Miscellaneous Petitions viz., W.M.P.Nos. 9339 and 9340 of 1992, which are for interim injunction restraining the respondents from interfering with the quarrying operations and to direct the respondents to allow the petitioner to execute the lease in respect of the quarry in question respectively.

18. I have carefully gone through the averments made in the above two writ petitions. It is rather unfortunate and painful to notice that the petitioner has purposely omitted and suppressed very important and relevant factors such as filing of W.P.No.1835 of 1991, which was dismissed by K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J., on 14.2.1991, W.A.No.429 of 1991, which was dismissed by the First Bench of this Court on 19.4.1991 and the filing of W.P.No.5793 of 1992 and its dismissal on 23.4.1992 by this Court. The petitioner has conveniently mentioned only his filing of W.P.No.9008 of 1991 and the exparte order passed by S.Ramalingam, J., on 4.7.1991 at the admission stage. In my view, the petitioner has suppressed very many material facts. The affidavits filed in support of W.P.No.9008 of 1991 and W.P.No.5793 of 1992 and in the present two writ petitions W.P.Nos.6503 and 6504 of 1992, were not candid and do not fully state the facts but suppressed the material facts. The petitioner has stated certain facts in such a way as to mislead the Court as to the true facts. It is the well settled proposition of law that it is the duty of a person invoking the special writ jurisdiction of a Court to make a full and true disclosure of all relevant facts. He could not suppress any fact. The Court ought, for its own protection, and to prevent an abuse of its process, can always refuse to proceed any further with the examination of the merits in the present two writ petitions. In my view, the petitioner has suppressed material and relevant facts with regard to the earlier Court proceedings, which, if brought to the notice of S.Ramalingam, J., in W.P.No.9008 of 1991 when applying for a rule nisi, should certainly have influenced the said Court in deciding one way or the other, and such suppression, in my view, was certainly calculated to deceive the Court into granting the order of rule nisi. The petitioner is not entitled to any relief in the present two writ petitions since the whole claim of the writ petitioner is based on the earlier order obtained by him from S.Ramalingam, J., in W.P.No.9008 of 1991, which, as I have stated above, was obtained on suppression of material and relevant facts. Hence, on this short ground, both the writ petitions are liable to be dismissed. 19. It is also to be noticed that W.P.No.9008 of 1991 was disposed of by the learned Judge at the time of admission itself by giving certain directions to consider the application for renewal. That writ petition was not even admitted, though it is seen from the order, that the name of Mr.J.R.K.Bhavanantham, Additional Government Pleader was mentioned in the order. It appears that the Additional Government Pleader, who was present in Court, was asked to take notice on behalf of the respondents.

20. As stated above, W.P.No.1835 of 1991, W.A.No.429 of 1991, W.P.No.9008 of 1991, and W.P.No.5793 of 1992 were disposed of by this Court at the admission stage itself. It is seen from the file produced by the learned Additional Government Pleader, that the copy of the order in W.P.No.1835 of 1991 was received by the District

Collector's Office, Salem, on 28.1.1992, and the order in W.A.No.429 of 1991 was received by District Collector's Office, Salem, on 17.7.1991, i.e., after the order of S.Ramalingam, J., in W.P.No.9008 of 1991 dated 4.7.1991, which was sent by the petitioner to the District Collector on 15.7.1991.

21. After receipt of conflicting orders from this Court, the District Collector, Salem, and other authorities came to know about the writ proceedings initiated by the petitioner without mentioning the true and correct facts. In the meanwhile, the petitioner has sent a petition for renewal, which was received by the Collector's Office, Salem, on 15.7.1991, and the three weeks time granted by this Court would expire on 1.8.1991. In the above circumstances, the matter was referred to Mr.K.Ravirajapandian, Additional Government Pleader, High Court, Madras, for his opinion on the orders of the High Court, Madras, in W.P.No.9008 of 1991, for taking further action, as to how two different orders for one and the same case can be given effect to, and also to take necessary action to file an appeal against the order dated 4.7.1991 in W.P.No.9008 of 1991. On 25.7.1991, the then Additional Government Pleader, Mr.K.Ravirajapandian, has stated thus as his opinion:

"It is a good case to expose the petitioner before the Court. Please send the entire file with the affidavits filed in the earlier W.P.No.1835 of 1991 immediately."

This opinion is available at page 160 of the file.

22. Since there was delay in obtaining the opinion from the then Additional Government Pleader, the matter was referred to Mr.M.A.Sadanand, Government Pleader, High Court, Madras, on 17.8.1991, as by that time Mr.K.Ravirajapandian, Additional Government Pleader, handed over charge to the Government Pleader. Mr.M.A.Sadanand, Government Pleader, High Court, Madras, has given his opinion as follows:

"Though a Division Bench has held that the lease date is the one mentioned in the deed, since no appeal has been filed against the instant order, which is to be implemented on or before 19.8.1991, there is no option but to obey the order which may be a wrong one. Delay in seeking advice has caused this apparent subversion of justice. Please pass orders lest you should be hauled up for Contempt of Court.

(Sd.) M.A.Sadanand, 17.8.1991, G.P.”

In order to avoid contempt proceedings, orders were passed by the District Collector, Salem, in Roc.No.515 of 1991/Mines-B dated 12.9.1991 granting the lease to quarry rough stones, etc., for the period from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993, subject to the provisions contained in Tamil Nadu Minor Mineral Concession Rules, 1959.

23. As stated above, this is a typical case of gross abuse of the process of Court. Admittedly, the petitioner filed W.P.No.1835 of 1991 through his counsel M/s. V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan seeking a writ of certiorarified mandamus to quash Clause 4 of the lease deed dated 19.7.1990 relating to the period of the lease executed by the petitioner in favour of the District Collector, Salem. That writ petition was dismissed in limine by my learned Brother K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J. The petitioner herein unsuccessfully challenged the said order in W.A.No.429 of 1991. As a matter of fact, the First Bench consisting of Hon'ble Chief Justice A.S.Anand, as he then was, and D.Raju, J., while dismissing the writ appeal in limine, has held that the petitioner having signed the lease agreement, is bound by Clause 4 of the lease deed, which provided that the lease shall be valid for the term from 19.7.1990 to 30.6.1991 and that the effort of the petitioner was to re-write the lease agreement and substitute clause 4 of the lease deed through writ proceedings, which is impermissible.

24. However, the writ petitioner, totally suppressing the above writ petition (W.P.No.1835 of 1991) and the Writ Appeal (W.P.No.429 of 1991), filed W.P.No.9008 of 1991 with the identical prayer as in W.P.No.1835 of 1991. In W.P.No.9008 of 1991, an order was passed by this Court directing the District Collector, Salem, to entertain an application from the petitioner for renewal of the quarry right and pass orders thereon so as to enable the petitioner to have the privilege of quarrying at least for three full calendar years. The writ petitioner got the above order from this Court by misleading the Court as if he is approaching the court for the first time and also by totally suppressing the material fact that an identical prayer was denied and declined by a learned single Judge and the same was confirmed by a Division Bench.

25. It is on the strength of the above order dated 4.7.1991 in W.P.No.9008 of 1991, the petitioner obtained lease of the quarry for the period from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993. There is also no dispute that no lease deed has been executed by the District Collector, Salem, pursuant to the proceedings in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 12.9.1991 of the District Collector, Salem.

26. In the above background, the petitioner has filed W.P.No.6503 of 1992 for issuing a writ of mandamus forbearing the respondents from interfering with the quarry operations of the petitioner pursuant to the proceedings in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 12.9.1991 of the District Collector, Salem, and W.P.No.6504 of 1992 has been filed for directing the respondents to allow the petitioner to execute the lease deed for a period of three years from 19.7.1990 to 18.7.1993.

27. The conduct of the petitioner deserves strong condemnation. On the strength of the order W.P.No.9008 of 1991, the petitioner had managed to obtain the proceedings in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 12.9.1991 from the District Collector, Salem. Based on the aforesaid proceedings of the District Collector, Salem, the petitioner is seeking certain reliefs in W.P.Nos.6503 and 6504 of 1992.

28. I am concerned with the question whether the petitioner can claim any relief in the present two writ petitions. The remedy under Art.226 of the Constitution is an extra-ordinary and discretionary remedy. This Court would be fully justified in refusing to exercise its discretion in favour of a person who has abused the process of court and suppressed material and relevant factors and obtained orders from the High Court. It is on the strength of such orders, the petitioner is now claiming relief in the present writ petitions. In my view, Court should not be a party and extend its helping hand to a person who has played a fraud on court.

29. It is also significant to notice that the writ petitioner has not chosen to mention about W.P.No.1835 of 1991 and W.A.No.429 of 1991 in the present two writ petitions. The petitioner has not come to court with clean hands and failed to disclose material facts. The reason for not mentioning the above facts is also obvious. If the petitioner were to disclose the earlier writ proceedings in W.P.No.9008 of 1991, the Court would have not only declined the relief but also frowned on the petitioner. Equally, if all the relevant facts are mentioned in the present writ petitions, the court would not have even entertained the writ petitions. I have no doubt in my mind that the petitioner has been misleading the court and obtained favourable orders and is trying to mislead the court further. Though I would be justified in not embarking on the merits of the case, yet, I do not find any ground to grant the reliefs claimed. The relief asked for in W.P.No.6503 of 1992 cannot be granted unless the petitioner succeeds in W.P.No.6504 of 1992. No relief can be granted in W.P.No.6504 of 1992 because the proceedings dated 12.9.1991 of the District Collector, Salem, came to be issued because of the orders of this Court in W.P.No.9008 of 1991, and the favourable orders in the above writ petition (W.P.No.9008 of 1991) has been passed because the petitioner has misled the Court by suppressing the material facts.

30. It is also necessary to mention that a show cause notice dated 18.3.1992 has been issued by the District Collector, Salem, to the petitioner for violation of the lease deed conditions in Clauses 6(4), 6(7) and 10(5), and the petitioner has sent a reply on 16.4.1992.

31. The learned Additional Government Pleader produced all the records. On going through the records, I find that the writ petitioner has filed another W.P.No.5793 of 1992 challenging the proceedings in Roc.No.515 of 1989/Mines-B dated 18.3.1992. The very same counsel who filed W.P.No.1835 of 1991 and W.A.No.429 of 1991 have filed W.P.No.5793 of 1992. W.P.No.5793 of 1992 was dismissed by J.Kanakaraj, J., on 23.4.1992. The order passed by J.Kanakaraj, J. is as follows:

"The petitioner challenges the show cause notice dated 18.3.1992. It is stated in the show cause notice that the Sub Inspector of Survey (Mines), Salem, inspected the land on 12.2.1992 and reported the lessee (petitioner) quarried and removed the quantity of 366 lorry loads of rough stones from 1.7.1991 till date of show cause notice. Based on the date of execution of the lease deed, the show cause notice called upon the petitioner to show cause as to why penalty should not be levied for conducting quarry operations contrary to the lease deed and the provisions of the Tamil Nadu Minor Mineral Concession Rules, 1959. The cost of the rough stones quarried from the lands is also worked out and the petitioner is asked to show cause as to why the said sum should not be demanded from the petitioner. The contention of the petitioner is that he has a subsisting lease and therefore, the show cause notice is not warranted. I do not think that this contention can be accepted at this stage because it has to be seen whether the lease deed authorises the petitioner to quarry rough stones and whether the lease deed was subsisting during the period when the illicit quarrying is said to have taken place. These are all matters which the authority has to enquire into on the basis of the explanation that the petitioner will submit, in response to the show cause notice. It is too early to come to any conclusion one way or the other. Therefore, I am not inclined to interfere at this stage. It is open to the petitioner to submit his explanation. If he is ultimately aggrieved by the order, it is open to him to challenge the same in the manner known to law. The writ petition is dismissed."

32. It is after the dismissal of the aforesaid writ petition (W.P.No.5793 of 1992) on 23.4.1992, the petitioner has filed the two writ petitions in question on 29.4.1992. The petitioner has sworn to the affidavit on 24.4.1992 and the writ petitions have been signed by the advocates on the very same day viz., 24.4.1992. Significantly, the very same counsel had appeared in W.P.No.5793 of 1992 as well as in the present two writ petitions. I have absolutely no hesitation in my mind in coming to the conclusion that a member of the Bar, who is expected to assist the court, has joined hands with the unscrupulous petitioner and has taken the Court for a ride. It is very painful to note that a member of the Bar has failed in his duty to the Court and has been a party to the unholy act of the petitioner. I must also mention the fact that when the learned Additional Government Pleader brought to my notice about the filing of W.P.No.6504 of 1992, I confronted the petitioner's counsel Mr.V.Santhanam and asked him to tell the Court whether any such writ petition has been filed. Mr.V.Santhanam, learned counsel for the petitioner, gave an evasive answer that he has to verify the same even though he himself has filed both the writ petitions together on the very same day.

33. Again, these material facts have been suppressed in W.P.Nos.5793, 6503 and 6504 of 1992. Consequently, the petitioner is not entitled to any consideration at the hands of this Court in view of the landmark decision of Rajagopalan, J., in the case reported in K.Marappa Gounder, K.M.S.Bus Service v. The Central Road Traffic Board, Madras, (1956)1 M.L.J. 324. Hence this Court should decline to grant any relief to the writ petitioner in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Art.226 of the Constitution of India. Accordingly, both the writ petitions (W.P.Nos.6503 and 6504 of 1992) are dismissed with costs of Rs.5,000 i.e., Rs.2,500 in each case. The award of heavy cost is justified in view of the unfair conduct of the petitioner. Such award of cost has been held to be proper and justified by the Apex Court in the decision reported in Dr.Vijay Kumar Kathuria v. State of Haryana, A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 953; (1983)3 S.C.C. 333. 34. Out of the costs of Rs.5,000 awarded, a sum of Rs.2,000 (Rs.1,000 in each case) shall be paid to Mr.P.Shanmugham, learned Additional Government Pleader, towards his fees, but for whom the fraudulent and unfair conduct of the writ petitioner would not have been unearthed and brought to the notice of the Court. The fee of Rs.2,000 (in both the cases) is fixed by the Court to Mr.P.Shanmugham, learned Additional Government Pleader, taking into consideration of the excellent work done by him in protecting the interest of the State.

35. Further, I direct the respondents to remove all the materials quarried by the petitioner, sell the same and appropriate the sale proceeds towards the amounts due to the State from the petitioner and take further action for recovery of the balance, if any.

36. Before parting with this case, I must also point out that the lawyers as officers of court, owe a duty to the court to place all matters before the court. The earlier proceedings in W.P.No.1835 of 1991, W.A.No.429 of 1991 and W.P.No.5793 of 1992, and the present writ petitions have been filed by one and the same counsel. Hence, it was obligatory on the part of the lawyers to have ascertained as to how the petitioner has obtained the order in W.P.No.9008 of 1991 in spite of the dismissal of the earlier W.P.No.1835 of 1991 and W.A.No.429 of 1991, and mentioned all the facts in the present writ proceedings. I am also tempted to feel that the petitioner has changed the counsel for appearing in W.P.No.9008 of 1991 with a view to wriggle out of the legal implications flowing from the dismissal of W.P.No.1835 of 1991, as confirmed in W.A.No.429 of 1991 since the present counsel appearing for the petitioner are fully aware of the same. It would be the saddest day if counsel behave in a manner making the court lose faith in the words and representations of lawyers. However, I cannot help observing that the conduct and behaviour of the petitioner as well as his counsel M/s.V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan, are most reprehensible and deserve to be deprecated. The petitioner and his counsel have not even tendered unqualified apology and sought mercy from the Court. However, M/s.V.Santhanam and V.Seshayyan have very cleverly sought permission of this court to permit them to withdraw the writ petitions, which was rejected by me. They wanted to withdraw the writ petitions on coming to know of the turn of events that has taken place in the present writ petitions during the course of hearing. I, however, part with this case with a heavy heart expressing my strong disapproval of their conduct and behaviour.

37. In the result, both the writ petitions are dismissed with costs of Rs.5,000 i.e., Rs.2,500 in each case. Out of the costs, a sum of Rs.2,000 (Rs.1,000 in each case) is fixed by me as the fees of Mr.P.Shanmugham, Additional Government Pleader, for the reasons mentioned supra. As directed earlier, the respondents are at liberty to forthwith remove all the materials quarried by the petitioner pursuant to the order obtained by him by suppression of material facts in W.P.No.9008 of 1991, sell the same and appropriate the sale proceeds towards the amount due to the State from the petitioner, and take further appropriate action for recovery of the balance, if any.

V.K.

---- Petitions dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

S.A.No.1324 of 1989 and A.A.O.No.68 of 1991
27th April, 1992.

Janaki and another ... Appellants

v.

Kiliambal and others ... Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Pension Rules, Rules 45(5) and 48 - Pension and death-cum-retirement - Gratuity of public servant - Nomination for - Nomination in respect of pension in favour of person who is not the legally married wife - Nomination in favour of son while legally wedded Wife is alive - Validity of.

One Narasinghan, a public servant died on 28.6.1984. He was married to the first plaintiff in June, 1946 and had one daughter the second plaintiff. He had illicit intimacy with the first defendant and had a son the second defendant through her. The deceased had nominated the first defendant as the person entitled to service family pension and with regard to the gratuity, he made two nominations the first in favour of the first defendant only and the second in favour of the defendants 1 and 2 with a direction that each shall be paid half thereof. Plaintiffs 1 and 2 filed a suit for a declaration that they and the eighth defendant were entitled to receive the amounts due to the deceased by way of service benefits provident fund, death cum-retirement gratuity, pension etc. It was decreed. On appeal, the lower appellate court modified the same holding that besides the plaintiffs, the second defendant would also be a legal heir. Defendants 1 and 2 preferred a second appeal.

Held: As regards the first defendant, the nomination is clearly invalid as she is not a member of the family of the deceased Narasinghan. As she is not the legally wedded wife of the deceased, she cannot claim to be a member of the family. Rule 46 of the Tamil Nadu Pension Rules is to the effect that the gratuity payable under Rule 45 shall be paid to the person or persons on whom the right to receiving the gratuity is conferred by means of a nomination under Rule 48. Rule 48 provides that the Government servant shall make a nomination in Form 1 or Form 2 as may be appropriate in the circumstances of the case conferring on one or more persons the right of receiving the death-cum-retirement gratuity payable under Rule 45. The proviso to the rule is to the effect that the nomination shall not be in favour of any person or persons other than the members of his family and such nomination shall be in the order laid down in sub-sec.(5) of Rule 45. Hence the nomination made by deceased Narasinghan with regard to his family pension and death-cum retirement gratuity are not valid as they are not in accordance with Rules 45 and 48 of the Tamil Nadu Pension Rules. In so far as the pension is concerned, the only nominee is the first defendant. She not being a member of the family as defined under Rule 45(5) of the Tamil Nadu Pension Rules, the nomination is invalid. With regard to the death-cum-retirement gratuity, the nomination is invalid because it is not in the order specified in Rule 45(5). It takes in the first defendant who is not the legally wedded wife of the deceased. The first entry relates to the wife; the second to the husband and the third entry relates to the sons. In this case, the first plaintiff is the legally wedded wife of the deceased Narasinghan. So long as she is alive, there cannot be any nomination in favour of the second defendant who is a son. Hence the nominations made by the deceased in favour of the first and second defendants are not valid in law and they cannot be acted upon. Moreover, even before the nomination was finalised by sending the same to the appropriate authority. Narasinghan died on account of the accident and the process was not complete. In the circumstances defendants 1 and 2 cannot make any claim on the footing of the nominations made by deceased Narasinghan. [Paras 7, 8, 9 and 10]

Case referred to:

Valliammal v. Kamalambal, (1990)1 L.W. 461. [Para 12]

Appeal against the decree of the Principal District Court, South Arcot at Cuddalore, dated 23.1.1989 in Appeal Suit No.18 of 1988, preferred against the decree of the Court of the District Munsif, Panruti, dated 30.12.1987 in Original Suit No.1258 of 1984 etc.

G.Rajagopal, for Appellants.

V.Prabhakar for Respondent No.2.

S.Kaman, Government Advocate, for Respondent Nos.3 to 5.

R.Vijayan, for Respondent No.6.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT: Second Appeal No.1324 of 1989:-

This appeal has been filed by defendants 1 and 2, who claim to be the wife and son of one Narasinghan, who died on 28.6.1984. He met with an accident on 23.6.1984 and died on 28.6.1984. He was employed as an Assistant (Agricultural Demonstration), in the Office of the Assistant Director (Agriculture), Seed Centre, Cuddalore. The suit has been filed by respondents 1 and 2 herein for a declaration that the plaintiffs and the eighth defendant Poongothai are the only legal heirs of the deceased Narasinghan and they are entitled to receive the amounts due to the deceased by way of service benefits, provident fund and death-cum-retirement gratuity, pension, etc. The dispute, in short, is between the plaintiffs on the one hand and defendants 1 and 2 on the other. According to the plaintiffs, the first plaintiff was married to Narasinghan somewhere in June, 1946 and the second plaintiff was born to them. It is the case of the plaintiffs that the first defendant was having illicit intimacy with the deceased and he drove the first plaintiff away from the house after he came into contact with the first defendant. Per contra, the case of defendants 1 and 2 is that the plaintiffs are not the legal heirs of deceased Narasinghan and the first defendant got married to him in January, 1948 and she was the only legally wedded wife. It is the case of defendants 1 and 2 that the second defendant was one of the sons born to the first defendant and Narasinghan, and the other children were dead. It is also contended by them that deceased Narasinghan had nominated them to receive the service benefits and in view of the nomination the plaintiffs cannot claim any right to the same.

2. The trial court granted a decree in favour of the plaintiffs as prayed for by them and declared that the plaintiffs and the 8th defendant are the only legal heirs of the deceased Narasinghan. On appeal, the lower appellate court modified the same by holding that besides the plaintiffs the second defendant would also be a legal heir as he is a legitimate son of deceased Narasinghan by virtue of the provisions of Sec.16 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 as amended. Defendants 1 and 2 are aggrieved of the grant of decree in favour of the plaintiffs and they have preferred this appeal. There is no memorandum of cross objections at the instance of the plaintiffs.

3. The question whether the first plaintiff is the legally wedded wife of deceased Narasinghan is a question of fact. The courts below have considered the entire evidence on record and come to the conclusion that the first plaintiff was married to deceased Narasinghan somewhere in 1943 and she was a properly wedded wife. It is also found on facts that the second plaintiff and the 8th defendant are children born to the first plaintiff and Narasinghan. The findings of the courts below are attacked by learned counsel for the appellants on this ground. According to him the evidence given by the witnesses examined by the plaintiffs is wholly discrepant in material particulars and no reliance could have been placed by the courts of fact on such evidence. It is submitted that according to the first plaintiff as P.W.1 she was married about 47 years prior to her deposition while according to P.W.2 she was married thirty years prior to his deposition. It is submitted that according to P.W.3 the marriage took place 40 years prior to his evidence and according to P.W.7 the marriage took place in 1943. No doubt there is discrepancy with regard to the year of the marriage. But that has been taken note of by both the courts below. When the matter is spoken to by witnesses after more than three decades it is quite natural that they are not in a position to give the date or year correctly. The witnesses are not highly educated so as to remember it precisely. Their natural deficiencies have been taken into account by the courts below and it is found that the first plaintiff was married to deceased Narasinghan somewhere in 1943. One important circumstance is that P.Ws.2 and 3 are the brothers of deceased Narasinghan and they have given evidence in support of the plaintiffs' case. That evidence cannot certainly be ignored by Courts. The evidence of P.W.7 is also taken into account properly by the courts below. I do not find any infirmity in the discussion of the evidence by the courts below. Ex.A-8 is a copy of the invitation issued for the marriage of the eighth defendant. That describes the eighth defendant as the daughter of Narasinghan. The marriage took place in 1966. The postal seals found on Ex.A-8 show that it was a genuine invitation posted in 1966 to the addressee and the courts below have rightly placed reliance on the same. Taking an overall picture of the entire evidence it is very clear that the findings of the courts below are unassailable on this aspect of the matter. There is no warrant for interfering with the same.

4. Coming to the marriage of the first defendant it is her case that she got married three days before the death of Mahatma Gandhi, i.e., she got married in the beginning of 1948. Reliance is placed upon the oral evidence adduced by the first defendant herself and her son, the second defendant. According to the evidence of the second defendant as D.W.1 the marriage took place in the year 1949. According to him he heard from his mother that the marriage took place in 1949. The evidence adduced by the defendants has been fully considered by the Courts below. There is no evidence worthy of acceptance to hold that the first defendant was married to Narasinghan in 1948 as contended by her. Nothing can be inferred from the date of birth of the second defendant in favour of the defendants' contention. On the other hand, it is seen from the records that the first defendant must have been born somewhere in 1939. In fact, the date of birth of the first defendant is clearly given by Narasinghan himself in Ex.B-13, in the nomination forms signed by him. According to Ex.B-13 the first defendant was born on 7.3.1939. The second defendant was born on 10.11.1962. The first defendant could not have been married at the age of nine years in 1948. Her version that she got children even from 1949 onwards cannot be accepted as she would have been hardly ten years' old at that time. Hence the version put forward by the defendants has been rightly disbelieved by the courts below. There is no justification for interference with the same.

5. It is vehemently contended by learned counsel for the appellants/defendants 1 and 2 that the nominations being in favour of defendants 1 and 2 the plaintiffs cannot claim any right to the service benefits. According to him, the provisions of the Provident Fund Act and the Rules framed thereunder are peculiar and they exclude the normal rules of succession. His contention is that the rulings relating to nomination in insurance policies and nomination with regard to other funds will not apply to a case of nomination with reference to provident fund. He referred to a number of judgments to support his contention. I find it wholly unnecessary in this case to decide this question as there is nothing on record to show that any nomination was made by deceased Narasinghan in favour of defendants 1 and 2 or anybody else with regard to his provident fund. Ex.A-12 which is equivalent to Ex.B-13 shows that there was no nomination with regard to the provident fund. As deceased Narasinghan was due to retire on 30.6.1985 his pension papers were prepared and forwarded to the concerned authorities. They included the nomination forms also. While making the nomination with reference to family pension and gratuity the deceased Narasinghan did not make any nomination for provident fund or family benefit fund. A letter written by the Assistant Director (Agriculture), Seed Centre, who is the third defendant in the suit, to the Joint Director, who is the fourth defendant, on 27.10.1984 under Reference No.A/8529/84 shows clearly that there was no nomination whatever with regard to the provident fund. In the absence of any evidence on record to show that the deceased made a nomination with reference to provident fund it is unnecessary for me to decide the question of law argued at some length by learned counsel for the appellants-defendants.

6. With regard to the family pension the deceased nominated the first defendant alone as the person entitled to receive the same. With regard to the gratuity he made two nominations. In the first he nominated the first defendant only and in the second nomination he nominated the first and second defendants, with a direction that each shall be paid half thereof.

7. As regards the first defendant the nomination is clearly invalid as she is not a member of the family of the deceased Narasinghan. As she is not the legally wedded wife of the deceased, she cannot claim to be a member of the family.

8. The Tamil Nadu Pension Rules define a family as follows: (Vide Rule 45(5)):

"45(5) for the purposes of this rule and rules 46, 47 and 48 'family', in relation to a Government servant means:

(i) wife or wives, including judicially separated wife or wives in the case of a male government servant;

(ii) husband, including judicially separated husband, in the case of female Government servant.

(iii) sons including step sons and adopted sons.

(iv) to (xi) xxxxxxxxxxxx."

Rule 46 is to the effect that the gratuity payable under Rule 45, shall be paid to the person or persons on whom the right to receive the gratuity is conferred by means of a nomination under Rule 48. Rule 48 provides that the Government servant shall make a nomination in Form 1 or Form 2, as may be as appropriate in the circumstances of the case conferring on one or more persons the right to receive the death-cum-retirement gratuity payable under Rule 45. The proviso to the rule is to the effect that the nomination shall not be in favour of any person or persons other than the members of his family and such nomination shall be in the order laid down in sub-sec.(5) of Rule 45. Hence the nomination made by deceased Narasinghan with regard to his family pension and death-cum-retirement gratuity are not valid as they are not in accordance with Rules 45 and 48 of the Tamil Nadu Pension Rules.

9. In so far as pension is concerned, the only nominee is the first defendant. She not being a member of the family as defined under Rule 45(5) of the Tamil Nadu Pension Rules, the nomination is invalid.

10. With regard to the death-cum-retirement gratuity, the nomination is invalid because it is not in the order specified in Rule 45(5). It takes in the first defendant who is not the legally wedded wife of the second defendant. The first entry relates to the wife; the second to the husband and the third entry relates to the sons. In this case, the first plaintiff is the legally wedded wife of the deceased Narasinghan. So long as she is alive, there cannot be any nomination in favour of the second defendant, who is a son. Hence the nominations made by the deceased in favour of the first and second defendants are not valid in law and they cannot be acted upon. Moreover, even before the nomination was finalised by sending the same to the appropriate authority Narasinghan died on account of the accident and the process was not complete. In the circumstances defendants 1 and 2 cannot make any claim on the footing of the nominations made by deceased Narasinghan.

11. It, therefore, follows that the first plaintiff is the legally wedded wife of deceased Narasinghan and the second plaintiff and 8th defendant are their legitimate children.

12. Though it could be contended that the second defendant is not a legitimate son of the deceased because of the interpretation placed on Sec.16 of the Hindu Marriage Act by a Division Bench of this Court in Valliammal v. Kamalambal, (1990)1 L.W. 461, the plaintiffs not having filed any memorandum of cross objections, have allowed the decree granted by the lower appellate Court to become final. Hence the second defendant's right to claim a share of the service benefits payable to the deceased has to be upheld.

13. Consequently, the judgment and decree passed by the District Court, Cuddalore, in A.S.No.18 of 1988 are confirmed. The second appeal fails and it is dismissed. There will be no order as to costs.

Civil Miscellaneous Appeal No.68 of 1991: This appeal arises out of an application for payment of the compensation amount awarded in M.A.C.T.O.P.No.796 of 1984 by the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal, Cuddalore, in favour of the legal heirs of deceased Narasinghan, who died on account of the accident. The award was passed on 15.12.1986. The dispute is between the appellants on the one hand and respondents 3 and 4 on the other. The Tribunal directed the amount to be deposited in court and held that the legal heirs of late Narasinghan were entitled to withdraw the same from the court by producing the judgment in the civil case after final adjudication of the suit. After the disposal of the civil case by the trial court in O.S.No.1258 of 1984 and the confirmation of the decree by the District Court in A.S.No.18 of 1988, the first appellant filed I.A.No.87 of 1990 for payment out of the amount. The tribunal dismissed the application holding that the matter was pending in second appeal. Aggrieved by the said order, the first appellant has preferred this appeal.

15. During the pendency of the appeal the first appellant died and her daughter is brought on record as her legal representative. She has claimed that the share due to the first appellant has been bequeathed to her by the Will executed by the first appellant. The Will is not disputed by the other daughter of the first appellant, viz., Poongothai who was the eighth defendant in the civil suit, O.S.No.1258 of 1984. Hence it has to be held that the second appellant, viz., Mangai, is entitled not only to her share but also to the share of her mother, deceased first appellant.

16. To-day, I have disposed of S.A.No.1324 of 1989 holding that the legal heirs of Narasinghan are, (1) Kiliambal, (2) Mangai, (3) Poongothai, and (4) Murugan. Kiliyambal is the first appellant in this civil miscellaneous appeal. Mangai is the second appellant. She is entitled to a one-half share. Poongothai is not a party to this appeal. She is entitled to one-fourth share. She was a party to the civil suit. The other one-fourth share belongs to the fourth respondent Murugan. The Tribunal shall pay half of the amount to the second appellant; one-fourth to the fourth respondent Murugan and another one-fourth to Poongothai, who is not a party to this appeal. It is open to Poongothai to apply to the Tribunal, if so advised, for payment of the said one-fourth share. This appeal is allowed accordingly with the above directions. No costs.

B.S. ----

Second appeal dismissed and civil miscellaneous appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Mishra and Janarthanam, JJ.

O.S.A.No.135 of 1991 5th August, 1991.

Chief Engineer Constructions, Works Branch, Southern Railway and another ...Appellants
v.

M/s.Muthuswamy ...Respondent.

Judicial order - Must be a speaking order.

No judicial order can be justified unless it is a speaking order. It is not stated in the impugned order what was the dispute for arbitration and why the plaintiff wanted the appointment of arbitrator and reference and why the defendant objected to the appointment of the arbitrator or the reference of the dispute to arbitration. It is well settled that a judicial order must advert to the facts and issues and give a specific finding before the operative order is passed. For that reason alone, the impugned order has to be set aside and remitted to the trial court.

[Para 3]

V.R.Gopalan, for Appellants.

B.T.Seshadri, for Respondent.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- Mr.B.T.Seshadri appears on behalf of the plaintiff/respondent. It is agreed between the parties that the entire matter, that is to say, the appeal itself can be disposed of at the admission stage itself. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, we are of the opinion that it is in the interests of all concerned that the appeal itself is finally disposed of at this stage.

2. The impugned order reads as follows:

"I have heard Mr.B.T.Seshadri on behalf of the contractor and Mr.V.R.Gopalan on behalf of the Railways. I have also perused the affidavit filed in support of the suit and the counter statement filed on behalf of the Railways.

The General Manager, Southern Railway, will follow the procedure in accordance with Clause 63(3)(ii) and Clause 63(3)(b) of the General Conditions of Contract and appoint two Arbitrators to decide the dispute and differences that have arisen between the contractor and the Southern Railway. All the disputes that have already been raised by both parties in the affidavit filed in support of the suit and also in the counter affidavit will be decided by the two arbitrators. The arbitrators so appointed shall dispose of the matter and pass the Award within four months from the date of entering upon the reference.

The procedure with regard to the appointment of two arbitrators shall be completed within six weeks from this date."

Followed by the formal decretal order in these words:

"(1) That the General Manager, Southern Railway the 2nd defendant herein to follow the procedure in accordance with Clause 63(3)(ii) and Clause 63(3)(b) of the General Conditions of the Contract and appoint two Arbitrators to decide the dispute and differences that had arisen between the contractor and the Railway and also to decide all the disputes that had already been raised by both parties in the affidavit, and also in the counter affidavit filed herein:

(2) that the said Arbitrators appointed herein shall dispose of the matter and pass the Award within four months from the date of entering upon the reference and

(3) That the procedure with regard to the appointment of the Arbitrators as mentioned in Clause (1) supra shall be completed within six weeks from this date, i.e., on or before 3.5.1991."

3. It is not known why the learned single Judge found that the General Manager, Southern Railway, was required to follow the procedure in accordance with Clause 63(3)(ii) and Clause 63(3)(b) of the General Conditions of Contract and appoint two Arbitrators to decide the dispute and differences that have arisen between the contractor and the Southern Railway, when it had been contested before him on behalf of the appellants/Railways that no such arbitration was possible with respect to the dispute and that the dispute falls beyond the agreement. No judicial order can be justified unless it is a speaking order. It is not stated anywhere in the impugned order what was the dispute for arbitration and why the plaintiff wanted the appointment of arbitrator and reference and why the appellants/Railways objected to the appointment of the arbitrator or reference of the dispute to arbitrator. It appears that correct position of law in this regard was not brought to the notice of the learned single Judge. It is well settled that a judicial order must advert to the facts and issues and give a specific finding before the operative order is passed. For the said reason alone, the impugned order has to be set aside and remitted to the trial court.

4. Accordingly, we allow the appeal, set aside the impugned order and remit the whole matter to the trial Court for a rehearing and disposal in accordance with law. There will be no order as to costs.

V.K.

Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

A.A.O.Nos.52 and 53 of 1992 17th February, 1992.

Rukmani Devi Arundale Trust represented by its Secretary C.T.Nachiappan, Madras ...Appellant

S.Easwaran

...Respondent.

Principal and agent - Agent in management of property of principal effecting improvements to same - Termination of agency - If can be restrained from interfering with possession of principal before his dues are paid.

Whatever possession the agent had prior to the termination of agency, was only on behalf of the principal. Even assuming that the agent is entitled to be reimbursed for the amount spent by him for reclaiming or improving the suit property or for planting trees, the only course open to him is to make claims against the principal and pray for a decree with regard to the same. Even assuming that the agent is entitled to a huge sum from the principal, the principal cannot be prevented from appointing his own agency to take care of the property. In such a case the principal is entitled to an injunction restraining the agent from interfering with the possession of the principal as the agency has been terminated. [Paras 2 and 3]

Cases referred to:

Southern Roadways Ltd. Madurai v. S.M.Krishnan, (1989) 3 S.C.C. 603. [Para 3]

- MLJ 6

Narayani Amma v. Bhaskaran Pillai, A.I.R. 1969 Ker. 214. [Para 3]

Appeal against the Order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Thenkasi, dated 6.8.1991 and made in I.A.Nos.9 and 94 of 1991 in O.S.No.2 of 1991 respectively.

M.S.Subramanian, for Appellant.

P.Viswanathan, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- These two appeals arise out of interlocutory applications filed by the appellant for an injunction, and by the respondent for vacating the interim injunction. The appellant is indisputably the owner of the property in question. The appellant-trust appointed the respondent as an agent for taking care of its properties under a letter dated 18.10.1984 marked as Ex.P-1 in the case. The letter reads as follows:

"Be it known that I, hereby, authorise on behalf of the Rukmani Devi Arundale Trust, from this day, the 18th day of October, 1984, Mr.S.Easwaran, son of Sri E.Subramony, No.85, Amman Sannadhi Street, Shencottah to be incharge as representative of the Trust and take such action he deems necessary to furtherance of the Trust lands comprised in Survey Nos.511/1, 55/2 and 511/3 aggregating to 6.73 acres of Courtallam Revenue Village, Tenkasi Taluk of Tirunelveli District."

It is not necessary to refer to other documents. But suffice it to point out that the appellant terminated the agency by its letter dated 4.5.1990 and called upon the respondent to render accounts. The suit has been filed for rendition of accounts and for an injunction restraining the respondent from interfering with the management of the suit property by the plaintiff. The appellant filed I.A.No.9 of 1991 for an injunction pending suit and the court below granted an order of interim injunction. As against that, the respondent filed I.A.No.94 of 1991 to vacate the interim injunction. The contention of the respondent is that the agency is coupled with interest and it cannot be allowed to be cancelled before the petitioner reimburses the respondent for the heavy expenditure incurred by him. According to the respondent he reclaimed the property, improved it and planted several trees. The trial court has accepted the case of the respondent and vacated the interim injunction partially taking a view that the agency cannot be terminated at this stage. The trial court has also observed that if the respondent is prevented from entering into possession, the trees planted already will wither out as there would be none to take care of the same. The trial Court granted only an injunction restraining the respondent from cutting or removing the trees from the suit property. Aggrieved thereby, the plaintiff has preferred these two appeals.

2. Even the facts stated above are sufficient to show that the trial court is in error in vacating the interim injunction restraining the respondent from interfering with the possession of the appellant.

Whatever possession, the respondent had, prior to the termination of agency, was only on behalf of the appellant, and it cannot be contended by the respondent that he was in exclusive possession, so as to exclude even the owner thereof, who is the principal. Even assuming that the respondent is entitled to be reimbursed for the amount spent by him, for reclaiming or improving the suit property or for planting the trees, the only course open to him is, to make claims against the appellant and pray for a decree with regard to the same. So far the respondent has not filed any counter claim or written statement in the suit. Even assuming that the respondent is entitled to huge amount from the plaintiff, by way of compensation, the plaintiff cannot be prevented from appointing its own agency to take care of the property. It is not the case of the respondent that the plaintiff will not be in a position to pay the amount which may be claimed by the respondent, and therefore, the plaintiff should not be allowed to reimburse himself from and out of the income from the suit property.

3. It has been held in Southern Roadways Ltd. Madurai v. S.M. Krishnan, (1989) 3 S.C.C. 603, that a principal has every right to carry on business as usual after the removal of the agent and that the possession of the agent of the premises in question is only that on behalf of the principal. It has been pointed out that principal was never out of possession. In that case, the defendant was carrying on business as an agent of the principal who was entitled to the business premises. The plaintiff had been granted an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with the possession of the principal as the agency had been terminated. The relevant observation of the Supreme Court is as follows:

"The crux of the matter is that an agent holds the principal's property only on behalf of the principal. He acquires no interest for himself in such property. He cannot deny principal's title to property. Nor can he convert it into any other kind or use. His possession is the possession of the principal for all purposes. As the Kerala High Court in Narayani Amma v. Bhaskaran Pillai, A.I.R. 1969 Ker. 214, said

"The agent has no possession of his own. What is called a caretaker's possession is the possession of the principal."

Again in paragraph 22, it is observed as follows:

"In this case, the respondent's possession of the suit premises was on behalf of the company and not on his own right. It is, therefore, unnecessary for the company to file a suit for recovery of possession. The respondent has no right to remain in possession of the suit premises after termination of his agency. He has also no right to interfere with the company's business. The case, therefore, deserves the grant of temporary injunction. The learned single Judge of the High Court in our judgment was justified in issuing the injunction. The Division Bench of the High Court was clearly in error in vacating it."

4. In view of the clear ruling of the Supreme Court, the order of the court below deserves to be set aside in so far as it is against the appellant. Both the appeals are allowed. There will be an order of injunction restraining the respondent from interfering with the possession of the appellant of the suit property till the disposal of the suit. There will be no order as to costs.

V.K.

Appeals allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Bellie, J.

A.S.No.442 of 1980

15th March, 1991.

The Church of Christ King, Aranthangi, represented by Father Paul Pinto, Parish and Power of Attorney Agent

...Appellant

v.

Mohammed Muthaliff Rowther ...Respondent.

Tamil Nadu Inam Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (XXVI of 1963), Sec.15(4) and (5) - Scope - Lessee of inam land putting up structure thereon before notified date - Becomes owner of both building and site from notified date.

It is clear from a reading of sub-sec.(4) of Sec.15 of the Tamil Nadu Inam Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act, 1963, that a building owned by a person immediately before the notified date shall vest in that person. Then as per sub-sec.(5) building includes the site on which the superstructure stands and any adjacent premises occupied as an appurtenance thereto. Therefore, the owner of the building in whom the building vests under Sec.15(4) will also be the owner of the site as well as the land appurtenant thereto. It is therefore manifest that the tenant who owned the building before the notified date becomes the owner of both the building as well as the site with the appurtenant land. [Para 5]

Cases referred to:

Somasundaram Pillai v. Dorairajan, (1979)1 M.L.J. 443. [Para 6]

KVellappa Gounder and Sons by partner KVellappa Gounder v. K.S. Thirugnanasambandam Chettiar, 93 L.W. 707. [Para 6]

G.Subramaniam, Senior Counsel, for Appellant.

G.Nagarajan, for Respondent.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT:- The plaintiff church is the appellant. The suit for declaration of title, consequential injunction and for mandatory injunction for removal of superstructure in the suit property has been dismissed.

2. As the learned trial Judge has pointed out most of the facts in the case are admitted ones. The suit property is 29 cents of land in Survey No.15/1 in Aranthangi Thottam village. Originally it belonged to an independent landholder of the village, Sulochanambalpuram Chathiram. This land and other lands of the land-holder was in the management of the District Board. On 7.9.1929 the District Board has given a lease of the said lands in favour of the plaintiff church. The plaintiff church has been periodically leasing out the lands to various tenants. Thus on 9.2.1946 the plaintiff church leased out a portion of the suit property to Krishnaswami Thevar under Ex.A-5 and then on 1.1.1962 it executed a lease deed in respect of another portion in favour of one Sathan under Ex.A-7. Then on 8.8.1962 the remaining portion of the property was leased out in favour of Meiyappa Konar under Ex.A-8. It appears Krishnaswami Thevar and Sathan have assigned their rights in favour of Velusamy and Natarajan. Then Meiyappa Konar, Veluswamy and Natarajan have subsequently under Exs.A-27, dated 12.3.1966, A-28, dated 25.4.1966, A-29, dated 26.4.1966, sold the superstructure put up by them to the defendant. In the meanwhile the village was notified on 9.4.1965 under Act 26 of 1963. Settlement proceedings were taken and the Assistant Settlement Officer granted patta in favour of the plaintiff in respect of both the superstructure and the site. On appeal by the defendant the Settlement Officer dismissed the appeal. But in the further appeal to the Director of Settlements, he holding that the superstructure belongs to the defendant, and the site viz., 29 cents belongs to the plaintiff church, issued joint patta. The revision preferred before the Commissioner of Land Revenue was dismissed as time barred, but however the Commissioner observed that it is open to the parties to establish their rights in the civil court. Therefore the suit.

3. The Church pleaded that both the site and the superstructure belong to the Church, and on the other hand the defendant contended inter alia that he or his predecessors-in-title having put up the superstructure, under the provisions of the Act 26 of 1963, he is entitled to both the superstructure and the site.

4. The trial court framed as many as 9 issues and answering all the issues, ultimately dismissed the suit. The main finding of the trial court is that the defendant or his predecessor-in-title having put up the superstructure, under Secs.15(4) and 15(5) of Act 26 of 1963, he will be entitled to both the superstructure and the site on which it stands and therefore the suit property belongs to the defendant. It is this finding alone which is now challenged in this appeal and therefore it is not necessary to go into the other points that were decided by the learned trial Judge.

5. Now, admittedly the superstructure has been put up either by the defendant or his predecessor-in-title before Act 26 of 1963 was notified. Now, Sec.15 of the Act viz., Tamil Nadu Inam Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act 26 of 1963, reads as follows:-

"15. Vesting of buildings situated in Inam estates:- (1) Every building situated within the limit is of an inam estate, which immediately before the notified date, belonged to any land-holder thereof and was then being used by him as an office in connection with its administration and for no other purpose, shall vest in the Government, free of all encumbrances, with effect on and from the notified date.

(2) Every building so situated which, immediately before the notified date belonged to any such landholder and the whole or principal part thereof was then in the occupation of any religious, educational or charitable institution shall also vest in the Government, free of all encumbrances, with effect on and from the notified date:

Provided that when such institution ceases to exist, the building shall revert to such landholder or if he is dead, to his heirs or legal representatives.

(3) where any building so situated--

(a) which belonged to any such land-holder on the 1st day of July, 1960; and

(b)(i) which on that date was being used by him as an office in connection with the administration of the inam estate, and for no other purpose, or

(ii) the whole or principal part whereof was on that date in the occupation of any religious, educational or charitable institution, has, after the 1st day of July, 1960 and before the notified date, been sold or made a gift of by the landholder or ceased to be used by him as an office as aforesaid, or ceased to be in the occupation of such institution, the value of the building shall be assessed by the Tribunal in such manner as may be prescribed; and the Tribunal shall pay to the Government such value cited in its office under sub-sec.(1) of Sec.36.

(4) Every building other than a building referred to in sub-secs.(1), (2) and (3) shall with effect on and from the notified date, vest in the person who owned it immediately before that date; but the Government shall be entitled, for each fasli year commencing with the fasli year in which the inam estate is notified.

(i) in every case to levy the appropriate assessment thereon; and

(ii) in the case of a building which vests in a person other than a land-holder, also to the payments which such person was liable immediately before the notified date to make any land-holder in respect thereof, whether periodically or not and whether by way of rent or otherwise, in so far as such payments may accrue due on or after the notified date.

(5) In this section, "building" includes the site on which it stands and any adjacent premises occupied as an appurtenance thereto.

(6)"

It is clear from a reading of sub-sec.(4) of Sec.15 that a building owned by a person immediately before the notified date shall vest in that person. Then as per sub-sec.(5) building includes the site on which the superstructure stands and any adjacent premises occupied as an appurtenance thereto. Therefore, the owner of the building in whom the building vests under Sec.15(4) will also be the owner of the site as well as the land appurtenant thereto. It is therefore manifest that the tenant who owned the building before the notified date becomes the owner of both the building as well as the site with the appurtenant land.

6. From this it can be easily concluded that the suit land of 29 cents belongs to the defendant as per the provisions of the Act. The learned trial Judge has also relied on Somasundaram Pillai v. Dorairaj, (1979) 1 M.L.J. 443, in which case the facts are similar to the present case, and it has been held clearly therein that as per sub-sec.(4) of Sec.15 the person who is owning the building before the notified date will get that building vested in him, and in view of the definition of the building given in sub-sec.(5) he will also be entitled to the site of that building and also the appurtenant land thereto. That decision has been followed in a subsequent decision in K.Vellappa Gounder and Sons by partner K.Vellappa Gounder v. K.S.Thirugnanasambandam Chettiar and others, 93 L.W. 707. Thus I find no merit in the appeal. Accordingly the judgment and decree of the trial court are confirmed and the appeal is dismissed. There will be no order as to costs.

V.K. ---- Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Janarthanam, J.

C.R.P.No.285 of 1992 19th February, 1992.

N.Chellammal and others ...Petitioners
v.
R.Gangammal ...Respondent.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908). Sec.10 - Stay of suits - Matter in issue in two suits not similar - Parties in the suits different - Stay of further proceedings in the earlier suit, if can be ordered.

Held on facts: The provisions of Sec.10, C.P.C. can by no stretch of imagination, be stated to be attracted for stay of all further proceedings in the earlier suit. The scanning of the nature of the reliefs prayed for in both the suits would point out that the matter in issue is not similar. This apart, the parties in both the suits are different. In such state of affairs, there is no plausibility of any conflicting decisions being arrived at by both the courts regarding the amount due to the plaintiff in the earlier suit from out of the estate available in the hands of the legal representatives of the deceased. The grant or otherwise of the decree in the earlier suit will be taken due note of in the latter suit in the administration of the estate of the deceased. There is no necessity at all for stay of all further proceedings in the earlier suit and therefore the impugned order of the court below refusing to grant stay cannot at all be stated to be not sustainable in law. [Para 9]

Petition under Sec.115 of Act V of 1908 praying the High Court, to revise the order of the court of the Subordinate Judge, Srivilliputhur, dated 13.12.1992 and made in I.A.No.787 of 1989 in O.S.No.201 of 1988.

P.Peppin Fernando, for Petitioners.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- One Nalliah was the sole proprietor of Balasubramanian Oil and Ginning Factory, Dindigul. He had been purchasing cotton seeds for his business from various traders through M/s.Murugesan and Company (in short 'the firm') a registered partnership firm. One S.Murugesan, V.R.Nagarathina, S.M.Mathiaselvam and R.N.Balu are stated to be the partners of the said firm.

2. There was one proprietrix concern going by name-Prakash Cotton traders, Rajapalayam, and one R.Gangammal is its sole proprietrix. She had been effecting sales of cottonseeds on credit to the said Nalliah. Certain amounts due to her by the said Nalliah had been paid in time on demand emerging therefor.

3. In the meantime, the said Nalliah died on 25.2.1988, leaving behind him his wife N.Chellammal, son N.Balasubramanian, and four daughters, namely, N.Vijayalakshmi, minor Vijayarani, minor Kalaiselvi and minor Karpagavalli. Subsequent to the death of the said Nalliah, his wife son and four daughters succeeded to his estate.

4. As repeated demands evoked no responses, the said R.Gangammal, for the amount due to her by the said Nalliah instituted the suit in O.S.No.201 of 1988 on the file of Sub Court, Srivilliputhur impleading the legal representatives of the said deceased Nalliah, as defendants 1 to 6, besides impleading the firm and its partners as defendants 7 to 11, for the amount due, namely, Rs.1,26,576.97.

5. One other creditor of the said Nalliah namely, N.Ramu Gounder, for himself and on behalf of other creditors, filed the suit in O.S.No.429 of 1989 on the file of Sub Court, Dindigul, impleading the legal representatives of the said Nalliah and his certain other creditors including Gangammal, the plaintiff in the earlier suit, praying for the relief of administration of the estate of the deceased Nalliah, in the hands of the legal representatives of the deceased, by appointment of an Administrator and for taking of accounts.

6. The legal representatives of the deceased Nalliah filed I.A.No.787 of 1989 in the earlier suit, under Secs.10 and 151, C.P.C., praying for stay of the said suit till the disposal of the latter suit.

7. Strong and stout opposition emerged from the other side to such an application.

8. Learned Subordinate Judge on consideration of the materials placed before him and after hearing the arguments of the respective learned counsel for the parties, dismissed the said application, giving rise to the present revision petition, by the aggrieved legal representatives of the deceased Nalliah.

9. Even, at the outset, I may point out that there are no merits for the entertainment of the civil revision petition, inasmuch as the provisions of Sec.10, C.P.C. can by no stretch of imagination, be stated to be attracted for stay of all further proceedings in the earlier suit. The scanning of the nature of the reliefs prayed for, in both the suits, would point out that the matter in issue is not similar. This apart the parties in both the suits are different. In such state of affairs, there is no plausibility of any conflicting decisions being arrived at by both the courts regarding the amount due to the plaintiff in the earlier suit from out of the estate available, in the hands of the legal representatives of the deceased Nalliah. The grant or otherwise of the decree of the earlier suit will be taken due note of in the earlier suit will be taken due note of in the latter suit in the administration of the estate of the deceased. In the absence of the applicability of the provisions of Sec.151, C.P.C., in this view of the matter, there is no necessity at all for stay of all further proceedings in the earlier suit and therefore, it is that the impugned order of the court below refusing to grant stay cannot at all be stated to be not sustainable in law.

10. As such, the civil revision petition deserves to be dismissed even at the admission stage and is accordingly dismissed.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Mishra and Janarthanam, JJ.

L.P.A.No.79 of 1991 22nd July, 1991.

Dhanalakshmi Ammal ...Appellant
v.
Perle D. Gonzaga and others ...Respondents.

(A) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.11 - Preliminary decree for partition passed and decree given to plaintiff alone as co-owner - Such decree does not determine number of items of properties - Items of properties left out can be subject of partition in the course of final decree or in separate suit - Purchaser from one co-owner cannot be non suited on ground that in previous suit, preliminary decree has been granted in favour of another purchaser from another co-owner.

(B) Adverse possession - Purchaser from one co-owner entitled only to equity and not to possession - He cannot claim title by adverse possession - His remedy is to ask for partition.

One Joseph D. Gonzaga, was the owner of the properties set out in Schedule A in the plaint. In 1914 he married one V and had five children through her. Defendants 1 and 2 alone of those children are alive. In 1927, he married another woman and begot the third defendant through her. He died on 15.10.1956. Defendants 1 to 3 succeeded to his properties as tenants in common with equal rights. The first defendant sold items 1 to 4 in Schedule A on 7.2.1959 to the plaintiff. On 6.6.1962, the third defendant executed a sale deed in respect of the same property in favour of on G, 'G' filed a suit O.S.No.229 of 1969 on the file of the District Munsif, Cuddalore for declaration of the title to the said properties. It was dismissed. His appeal A.S.No.138 of 1965 on the file of the Subordinate Judge Cuddalore was also dismissed. He filed S.A.No.1431 of 1973 in the High Court. It was held that G would be entitled to 1/3 share in the properties and therefore a decree for partition and separate possession was granted to him. He died on 6.7.1976. Defendants 4 and 5 to 11 are his wife and children. The twelfth defendant purchased items 5 and 6 in Schedule A given the third defendant. The thirteenth defendant purchased items 7 and 8 in Schedule A from the third defendant. The plaintiff filed a suit in O.S.No.347 of 1977 on the file of the Sub Court, Cuddalore. The trial court held that by virtue of the decision in S.A.No.1431 of 1973, the suit was barred by res judicata. It also held that the 12th defendant had perfected his title by adverse possession. In appeal, a learned single Judge held that the plaintiff could not be allotted items 1 to 4 in Schedule A and that the 13th defendant had acquired title by adverse possession. In Letters Patent Appeal, Held:- When a preliminary decree has been passed for partition and the decree has been given not to the defendants but to the plaintiff (in the said suit) alone, the court in that case would not adjudicate as to the validity of the sale deed of the plaintiff in the instant suit. The only issue involved was whether the plaintiff in the said suit was entitled to the properties conveyed by the third son of Joseph to him or not. He was given a preliminary decree for partition and separate possession of his one-third share in the suit properties. It is well settled that a preliminary decree only declares the shares of the parties and determines the extent of the right of the persons who are co-owners of property. It does not finally determine the number of items of properties. Such items of the properties may be found subsequently which were not included in the hotch-pot of the family and thus were subjected to actual partition. Such properties which were left out can always be a subject of partition either in course of the final decree if at all the partition is between the parties or in a separate suit if a decree for partition is granted to the plaintiff only and other members are left out as co-owners of the property. In the instant case the plaintiff has been able to show that the properties belonged to Joseph and thus belonged to the sons of Joseph. She has asked for the right which has been created in her favour by virtue of the sale deed if there is no dispute, as to the validity of the sale deed or there is a dispute the sale deed is found to be valid. It will be improper in such a situation to defeat the suit of the plaintiff on the ground that in the previous suit instituted by Govindarajulu, a preliminary decree has been granted in his favour. [Paras 9 and 10]

Unless it is shown that someone exercised possession openly and hostile to the interests of those who are entitled to the possession of the property, a purchaser from a co-owner will be entitled to only the equity and not to possession. He shall have to ask for partition and only when such partition decree is granted that he would be entitled to separate possession. [Para 11]

Cases referred to:

Morusu Lakshmamamma v. Bella Maocera, A.I.R. 1982 NOC. 259. [Para 9]

Visalakshi Ammal v. Narayanaswami Naidu, (1977) 2 M.L.J. 88. [Para 7]

V.Raghavachari, for Appellant.

V.Chandrakanth, for Respondents.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- This appeal is being disposed of after notice of motion.

2. Plaintiff in O.S.No.347 of 1977, Subordinate Judge's Court, Cuddalore, has preferred this appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent of this Court against the judgment and decree in A.S.No.93 of 1980 of a learned single Judge of this Court.

3. The case in the plaint in short is as follows: The properties set out in 'A' schedule in the plaint were the absolute properties of one Joseph D.Gonzaga. He married one Viyakula Mary alias Arumal Kannu in or about the year 1914. Through her Joseph had five children of whom defendants 1 and 2 alone are alive. He, however, married another woman by name Roger in or about the year 1927. Through her he begot the third defendant. He died on 15.10.1956. The three defendants succeeded to the 'A' schedule properties left by him as tenants in common with equal rights. The first defendant, however, sold under a registered sale deed items 1 to 4 in 'A' Schedule (separately described as 'B' schedule to the plaint) on 7.2.1959 for a consideration of Rs.1,000 to the plaintiff. On 6.6.1962, however, third defendant executed a sale deed in respect of the same property in favour of one Govindarayulu for an apparent consideration of Rs.2,000. Govindarayulu filed a suit being O.S.No.229 of 1963 on the file of the District Munsif's Court, Cuddalore, for declaration of his title to the said properties and also for possession against the plaintiff and the second defendant in the present suit. That suit was dismissed in the trial court on the finding that the third defendant had no title to convey to Govindarayulu. Govindarayulu filed an appeal in A.S.No.138 of 1965 on the file of the Subordinate Judge's Court, Cuddalore. That appeal was also dismissed. Govindarayulu filed a second appeal being S.A.No.1431 of 1973. It was held in that appeal, however that the plaintiff therein will be entitled to a one-third share in the properties and therefore, a decree for partition and separate possession was granted on 6.7.1976. Govindarayulu died. Fourth defendant and defendants 5 to 11 are his wife and children. Twelfth defendant, who had purchased items 5 and 6 in 'A' Schedule from the third defendant under a sale deed dated 5.11.1958 for a sum of Rs.900 and 13th defendant, who had purchased items 7 and 8 in 'A' Schedule from the third defendant under Registered sale deed dated 17.2.1960 for a sum of Rs.700 have also been impleaded as party-defendants in the suit for, according to the plaintiff, they by virtue of their sale deeds are entitled to the extent of the share of their vendor. Praying in the suit that sale in excess of the shares of the individual members of the family who were entitled to the extent of one-third, is invalid and that under the law in equity, the plaintiff having purchased items 1 to 4 in 'A' schedule properties is entitled in a general partition of all the co-sharers, to ask for allotment of 'B' schedule properties, the plaintiff filed the suit for partition.

4. Defendants 1, 3, 5 and 12 remained ex parte. The second defendant in the written statement contended inter alia that the suit is barred by res judicata in view of the decision in S.A.No.1431 of 1973. Defendants 4 and 6 to 11, however, contended that in respect of 'B' schedule properties already a preliminary decree has been passed in the second appeal and the final decree proceedings have been initiated and therefore, the present suit for partition of the properties by the plaintiff is not maintainable. The thirteenth defendant filed a separate written statement, however, claiming exclusive right to suit item No.7 by virtue of purchase from the third defendant for valid consideration and that he had acquired title by adverse possession.

5. The learned trial Judge held that by virtue of the decision in S.A.No.1431 of 1973, the suit is barred by the principles of res judicata and that the plaintiff, when she purchased the 'B' schedule properties under Ex.A-2 sale deed knew that there was other co-owner to the property but in spite of it she purchased and therefore, she has to bear the consequences arising therefrom and hence she cannot claim any larger share than one held by her vendor which alone had passed under the sale deed, by asking for a general partition of the properties including the suit properties and other properties owned by the sons and daughter of Joseph. The trial Court also held that the 12th defendant, who had purchased items 5 and 6 of 'A' schedule properties on 5.11.1958 had perfected title by adverse possession and therefore, there cannot be allotment of shares in these items to the plaintiff by virtue of Ex.A-2 sale deed and that the plaintiff not being a purchaser from a member of a coparcenary Hindu joint family, she cannot ask for general partition of all the properties of the three co-owners, namely, the sons and daughter of Joseph.

6. Learned single Judge has held in agreement with the decree of the trial Court that in view of the decree in S.A.No.1431 of 1973 under which defendants 4 to 11 and 2nd defendant are entitled to 2/3rd share against which the plaintiff cannot have any say, it is not possible to allot the B schedule properties to her and that the 13th defendant, the alienee purchaser, having been in uninterrupted possession for more than 17 years, had acquired title by adverse possession.

7. There cannot be any question to the case pleaded by the defendants that the three sons of Joseph were co-parceners and that the law applied to a Hindu Co-parcenary is not applicable to the properties in dispute. It also cannot be disputed that as co-owners the three sons of Joseph were entitled to equal share and that in the capacity of co-owners they were entitled to transfer their respective shares. The question here, however, is how as a purchaser from one of the co-owners, the plaintiff, would be entitled to get possession of the properties transferred to her. The decision in Visalakshi Ammal v. Narayanaswami Naidu, (1977)2 M.L.J. 88, provides an answer to this question. That is the judgment in the Second Appeal 1431 of 1973. It says,

"....The succession in this case opened on the death of Joseph on 15th October, 1956. On that date, John, the vendor of the plaintiff, Biera, the vendor of the second defendant and the third defendant alone were alive. They would each be entitled to one-third share. Arumaikannu, the widow of Joseph who was alive was only entitled to maintenance out of the income from the property. But since she is dead now, that question also does not arise. Thus John, the vendor of the plaintiff had one-third share in the suit properties which he could have legally conveyed under Ex.A-11, dated 6th June, 1962 to the plaintiff. Thus, though the plaintiff claimed the entirety of the suit properties, he had established his title to one-third of the suit properties. It is well-settled that when the plaintiff claims a larger interest but was able to establish a lesser interest, to the extent he was able to establish his interest, a decree could be granted. The plaintiff is accordingly, given a preliminary decree for partition and separate possession of his one-third share in the suit properties. I may add that in the view that he will be a co-owner of the suit property, the defendants will not be entitled to any improvements even if they had made any such improvements."

The above gives us an idea of the law that has to be applied to a transfer by a co-owner of his share in tenancy in common. The sale deed which Govindarayulu had obtained from the third defendant with respect to items 1 to 4 in 'A' schedule (schedule 'B' properties) was ordered to be confined to the extent of the share of his vendor, that is to say, third defendant in so far as the suit properties in O.S.No.229 of 1963 are concerned. The plaintiff herein, however, who also is a purchaser from one of the co-owners, i.e., first defendant, has sued for a share in the properties held in common by the sons of Joseph or their transferees, alleging that not items 1 to 4 in A schedule but other properties also fell in the common pool of the tenancy in common. According to her, if the sale deed has to be limited to the extent of the share of the vendor, such share has to be determined not only in items 1 to 4 in 'A' schedule but in all the properties held in common with equal rights of the three sons of Joseph.

8. Both the plaintiff in the instant suit, who is a purchaser from the first son of Joseph and Govindarayulu were parties to the suit, O.S.No.229 of 1963. The adjudication as to the shares of the three sons of Joseph and the rights which the purchasers from them may have, has taken place in their presence. Both of them are bound by the adjudication in the said suit and the appeals. But still it has to be decided, whether any principle of res judicata is attracted on the facts of the case to defeat the suit of the plaintiff on the ground that adjudication has already been made in respect of the properties involved in the said suit and shares of the sons of Joseph have already been determined. Res judicata is a rule which is applied to any suit or issue in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially determined in a former suit between the same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title in a competent Court.

9. On somewhat similar facts, however, in Morusu Lakshamma v. Bella Maocra, A.I.R. 1982 NOC. 259, a learned Judge of the Andhra Pradesh High Court has said,

"The preliminary decree in the earlier partition suit against the defendant would not be a bar to the maintainability of the subsequent action by him for partition, where the relief was given only to the plaintiff and where the rights of the defendants were only declared and no executable decree was passed in their favour."

We have quoted the finding in the second appeal. It is clear, therefore, that when a preliminary decree has been passed for partition and the decree has been given not to the defendants but to the plaintiff (in the said suit) alone, the court in that case would not adjudicate as to the validity of the sale deed of the plaintiff in the instant suit. The only issue involved was whether the plaintiff in the said suit was entitled to the properties conveyed by the third son of Joseph to him or not. He was given a preliminary decree for partition and separate possession of his one-third share in the suit properties.

10. As a purchaser from the first son of Joseph, who admittedly had one-third share in the properties of Joseph like the vendor of Govindarayulu, the plaintiff in the instant suit is also entitled to pray for a decree. That she has asked for in the instant suit. The question, however, is whether while asking for such a decree the plaintiff has to confine to the properties which were mentioned in the earlier suit or not? It is well-settled that a preliminary decree only declares the shares of the parties and determines the extent of the right of the persons who are co-owners of a property. It does not finally determine the number of items of properties. Such items of the properties may be found subsequently which were not included in the hotchpot of the family and thus, were subjected to actual partition. Such properties which were left out can always be a subject of partition either in course of the final decree, if at all the partition is between the parties or in a separate suit if a decree for partition is granted to the plaintiff only and other members are left out as co-owners of the property. In the instant case the plaintiff has been able to show that the properties belonged to Joseph and thus belonged to the sons of Joseph. She has asked for the right which has been created in her favour by virtue of the sale deed, if there is no dispute as to the validity of the sale deed or if there is a dispute, the sale deed is found to be valid. It will be improper in such a situation to defeat the suit of the plaintiff on the ground that in the previous suit instituted by Govindarayalu, a preliminary decree has been granted in his favour.

11. It is not understandable how the case of the 13th defendant has been accepted by the court below and it has been held that he has perfected title by adverse possession. Such a finding will stand in conflict with the law stated in S.A.No.1431 of 1973. Moreover, unless it is shown that someone exercised possession openly and hostile to the interests of those who are entitled to the possession of the property, a purchaser from one co-owner will be entitled to only the equity and not to possession. He shall have to ask for partition and only when such partition decree is granted that he would be entitled to separate possession. 12. So that as it may, since we do not propose in the instant case to decide any issue finally as in our view it would be incorrect to say that the suit will be barred by res judicata, we intend to remit the case to the Court below for a re-hearing and disposal in accordance with law.

13. In the result, the appeal is allowed; the judgments and decrees of the court below are set aside; the suit is remitted to the trial court for re-hearing and disposal in accordance with law. No costs.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Nainar Sundaram, A.C.J. and Thanikkachalam, J.

W.A.Nos.326 and 327 of 1992 26th March, 1992.

P.Radhakrishnan ...Appellant
v.

The District Collector, Dindigul ...Respondent.

Tamil Nadu Mineral Concession Rules (1959) - Notification preceding holding of auction, proceedings relating to confirmation of auction and lease deeds entered into and registered stipulating that lessee should produce only rough stones, jallies etc., but not block stones dressed and undressed for polishing and for export etc., - No express inhibition in the Rules - Lessee if can produce block stones.

Held:- The Notification which preceded the holding of the auction, the proceedings relating to confirmation of auction and the ultimate lease deeds entered into and registered all stipulated that the lessee shall produce only rough stones, jellies, stone pillars and plank stones which could be used for building and roadworks and the lessee shall not produce block stones dressed and undressed for any other purpose such as polishing and for export etc. Merely because there is no express inhibition in the Rules, it does not mean that anything the appellant desires is permitted. What is not permitted expressly must be deemed to have been inhibited. Even if the Court goes by the Rules, they are generously couched so as to be pliable to enter into lease deeds to meet situations according to facts and circumstances. The Rules and the forms thereunder are not rigid and inflexible in this regard and they do permit scope for settling terms according to the needs of the case. Further, the parties settled all their rights and obligations in the lease deeds and they must ultimately speak. The appellant never demurred earlier and on the other hand accepted the terms. It is not possible to enlarge the rights secured to the appellant under the lease deeds. The claim of the appellant to have more rights than what have been secured under the lease deeds cannot be sustained.

[Paras 1 and 2]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Govindasamy, J., dated 11.3.1992 and made in the exercise of the Special Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in W.P.Nos.13275 and 13276 of 1991 presented under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a writ of mandamus forbearing the respondent and their subordinates from interfering with the petitioner's right to quarry, remove the rough stones in blocks any size in S.F.No.536/1, 1005 in R.Kambai village, Veda sandur Taluk and transport the same to the place of choice (W.P.No.13275 of 1991) and to issue a writ of mandamus forbearing the respondents and their subordinates from interfering with petitioner's right to quarry remove the rough stones in blocks any size in S.F.No.222/1, Karungal Village, Veda sandur Taluk and transport the same to the place of his choice. (W.P.No.13276 of 1991). R.Krishnamoorthy, Senior Counsel, for M/s.K.Govindarajan and S.Kadarkarai, for Appellant.

M.A.Sadanand, Government Pleader, for Respondent

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Nainar Sundaram, A.C.J.:- These two writ appeals are directed against the common order of the learned single Judge in two writ petitions preferred by the appellant. The appellant wanted writs of mandamus forbearing the respondents and their subordinates from interfering with the petitioner's right to quarry, remove the rough stones in blocks from the lands in question and to transport them to the place of his choice. The matter is governed by the Tamil Nadu Mineral Concession Rules, 1959, hereinafter referred to as the Rules. The notification, which preceded the holding of the auction, the proceedings relating to confirmation of auction and the ultimate lease deeds entered into and registered; all stipulated that the lessee shall produce only rough stones, jellies, stone pillars and plank stones which could be used for building and road works and the lessee shall not produce block stones dressed and undressed for any other purpose such as polishing and for export etc. The learned single Judge, after a considerable discussion of the points urged, did not countenance the claim of the appellant and dismissed the writ petitions.

2. Mr. R. Krishnamoorthy, learned senior counsel appearing for the appellant, would submit that the Rules as such do not inhibit producing of block stones; and the lease deeds are not in conformity with the form prescribed under the Rules and the prescribed form does not contemplate a condition relating to inhibition for producing block stones. Learned senior counsel appearing for the appellant would contend that the Rules and the form thereunder are statutory in character and there cannot be a stipulation of terms besides those contemplated in the form. Merely because there is no express inhibition in the Rules, it does not mean that anything the appellant desires is permitted. What is not permitted expressly must be deemed to have been inhibited. Even if we go by the Rules, they are generously couched so as to be pliable to enter into lease deeds to meet situations according to facts and circumstances. The Rules and the forms thereunder are not rigid and inflexible in this regard and they do permit scope for settling terms according to the needs of the case. Further, the parties settled all their rights and obligations in the lease deeds and they must ultimately speak. The appellant never demurred earlier and on the other hand accepted the terms. It is not possible to enlarge the rights secured to the appellant under the lease deeds. We are not able to sustain the claim of the appellant to have more rights than what have been secured under the lease deeds. Accordingly, these two writ appeals are dismissed as lacking in merits. No costs.

B.S.

Appeals dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Nainar Sundaram, A.C.J. and Thanikkachalam, J.

W.A.No.61 of 1992

31st January, 1992.

Moorco (India) Ltd. represented by its General Manager (Personnel) ...Appellant
v.

The Government of Tamil Nadu, represented by Secretary, Labour and Employment and others ...Respondents.

Industrial Disputes Act (XIV of 1947), Secs.10-A(3), (4) and 17 - Non-compliance with Sec.10-A(3) - Decision rendered by Deputy Commissioner of Labour in such cases - If can be said to fall within purview of the Act - Such decision if can be directed to be published under Sec.17.

The petitioner-appellant filed a writ petition for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the second respondent, the Deputy Commissioner of Labour to forward his award dated 20.6.1988 to the Government of Tamil Nadu for the purpose of publication as contemplated by Sec.17. It was dismissed on the ground that the terms of the settlement between the petitioner and its workmen would constitute only an agreement to make voluntary reference of the dispute over bonus to arbitration. In appeal,

Held:- The well-settled proposition is that the Act, as such, does not countenance and make available its machinery for arbitration outside its purview. When there had been a non-compliance with sub-sec.(3) of Sec.10-A of the Act, it is not possible to characterise the decision rendered by the second respondent as one coming within the purview of the Act. sub-sec.(4) of Sec.10-A of the Act is interlinked with sub-sec.(3) and only on satisfaction of the mandates of sub-sec.(3) of Sec.10-A, there could be an investigation into the dispute and making of the award by the arbitrator and then forwarding it to the appropriate Government as per sub-sec.(4) thereof. Otherwise, the whole process will remain only in the realm of private arbitration falling outside the Act. Sec.17 could have reference only to publication of awards coming within the purview of the Act. Viewed from this angle, the learned single judge was correct in discountenancing the prayer for issuance of a Writ of mandamus as asked for.

[Para 3]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letter Patent against the Order of Bakthavatsalam, J., dated 3.12.1991 and made in the exercise of the Special Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in W.P.No.5497 of 1990 presented under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a writ of mandamus directing the second respondent, the Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Trichy (Arbitrator), to forward his decision/award dated 30.6.1988 to the 1st respondent, Government of Tamil Nadu, Labour and Employment Department, for the purpose of publication as contemplated by Sec.17 of the Industrial Disputes Act.

Sanjay Mohan for S.Ramasubramaniam & Associates, for Appellant.

M.A.Sadanand, Government Pleader, for Respondent Nos:1 to 4.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Nainar Sundaram, A.C.J.:- The petitioner in W.P.No.5497 of 1990 is the appellant in this writ appeal. The respondents in the writ petition are the respondents in this writ appeal. For the sake of convenience we are referring to the parties as per their nomenclature in the writ petition.

2. The petitioner came to this Court by way of the writ petition seeking for a writ of mandamus directing the second respondent to forward his award dated 30.6.1988 to the first respondent for the purpose of publication as contemplated by Sec.17 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, hereinafter referred to as the Act. Certain broad preceding factual features must stand delineated for the purpose of appreciating the scope of the prayer projected in the writ petition. There was a settlement on 27.1.1988 under Sec.12(3) of the Act between the petitioners and its workmen. Term No.3 of the settlement read as follows:

"The Deputy Commissioner of Labour shall examine the eligibility for Bonus under the Payment of Bonus Act, 1965 for the workmen for the financial year 1986-87, and offer his decision at the earliest and the parties hereto agree to abide by the same."

There is no controversy that the above term would constitute only an agreement to make voluntary reference of the dispute over Bonus to arbitration. Sec.10-A of the Act speaks about voluntary reference of disputes to arbitration. Sub-sec.(3) thereof reads as follows:

"A copy of the arbitration agreement shall be forwarded to the appropriate Government and the Conciliation Officer and the appropriate Government shall, within one month from the date of the receipt of such copy, publish the same in the Official Gazette."

The admitted position is that the mandates of sub-sec.(3) of Sec.10-A of the Act were not complied with. The second respondent rendered his decision on 30.6.1988 and the portion of his decision, which is relevant from the point of view of the petitioner, reads as follows:

"I hold that Sec.16 of the Payment of Bonus Act, 1965 is applicable to the present case; and that the workers of the establishment (viz.) Moorco (India) Ltd., are not entitled to bonus for the year 1986-87 under the above said Act. I give my decision accordingly."

3. The question which arose before the learned single Judge for his consideration was as to whether a writ of mandamus, as asked for, could issue. The well-settled proposition is that the Act, as such, does not countenance and make available its machinery for arbitration outside its purview. When there had been a non-compliance with sub-sec.(3) of Sec.10-A of the Act, it is not possible to characterise the decision rendered by the second respondent as one coming within the purview of the Act. In this context, it is relevant to take note of sub-sec.(4) of Sec.10-A of the Act also, and it reads as follows:

"The arbitrator or arbitrators shall investigate the dispute and submit to the appropriate Government the arbitration award signed by the arbitrator or all the arbitrators, as the case may be."

Sub-sec.(4) of Sec.10-A of the Act is interlinked with sub-sec.(3) and only on satisfaction of the mandates of sub-sec.(3) of Sec.10-A, there could be an investigation into the dispute and making of the award by the arbitrator and then forwarding it to the appropriate Government, as per sub-sec.(4) thereof. Otherwise, the whole process will remain only in the realm of private arbitration, falling outside the Act. Sec.17 could have reference only to publication of awards coming within the purview of the Act. Viewed from this angle, the learned single Judge was correct in discountenancing the prayer for issuance of a writ of mandamus as asked for. This writ appeal directed against the order of the learned single Judge deserves dismissals and accordingly we dismiss it. No costs.

B.S. ----- Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

S.A.No.1138 of 1981 15th November, 1990.

The Commissioner of the Regional Provident Fund, Tamil Nadu and Pondicherry States, Madras ...Appellant
v.

P.G.Srinivasan and another ...Respondents.

Employees Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act (XIX of 1952), Sec.14-B and Proviso (introduced by Act XL of 1973) - Levy of damages under Section - Affected party, if to be given notice. Before the introduction of the proviso, this court held in Madras-Bangalore Transport Company v. Regional Provident Fund Commissioner, Madras, (1969) 2 L.L.J. 136, that Sec.7-A of the Act would apply even though levy of damages is under Sec.14-B of the Act and that an enquiry should be held before levying damages. It was observed therein that damages under Sec.14-B of the Act being a penal levy, though imposed by an administrative authority, it will be necessary that the affected party is given an opportunity to show cause before, it is levied on him. The view taken by the court has not, in any way been altered by the introduction of the proviso to Sec.14-B of the Act. In fact, the proviso has only confirmed the position in law as enunciated by this Court. Therefore, the view taken by the courts below that the appellant should have issued a notice to the respondents before deciding to levy damages is correct. [Paras 3 and 5]

Cases referred to:

Madras-Bangalore Transport Company v. Regional Provident Fund Commissioner, Madras, (1969) 2 L.L.J. 136. [Para 3]

Regional Provident Fund Commissioner, Madras v. K.R.Subbaier Tape Factory Woraiyur, (1966) 2 L.L.J. 676. [Para 3]

Ouchterlony Valley Estates (1938) Ltd. v. Regional Provident Fund Commissioner, Madras, 37 F.J.R. 404. [Para 4]

Atlantic Engineering Services (P) Ltd. v. Union of India, (1979) 2 L.L.J. 136. [Para 6]

P.Narasimhan, Senior Central Government Standing Counsel, for Appellant.

M.Subramania Rao, for Respondent No.1.

N.Muthusamy, Government Advocate, for Respondent No.2.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT:- The Commissioner of Regional Provident Fund, Tamil Nadu and Pondicherry, who is the first defendant in the suit is the appellant. A show cause notice was issued under Ex. B-3 to the plaintiff as to why a sum of Rs.918.70 should not be levied as penal damages for delayed payments of contributions to the Employees' Provident Fund. The Plaintiff challenged the validity of the notice and filed the suit for a declaration that the notice is illegal and for a consequential injunction restraining the defendants from taking any coercive steps to collect the penal damages. Both the courts below have concurrently upheld the claim of the plaintiff and granted a decree as prayed for. The Lower appellate court has found that the notice Ex.B-3 is not in consonance with the provisions of Sec.14-B of the Employee's Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952, and that a reasonable opportunity should be given to the Plaintiff before the levy of damages is determined by the defendants.

2. Learned counsel for the appellant contends that there is a distinction between the amounts due and recoverable under Sec.7-A of the Act and the damages due and recoverable under Sec.14-B of the Act. According to learned counsel the elaborate procedure prescribed in Sec.7-A would apply only to cases of contributions and not to cases of levy of damages Sec.14-B of the Act reads thus:

"Where an employer makes default in payment of any contribution to the Fund, the Family Fund or the Insurance Fund or in the transfer of accumulations required to be transferred by him under sub-sec.(2) of Sec.15 or sub-sec.(5) of Sec.17, or in the payment of any charges payable under any other provisions of this act or of any scheme or Insurance Scheme or under any of the conditions specified under Sec.17, the Central Provident Fund Commissioner or such other officer as may be authorised by the Central Government, by notification in the official Gazette in this behalf, may recover from the employer such damages, not exceeding the amount of arrears, as it may think fit to impose."

A proviso was introduced by Act 40 of 1973 and it is in the following terms:

"Provided that before levying and recovering such damages, the employer shall be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard."

3. Before the introduction of the proviso, this court held in Madras-Bangalore Transport Company v. Regional Provident Fund Commissioner, Madras, (1969)2 L.L.J. 136, that Sec.7-A of the Act would apply even though levy of damages is under Sec.14-B of the Act and that an enquiry should be held before levying damages. Ramakrishnan, J., who decided the case observed that damages under Sec.14-B of the Act being a penal levy, though imposed by an administrative authority, it will be necessary that the affected party is given an opportunity to show cause before it is levied on him. The relevant portion of the judgment reads as follows:

"Once it is held, as laid down in the above decision which I respectfully follow, that the damages under Sec.14-B is a penal-levy, though imposed by an administrative authority, it will be necessary that the affected party is given an opportunity to show cause, before it is levied on him. He may have several defences which may be valid, and which he may urge, for mitigating the penalty. Learned counsel for the respondent has referred to a Government order which has prescribed slab rates for the computation of the amount of damages, giving it almost an automatic character with no margin for the exercise of discretion by the authority who imposes the damages in the first instance. Though Sec.14-B states that the damages have to be recovered by the appropriate Government, it is urged by counsel for the respondent that what happens in practice is that the Provident Fund Commissioner, by virtue of a delegation, automatically imposes damages according to the slab rates in the Government order leaving it to the party to move the Government subsequently for relief by way of reduction of the amount. It appears to me that such a method of imposing a levy, which is definitely penal in character, cannot be upheld. To begin with, the section uses the word 'may', thereby importing an element of discretion which can be invoked by the affected party, if he has adequate reasons to explain the delay in making the remittance in any given month. Under the scheme of the slab-system introduced by the Government order, it would appear as if the authority, who imposes the damages initially, had no discretion to deviate from the slab-system which he has got to follow automatically. But it is that authority who has to deal first with the contributor, and consequently the same authority has to consider any explanation that the contributor has got to offer. Therefore, the provision under the slab-system by which one authority automatically levies certain amounts by way of penalty without reference to any mitigating circumstances, and then the affected party thereafter has to move the higher authority, namely, the Government, for relief against such levy, cannot in my opinion, be viewed as a substitute for the normal rule of natural justice which has to be followed in the case of penal levies, viz., that the party affected should be given a chance of making representations contra even before the original levy itself."

The learned Judge has also referred to the judgment of a Division Bench in Regional Provident Fund Commissioner, Madras v. K.R. Subbaier Tape Factory, Woraiyur, (1966)2 L.L.J. 676, wherein it was held that, Sec.7-A of the Act had provided for an examination of the question of liability to pay damages under Sec.14-B of the Act in disputed cases.

4. In Ouchterlony Valley Estates (1938) Ltd. v. Regional Provident Fund Commissioner, Madras, 37 F.J.R. 404, Ismail, J., took a similar view and observed that Sec.7-A(1) and 7-A(3) would apply to a case of levy of damages.

5. The view taken by this Court in the cases has not in any way been altered by the introduction of the proviso to Sec.14-B of the Act. In fact, the proviso has only confirmed the position in law as enunciated by this Court. Therefore, the view taken by the courts below that the impugned notice Ex.B-3 is not valid and the appellant should have issued a notice to the respondents before deciding to levy damages is correct.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant places reliance on the judgment of a Division Bench of the Delhi High Court in Atlantic Engineering Services (P) Ltd. v. Union of India and another, (1979) 2 L.L.J. 136. Reliance is placed on the following observations made by the Bench;

"The learned counsel then questioned the determination of damages by the Government as arbitrary. He said that the very fact that a table has been prepared by the Government and it was sent to the petitioner with the show cause shows that the Government did not apply its mind and was mechanical in making the demand for damages. On the contrary, we are of the view that framing of the table of damages by the Government is a salutary measure for the guidance of the officers of the Government who act under Sec.14-B. Under the table the amount of damages is related to be delay in payment of the contribution. This method of determining damages is entirely reasonable and it shows that no officer acting under Sec. 14-B can act arbitrarily, but must follow this reasonable guideline made by the Government. Further this is only a guideline. It is not a determination. The actual decision as to what damages would be in a particular case is made only after hearing the employer and assessing the particular facts of his case. This was done in the present case."

7. The question which has arisen before me did not arise before the Division Bench of the Delhi High Court. The Bench had no occasion to express their opinion on this question. Hence, the judgment of the Division Bench will not apply to the present case. No inference can be drawn from the above observations of the Division Bench that they took the view which is now put forward by learned counsel for the appellant.

8. In the result, the second appeal has to fail and it is dismissed. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Nainar Sundaram and Somasundaram, JJ.

W.A.Nos.618 and 619 of 1987 13th August, 1991.

S.Balasubramanian

...Appellant

v.

Special Tahsildar (LA) III, Maraimalai Nagar Scheme, Kattangulathur, Chingleput District and another

...Respondents.

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Sec.11-A as introduced by Amendment Act (LXII of 1984) - Validity. It is found that sub-sec.(1-A) of Sec.23 contemplates the award of an amount calculated at the rate of 12 per cent per annum on the market value for the period commencing on and from the date of the publication of the notification under Sec.4(1) in respect of such land to the date of the award or the date of taking possession of the land whichever is earlier. Prior to the Amendment Act, case law was replete even at the level of the highest court in the land striking down acquisition proceedings on the ground of prejudice caused by delay. The Amendment Act has brought in redeeming provisions and they, to a very great extent, ameliorate grievances with regard to delay. They provide adequate answers to this ground. The grievance expressed by the learned counsel for the petitioner to strike at Sec.11-A of the Act cannot be appreciated and sustained. [Para 3] Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the order of S.Mohan, J., dated 9.4.1987 and made in the exercise of the Special Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in W.P.Nos.3701 and 3702 of 1987 presented under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a writ of W.P.No.3701 of 1981: writ of certiorari and mandamus calling for the records in Notice in Form 10 dated 12.3.1987 on the file of the 1st respondent herein and quash the same and direct the respondents herein to drop the acquisition proceedings in respect of the petitioner's lands situate in S.No.336/471, 5 A1, 5 A2, 5 B7, 5 C3 comprising of a total extent of 7.87 acres in No.56 Kattangulathur, Chengleput District etc.

Ram Mohan and C.R.Suresh Kumar, for Appellant.

P.Rajamanickam, Government Advocate, for Respondents.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Nainar Sundaram, J.:- These writ appeals, which were dismissed earlier, for want of prosecution, have been restored today by orders passed by us in C.M.P.Nos.9757 and 9758 of 1990.

2. These writ appeals are directed against the common order of the learned single judge in and by which he disposed of W.P.Nos.3701 and 3702 of 1987. The challenge in the writ petitions was of the proceedings for acquisition under the Land Acquisition Act 1 of 1984, hereinafter referred to as the Act, and in doing that, there is a prayer to strike down Sec.11-A of the Act as void. Two grounds were urged before the learned single Judge coveting interference in writ powers. The same grounds are being urged before us also. The first ground was that the award was not made within the time prescribed therefor by Sec.11-A introduced into the Act by the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act, 1984, hereinafter referred to as the Amendment Act. Sec.11-A reads as follows:

"11-A. Period within which an award shall be made: The Collector shall make an award under Sec.11 within a period of two years from the date of the publication of the declaration and if no award is made within that period, the entire proceedings for the acquisition of the land shall lapse:

Provided that in a case where the said declaration has been published before the commencement of the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act, 1984, the award shall be made within a period of two years from such commencement.

Explanation: In computing the period of two years referred to in this section, the period during which any action or proceeding to be taken in pursuance of the said declaration is stayed by an order of a court shall be excluded."

The declaration under Sec.6 of the Act, in the instant case was made in 22.10.1977. The main part of Sec.11-A enjoins the making of an award within the period of two years from the date of the publication of the declaration and further says, if no award is made within that period, the entire proceedings for the acquisition of the land shall lapse. However, the proviso says that in a case where the said declaration has been published before the commencement the Amendment Act, the award shall be made within a period of two years from such commencement. The commencement of the Amendment Act was on 24.9.1984. The declaration here having come to be made before such commencement, the award could be made within a period of two years from the date of the commencement of the Amendment Act. That did happen here. Rightly, the learned single Judge discountenanced this ground of attack put forth on behalf of the petitioners, and we also repel it.

3. The second ground urged is that Sec.11-A introduced into the Act by the Amendment Act has encouraged and maintained procrastination in the completion of acquisition proceedings, and as a result, the owner of the land acquired suffers on the question of compensation, which has got to be determined only as on the date of the notification under Sec.4(1). The learned single Judge found that this contention has been repelled by him in an earlier pronouncement of his and on this ground chose to discountenance it. However, at the request of Mr.R.Ram Mohan, learned counsel for the petitioner we proceeded to examine this contention on merits also, not concluding it on the earlier pronouncement of the learned single Judge. Learned counsel for the petitioner would say that even though the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act would have been made long back and the award comes to be made at a much later stage, compensation will be paid only as on the date of the publication of the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act and this will work undue hardship to the petitioner and that would amount to arbitrary deprivation of property. When we look into the statement of objects and reasons behind the Amendment Act, we could envisage and appreciate the scheme and framework of the provisions introduced by the Amendment Act and in our view, there are sufficient provisions balancing and ameliorating any complaint of hardship on account of delay. The statement of objects and reasons for the Amendment Act runs as follows:

"Statement of objects and reasons:- With the enormous expansion of the State's role in promoting public welfare and economic development since independence, acquisition of land for public purposes, industrialisation, building of institutions, etc., has become far more numerous, than ever before. While this is inevitable, promotion of public purpose has to be balanced with the rights of the individual whose land is acquired, thereby often depriving him of his means of livelihood. Again, acquisition of land for private enterprises ought not to be placed on the same footing as acquisition for the State or for an enterprise under it. The individual and institutions who are unavoidably to be deprived of their property rights in land need to be adequately compensated for the loss keeping in view the sacrifice they have to make for the larger interests of the community. The pendency of acquisition proceedings for long periods often causes hardship to the affected parties and renders unrealistic the scale of compensation offered to them. It is necessary, therefore, to restructure the legislative framework for acquisition of land so that it is more adequately informed by this objective of serving the interests of the community in harmony with the rights of the individual. Keeping the above objects in view and considering the recommendations of the Law Commission, the Land Acquisition Review Committee, as well as the State Governments, institutions and individuals, proposals for amendment to the Land Acquisition Act, 1984, were formulated and a Bill for this purpose was introduced in the Lok Sabha on the 30th April, 1982. The same has not been passed by either House of Parliament. Since the introduction of the Bill, various other proposals for amendment of the Act have been received and they have also been considered in consultation with the State Governments and other agencies. It is now proposed to include all these proposals in a fresh Bill after withdrawing the pending Bill."

We have already extracted Sec. 11-A introduced by the Amendment Act and we have discussed its implications. By the Amendment Act, sub-sec. (1-A) was also introduced into Sec. 23 relating to matters to be considered in determining compensation and Sub-sec. (1-A) reads as follows:

"(1-A). In addition to the market value of the land as above provided, the court shall in every case award an amount calculated at the rate of twelve per centum per annum on such market value for the period commencing on and from the date of the publication of the notification under Sec. 4, sub-sec. (1) in respect of such land to the date of the award of the Collector or the date of taking possession of the land, whichever is earlier."

Thus we find that sub-sec. (1-A) contemplates the award of an amount calculated at the rate of 12 per cent per annum on the market value for the period commencing on and from the date of the publication of the notification under Sec. 4(1) in respect of such land to the date of the award or the date of taking possession of the land whichever is earlier. Prior to the Amendment Act, case law was replete even at the level of the highest court in the land, striking down acquisition proceedings on the ground of prejudice caused by delay. The Amendment Act has brought in redeeming provisions and they, to a very great extent, ameliorate grievances with regard to delay. In our view, they provide adequate answers to this ground. Hence, we are not able to appreciate and sustain this grievance expressed by the learned counsel for the petitioner to strike at Sec. 11-A of the Act. Thus, we uphold that decision of the learned single Judge and dismiss these two writ Appeals. No costs.

B.S.

Appeals dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- Govindasamy, J.

W.P.No.3501 of 1990

22nd June, 1992.

P. Andree

...Petitioner

v.

The Tamil Nadu Medical Council and another

...Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Medical Registration Act (IV of 1914), Sec. 9-A(3) and By-law 70 - Resolution passed by Executive Committee for suspension of Registrar of Medical Council - Sustainability - President of Council, if can order suspension of Registrar.

By communication dated 19.3.1990, the petitioner, Registrar of the Tamil Nadu Medical Council was placed under suspension by the President of the Council. He questioned the right of the President to pass such an order of suspension. He also questioned the resolution passed by the Executive Committee of the council to place him under suspension.

Held:- Sub-sec.(3) of Sec.9-A provides that the council may, with the previous sanction of the State Government delegate, any of its powers and duties to the Executive Committee. There is no dispute that the council has not delegated any of the powers and duties to the Executive Committee. If that be so, the Executive Committee has no power to pass any order unless and until power is delegated as provided under sub-sec.(3) of Sec.9-A. It may be that the President may be empowered by virtue of Bye-law 70 to impose any punishment on the members of establishment but it does not mean that the President is empowered to place any member of the establishment, under suspension pending enquiry or pending contemplation of enquiry. Suspension can be imposed by payment of penalty after following the procedure for holding an enquiry against any definite charge and after arriving at a specific finding with reference to the guilt of the delinquent employee. In the absence of any specific power vested either with the President or the Executive Committee to place any member of establishment, the impugned order is not sustainable and consequently is liable to be quashed. [Paras 2, 5 and 6]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorari calling for the records, on the file of the second respondent relating to communication dated 19.3.1990 of 2nd respondent and quash the order, dated 19.3.1990 and made therein.

Vijayanarayan, for Petitioner.

K.Palanisamy, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The petitioner was appointed as Registrar of the Tamil Nadu Medical Council with effect from 1.7.1988. It is stated that since the Medical Council of India did not recognise Sri Ramachandra Medical College, Porur, Tamil Nadu, the petitioner intimated the Dean of Ramachandra Medical College and Research Institute on 7.3.1990 that the Medical Council of India did not recognise the said Medical College. The 2nd respondent then informed the petitioner to ignore the letter dated 16.2.1990 of the Medical Council of India and wanted the petitioner to issue temporary medical registration Certificate to the students who had undergone the course in Sri Ramachandra Medical College. The petitioner in reply informed the 2nd respondent that it would not be in order to issue temporary medical registration certificate. However, the 2nd respondent insisted upon the petitioner to issue such a certificate to the students, presumably for the reason that the students of the said College resorted to strike because of non-issuance of temporary registration certificate to the students. However the petitioner informed the president of the second respondent about the factum of issuance of temporary registration certificate. At the instance of the second respondent, the petitioner issued the certificate on 13.3.1990. However, the petitioner was called upon to explain in writing as to why he has exhibited the communication from the Medical Council of India to the students of Sri Ramachandra Medical College which created serious reaction from the students of the said college. While so, the President of the second respondent by the impugned communication dated 19.3.1990 placed the petitioner under suspension. The impugned communication is as follows:-

From:

THE PRESIDENT.

To:

Mr.P.ANDREE,
REGISTRAR,
THE TAMIL NADU MEDICAL COUNCIL,
MADRAS.

Reg: Suspension - Executive Committee Meeting Resolution - Dated 19.3.1990.

The Tamil Nadu Medical Council has placed you under suspension temporarily with immediate effect pending enquiries of serious nature. You are directed to hand over the keys and the records to Mr.S.Kandasamy.

Sd/-

PRESIDENT

Tamil Nadu Medical Council,
Madras.

2. It is in these circumstances that the petitioner has filed the present writ petition to issue a writ of certiorari to quash the aforesaid communication. Mr. Vijayanarayanan, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner represents that in the instant case the executive committee by its resolution dated 19.3.1990 resolved to place the petitioner under suspension with immediate effect and that order was communicated by the President by the impugned communication. Learned counsel would say that the executive committee had no jurisdiction at all, or in other words, it has not been vested with any power to pass such an order of suspension and consequently the impugned order is liable to be quashed. In support of his contention learned counsel refers to Sec.10(1) of the Madras Medical Registration Act, hereinafter referred to as the Act. Sec.10(1) of the Act provides that the council shall appoint a Registrar who shall act as Secretary of the council and who shall also act as Treasurer, unless the council shall appoint another person as Treasurer. It is also provided that every person appointed shall be removable at the pleasure of the Council. Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.10 provides that the Council may also employ such other persons as it may deem necessary for the purposes of this Act. According to the learned counsel Sec.10 of the Act confers power on the council for appointment as well as removal of a Registrar at the pleasure of the Council. Learned counsel refers to Sec.9-A of the Act which provides that there shall be an Executive Committee of the Council, consisting of its President and Vice-President ex-officio and three other members of the Council who shall be elected every year in the prescribed manner by the Council at its first meeting held in that year. Clause (a) of sub-sec.(2) of Sec.9-A provides that every member of the Executive Committee so elected shall hold office as such until the next annual election; and if any casual vacancy occurs before such election, the Executive Committee shall fill that vacancy by electing a member of the Council. Sub-sec.(3) of Sec.9-A provides that the council may, with the previous sanction of the State Government delegate any of its powers and duties to the Executive Committee. It is in these circumstances the learned counsel for the petitioner represented that there is no dispute that the council has not delegated any of its powers and duties to the Executive Committee. Learned counsel for the respondents is not in a position to dispute the same. If that be so, the Executive Committee has no power to pass any order unless and until power is delegated as provided under sub-sec.(3) of Sec.9-A.

3. Learned counsel also refers to By-law No.69 which provides penalties that could be imposed on the members of the establishment of the employment under Sec.10 of the Act. By-law No.69 provides the following penalties.

- (i) Censure;
- (ii) Withholding of increments or promotion;
- (iii) Reduction to a lower post or time-scale or to a lower stage in a time-scale;
- (iv) Recovery from pay of the whole or part of the pecuniary loss caused to the Council by negligence or breach of orders;
- (v) Suspension;
- (vi) Removal from service which does not disqualify from future employment;
- (vii) Dismissal from service, which disqualifies from future employment.

Learned counsel for the Petitioner at this juncture represents that even though 'suspension' is one of the penalties specified under By-law 69, such penalty could be imposed only after following the procedure of holding an enquiry against a definite charge framed against the delinquent employee and that by-law does not provide for any interim suspension pending enquiry or pending contemplation of enquiry.

4. Learned counsel then referred to By-law No.50, which was also referred to by the Learned counsel for the respondents in the counter affidavit. It provides as follows: "During Suspension, an employee shall be given subsistence allowance amounting to one-half of the monthly salary for a period of three months. When an employee is under suspension, he shall leave his address with the President. He shall obey all orders to attend any enquiry into his conduct at his own cost. If he fails to do so, the enquiry shall be held in his absence." By-law 50 is in respect of an employee placed under suspension which may be by way of penalty and the employee is entitled to subsistence allowance. By-law 50 does not provide any power vested on any of the officers to place any of the employees of the establishment under suspension, pending enquiry or pending contemplation of enquiry. There is no provision at all either in the statute or in the By-law empowering the authorities to place any of the members of the establishment under suspension pending enquiry or pending contemplation of enquiry. In the instant case the petitioner was placed under suspension by the decision taken by the Executive Committee. Nowhere in the Act or in the By-law the Executive Committee is vested with any such power to place an employee under suspension. Hence, the impugned order is not sustainable.

5. However, the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents represented that Sec.10(1) of the Act provides that the Council is entitled to remove any member of the establishment at the pleasure of the Council and that By-law 70 provides that subject to the provisions of Sec.10(1) of the Act, the President or Vice-President when he acts as President, may impose any of the penalties specified in By-law 69 on any member of the establishment. Learned counsel for the respondents from the above representation wants to infer that the President is empowered to pass an order of Penalty as provided under By-law 69 of the By-Laws. It may be that the President may be empowered by virtue of Bye-law 70 to impose any punishment on the members of establishment, but it does not mean that the President is empowered to place any member of the establishment under suspension pending enquiry or pending contemplation of enquiry. Suspension can be imposed by way of penalty, after following the procedure for holding an enquiry against any definite charge and after arriving at a specific finding with reference to the guilt of the delinquent employee.

6. Learned counsel for the respondents referred to By-law 72 which provided for an appeal from clerks and menial staff to the Executive Committee aggrieved by the order of Penalty. But that is not relevant to the present writ petition. Learned counsel for the respondents is not in a position to bring the notice of this Court that either the President or the Executive Committee is empowered to place any member of the establishment under suspension pending disciplinary proceedings or contemplation of disciplinary proceedings. In the absence of any specific power vested either with the President or the Executive Committee to place any member of establishment, the petitioner in the instant case, the impugned order is not sustainable and consequently is liable to be quashed.

7. In the result, the writ petition is allowed and the impugned order is quashed. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

S.A.Nos.2261 and 2262 of 1981 10th January, 1992

Baliah Nadar and another ...Appellants
v.

Rayappan and others ...Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.11 - Prior partition suit dismissed for default - No decision on merits - Second partition suit if barred by res judicata - Right of co-sharers to maintain suit for partition - Suit for partial partition, if barred.

The earlier suit O.S.No.233 of 1971 was suit for partition which was dismissed for default. There was no decision on merits. Hence, the principles of res judicata will not apply. If the parties are co-sharers, then they are entitled to maintain a suit for partition so long as there is no division. Just because an earlier suit for partition is dismissed for default without a decision of the Court that the plaintiff is not entitled to a share in the properties, the plaintiffs will not cease to be a co-sharer. Hence a second suit is maintainable as the cause of action is a continuing one. The other contention that the suit is bad for partial partition is also unsustainable in view of the judgment of the Court in Pakhiri Mohammed v. Kaji Mohammed Manjool Sahib, 45 M.L.J. 321. It is only a Hindu joint family, a suit for partial partition is generally not accepted. The parties in the instant case are Indian Christian and that principle cannot apply and the ruling referred to above will govern.

[Paras 4 and 5]

Cases referred to:

Pakkiri Mohammed v. Kaji Mohammed Manjool

Sahib, 45 M.L.J. 321. [Para 5]

N.S.Sivam, for Appellants.

K.Venkataraman for V.Nicholas, for Respondents.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT:- Defendants 3 and 4 are the appellants in both the appeals. One suit is for declaration that plaintiff and second defendant are absolute owners of the suit property. The other suit is for partition and separate possession of one third share of the plaintiff. The first defendant in the suit who is the brother of the plaintiff claimed one-third share in all the properties. Defendants 3 and 4 contested the claim of the plaintiff as well as defendants 1 and 2. The trial court has found that the plaintiff is entitled to one-fourth share in Door No.7, which is the property in O.S.No.82 of 1976 out of which S.A.No.2262 of 1981 arises. In the other suit, the trial court granted a decree as prayed for by the plaintiff.

2. On appeal, the Principal subordinate Judge, Tiruchirapalli, modified the decree in O.S.No.82 of 1976 and granted one third share to the plaintiff in the suit property. In the other appeal, the learned subordinate Judge has granted a decree, declaring that the plaintiff and second defendant are entitled to two thirds share and on that basis granted an injunction.

3. In these second appeals, it is argued that both the suits are not maintainable. In S.A.No.2262 of 1981, it is contended that it is a suit for partial partition and it is barred by the principles of res judicata in view of the dismissal of an earlier suit O.S.No.233 of 1971 filed by the plaintiff. In S.A.No.2261 of 1981, similar contentions are raised.

4. There is no substance in the argument that the suits are barred by the principles of res judicata. O.S.No.233 of 1971 was a suit for partition which was dismissed for default. There was no decision on merits. Hence, the principles of res judicata will not apply. If the parties are co-sharers, then they are entitled to maintain a suit for partition so long as there is no division. Just because an earlier suit for partition is dismissed for default without a decision of the Court that the plaintiff is not entitled to a share in the properties, the plaintiff will not cease to be a co-sharer. Hence, a second suit is maintainable as the cause of action is a continuing one.

5. The other contention that the suit is bad for partial partition is also unsustainable in view of the judgment of this Court in Pakkiri Mohammed

v. Kaji Mohammed Manjool Sahib, 45 M.L.J. 321.

It is only a Hindu joint family, a suit for partial partition is generally not accepted. The parties in the instant case are Indian Christians and that principle cannot apply and the ruling referred to above will govern.

6. Significantly, in the written statement of defendants 3 and 4, the title of the plaintiff's father to the property has not been disputed. On the death of the plaintiff's father, plaintiff and defendants 1 and 2 will be equally entitled to the properties.

7. Hence, the conclusion of the lower appellate court is unassailable. The second appeals fail and are dismissed. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Appeals dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

W.P.No.17808 of 1991 18th December, 1991.

H.Belli

...Petitioner

v.

Union of India, represented by the Secretary, Ministry of Defence, New Delhi and others

...Respondents.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Public interest litigation - Petitioner raising question of public importance making allegation - Allegations denied by concerned department by communications to petitioner - Writ, if can issue.

From the records produced before the court, the petitioner seems to be raising a question of public interest according to him which has been denied by the Department by communications. In spite of it, if the petitioner wants to agitate the matter once over, the court cannot extend its arms under Art.226 of the Constitution of India aiding him.

[Para 4]

Case referred to:

Shri Sachidanand Pandey v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 1109; (1987) 2 S.C.C. 295; (1987) 2 S.C.J. 70. [Para 4]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of mandamus directing the 2nd and 3rd respondents to forbear from letting out the property belonging to the first respondent and classified a class 'A' in the G.L.A.Rules 1937 or dealing with it in any manner contrary to the rules and quash the said order.

V.Raghavachari for Petitioner.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The prayer in the writ petition is as follows:

"To issue a writ of mandamus or any other appropriate writ or direction to the 2nd and 3rd respondents from letting out the property belonging to the first respondent and classified as Class 'A' in the G.L.A. Rules 1937 or dealing with it in any manner contrary to the Rules aforesaid."

2. The petitioner claims to be a social worker and interested in the welfare of the society and also is attempting to enforce the laws through legal machinery. Certain lands in the cantonment area are controlled and managed by the 4th respondent. In 1986 the respondents 2 and 3 sought the land for their use after the lease period in their favour is over. It seems initially the lands were classified as agricultural lands and class 'C' when it was leased out to persons who belonged to lower strata of the society. In 1986 the 4th respondent handed over the lands to the respondents 2 and 3. It is alleged in the affidavit that subsequent to the surrender of the lands by the lessees the fifth respondent has been illegally permitted to raise crops and he is making merry out of the State executor and is cultivating the lands and taking the income from the lands. It is stated that the 5th respondent is owning about 80 acres and they are under cultivation and he is raising crops like carrot, cabbage, potato and garlic etc. It seems the petitioner lodged his protest to the respondents 2 and 3 and issued a number of notices to the parties concerned and no action has been taken according to the allegations made in the affidavit. It is alleged in the affidavit that the Government lands are not available to be misused and it is not prerogative of the respondents 2 and 3 to confer a privilege not available in them to the 5th respondent, that poor farmers have been removed from the lands on the ground that it is required for the exclusive use of the respondents 2 and 3. However, it is seen that the fifth respondent is cultivating the lands and it is stated that the property of the State cannot and should not be used for benefiting a few. It is also alleged that when the lease was cancelled it was due to the security reasons and by leasing out in favour of the 5th respondent the cancellation of lease itself is under cloud of doubt, according to the petitioner. The petitioner has been making representation since 1987 since the lands have been used by the 5th respondent and it should not be done. The petitioner has been given a reply by the Lt.Col. Officiating Training, Madras, Regimental Centre, Wellington on 8.7.1971 saying that no defence land has been given on lease to anyone. The defence Estate lands under the case of this Centre is being managed, according to Rules 2 and 4. When another person by name Nanjappa made a complaint he has been replied that the case has been examined and it is found that private party has been given any lease and thereafter the amount was realised by way of sale proceeds from the garden fund etc., has been deposited in the Government Treasury by the M.R.C. Wellington. This letter Nanjappa has received from the Under Secretary to the Government of India, Ministry of Defence. Not satisfied with that the petitioner made a representation to Thiru Shri Sharad Pawar through the Member of Parliament, Rajya Sabha on 17.10.1991 to the Ministry of Defence, Government of India and also has written the letter to the officer Commanding Station, Madras House, Wellington.

3. I heard Mr.Raghavachari, learned counsel for the petitioner in extenso.

4. I am not convinced with the arguments of the learned counsel and the contentions raised in the affidavits from the records, the records produced before me, the petitioner seems to be raising a question of public interest according to him, which has been denied by the Department by Communications. In spite of it, if the petitioner wants to agitate the matter once over as it is the guardian of the public property, I do not think that this Court can extend its arms under Art.226 of the Constitution of India aiding him. As has been rightly pointed out by Khalid, J. in Shri Sachidanand Pandey v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 1109: (1987)2 S.C.C. 295: (1987)2 S.C.J. 70:

"Today public spirited litigants rush to courts to file cases in profusion under this attractive name. They must inspire confidence in courts and among the public. They must be above suspicions. See the facts of this case and the result."

The learned Judge further observed thus:

"My purpose in admitting these few lines of my own is to highlight the need for restraint on the part of the public interest litigants when they move courts. Public interest litigation has now come to stay. But one is led to think that it poses a threat to courts and public alike. Such cases are now filed without any rhyme or reasons. It is, therefore, necessary to lay down clear guidelines and to outline the correct parameters for entertainment of such petitions. If courts do not restrict the free flow of such cases in the name of public interest litigations, the traditional litigation will suffer and the courts of law, instead of dispensing justice, will have to take upon themselves administrative and executive functions.

I should not be understood to say that traditional litigation should stay put. They have to be tackled by other effective methods, like decentralising the judicial system and entrusting majority of traditional litigation to village courts and Lok Adalats without the usual populist stance and by a complete restructuring of the procedural law which is the villain in delaying disposal of cases.

It is only when courts are apprised of gross violation of fundamental rights by a group or a class action or when basic human rights are invaded or when there are complaints of such acts as shock the judicial conscience that the courts, especially this Court, should leave aside procedural shackles and hear such petitions and extend its jurisdiction under all available provisions for remedying the hardships and miseries of the needy, the under dog and the neglected, I will be second to none in extending help when such help is required. But this does not mean that the doors of this Court are always open for anyone to walk in. It is necessary to have some self imposed restraint on public interest litigants."

In my view, this is a typical case where the observations of Khalid, squarely applies. It is not as if the petitioner has not been replied by the concerned authorities. I have already stated that the Department as well as the Defence Ministry have denied the allegations of the petitioner by replying to him. In such circumstances, I do not think that this Court can interfere in this matter. The writ petition is dismissed.

B.S.

Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Mishra and Swamidurai, JJ.

O.S.A.No.174 of 1991 12th March, 1992.

K.Rama Naidu

v.

S.K.Parthasarathy Naidu and another.

...Appellant
..Respondents.

(A) Partnership Act (IX of 1932), Sec.6 - Partnership - Existence of - Determination - Sharing of profits or of gross returns arising from property by persons holding a joint or common interest in the property by itself if makes such persons partners.

(B) Partnership Act (IX of 1932), Sec.14 - Property of Partnership firm - What constitutes - Nothing on record to show that suit property was either originally brought by the partners into stock of the partnership or subsequently acquired by purchase or otherwise in the course of business of firm - Suit property, if can be said to be property of the firm.

(C) Specific Relief Act (1963) - Sec.41(c) - Injunction - Grant of - Considerations - Balance of convenience should be taken into account.

Held:- The sharing of profits or of gross returns arising from property by persons holding a joint or common interest in the property does not of itself make such persons partners. The receipt by a person of a share of the property of a business or of a payment contingent upon the earning of profits or varying with the profits earned by a business, does not of itself make him a partner with the persons carrying on the business, more so, if such a person is the lender of money to persons engaged or about to engage in any business. There is no material on record to show anything beyond a certain stipulation that the first defendant/appellant has agreed to share profits or gross returns arising from the sale of the suit land. There is nothing also to show that the plaintiff and the second defendant have been holding a joint or common interest in the suit land with the first defendant/appellant. [Paras 9 and 12]

To constitute a property of the firm, it must be shown that the rights and interests in property have been brought into the stock of the firm by the partners originally when the firm was formed or subsequently acquired by purchase or otherwise in the course of the business of the firm. The first document dated 8.8.1988 showing that the plaintiff paid a sum of Rs.1,00,000 to the first defendant for the purchase of the suit property shows that the first defendant had agreed that he would give one-fifth share in the profit derived out of the sale of the land by any third party after converting into plots. There is nothing on record to show, assuming that some sort of partnership was created that the suit property was either originally brought by the partners into the stock of the partnership or subsequently acquired by purchase or otherwise in the course of the business of the firm or out of any fund of the partnership. If there has been a partnership between the plaintiff and the first defendant, that had nothing to do with the partnership which the first defendant had with the second defendant. The common link in the two partnerships (if at all there has been a partnership) is missing. The first defendant no doubt is the purchaser/owner of the suit property but he neither gave the property to the partnership which he created with the plaintiff nor he gave that property to the partnership which he created with the second defendant. There is also nothing on record to know as to when and how a partnership between and three was created, the so-called partnership which is sought to be dissolved in the suit.

[Paras 9 and 13]

The court cannot fail to take notice of the attempt of the plaintiff to seek enforcement of a so-called contract of partnership after it is dissolved by the plaintiff himself by his act of moving the court for its dissolution and in the course of this attempt to enforce the contract to keep the property which belongs to the first defendant/appellant in a status quo so that the relief of profit that he would have received as a consequence of the contract executed by the first defendant should not be denied to him. This is a prayer opposed to the rule in Sec.41(e) of the Specific Relief Act. If at all there is a breach of the contract of partnership by the first defendant, the question that would arise is, can the contract be specifically enforced by a decree of the court? If it could be specifically enforced, then only injunction could be asked for to prevent the breach. [Para 14]

It is difficult to understand how the learned trial Judge has come to the conclusion that the plaintiff and the defendants are partners of the suit property particularly when the facts in this behalf are clear and unambiguous that the first defendant/appellant approached the plaintiff promising to give one-fifth share in the profits derived out of the sale of the suit land and getting a sum of Rs.1,00,000 from him. Similarly, under a separate agreement, he received a sum of Rs.1,00,000 from the second defendant and promised to give him one-fifth share in the profits derived out of the sale of the land. Having so obtained Rs.1,00,000 each from the plaintiff and the second defendant, he finalised the purchase of the suit land and obtained a sale deed dated 12.3.1990 in respect of the suit property in his name from the trustees of the temple (vendors). There has been thus no partnership in purchase. If at all there has been anything, that was borrowing Rs.1,00,000 from the plaintiff and another sum of Rs.1,00,000 from the second defendant on a promise that he shall share one-fifth of the profit when the land would be sold after laying out the land as house plots. Once it is found that there has been no partnership in purchasing the land, even if it is found that there has been some sort of partnership between plaintiff and the first defendant on the one hand and between the first defendant and the second defendant on the other hand and by guess between the three that is to say, the plaintiff, the first defendant and the second defendant, that was confined to sharing the profits to the extent of one-fifth, three-fifth and one-fifth respectively. This partnership also is sought to be dissolved. The result is, if there has been any business of a sale of any portion of the suit property before the suit there shall be profit to the plaintiff as well as to the second defendant to share with the first defendant/appellant and if there shall be any business during the pendency of the suit and there is a profit, there shall be such sharing by way of accounting. Injunction will bring the business to a standstill. If there shall be no business, there shall be no profit. There shall be nothing to share. That there has been nothing to share before the suit is admitted in the plaint. Since there has been no business before the suit, there is nothing to share between the so-called partners. Something to share will arise only if there is a sale. There is some material brought before the court to show that some agreement of sale has been executed by the first defendant in favour of some persons who are described by the second defendant/respondent as kins of the first defendant. Nonetheless they are third parties. It is not known whether they have acquired a right under the contract of sale to get the same specifically enforced. Any grant of injunction in the absence of such intending purchasers who entered into an agreement with the first defendant will affect their right as well. This leads one to the irresistible conclusion that the inconvenience which the first defendant/appellant will suffer if injunction is granted will be far greater than that which the plaintiff will suffer and this alone is enough to refuse the prayer of injunction.

[Paras 15, 16 and 17]

Cases referred to:

Narayanappa v. Bhaskara Krishnappa, (1966)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 80: (1966)2 An.W.R.(S.C.) 80: (1966)2 S.C.J. 490: A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1300. [Para 20]

C.R.R. Gowder v. C.P. Nanjappa, (1973)1 M.L.J. 189: A.I.R. 1973 Mad. 179. [Para 22]

I.J.J. Rebello v. C.C. Rev. Authority, A.I.R. 1971 Mysore 318. [Para 24]

Pren Raj Brahmin v. Bhanu Ram Brahmin, I.L.R. (1846)1 Cal. 191. [Para 24]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters against the order of Arumugam, J., dated 2.8.1991, and made in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court in Application No.403 of 1991 presented to this Court (Original Side), to order an interim injunction restraining the 1st respondent, 1st defendant, from selling or encumbering or in any way alienating the suit property fully described in the Schedule to Judge's Summons, pending C.S.No.597 of 1991, on the file of the High Court, (Original Side), Madras.

R. Gandhi, Senior Counsel, for Mr. A.A. Lawrence, for Appellant.

N.S. Nandakumar, K. Singaravelu, for Respondent No.1.

T. Arulraj, for Respondent No.2.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by

MLJ 9

Mishra, J.:- The first defendant in a suit on the Original Side of the court has appealed against an order of injunction issued in terms as follows:

"That the interim order of the court herein dated 13.6.1991 directing the respondents herein not to encumber or alienate the property more fully set out in the schedule hereto, in any manner to third parties and extended till 27.6.1991 by order dated 20.6.1991 be and is hereby made absolute till the disposal of the above suit C.S.No.597 of 1991."

2. The plaintiff/first respondent and the second defendant/second respondent have a common cause in the injunction petition. For the purpose of appreciating the nature of the dispute between the parties, we may refer to the contents of the plaint and if necessary to the affidavits filed in the course of the hearing of the injunction petition. We do not, however, have the advantage of the written statement of the first defendant/appellant. We shall, however, for the purpose of deciding the question of injunction, accept the allegations in the supporting affidavit as uncontroverted.

3. According to the plaintiff, he and defendants 1 and 2 have been dealing in real estate within and outside the jurisdiction of this Court independently and/or in partnership with one another in respect of any particular transaction. They purchased land, developed it as an approved lay-out and sell the lay-out plots to third parties and share not profits arising out of those transactions, depending upon the agreed share of investment and the share of profit fixed therefor. It is said, in the course of such business activity, the first defendant/appellant approached the plaintiff and the second defendant to do business in partnership of developing and selling the land of an extent of 4 acres of approved lay-out. This land is fully described in the schedule to the plaint. It is alleged,

"The first defendant agreed to give to the plaintiff and the 2nd defendant 1/5 share each in the profits of the sale proceeds of the suit property as lay-out plots. The 1st defendant is entitled to 3/5 share in the said profits. The abovesaid business of partnership between the plaintiff and the 1st defendant on the one hand and the 1st defendant and second defendant on the other hand, is confirmed by the 1st defendant in separate agreements dated 16.4.1988 and 8.8.1988. The partnership business of the plaintiff and defendants came into existence in the following way:

The plaintiff states that the 1st defendant represented that the suit property was originally the trust property of Sithi Puthi Vinayakar Temple of Navanerikuppam Village and the 1st defendant along with one Radhakrishnan entered into an agreement of sale dated 17.10.1983 with the Trustees of the said temple fixing the sale price of the suit property at Rs.4,93,500 and that the Trustees filed O.P.No.14 of 1985 on the file of the District Court, Chingleput for getting permission to sell the suit property and that the court has also granted permission on 30.7.1985 and that subsequently dispute arose between them and that therefore the 1st defendant and the said Radhakrishnan were not able to purchase the suit property.

The plaintiff states that by making such representation during the pendency of the aforesaid O.P.No.14 of 1985 the 1st defendant approached the plaintiff to do business in partnership for developing the suit property as a lay-out and to share the profit by selling the same. The 1st defendant requested the plaintiff for contribution of part of sale consideration to purchase the suit property from the trustees of the temple agreeing to pay 1/5 of the profits of sale of lay-out plots. Believing the said representation of the 1st defendant, the plaintiff paid a sum of Rs.1,00,000 (one lakh only) on 28.9.1987 for purchase of the suit property and the 1st defendant also issued a stamped receipt therefor. In the said receipt itself the 1st defendant admitted to give 1/5 share of profits to the plaintiff. Subsequently the 1st defendant executed an agreement dated 8.8.1988 incorporating the business of partnership and the share of profits as stated above between the plaintiff and the 1st defendant.

The plaintiff states that the 1st defendant subsequently represented to the plaintiff that the 1st defendant has entered into similar partnership with the 2nd defendant agreeing to pay to him 1/5 share in the business of selling the suit property for which the 2nd defendant has also paid a sum of Rs.1,00,000 (one lakh only) and the 1st defendant had also entered into an agreement dated 16.4.1988 for sharing the profits as stated above with the 2nd defendant.

Thus the 1st defendant entered into a partnership with the plaintiff and 2nd defendant by separate agreements agreeing to pay 1/5 share each from selling the suit property as lay out plots. Originally before the suit property was purchased for the partnership, the first defendant has mentioned estimated value of the suit property as Rs.10,00,075 and the share of the plaintiff and defendant is mentioned as Rs.1,00,001 each. It is agreed that after defraying the aforesaid sums, the profit will be shared in the ratio. However, now the property was purchased only for a sum of Rs.4,46,800. Therefore, the estimated value of Rs.10,00,075 has no bearing for taking away the share capital of partners. The plaintiff states that after the receipt of the aforesaid sums from plaintiff and second defendant towards the partnership business the plaintiff prosecuted O.P.No.14 of 1985 for getting permission to purchase the property from the Trustees of the temple. As represented by the first defendant after entering into the compromise on 15.2.1990 with his co-agreement vendee namely Radhakrishnan and the Trustees of the temple, the 1st defendant was able to complete the formalities of getting permission from the court and to obtain the sale deed dated 12.3.1990 in respect of the suit partnership property. The 1st defendant gave the agreement dated 16.4.1988 between 1st defendant and second defendant and the xerox copy of the sale deed to the plaintiff." (underlining is ours).

4. Alleging that the first defendant, all of a sudden made a publication in the English daily "The Hindu" dated 15.7.1990 notifying the suit property for sale giving a phone number 652763 for contact by intending purchaser of the suit property and that hitherto the first defendant used to give the phone No.610359 of the 2nd defendant alone for contact in person of business of partnership property by the intending developers, purchasers etc., which conduct of the first defendant is against the principles of Partnership and destructive of the partnership business itself, and for the reason that the plaintiff came to know that the representations made by the 1st defendant from 1987 onwards was with a fraudulent intention of cheating the plaintiff and the second defendant, the plaintiff has moved this Court for a decree inter alia that the partnership of the plaintiff and defendants to carry on the business of laying out and selling the suit property may be dissolved as and from the date of suit and that the suit property being the asset of the partnership, may be divided into one fifth, three-fifth and one-fifth between the plaintiff, the first defendant and the second defendant by appointing a Commissioner therefor. The plaintiff/respondent also moved the court for an order of injunction. A learned single Judge of this Court granted injunction as above.

5. Before we advert to consider whether on the facts as above in the plaint, any case for the grant of injunction in terms as ordered by the trial court has been made out, we shall prefer to recapitulate the ambit and scope of a suit for dissolution of partnership and find out from a glance to the relevant provisions of law as to what constitutes an asset of the partnership and how far a partner can go claiming interest in the properties that belong to the partnership and how far a court can enjoin a partner with respect to the properties of the partnership and with respect to the properties which do not belong to the partnership.

6. The Indian Partnership Act has defined partnership, partner, firm and firm name to identify the relationship between persons, who have agreed to share the profits of a business carried on by all or any of them acting for all. Sec.5 of this Act says, "The relation of partnership arises from contract and not from status; and, in particular, the members of a Hindu undivided family carrying on a family business as such, or a Burmese Buddhist husband and wife carrying on business as such, are not partners in such business."

7. Sec.6 of this Act indicates the mode of determining existence of partnership in these words:

"In determining whether a group of persons is or is not a firm, or whether a person is or is not a partner in a firm, regard shall be had to the real relation between the parties, as shown by all relevant facts taken together.

Explanation 1: The sharing of profits of gross returns arising from property by persons holding a joint or common interest in that property does not of itself make such persons partners.

Explanation 2: The receipt by a person of a share of the profits of a business, or of a payment contingent upon the earning of profits or varying with the profits earned by a business, does not of itself make him a partner with the persons carrying on the business; and, in particular, the receipt of such share of payment: (a) by a lender of money to persons engaged or about to engage in any business,

(b) by a servant or agent as remuneration,

(c) by the widow of child of a deceased, partner, as annuity or

(d) by a previous owner or part owner of the business, as consideration for the sale of the goodwill or share thereof, does not of itself make the receiver a partner with the persons carrying on the business."

8. Sec.14 of this Act describes the property of the firm in these words:

"Subject to contract between the partners, the property of the firm includes all property and rights and interest in property originally brought into the stock of the firm, or acquired, by purchase or otherwise, by or for the firm, or for the purpose and in the course of the business of the firm, and includes also the goodwill of the business. Unless the contrary intention appears, property and rights and interests in property acquired with money belonging to the firm are deemed to have been acquired for the firm."

9. These provisions thus give us a definite idea to know whether a partnership is in existence and as to what is the property of the partnership. The sharing of profits or of gross returns arising from property by persons holding a joint or common interest in the property does not of itself make such persons as partners. The receipt by a person of a share of the profits of a business or of a payment contingent upon the earning of profits or varying with the profits earned by a business, does not of itself make him a partner with the persons carrying on the business, more so, if such a person is the lender of money to persons engaged or about to engage in any business and other instances indicated in Explanation 2. To constitute a property of the firm, it must be shown that the rights and interests in property have been brought into the stock of the firm by the partners originally when the firm was formed or subsequently acquired by purchase or otherwise in the course of the business of the firm.

10. Sec.37 of the Specific Relief Act says that temporary injunctions are such as to continue until a specified time, or until further order of the court, and they may be granted at any stage of a suit, and are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, Sec.41(e) of this Act says,

"An injunction cannot be granted to prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which would not be specifically enforced."

11. In the course of the hearing of the injunction petition in the trial court, some documents were produced in support of the plaint allegations. Such documents have been dealt with by the learned single Judge and for our purpose, it will be enough that we extract from the judgment of the trial court the contents thereof and the findings thereon.

"The typed set filed on behalf of the first defendant/respondent contains the copies of various letters and agreements and among one was the sale agreement dated 28.9.1987, executed between the first defendant, herein as No.1 and the plaintiff herein as No.2 and that this document has been titled as land sale agreement. Referring the suit property in this agreement, as having been purchased by the first defendant, it was specifically pointed out that for the purpose of paying the money to get the sale deed in the District Court at Chengalpattu to purchase the suit property it appears that the first defendant had obtained a sum of Rs.1,00,001 by cash. It appears from the said document that the suit property was valued on the said date for Rs.1,00,075 and further it was agreed that the said property is to be converted into plots and sold away to third parties and the first defendant has agreed to give 1/5 share in the property derived out of the said sale of the suit property. Then this document was followed by the execution of another receipt by the first defendant on 16.4.1988 in favour of the second defendant herein for the receipt of Rs.1,00,001 in token and consideration of an agreement executed by themselves in the stamp papers on 16.9.1988. Then a similar agreement was entered into between the first and second defendant to share the 1/5 profit to the second defendant from the profit derived out of the sale of the suit property and that this agreement was executed on 16.4.1988 with the value given for the suit property at Rs.10,75,000.

One another document which was relied upon by the first defendant as well as the plaintiff is a document executed by the first defendant herein to the plaintiff on 8.8.1988 and that in which the first document and the receipt of Rs.1,00,001 from the plaintiff has been referred to which was paid to him for the purchase of the suit property, Further, in the said document, it was recited as follows as agreed by the first plaintiff:

திரு ராமாநாயுடு பெற்றுக் கொண்ட ரூ.1,00,001/-க்காக மேற்கண்ட சர்வே நெம்பர் 11ல் இருக்கும் 4 ஏக்கர் நிலத்தை திரு பார்த்தசாரதி அவர்களுடன் கூட்டு வியாபாரம் செய்து பிளாட்டுக்களாக போட்டு வியாபாரம் செய்ய ஒப்புக் கொண்டார். அதன் விபரம் வருமாறு:

"1987ம் செப்டம்பர் மாதம் 28ஆம் தேதி மேற்கண்ட நிலத்தின் மதிப்பு ரூ.10,75,000/- (ரூபாய் பத்து லட்சத்து எழுபத்தைந்தாயிரம்) இதை விற்கும் சமயத்தில் எந்த விலைக்குப் போகிறதோ அந்த விலையில் இருந்து ரூ.10,75,000/- ரூபாய்யைக் கழித்துக் கொண்டு கிடைக்கும் நிகர லாபத்தில் 1/5 பாகத்தை (ஐந்தில் ஒரு பாகத்தையும்) அசலாகிய ரூ.1,00,001/- (ரூபாய் ஒரு லட்சத்து ஒன்று) உடன் சேர்த்து இரண்டாம் பார்ட்டியாகிய திரு பார்த்தசாரதி அவர்களுக்கு கொடுக்க முழு மனதோடு சம்மதித்து முதல் பார்ட்டியாகிய நான் (ராமாநாயுடு) எழுதிக் கொடுத்த பத்திரம்."

This document clearly speaks for the truth that, upon which the plaintiff and the first defendant had agreed upon already with regard to the suit property. It was made clinchingly clear that for the purpose of purchasing the suit property in the name of the first defendant, the sum of Rs.1,00,001 was contributed by the plaintiff and that for which the first defendant has agreed to give 1/5 share in the profit derived out of the sale of the said land by any 3rd party after converting into plots and that even so the specific words stipulated therein.

"திரு ராமாநாயுடு அவர்கள் பெற்றுக் கொண்ட ரூ.1,00,001/- மேற்கண்ட சர்வே நெம்பர் 11ல் இருக்கும் 4 ஏக்கர் நிலத்தை திரு பார்த்தசாரதி அவர்களுடன் கூட்டு வியாபாரம் செய்து பிளாட்டுக்களாக போட்டு வியாபாரம் செய்ய ஒப்புக் கொண்டுள்ளார்."

The above words clearly manifest the intention of the parties, when it was reduced into writing. There was no denial on the part of the first defendant that he has not received the amount of Rs.1,00,001 from the plaintiff and the first defendant respectively. Thus, a careful perusal and consideration of the documents relied on by the first defendant clearly demonstrate the fact that what was agreed upon between the defendants and the plaintiff was only a partnership business in purchasing the suit property in the name of the first defendant and for that purpose, he got the contribution from the plaintiff and purchased the same at the value prevailing on that date and agreed to sell away at Rs.10,75,000 subsequently and that thereupon to share the profit also in accordance with the ratio of the contribution. Through this document, the truth has come out and the pleadings as well as the case of the plaintiff brought so far has been substantiated prima facie by the plaintiff herein.

It is true that there was no written partnership deed among the plaintiff and the defendants herein with regard to the business of purchasing the lands and converting the same into plots and sell it away to third parties for profits. But, this fact has not been suppressed by the plaintiff. But even so, the documents, relied upon by the first defendant, clinches the fact of the agreement of partnership, business among the parties herein relating to the suit property by converting into plots followed by the approval by the authorities and selling it away to third parties for profit and share them in proportion to their respective contribution made among themselves."

To begin thus to consider whether there has been a partnership, it has to be seen that there is no written partnership deed among the plaintiff and the defendants with regard to the business of purchasing the land, converting the same into plots and selling it away to third parties for profits (see the finding quoted above of the trial court). 12. There is no material on record to show anything beyond a certain stipulation that the first defendant/appellant has agreed to share profits or gross returns arising from the sale of the suit land. There is nothing also to show that the plaintiff and the second defendant have been holding a joint or common interest in the suit land with the first defendant/appellant.

13. The first document dated 8.8.1988 showing that the plaintiff paid a sum of Rs.1,00,001 to the first defendant for the purchase of the suit property shows that the first defendant had agreed that he would give one-fifth share in the profit derived out of the sale of the land by any third party after converting into plots. The plaint recital is also clear that the first defendant purchased the suit land from the trustees of the Siddhi Puddhi Vinayagar Temple of Navaverikuppam (vide: sale deed dated 12.3.1990) after permission in O.P.No.14 of 1985 granted by Court and after compromise on 15.2.1990 with the co-agreement vendee Radhakrishnan and the trustees of the temple. There is nothing on record to show, assuming that some sort of partnership was created, that the suit property was either originally brought by the partners into the stock of the partnership or subsequently acquired by purchase or otherwise in the course of the business of the firm. In fact, it is nobody's case that the suit land was purchased in the course of the business of the firm or out of any fund of the partnership. If there has been a partnership between the plaintiff and the first defendant, that had nothing to do with the partnership which the first defendant had with the second defendant. The common link in the two partnerships (if at all there has been a partnership) is missing. The first defendant no doubt is the purchaser/owner of the suit property, but he neither gave the property to the partnership which he created with the plaintiff nor he gave that property to the partnership which he created with the second defendant. There is also nothing on record to know as to when and how a partnership between and there was created, the so-called partnership which is sought to be dissolved in the suit.

14. Viewed, however, independent of the merit of the claim of the plaintiff that the suit property is a partnership property and confining our consideration only to the prayer of injunction we cannot fail to take notice of the attempt of the plaintiff to seek enforcement of a so-called contract of partnership after it is dissolved by the plaintiff himself by his act of moving in the court for its dissolution and in the course of this attempt to enforce the contract, to keep the property which belongs to the first defendant/appellant in a status quo so that the relief of profit that he would have received as a consequence of the contract executed by the first defendant should not be denied to him. This is a prayer opposed to the rule in Sec.41(e) of the Specific Relief Act. If at all there is a breach of the contract of partnership by the first defendant, the question that would arise is, can the contract specifically be enforced by a decree of the court? If it could be specifically enforced, then only injunction could be asked for to prevent the breach.

15. Learned trial Judge, however, held that the plaintiff has prima facie established that the suit transaction is a partnership business and that the plaintiff and the defendant herein are the partners of the suit property in purchasing, converting and developing into plots and selling the same to third parties for profit and that they have agreed to share the profits derived out of the said sale in accordance with the ratio of their respective contributions. We fail to understand how the learned trial Judge has come to the conclusion that the plaintiff and the defendants are partners of the suit property particularly when the facts in this behalf are clear and unambiguous that the first defendant/appellant approached the plaintiff promising to give one-fifth share in the profits derived out of the sale of the suit land and getting a sum of Rs.1,00,000 from him. Similarly, under a separate agreement, he received a sum of Rs.1,00,000 from the second defendant and promised to give him one-fifth share in the profits derived out of the sale of the land. Having so obtained Rs.1,00,000 each from the plaintiff and the second defendant, he finalised the purchase of the suit land and obtained a sale deed dated 12.3.1990 in respect of the suit property in his name from the trustees of the temple (Vendors). There has been thus no partnership in purchase. If at all there has been anything, that was borrowing of Rs.1,00,000 from the plaintiff and another sum of Rs.1,00,000 from the second defendant on a promise that he shall share one-fifth of the profit when the land would be sold after laying out the land as house plots.

16. Once it is found that there has been no partnership in purchasing the land, even if it is found that there has been some sort of partnership between plaintiff and the first defendant on the one hand and between the first defendant and the second defendant on the other hand and by guess between the three that is to say, the plaintiff, the first defendant and the second defendant, that was confined to sharing the profits to the extent of one-fifth, three-fifth and one-fifth respectively. This partnership also is sought to be dissolved. The result is, if there has been any business of a sale of any portion of the suit property before the suit, there shall be profit to the plaintiff as well as to the second defendant to share with the first defendant/appellant and if there shall be any business during the pendency of the suit and there is a profit, there shall be such sharing by way of accounting. Injunction will bring the business to a standstill. If there shall be no business, there shall be no profit. There shall be nothing to share. That there has been nothing to share before the suit is admitted in the plaint. Since there has been no business before the suit, there is nothing to share between the so-called partners. Something to share will arise, as we have noticed earlier, only if there is a sale. There is some material brought before us to show that some agreement of sale has been executed by the first defendant in favour of some persons who are described by the second defendant/respondent as kins of the first defendant. Nonetheless they are third parties. It is not known whether they have acquired a right under the contract of sale to get the same specifically enforced. Any grant of Injunction in the absence of such intending purchasers, who entered into an agreement with the first defendant, will affect their right as well.

17. It is not necessary, in our opinion, to go beyond what we have already found, to refuse the prayer of injunction on behalf of the plaintiff. But we cannot resist making some observations that besides the question whether there is a prima facie case, it is always necessary in a case of temporary injunction to bear in mind the cardinal principles of balance of convenience and irreparable injury. Parties, it appears, failed to address the trial court on the question of balance of convenience. There has, however, been some attempt before us on behalf of the respondents (plaintiff and the second defendant) to raise the issue of equity, a rule which is the foremost part of the rule of balance of convenience. This Court has in a number of cases indicated how the rule of balance of convenience is applied. We shall only be repeating but we must quote a passage from the Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edn., Volume 21, p.765 at page 365.

"Where any doubt exists as to the plaintiff's right, or if his right is not disputed, but its violation is denied, the Court, in determining whether an interlocutory injunction should be granted, takes into consideration the balance of convenience to the parties and the nature of the injury which the defendant, on the one hand, would suffer if the injunction was granted and he should ultimately turn out to be right, and that which the plaintiff, on the other hand, might sustain if the injunction was refused and he should ultimately turn out to be right, the burden of proof that the inconvenience which the plaintiff will suffer by the refusal of the injunction is greater than that which the defendant will suffer, if it is granted, lies on the plaintiff."

18. There has been no attempt by the learned trial Judge to find out how this balance tilted in favour of the plaintiff and the second defendant if injunction was refused and how, if injunction was granted, inconvenience caused to the first defendant/appellant was lesser than the inconvenience caused to the plaintiff and the second defendant. The view that we have taken leads us to one irresistible conclusion that the inconvenience which the first defendant/appellant will suffer if injunction is granted will be far greater than that which the plaintiff will suffer and this alone in our view, is enough to refuse the prayer of injunction.

19. Before we part with this judgment, we must in appreciation of the efforts of the learned counsel for the plaintiff/respondent, deal with the case law brought to our notice.

20. In Narayanappa v. Bhaskara Krishnappa, (1966) 2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 80: (1966) 2 An.W.R. (S.C.) 80: (1966) 2 S.C.J. 490: A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1300, it is pointed out with reference to some of the provisions of the Partnership Act that all property originally brought into the stock of the firm or acquired by the firm in the course of the business of the firm constitutes the assets of the partnership. On the facts of the case before the Court, the Supreme Court has observed,

"From a perusal of these provisions it would be abundantly clear that whatever may be the character of the property which is brought in by the partners when the partnership is formed or which may be acquired in the course of the business of the partnership it becomes the property of the firm and what a partner is entitled to is his share of profits, if any, accruing to the partnership from the realisation of this property, and upon dissolution of the partnership to a share in the money representing the value of the property. No doubt, since a firm has no legal existence, the partnership property will vest in all the partners and in that sense every partner has an interest in the property of the partnership. During the subsistence of the partnership, however, no partner can deal with any portion of the property as his own. Nor can he assign his interest in a specific item of the partnership property to anyone. His right is to obtain such profits, if any, as fall to his share from time to time and upon the dissolution of the firm to a share in the assets of the firm which remain after satisfying the liabilities set out in Clause (a) and sub-Clauses (i), (ii) and (iii) of Clause (b) of Sec.48."

21. There can be no exception to the statement of law by the Supreme Court but before such restraint as indicated by the Supreme Court is applied to the partners, it has to be found that the property belongs to the partnership. The case in hand, in our opinion, is one in which it is still in doubt whether the property in dispute is a partnership property.

22. In C.R.R. Gowder v. C.P. Nanjappa, (1973) 1 M.L.J. 189: A.I.R. 1973 Mad. 179, also, the same view has been expressed in these words:

"In the present case the property in question was purchased in 1909 and Desai Gownder was living in the property. Ramiah was also associated with Desai Gownder even during his lifetime and he was living in the same property. After the reconstruction of the house by utilisation of partnership funds, Ramiah, one of the partners of the firm, was living in the same property. The mere fact that it was not shown in the balance-sheets of the firm as partnership property, will not alter the character of the property and the further circumstances that the Arbitrator who decided the disputes between the plaintiff and his brothers made an award on basis that the suit property is the separate property belonging to Ponniah and divisible among the plaintiff and others also will (not) alter the character of the property. The fact that the suit property was the subject of division will not alter the character of the property, as there is no decision on that question. The mere fact that the muchalika by the three brothers requesting Sr.C.S.Rathnasabapathy Mudaliar to effect a division was attested by Ramiah will not to an admission that the suit property belonged to Ponniah alone. On the other hand, Ramiah's occupation of the suit house even prior to the death of Desai Gownder is a circumstance to be taken into account in ascertaining whether the plaintiff is the owner."

23. The above observations were made after taking notice of the various authorities and the provisions of the Partnership Act and the principle that unless a contrary intention appears by an express agreement or by the nature of the transaction, property bought with money belonging to the firm is deemed to have been bought for the firm.

24. A Judgment, however, of the Special Bench of the Mysore High Court in the case of I.J.J. Rebello v. C.C. Rev. Authority, A.I.R. 1971 Mysore 318, has expressed this aspect of the law in these words:

"The concept of partnership is to embark upon a joint venture and for that purpose to bring in as capital, money or property including immovable property. When it is shown that property, whatever its character is brought into the common stock of the partnership firm. It would cease to be the exclusive property of the person who brought it in and it would be the trading asset of the partnership in which all the partners would have interest in proportion to their share in the joint venture of the business of the partnership. Since the firm has no legal existence, the partnership property will vest in all the partners. The provisions of the Indian Partnership Act, 1932 do not prescribe any particular mode by which properties whether movable or immovable have to be brought into common stock. For the purpose of bringing the separate property of a partner into the common stock of the firm. It is not necessary to have recourse to any written document at all.

As soon as the partners intend that their separate properties should become the partnership properties and they are treated as such, then by virtue of the provisions of the Partnership Act the properties become the properties of the firm. This result follows by operation of law. This sort of contribution or transfer is not prohibited by the Transfer of Property Act or the Registration Act (vide: Pren Raj Brahmin v. Bhani Ram Brahmin, I.L.R. (1846) 1 Cal. 191 at pp.193-194.

Though under law a written document is not necessary to bring in the separate property of a partner into the partnership stock and such property becomes the property of the firm when the partner intends to bring it and treat the same as such, where a document is executed by a partner as a formal conveyance, the question is not whether the contribution or transfer could not be effected otherwise than by execution of a document but whether the document is a conveyance, as defined under Sec.2(1)(d) of the Act. The Act subjects to duty the instruments falling within the description of documents specified in the schedule and for fixing the duty payable, the substance of the document should be looked into.

A partner can sell his property to a partnership firm which includes himself as a member. Whether the partner sold his property or he contributed the property to the common stock is a question which would depend upon his intention and on the language of the document. Where the document contains no words whatever of a dispositive character which expressly or by necessary implication, amount to a transfer of interest as between one partner and the others, there is irresistible conclusion that the properties were brought into the common stock."

25. We are in complete agreement with the view of the Special Bench and we have not deviated from the principles stated therein.

26. Our conclusions on facts, however, are such that we are constrained to hold that any right of the plaintiff in the suit is in serious dispute and it will be difficult to say that there is a prima facie case. In any case, in our view, the balance of convenience is in favour of the first defendant/appellant. The impugned judgment, in our opinion, is not in accordance with law. The same is accordingly set aside. We, however, make it clear that any observations on the merits of the case of the plaintiff in our judgment, shall not be taken into account in the course of the trial of the suit. The appeal is, therefore, allowed. No costs.

B.S.

Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

S.A.No.753 of 1981 10th December, 1991.

G.S.Ramachar ...Appellant
v.
The Block Development Officer, Kaveripatnam and others ...Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.39, Rule 7 - Mandatory injunction - Grant of - Plaintiff guilty of laches, not entitled to mandatory injunction.

Held:- Even before the suit, a notice was issued under Ex.A-1 dated 12.12.1972. In that notice it was stated that the respondents 1 to 3 were trying to trespass on the property and form a road. The respondents 1 to 3 were threatened with a suit if they failed to comply with the demand made in the said notice within two months therefrom. Yet the suit was filed only on 30.1.1975. In paragraph 16 of the plaint, it is stated that the road was completed by the respondents 1 to 3 from the point 'X' to 'Y'. It is further stated that the plaintiffs are entitled to damages at least at Rs.100 per year from the defendants from December, 1972 to December, 1974. Thus, there is an admission that the road was completed in December, 1972. Therefore, it is clear that the plaintiffs were guilty of laches. They should have taken steps even when there was an attempt on the part of the defendants to form a road and obtained an injunction restraining them from forming the road. Having allowed the Authorities to spend lot of public money for forming the road, it is not open to the plaintiffs to ask for mandatory injunction. The relief of mandatory injunction is discretionary and the lower appellate court applied the correct principles of law in refusing to grant the mandatory injunction. [Para 2] Mrs.Prabha Sridevan, for Appellant.
M.Venugopal, Government Advocate, for Respondent Nos.1 to 3.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- When the appeal was called, Mrs.Prabha Sridevan, learned counsel for the appellant, reported that the 8th defendant, who is the 6th respondent in the appeal, died and that she has filed an application to bring his legal representatives on record. I find that the 6th respondent herein who was the 8th defendant in the suit remained ex parte in both the courts below. In this second appeal, no notice was issued to him and the counsel got it dispensed with under O.41, Rule 14 of the Code of Civil Procedure. It is also seen that the prayer in the plaint is not only on behalf of the plaintiffs but also on behalf of defendants 8 and 9. Thus, the deceased defendant was sailing with the plaintiffs and there was no contest as among them. In these circumstances, there is no necessity to bring the legal representatives of the 6th respondent (8th defendant) on record in this second appeal. Under O.22, Rule 4(4), C.P.C., the court can exempt, whenever it thinks fit, the plaintiffs from the necessity of substituting the legal representatives of any such defendant who had remained ex parte. Hence, there is no necessity for the plaintiff to bring the legal representatives of the 6th respondent (8th defendant) on record in this second appeal.

2. The second appeal is taken up for hearing. There is no merit in this appeal. The courts below have declared the title of the plaintiffs to the property in question. But the lower appellate court has found that the plaintiffs are not entitled to mandatory injunction in view of their conduct in keeping quiet when the respondents 1 to 3 formed the road. Even before the suit, a notice was issued under Ex.A-1, dated 12.12.1972. In that notice, it was stated that the respondents 1 to 3 were trying to trespass on the property and form a road. The respondents 1 to 3 were threatened with a suit if they failed to comply with the demand made in the said notice within two months therefrom. Yet the suit was filed only on 30.1.1975. In paragraph 16 of the plaint, it is stated that the road was completed by the respondents 1 to 3 from the point 'X' to 'Y'. It is further stated that the plaintiffs are entitled to damages at least at Rs.100 per year from the defendants from December, 1972 to December, 1974. Thus, there is an admission that the road was completed in December, 1972. Therefore, it is clear that the plaintiffs were guilty of laches. They should have taken steps even when there was an attempt on the part of the defendants to form a road and obtained an injunction restraining them from forming the road. Having allowed the authorities to spend a lot of public money for forming the road, it is not open to the plaintiffs to ask for mandatory injunction. The relief of mandatory injunction is discretionary and the lower appellate court has applied the correct principles of law in refusing to grant the mandatory injunction.

3. It is next contended that the plaintiffs are entitled to claim more damages than what is granted by the lower appellate court. I find that the plaintiffs have claimed only Rs.200 in the prayer portion though in the body of the plaint they had mentioned that they were entitled to damages at the rate of Rs.100 per year. The learned judge has granted more than the amount claimed. But there is no cross-objections or cross-appeal at the instance of the respondents. I am not inclined to interfere with the grant of compensation in favour of the plaintiffs by enhancing the same.

4. The second appeal fails and the same is dismissed. No costs.

B.S. ---- Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Mishra and Swamidurai, JJ.

O.S.A.No.113 of 1985 11th March, 1992.

M.Chettyappan and others ...Appellants
v.

State Bank of India, Nungambakkam Branch, Madras-34 ...Respondent.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), Secs.140 and 141 - Principal debtor obtaining loan from Bank - Goods, produce and merchandise offered as security - Security bond executed - Executing shipping agreement in respect of stock of Canned srimpsere letter of undertaking to hold in trust all the goods pledged to the bank - Persons in management of company - Playing fraud and depriving bank of the securities - Bank if can claim full debt from sureties - Sureties whether discharged to extent of security lost to Bank - Rights of sureties.

The plaintiff bank entered into a contract of cash credit loan to an extent of Rs.3,00,000 and medium term loan to an extent of Rs.75,000 on the hypothecation of the schedule of properties with the principal debtor, first defendant, a company, carrying on business in processing and exporting sea goods Defendants 2 and 3 who were then directors of the company stood surety for the cash credit loan to the company and defendants 3 and 4 stood surety for the medium term loan. Subsequently defendants 2 and 3 resigned from the directorship. One 'A' and 'P' entered as new directors. They passed a letter to defendants 2 and 3 with regard to the discharge of the loan due to the plaintiff. As the loans were outstanding, the Bank filed a suit against defendants 1 to 3 for the cash credit loan and against defendants 1, 3 and 4 for the short term loan. Suit decreed. On appeal, Held:- It is not in the language of Sec.140 or Sec.141 of the Indian Contract Act that the court will always endeavour to find out whether the creditor was in actual custody of the security or not and that it was only on account of the negligence of the creditor that the security was lost. The provision in Sec.140 invests the surety with the same rights which the creditor had against the principal debtor and thus puts him in the same position as the creditor realises his debt from the principal debtor including in all such rights which the creditor had in the properties that were offered as securities. Unless such transfer of security is also read in Sec.140 of the Contract Act, there shall be always a chance of a creditor suing the surety and in the meanwhile the principal debtor appropriating or removing every security so that in the event of the surety paying or performing all that he is liable for, he is denied the benefits of the right of the creditor that is conferred upon him by virtue of a statute. Sec.141 read in the context as the Supreme Court has read in State of Madhya Pradesh v. Kaluram, (1967)2 S.C.J. 823: (1967)1 S.C.R. 226: 1967 Lab.L.J. 55: A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1105, thus entitles the surety to the benefit of every security which the creditor has against the principal debtor at the time when the contract for suretyship is entered into. The qualifying words 'whether the surety known of the existence of such security or not' keep the surety in inevitable position in relation to the creditor as all rights of the creditor as per Sec.140 would vest in him upon payment or performance of all that he is liable for. The other co-ordinating part of Sec.141 reads 'and if the creditor loses or without the consent of the surety parts with the security, the surety is discharged to the extent of the value of the security. The loss that can be discharged by the surety to the extent of the value of the security has also been illustrated. The illustration has some similarity with the case in hand. It is found in Exs.P-2, P-3, P-4 and P-5 that the cash-credit loan was sanctioned on the security of the goods, produce and merchandise and the stock of canned shrimps was required to be stored in such place and in such manner as the Bank may from time to time approve. The first defendant company held in trust solely for the plaintiff Bank the goods pledged and the documents of title thereto in their absolute control, possession and disposition free of any charge, lies or other encumbrance and to keep the goods fully insured against loss or damage by fire, riot, civil commotion therefor, pilferage, etc., This shows that the security against loss even on account of theft, pilferage etc., must be found in the hands of the creditor. The creditor cannot escape liability by saying that he has not ensured that the first defendant company had kept all the goods insured against loss or damage by fire, riot, civil commotion theft, pilferage etc., It will be for the creditor, thus, to say how the security was lost and in case of loss the amount of insurance that must be found to accrue to the surety and the surety must accordingly be found to have been discharged to the extent of the insurance. If there is no insurance, it is obvious, it is on account of the negligence of the creditor-Bank. If there is insurance, there is security and the surety must be deemed to have been discharged to that extent. Negligence need not always be inferred from a positive act. It can be inferred also from omission. If the creditor has omitted to do something which he had to do, to keep the security for the surety in the event of the creditor claiming the debt from the surety, the creditor has to account for the loss. The burden is obviously on the creditor to satisfy the court that it has no liability under sec.141 of the Act or under Sec.140 thereof to the extent of the security and that notwithstanding the loss of the security it can still claim the debt from the surety. [Paras 15 and 16]

Cases referred to:

State of Madhya Pradesh v. Kaluram, (1967) 2 S.C.J. 823: (1967) 1 S.C.R. 266: 1967 Lab.L.J. 55: A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1105. [Paras 8, 12]

Billing v. Jay, (1872) 7 Q.B. 756. [Paras 10, 12]

Amrit Lal v. State Bank of Travancore, (1968) 2 S.C.J. 741: A.I.R. 1968 S.C. 1432. [Para 12]

State Bank of Saurashtra v. Chitrangan Ranganath,

A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 1328. [Para 14]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the order of S.A.Kader, J., dated 19.10.1983 and made in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court in C.S.No.442 of 1978.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- Defendants 2 to 4 (third defendant has been substituted by his legal representatives) have appealed. It is not in dispute that the plaintiff-Bank entered into a contract of cash credit loan as well as medium term loan on the hypothecation of the schedule of properties with the principal debtor Messrs. Discon Foods (P) Ltd., (first defendant), a company incorporated under the Indian Companies Act and carrying on business in processing and exporting sea foods. The cash credit limit was Rs.3,00,000 and medium term loan limit was Rs.75,000. Defendants 2 and 3, who were at the relevant time, Directors of the first defendant-company, stood surety for the cash credit loan to the first defendant-company and defendants 3 and 4 stood surety for the medium term loan. This was, however, in April, 1974, and continued until, it is said, the second defendant resigned from the directorship of the first defendant Company on 19.7.1974 and the third defendant resigned from the directorship with effect from 27.10.1975. It appears that one M.C.Agarwal and Mrs.Pushpa Agarwal entered as new directors and passed a letter dated 22.11.1975 to defendants 2 and 3 with regard to the discharge of the loan due to the plaintiff.

2. According to the defendants, when the Agarwals took over, they entered into some sort of arrangement with the creditor Bank and thus they stood discharged as sureties. The creditor Bank found that the principal debtor had not cleared the cash credit loan amounting to Rs.2,14,379.22 and medium term loan amounting to Rs.48,701.61. Hence, it filed the suit claiming moneys, both principal and interest from defendants 1, 2 and 3 jointly and severally for the cash credit loan and defendants 1, 3 and 4 for the medium term loan.

3. On the main questions that were raised in the suit, whether the novation put forward by defendants 2 and 3 is true, valid and binding on the plaintiff and whether there has been any variation in the terms of the contract between the plaintiff and the first defendant and the sureties are discharged thereby, learned trial Judge has found that the plea of novation set up by defendants 2 to 4 is illusory and that they are not absolved of their liability and there is no material to establish that there has been any variation in the terms of the contract so as to attract the operation of Sec.133 of the Contract Act and discharge the liability of the second defendant.

4. Learned counsel for the appellants has assailed the said finding and taken us through the evidence on record. He has however, not been able to dispute the proposition that in case the defendants/appellants pleaded a novation so as to give rise to a new contract leading to the discharge of the surety or such variation in the terms of the original contract attracting Sec.133 or Sec.135 of the Contract Act, the burden of proof for the same was upon them.

5. Learned trial Judge has looked into all such materials and found the evidence inadequate to hold in agreement with the case of the defendants. We find nothing particular drawn to our notice to take a different view. We shall be only re-writing the judgment of the trial court in this behalf if we record what is stated in Exs.P-2, P-3, P-4, P-5, P-6, P-7, P-9 and P-10 or refer to the evidence of P.W.1, who alone has been examined on this aspect of the matter on behalf of the plaintiff Bank and that of D.Ws.1 and 2, who have been examined on behalf of the defendants along with the documents that have been produced on their behalf particularly Ex.D-5, a letter allegedly written by one Mr.Agarwal (not examined) dated 22.11.1975 as the Managing Director of the first defendant-company to defendants 2 and 3, wherein he has referred to his discussions with the Bank and the proposal given by the company for the repayment of the amounts in instalments. We concur with the findings of the learned trial Judge in this behalf.

6. It is a case however, in our opinion, in which serious notice has to be taken of a plea of discharge of surety to the extent of the security lost to the creditor Bank. It is conceded in the evidence of P.W.1 that the cash credit loan to the extent of Rs.3,00,000 had been sanctioned by the plaintiff-Bank on the security of the goods, produce and merchandise of the first defendant-company for which Ex.P-2 the security bond, had been executed by the first defendant-company. Ex.P-3 is the shipping lien agreement in respect of stock of canned shrimps and other sea foods to be stored in such place and in such manner as the Bank may from time to time approve. Ex.P-4 is the trust letter under which the first defendant-company has undertaken to hold in trust solely for the plaintiff-Bank to keep all the goods pledged to the Bank and the documents of title thereto in their absolute control, possession and disposition, free of any charge, lien or other encumbrance in favour of any other bank or any other person, firm or company and to keep the goods fully insured against loss or damage by fire, riot, civil commotion, theft, pilferage, etc. In respect of the medium term loan Ex.P-6 is the Articles of Agreement pledging the machineries of the first defendant-company set out in the schedule thereto. It was contended before the learned trial Judge, as has been contended before us by the learned counsel for the appellants that as provided under Sec.141 of the Indian Contract Act, a surety is entitled to the benefit of every security which the creditor has against the principal debtor at the time when the contract for suretyship was entered into and if the creditor lost or without the consent of the surety parted with the security, the surety is discharged to the extent of value of the security.

7. P.W.1 has admitted besides admitting the security, that during the last inspection, the Bank found that there was no machinery and found no name board of the company and that there was nothing of security found in the terms as Exs.P-2, P-3, P-4 and P-6 provided for. The learned trial Judge upon that posed the question whether the plaintiff has been so negligent as to lead to the total loss of the security and absolve the liability of the sureties and answered:

"In the case on hand, neither the goods and merchandise nor the machinery were in the actual custody of the plaintiff Bank. They were at Cochin and the persons in the management of the company have played fraud and deprived the plaintiff Bank of the securities. It cannot be said that there was any lack of supervision implying negligence on the part of the plaintiff-bank so as to attract the provisions of Secs.139 and 141 of the Contract Act."

8. In the case of State of Madhya Pradesh v. Kaluram, (1967)2 S.C.J. 823: (1967)1 S.C.R. 266: 1967 Lab.L.J. 55: A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1105, the Supreme Court considered a case of forest contract under which the Government demanded security and it was in terms as extracted.

"Whereas the Governor in order to secure the due performance of conditions of the above contract demanded security from the forest contractor.... undertake to discharge the liability of the forest contractor in case of any act, omission, negligence or default on the part of the forest contractor for any sum which may become payable by the forest contractor to the Governor by or under the conditions of the above contract."

The principal debtor, however, removed almost the entire quantity of trees sold to him, but since he did not pay the remaining three instalments of the price, the State of Madhya Pradesh took proceedings to recover from the agent the amount due by the principal debtor. The sureties started action on the plea that forest authorities gave time to the principal debtor and omitted to take steps which their duty to the surety required them to take and thus the loss so caused, must lead to discharge of the surety. The Supreme Court stated as follows:

".... the facts in the present case make it abundantly clear that it was on account of the conduct of the forest authorities that the security was lost. The goods sold were under the control of the Forest Officers when they were in the coupe and even when they were in the depot of the contractor. The goods could be removed on the production of a pass from the coupe, and even after the goods were removed, unless they were examined and checked they were not at the disposal of the contractor. It is not pleaded by the State that the trees sold were not checked and examined at the depot of the contractor. Knowing that the goods were removed without payment of the instalments, if the Forest authorities checked and examined the goods and took no action for recovery of the amount payable, and did not enforce the charge, it would be difficult to say that there was mere inaction on the part of the forest authorities "

9. The Supreme Court, however, opined about the legal proposition in these words:

"The expression "security" in Sec.141 is not used in any technical sense; it includes all rights which the creditor had against the property at the date of the contract. The surety is entitled on payment of the debt or performance of all that he is liable for, to the benefits of the rights of the creditors against the principal debtor which arise out of the transaction which gives rise to the right or liability; he is therefore on payment of the amount due by the principal debtor entitled to be put in the same position in which the creditor stood in relation to the principal debtor. If the creditor has lost or has parted with the security without the consent of the surety, the latter is, by the express provision contained in Sec.141, discharged to the extent of the value of the security lost or parted with."

10. In this judgment the Supreme Court has quoted with approval the observations by Hannen, J. in Wulff and Billing v. Jay, (1872) 7 Q.B. 756, which run as follows:

"I take it to be established that the defendant became surety upon the faith of there being some real and substantial security pledged, as well as his own credit, to the plaintiff; and he was entitled, therefore to the benefit of that real and substantial security "in the event of his being called on to fulfil his duty as a surety, and to pay the debt for which he had so become surety. He will, however, be discharged from his liability as surety if the creditors have put it out of their power to hand over to the surety the means of recouping himself by the security given by the principal. That doctrine is very clearly expressed in the notes in Ress v. Barrington-2 Whites & Tudor's L.C. 4th Edn. at p.1002-' As a surety on payment of the debt is entitled to all the securities of the creditor, whether he is aware of their existence or not, even though they were given after the contract of suretyship, if the creditor who has had, or ought to have had, them in his full possession or power, loses them or permits them, to get into the possession of the debtor, or does not make them effectual by giving proper notice, the surety to the extent of such security will be discharged. A surety, moreover, will be released if the creditor by reason of what he has done, cannot, on payment by the surety, give him the securities in exactly the same condition as they formerly stood in his hands."

11. The Supreme Court has then added, "subject to certain variations, which are not material for the matter under discussion, Sec.141 of the Contract Act incorporates the rule of English law relating to the discharge from liability of a surety when the creditor parts with or loses the security held by him."

12. In Amrit Lal v. State Bank of Travancore, (1968)2 S.C.J. 741: A.I.R. 1968 S.C. 1432, the Supreme Court has referred to the above judgment and pointed out,

"As pointed out by this Court in State of Madhya Pradesh v. Kaluram, (1967)2 S.C.J. 823: (1967)1 S.C.R. 226: 1967 Lab.L.J. 55: A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1105, the expression "security" in this section is not used in any technical sense; it includes all rights which the creditor has against the property at the date of the contract. The surety is entitled on payment of the debt or performance of all that he is liable for to the benefit of the rights of the creditor against the principal debtor which arise out of the transaction which gives rise to the right or liability. The surety is therefore on payment of the amount due by the principal debtor entitled to be put in the same position in which the creditor stood in relation to the principal debtor. If the creditor has lost or parted with the security without the consent of the surety the latter is by the express provision contained in Sec.141 discharged to the extent of the value of the security lost or parted with. In Wulff and Billing v. Jay, (1872)7 Q.B. 756, Nannen, J. stated the law as follows:.....

11. After saying as above, the Supreme Court in this judgment, has added,

"It is true that Sec.141 of the Indian Contract Act has limited the surety's right to securities held by the creditor at the date of his becoming surety and has modified the English rule that the surety is entitled to the securities given to the creditor both before and after the contract of surety. But subject to this variation, Sec.141 of the Indian Contract Act incorporates the rule of English law relating to the discharge from liability of a surety when the creditor parts with or loses the security held by him."

13. The two judgments of the Supreme Court thus clearly state the law on the subject that a surety shall be entitled to securities held by the creditor at the date of his becoming surety and all such securities thus will accrue to him if he discharged the debt or performed all that he under the terms and conditions of the contract was required to perform.

14. In State Bank of Saurashtra v. Chitranjan Ranganath, A.I.R.1980 S.C. 1328, the Supreme Court considered a case of a Bank giving cash credit facility to a businessman against securities, namely, (1) the pledge of goods to be kept under lock and key under the supervision of the Bank, and (2) personal guarantee of the surety. The Supreme Court noticed that the surety in good faith contracted to offer personal guarantee on the clear understanding that the principal debtor had offered security by way of pledge of goods and the goods were to be in the custody of the creditor-Bank. It was found that the Bank was utterly negligent with regard to the safe keeping and handling of pledged goods and the security of pledged goods was lost on account of the negligence of the Bank. The Supreme Court relied upon its earlier judgments (supra) and made some further examination of the principles of law in this behalf to notice in Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edn., Vol.20, para 280, p.152 the statement of law bearing on this point as under,

"On paying the guaranteed debt the surety is entitled to have all securities held by the creditor for the debt handed over to him by the creditor in exactly the same state and conditions in which they were originally provided, whether they were in existence at the date of the contract of suretyship or came into existence subsequently, Consequently any act of the creditor interfering with or impairing that right will, to the extent at all events of any loss inflicted, relieve the surety from liability, and, if it has the effect of altering or purporting to alter the contract of suretyship, discharge him altogether. Thus, where there is a mortgage security given in respect of a debt which is subsequently guaranteed, the creditor must hold the security for the benefit of surety, so that, on paying the debt, the surety may obtain a transfer of the mortgage in its original unimpaired condition. If the creditor does not fulfil his duty in this respect the surety is discharged."

and added,

"This statement of law is reflected in Secs.140 and 141 of the Act."

15. We have chosen to refer to these salutary principles and statements of law on the subject only to assure ourselves that it is not in the language of Sec.140 or Sec.141 of the Indian Contract Act that the court will always endeavour to find out whether the creditor was in actual custody of the security or not and that it was only on account of the negligence of the creditor that the security was lost. The provision in Sec.140 invests the surety with the same rights which the creditor had against the principal debtor and thus puts him in the same position as the creditor to realise his debt from the principal debtor including in it all such rights which the creditor had in the properties that were offered as securities. Unless such transfer of security is also read in Sec.140 of the Contract Act, there shall be always a chance of a creditor suing the surety and in the meanwhile the principal debtor appropriating or removing every security so that in the event of the surety paying or performing all that he is liable for, he is denied the benefits of the right of the creditor that is conferred upon him by virtue of a statute. Sec.141 read in the same context as the Supreme Court has read thus entitles the surety to the benefit of every security which the creditor has against the principal debtor at the time when the contract for suretyship is entered into. The qualifying words 'whether the surety known of the existence of such security or not' keep the surety in unenviable position in relation to the creditor as all rights of the creditor as per Sec.148 would vest in him upon payment or performance of all that he is liable for. The other co-ordinating part of Sec.141 reads,

'and, if the creditor loses or without the consent of the surety, parts with the security, the surety is discharged to the extent of the value of the security.'

The loss that can be discharged by the surety to the extent of value of the security has been illustrated as follows:

"C advances to B, his tenant, 2,000 rupees on the guarantee of A.C. has also further security for the 2,000 rupees by a mortgage of B's furniture. C cancels the mortgage. B becomes insolvent and C sues A on his guarantee. A is discharged from liability to the amount of the value of the furniture."

The illustration has some similarity with the case in hand. It is found in Exs.P-2, P-3, P-4 and P-5 that the cash-credit loan was sanctioned on the security of the goods, produce and merchandise and the stock of canned shrimps was required to be stored in such place and in such manner as the Bank may from time to time approve. The first defendant company held in trust solely for the plaintiff Bank the goods pledged and the documents of title thereto in their absolute control; possession and disposition free of any charge, lien or other encumbrance and to keep the goods fully insured against loss or damage by fire, riot, civil commotion theft, pilferage, etc., This shows that the security against loss even on account of theft, pilferage etc., must be found in the hands of the creditor. The creditor cannot escape liability by saying that he has not ensured that the first defendant company had kept all the goods insured against loss or damage by fire, riot, civil commotion, theft, pilferage etc. It will be for the creditor, thus, the say to the security was lost and in case of loss the amount of insurance that must be found to accrue to the surety and the surety must accordingly be found to have been discharged to the extent of the insurance. If there is no insurance, it is obvious, it is on account of the negligence of the creditor-Bank. If there is insurance, there is security and the surety must be deemed to have been discharged to that extent.

16. It is thus a case, in our opinion, in which the learned trial Judge was not addressed by either party properly on the question of discharge of surety to the extent of security. It is not to be found anywhere in the records as to what was the extent of the security. It is not available anywhere on the record how the goods were kept and how all goods were insured as required under Exs.P-2, P-3, P-4 and P-5. The sudden conclusion that goods were at godown and the persons in management of the company played fraud and deprived the plaintiff-Bank of the security, will not absolve the creditor-Bank to make good the surety the loss of security. It is also not possible on such facts as above, in the absence of further evidence that may be available to the creditor-Bank that they had taken all care to ensure that conditions of the contract in Exs.P-2, P-3, P-4 and P-6 have been complied with and maintained therein with respect to the goods that were under security. Negligence need not always be inferred from a positive act. It can be inferred also from omission. If the creditor has omitted to do something which he had to do, to keep the security for the surety in the event of the creditor claiming the debt from the surety, the creditor has to account for the loss. The finding in this behalf is hopelessly insufficient. No party, it appears, cared to take notice of the specific provisions of law in Secs.140 and 141 of the Contract Act. The burden is obviously upon the creditor to satisfy the Court that it has no liability under Sec.141 of the Act or under Sec.140 thereof to the extent of the security and that notwithstanding the loss of the security, it can still claim the debt from the surety.

17. We have no other way but to interfere with the impugned judgment and set it aside, but setting aside of the impugned judgment is not going to meet the ends of justice. It is a fit case, in our opinion, in which the matter should be remitted to the trial Court for a re-hearing and if necessary, by affording opportunity to the plaintiff Bank to lead proper evidence and also to afford opportunity to the defendants to enter into further evidence, if any, on the questions as above.

18. In the result, the appeal is allowed. The impugned Judgment and decree are set aside. The case is remitted to the trial Court for a re-hearing and disposal in accordance with law. There shall be no order as to costs.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

C.M.S.A.No.87 of 1986 16th December, 1991.

Vedanayagi ...Appellant
v. ...
Porkilai ...Respondent.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.21, Rule 99 - Decree for mere declaration - Cannot be executed for recovery of possession. [Paras 5 and 6]

G.Masilamani, Senior Counsel, for T.P.Manoharan, for Appellant.

R.Subramanian, for Respondent.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT: This appeal has to be disposed of on a very short ground. This appeal arises out of execution proceedings.

2. The respondent obtained a decree in O.S.F.No.5 of 1968 of the file of the Principal District Munsif, Pondicherry on 6.11.1976. The decree is one for declaration of the respondent's title to the property. The respondent filed execution proceedings and took possession of the property on 13.1.1981. The appellant filed a petition under O.21, Rules

99 and 101, C.P.C., for ordering redelivery of the property. The appellant's case is that the property belongs to her and she is not bound by the decree as she is not a party thereto. The appellant raised a contention that the decree is one for mere declaration and it cannot be executed for recovery of possession.

3. The executing court accepted the contention of the appellant and allowed the application filed by the appellant. On appeal the II Additional District Judge, Pondicherry held that the decree, though one for declaration, was executable as such and possession could be delivered thereunder as per the French Law which, according to him, was applicable to the proceedings. The appellate Judge also gave findings that the appellant herein had not proved her title to the property and that she was a party to the suit, when it was originally instituted in the French court.

4. Aggrieved by the appellate order the appellant has preferred this C.M.S.A. After hearing counsel on both sides I am of the view that it is wholly unnecessary to consider the question whether the appellant was a party to the suit O.S.F.No.5 of 1968 and whether the appellant has proved her title to the property or not. It should be mentioned that the cause title found in the judgment and decree in O.S.F.No.5 of 1968 do not contain the name of the appellant. It mentions Krishnan as the fourth defendant. It is stated that Krishnan is the father of the appellant. Similarly the judgment in the appeal against the decree in the suit viz., A.S.No.212 of 1976 on the file of the II Additional District Judge, Pondicherry dated 30.6.1980 does not also show the appellant as one of the parties thereto.

5. I propose to dispose of this appeal on the short ground that the decree being one for declaration cannot be executed for recovery of possession. Learned counsel for the respondent submits that under the French Law a decree for mere declaration can be executed and possession can be obtained. According to him, the French Law would apply to the present case. I do not accept this contention for the following reason: In the judgment in O.S.F.No.5 of 1968 the trial court specifically directed the plaintiff to file a separate suit for recovery of possession. In the penultimate paragraphs of the judgment of the following passage is found:

"Further even to order delivery of possession of the property under the enjoyment of D-1 that there is no relief as such and a separate suit for possession would only lie against him. Moreover, if the plaintiff is of opinion that the other defendants are in possession of the suit property claimed by her, she is at liberty to file a suit and recover possession."

6. If the said passage had not been in the judgment, it might have been open to the respondent to contend that the French Law would apply to the case and he is entitled to recover possession under the same decree. But, the judgment has clearly directed the respondent to file a separate suit for recovery of possession. That direction was not challenged by the respondent when the matter was taken up to the appellate court at the instance of the first defendant in the suit. There was no memorandum of cross-objections or cross-appeal. The decree of the trial court was confirmed as such. Hence it is not open to the respondent to get over that direction at the stage of execution by contending that the French Law will apply to the proceedings.

7. Hence it is clear that the decree for declaration could not have been executed by the respondent and she cannot recover possession from the appellant in the eviction proceedings. The order directing delivery of possession and delivery effected pursuant thereto are invalid and they deserve to be set aside.

8. Consequently, the order of the executing court in E.A.No.82 of 1981 allowing the said petition and directing redelivery as claimed by the appellant herein is restored. The order of the appellate court in A.S.No.2 of 1985 dated 24.4.1986 is set aside. The civil miscellaneous second appeal is allowed. The parties will bear their respective costs.

V.K

Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- K.M.Natarajan, J.

W.P.No.1324 of 1982

19th June, 1992.

N.M.Balasubramaniam and another ...Petitioners

The Management of K.Singaram Pillai Bus Transport and others ...Respondents.

Industrial Disputes Act (XIV of 1947), Sec.11-A and Sch.III, Item 11 - Charges relating to misconduct not proved in one case - There was no fair enquiry in another case - Labour court awarding compensation instead of ordering reinstatement - Order if can be sustained.

Applying the ratio laid down in Tulsidas Paul v. Second Labour Court (1971) 1 L.L.J. 526, Workmen of United Bleachers v. United Bleachers, (1968) 1 L.L.J. 529, Workmen of Assam Match Co., Ltd. v. Labour Court, (1973) 2 L.L.J. 279, Vinayak Bhagwan Shetty v. Kismat (P) Ltd., (1984) 1 L.L.J. 203, Workmen, Ennore Foundries v. Manager, (1978) 2 L.L.J. 222, R.Sankaran v. Additional Labour Court, Madras, 1977 Lab.I.C. 1338 and The Management of L.T. Pvt. Ltd. v. N.Palaniswami and others, (1987) 1 L.L.J. 450, to the facts of this case, it is seen that the Presiding Officer, Labour Court/second respondent came to the conclusion that none of the charges levelled against the petitioners relating to misconduct has been proved and in the case of the second petitioner there was no fair enquiry and the enquiry before the disciplinary authority is vitiated. However, the second respondent without ordering reinstatement with back wages awarded compensation of Rs.1,000 to the first petitioner and Rs.2,000 to the second petitioner on the ground of strained relationship between the workmen and the management. It is to be noted that it is nowhere pleaded by the management that there was any strained relationship and that the petitioners are not entitled to the relief of reinstatement in case the charges are not proved. No evidence was also adduced. There was absolutely no exceptional or special circumstances in the instant case which warrant departure from the natural rule of granting the reinstatement.

[Para 7]

Cases referred to:

M/s. Tulsidas Paul v. Second Labour Court, (1971) 1 L.L.J. 526. [Para 7]

Workmen of United Bleachers v. United Bleachers, (1968) 1 L.L.J. 529. [Para 7]

Workmen of Assam Match Co., Ltd. v. Labour Court, (1973) 2 L.L.J. 279. [Para 7]

Vinayak Bhagwan Shetye v. Kismat (P) Ltd. and another (1984) 1 L.L.J. 283. [Para 7]

Workmen, Ennore Foundries v. Manager, (1978) 2 L.L.J. 222. [Para 7]

R. Sankaran v. Additional Labour Court, Madras, (1977) Lab. I.C. 1338. [Para 7]

The Management of L.T. Pvt. Ltd. v. N. Palaniswami, (1987) 1 L.L.J. 450. [Para 7]

Petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorari calling for the records pertaining to I.D.No. 112 of 1977 on the file of the 2nd respondent including the award passed therein dated 4.11.1978 and quash the said award in so far as it fails to grant the normal relief of reinstatement with full back wages and continuity of service to the petitioners and grants only the relief of payment of compensation to the petitioners.

Venkataraman for M/s. Aiyer and Dolia and A.R. Gokulnath, for Petitioners.

Kalyanasundaram, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER: This writ petition is filed by the employees of the first respondent/Management challenging the award passed by the second respondent and praying for the issuance of a writ of certiorari calling for the records relating to the award dated 4.11.1978 and quashing the same in so far as it fails to grant the normal relief of reinstatement with full back wages and continuity of service, but only grants the relief of payment of compensation to the petitioners..

2. The brief facts which are necessary for the disposal of the writ petition can be stated as follows:- Both the petitioners were employed as conductors in the respondent/transport business. The first petitioner has put in 5 years of service and the 2nd respondent has put in 10 years of service. A charge-memo dated 31.8.1976 was issued to the first petitioner by the management, namely, the first respondent herein, to the effect that he did not attend to his duties on the evening of 19.8.1976 and 20.8.1976, 21.8.1976, 22.8.1976 and 23.8.1976 and again on 29.8.1976, 30.8.1976 and 31.8.1976. The first petitioner submitted an explanation to the effect that he attended duty but he was not allotted any work. Another memo was issued to the effect that he did not attend duties on 1.9.1976, 2.9.1976 and from 5.9.1976 to 9.9.1976 to which also he sent a same reply. Yet another memo was issued alleging that he was absent from 10.9.1976 to 30.9.1976. Thereupon a domestic enquiry was ordered. Based on the finding of the Enquiry Officer, he was discharged from service. The dispute was referred for adjudication by the Government, along with the second petitioner's case of non-employment, in G.O.Rt.No.2188, dated 10.10.1977.

3. As far as the second petitioner is concerned, he filed a criminal complaint alleging that the proprietor of the first respondent beat him and took away Rs.9 kept by him in his pocket and on account of the injury sustained by him, he could not attend the duties since he was undergoing treatment in the hospital. On that ground, he applied for leave. The first respondent did not pay heed to his request. But he called upon him to return to duty within 48 hours by letter dated 27.5.1976. The second petitioner sent two letters dated 19.5.1976 and 23.6.1976 and the first respondent refused to receive the same. The second petitioner received a letter on 4.1.1977 to the effect that his services would stand terminated with effect from 5.1.1977. It is only thereupon, I.D.No.112 of 1977 was raised. It is contended that when the Labour Court found that the charge against the first petitioner that he was absent from 10.9.1976 to 13.9.1976 was not substantiated by any reliable evidence, it was not justified in granting only payment of compensation without the relief of reinstatement with continuity of service with full back wages and other attendant benefits on account of strained feelings. It is further submitted that as far as the second petitioner is concerned, the Labour Court on an appreciation of the evidence found that the observation of the Enquiry Officer that the second petitioner did not obtain leave or permission is not correct. The second respondent/Labour Court came to the conclusion that the domestic enquiry was not properly conducted and the management had not made out any case for dismissing the second petitioner from service. The second respondent is not justified in denying the normal relief of reinstatement with continuity of service and back wages; but only awarded payment of compensation of Rs.2,000. As far as the first petitioner is concerned, the management never pleaded that the first petitioner was holding a post of trust and confidence; nor have they let in any evidence to prove and establish the strained feelings. In any event, the strained feeling cannot be a ground to put against the worker for denying him the normal relief of reinstatement with continuity of service etc. Similarly as regards the second petitioner, the management has not proved any special cause or circumstances for showing that he was unworthy of being taken back into service. In any event, the compensation awarded in both the cases is very paltry and meagre sum. Hence this writ petition.

4. In the counter-affidavit filed on behalf of the first respondent by one Raju, who is a close relative of the first respondent, under instructions, on 13.3.1992 while denying the facts submitted that the first respondent held 4 stage-carriage permits and transferred all of them along with the bus as detailed in the counter-affidavit, namely, Route No.91 to V.Lakshmanan Pillai in 1976, Route No.75 to the first respondent's son Harikrishnan in 1977, Route No.58 to M/s.Kumaran Bus Transports in March, 1979 and Route No.117 to the first respondent's son S.Kaliyamurthi (third respondent herein) in September, 1979. The first respondent is aged about 75 years and he has closed the transport business in 1979 and as such, no question of reinstatement arises. He has also contended that the discussion of the Tribunal order shows that the worker, namely, the first petitioner, has not been fully exonerated from the charges and hence the reasons of the Labour Court to hold that the charges have not been substantiated on reliable evidence, are untenable. As far as the second petitioner is concerned, it is stated that the Labour Court without properly considering the evidence held that the charges have not been established. It is further submitted that the second respondent taking into account the totality of the circumstances and taking into account the strained relationship between the workers and the management, awarded compensation of Rs.1,000 to the first petitioner and Rs.2,000 to the second petitioner as compensation. It is further stated that since the Labour Court (second respondent) awarded compensation of Rs.1,000 and Rs.2,000 to petitioners 1 and 2 respectively, the first respondent has not challenged the finding of the Labour Court by filing separate writ petition. Lastly it was stated that since this writ petition was heard and increases in the quantum of compensation was suggested, the first respondent has not filed his counter-affidavit earlier and he is filing the counter-affidavit only now i.e. 13.3.1992.

5. In the counter affidavit dated 13.3.1992 filed by the third respondent, while denying the averments stated in the affidavit filed by the petitioners, it is submitted that the petitioners were in employment under his father when he was running the bus service as conductors and as stated in paragraph 3 of the affidavit, the first petitioner was discharged from service on 18.12.1976 and the second petitioner was dismissed from service on 4.1.1977. When they filed I.D.No.112 of 1977 on the file of the second respondent, it was contested by his father, the first respondent. It is further submitted that out of the four buses, his father transferred three buses to other persons and lastly one bus in his (third respondent) favour in September, 1979 and his father ceased to be a bus operator. Along with the bus and the permit, he has taken two drivers and two conductors working in that bus. On that date, both the petitioners were dismissed from service in 1976 and 1977 and they were not in employment at the time when the last of the permits held by him was transferred in his favour. There is no legal or any other liability to pay any amounts to the petitioners herein and he is not a necessary party.

6. The point that arises for consideration in this writ petition is, whether the petitioners are entitled to be reinstated in service with full back wages and continuity of service.

7. The learned counsel for the petitioners, Mr.Venkataraman, mainly submitted that the second respondent having found that the management failed to prove the misconduct against the petitioners and their discharge and dismissal from service are unjustified, ought to have awarded them the normal relief of reinstatement with full back wages and continuity of service. He would submit that when the management did not challenge the award, it has become final so far as the management is concerned and it is not open to them now to put forth the contention at the late stage after the arguments were over by contending that the finding is not proper. Since the workers, namely, the writ petitioners, have been denied the proper relief and the second respondent has not exercised its discretion judiciously, they have come forward with this writ petition. He would vehemently argue that the second respondent has committed a grave error of law and perversity in holding that the management has lost confidence in the first petitioner, when that was not even the case of the management either in the pleadings or anywhere. As regards the strained feelings, the management has not let in any evidence. Mere strain in the feelings created on account of proceedings initiated by the management against the first petitioner cannot be a ground for depriving the first petitioner of his entitlement to the relief of reinstatement with continuity of service and full back wages. As regards the second petitioner also, the strain in the feelings in a creation of the management and the same cannot be a ground for denying his entitlement to the normal relief of reinstatement with full back wages and continuity of service. When the management has not established any special cause or special circumstances, the second respondent is not justified in refusing to grant the relief of reinstatement. The learned counsel submitted that the second respondent failed to take into consideration while passing the award the security of service of employment and that led to the miscarriage of justice. In this connection, the learned counsel drew the attention of this Court to the relevant portion of the award. In para 9 of the award, the second respondent/Presiding Officer, Labour Court, discussed the evidence adduced by the first respondent before the enquiry officer in respect of the alleged absence without obtaining any prior permission or leave which is the charge levelled against the first petitioner. At the end of the paragraph it was held as follows:- The charges framed by the management against Balasubramanian had not been substantiated by any reliable evidence. The learned counsel also pointed out that the Labour Court observed: "The fact that Balasubramanian attended to his duties on the remaining dates in August, 76, as mentioned in Ex.M-24 will support his contention that he was willing to work and that the respondent did not allot him any work. The Labour Court accepted the contention of the first petitioner that though he was willing to work, he was not allotted any work. In respect of the second petitioner, he has applied for leave during the relevant period as he was undergoing treatment for the injury in the hospital. Ex.M-25, money-order coupon regarding his salary, only supports the case of the second petitioner. In para 10 of the award, the second respondent has observed that the first petitioner was working on a permanent basis for the past 5 years on a salary of Rs.178 per month. The second respondent further observed that the first petitioner sent Ex.M-10 petition to the police alleging that the proprietor did not allot him duty and threatened him and sent him out of office. He has also observed that in his claim statement, the first petitioner alleged that the first respondent used to threaten him and will not allot him work even though he was willing to attend to his duty. After discussion, the second respondent came to the conclusion at the end of para 10 of the award; "It is clear that the worker and the management have developed strained feelings and have lost confidence on each other. Under such circumstances, in the interests of the worker, an order for payment of compensation will be the appropriate relief that can be granted to him." In the case of the second petitioner, after considering the evidence adduced on behalf of the parties, the second respondent came to the conclusion in para 14: "The observation of the enquiry officer that the second petitioner has not obtained prior permission is not quite correct." The allegation against the second petitioner is that he has absented himself from duty without permission from 16.4.1976. The second respondent found in his award: "Ex.M-18, dated 16.4.1976 shows that the worker has applied for leave as he was undergoing treatment in the hospital. In Ex.M-13, the explanation of the worker has not been called for on the ground that he was absenting himself from duty. It is stated in Ex.M-13 that the worker should report for duty within 48 hours failing which action will be taken against him. No further charge-memo has been issued to the worker Rathinam asking for his explanation. "Ultimately the second respondent came to the conclusion as follows: "If the case of the management is true, the entire salary for April, 1976 would not have been sent to the worker by money order. The enquiry against Rathinam was conducted ex parte. It is clear that the domestic enquiry had not been properly conducted against the worker Rathinam. "The reason given by the second respondent for not ordering his reinstatement but only awarding compensation was that as per Ex.W-18 the worker, namely, the second petitioner, would allege that the proprietor beat him and took away cash of Rs.9 from his pocket. As per Ex.M-17 he wanted police protection even to attend the domestic enquiry. Ex.M-40 shows that the worker, namely, the second petitioner, has filed a criminal complaint against the proprietor/first respondent before the judicial First Class Magistrate, Tiruchirapalli, for an offence punishable under Sec.392, I.P.C. Under such circumstances, in the interest of the worker, the payment of compensation will be the proper relief and that can be granted to him and accordingly a sum of Rs.2,000 was awarded. The learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that the petitioners were granted only compensation, even though the Presiding Officer/second respondent held that the non-employment of the workers, namely, petitioners 1 and 2, is not justified. In this connection, it is worthwhile to consider the various case-laws cited on behalf of the petitioners. In M/s. Tulsidas Paul v. Second Labour Court, (1971) 1 L.L.J. 526, the apex court held that the normal rule was one of reinstatement where the dismissal or removal from service was found to be unjustified and wrongful. Compensation should be awarded by Labour Court only, in exceptional and unusual circumstances. Such discretion should be exercised by the Labour Court in a spirit of fairness and justice. In the above quoted case, it was ultimately held in para 10 as follows:

"It appears from the judgment of the learned single Judge that he was moved to interfere with the order of reinstatement, firstly, on the ground that it would be received by the other workmen with ill grace and might result in fresh hostilities between the two groups of workmen, and secondly, that employment of workmen in this case being seasonal the employers were not bound to engage the same workmen in the next season. We find it difficult to sustain this reasoning. As observed by the Division Bench, the employers did not at any stage before the tribunal place the question of reinstatement in issue. Nor did they establish that reinstatement would result in fresh industrial hostilities. In the absence of any proof that that would be the consequence of reinstatement, the conclusion of the learned single Judge that it would so result was only an assumption."

In that view, the Supreme Court dismissed the appeal upholding the decision of the Division Bench. In Workmen of United Bleachers v. United Bleachers, (1968) 1 L.L.J. 529, Kailasam, J. (as he then was) held that the reinstatement cannot be denied on the ground that the relationship between the management and the workman was strained. It was further held in the said decision:

"Further, in this case the management never pleaded that in the event of the labour court finding Krishnan is entitled to reinstatement he could be amply provided for by compensation."

That is a case where the workman Krishnan was suspended and subsequently dismissed. An industrial dispute was raised in the Labour Court and the Labour Court directed reinstatement with back wages. The management did not reinstate him. On the day he reported for duty, he was retrenched. A dispute was raised regarding the non-employment of such workman. The Labour Court ordered compensation instead of reinstatement. The award was challenged in Writ wherein it was mainly contended that the relationship between the management and the workman was strained and also on the ground of delay. That contention has been negated and the writ was allowed in favour of the workman. In Workmen of Assam Match Co., Ltd. v. Labour Court, (1973) 2 L.L.J. 279, the apex court has observed that the Tribunal has found that the domestic enquiry held by the management against the workman for his alleged misconduct was unfair and invalid. It also found that the charges against the workman were baseless and the findings of the enquiry officer were perverse. Even so the Tribunal took the view that there may not be cordial relationship between the parties of the workman is reinstated and on that ground alone the tribunal refused to order reinstatement. In the circumstances it was held:

"It is well-settled that where in an industrial dispute arising out of a dismissal of a workman it is established that the impugned dismissal was unjustified the normal rule is that the dismissed workman should be reinstated."

It is further held:

"If an employer is shown to have dismissed his employee/without justification and the decision of the dispute resulting from such dismissal takes time, it cannot be urged by the employer that by passage of time, reinstatement should not be ordered. One of the objects which industrial adjudication has to keep in mind is to assure industrial employees security of tenure. The normal rule is that when the dismissal is unjustified the employees should be reinstated."

It was further held:

"The next contention is that the respondent has lost confidence in Dutt. This argument is misconceived. We do not think it would be possible to accept the contention that even if employer is shown to have dismissed the employee wrongfully and without justification the fact that he adopted such course should be taken into account while determining the question whether reinstatement should be ordered or not. If this contention is accepted the industrial employee illegally and unjustifiably dismissed would never get the relief of reinstatement."

Ultimately the appeal was allowed and the reinstatement of the industrial employee was ordered with back wages. In Vinayak Bhagwan Shetty v. Kismat (P) Ltd. and another, (1984) 1 L.L.J. 203, a Division Bench of the Bombay High Court held:

"It is difficult to sustain the view taken by the Labour Court that the employee was not entitled to reinstatement because the action in discharging the employee was not vindictive. Assuming for a moment that it is not established that the action taken was vindictive, that would be wholly irrelevant because the moment the misconduct is not proved and the penal action is found to be unjustified and unsustainable, the termination must cease to be a bona fide termination. But for the misconduct, which the employer had taken as proved, there could not have been any order of dismissal. If the foundation of this action for dismissal disappears, namely, the proof of misconduct the order of dismissal must also stand vacated."

In Workmen, Ennore Foundries v. Manager, (1978) 2 L.L.J. 222, Ismail, J. (as he then was) held:

"If the Labour Court finds that the orders of dismissal were unjustified, the normal relief that it should grant was one of reinstatement and payment of compensation in lieu of reinstatement should only be granted in special or exceptional circumstances. It was held that the Labour Court had not recorded any exceptional or special circumstances in the instant case which warranted the departure from the normal rule of granting the relief of reinstatement. The Labour Court in the circumstances was directed to bear these principles in mind in deciding the case on remand."

In R. Sankaran v. Additional Labour Court, Madras and another, (1977) Lab.I.C. 1338, it was held that the strained relationship cannot constitute a valid ground for negating the claim for reinstatement. In The Management of L.T. Pvt. Ltd. v. N. Palaniswami and others, (1987) 1 L.L.J. 458, a Division Bench of this Court, after considering the various earlier decisions held:

"It is the duty of the Management to place material before the Labour Court or the writ court for refusal of back wages to workman. If the Management has failed to place such materials for refusal of back wages before the Labour Court or High Court a writ would be justified in granting the relief of reinstatement and consequential monetary benefits in the shape of back wages."

That was a case where it was found that on the merits of the case none of the charges was proved and therefore the dismissal was not justified. However, the Labour Court refused to grant the relief of reinstatement on the ground that the worker was absent from service for a long time and the management has made some alternative arrangement and on this ground it ordered the payment of Rs.10,000 in lieu of reinstatement. After the award the management sent a cheque covering the amount awarded by the Labour Court. Accepting the cheque under protest and without prejudice to file a writ petition, the writ petition was filed by the worker for quashing the award made by the Labour Court in so far as it declined to grant the relief of reinstatement and the writ petition was allowed holding that the worker should be reinstated in service with all consequential monetary benefits. That was challenged by way of writ appeal and it came before the Division Bench. As stated earlier, the Division Bench after considering the various earlier decisions, upheld the decision of the learned single Judge and held that a writ would be justified in granting the relief of reinstatement and consequential monetary benefits in the shape of back wages. Applying the ratio laid down in the above decisions to the facts of this case, it is seen that the Presiding Officer, Labour Court/second respondent came to the conclusion that none of the charges levelled against the petitioners relating to misconduct has been proved and in the case of the second petitioner there was no fair enquiry and the enquiry before the disciplinary authority is vitiated. However, the second respondent without ordering reinstatement with back wages awarded compensation of Rs.1,000 to the first petitioner and Rs.2,000 to the second petitioner on the ground of strained relationship between the workmen and the management. It is to be noted that it is nowhere pleaded by the management that there was any strained relationship and that the petitioners are not entitled to the relief of reinstatement in case the charges are not proved. No evidence was also adduced. There was absolutely no exceptional or special circumstances in the instant case which warrant departure from the normal rule of granting the reinstatement. The first petitioner was employed for about 5 years as conductor and the second petitioner was employed for about ten years. The charge against the first petitioner was that he absented himself for some days. The charge against the second petitioner is that he did not report for duty as desired by the management and he was absent both the charges, as already stated, were not proved and hence the order of dismissal was held to be improper and illegal. Though in the belated counter-affidavits filed before this court after the arguments were over it was contended that after the award was passed, the first respondent has transferred the route buses to the third respondent and others, the above contention was not put forward at the earliest point of time and the petitioners have no opportunity to rebut the same. Even otherwise, as rightly contended by the learned counsel for the petitioners, the first respondent-management cannot circumvent the order by resorting to transfer the buses while the proceedings are pending before the court. The learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the petitioners will work out their remedy if reinstatement with back wages is ordered and that cannot be a bar for granting the relief prayed for in this writ petition. I find every force in the said contention. The learned counsel for respondents 1 and 3, Mr.M.Kalayanasundaram, did not dispute the proposition of law laid down in the various decisions cited above. But, what all he contended is that there was a proposal for compromise by enhancing the compensation and in the circumstances of the case the petitioners can receive higher compensation instead of insisting for reinstatement and back wages etc. The mere fact that there was a talk of compromise at the suggestion of the Bench of this Court on an earlier occasion cannot be a ground for negating the relief prayed for in the writ petition. Thus, on a careful consideration of the entire materials, I am of the view that the petitioners are entitled to the relief of reinstatement and back wages as prayed for and the award of compensation in lieu of reinstatement is not valid and proper.

8. In the result, the writ petition is allowed, the award passed by the second respondent in so far as it relates to the refusal of grant of the relief of reinstatement with back wages, but ordering compensation only, is set aside and there will be an order in favour of the petitioners for reinstatement in service with back wages and continuity of service as prayed for. However, in the circumstances of the case there will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- Mishra, J.

W.P.Nos.10116 of 1983 and 17376 of 1991

23rd April, 1992.

P.R.Rajagopalan

...Petitioner

v.

Southern Structural Ltd. and others

...Respondents.

(A) Constitution of India, (1950), Arts.226 and 12 - 'Authority' for the purposes of - Decision on - Criterion for.

An 'authority' for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India need not be an authority under Art.12 of the Constitution of India and 'any other authority' for the purpose of Art.12 of the Constitution of India may, in a given case be an instrumentality or agency of the Government of the State. It is not the look of the body concerned. It is the character that will decide whether it is an authority for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India or an authority for the purpose of Art.12 of the Constitution of India and whether its name or look is different on account of the veil or cloth. The Court, in such cases, shall pierce the veil and notice the true character of the person concerned to determine whether it is 'an authority' for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India or/and authority for the purpose of Art.12 of the Constitution. An authority under Art.12 of the Constitution of India shall always be an authority for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India. [Para 11]

(B) Constitution of India (1950), Arts.14 and 16(1) - Order of termination of services of a servant of an instrumentality of State-charges levelled but no enquiry held into them - Termination of services for reason that he disobeyed an order of transfer - Termination contrived to avoid enquiry into charges - Order, held to be stricken by arbitrariness and hit by malice.

There are sufficient elements in the order of termination simpliciter to show that it had been contrived to avoid enquiry into the charges that had been levelled against the petitioner. The impugned order terminating the petitioner's service for the reason that it used the alleged disobedience of the transfer order as the ground is stricken by arbitrariness and for the reason that instead of proceeding with the charges levelled against the petitioner the respondent company decided to terminate the petitioner's service on a ground non est, it is hit by malice in law. For these reasons, there can be no hesitation in holding that the order of termination of the services of the petitioner issued by the first respondent is violative of Arts.14 and 16(1) of the Constitution of India.

[Para 14]

(C) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Delay and laches - Termination of services of servant of Government managed company - Petitioner questioning validity of termination order under the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act - Appeal rejected as not maintainable - Moving High Court by a writ in 1983 - Filing a second writ petition in 1991 to avoid a technical objection - Delay, held, cannot vitiate the proceedings.

It is stated that this Court should decline to interfere with the order of termination of the services of the petitioner because that order had been challenged only in the second writ petition that has been filed in the year 1991 after a long and inordinate delay. Taking this technical view of the matter will mean ignoring the fact that the petitioner did question the validity of the order of termination of services under the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act and when his appeal was rejected as not maintainable, moved this Court in W.P.No.10116 of 1983. This Court's power to interfere with the arbitrary and (without jurisdiction) order of the kind impugned by the petitioner-herein in W.P.No.10116 of 1983 cannot be questioned. The court must always see as to how any unconstitutional act can be avoided and how far the facts of the case require moulding the relief. In the instant case, the delay in filing W.P.No.17376 of 1991 is excusable. [Para 15]

Cases referred to:

C.V.Raman v. The Management of Bank of India, Madras, (1985) 2 M.L.J. 439. [Para 8]

Sri Konaseema Co-operative Central Bank Ltd. v. N.Seetharama Raju, A.I.R. 1990 A.P. 171. [Para 9]

E.E. and C., Ltd. v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 266. [Para 9]

Ramana Dayaram Shetty, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 1628. [Para 9]

Chander Mohan Khanna v. NCERT, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 76. [Para 10]

Petitions under Art.226 of the Constitution of India praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the respective affidavits filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorari mandamus, (1) calling for the records in the order of termination dated 3.10.1980 of the 1st respondent and quash the same in so far as it relates to the petitioner and direct the 1st respondent to reinstate the petitioner to the original post as on 3.10.1980 together with all attendant benefits of service conditions as are applicable in law (in W.P.10166 of 1983 prayer amended as per order of court dated 23.4.1992 made in W.M.P.No.21051 of 1991 etc.

S.Sampath Kumar, for Petitioner.

Prabhakaran, for Respondent No.1.

N.Sampath, Government Advocate, for Respondent No.2.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- W.P.No.10116 of 1983 is directed against the order of T.S.E. case No.44 of 1980 by the second respondent therein viz. the Assistant Commissioner of Labour II, Madras, under which order he has held that no appeal is maintainable under Sec.41(1) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act against the order of termination of service passed by the management of Southern Structurals Ltd. the first respondent therein W.P.No.17376 of 1991 is directed against the order of termination passed by the said respondent as well as to quash the service rules so far as clause 6(4) thereof is concerned.

2. Relevant facts as set out in the affidavit filed in support of the writ petitions are as follows: Petitioner was employed as a Stores Officer in the service of the respondent-Southern Structurals Ltd., when according to him his service was unlawfully terminated by order dated 1.9.1980. He had joined the service of the respondent in July, 1962 as cashier-cum-accounts Assistant and risen to the status of the Stores Officer by and by in July, 1974. In March, 1975 he was transferred to Structural Engineers and Technicians Industrial Co-operative Society Ltd. In July, 1977 he was recalled to the stores at Pattabiram. In September, 1979 he was transferred to the Data Collection and Statistics section of the Industrial Engineering Department, where he remained for a brief period of 13 days only after which he was recalled to the Accounts Department. According to the petitioner he discovered during 1975 that the personal assistant to the then Managing Director of the company had in collusion with a typist at the Head office been misappropriating the share capital of members. This led to the disciplinary action against some of the guilty persons. The Managing Director did not take this kindly and subjected the petitioner to a space of transfers, following by a charge memo in March, 1978, alleging that the petitioner was responsible for the missing of two plates from the stores. On petitioner's explanation this charge was not followed up. In December, 1979 a further memo emanated as if one forged round was missing from the stores. The said charge was also not followed up on petitioner's explanation about the round having been consumed. In May, 1980 another charge memo came up that colour coding of stock had not been carried out by the petitioner. The petitioner answered this charge also. However, the petitioner was transferred to Ramagundam project in Andhra Pradesh on 22.8.1980 and asked to join duty on or before 27.8.1980. The petitioner represented to the General Manager and sought time to report for duty and also represented on 28.8.1980 requesting for a month's time as his wife had undergone a major surgery from which she was yet to recover and to meet her medical expenses he was required to dispose of certain properties with respect to which certain execution proceedings was pending in court. The petitioner was served with another office memo to join at Ramagundam before 10.9.1980. This order the petitioner received on 4.9.1980. However, before the petitioner could proceed he received another memo dated 1.9.1980 purported to be one month's notice of termination of service on the ground that he had disobeyed the transfer order dated 22.8.1980. The petitioner represented against the said termination. This termination order was withdrawn on 8.9.1980. The petitioner was also informed that the second transfer order also stood cancelled.

3. While so according to the petitioner he was informed by letter dated 8.9.1980 that his representation against the transfer to Ramagundam was rejected and this was followed by a letter dated 17.9.1980 containing a charge sheet for certain alleged omissions. Under this letter the petitioner was called upon to explain the charge within 48 hours. The petitioner has stated;

"While so by letter dated 17.9.1980 the respondent issued a charge sheet for alleged omission on my part and gave me 48 hours to explain why disciplinary action should not be taken against me. The charges were vague and various office orders which I was unaware of were referred to. The charges also related to acts in 1977, 1978 and 1979. I sought substantiation of the same and requested for production of records. But by order dated 3.10.1980 vide the month's notice dated 1.9.1980 my services were terminated."

Petitioner filed an appeal under Sec.41 of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act, T.S.E. Case No.44 of 1980. The said case was dismissed by order dated 27.7.1983 on the sole ground that the respondent company was exempted under G.O.Ms No.545 being an establishment under the Government of Tamil Nadu.

4. W.P.No.10116 of 1983 was admitted to hearing. To avoid any technical objection that the order impugned in the said petition was one passed in appeal under Sec 41(1) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act and thus the termination order passed by the first respondent had not been questioned in the said writ petition the petitioner as advised filed W.P.No.17376 of 1991. Both petitions have been heard together and are being disposed of by a common order.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner conceded that in view of the order in G.O.Ms.No.545, dated 10.2.1950 of the Government of Tamil Nadusince the respondent company is a Government company the provisions of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act are not applicable and accordingly the appeal under Sec.41(1) of the said Act was not competent. He has thus given up any challenge to the validity or correctness of the order in T.S.E. case No.44 of 1980. He has however, contended that on the facts as aforementioned the order terminating the petitioner's services afflicted by malice in law is arbitrary and violative of Art.14 of the Constitution of India.

6. In the counter affidavit filed in W.M.P.No.21051 of 1991 in W.P.No 10116 of 1983 on behalf of the first respondent it is stated that the petitioner's services with the first respondent company was governed by the service rules of the first respondent company which were/are in the nature of contract of service. It is further stated as follows:

"6. The first respondent company transferred the petitioner vide its letter dated 22.8.1980 from its factory at Pattabiram to Ramagundam project where the first respondent company was doing certain contract work. But the petitioner by his letter dated 28.8.1980 refused to obey the said transfer order of the first respondent company and stated that he would not be in a position to go to Ramagundam site immediately due to certain domestic problems and that he was willing to visit not only Ramagundam site but other sites also once in a while to organise the accounting billing work, collections etc."

7. Since the first respondent company wanted to reorganise and restructure its accounts department by efficient persons and to weed out the inefficient ones and since no other suitable work was available for the petitioner the first respondent company terminated the services of the petitioner by giving one month's notice vide its letter dated 1st September, 1980.

8. Though the first respondent company directed vide its letter dated 4.9.1980 to proceed to Ramagundam Super Thermal Power Project Ramagundam site before 10th September, 1980 to organise and take care of the complete accounting side in view of the notice of termination issued on 1.9.1980 the first respondent company cancelled the abovesaid order dated 4.9.1980 vide its office order dated 8.9.1980. The charge sheet dated 17.9.1980 issued by the first respondent company to the petitioner was only to find out the truth in the alleged charges against the petitioner. The fact that the termination notice preceded the said charge sheet clearly shows that the petitioner's service were not terminated for any misconduct.

9. As said above the petitioner's service were terminated by the first respondent company only for reasonable cause. Against the said termination order the petitioner preferred an appeal bearing No.44 of 1980 before the Deputy Commissioner of Labour Madras under Sec.41 of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act. The said appeal was dismissed by the second respondent as not maintainable in view of G.O.Ms.No.545, dated 10.2.1950 which exempted all persons employed in any kind of work in factories and governed by the Factories Act, 1948 from all the provisions of the said Act. Against the impugned order the petitioner preferred the above writ petition in the year 1983."

7. In another return filed in W.P.No.17376 of 1991 it is stated that "the respondent company refute the allegation that the petitioner's service was terminated in an arbitrary and whimsical manner. It is only for the reason of refusal by the petitioner to join duty at Ramagundam site his service was terminated after giving one month notice for the same." In this affidavit the first respondent has taken the stand that the Government of Tamil Nadu was holding 92.4% of share holding in the equity capital of the respondent but holding share capital by the Government of Tamil Nadu does not amount to having deep and pervasive control over the affairs of day to day management/administration of the respondent and only in the capacity as shareholder the Government of Tamil Nadu is appointing Directors to the extent of its shareholding. It is further stated;

"Further the Article of Association of the respondent company does not require any prior permission from the Government of Tamil Nadu for running affairs of the company. In fact neither the memorandum of Association nor the Articles of Association of the respondent company provide for any power or control or right in favour of the Government of Tamil Nadu to issue any direction or to regulate or interfere with the business or affairs of the respondent company. Even the Directors nominated by the Government of Tamil Nadu are completely free from Governmental control in discharge of their functions. The respondent company is doing business/manufacturing activity in relation to cranes and structural works like any ordinary person would do and as such is not enjoying any monopoly status conferred by the Government or corporations like Air India or Indian Airlines. While the Government of Tamil Nadu has control over the respondent company to the extent mentioned above it cannot constitute deep and pervasive state control which is a prerequisite for the respondent company to be construed as a State agency or instrumentality. The functions of respondent company are not of any public importance nor are they related to Government functions. Facts clearly indicate that the respondent company is not an instrumentality or agency of the Government." After taking the above stand in this counter affidavit it is further stated:

"Even though the respondent company might fall under the definition of establishment under State Government as per Sec.4(1)(c) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act for reasons mentioned above the respondent company does not fall under the category of 'other authority' under Art.12 of the Constitution of India. The respondent is advised to submit that all establishments which may fall under the category of ('Establishment under State Government' under Sec.4(1)(c) of T.N.S.E. Act do not necessarily fall under the category of 'other authority' under Art.12 of the Constitution of India. Either for the reason that the respondent company might fall under the category of establishment under State Government or by reason of the averments made by the respondent in the counter statement before the authority under the T.N.S.E. Act, it is not possible to state that respondent company is falling under the heading 'other authority' under Art.12 of the Constitution of India."

8. The stand thus that the first respondent is neither an instrumentality nor an agency of the Government nor an authority under Art.12 of the Constitution of India would appear to be in conflict with the previous statements that the respondents has been making in the sense that to oust the jurisdiction of the appellate authority under the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act, it was maintained that the respondent company was a Government company and to oust the jurisdiction of this Court it was suggested that even though there has been an overwhelming shareholding in the hands of the State Government, the State Government has been appointing Directors and though only its nominees were managing the affairs of the company the Government never had that deep and pervasive control upon the affairs of the company which would convert it into an agency or instrumentality of the State Government. Keeping this controversy in mind the court on 13.2.1992 ordered as follows:

"My attention has been drawn to a counter statement filed on behalf of the respondent company before the Deputy Commissioner of Labour in which it is stated inter alia:

"The respondent-company is a factory managed by the Government of Tamil Nadu and it is covered by the Factories Act, 1948 the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and the Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act, 1946 and not by the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act, 1947."

"The authorised capital of the respondent company is Rs.350 lakhs and the paid up capital of the respondent company is Rs.148.85 lakhs divided into 62.60 lakhs equity shares of Rs.2.25 each amounting to Rs.140.85 lakhs and 2 lakhs 9.33% preference shares of Rs.4 each amounting to Rs.8,00,000 and out of the 62.60 lakhs of equity shares the Government of Tamil Nadu owns 57.80 lakhs equity shares which amounts to 92.4% of the total equity capital of the respondent company."

The Board of Directors of the respondent-company consists of eight directors out of which six directors are the nominees of the Government of Tamil Nadu.

The appointment of any director on the Board of Directors of the respondent company has to be approved by the Government of Tamil Nadu. The Government of Tamil Nadu has given counter guarantee to the extent of Rs.535 lakhs in favour of the bankers of the respondent company in respect of the guarantees and various other credit facilities provided by the bankers to the respondent company.

All the facts stated above will go to prove that the entire control and management of the respondent company is with the Government of Tamil Nadu and hence even assuming without admitting that the respondent company is an establishment as defined under the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act, 1947 it is an establishment under the Government of Tamil Nadu and so the respondent company is exempted from the provisions of the said act according to Sec.4(1)(c) of the said Act."

In an affidavit filed before this Court however in W.P.No.17376 of 1991 an attempt is made to suggest that the entire control of the company is not that the State Government and for the reasons of its shares and other factors as stated it cannot be said that it is under the control of the State Government and it is a State under Art.12 of the Constitution of India.

2. The counter-affidavit in the writ petition has a definite talent of facts to accept writ jurisdiction of this Court for the reason that fundamental rights of any person may not be enforced by a writ unless it is against a State under Art.12 of the Constitution of India. Before I make any order as to whether there is an attempt to mislead the court by a statement in the counter affidavit before this Court and thus any action is warranted it is necessary that all the records pertaining to the establishment and the control upon the affairs of the company by the State Government/any other person are called for and examined by the court. It is also necessary to know who besides the State Government held the shares of this company and whether those besides the Government holding the shares of the company are themselves a State under Art.12 of the Constitution or not. There are many informations of this kind which are not disclosed in the counter affidavit filed before this Court. Thus it is hereby ordered that the respondents shall produce before this Court all the relevant records showing how the company was created who controlled it and how it cannot be stated to be a Government Company who besides the State Government are members of the company (share holders) and who besides the Government of the State excised any control with respect to the affairs of the company. All the relevant records pertaining to the above must be produced before this Court at the next hearing, put up next week."

No records however as directed under the above order have been produced. A further affidavit has been filed on behalf of the first respondent stating inter alia that the aforementioned stand was taken due to the fact that in C.V.Raman v. The Management of Bank of India, Madras and another, (1985)2 M.L.J. 439, it was observed that there was a distinction between "an establishment under the Government" under Sec.4(1)(c) of Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act and an "authority" under Art.12 of Constitution of India "it was also observed that it cannot be gainsaid that the principle applicable to the determination of an 'authority' under Art.12 of Constitution of India can bodily be imported in deciding the meaning of 'establishment' under the Government' under Sec.4(1)(c) of Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act."

It is thereafter said,

"Because of this I presumed that inspite of the averments made by the respondent before the authority 41(1) of the T.N.S.E. Act about the extent of the control by the Government of Tamil Nadu over the respondent I may be able to convince this Hon'ble court that the respondent does not fall within the definition of 'State' under Art.12 of the Constitution of India by reason of the abovesaid distinction."

After saying so it is said:

"I hereby unconditionally apologise without any reservation whatsoever for having made out the above submission that the respondent is not "state" under Art.12 of the Constitution of India."

It is not understandable why if there were/are materials that could justify the stand of the respondent company that it was not a State under Art.12 of the Constitution of India it should abstain from producing relevant records and materials and instead decide to file the affidavit aforementioned. The court at this stage can proceed with the presumption that the first respondent is an instrumentality/agency of the State of Tamil Nadu.

9. In a Full Bench judgment of the Andhra Pradesh High Court in Sri Konaseema Co operative Central Bank Ltd. v. N.Seetharama Raju, A.I.R. 1990 A.P. 171, a detailed study had been made with reference to various pronouncements of the Supreme Court as to how a court should approach to determine whether a writ should issue to a certain authority or not. The Full Bench summarised the rule as follows:

"From the above discussion the following propositions emerge:

(i) If a particular co-operative society can be characterised as a 'State' within the meaning of Art.12 of the Constitution (applying the tests evolved by the Supreme Court in that behalf) it would also be an 'authority' within the meaning and for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution. In such a situation an order passed by a Society against its Employee in violation of the bye-laws can be corrected by way of a writ petition. This is not because the bye-laws have the force of law but on the ground that having framed the bye-laws prescribing the service conditions of its employees the society must follow them in the interest of fairness. If it is left to the sweet will and pleasure of the society either to follow or not to follow the bye-laws it would be inherently arbitrary and may very likely give rise to discriminatory treatment. A society which is 'state' has to act in conformity with Art.14 and for that reason it will be made to follow the bye-laws.

(ii) Even if a society cannot be characterised as a 'state' within a meaning of Art.12 even so a writ would lie against it to enforce a statutory public duty which an employee is entitled to enforce against the society. In such a case it is unnecessary to go into the question whether the society is being treated as a ('person' or 'an authority') within the meaning of Art.226 of the Constitution. What is material is the nature of the statutory duty placed upon it and the court will enforce such statutory public duty.

(iii) The bye-laws made by a co-operative society registered under the A.P. Co-operative Societies Act do not have the force of law. They are in the nature of contract terms of contract between the society and its employees or between the society and its members as the case may be. Hence where a society cannot be characterised as a 'state' the service conditions of its employees governed by bye-laws cannot be enforced through a writ petition. However in the matter of termination of service of the employees of a co-operative society Sec.47 of the A.P. Shops and Establishments Act provides a certain protection and since the said protection is based upon public policy it will be enforced in an appropriate case by this Court under Art.226 of the Constitution. Ordinarily of course an employee has to follow the remedies provided by the A.P.Shops and Establishments Act, but in appropriate case, this Court will interfere under Art.226 if the violation of a statutory public duty is established. It is immaterial which act or rule casts such a statutory public duty.

(iv) Mandamus certiorari and prohibition are public law remedies. They are not available to enforce private law rights. Every act of a society which may be a 'state' within the meaning of Art.12 does not necessarily belong to public law field. A society which is a 'state' may have its private law rights just like a Government. A contractual obligation which is not statutory cannot be enforced by way of a writ petition under Art.226 of the Constitution. Prior to entering into contract however Art.14 operates as explained by the Supreme Court in E.E. & C. Ltd., v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 266 and Ramana Dayaram Shetty, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 1628."

10. In a series of judgments the Supreme Court has pointed out how the word 'authority' in Art.226 of the Constitution of India is not restricted to the same meaning as the words 'other authorities' should receive in the definition of the 'State' in Art.12 of the Constitution of India. The former must receive a liberal meaning. The latter is relevant only for the purpose of enforcement of fundamental rights. The judicial control over the fast expanding maze of bodies affecting the rights of the people should not be put into water tight compartment. It should remain flexible to meet the requirements of various circumstances. This analysis is found in one of the latest judgments of the Supreme Court in Chander Mohan Khanna v. NCERT, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 76. The Supreme Court has said:

"Art.12 should not be stretched so as to bring in every autonomous body which has some nexus with the Government within the sweep of the expression "State". A wide enlargement of the meaning must be tempered by a wise limitation. It must not be lost sight of that in the modern concept of welfare state, independent institution corporation and agency are generally subject to State control. The State control does not render such bodies as "State" under Art.12. The State control, however vast and pervasive is not determinative. The financial contribution by the State is also not conclusive. The combination of State aid coupled with an unusual degree of control over the management and policies of the body and rendering of an important public service being the obligatory functions of the State may largely point out that the body is "state". If the Government operates behind a corporate veil, carrying out governmental activity and governmental functions of vital public importance there may be little difficulty in identifying the body as "State" within the meaning of Art.12 of the Constitution."

11. In view of the above statement of law to which no exception can be taken it is clear that an 'authority' for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India need not be an authority under Art.12 of the Constitution of India and 'any other authority' for the purpose of Art.12 of the Constitution of India may, in a given case be an instrumentality or agency of the Government of the State. It is not the look of the body concerned. It is its character that will decide whether it is an authority for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India or an authority for the purpose of Art.12 of the Constitution of India and whether its name or look is different on account of the veil or cloth. The Court, in such cases, shall pierce the veil and notice the true character of the person concerned to determine whether it is an 'authority' for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India or/and authority for the purpose of Art.12 of the Constitution. An authority under Art.12 of the Constitution of India shall always be an authority for the purpose of Art.226 of the Constitution of India.

12. On the facts that are available on the record it can safely be said that the petitioner has discharged the onus to prove that the respondent company is a Government company which is just an agency or instrumentality of the Government of the State of Tamil Nadu and the State is in complete control of all its affairs. If the respondent company wanted to show otherwise it had to discharge a heavy onus and show by cogent material that notwithstanding the overwhelming share control and almost every Director of the company being a nominee of the State it retained its independence as a company and has not been under the deep and pervasive control of the Government of the State of Tamil Nadu.

13. Coming to the facts there is almost no controversy or little controversy that there has been an enquiry of any kind conducted into the allegations levelled against the petitioner. While on the one hand certain charges were levelled against the petitioner on the other hand the respondent company decided to terminate his services on a ground which had ceased to be a ground for the reason of the order having been recalled and a further time granted to the petitioner to join his duties at Ramagundam.

14. There are sufficient elements in the order of termination simpliciter to show that it had been contrived to avoid enquiry into the charges that had been levelled against the petitioner. The impugned order terminating the petitioner's service for the reason that it used the alleged disobedience of the transfer order as the ground is stricken by arbitrariness and for the reason that instead of proceeding with the charges levelled against the petitioner the respondent company decided to terminate the petitioner's service on a ground non est, it is hit by malice in law. For these reasons, there can be no hesitation in holding that the order of termination of the services of the petitioner issued by the first respondent is violative of Arts.14 and 16(1) of the Constitution of India.

15. It is however stated that this Court should decline to interfere with the order of termination of the services of the petitioner because that order has been challenged only in the second Writ petition that had been filed in the year 1991 after a long and inordinate delay. Taking this technical view of the matter will mean ignoring the fact that the petitioner did question the validity of the order of termination of services under the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act and when his appeal was rejected as not maintainable, moved this Court in W.P.No.10116 of 1983. This Court's power to interfere with the arbitrary and without jurisdiction' order of the kind impugned by the petitioner herein in W.P.No.10116 of 1983 cannot be questioned. The Court must always see as to how any unconstitutional act can be avoided and how far the facts of the case require moulding the relief. In the instant case, I am satisfied that the delay in filing W.P.No.17376 of 1991 is excusable.

16. For the reasons aforesaid W.P.No.17376 of 1991 is allowed. The impugned notice of termination dated 1.9.1980 culminating in the order of termination dated 3.10.1980 of the respondent is quashed. W.P.No.10116 of 1983 is allowed to the extent that it impugned the order of the first respondent covered by W.P.No.17376 of 1991. As a consequence the petitioner shall be deemed to be reinstated and in continuous service as if there has been no termination of service at all. On the facts of this case there shall however be no order as to costs.

B.S. ----- Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

C.R P.No.364 of 1991 11th March, 1992.

Jayalakshmi Ammal ...Petitioner
v.
K.Lakshmi Iyengar represented by Power Agent
M.Jayaramiyar ...Respondent.

(A) Evidence Act (I of 1872), Sec.114 - Will - Registration of.

The court is not entitled to make surmises and assume anything contrary to the document. The court is bound to apply the presumption under Sec.114 of the Evidence Act and hold that the will was presented for registration by the executant and registered properly in accordance with law.

[Para 4]

(B) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.115 - Powers of High Court sitting in revision.

Strictly speaking it is not the function of High Court to appreciate the evidence. The court is sitting in revision and it should only see whether the order of the court below is vitiated by illegality or material irregularity and whether there is any error of jurisdiction. [Para 6]

(C) Succession Act (XXXIX of 1925), Sec.63 - Evidence Act (I of 1872), Secs.68 and 69 - Will - Attesting witness not found - How to be proved.

Sec.68 of the Evidence Act requires that in order to prove a document required by law to be attested, at least one attesting witness should be called for the purpose of proving its execution, if there be an attesting witness alive and subject to the process of the court and capable of giving evidence. The proviso contains an exception and excludes a document not being a will which has been registered in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, unless its execution is specifically denied. A will even if registered, falls under the main section, as it is excluded from the purview of the proviso. Sec.69 of the Evidence Act provides that if no attesting witness can be found, it must be proved that the attestation of at least one attesting witness is in his handwriting and that the signature of the person executing the document is in the handwriting of that person. Thus Sec.69 of the Evidence Act requires proof of (1) the signature of at least one witness, and (2) the signature of the person executing the document. It is not necessary, however, for the purpose of Sec.69 of the Evidence Act that the same witness must prove the signature of the attesting witness and also the signature of the executant. The two requirements can be satisfied by two independent witnesses. [Para 7]

Cases referred to:

Shankarrao Gangadhar v. Ramji Harjivan, I.L.R. 28 Bom. 58; 5 Bom.L.R. 663. [Para 8]

Jagdish Das v. Emperor, A.I.R. 1938 Patna 497: 40 Crl.L.J. 27. [Para 8]

Pusaram v. Manmal, A.I.R. 1955 Raj. 186. [Para 8]

Shankarappa v. Sushilabai, A.I.R. 1984 Kant. 112. [Paras 8 and 13]

In re. Basnur Venkata Row, 14 I.C. 418 (Mad): 36 Mad. 159. [Para 8]

Mst.Jasoda Kuar v. Janak Missir, A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 787. [Para 8]

Rajmal v. Islam Mahomed, A.I.R. 1958 Raj. 6 at 7. [Para 8]

Raja Venkataramayya v. Kamiseti Ghattayya, 53 M.L.J. 216. [Paras 9, 12]

Uttam Singh v. Hukam Singh, I.L.R. 39 All. 112. [Para 9]

Ponnuswami Goundan v. Kalyanasundaram Ayyar,

- A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 770. [Paras 10, 12]*
Joshua Hands v. Herbert James, 2 Comyns. 531. [Para 10]
Harris v. Knight, (1890)15 P.D. 170. [Para 10]
Ponnuswami Goundan v. Kalyanasundaram Ayyar, 66 M.L.J. 712: I.L.R. 57 Mad. 662: 149 I.C. 267: A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 365. [Para 11]
Indukuri Venkatarama Raju v. Totakura Narasa Raju alias Chittiraju, (1966)2 An.W.R. 134. [Para 12]
Rani Purnima Devi v. Kumar Khagendra Narayan Deb, (1962)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 27: (1962)2 An.W.R. (S.C.) 27: (1962)1 S.C.J. 725: A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 567. [Para 14]
Indayammal v. Salayath Mary, (1972)2 M.L.J. 508. [Para 15]
Mohammed Ihtishan Ali v. Jamna Prasad, 20 M.L.J. 961: A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 56: 48 I.A. 355: 64 I.C. 299. [Para 15]
Gopal Das v. Shri Thakurji, (1943)2 M.L.J. 51: A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 83: 267 I.C. 553: 70 I.A. 57. [Para 15]
Huthegowda v. Chennigowda, A.I.R. 1953 Mysore 49. [Para 15]
Revanna v. Dr. A.V. Ranga Rao, A.I.R. 1952 Mysore 119. [Para 15]
Kashubai v. Vinayak, A.I.R. 1956 Bom. 65. [Para 15]
Surendrapal v. Saraswati, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 1999: (1974)2 S.C.C. 800. [Para 16]
Davood Rowther v. Ramanathan, I.L.R. 1938 Mad. 523: 176 I.C. 858: A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 43. [Para 17]
Timmayya Dundappa v. Channava Appaya, A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 322. [Para 17]
Valhanimal v. Rakkie Gounder, (1991)2 M.L.J. 478. [Para 17]
Blake v. Blake, 7 Law Reports - Probate Division 102. [Para 17]
Lachman Singh v. Surendra Bahadur, A.I.R. 1932 All 527. [Para 17]
Yonkata Sastri and Sons v. Rahilna Bi, A.I.R. 1962 Mad. 111. [Para 17]
Shamu Pattar v. Abdul Kadir Ravuthan, 23 M.L.J. 321: 16 I.C. 250: 39 I.A. 218: 1912 M.W.N. 935. [Para 18]
Vadla Nagiah v. Valuru Divakara Mudaliar, 1917 M.W.N. 583. [Para 18]
Rajani Kanta Barui v. Bonbehari Sarkar, A.I.R. 1952 Cal. 7. [Para 18]
Sadachii Ammal v. Rajathu Ammal, 1939 M.W.N. 651: A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 315. [Para 19]
Doraiswami v. Rathinammal, (1978)1 M.L.J. 456: A.I.R. 1978 Mad. 78. [Para 20]
Baru Ram v. Smt. Prasanna, A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 93. [Para 21]
Dhani Bai v. Neemi Kanwar, A.I.R. 1972 Raj. 9. [Para 22]
Rahim Khan v. Khurshid Ahmed, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 290. [Para 23]
G. Subramanian, Senior Counsel, for S. Thiruvengataswamy, for Petitioner.
K. Chandrasekaran for B. Kumar, for Respondent.
 The Court made the following ORDER:- One Rajagopala Iyengar died on 10.1.1976, leaving his first wife by name Jayalakshmi Ammal, the petitioner herein, and second wife Dr. Kamala. The latter filed a suit O.S. No. 55 of 1976 on the file of Sub Court, Thanjavur, for partition and separate possession of one half of the properties left by the deceased husband. The suit was contested by the petitioner mainly on the ground that Rajagopala Iyengar had executed a will disposing of his properties in a particular manner. The Subordinate Judge, Thanjavur, rejected the contentions of the petitioner and passed a preliminary decree on 29.11.1980 declaring that the plaintiff was entitled to half share in the properties mentioned in the decree. The petitioner filed A.S. No. 391 of 1981 in this Court challenging the decree. The appeal was dismissed on 22.6.1987. Dr. Kamala died on 1.12.1987. The respondent filed an application for passing of final decree along with an application to bring herself on record as the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff. The respondent claimed that the deceased had bequeathed her properties by a registered will dated 27.1.1976 in her favour and thus, she was the only person entitled to the properties of the deceased. The petitioner contested the application challenging the genuineness and the validity of the will propounded by the respondent. The Subordinate Judge, Thanjavur, has accepted the case of the respondent and ordered her application to implead herself as a party to the proceedings in her capacity as legal representative of the deceased plaintiff. It is the said order which is questioned in this revision petition.
 2. It is argued vehemently by learned counsel for the petitioner that the evidence adduced on the side of the respondent in the court below does not satisfy the requirements prescribed by the Evidence Act and the Indian Succession Act for proving due execution of a will. According to learned counsel, the burden is on the respondent, the propounder of the will, to prove that the same was executed in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law and in the present case, the respondent has miserably failed to do so. It is argued that the evidence of the Sub Registrar, who has been examined as P.W.1, who proved the registration of the will, cannot be treated as evidence of due execution of the will and the evidence of P.W.2, a vakil's clerk, is not sufficient in law to prove the due attestation of the will. In short, his contention is that the evidence placed before court by the respondent is no evidence in law and the order of the lower court is, therefore, vitiated by illegality. He submits that at any rate, this Court should interfere under Sec.115 of the Code of Civil Procedure in the interests of justice. According to him, justice requires that the surviving widow of the deceased Rajagopala Iyengar, should take his estate in entirety as against a sister of the other widow, who claims only as a legatee under the will. 3. In the counter affidavit filed by the petitioner in the court below, the relevant plea is found in the following sentence:

"It is obvious the Applicant has procured the Will either by undue influence and coercion or by forgery."

Excepting the said omnibus plea, there is nothing in the counter affidavit worthy of consideration. The petitioner has not referred to any suspicious circumstances surrounding the execution of the will. It is seen that the last part of the plea is inconsistent with the previous part. If the will was procured by undue influence or coercion, it could not be a forgery and if it was a forgery, there is no question of undue influence or coercion. The petitioner is not clear in her pleading. The petitioner has not referred to any circumstance from which the court could infer that the propounder had played a part in bringing the will into existence.

4. It is not in dispute that the propounder was the younger sister of the deceased plaintiff. In her affidavit she has described herself as a retired Professor of Education. In the will her educational qualification is stated to be M.A., M.Ed., The will gives her address as 3, Dharma Praksh Chawl at Kudand in Bilaspur, Madhya Pradesh State. According to the recitals in the will, she was working as a Principal of a Women's College at Bilaspur at that time. No attempt has been made by the petitioner to contest the correctness of the said recitals in the will as regards the status and educational qualification of the respondent. The testatrix was herself a retired Medical Officer of the Pondicherry Government. She was living in Bangalore and she had been to Thanjavur in connection with the obsequial ceremonies following the death of her husband. Thus, the undisputed facts are that the testatrix was a highly educated person with rich worldly experience and had retired from Government service, whereas the legatee, who was her sister, was also highly educated, working as the head of an educational institution and living far away from the testatrix. The will in question was undoubtedly presented for registration on 27.1.1976 and registered as Document No.4 of 1976 in Book 3 Volume 122 on 29.1.1976 by the Joint Sub Registrar-1 at Thanjavur. The said Sub Registrar has appeared before court and given evidence that he registered the will in the normal course of his official duties. No suggestion has been made in the cross-examination that he was interested in giving evidence in support of the respondent. The very fact that he deposed that he did not know the testatrix personally previously, shows that he was speaking the truth before the court. His evidence is sufficient to make out that a person claiming herself to be Dr. Kamala Rajagopalan appeared before him and presented the will for registration stating that it was executed by her. The testatrix died nearly 12 years after the registration of the will. Unless a definite case is pleaded by the petitioner that somebody was interested in impersonating the testatrix as early as in 1976 and getting a will registered as if it was her will, the court is not entitled to make surmises and assume anything contrary to the document. The court is bound to apply the presumption under Sec.114 of the Evidence Act and hold that the will was presented for registration by its executant and registered properly in accordance with law. The plea of undue influence or coercion cannot stand scrutiny for a moment. There is not even a plea that the testatrix was of weak intellect so as to be influenced unduly by another person. It is too much to say that the undue influence or coercion continued for a period of nearly twelve years and the testatrix had no opportunity to change the will during her life time. The plea of forgery is equally reckless. The undisputed facts already referred to are sufficient to throw out the same.

5. P.W.2 is a vakil's clerk. He has been examined to speak about the signatures of the attestors found on the will. Both the attestors were admittedly advocates' clerks. They have not only attested the will, but also identified the testatrix before the Sub Registrar. Admittedly, both are dead and not available to give evidence. The evidence of P.W.2 is sought to be discredited by his statement in the cross-examination that he had not seen the two persons attesting any other document. His evidence is quite natural and there is no reason to disbelieve his version that he being an advocate's clerk, was acquainted with the signatures of two other advocates' clerks working in the same place, though they were seniors to him.

6. Though I have myself considered the acceptability of the evidence of P.Ws.1 and 2 in order to satisfy myself that there is no miscarriage of justice in this case, strictly speaking it is not my function to appreciate the evidence. I am sitting in revision and I should only see whether the order of the court below is vitiated by illegality or material irregularity and whether there is any error of jurisdiction. It is only for the purpose of bringing the case within the four corners of Sec.115 of the Code of Civil Procedure, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the evidence of P.Ws.1 and 2 is not legal evidence. I do not agree with him. I find that the evidence is acceptable in law and no exception can be taken to the same having been accepted by the court below.

7. The law on this subject is found in Secs.47 and 67 to 69 of the Indian Evidence Act. Sec.67 of the Evidence Act requires that if a document is alleged to be signed or to have been written wholly or in part by any person, the signature or the handwriting must be proved to be in his handwriting. Sec.47 of the Evidence Act makes relevant the opinion of any person acquainted with the handwriting of the person by whom the document is supposed to be written or signed that it was or was not written or signed by that person. The explanation to Sec.47 on which considerable reliance is placed by learned counsel for the petitioner, is in the following terms:

"A person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person when he has seen that person write, or when he has received documents purporting to be written by that person in answer to documents written by himself or under his authority and addressed to that person, or when, in the ordinary course of business, documents, purporting to be written by that person have been habitually submitted to him."

Sec.68 of the Evidence Act requires that in order to prove a document required by law to be attested, at least one attesting witness should be called for the purpose of proving its execution, if there be an attesting witness alive, and subject to the process of the court and capable of giving evidence. The proviso contains an exception and excludes a document not being a will, which has been registered in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, unless its execution is specifically denied. A will even if registered, falls under the main Section, as it is excluded from the purview of the proviso. Sec.69 of the Evidence Act provides that if no attesting witness can be found, it must be proved that the attestation of at least one attesting witness is in his handwriting and that the signature of the person executing the document is in the handwriting of that person. Thus, Sec.69 of the Evidence Act requires proof of (1) the signature of at least one witness and (2) the signature of the person executing the document. It is not necessary, however, for the purpose of Sec.69 of the Evidence Act that the same witness must prove the signature of the attesting witness and also the signature of the executant. The two requirements can be satisfied by two independent witnesses.

8. The law relating to proof of handwriting by a person acquainted with the same has been succinctly stated in Field's Law of Evidence, 11th Edition, Volume III, pages 2517 to 2519. It is worthy of reproduction as under:

"12. Person acquainted with handwriting. Considering the manner in which Sec.47 of the Evidence Act is framed it has been held by the courts generally that it is enough for a witness to say in examination-in-chief that he is acquainted with the handwriting, and that if it is desired to challenge that statement of his he has to be cross-examined on that statement to show that he could not be acquainted with the handwriting in the circumstances of any particular case.

The English law on the point is thus summarized by Taylor on Evidence Act (Vol.2, Ed.12, para.1863, p.1151): "The witness need not state in the first instance how he knows the handwriting, since it is the duty of the opposite party to explore on cross-examination the source of his knowledge, if he be dissatisfied with the testimony as it stands.

The Indian Law of Evidence is based on the English law, and there is nothing in Sec.47 which goes against this principle which has been accepted by the English courts. Following this principle, the Indian High Courts have also taken the same view and it will be useful to refer to a few cases in support. Shankarrao Gangadhar v. Ramji Harjivan, I.L.R. 28 Bom. 58; 5 Bom.L.R. 663, Jagdish Das v. Emperor, A.I.R. 1938 Patna. 497; 40 Crl.L.J. 27, see also Pusaram v. Manmal, A.I.R. 1955 Raj. 186 at 187, see also Shankarappa v. Sushilabai, A.I.R. 1984 Kant. 112.

In In re. Basnur Venkata Row, 14 I.C. 418 (Mad): 36 Mad. 159, an observation was made while dealing with a criminal case that a bald statement by a witness that certain documents were not in the handwriting of the accused was not legal evidence of any knowledge of the accused's handwriting, even when he says that he had seen the accused write document and the accused had written documents for him. Without saying how long ago they were written, his evidence is of the weakest kind.

In Pusaram v. Manmal, A.I.R. 1955 Raj. 186 at 187, Wanchoo, C.J., while speaking for the Bench said: "These observations, in our opinion, were about the weight of the evidence and not as to whether it was the duty of the counsel examining the witness to question him about his source of knowledge. In that case, the source of knowledge of the witness was undoubted, and the question was only whether the evidence was sufficient to prove the handwriting."

In the case of Mst. Jasoda Kuar v. Janak Missir, A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 787, there is an observation that in order to prove the handwriting or signature of another person one must show that he is acquainted with the handwriting or signature of that person. This observation has been taken to mean that it is for the counsel putting in the witness to bring out the circumstances, though the learned Judge has not said this in so many words.

This case is no authority for the view that it is for the counsel producing the witness to bring out the circumstances in which the witness became acquainted with the handwriting.

It is enough if a witness states in examination-in-chief that he is acquainted with the handwriting, and it is then for the cross-examining counsel to bring out the circumstances challenging that statement, and discredit the witness. Pusaram v. Manmal, A.I.R. 1955 Raj. 186 at 187.

13. Weight to be attached to the evidence of lay witnesses:- Where direct evidence of one who was present when the document was written is not available the familiarity with the handwriting in question may be slight, an opinion based on mere inference is insufficient.

Where the evidence on a case is the result of mental comparison, such evidence according to recognised authority is of an inconclusive character.

It is laid down in Halsbury's Laws of England (Vol.13 at p.606, para 673, as follows: "Whilst evidence of opinion or belief is admitted for the purpose of proving handwriting, where direct evidence of one who was present when the document was written is not available, an opinion based on mere inference is insufficient."

Where a person, who was acquainted with the handwriting of a person, testified on oath to the fact that the disputed signature was the genuine signature of the person concerned and the expert witness who was called gave his contrary opinion, it was held that the witness's statement was more valuable and more worthy of credence than that of the expert witness. Under Sec.47 of the Evidence Act, the evidence of persons acquainted with the handwriting of the person by whom a particular document is supposed to be written or signed is relevant and admissible. The evidence of person acquainted with the handwriting of the executant of a document is relevant and admissible.

But in Rajmal v. Islam Mahomed, A.I.R. 1958 Raj. 6 at 7, however, the witness who had been produced to identify the handwriting of the executant did not express his opinion as if he was a person acquainted with the handwriting of the executant, but attempted to play the role of an expert, which he was not. The second person also did not express any opinion as if by a person acquainted with the handwriting of the executant, but attempted to play the role of an expert. Held that the evidence of such witnesses must be rejected."

9. In Raja Venkataramayya v. Kamisetti Ghattayya, 53 M.L.J. 216, Waller, J. held that once the handwriting of the attestors is proved, there is a presumption in the absence of rebutting evidence that they actually witnessed the execution of the deed. The learned Judge relied on the judgment in Uttam Singh v. Hukam Singh, I.L.R. 39 All. 112.

10. A detailed discussion of the law is found in Ponnuswami Goundan and another v. Kalyanasundaram Ayyar and others, A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 770. Anantakrishna Ayyar, J. has referred to the relevant text books on the law of Evidence besides the decisions of English and Indian Courts. Ultimately, he posed the question as to whether proof of the signature of the attestors will in law be enough to prove execution against the defendant. He answered the question in the following words:

"Thus the better view in America would seem to be that when proof of the signatures of the attestors is given, it seems to be taken that they attested in the usual course of business and after execution by the executant, and after the identity of the executant is established it is open to the courts, if they think fit to do so in the circumstances, to hold the document to be proved to have been executed by the executant. There is no rule of law which prevents them from doing so, if from the circumstances of the case, the courts are inclined to do so. Whether in any particular case the courts should do so or not would depend upon the nature of the circumstances in each case. While there is the possibility of the attestors colluding together and putting their signature to a forged document, especially where the executant is a marksman and thus committing fraud on courts, there is the other possibility of a genuine document executed by a marksman and properly attested being found to be impossible to be proved when the attestors are dead. To avoid such extreme cases on both sides, courts have to be guided by all the circumstances of the particular cases before them. All that I am now concerned to point out is, that there appears to be no rule of law which prevents the courts from holding the execution of a document to be proved when the signatures of the attesting witnesses had been proved to their satisfaction, having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

In Joshua Hands v. Herbert James, 2 Comyns. 531, it is stated:

"In case the witness be dead, the proof must be circumstantial, and here are circumstances: (1) three witnesses have set their names, and it must be intended that they did it regularly: (2) one witness was an attorney of good character, and may be presumed to understand what ought to be done, rather than the contrary..... It being a matter of fact, was proper to be left to them (jury)."

In Harris v. Knight, (1890) 15 P.D. 170, Law Reports (by two Judges to one, a profitable case for study) Lopes L.J., said:

"The inference to be drawn in cases of this kind depends upon a number of circumstances peculiar to the cases in which they arise, and the presumption omnia rite esse acta applies with more or less force according to the circumstances of each case: see p.184 of the Report." The English cases support the view taken by the lower courts in the present case. As I found in the American text books a full discussion of the question raised before me and as they furnished answers to the arguments raised before me, I thought it convenient to refer to the same. I am, therefore, of opinion that the lower courts were entitled to hold in this case, if they so chose, that Ex.M. was executed by the defendant."

11. The judgment was affirmed on appeal by a Division Bench in Ponnuswami Goundan and another v. Kalyanasundaram Ayyar and others, 66 M.L.J. 712: I.L.R. 57 Mad. 662: 149 I.C. 267: A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 365. The Bench said,

"He states that the signature of one of the attesting witnesses is his signature. What follows from that? It follows that it is proved that that attesting witness attested the document. What follows from that? A passage from Mr. Starkie in his Law of Evidence, Edn.4, p.519, is set out in the judgment of our learned brother as follows:

"The signature of the attesting witness when proved is evidence of everything upon the face of the instrument, since it is to be presumed that the witness would not have subscribed his name in attestation of that which did not take place.”

“Therefore the signature of the attesting witness having been proved is evidence of everything on the face of the document and that he saw the executant make his mark. The argument put forward before us by the appellants directly gives the go-by to this very obvious inference which in the English law arises and I see no reason whatever, for excluding that inference from the Indian law of evidence. It gives the go-by entirely to the provision of the Evidence Act which permits secondary evidence to be given in the absence of witnesses who are either dead or cannot be brought to court. Sec.67, Evidence Act requires nothing more than proof of the handwriting or signature of the writer of the document or its executant. The section does not specify or limit the kind of evidence required. It clearly only requires proof by admissible evidence.”

12. A similar view was taken by a Division Bench of the Andhra Pradesh High Court in Indukuri Venkatarama Raju and others v. Totakura Narasa Raju alias Chittiraju, (1966)2 An.W.R. 134. The Bench has relied on the rulings in Raja Venkataramayya v. Kamusetti Ghattaya, 53 M.L.J. 216 and Ponnuswami Goundan v. Kalyanasundara Ayyar, A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 770.

13. In Shankarappa v. Sushilabai, A.I.R. 1984 Karn. 112, Venkatachaliah, J. observed that it is not necessary for a non-expert testifying under Sec.47 of the Evidence Act to state in chief-examination as to the mode in which knowledge of handwriting was acquired by him and it was for the cross-examining counsel to challenge his statement, if it was to be disputed. In the present case, the petitioner's counsel did not choose to cross-examine P.W.2 in detail but rested content with a suggestion that he did not see the attestors attesting any other document.

14. In Rani Purnima Debi and another v. Kumar Khagendra Narayan Deb and another, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 567: (1962)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 27: (1962)2 An.W.R. (S.C.) 27: (1962)1 S.C.J. 725, the effect of registration of a will has been considered. It is pointed out that if the evidence as to registration reveals on a close examination that the registration was made in such a manner that it was brought home to the testator that the document of which he was admitting execution was a will disposing of his property and thereafter he admitted its execution and signed it in token thereof, the registration will dispel the doubt as to the genuineness of the will. It is also observed that the mere fact of registration may not by itself be enough to dispel all suspicion that may attach to the execution and attestation of a will, though it would be an important circumstance in favour of the will being genuine if the evidence as to registration establishes that the testator admitted the execution of the will after knowing that it was a will the execution of which he was admitting. In the present case, the testatrix is highly educated woman with sufficient worldly experience besides being a retired Government official. The evidence of the Sub Registrar (P.W.1), which has been accepted by the court below, shows that she was aware of the nature of the document and she admitted execution thereof before him.

15. A Division Bench of this Court in Irudayammal v. Salayath Mary, (1972)2 M.L.J. 508, held that if no other evidence is available, the certificate of registration is prima facie evidence of its execution and the certificate of the registering officer under Sec.60 of the Registration Act is relevant for proving execution. The following passage in the judgment is worth reproduction:

“The first defendant has, therefore, proved the Will by other acceptable, satisfactory evidence, supplemented by such presumptions as would arise under the provisions of the Registration Act and Sec.114 of the Evidence Act on the facts of this case. There is a general presumption about the execution of the Will arising under Sec.60 of the Indian Registration Act (vide: Mull's Indian Registration Act, Seventh Edition, page 256). It is true that registration, by itself, in all cases, is not proof of execution, but if no other evidence is available, the certificate of registration is prima facie evidence of its execution and the certificate of the registration officer under Sec.60 of the Registration Act is relevant for proving execution. (See discussion in Sarkar's Evidence, Latest (12th) Edition, Page 640). As observed by the Privy Council in Mohammed Ihtushan Ali v. Jamna Prasad, 20 M.L.J. 961: A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 56: 48 I.A. 355: 64 I.C. 299, registration is a solemn act and if no other evidence is available, the court can presume that the Registrar performed his duty of satisfying himself that the document presented to him for registration was duly executed by the executant and the executant was duly and properly identified before him. The same view has been taken in Gopal Das v. Shri Thakurji, (1943) 2 M.L.J. 51: A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 83: 267 I.C. 553: 70 I.A. 57, in which, after referring to the earlier decision of the Privy Council in Mohammed Ihtishan Ali v. Jamna Prasad, 20 M.L.J. 961: A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 56: 48 I.A. 355: 64 I.C. 299, Sir George Rankin observed that the evidence of due registration is itself some evidence of execution as against the other side. There is a full discussion on this question as to the presumption arising from the fact of due registration, coupled with the presumption arising under Sec.114 of the Indian Evidence Act, in a Bench decision of the Mysore High Court in Huthegowda v. Chennigegowda, A.I.R. 1953 Mysore 49, in which it was held that the evidence that a document was duly registered is some evidence of its execution by the person by whom it purports to have been executed. There is a full discussion of the relevant case law including the decision of the Privy Council in Mohammed Ihtishan Ali v. Jamna Prasad, 20 M.L.J. 961: A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 56: 48 I.A. 355: 64 I.C. 299, aforesaid. In Revanna v. Dr.A.V.Ranga Rao, A.I.R. 1952 Mysore 119, it was observed that in cases where it is impossible for any person to prove execution of a document on account of the death of all the persons concerned, the best and the only possible evidence that may be available is that of a certified copy of the registered document and that in such cases, a presumption would arise under Sec.60 of the Registration Act along with Sec.114 of the Evidence Act (see also Kashubai v. Vinayak, A.I.R. 1956 Bom. 65. It will be seen that in the ultimate analysis, the problem in each case is, 'has the best evidence been adduced on the facts of each case'; in the instant case, we have not the slightest hesitation in holding that this essential test for arriving at the truth has been amply satisfied."

The present case stands on a better footing, as in addition to the certificate of registration, the Officer who registered the document has himself given evidence in the case.

16. In Surendrapal v. Saraswati, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 1999: (1974) 2 S.C.C. 800, it is held that the burden of the propounder of a will is discharged when he establishes that the will was signed by the testator in a sound disposing state of mind and he put his signature to the testament on his own free will in the presence of two witnesses, who attested it in his presence and in the presence of each other. The court observed,

"But there may be cases in which the execution of the will itself is surrounded by suspicious circumstances, such as, where the signature is doubtful, the testator is of feeble mind or is overawed by powerful minds interested in getting his property, or where in the light of the relevant circumstances, the dispositions appear to be unnatural, improbable and unfair, or where there are other reasons for doubting that the dispositions of the will are not the result of the testator's free will and mind."

In the present case, not even one of the circumstances catalogued by the Apex Court in the above passage is pleaded or proved. Hence, the presumptions available in law can be drawn and the court below has rightly accepted the evidence on record as sufficient proof of the will in question.

17. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued at length that an admission made by the testatrix before the Sub Registrar as to the execution of the document cannot be treated as an admission of execution within the meaning of Sec.70 of the Evidence Act. He relied on the rulings in Davood Rowther v. Ramanathan, I.L.R. 1938 Mad. 523. 176 I.C. 858: A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 43, Timmayya Dundappa v. Channava Appaya, A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 322, and Valliammal v. Rakkie Gounder, (1991) 2 M.L.J. 478. It is argued that for the purposes of Sec.70 of the Evidence Act, there must be an admission in the course of the proceedings in which the document is sought to be proved and that mere admission of signature in the document will not tantamount to admission of due execution. According to him, in the case of a will, it must be proved that the requirements of Sec.63 of the Indian Succession Act are satisfied and if any admission falls short of proving the same, it cannot be treated as an admission. He has also drawn my attention to the judgment in Blake v. Blake, 7 L.R. - Probate Division 102. The learned Judges held in that case that though the testatrix admitted her executing the will, the evidence was not sufficient to prove that it was executed in accordance with the requirements of law. He has also referred to the rulings in Lachman Singh v. Surendra Bahadur, A.I.R. 1932 All. 527, and Venkata Sastri and Sons v. Rahilna Bi, A.I.R. 1962 Mad. 111, and contended that the Sub Registrar cannot be treated as an attesting witness. It is not necessary for me to consider either the argument relating to Sec. 70 of the Evidence Act or the argument that the Sub Registrar is not an attesting witness, as learned counsel for the respondent has not raised such contentions. Hence, I do not propose to refer to the aforesaid rulings in detail.

18. Learned counsel had placed reliance on the judgment of the Privy Council in Shamu Pattar v. Abdul Kadir Ravuthan, 23 M.L.J. 321: 16 I.C. 250: 39 L.A. 218: 1912 M.W.N. 935, and the judgment of a Division Bench of this Court in Vadla Nagiah v. Valuru Divakara Mudaliar, 1917 M.W.N. 583. In both the cases it is held that the admission of execution will not amount to admission of due attestation. Similarly in Rajani Kanta Barui v. Bonbehari Sarkar, A.I.R. 1952 Cal. 7, a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court held that the admission of signature in a document cannot dispense with the proof of attestation. None of the above ruling will have any bearing in the present case. I have already referred in detail to the evidence on record and the relevant case law on the subject. The attestation of the will by the two attestors, whose signatures are found in the will, has been proved and in any event, the evidence on record is legal evidence which has been accepted by the court below. The law on the subject is quite clear as pointed out by the rulings referred to already. Hence, it has to be held in this case that the due execution of the will and the attestation thereof have been proved.

19. Learned counsel has placed reliance on the judgment in Sadachi Ammal v. Rajathi Ammal, A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 315: 1939 M.W.N. 651, and contends that just because the testatrix presented the will to the Registrar, who does not even appear to have put any questions to her, it cannot be held that she had the testamentary capacity to execute the will. He relies on the following passage in the judgment:

"The mere fact that the testator was able to answer a few leading questions does not suffice to show that he was really capable of knowing the nature of the dispositions made in the will that was being registered. It may be that the will, except the schedules, was read to the testator by the Sub-registrar and it may be that the Sub-registrar was of opinion that the testator understood the contents of the will, but the latter is only a question of opinion, and there is no guarantee that the Sub-registrar's opinion that the testator understood the contents of the will is correct, having regard to his extremely weak physical condition at the time. There can be no doubt from the evidence of the Sub-Registrar himself, apart from the other evidence in the case, that at the time of the registration the testator was so weak as to require assistance in order to sit on his cot and also in lying down after the signatures were affixed in token of registration. The testator died within about 40 hours after the registration and he had been suffering from a serious illness for at least two months. In these circumstances, it is impossible to regard the registration as being equivalent to proof of capacity for making a will."

The above observations must be understood in the light of the facts of the case. Even the passage extracted above makes a reference to the peculiar circumstances of the case. It is also seen from the report that there was no satisfactory evidence regarding the actual execution of the will. Out of six attestors, only one was examined and the writer was not examined. The evidence of the single attestor was found unreliable. On the other hand, two attestors were examined on the side of the person who challenged the will and their evidence proved that their signatures were obtained by some pressure or inducement and they were not really present when the testator signed the will. It was in those circumstances the learned Judge held that the proof of registration was not sufficient proof of the due execution and attestation of will.

20. The case in Doraiswami v. Rathnammal, (1978) 1 M.L.J. 456: A.I.R. 1978 Mad. 78, relied on by learned counsel for the petitioner is similar. The only attesting witness who was alive, gave evidence denying his attestation and execution of the will. Taking that factor along with various other circumstances including the continued illness of the concerned person made the court doubt the evidence that the said person appeared before the Sub-Registrar and admitted execution of the will. In fact, it was observed that it was possible that someone else impersonated her before the Sub-Registrar. Hence, that ruling will not help the petitioner herein.

21. Learned counsel submits that the Explanation to Sec.47 of the Evidence Act is not satisfied in the present case by P.W.2. He relies on the observations of the Supreme Court in Baru Ram v. Smt. Prasanni, A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 93, that the requirements of Sec.47 should be satisfied for considering the proof of a document under Sec.67 of the Evidence Act. The relevant passage is as follows:

"Sec.67 of the Indian Evidence Act (1 of 1872) provides inter alia that if a document is alleged to be signed by any person the signature must be proved to be in his handwriting. Secs.45 and 47 of the said Act prescribed the method in which such signature can be proved. Under Sec.45, the opinion of the handwriting experts is relevant while under Sec.47 the opinion of any person acquainted with the handwriting of the person who is alleged to have signed the document is admissible. The explanation to the section explains when a person can be said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person. Thus, there can be no doubt as to the manner in which the alleged signature of the appellant could and should have been proved; but even assuming that the signature of the appellant can be legally held to be proved on circumstantial evidence the principle which governs the appreciation of such circumstantial evidence in cases of this kind cannot be ignored. It is only if the court is satisfied that the circumstantial evidence irresistibly leads to the inference that the appellant must have signed the form that the court can legitimately reach such a conclusion."

The passage itself makes reference to the circumstantial evidence and points out the need for the court being satisfied that the circumstantial evidence irresistibly leads to a particular inference. In the present case, the circumstantial evidence referred to already is sufficient to lead to an inference that the will was duly executed and attested.

22. Learned counsel has also drawn my attention to the judgment of Rajasthan High Court in Dhani Bai v. Neemi Kanwar, A.I.R. 1972 Raj. 9. The court held in that case that much reliance could not be placed on the evidence of a non-expert witness about the identification of the executant's signature as he had only seen the executant writing only once or twice. In that case, the signature in question was alleged to have been subscribed before the witness was born. The observation made by the court cannot be taken out of the context and applied to the present case. No attempt was made in the cross-examination of P.W.2 to elicit from him that he had no occasion at all to see the handwriting of signatures of the attesting witnesses who were also working as advocates' clerks along with him in the same court.

23. Learned counsel relies on the following passage in the judgment of the Supreme Court in Rahim Khan v. Khurshid Ahmed, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 290:

"There is also oral evidence identifying the signature of the returned candidate on Exs.P-3 and P.W.11/1, particularly in the deposition of Habib, P.W.23. He has not spoken to his familiarity with the handwriting of the appellant. Opinion evidence is hearsay and becomes relevant only if the condition laid down in Sec.47 of the Evidence Act is first proved. There is some conflict of judicial opinion on this matter, but we need not resolve it here, because, although there is close resemblance between the signature of Rahim Khan on admitted documents and that in Exs.P-3 and P.W.11/1, we do not wish to hazard a conclusion based on dubious evidence or lay comparison of signature by courts. In these circumstances, we have to search for other evidence, if any, in proof of circulation of the printed hand-bills by the returned candidate, or with his consent."

It is apparent that the passage has no relevance whatever to the present case.

24. There is no substance in the contentions urged by the revision petitioner. I find that the court below has not committed any error whatever in accepting the evidence of P.Ws.1 and 2 and holding that the will propounded by the respondent is the last will and testament of the deceased plaintiff and the respondent is a person entitled to come on record as her legal representative.

25. The civil revision petition suffers a dismissal. The parties will bear their respective costs.

B.S.

Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.Present:- Mishra and Swamidurai, JJ.

L.P.A.No.27 of 1988 27th March, 1992.

E.S.R.Packirisamy Pillai ...Appellant

v.

Vijayalakshmi and another ...Respondents.

Hindu Succession Act (XXX of 1956), Sec.14(1) and (2) - Will executed by husband conferring life estate on certain properties in favour of his wife - Widow in possession of the property on the date Hindu Succession Act, 1956 came into force - Interest whether enlarged under Sec.14(1) - Absence of pleading that Will under which the widow entered upon the property was executed in recognition of a pre-existing right against the property - If bars widow from contending that will only recognised a pre-existing right.

One Sundaram Pillai executed a will Exs.A-1 and B-1. On 14.3.1937 on the day the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1937 came into force conferring a right on his wife Soundarathammal to enjoy the 'A' schedule property without any right of alienation. After her life time, the entire 'A' schedule properties were to belong to his brother's son Subramania Pillai, absolutely. The widow executed a Will on 3.1.1951 and the codicil dated 25.11.1974, the combined effect of both being that the suit property shall devolve on the defendant after her demise. She died on 5.3.1975. The plaintiff-respondent filed a suit claiming the property under the will of Sundaram Pillai as absolutely belonging to him. The trial court held that the widow acquired absolute interest in the properties and that the disposition in favour of the defendant-appellant was valid. The plaintiff preferred an appeal but died during the pendency of the appeal. The legal representatives were brought on record. The learned single Judge held that the Will Ex.B-1 did not refer to any pre-existing right of the widow against the property, that, therefore, there was no scope for invoking the aid of Sec.14(1) of the Hindu Succession Act and that the rigor of Sec.14(2) of that Act alone must rule. It was also held that as the widow did not plead that the property was given to her under Ex.B-1 in recognition of any pre-existing right, it would not be permissible for the widow or any person claiming through her to say that the will only recognised a pre-existing right. In L.P. Appeal, Held:- The court cannot fail to notice that the right to maintenance which Soundarathammal had before the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act came into force, had matured into a statutory right giving to her a limited interest for life and the recitals thus recognised only a pre-existing right in her and extended the benefits after her death to the reversioners who had vested remainders to interest, the consequence of which the law then existing had pre-determined. Such recognition of the pre-existing vestige of title under law and the nature of possession of the property she had, must be allowed to be enlarged under Sec.14(1) of the Act as it was not a grant coming to her under the testament without there being any pre-existing right in her to succeed to the estate of her husband on his demise, having a life interest. It is difficult to understand how on the facts as above, the Court can say that a specific pleading would be needed that the will under which Soundarathammal entered upon the property had been executed in recognition of a pre-existing right against the property and/or that unless such a recital is found in the will, it will not be permissible for the widow or any person claiming through her to say that the will only recognised a pre-existing right.

[Paras 8 and 9]

Cases referred to:

- Sri Mahaliamman Temple v. Vijayammal*, (1983)2 M.L.J. 442. [Para 1]
V. Tulasamma v. V. Sesha Reddi, (1978)1 S.C.J. 29: (1978)1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 6: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944. [Paras 1, 4, 5, 6]
Munnalal v. Rajkumar, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1493: (1962)3 S.C.R. (Supp.) 418. [Paras 3, 4]
Krishna Beharilal v. Gulabchand, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 1041: (1971)1 S.C.J. 30. [Para 3]
Gumalapura Taggina Retada Kotturawami v. Setra Veeravva, (1959)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 968: A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 577. [Para 4]
Mangal Singh v. Rattno, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1786. [Para 4]
Thota Sesharathamma v. Thotta Manikyanamma, (1991)4 S.C.C. 312. [Paras 6, 10]
Badri Pershad v. Smt. Kanso Devi, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 963: 1970 M.L.J. (Crl.) 599: (1970)2 S.C.J. 299: 1970 Crl.L.J. 885. [Paras 4, 6]
Mst. Karni v. Anru, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 745. [Para 6]

S.Rajagopala Chettiar v. Hamsaveri Ammal, (1991)4 S.C.C. 383. [Paras 10, 11]

Letters Patent Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Nainar Sundaram, J., dated 12.1.1988 and made in the exercise of the Appellate Jurisdiction of the High Court in Appeal No.1067 of 1980 (O.S.No.44/77, dated 24.12.1979 on the file of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Nagapattinam).

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- One Sundaram Pillai executed a Will Exs.A-1 and B-1, on 14.4.1937, on the day the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1937, came into force, disposing of his properties including the suit property, which is item 8 of A Schedule property in Ex.B-1. The relevant will recitals are as follows:

"Will executed this 14th day of April, 1937 by Ko.Rama Sundaram Pillai, son of Ko.Ram Badra Pillai of Vadakku Pogainallur, Nagapattinam Taluk, out of free will and in a sound disposing state of mind.

I have become very aged. I am suffering from diabetes for some time and day-by-day I am becoming lean and weak and I have no faith that I will live long. I want to make arrangement in respect of all the movables/immovable properties owned by me and I am making this arrangement out of free will.

The entire properties described in the Schedule below including "E" Schedule and "P" Schedule properties and the outstandings due to me were all myself-acquired properties and I am owning them exclusively. There is no other person entitled to the same. I have my third wife Soundaraththammal. I have no other heirs. Therefore my obsequies/ceremonies shall be performed by my divided brother's son Subramaniam Pillai son of Seppayam Pillai.

The 'A' Schedule property belonging to me shall be enjoyed by my third wife Soundaraththammal, without any right of alienation and shall enjoy the income therefrom. After her life time, the entirety of the A Schedule properties shall belong to my elder brother's son Subramaniam Pillai son of Seppayam Pillai absolutely with the right of alienation and over this property nobody shall have any rights....." Soundaraththammal, the third wife of Sundaram Pillai, who was given thus life interest with no power of alienation under the Will of her husband Sundaram Pillai, executed a will on 3.1.1951 as per the original of Ex.B-2, and on 25.11.1974 as per Ex.B-3, a codicil, the combined effect being that the suit property should devolve on the defendant-appellant after the demise of Soundaraththammal. Soundaraththammal died on 5.3.1975. The plaintiff-respondent however filed the instant suit alleging that as per the last will and testament executed by Sundaram Pillai, he provided for the devolution of the property under the various schedules therein, provided for the life interest of his widow Soundaraththammal in respect of the A Schedule to the will comprising of 9 items including the suit item, and with regard to the other items and the other schedules in the will, gave right to others including the plaintiff. With respect to A schedule, however, Sundaram Pillai said that after Soundaraththammal's life time, the entirety of the A schedule property shall belong to his elder brother's son Subramaniam (and thereafter the plaintiff) absolutely with the right of alienation. Sundaram Pillai continued to enjoy the property till his demise on 18.7.1942, and after his death, Soundaraththammal had only a restricted life enjoyment of the property, and after the death of Soundaraththammal on 5.3.1975, the plaintiff became entitled to the property as per the terms of the will. The plaintiff-respondent thus claimed the property under the will as absolutely belonging to him after the death of the third wife of Sundaram Pillai, Soundaraththammal. There were several issues and contentions before the trial court, but it pronounced on the main question whether under Sec.14(1) of the Hindu Succession Act, Act 30 of 1956, (hereinafter referred to as the Act), Soundaraththammal became the absolute owner and thus acquired right of disposition of the properties described in the Will, Exs.A-1 and B-1, or it was a property given to her under the will and thus under Sec.14(2) of the Act, after her demise, Schedule A properties vested in the plaintiff, and whether disposition of a property so given to her in favour of the defendant-appellant is valid as she is the widow of Sundaram Pillai, acquired absolute interest in favour of the defendant and against the plaintiff. The plaintiff preferred an appeal in A.S.No.1067 of 1980. He, however, died during the pendency of the appeal, and his legal representatives were brought on record. Nainar Sundaram, J., (as he then was), who finally disposed of the appeal, however, has held as follows:

"There are certain features, which have to speak, and if I take note of them, I find that the stand expressed by the learned counsel for the defendant cannot be accepted. The first feature is, the recitals in Ex.B-1 do not refer to any pre-existing right of Soundaraththammal against property, such as her right to maintenance, so as to say, that it was only in recognition thereof, or in confirmation and reiteration thereof, the suit property was given to her in the manner done under Ex.B-1. If we go by the express recitals in Ex.B-1, it is not possible to spell out a theory that the disposition under Ex.B-1 of the suit property in favour of Soundaraththammal, was done to confirm, endorse, declare or recognise any pre-existing right of Soundaraththammal against property. It will be proper and safer to go by the express recitals found in the document itself to find out as to whether only in recognition of any pre-existing right against property the disposition could be stated to have been made. Another feature, which speaks against the case of the defendant is that there is no pleading at all that only in recognition or confirmation or declaration of any pre-existing right of Soundaraththammal against property, the suit site was given to her under Ex.B-1. While deciding this question, the parties are bound by their pleadings, unless the express recitals in the deed do support their cases one way or the other. Here, the express recitals do not in any way indicate that the disposition was in confirmation or reiteration of declaration of any pre-existing right of Soundaraththammal against property, such as her right to maintenance. In my view, the recitals being unambiguous and there being no pleading on the part of the defendant that the disposition under Ex.B-1 was only in confirmation, reiteration and declaration of any pre-existing right of Soundaraththammal against property, there is no scope for invoking the aid of Sec.14(1) of the Act and on the facts of the case, the rigor of Sec.14(2) alone must rule. The third feature is, that even assuming that without pleadings, evidence could be let in, which proposition will certainly offend the well accepted norm in this behalf, I find that the defendant has not placed any evidence at all that the disposition of the suit site under Ex.B-1 was intended to reiterate, declare and confirm any pre-existing right of Soundaraththammal against property, such as her right to maintenance."

Nainar Sundaram, J., (as he then was) has stood by his view in spite of his attention being drawn to a judgment of this Court in Sri Mahaliamman Temple v. Vijayammal, (1983) 2 M.L.J. 442, for in his view, the law on the subject has been stated clearly and in detail in the judgment of the Supreme Court in V.Tulasamma v. V.Sesha Reddi, (1978) 1 S.C.J. 299: (1978) 1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 6: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944, but on the facts of that case, that in a compromise arrived at between the parties, allotting the properties in question to a woman for her maintenance and giving her limited interest in such properties, the Supreme Court held that such allotment in lieu of her maintenance was in recognition of her right to maintenance, which was a pre-existing right, and, therefore, the case of the woman would be taken out of the ambit of Sec.14(2) and would fall squarely within Sec.14(1) read with the explanation thereto,

"No material has been exposed in the case by the defendant to demonstrate that the suit property was given to Soundaraththammal in reiteration, confirmation or in declaration of any pre-existing right of her against property. Neither the recitals in Ex.B-1 nor the pleadings put forth by the defendant, nor the evidence placed by him supports such a theory."

Sundaram Pillai's will is not in question. He executed the will on the date the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act came into force. Sundaram Pillai died on 18.7.1942. On that day, under Sec.3 of the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, his widow Soundaraththammal, in the event of intestate succession, became entitled to limited interest, known as the Hindu Women's estate, and inheritance, equal to the share of her son, if there was one living at the time of her husband's death. It is, however, agreed that there was no son to inherit and/or there was no other person to share the A schedule properties in the will in the event of intestate succession to Sundaram Pillai with his widow Soundaraththammal. When the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, came into force, Soundaraththammal was alive and was in possession of the A schedule properties in the will. Sec.14 of the Act reads as follows:

"14. (1) Any property possessed by a female Hindu whether acquired before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be held by her as full owner thereof and not as a limited owner."

Explanation:- In this sub-section, "property" includes both movable and immovable property acquired by a female Hindu by inheritance, or device, or at a partition, or in lieu of maintenance or arrears of maintenance, or by gift from any person, whether a relative or not, before, at or after her marriage, or by her own skill or exertion, or by purchase or by prescription, or in any other manner whatsoever, and also any such property held by her as stridhana immediately before the commencement of this Act.

(2) Nothing contained in sub-sec.(1) shall apply to any property acquired by way of gift or under a will or any other instrument or under a decree or order of a civil court or under an award where the terms of the gift, will or other instrument or the decree, order of award prescribe a restricted estate in such property."

2. It is not in dispute before us, and it is not possible to so dispute, that the plaintiff has got no right to the property except as reversioner and vested remainder in the event of intestate succession or under the will Ex.B-1, if the property is given to Soundaraththammal by Sundaram Pillai under the will.

3. In S.S.Munnalal v. S.S.Rajkumar, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1493: (1962)3 S.C.R. (Supp.) 418, the Supreme Court has said,

"By Sec.14(1) the Legislature sought to convert the interest of a Hindu female which under the Sastric Hindu Law would have been regarded as a limited interest into an absolute interest and by the Explanation thereto gave to the expression "property" the widest connotation. The expression includes property acquired by a Hindu female by inheritance or device, or at a partition, or in lieu of maintenance or arrears of maintenance or by gift from any person, whether a relative or not, before, at or after her marriage, or by her own skill or exertion, or by purchase or by prescription, or in any other manner whatsoever. By Sec.14(1) manifestly it is intended to convert the interest which a Hindu female has in property however restricted the nature of that interest under the Sastric Hindu Law may be into absolute estate. Pratapmull's case, 63 I.A. 33: A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 20, undoubtedly laid down that till actual division of the share declared in her favour by a preliminary decree for partition of the joint family estate a Hindu wife or mother, was not recognised as owner, but that rule cannot in our judgment apply after the enactment of the Hindu Succession Act."

Proceeding further, the Supreme Court has, in this judgment, said:

"The Act is a codifying enactment, and has made far-reaching changes in the structure of the Hindu law of inheritance and succession. The act confers upon Hindu females a full right of inheritance, and sweeps away the traditional limitations on her powers of dispositions which were regarded under the Hindu Law as inherent in her estate. She is under the Act regarded as a fresh stock of descent in respect of property possessed by her at the time of her death. It is true that under the Sastric Hindu Law, the share given to a Hindu Widow on partition between her sons or her grandsons was in lieu of her right to maintenance. She was not entitled to claim partition. But the Legislature by enacting the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1937, made a significant departure in that branch of the law; the Act gave a Hindu widow the same interest in the property which her husband had at the time of his death, and if the estate was partitioned she became owner in severality of her share, subject of course to the restrictions on disposition and the peculiar rule of extinction of the estate on death actual or civil. It cannot be assumed having regard to this development that in enacting Sec.14 of the Hindu Succession Act, the Legislature merely intended to declare the rule enunciated by the Privy Council in Pratapmull's case..... Sec.4 of the Act given an overriding effect to the provision of the Act. It enacts: "save as otherwise expressly provided in this act,

(a) any text, rule or interpretation of Hindu law or any custom or usage as part of the law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act shall cease to have effect with respect to any matter for which provision is made in this Act.

(b)

Manifestly, the Legislature intended to supersede the rules of Hindu law on all matters in respect of which there was an express provision made in the Act. Normally a right declared in an estate by a preliminary decree would be regarded as property, and there is nothing in the context in which Sec.14 occurs or in the phraseology used by the Legislature to warrant the view that such a right declared in relation to the estate of a joint family in favour of a Hindu widow is not property within the meaning of Sec.14. In the light of the scheme of the Act and its avowed purpose it would be difficult without doing violence to the language used in the enactment to assume that a right declared in property in favour of a person under a decree for partition is not a right to property. If under a preliminary decree the right in favour of a Hindu male be regarded as property the right declared in favour of a Hindu female must also be regarded as property."

The above cited judgment of the Supreme Court thus has clarified how a wider meaning should be given to the expression "property" and with respect to a joint family property any declaration by a court as to the right in favour of a Hindu female be regarded as a right and how a departure from the Sastric or textual Hindu Law has been made by the provisions made in Sec.14(1) of the Act. It is, however, pointed out by the Supreme Court again in its judgment in Krishna Beharilal v. Gulabchand, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 1041: (1971) 1 S.C.J. 30, that it shall always be on the basis of a true construction of the document about which a dispute has arisen that it should be decided whether it is conferment of a new right or recognition of any existing right. In this judgment, the Supreme Court has said:

"The ordinary rule of construction of a document is to give effect to the normal and natural meaning of the words employed in the document. The compromise deed specifically says that the properties given to Pattobai were to be enjoyed by her as "Malik Mustakil"..... The circumstances under which the compromise was entered into as well as the language used in the deed do not in any manner go to indicate that the estate given to Pattobai was anything other than an absolute estate."

.....

It was a compromise entered into with the presumptive reversioners. Further, at no stage the plaintiff had pleaded that the compromise entered into in 1951 was an illegal compromise. The plaintiffs took no such plea in the plaint. There was no issue relating to the validity of the compromise. Hence the High Court was not justified in going into the validity of the compromise. Further even if the compromise was an invalid one, the parties to the compromise are estopped from challenging the impugned alienation."

4. Prior to the enactment of Sec.14 of the Act, the textual Hindu Law as well as the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1937, extracted above, restricted the nature of the interest of a Hindu female in property acquired by her, and even as regards the nature of this restricted interest, there was great diversity of doctrine on the subject. In V. Tulasamma v. V. Sesha Reddi, (1978) 1 S.C.J. 29: (1978) 1 A.L.J. (S.C.) 6: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944, the Supreme Court has said about the effect of Sec.14 as regards the nature of the restricted interest of Hindu female, in view of the diversity of doctrine on the subject as follows:

".....The Legislature by enacting sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14, intended as pointed out by this Court in S.S. Munnalal v. S.S. Rajkumar, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1493: (1962) 3 S.C.R. (Supp.) 418, to convert the interest which a Hindu female has in property, however restricted the nature of that interest under the Sastric Hindu law may be, into absolute estate". This Court pointed out that the Hindu Succession Act 1956 is a codifying enactment, and has made far-reaching changes in the structure of the Hindu Law of inheritance, and succession. The Act confers upon Hindu females full rights of inheritance and sweeps away the traditional limitations of her powers of disposition which were regarded under the Hindu Law as inherent in her estate". Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14, is wide in its scope and ambit and uses language of great amplitude. It says that any property possessed by a female Hindu, whether acquired before or after the commencement of the Act, shall be held by her as full owner thereof and not as a limited owner. The words "any property" are, even without any amplification, large enough to cover any and every kind of property, but in order to expand the reach and ambit of the section and make it all comprehensive, the Legislature has enacted an explanation which says that property would include "both movable and immovable property acquired by a female Hindu by inheritance or device, or at a partition, or in lieu of maintenance or arrears of maintenance, or by gift from any person, whether a relative or not, before, at or after her marriage, or by her own skill or exertion, or by purchase or by prescription, or in any other manner whatsoever, and also any such property held by her as stridhana immediately before the commencement" of the Act. Whatever be the kind of property, movable or immovable and whichever be the mode of acquisition, it would be covered by sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14, the object of the Legislature being to wipe out the disabilities from which a Hindu female suffered in regard to ownership of property under the old Sastric Law, to abridge the stringent provisions against proprietary rights which were often regarded as evidence of her perpetual tutelage and to recognize her status as an independent and absolute owner of property. This Court has also in a series of decisions given a most expansive interpretation to the language of sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14 with a view to advancing the social purpose, of the legislation and as part of that process, construed the words 'possessed of' also in a broad sense and in their widest connotation. It was pointed out by this Court in Gumalapura Taggina Metada Kotturawami v. Setra Veeravva, (1959)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 968: A.I.R. 1959 S.C. 577, that the words 'possessed of' mean "the state of owning or having in one's hand or power". It need not be actual or physical possession or personal occupation of the property by the Hindu female, but may be possession in law. It may be actual or constructive or in any form recognised by law. Elaborating the concept, this Court pointed out in Mangal Singh v. Rattne, A.I.R. 1967 S.C. 1786, that the section covers all cases of property owned by a female Hindu although she may not be in actual, physical or constructive possession of the property, provided of course, that she has not parted with her rights and is capable of obtaining possession of the property. It will, therefore, be soon that sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14 is large in its amplitude and covers every kind of acquisition of property by a female Hindu including acquisition in lieu of maintenance and where such property was possessed by her at the date of commencement of the Act or the subsequently acquired and possessed, she would become the full owner of the property.

xxx xxx xxx

Now, sub-sec.(2) of Sec.14 provides that nothing contained in sub-sec.(1) shall apply to any property acquired by way of gift or under a will or any other instrument or under a decree or order of a civil court or under an award where the terms of the gift, will or other instrument or the decree, order or award prescribe a restricted estate in such property. This provision is more in the nature of a proviso or exception to sub-sec.(1) and it was regarded as such by this Court in Badri Prasad v. Snu.Kanso Devi, (1970)2 S.C.J. 114: A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 1963: (1970)2 S.C.R. 95. It excepts certain kinds of acquisition, of property by a Hindu female from the operation of sub-sec.(1) and being in the nature of an exception to a provision which is calculated to achieve a social purpose by bringing about change in the social and economic position of woman in Hindu Society, it must be construed strictly so as to impinge as little as possible on the broad sweep of the ameliorative provision contained in sub-sec.(1). It cannot be interpreted in a manner which would rob sub-sec.(1) of its efficacy and deprive a Hindu female of the protection sought to be given to her by sub-sec.(1). The language of sub-sec.(2) is apparently wide to include acquisition of property by a Hindu female under an instrument or a decree or order or award where the instrument, decree, order or award prescribes a restricted estate for her in the property and this would apparently cover a case where property is given to a Hindu female at a partition or in lieu of maintenance and the instrument, decree, order or award giving such property prescribes limited interest for her in the property. But that would virtually emasculate sub-sec.(1), for in that event, a large number of cases where property is given to a Hindu female at a partition or in lieu of maintenance under an instrument, order or award and would be excluded from the operation of the beneficial provision enacted in sub-sec.(1), since in most of such cases, where property is allotted to the Hindu female prior to the enactment of the Act, there would be a provision in consonance with the old Sastric law then prevailing, prescribing limited interest in the property and where property is given to the Hindu female subsequent to the enactment of the Act, it would be the easiest thing for the dominant male to provide that the Hindu female shall have only a restricted interest in the property and thus make a mockery of sub-sec.(1). The Explanation to sub-sec.(1) which includes within the scope of that sub-section property acquired by a female Hindu at a partition or in lieu of maintenance would not contain a provision prescribing restricted estate in the property. The social purpose of the law would be frustrated and the reformist zeal underlying the statutory provision would be chilled. That surely could never have been the intention of the Legislature in enacting sub-sec.(2). It is an elementary rule of construction that no provision of a statute should be constructed in isolation but it should be construed with reference to the context and in the light of other provisions of the statute so as, as far as possible to make a consistent enactment of the whole statute. Sub-sec.(2) must, therefore, be read in the context of sub-sec.(1) so as to leave as large a scope for operation as possible to sub-sec.(1) and so read, it must be confined to cases where property is acquired by a female Hindu for the first time as a grant without any pre-existing right, under a gift, will, instrument, decree, order or award, the terms of which, prescribe a restricted estate in the property. This constructional approach finds support in the decision in Badri Prasad's case, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 963: 1970 M.L.J. (Crl.) 509: (1970) 2 S.C.J. 299: 1970 Crl.L.J. 88, where this Court observed that sub-sec.(2) "can come into operation only if acquisition in any of the methods enacted therein is made for the first time without there being any pre-existing right in the female Hindu who is in possession of the property."

Proceeding further, the Supreme Court has dealt with the Legislative intent, and stated conclusively,

"This circumstance would also seem to indicate that the legislative intendment was that sub-sec.(2) should be applicable only to cases where acquisition of property is made by a Hindu female for the first time without any pre-existing right-a kind of acquisition akin to one under gift or will. Where, however, property is acquired by a Hindu female at a partition or in lieu of right of maintenance, it is in virtue of a pre-existing right and such an acquisition would not be within the scope and ambit of sub-sec.(2) even if the instrument, decree, order or award allotting the property prescribes a restricted estate in the property."

5. A Bench of this Court, to which one of us was a member, in O.S.A.Nos.29 and 30 of 1982 Doraibabu v K.Masilamani, judgment, dated 29.4.1991, dealt with a case which had arisen on the following facts: One Thirumalai Chetti died on 28.9.1944, leaving behind Mylai Ammal alias Alamelu Ammal, his widow. At the time of his death, he constituted a joint family with his two brothers Govindarajulu Chetty and Jagannatha Chetty, and possessed joint family properties. Mylai Ammal became entitled to her husband's share in the joint family properties along with her grandson Doraibabu under the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1937, to the extent of one-sixth share in the joint family properties. Suits were filed for partition, and a preliminary decree was passed on 13.3.1946 awarding one-sixth share to Mylai Ammal. In the final decree dated 18.3.1947, Mylai Ammal was allotted 9 items of properties with limited estate for her one-sixth share in addition to cash of Rs.10,374-6-0. In the said suit, one Gopalakrishna Chetty was awarded a right of maintenance as the illegitimate son, even though he had claimed a share in the properties. Gopalakrishna Chetty subsequently instituted another suit against Mylai Ammal and others claiming that he was entitled to a separate interest in the properties belonging to the share of his father Thirumalai Chetty. A preliminary decree was passed on 4.4.1955 granting a share to Gopalakrishna Chetty and modifying the share allotted to Mylai Ammal to 5/12 share with limited interest in the suit properties and also that after the death of Mylai Ammal, her share would devolve on Gopalakrishna Chetty and the first defendant in C.S.No.313 of 1976, that is to say, the grandson in the ratio of 1/4 : 3/4 respectively. The grandson and another preferred appeals against the preliminary decree in the suit by Gopalakrishna Chetty. During the pendency of the appeal, a compromise was arrived at on 24.6.1960, under which Mylai Ammal was allotted 7 houses, that is to say, the suit properties and a cash of Rs.9820. The compromise provided that the first defendant in the suit and Gopalakrishna Chetty should take the suit properties allotted to Mylai Ammal in the ratio of 3 : 1 after her death. A final decree was accordingly passed on 28.6.1960. Mylai Ammal, however, executed a settlement deed on 12.6.1967 in favour of another person. He filed C.S.No.313 of 1976 saying that Mylai Ammal had absolute interest and that she had executed the settlement deed as the full owner of the properties. The question that arose for consideration in the suit, and ultimately in the appeals, O.S.A.Nos.29 of 1982 and 30 of 1992, was whether the compromise decree granting a life interest was one falling under sub-sec.(2) of Sec.14 of the Act or was one that was arrived at only for recognition of the pre-existing rights with respect to which the suits were contested between the parties, although the compromise decree was passed after the Hindu Succession Act came into force. The Bench referred to the judgment in V.Tulasamma v. V.Sesha Reddi, (1978)1 S.C.J. 29: (1978)1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 6: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944, and other authorities on the subject and held as follows:

"We have already noticed that it was only in acknowledgement of the pre-existing right of Mylai Ammal in the preliminary decree and the final decree in C.S.No.608 of 1949, she was given a share in the properties and that thereafter it was said that after her demise, her grandson and the illegitimate son of her husband would divide the properties in the manner indicated therein. This division as indicated in the final decree is said to be a result of a compromise. We have also noticed that it is not possible to say that Mylai Ammal had evidently given up her absolute interest that had accrued to her under Sec.14(1) of the Hindu Succession Act. The right that Mylai Ammal exercised during her life time with respect to the properties belonging to her was not one acquired by her for the first time under the civil court's decree. It would be in consonance with the observation of the Supreme Court to hold that mention of any division of her properties after her demise between her grandson and the illegitimate son of her husband was not binding upon her because if held otherwise, it would virtually be a concession to dominant males to succeed providing to a Hindu female only a restricted interest in the properties, one of the instances referred to in V.Tulasamma v. V.Sesha Reddi, (1978)1 S.C.J. 299: (1978)1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 6: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944."

6. On the heels of the judgment of this Court, and obviously without reference to the Judgment in O.S.A.Nos.29 and 30 of 1982 has come a judgment by the Supreme Court in Thota Sesharathamma v. Thotta Manikyamma, (1991)4 S.C.C. 312. The facts in the case before the Supreme Court are almost similar to the facts in the instant case. One Thota Madhav Rao, the plaintiff, filed a suit against Thota Manikayamma on the allegation that his father Yellamanda and the husband of Thota Manikyamma were brothers. As Manikayamma and her husband had no issue, they brought up Thota Madhav Rao as their foster son from the age of 8 years, and thereafter he continued to live with them and was brought up treating him as their own son. Manikyamma's husband died on January, 14, 1932. Before his death, he executed a will bequeathing the suit properties in favour of his wife Manikyamma for her life with a vested remainder in favour of Thota Madhav Rao. Manikyamma, however, executed a registered will on October 26, 1969, bequeathing the suit properties in favour of one Ramiseti Koteswara Rao. Thota Madhav Rao claimed absolute right in the suit properties after the lifetime of Manikyamma. The question involved in the suit was whether the life interest in the property acquired by Thota Manikyamma under the will executed by her husband and continued to be in her possession became her absolute property under Sec.14(1) of the Act. There were other cases having similar facts which were brought before the Supreme Court by Special Leave. The Supreme Court has referred to the judgment in the case of Badri Pershad v. Smt. Kanso Devi, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 963: 1970 M.L.J. (Crl.) 599: (1970)2 S.C.J. 299: 1970 Crl.L.J. 885, Mst.Karmi v. Amru, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 745, and V.Tulasamma v. V.Sesha Reddi, (1978)1 S.C.J. 299: (1978)1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 6: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944, supra, and then stated the law as follows:

"A mention of all the above cases shows that this Court in a long series of case has taken a consistent view that Sec.14(2) of the Act is in the nature of a proviso or an exception to Sec.14(1) and comes into operation only if acquisition in any of the methods indicated therein is made for the first time without there being any pre-existing right in the female Hindu to the property. If the case falls under the provisions of Sec.14(1) of the Act then the female Hindu shall be held to be full owner of the property and sub-sec.(2) of Sec.14 will only apply where the property is acquired without there being any pre-existing right of the female Hindu in such property. Thus we affirm and reiterate that sub-sec.(2) of Sec.14 will be construed more in the nature of a proviso or an exception to sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14 of the Act. This view lends support to the subject of the section which was to remove the disability on women imposed by law and to achieve a social purpose by bringing about change in the social and economic position of women in Hindu society."

K.Ramaswamy, J. supplementing the above view, reiterated and indicated how in V.Tulasamma's case, (1978)1 S.C.J. 299; (1978)1 An.W.R. (S.C.) 6; A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1944, the Supreme Court has recognised the social purpose and stated as follows:

"Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14 cannot be interpreted in a manner which would deprive the Hindu women of the protection sought to be given to her by sub-sec.(1). The social purpose of the law would be frustrated and reformist zeal underlying the statutory provisions would be chilled. It was not the intention of the legislature in enacting sub-sec.(2) which must be construed as an exception or a proviso to sub-sec.(1). No provision should be construed in isolation and should be read in the context so as to take a consistent enactment of the whole statute. Sub-sec.(2) must be read in the context of sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14 and if so read sub-sec.(2) must be confined to cases where the Hindu female acquires the property for the first time as a grant without any pre-existing right to the property under a will or by way of gift or in any other instruments or a decree or order of the civil court or an award, the terms of which prescribe a restricted estate in the property. Sub-sec.(2) must be read as an exception or proviso to sub-sec.(1) so as to leave as large a scope for operation as possible to sub-sec.(1) of Sec.14. It was, therefore, held that the property given to Tulasamma in a compromise decree in lieu of her maintenance with restricted estate known as widow's estate in Hindu law was enlarged and she became an absolute owner under the Act. She had the right to alienate the property in favour of others."

In this judgment, K.Ramaswamy, J., has referred to other judgments of the Supreme Court on the subject, and finally said:

"Thus I hold that the Act revolutionised the status of a Hindu female; used Sec.14(1) as a tool to undo past injustice to elevate her to equal status with dignity of person on par with man; extinguished pre-existing limitation of women's estate, or widow's estate known to Shastric Law and removed all the fetters to blossom the same into full ownership. The discrimination suffered by Hindu female under Sastric law was exterminated by legislative fiat. The social change thus envisaged must be endeavoured to be given full vigour, thrust and efficacy. Sec.14(1) enlarges the restricted estate into full ownership when the Hindu female has pre-existing right to maintenance etc. Sub-sec.(2) operates when the grant was made for the first time under the document with no pre-existing right. Sub-sec.(2), therefore, must be read as an exception or a proviso to sub-sec.(1). Both the sub-sections read with the explanation to be pragmatically considered as a constituent integral scheme. The court would sit in the armchair of the testator or its maker and summon to its aid the attending circumstances to execute the instrument; the relationship of the parties and to see whether the Hindu female acquired the property with vestige of pre-existing right and the will, gift deed, order, decree or an award of the civil court or in any of the forms known to law was executed in recognition thereof or entitled under the existing law. If the finding is positive her limited estate, though created with restrictive covenants in instrument or an omission to expressly so mention in full particulars thereof in the instrument in that regard are of little consequence. Her limited estate gets blossomed into full ownership under Sec.14(1) with a right to bequeath, gift over, alienate or to deal in any manner recognised by law. If on the other hand the Hindu female acquires for the first time the title therein as a grant with restrictive estate under the instrument with on pre-existing title or right, sub-sec.(2) of Sec.14 gets attracted and the restrictive covenants contained in the instrument would bind her. She remains to be a limited owner in terms thereof. The subsequent alienee or transverse acquires no higher right thereunder than the legatee etc. The reversioner to the last male holder is not bound by such transfer and is entitled to succeed to the estate, on her demise, in terms of the instrument. It is too late in the day to take retrograde step to reopen Tulasamma ratio."

7. Coming to the facts of the case in the suit instituted by Thota Madhav Rao, the Supreme Court has said:

"The courts are not giving retrospective operation to Sec.14(1) or to the instrument. The courts only would be applying the law to the facts found as on the date when the question arose to find whether legatee has pre-existing vestige of title under law; and the nature of possession of the property held by her and whether the legatee would get the benefit of Sec.14(1) of the Act. There need be no express recital even in the will of the enjoyment of the property devised under the will in lieu of maintenance as a limited owner for her life. Even if so mentioned, it would be a reflection or restatement of the law existing as in 1932 when the will was executed. The respondent, admittedly, being a widow of the testator who, under Shastric Law, was obliged to provide maintenance to his wife, and it being personal obligation, the property bequeathed was in lieu of maintenance for her life. She was in enjoyment of the property and the beneficial interest therein stood vested in her. As per existing law as in 1932 the widow as a legatee was entitled to widow's estate and she remained in possession on the date the Act came into force and was in enjoyment of the income derived therefrom for her life. No one had a right to interdict it. The restrictive covenant, therefore, does not stand an impediment to Sec.14(1) to have full play to extinguish the same and enlarge the limited estate of widow into an absolute ownership. The restrictions contained in the will, though falls both under sub-sec.(2) as well as sub-sec.(1), of Sec.14 the right to maintenance being a pre-existing right over property "res ad rem" Sec.14(1) would apply. The testamentary succession with restrictive conditions in the will was obliterated. She became an absolute owner on or after June 17, 1956. Accordingly, I have no hesitation to hold that, though the will created a restrictive covenant, Sec.14(2) does not apply. Sec.14(1) enlarged the widow's limited estate held by Manikyamma into an absolute ownership as full owner with a right to disposition by testamentary instrument or otherwise."

8. Coming to the facts of the instant case, we cannot fail to notice that the right to maintenance which Soundarathammal before the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act came into force, had matured into a statutory right giving to her a limited interest for life, and the recitals abovequoted thus recognised only a pre-existing right in her and extended the benefits, after her death to the reversioners who had vested remainders to inherit, the consequence of which the law then existing had pre-determined. Such recognition of the pre-existing vestige of title under law and the nature of possession of the property she had, must be allowed to be enlarged under Sec.14(1) of the Act as it was not a grant coming to her under the testament without there being any pre-existing right in her to succeed to the estate of her husband on his demise, having a life interest.

9. We fail thus to understand how on the facts as above, the court can say that a specific pleading would be needed that the will under which Soundarathammal entered upon the property had been executed in recognition of a pre-existing right against the property and/or that unless such a recital is found in the will, it will not be permissible for the widow or any person claiming through her to say that the will only recognised a pre-existing right. We are of the opinion that the learned single Judge has committed an error of law and that he has not applied the law engrafted in Secs.14(1) and 14(2) of the Act properly on the Acts of the case.

10. To be fair, however, to learned Counsel for the respondents, we must also refer to a judgment of the Supreme Court in S.Rajagopala Chettiar v. Hamsaveni Ammal, (1991)4 S.C.C. 383, which ended with an extract from the Judgment of the High Court and the recitals in the will. The recitals, it seems were not similar to the one in the case of Thota Sesharathamma v. Thota Manikyamma, (1991)4 S.C.C. 312, and the recitals in the will of Sundaram Pillai under consideration by us. The Supreme Court has said:

"The question which arises on the basis of the contents of the above will is whether Rajalakshmi Ammal had acquired a life estate under the will or an absolute estate. The High Court took the view that it was one of the cardinal principles of construction of wills that so far as legally possible effect should be given to every disposition contained in the will unless the law prevents such effect being given to it. The High Court held that the fact that the testator directed that after Rajalakshmi Ammal it shall go to her male children clearly showed an intention that Rajalakshmi Ammal's interest in the properties should not be absolute."

One can see the obvious distinctions in the rights in the estate of Rajalakshmi Ammal and the estate in the hands of Manikyamma in the case of Thota Sesharathamma v. Thota Manikyamma, (1991)4 S.C.C. 312. Whereas limited estate in the hands of Manikyamma on her demise was determined to go to the vested remainder, in the case of Rajalakshmi to go to her male child only a departure from the pre-existing law. On these facts, the Supreme Court has said in the case of S.Rajagopal Chettiar, (1991)4 S.C.C. 383,

"After going through the contents of the will we agree with the view taken by the High Court. We do not agree with the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant raised before us that Padmanabha Chettiar, the testator of the will wanted to give absolute right in the property to his wife Dhanalakshmi Ammal and thereafter absolute right in favour of his daughter Rajalakshmi Ammal. The above intention is negatived by a clear mention in the will that after Rajalakshmi Ammal the property shall ultimately go to her male children. In case the intent of the testator was to give the properties absolute in favour of Rajalakshmi and not merely life interest then there was no question of mentioning that after her it should go to her male children."

11. An attempt, however, was made in the case of S.Rajagopal Chettiar, (1991)4 S.C.C. 383, before the Supreme Court to consider whether the life interest of Rajalakshmi Ammal under the will became absolute under Sec.14(1) of the Act. The Supreme Court, however, declined to enter into that contention saying:

"This contention was neither raised in any of the Courts below nor before the High Court nor in the petitioner for special leave and we cannot permit this ground to be raised for the first time before us during the course of arguments."

12. The principles of law stated in S.Rajagopal Chettiar, (1991)4 S.C.C. 383, are not different from the principles of law stated in the case of Thota Sesharathamma, (1991)4 S.C.C. 312. We are satisfied that the judgment under Appeal has not been delivered in accordance with law. It is accordingly set aside. The Judgment and Decree of the trial Court are confirmed. The appeal is allowed. On the facts of the case, however, we are making no order as to costs.

B.S.

Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Mishra and Swamidurai, JJ.

O.S.A.Nos.84 of 1981 and 180 of 1981

25th February, 1992.

The Managing Director, M/s.Dunlop India Ltd. and others

...Appellants

v.

S.G.Krishnakumari and others ...Respondents.

(A) Torts - Negligence - Accident - Proof of negligence - Onus.

(B) Maxim 'Res ipsa loquitur' Scope and Applicability of - (Maxims - Res ipsa loquitur). The maxim res ipsa loquitur does not embody any rule of substantive law nor a rule of evidence. It is perhaps not a rule of any kind but simply the caption to an argument on the evidence. The maxim is only a convenient label to apply to a set of circumstances in which the plaintiff proves a case so as to call for a rebuttal from the defendant without having to allege and prove any specific act or omission on the part of the defendant. The principal function of the maxim is to prevent injustice which would result if a plaintiff were invariably compelled to prove the precise cause of the accident and the defendant responsible for it, even when the facts bearing in the matter are at the outset unknown to him and often within the knowledge of the defendant. But though the parties' relative access to evidence an influential factor, it is not controlling. Thus, the fact that the defendant is as much at a loss to explain the accident or himself died in it does not preclude an advance inference against him if the odds otherwise point to his negligence. The mere happening of the accident may be more consistent with the negligence on the part of the defendant than with other causes. The maxim is based on common-sense and its purpose is to do justice when the facts bearing on causation and on the case exercised by defendant are at the outset unknown to the plaintiff and are or ought to be within the knowledge of the defendant. In the case of fatal accident, thus, when the victim of the accident himself is no more to disclose all the facts and his heirs and legal representatives know not how the death occurred beyond knowing that he suffered the accident while performing his duty, that the circumstances prove the result and once the result is proved by them, they make it probable that it was caused by the negligence of the defendant. On such facts and doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, the court must ask the defendant to explain how the accident occurred and how the defendant is not guilty of negligence. This has to apply, particularly when it is not in doubt that in the ordinary course of things the accident would not have occurred if the management had used proper care. A court can deduce from the evidence and only a reasonable deduction will have the validity of legal proof. The court cannot recognise fanciful theories unsupported by evidence how the event might have occurred. In other words, the court shall not enter into assumption or guess or conjecture first to rule out lack of due care or act of negligence of the management.

[Paras 6 and 12]

Cases referred to:

Jeet Kumari v. Chittagong, A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 195. [Paras 5, 6]

Shyam Sunder v. State of Rajasthan, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 890. [Paras 6, 7]

Scott v London and St., Katherine Docks, (1865) 3 H. and C. 596. [Para 6]

Ballards v. North British Railway, Company, 1923 S.C. (H.L.) 43. [Para 6]

Barkway v. South Wales Transport, (1950) 1 All E.R. 392. [Para 6]

Jones v. Great Western, (1930) 47 T.L.R. 39. [Para 7]

G.K.S. Iyer v. T.K. Nair, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 876.

[Para 14]

Taff Vale Railway Company v. Jenkins, 1913 A.C. 1. [Para 14]

Appeals under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the order of Shanmugham, J., dated 25.4.1979 and made in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court in C.S.No.183 of 1974 Pauper.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- This is a "most pathetic case" to borrow the words of the learned trial Judge, where a dutiful servant, who was employed as senior charge-hand, Card No.450 in the Electrical Department of the factory of the first defendant-respondent in O.S.No.180 of 1981 and appellant in O.S.No.84 of 1981, had a fatal fall while attending to his duty and where consequently his widow and two children moved the court for compensation.

2. On 10.10.1970, at about 6.45 p.m. while Gopalakrishnamurthy was attending to his duty, he had a fatal fall. He sustained injuries to his brain and spine solely on account of the accident. He died on account of the injuries sustained on account of the fall while on duty, at about 10.30 p.m. on 10.10.1970. He was the only bread earner for the widow, the first plaintiff, and the two young children, Plaintiffs 2 and 3. He died at the age of 34 years, In the ordinary course he would have superannuated only on attaining the age of 55 years. There has been some dispute as to the total emoluments actually drawn by him until his death, but there is proof on record that he was getting a total emolument of Rs.617-81 per month.

3. Although there were three defendants in the suit, only one contested, that is to say, the first defendant, the Managing Director of Dunlop (India) Ltd., who stated in the written statement that Gopalakrishnamurthy instructed one K.Narayanan, a driver of fork lift truck to hoist him to 'C' line sky wrecker Panel situate at a height of about 15 feet from the ground level in front of C-6 Mabath Press, and while so attending to the work by standing on the forks of the said truck, he instructed the driver to lower the fork and reverse it and that when the driver did so, he (Gopalakrishnamurthy) lost his balance and fell down, and later died at the Government Hospital at about 10.50 p.m. on 10.10.1970. To quote from the judgment of the trial court.

"According to the 1st defendant, as per rule 5 under Chapter "Persons Falling" in the defendant's Factory Safety Code, no one but the driver should be allowed to ride on a fork lift truck, therefore any act done by the employee liable to cause danger to himself or to his co-workers and failure to observe factory instructions constitute misconduct under Clauses 22 and 24 of the defendant's standing orders and that therefore, Gopalakrishnamurthy died due to his own negligence."

4. The plaintiffs, who in forma pauperis estimated the damage at Rs.3,00,000, however, restricted the claim to Rs.2,00,000. The trial court dismissed the suit, but ordered.

".....in the peculiar circumstances without costs; so too, I direct the 1st defendant to pay the court-fee payable to the Government because the deceased met with the accident in his anxiety to carry out immediately repairs to sky wrecker."

While the plaintiffs appealed against the dismissal of the suit, the first defendant appealed against the order directing him to pay the court-fee. The two appeals have been posted for hearing. They have been heard together. They are being disposed of under a common judgment.

5. We have not detailed many facts which are stated in the plaint and controverted in the written statement, and further facts that are stated in the written statement, for we shall presently notice that before the trial court, the first defendant gave up the dispute as to the claim of the first plaintiff that she was the wife of the deceased, and that of plaintiffs 2 and 3 that they were the legitimate children of the deceased. The learned trial Judge mainly took up two issues, (1) whether Gopalakrishnamurthy died due to the negligence of the 1st defendant, and (2) whether Gopalakrishnamurthy met with the accident on account of his own negligence as alleged in paragraph 11 of the written statement, and proceeded to examine the same by stating as follows:

"Really the burden is on the plaintiffs to establish that the unfortunate accident took place solely due to the negligence of the 1st defendant; only then, will the plaintiffs be entitled to sustain their claim for damages as against the 1st defendant, the employer of the deceased."

This, he stated, it appears, on a reference to the decision brought to his notice in the case of Jeet Kumari v. Chittagong, A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 195. In the said decision, it had been ruled.

"There is no liability for negligence unless there is in the particular case a legal duty to take care. Where there is no duty to exercise care at all, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequences. Two things have to be kept distinct. First, there must be the existence of such a legal duty to take care; and secondly the decree or amount of care which is obligatory."

6. What is stated in the judgment of the Calcutta High Court, in Jeet Kumari v. Chittagong, A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 195 is not on the principle of burden of proof. A landmark judgment of the Supreme Court in Shyam Sunder v. State of Rajasthan, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 890, has made it clear that the maxim res ipsa loquitur is attracted to a case under Fatal Accidents Act, and the meaning of the word 'negligence' should be understood in the light of the said maxim for the purpose of proving such negligence by the employer. The Supreme Court has said.

"The maxims res ipsa loquitur is resorted to when an accident is shown to have occurred and the cause of the accident is primarily within the knowledge of the defendant. The mere fact that the cause of the accident is unknown does not prevent the plaintiff from recovering damages, if the proper inference to be drawn from the circumstances which are known is that it was caused by the negligence of the defendant. The fact of the accident may, sometimes, constitute evidence of negligence and then the maxim res ipsa loquitur applies."

How to understand the maxim is also stated in Shyam Sunder v. State of Rajasthan, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 890, cases supra. The Supreme Court has said,

"The maxim is stated in its classic form by Erle, C.J. See Scott v. London and St. Katherine Docks, (1865) 3 H. and C. 596, 601:

".....Where the thing is shown to be under the management of the defendant or his servants, and the accident is such as in the ordinary course of things does not happen if those who have the management use proper care, it affords reasonable evidence, in the absence of explanation by the defendants, that the accident arose from want of care."

The maxim does not embody any rule of substantive law nor a rule of evidence. It is perhaps not a rule of any kind but simply the caption to an argument on the evidence. Lord Shaw remarked that "If the phrase had not been in Latin, nobody would have called it a principle. See Ballard v. North British Railway, Company, 1923 S.C. (H.L.) 43. The maxim is only convenient label to apply to a set of circumstances in which the plaintiff proves a case so as to call for a rebuttal from the defendant, without, having to allege and prove any specific act or omission on the part of the defendant. The principal function of the maxim is to prevent injustice which would result if a plaintiff were invariably compelled to prove the precise cause of the accident and the defendant responsible for it, even when the facts bearing in the matter are at the outset unknown to him and often within the knowledge of the defendant. But though the parties' relative access to evidence is an influential factor, it is not controlling. Thus, the fact that the defendant is as much at a loss to explain the accident or himself died in it does not preclude an adverse inference against him if the odds otherwise point to his negligence. (See John G. Fleming. The Law of Torts, 4th ed. p.264). The mere happening of the accident may be more consistent with the negligence on the part of the defendant than with other causes. The maxim is based on commonsense and its purpose is to do justice when the facts bearing on causation and on the care exercised by defendant are at the outset unknown to the plaintiff and are or ought to be within the knowledge of the defendant (See Barkway v. South Wales Transport, (1950) 1 All E.R. 392, 399).

Based upon the above, the Supreme Court has said,

"The plaintiff merely proves a result, not any particular act or omission producing the result. If the result, in the circumstances in which he proves it makes it more probable than not that it was caused by the negligence of the defendant, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is said to apply, and the plaintiff will be entitled to succeed unless the defendant by evidence rebuts that probability."

In the case of fatal accident, thus, when the victim of the accident himself is no more to disclose all the facts, and his heirs and legal representatives know not how the death occurred, beyond knowing that he suffered the accident while performing his duty, that the circumstances prove the result, and once the result is proved by them, they make it probable that it was caused by the negligence of the defendant. On such facts and doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, the Court must ask the defendant to explain how the accident occurred, and how the defendant is not guilty of negligence. This has to apply, particularly when it is not in doubt that in the ordinary course of things the accident would not have occurred if the management had used proper care.

7. The Supreme Court has also pointed out that in such cases, the answer needed by the defendant to meet the plaintiff's case may take alternative forms, and firstly it may consist in a positive explanation by the defendant of how the accident did in fact occur, of such a kind as to exonerate the defendant from any charge of negligence. In such a case of defence, the Supreme Court said, it should be noticed that the defendant does not advance his case by inventing fanciful theories unsupported by evidence, of how the event might have occurred, and the whole inquiry is concerned with probabilities, and facts are required, not mere conjecture unsupported by facts. Here again, another caution.

"As Lord Macmillan said in his dissenting judgment in Jones v. Great Western, (1930) 47 T.L.R. 39.

"The dividing line between conjecture and inference is often a very difficult one to draw. A conjecture may be plausible, but it is of no legal value, for its essence is that it is a mere guess. An inference, in the legal sense, on the other hand, is a deduction from the evidence, and if it is a reasonable deduction it may have the validity of legal proof. The attribution of an occurrence to a cause is, I take it, always a matter of inference. The cogency of a legal inference of causation may vary in degree between practical certainty and reasonable probability. Where the coincidence of cause and effect is not a matter of actual observation there is necessarily a hiatus in the direct evidence, but this may be legitimately bridged by an inference from the facts actually observed and proved."

Thus it is said,

"...an inference is a deduction from established facts and an assumption or a guess is something quite different but not necessarily related to established facts."

The above is the method applied when the defendant gives a positive explanation of how the accident did in fact occur. In a case, however, where the defendant is unable to explain the accident, the Supreme Court has pointed out,

"...It is incumbent upon him to advance positive proof that he had taken all reasonable steps to avert foreseeable harm."

The Supreme Court has, in Shyam Sundar's case, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 890 not minced words, and recognised that "over the years, the general trend in the application of the maxim has undoubtedly become more sympathetic to plaintiffs", and said,

"Concomitant with the rise in safety standards and expanding knowledge of the mechanical devices of our age, less hesitation is felt in concluding that the miscarriage of a familiar activity is so unusual that it is most probably the result of some fault on the part of whoever is responsible for its safe performance."

8. The learned trial Judge has thus committed error of law in saying that the burden is on the plaintiffs to establish that the unfortunate accident took place solely due to the negligence of the first defendant and only then will the plaintiffs be entitled to sustain their claim for damages as against the 1st defendant, the employer of the deceased. He was not made aware of the maxim res ipsa loquitur, and the fact that when it was shown that the accident took place when the victim was working in the factory of the first defendant, he should call upon the management to explain by positive proof how the accident did in fact occur and whether the management had taken all reasonable steps to avert foreseeable harm. The learned trial Judge asked none of these questions. He has thus fallen in error and denied on account of such error only the claim which the heirs and legal representatives of the victim should receive in an action in tort.

9. Learned counsel for the first defendant management, however, has drawn our attention to the pleading in paragraph 5 of the written statement in particular, wherein it is said in answer to the allegations contained in paragraph 7 of the plaint, as follows:

"The deceased instead of using a ladder instructed one Mr. K. Narayanan, Ch. No. 2293, a driver of a Fork Lift Truck, to hoist him to the said 'C' Line Panel. While so attending to the work by standing on the forks of the said truck, the deceased instructed the driver to lower the fork and reverse it. When the driver did so, the deceased lost his balance and fell down at about 6.25 p.m., and later died at the Government Hospital, Madras, at about 10.50 p.m. on 10.10.1970."

and further,

"This defendant states that as per Rule 5 under Chapter "Persons Falling" in the Defendant's Factory Safety Code, no one but the driver should be allowed to ride on a fork lift truck. This defendant further submits that any act done by the employee liable to cause danger to himself or to his co-workers and failure to observe factory instructions constitute misconduct under clauses XXII and XXIV of the Defendant's Standing Orders. Thus it may be seen that Gopalakrishnamurthy died due to his own negligence."

and contended that the management has advanced a positive explanation as to how the accident did in fact occur. He has taken us through the evidence of the witnesses and to the standing Orders and the Safety Code of the Factory. The booklet called "Our Factory Safety Code" brought on the record does not bear any print line. There is no evidence showing when the Safety Code was published and when enforced. D. W. 2., who has described himself as Safety Manager, has said that his two-fold functions were, (1) to prevent accidents by promoting safety consciousness among the employees; and (2) to investigate accidents so as to prevent their recurring in the factory, and deposed that there is a Factory Safety Code compiled by him (D. W. 2.), the booklet which we have seen already; but the exact day when it was prepared, he did not remember. He was put on the job in 1960, and it took three months, he thought it should be in the year 1964. When asked whether it was issued to every member, he answered "yes", and added that subsequently even the new entrants of the factory were also issued with a copy as part of the induction training, and that Gopalakrishnamurthy was also furnished with a copy. But no other evidence is available to corroborate his oral testimony. It is not known thus who furnished a copy of the so-called "Safety Code" to Gopalakrishnamurthy and when a copy of the Safety Code was furnished to Gopalakrishnamurthy.

10. On the question how the accident occurred, D. W. 1 is the sole witness. He was a fitter at the relevant time working in the Engineering Department of the Factory. He has stated that he was present at the time of the accident. A mould had to be fixed in B6 Pressing machine. He was carrying the mould in the fork lift. There were three lines. He took the mould in the C-line. At that time, Gopalakrishnamurthy was working, attending to break-down in 'C' Line. There was some Electrical trouble in the machine called "Skyraker". He was waiting in front of skyraker. When this witness neared him, he wanted him (the witness) to lift him (victim) up to attend to some repairs, which he said would take only two minutes. Obeying him, this witness lifted the victim in the fork lift. The victim gave some connections in the line and finished his job. After that, this witness has said;

"I lowered the fork lift and reversed it. At that time, he was having the fuse-carriers, test lamps and other things in his hands. When the fork lift was in the reverse direction, there was a jerk and he fell down."

If there is anything in this narration, it shows that the victim had the concern of the management in his mind that he wanted to make some repairs in the Skyraker. When D.W.1 came near him, he asked him to lift him to complete the work. This witness lifted him and he (victim) gave connections in the line and finished his job. The accident occurred when this witness lowered the fork lift and reversed it. When asked, "was the fork lift in a good condition?", this witness answered "yes". It was in good condition" and when asked whether the accident occurred due to defects in the fork lift, he said, "I cannot say."

11. We have also been taken through the evidence of D.W.3, the Shift Engineer, who was responsible to maintain plant machinery. He was informed about the accident by a co-worker, and made entry in the accident register. He has deposed that the victim should not have used fork lift truck, and instead, should have used the ladder that was available. His evidence about the condition of the fork lift truck is not based upon any personal knowledge. He has said,

"It was in good condition. Otherwise, Mr.Narayanan (D.W.1) could not have changed the mould. He was able to ride and use. It was perfect."

The evidence that the management has produced has substantially fallen short of any positive proof that it had taken all reasonable steps to avert any foreseeable harm or that it had used proper care, and that the accident arose not from want of care.

It is not in dispute that Narayanan (D.W.1) lifted the victim (the deceased) in the fork lift and when he finished his job, Narayanan lowered the fork lift and reversed it. When the fork lift was in the reverse direction, there was a jerk, and the victim fell down. Thus, the accident occurred not on account of any carelessness of the victim, but on account of the reversal of the fork lift by D.W.1 and the jerk that followed. There is nothing to establish conclusively that the victim violated any instruction or Standing Order or Rule, by asking D.W.1 to lift him in the fork lift. There is also nothing to show that there was any ladder nearby except the oral testimony above-noticed, and that by not using the ladder, the victim had violated any of the instructions. In view of the above, it is a case, in our opinion, in which it can be reasonably said that the accident in which Gopalakrishnamurthy sustained injuries was one which does not happen in the ordinary course of things. There is no reliable evidence that the fork lift was in a good condition or that the management had used proper care to ensure that no such accident occurred. In other words, there is neither a positive explanation by the first defendant of how the accident did in fact occur, nor there is any positive proof advanced by him that he had taken all reasonable steps to avert the accident.

12. A court can deduce from the evidence, and only a reasonable deduction will have the validity of legal proof. The Court cannot recognise fanciful theories unsupported by evidence how the event might have occurred. In other words, the court shall not enter into assumption or guess or conjecture first to rule out lack of due care or act of negligence of the management. It is a case, in our opinion, in which the learned trial Judge should have found, as we have found, that the management has failed to discharge the onus of proof, and the plaintiffs have proved the Accident, and that in the circumstances, it could have happened only on account of the negligence of the management.

13. Since the case failed before the trial court for the reason of a mistake of law, the trial court made no attempt to ascertain the quantum of damages. It is not in dispute that the victim was 34 years old at the time of his death. Learned counsel for the first defendant has drawn our attention to a standing order under which an employee of the first defendant superannuated at the age of 55. The victim Gopalakrishnamurthy would have served for atleast another 21 years and superannuated, but for, the reasons of Providence or otherwise, termination of his service. In any case, he would have earned the bread of his family until his demise, which in the ordinary circumstance one can always fix until the age of superannuation, if not more. We have already found that inspite of a controversy created as to the emoluments, it is proved beyond doubt that Gopalakrishnamurthy received emoluments, all told, Rs.617-81 per month. We do not have any material to show whether he had earned any provident fund and/or gratuity or would have earned had he continued in service. In fact, there is no such case pleaded in the plaint, and no evidence also taken by either side in this behalf. Calculated on the basis of salary/emoluments last drawn by the victim, had he lived and served in the capacity he was serving, he would have drawn Rs.617.81 per month, if not more. In this, we do not take notice of the increase in emoluments and/or any promotions that the victim would have earned in course of his tenure of service. Calculated on that basis, thus, for period of 21 years, the minimum that the victim would have earned can be worked out at Rs.1,55,694 or more. Plaintiffs, in our opinion, are thus entitled to compensation atleast of Rs.1,55,694. (We have not taken into account the fractions).

14. In G.K.S.Iyer, v. T.K.Nair, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 876, it has been pointed out that all that is necessary is that a reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit should be entertained by the person who sues. It is quite true that the existence of this expectation is an inference of fact. There must be a basis of fact from which the inference could reasonably be drawn. But, in the words of Lord Atkinson in the decision in Taff Vale Railway Company v. Jenkins, 1913 A.C. 1, which case has been referred to by Hegde, J., who delivered the judgment of the court in G.K.S.Iyer, v. T.K.Nair, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 876, case supra.

".....but I wish to express my emphatic dissent from the proposition that it is necessary that two of the facts without which the inference cannot be drawn are, first, that the deceased earned money in the past, and second, that he or she contributed to the support of the plaintiff. These are, no doubt, pregnant pieces of evidence, but they are only pieces of evidence, and the necessary inference can I think be drawn from circumstances other than and different from them."

It is available in the judgment in G.K.S.Iyer, v. T.K.Nair, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 876, as to how the quantum of compulsory damages under Sec.1-A of Fatal Accidents case should be worked out. The Supreme Court has said,

"The law on the point arising for decision may be summed up thus; Compulsory damages under Sec.1-A of the Act for wrongful death must be limited strictly to the pecuniary loss to the beneficiaries and that under Sec.2, the measure of damages is the economic loss sustained by the estate. There can be no exact uniform rule for measuring the value of the human life and the measure of damage cannot be arrived at by precise mathematical calculations but the amount recoverable depends on the particular facts and circumstances of each case. The life expectancy of the deceased or of the beneficiaries whichever is shorter is an important factor. Since the elements which go to make up the value of the life of the deceased to the designated beneficiaries are necessarily personal to each case, in the very nature of things, there can be no exact or uniform rule for measuring the value of human life. In assessing damages, the court must exclude all considerations of matter which rest in speculation or fancy though conjecture to some extent is inevitable. As a general rule parents are entitled to recover the present cash value of the prospective service of the deceased minor child. In addition they may receive compensation for loss of pecuniary benefits reasonably to be expected after the child attains majority. In the matter of ascertainment of damages, the appellate court should be slow in disturbing the findings reached by the courts below, if they have taken all the relevant facts into consideration."

We have applied the above rule rather as conservatives in reaching the figures to award compensation to the plaintiffs rather than liberals, who would have granted more in terms of the law on the point as stated by the Supreme Court.

15. The plaintiffs, in our opinion, thus are entitled to compensation of Rs.1,55,694 with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the date of the application to sue in forma pauperis. (Since in the instant case, the suit was instituted in forma pauperis) until realised.

16. In the result, O.S.A.No.180 of 1981 is allowed. The judgment and decree of the trial court are set aside. The suit is decreed for a sum of Rs.1,55,694 with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the date of the application to sue in forma pauperis until realisation with costs throughout. Court-fee payable on the plaint and the memorandum of appeal shall be realised from the first defendant.

17. O.S.A.No.84 of 1981 is disposed of in terms of our order in O.S.A.No.180 of 1981. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S. ----- O.S.A.No.180 of 1981 allowed and O.S.A.No.84 of 1981 dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Thanikkachalam, J.

C.R.P.No.3237 of 1988 18th August, 1992.

R.Krishnaswamy ...Petitioner
v.

N.Arumugam ...Respondent.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.10(3)(c) - Petition for eviction under, by landlord for additional accommodation - No averment as to relative hardship as contemplated by proviso to section - Maintainability.

In a petition for eviction filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act, the landlord should clearly state that he required the petition premises by way of additional accommodation. But according to the proviso, the Controller shall reject the application if he is satisfied that the hardship which may be caused to the tenant by granting it will outweigh the advantage to the landlord. In order to decide this question of hardship, there must be proper pleadings in the petition. If the hardship is not pleaded in the petition, that is fatal to the petition.

[Para 6]

In the present case, the petition filed under

Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act contains no averment with regard to the hardship as contemplated under the proviso to Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act and hence the petition is not maintainable. Therefore, it is liable to be dismissed.

[Para 6]

Cases referred to:

Radhakrishnan v. Seethalakshmi, (1988) 1 L.W. 67.

[Para 6]

Annakkili Ammal v. H.C.Hussain, 97 L.W. 116.

[Para 6]

T.R.Rajagopalan, for Petitioner.

T.R.Mani, Senior Counsel, for J.M.Hanharan, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The tenant is the petitioner herein. The petition for eviction was filed under Secs.10(3)(c) and 14(a) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1960, as amended by Act 23 of 1976, hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'. The landlord purchased the petition premises along with the downstairs portion from one Ramasubramania Iyer on 6.5.1982. The tenant is in occupation of the upstairs portion and the staircase. The tenant was in the petition premises even prior to the purchase of the premises by the landlord. In the downstairs portion the landlord is conducting a general merchant shop. The tenant is doing business as a newspaper agent. According to the landlord, the portion under his occupation is not sufficient for his business. Hence, he required the portion under the occupation of the tenant bona fide by way of additional accommodation under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. According to the landlord, the petition premises required extensive repairs. Therefore, he also required the petition premises for repairs under Sec.14(a) of the Act. The tenant filed a suit for injunction against the landlord in O.S.No.523 of 1982 and obtained an order of interim injunction against the landlord. The landlord sent a notice to the tenant dated 16.8.1982 calling upon him to quit and deliver the vacant possession. The tenant sent a reply dated 24.9.1982 refusing to vacate. Hence, the landlord came forward with this petition for eviction.

2. According to the tenant the portion under the occupation of the landlord is sufficient to carry on his business. The tenant submitted that the landlord does not require the portion under the occupation of the tenant bona fide under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. According to the tenant, the petition premises is in good condition. Therefore, it requires no repairs. It was, therefore, pleaded that the petition for eviction is liable to be dismissed. The landlord filed Ex.A-1 to Ex.A-5. The tenant filed Ex.B-1 to Ex.B-10. Ex.C-1 is the report filed by the commissioner. The landlord examined himself as P.W.1. The tenant examined himself as R.W.1. Considering the facts arising in this case, the Rent Controller came to the conclusion that the request of the landlord for eviction under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act and under Sec.14(a) of the Act cannot be acceded to. Accordingly, the petition for eviction was dismissed. On appeal, the Rent Control Appellate Authority came to the conclusion that the landlord established his bona fide in requiring the petition premises under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. Accordingly, the Rent Control Appellate Authority set aside the order passed by the Rent Controller under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. In so far as the order passed by the Rent Controller under Sec.14(a) of the Act is concerned, the same was confirmed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority. It is against this order, the present revision has been preferred by the tenant.

3. The learned counsel appearing for the tenant submitted as under:

There is no bona fide on the part of the landlord in requiring the petition premises under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. In the petition for eviction the landlord failed to plead hardship that may be caused to him if the tenant is not evicted from the petition premises. There is also no averments to the effect that if the tenant is evicted, the hardship caused to the tenant would not outweigh the advantage to the landlord. The portion under the occupation of the landlord is sufficient for his business and, therefore, his requirement of the petition premises under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act is not bona fide. There is no evidence on record to show that his business was improving so as to require additional accommodation for expanding the business. It is not correct to state that the tenant vacated the premises and conducted his business elsewhere. It is also not correct to state that the tenant sublet the portion under his occupation to a third party. The landlord's business turnover per month does not warrant for additional accommodation. The landlord required the petition premises by way of additional accommodation for his crackers business. The business in crackers is only a seasonal business. In the petition for eviction the landlord has not stated as to what is the bona fide reason for requiring the additional accommodation. The tenant was doing his business in the petition premises for the past several years and if he is vacated, that would cause great hardship to him which would outweigh the advantage that the landlord may get. It was, therefore, pleaded that the first appellate court was not correct in ordering eviction.

4. On the other hand, the learned senior counsel, Mr.T.R.Mani, appearing for the landlord/respondent herein submitted as under:

The landlord purchased the petition premises for the purpose of expanding his business. The landlord is doing business in the downstairs portion as a general merchant and also doing the business in crackers. The portion under the occupation of the landlord is 8 feet x 15 feet. The tenant is not carrying on his business in the upstairs portion. In the staircase, he pulled down three steps and constructed a platform, on which he is doing his business as newspaper agent. The report filed by the commissioner would go to show that in the upstairs portion the tenant dumped a cartload of sand. The upstairs portion was also not kept in good condition. The roof with palm leaves and tin sheets is also in a bad condition. In that small space, the landlord has sunk Rs.5,000 by way of capital for his business and he is earning Rs.300 to Rs.400 per month from the said business. In fact, the tenant has vacated the premises and he is doing his business in a different place. The tenant also sublet the portion under his occupation to a third party, who is doing his business there. The subsequent development of events would go to show that the tenant is not occupying the petition premises. According to the landlord if the tenant is not vacated that would cause great hardship to him. It was, therefore, pleaded that the Rent Control Appellate Authority was correct in ordering eviction under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. Since the order passed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority is based upon facts, no further interference is called for.

5. I have heard the rival submissions.

6. The fact remains that originally the premises belonged to one Rama Subramania Iyer. In the said premises in the ground floor the landlord's father was conducting his business as a general merchant and the tenant herein was conducting his business as newspaper agent in the upstairs portion. Later on, on 6.5.1982, the downstairs portion and the upstairs portion was purchased by the landlord herein. According to the landlord, he required the portion under the occupation of the tenant by way of additional accommodation under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. In fact, the tenant is in occupation of the upstairs portion and the staircase. A commissioner was appointed. In the commissioner's report it is stated that the upstairs portion was dumped with a cartload of sand and it is also not in a clean condition. The roof is made up of palm leaves and tinsheets. According to the commissioner, there are holes in the roof. The tenant pulled down three of the steps in the staircase and constructed a platform, on which he is doing his business as a newspaper agent. According to the landlord the portion under his occupation is 8 feet x 15 feet. He is doing business as a general merchant and also selling crackers. He sunk a sum of Rs.5,000 towards capital of his business. His monthly turnover is from Rs.300 to Rs.400. The landlord submitted that the tenant is not carrying on his business in the upstairs portion. According to him the tenant vacated the premises and he is doing his business elsewhere, after subletting the petition premises to a third party, who is doing his lottery business in the petition premises. This was stated to be a subsequent event that took place after the appeal was disposed of by the learned Rent Control Appellate Authority. In order to support this version, the landlord also filed an application for permission, to file additional documents in this revision proceedings. The landlord got affidavits from three persons in his locality to show that the tenant has vacated the petition premises and conducting his business elsewhere. The learned counsel appearing for the tenant on this aspect submitted that if according to the landlord, the tenant has sublet the portion under his occupation to a third party, then it is always open to him to file a petition for eviction on the ground of subletting and without doing that, the learned counsel submitted that the landlord cannot bring this fact as a subsequent event to the notice of this Court and claim eviction on this ground. According to the learned counsel for the tenant, the tenant is still in occupation of the petition premises and doing his business there. The learned counsel for the tenant submitted that there is nothing wrong on the part of the tenant in doing business at two places. According to the learned counsel simply because the tenant is doing his business elsewhere that would not lead to the conclusion that the tenant vacated the petition premises. This line of reasoning adduced by the learned counsel appearing for the tenant appears to be acceptable. The landlord says that the tenant vacated the premises subsequent to the order passed by the learned Rent Control Appellate Authority. But according to the tenant he did not vacate the premises but he is still in occupation of the petition premises and doing his business. This question cannot be decided here without appreciating the evidence adduced by both the parties of this aspect. No doubt, the report filed by the commissioner says that the upstairs portion was dumped with cartload of sand and it is not kept clean. It was also pointed out that the tenant pulled down three steps in the staircase and constructed a platform, over which he is doing his newspaper agent business. It is also the case of the landlord that the portion under his occupation is only 8 feet x 15 feet. Therefore, he required the portion under the occupation of the tenant by way of additional accommodation. It may be true, that the landlord required the petition premises by way of additional accommodation. But the fact remains that the petition for eviction on the ground of additional accommodation must be filed in accordance with the provisions contained under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. In a petition for eviction filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act, the landlord should clearly state that he required the petition premises by way of additional accommodation. But according to the proviso, the Controller shall reject the application if he is satisfied that the hardship which may be caused to the tenant by granting it will outweigh the advantage to the landlord. In order to decide this question of hardship, there must be proper pleadings in the petition. In the present case, the petition was filed by the landlord under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act, but there was no averment regarding the hardship as contemplated under the proviso to Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act. If the hardship is not pleaded in a petition filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act that is fatal to the petition. (See the decisions in Radhakrishnan v. Seethalakshmi, (1988) 1 L.W. 67 and Annakkili Ammal v. H.C. Hussain, 97 L.W. 116. In the present case, the petition filed under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act contains no averment with regard to the hardship as contemplated under the proviso to Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act and hence the petition is not maintainable. Therefore, it is liable to be dismissed. This legal aspect was not considered by the Rent Control Appellate Authority. Thus on a careful consideration of the facts arising in this case and the legal principle on this aspect. I hold that the Rent Control Appellate Authority was not correct in confirming the order of eviction passed by the Rent Controller. Accordingly, the revision filed by the tenant stands allowed. The order of the eviction passed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act stands set aside, and the petition for eviction dismissed.

7. In the result, the revision is allowed. However, there will be no order as to costs. -

V.K.

Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Mishra and Janarthanam, JJ.

W.M.P.No.17001 of 1992 in W.P.No.7656 of 1992
14th August, 1992.

M.Shakur Chathik (Minor) represented by his father and natural guardian A.Mohammed Abdul Habeeb ...Petitioner
v.

Association of Private Schools affiliated to the Central Board of Secondary Education represented by its President, V.Venkatachalam and others

...Respondents.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Writ proceedings under Order of Court in collateral review of - Competency - Powers of Judge sitting in a collateral proceeding.

A judgment of the Court is final subject to appeal and if there is any mistake or error therein is found, it is corrected by the appellate court or by way of review in accordance with the procedure prescribed therefor and constructively recognised by the Courts in India and accordingly applied to the writ proceedings. The decision of the Court in the case of Mayavaram Financial Corporation

Limited, Mayiladuthurai v. The Registrar of Chits, Pondicherry, 1991 Writ L.R. 519, completely rules out any collateral review and interference thus in the orders or directions issued by a Bench of the Court. The collateral proceedings, unless are in the nature of review petitions are incompetent and no court can make any order of any kind in such proceedings whether a single Judge or a larger Bench. A Judge sitting in a collateral proceeding can go into the question of any obiter dicta or the judgment being per incuriam only for the purpose whether he would be bound by one or the other judgment as the rule of obiter dicta and per incuriam are the rules attached to the ratio decidendi of the judgment and thus for deciding whether one or the other judgment is a binding precedent and not for the purpose of review of any of the two judgments on the plea that one is wrong and the other is right. [Paras 3 and 6]

Cases referred to:

Rathnaswamy, Dr.V. v. Director of Medical Education, 1986 Writ L.R. 207. [Paras 2 and 6]

Punjab Engineering College, Chandigarh v. Sanjay Gulati, A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 580. [Para 2]

Mayavaram Financial Corporation Limited, Mayiladuthurai v. The Registrar of Chits, Pondicherry, 1991 Writ L.R. 519. [Para 3]

Application under Sec.114 of the Civil Procedure Code presented to this Court to grant leave to the petitioner to seek a review of the judgment dated 24.7.1992 in W.P.No.7656 of 1992 and batch cases-W.P.No.7656 of 1992 presented to this Court under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a writ of certiorari calling for the records comprised in the proceedings of the first respondent dated 15.6.1992 in G.O.Ms.No.555, Education and quash the same.

K.Chandru, for Petitioner.

The Order of the Court was made by Mishra, J.: Before we order whether to grant leave to the petitioner, who is claimed to be a third party to seek review of the judgment in W.P.Nos.7656 etc. of 1992, we propose to hear the respondents and accordingly order notice of motion returnable in one week as to why leave be not granted.

2. It has been brought to our notice that a number of writ petitions in W.P.Nos.10337 etc. of 1992 have been ordered by a learned single Judge of this Court on 10.8.1992, it appears, for collaterally and indirectly seeking a review of our judgment in W.P.No.7656 of 1992 and other analogous cases.

Our attention has been drawn to the order of the learned single Judge dated 10.8.1992, who it seems, has not passed any positive order, but has stated as follows:

"A Division Bench of this Court in Rathnaswamy, Dr.V. v. Director of Medical Education, 1986 Writ L.R. 207, considered the scope and effect of the conditions prescribed in the Prospectus and held,

"Then the question is what is the place and significance of a prospectus with regard to admissions to educational courses. We shall not mix up and confuse the prospectus as understood in Company law parlance with the prospectus for educational courses..... Forgetting the notion of the prospectus in the Company law parlance, we must deal with the matter from the practical angle of selection of candidates for educational courses offered by institutions run by the State. The principle has been uniform that violation of the norms of admission laid down and rules and regulations governing the same with impunity have been frowned upon and many times have been struck down. These rules and norms are there to be strictly and solemnly adhered to. They alone should be the guidelines for such admissions. In fact, the very decision of the Supreme Court in Punjab Engineering College, Chandigarh v. Sanjay Gulari, A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 580, relied on by the learned counsel for the petitioner, countenances the principles. The word prospectus is derivative from the word prospect. One of the dictionary meanings for the word prospect is to look around, to make a search, to explore. A prospectus issued with regard to admission to educational courses is a declaration to the candidates that a field for development of educational potentialities is available for exploration and that there could be a chance of success. It is a piece of information. But, at the same time, we shall not belittle the significance of the need to set out in the prospectus itself a summary or an essence of the norms and rules which should guide and which will be adopted for selection of the competitors in the field of exploration in educational development or at least indicate in the prospectus that there are norms and rules which shall govern. It is highly desirable that a summary or an essence of the relevant norms and rules governing such admissions are set out in the prospectus themselves or their existence at least is indicated therein. But an omission to do so shall not be taken advantage of by any one to negate and ignore the very norms and rules. The very rules and norms have come to be laid down only to govern and to be adhered to and not to be ignored and breached. It is true that if the relevant norms and rules are set out or referred to in the prospectus, a controversy of the present nature would have been very wisely avoided. But the omission in the prospectus is not an omission or erosion or deletion of the very norms and rules themselves. The norms and rules subsist and they have to hold the field." (emphasis supplied).

In view of the above decision of the Division Bench of this Court reported in Rathnaswamy, Dr.V. v. Director of Medical Education, 1986 Writ L.R. 207, the claims of the petitioners that the conditions prescribed in the prospectus should be followed, cannot be ignored. The cases referred to hereinabove, not only relate to the scope and effect of the conditions laid down in the prospectus, but also relate to the other points raised, as set out hereinabove. The later decision of the Division Bench of this Court dated 24.7.1992 in a batch of writ petitions (W.P.No.7656 of 1992 etc.) has had no occasion to consider the scope and effect of the conditions laid down in the prospectus and the other points set out hereinabove. It cannot be said that these two decisions of two Division Benches of this Court are in conflict with each other with reference to the same issue. In order to set an uniform criteria to be followed, having due regard to the law as laid down by the two Division Benches with reference to the points considered and decided therein, the Registry is directed to place the above cases before My Lord, the Chief Justice for orders for being posted before a larger Bench for final disposal."

3. It seems, attention of the learned single Judge was not brought to the fact that a judgment of the Court is final subject to appeal and if there is any mistake or error therein is found, it is corrected by the appellate Court or by way of review in accordance with the procedure prescribed therefor and constructively recognised by the Courts in India and accordingly applied to the writ proceedings. A Full Bench of this Court has gone into the issue of review of an order passed in a writ proceeding in the case of Mayavaram Financial Corporation Limited, Mayiladuthurai v. The Registrar of Chits, Pondicherry, 1991 Writ L.R. 519. This completely rules out any collateral review and interference thus in the orders or directions issued by a Bench of the Court. The collateral proceedings, unless are in the nature of review petitions, are incompetent and no court can make any order of any kind in such proceedings, whether a single Judge or a larger Bench.

4. We are informed at the Bar that a number of Special Leave Petitions have been filed in the Supreme Court (S.L.P.No.9481 of 1992) against our judgment in W.P.No.7656 etc. of 1992. It goes without saying that if our judgment is affirmed by the Supreme Court, it will merge in the judgment of the Supreme Court. This Court then shall not be competent to review the judgment. If, however, our judgment is reversed by the Supreme Court, nothing will survive for a review. Any attempt, however, at this stage to review the judgment may be found incompetent for another reason that some interim orders were sought for in the Special Leave Petitions before the Supreme Court and the Supreme Court has declined the same.

5. Mrs.Nalini Chidambaram, appearing for one of the petitioners in the batch of writ petitions aforementioned in which orders have been passed by the learned single Judge, has tried to convey that there is no attempt in the writ petitions to seek any review of our order and that all that the petitioners have mainly asked for is a direction to accommodate them in accordance with the prospectus, for they prepared themselves for the prospectus, for they prepared themselves for admission to the professional courses only in accordance with the representations in the prospectus. Since Mrs.Nalini Chidambaram, however assisted only as amicus curiae, if we pronounce our opinion upon this, that may prejudice the case of the petitioners in the writ petitions. We, however, cannot desist from saying that the plea that the representations in the prospectus is binding upon the respondent/ State Government has been raised under some serious misapprehensions. Representation, if any, in the prospectus was not confined to the H.S.C. students only. It was equally applicable to the C.B.S.C. students. We have already noticed in our judgment that the equations between the C.B.S.C.

and H.S.C. students stood seriously disturbed on account of the doubts that were created as to the extra marks allotted to the C.B.S.C. students. Where then the representation in the prospectus existed?

6. It is the above argument upon which learned single Judge has thought that a conflict has arisen on account of our directions in W.P.No.7656 and etc. of 1992 and a Division Bench of this Court in Rathnaswamy, Dr.V. v. Director of Medical Education, 1986 Writ L.R. 207. If we may point out, a Judge sitting in a collateral proceeding can go into the question of any obiter dicta or the judgment being per incuriam only for the purpose whether he would be bound by one or the other judgment as the rule of obiter dicta and per incuriam are the rules attached to the ratio decidendi of the judgment and thus for deciding whether one or the other judgment is a binding precedent and not for the purpose of review of any of the two judgments on the plea that one is wrong and the other is right.

7. It is unfortunate that it was not clarified to the learned single Judge by any party that the judgment in the case of Rathnaswamy, Dr.V. v. Director of Medical Education, 1986 Writ L.R. 207, in which this Court said that the norms and rules in the prospectus have alone to be obeyed, was not concerned with the issue how far the promise or representation in the prospectus would hold the field in view of the charged circumstance that the Government of the State found that a reservation should be applied confining consideration of the C.B.S.C. students to 2% of the seats only and the court in W.P.Nos.7656 and etc. of 1992 found that the equations which alone could enable the candidates seeking admission in accordance with the prospectus between the C.B.S.C. students and H.S.C. students had been seriously disturbed, a situation in which norms and rules in the prospectus could not be applied.

8. For the reasons as above, since we are of the opinion that there could be no review of our judgment in W.P.Nos.7656 and etc. of 1992 in the collateral proceedings and the review proceedings have not been started at the instance of any party except the instant petitioner, it will be necessary to hold that the proceedings in W.P.Nos.10337 and etc. of 1992 are not competent in so far as they attempt to get the review of the judgment in W.P.Nos.7656 and etc. of 1992 and they are not maintainable. The proceedings in the said writ petitions to the said extent thus must remain stayed. This, however, will not mean that any person aggrieved, cannot approach the Supreme Court against our judgment in W.P.Nos.7656 and etc. of 1992. If there is a proper case for review, any person can move this Court for the review of our judgment in W.P.Nos.7656 and etc. of 1992. It will be appropriate, however, that since the Supreme Court has already passed some orders in the Special Leave Petition with respect to the current admission, no attempt is made to interfere with that.

B.S.

Petition ordered.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Ratnam and Somasundaram, JJ.

W.A.No.187 of 1991

8th August, 1992.

The Assistant Collector of Central Excise, Coimbatore and others ...Appellants
v.

M/s.Elgi Equipments Limited ...Respondent.

Central Excise and Salt Act (I of 1944), Sec.11-B (as amended by Central Excise Amendment Act (XL of 1991) - Refund of excise duty - High Court directing Excise Authorities to refund excise duty on 8.1.1991 - Writ appeal filed and pending - Amended Act coming into force on 20.9.1991 - Act if will apply barring the Court to direct refund.

The respondent is a manufacturer of Service Station Equipments. The first appellant demanded a sum of Rs.1,15,502.57 towards the differential duty for the period from 10.1.1979 to 31.3.1980. This order was set aside by the Collector of Central Excise (Appeals), Madras. The first appellant was directed to approve the price list based on the sales value at the factory gate. The first appellant, basing on the above order approved the price list. The respondent filed an application for refund of Rs.19,83,225.64 before the first appellant. This was rejected. An appeal against that order was allowed with a direction to the first appellant to decide the refund claim, if admissible otherwise.

Pursuant to this order, the respondent submitted an application for refund. It was dismissed and an appeal against that order was also dismissed. He filed a writ petition. A learned single Judge allowed the writ petition and directed the appellants to refund Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent with interest at 12% per annum from 23.6.1987 within four weeks from 8.1.1991. In appeal, it was contended that by reason of Sec.3 of the Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991, no refund can be made to the respondent except as provided in Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.11-B of the Act of 1940.

Held: Admittedly, during the pendency of the present writ appeal, Sec.11-B of the Act was amended by the Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991, with effect from 20.9.1991. The Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991 will apply to the facts of the present case because the order of the learned single Judge passed in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 has not become final on the date when the Amendment Act, 1991 came into force. The order in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 is challenged by the appellants by filing the present writ appeal and when the Central Excise (Amendment) Act XL of 1991 came into force, the whole matter was pending in the present writ appeal. As per the amended Sec.11-B, all pending claims for refund on or from 20.9.1991, that is, the date on which the Amendment Act came into force will have to be dealt with and disposed of only in accordance with the Amended provision of law. By reason of the amended Sec.11-B(3), notwithstanding the direction given by the learned single Judge by the order made in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 to refund a sum of Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent, no refund can be made to the respondent except as provided in Sub-sec.(2) of Act XL of 1991. As rightly contended by the learned counsel for the appellant, the order of the learned single Judge under appeal is subject to Sec.11-B of the Act as amended by Act XL of 1991. Therefore, it is for the respondent to seek refund of the concerned amount from the Assistant Collector as provided in Sub-sec.11-B(1)(2) of the Act as amended by the Amendment Act XL of 1991 and in compliance of the Rules and Regulations framed thereunder. [Para 7] Application under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of K.M.Natarajan, J., dated 8.1.1991 and made in the exercise of the Special Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 presented under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a writ of mandamus, directing the respondents 1 and 2 to pay the amount of refund of Rs.19,83,225.64 due to the petitioner together with the interest at the rate of 12% per annum from April, 1980 within one month from the date of order.

K.Jayachandran, Additional Central Government Standing Counsel, for Appellant.

V.Santhanam, for Respondent.

The Order of the Court was made by

Somasundaram, J.: This writ appeal is directed against the order in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 directing the appellants to refund a sum of Rs.16,59,721.30 with interest at 12% p.a. from 23.6.1987 to the respondent within four weeks from 8.1.1991.

2. The respondent herein is a manufacturer of Service Station Equipments. The first appellant in his order dated 30.8.1983 confirmed the earlier order passed by his predecessor and demanded a sum of Rs.1,15,502.57 towards the differential duty for the period from 10.1.1979 to 31.3.1980. As against the said order of the first appellant, the respondent filed an appeal before the third appellant and by his order dated 19.11.1983, the third appellant set aside the order of the first appellant dated 30.8.1983 and remanded the matter to the first appellant with a direction to approve the price-list based on the sales value at the factory gate under Sec.4(1)(a) of the Central Excise and Salt Act (hereinafter called the Act). Pursuant to the order dated 19.11.1983, passed by the 3rd appellant, the first appellant by the order dated 20.10.1984 approved the price-list under Sec.4(1)(a) of the Act i.e., the price at which the goods are sold at the factory gate to the independent buyers. Further, an application for refund of Rs.19,83,225.64 was also filed by the respondent before the first appellant. Thereafter, the second appellant filed an appeal against the order of the first appellant dated 20.10.1984 in Appeal No.58 of 1986 before the 3rd appellant. By the order dated 12.5.1986, the third appellant set aside the order dated 20.10.1984 on the ground that the order dated 20.10.1984 is not in conformity with the order passed by the third appellant dated 19.11.1983. Aggrieved by the order dated 12.5.1986 the respondent filed an appeal before the Customs Excise and Gold Control Appellate Tribunal. The Customs Excise and Gold Control Appellate Tribunal by the order dated 20.3.1987 allowed the appeal and set aside the order of the third appellant dated 12.5.1986 on the ground that the department has not filed any appeal against the order of 3rd appellant dated 19.11.1983 and it has become final. In the meantime, by the order dated 30.9.1986, the first appellant rejected the respondent's claim for refund of Rs.19,83,225.64. Against the order of the first appellant dated 30.9.1986, rejecting the respondent's claim for refund, an appeal was filed in appeal No.13 of 1987 before the 3rd appellant. By the order dated 30.4.1987, the third appellant allowed the appeal setting aside the order of the first appellant dated 30.9.1986 and remanded the matter to the first appellant with the direction to decide the refund claim, if admissible otherwise, as per Sec.11-B of the Act. Pursuant to the order of the 3rd appellant dated 30.4.1987, the respondent on 2.5.1987, submitted an application for refund. Thereafter, the respondent also filed W.P.No.6260 of 1987 before this Court praying for the issue of mandamus directing the appellants to refund the sum of Rs.19,83,225.64 together with interest at 12% p.a. from April, 1980. Subsequently, on 18.8.1988, the first appellant passed an order rejecting the refund claims made by the respondent on 2.5.1987. As against the said order dated 18.8.1988, the respondent filed an appeal before the third appellant who by the order dated 8.5.1989 dismissed the said appeal.

3. The appellants herein as respondents 1 to 3 in the W.P.No.6260 of 1987 filed counter affidavit contending that the assessee/respondent herein has been making sales to branches and distributors; that refund can be sanctioned only after verifying all the documents of the assessee including the branch sales invoices; that the first appellant directed the assessee to produce the relevant documents for sanctioning the eligible refund amount to them, but, the respondent herein has not produced the same before the first appellant; and that the first appellant has taken sincere efforts to refund the eligible amount, after calling for the relevant branch sales invoices, as the respondent did not produce the same the refund claim was rejected.

4. The learned single Judge who heard the writ petition took the view that the assessable value of the goods in question has already been determined under Sec.4(1)(a) of the Act and that the records relating to the Branch sales are not necessary. Consequently, the learned single Judge held that the respondent is entitled to a refund of Rs.16,59,721.30. As a result the learned single Judge allowed the writ petition and directed the appellants to refund the said sum Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent with interest at 12% per annum from 23.6.1987 within four weeks from 8.1.1991. This writ Appeal is directed against the order of the learned single Judge.

5. Mr.K.Jayachandran, learned Additional Central Government Standing Counsel appearing for the appellants contended that by reason of Sec.3 of the Central Excise Amendment Act, 1991 (Central Act 40 of 1991), Sec.11-B of the Act is so amended as to incorporate Sub-sec.(3) to the effect that notwithstanding anything to the contrary, contained in any judgment, decree, order or direction of the Appellate Tribunal or any Court or in any other provision of the Act or the Rules made thereunder or any other law for the time being in force, no refund shall be made except as provided in Sub-sec.(2) and therefore notwithstanding the order of the learned single Judge in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 directing the refund to the respondent, no refund can be made to the respondent except as provided in Sub-sec.(2) of the said Act. The learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that on or from 20.8.1991 i.e., the date on which the Central Act XL of 1991 came into force, any claim for refund has to be made only under the amended provision of Sec.11-B before the competent authority in the form prescribed by the regulations and in the manner provided by the Rules and that in any case, this Court has no jurisdiction to order refund by virtue of the provision contained in Sec.11(3) as amended. There is merit in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellants.

6. First, let us refer to Sec.3 of Central Excise Amendment Act 1991 (Central Act XL of 1991) which reads thus:

"3. Amendment of Sec.11-B:- In Sec.11-B of the Central Excise Act,

(a) in Sub-sec.(1):-

(i) after the words "from the relevant date", the following shall be inserted, namely:-

In such form as may be prescribed and the application shall be accompanied by such documentary or other evidence (including the documents referred to in Sec.12-A) as the applicant may furnish to establish that the amount or duty of excise in relation to which such refund is claimed was collected from, or paid by, him and the incidence of such duty had not been passed on by him to any other person; Provided that where an application for refund has been made before the commencement of the Central Excise and Customs Laws (Amendment) Act, 1991, such application shall be deemed to have been made under this subsection as amended by the said Act and the same shall be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of Sub-sec.(2) substituted by that Act;

(ii) In the existing proviso, for the words "Provided that" the words "Provided further that" shall be substituted;

(b) for Sub-secs.(2) to (5), the following Sub-sections shall be substituted, namely:-

"(2) If on receipt of any such application, the Assistant Collector of Central Excise is satisfied that the whole or any part of the duty of excise paid by the applicant is refundable, he may make an order accordingly and the amount so determined shall be credited to the Fund: Provided that the amount of duty of excise as determined by the Assistant Collector of Central Excise under the foregoing provisions of this sub-section shall, instead of being credited to the Fund, be paid to the applicant, if such amount is relatable to:

(a) rebate of duty of excise on excisable goods exported out of India or on excisable materials used in the manufacture of goods which are exported out of India;

(b) unspent advance deposits lying in balance in the applicant's account current maintained with the Collector of Central Excise;

(c) refund of credit of duty paid on excisable goods used as inputs in accordance with the rules made, or any notification issued, under this Act;

(d) duty of excise paid by the manufacturer, if he had not passed on the incidence of such duty to any other person;

(e) the duty of excise borne by the buyer, if he had not passed on the incidence of such duty to any other person,

(f) the duty of excise borne by any other such class of applicants as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify:

Provided further that no notification under clause (f) of the first proviso shall be issued unless in the opinion of the Central Government the incidence of duty has not been passed on by the persons concerned to any other person.

(3) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any judgment, decree, order or direction of the Appellate Tribunal or any Court or in any other provision of the Act or the rules made thereunder or any other law for the time being in force, no refund shall be made except as provided in Sub-sec.(2).

(4) Every notification under Clause (f) of the first proviso to Sub-sec.(2) shall be laid before each House of Parliament, if it is sitting, as soon as may be after the issue of the notification, and, if it is not sitting, within seven days of its re-assembly, and the Central Government shall seek the approval of Parliament to the notification by a resolution moved within a period of fifteen days beginning with the day on which the notification is laid before the House of the People and if Parliament makes any modification in the notification or directs that the notification should cease to have effect, the notification shall thereafter have effect only in such modified form or be of no effect, as the case may be, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder.

(5) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that any notification issued under clause (f) of the first proviso to sub-sec.(2), including any such notification approved or modified under Sub-sec.(4), may be rescinded by the Central Government at any time by notification in the Official Gazette."

(c) in the Explanation, in clause (B), for Sub-clause (e), the following sub-clause shall be substituted, namely:-

"(e) in the case of a person, other than the manufacturer, the date of purchase of the goods by such person."

The amendments introduced by the Central Act XL of 1991 not only regulate the manner of refund and the conditions to be satisfied before claiming any refund, but also prohibits any refund being ordered by any Tribunal or Court except in accordance with the amended provisions contained in the Central Excise Amendment Act 1991. By virtue of the amendment of Sub-secs.(1) and (2) of Sec.11-B of the Act, the assessee like the respondent herein has to make an application in the prescribed form accompanied by such documentary or other evidence as the assessee may furnish to establish that the amount of duty of excise in relation to which such refund is claimed was collected from or paid by him and the incidence of such duty has not been passed on by him to any other person. Sub-sec.(2) provides for the manner in which the application in the prescribed form shall be dealt with by the competent authority. It is also provided that the Assistant Collector of Central Excise shall direct refund if such amount is relatable to duty of excise paid by the manufacturer, if he had not passed on the incidence of such duty to any other person. Further, by virtue of the said amendment any claim for refund has to be made by the assessee before the competent authority in the form prescribed by the Regulations and in the manner provided in the Rules. Again, the amended Sec.11-B(3) provides that notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any judgment or order or direction of the Appellate Tribunal or any Court, no refund shall be made except as provided in Sub-sec.(2).

7. In the present case, when the respondent submitted an application before the first appellant claiming refund for the period from 1.4.1980 to 10.8.1983, the first appellant by his order dated 30.9.1986, rejected the same. As against the said order dated 30.9.1986, the respondent filed an appeal before the third appellant, who by the order dated 30.4.1987, set aside the order of the first appellant and remanded the matter to the first appellant to decide the refund claim, if admissible otherwise, as per Sec.11-B of the Act. On 2.5.1987, the respondent again submitted his application before the first appellant claiming refund. The respondent also filed W.P.No.6260 of 1987 before this Court, out of which the present writ appeal arises, for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the appellants to refund a sum of Rs.19,83,225.64. During the pendency of the above writ petition, on 18.8.1988, the first appellant passed an order again rejecting the respondent's claims for refund. The appeal filed by the respondent against the order of the first appellant dated 18.8.1988 was also dismissed by the 3rd appellant on 8.5.1989. Subsequently, on 8.1.1991, the learned single Judge allowed W.P.No.6260 of 1987 and issued direction to the appellants to refund a sum of Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent and as against the order of the learned single Judge, the appellants have filed the present writ appeal and the same was admitted on 25.2.1991. Admittedly, during the pendency of the present writ appeal, Sec.11-B of the Act was amended by the Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991, with effect from 20.9.1991. The Central Excise (Amendment) Act, 1991 will apply to the facts of the present case because the order of the learned single Judge passed in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 has not become final on the date when the Amendment Act, 1991 came into force. The order in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 is challenged by the appellants by filing the present writ appeal and when the Central Excise (Amendment) Act XL of 1991 came into force, the whole matter was pending in the present writ appeal. As per the amended Sec.11-B, all pending claims for refund on or from 20.9.1991, that is, the date on which the Amendment Act came into force, will have to be dealt with and disposed of only in accordance with the Amended provision of law. By reason of the amended Sec.11-B(3), notwithstanding the direction given by the learned single Judge by the order made in W.P.No.6260 of 1987 to refund a sum of Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent, no refund can be made to the respondent except as provided in Sub-sec.(2) of Act XL of 1991. As rightly contended by the learned counsel for the appellant, the order of the learned single Judge under appeal is subject to Sec.11-B of the Act as amended by Act XL of 1991. Therefore, it is for the respondent to seek refund of the concerned amount from the Assistant Collector as provided in Sub-sec.11-B(1)(2) of the Act as amended by the Amendment Act XL of 1991 and in compliance of the Rules and Regulations framed thereunder. A similar view has been taken by a Division Bench of the Karnataka High Court in The Assistant Collector of Central Excise, Davangere and others v. M/s.South Asbestos Cement Ltd., Karur, Dharwad District, W.P.No.2369 of 1991 of Karnataka High Court dated 20.1.1992, and in M/s.Brooke Bond India Ltd. Hyderabad v. Union of India and another, W.P.No.1047 of 1987 dated 10.10.1991, of the High Court of Andhra Pradesh by a Division Bench of Andhra Pradesh High Court.

8. Dealing with a similar situation, the Division Bench of the Karnataka High Court in The Assistant Collector of Central Excise, Davangere v. M/s.Southern Asbestos Cement Ltd., W.A.No.2369 of 1991 dated 20.1.1992, has held as follows:

"Secondly, reliance is placed upon the amendment to the ACT subsequent to the order under appeal to cover cases of what has come to be known as "unjust enrichment". By reason of the amendment to Sec.11-B, Sub-sec.(3) thereof reads thus:

"(3) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any judgment, decree order or direction of the Appellate Tribunal or any Court or in any other provision of the Act or the Rules made thereunder or any other law for the time being in force, no refund shall be made except as provided in Sub-sec.(2)."

Sub-sec.(1) now requires the applicant refund to establish that the amount of excise duty in relation to which refund is claimed "was collected from, or paid by, him and the incidence of such duty had not been passed on by him to any other person." By reason of the amendment to Sub-sec.(2), the Assistant Collector of Central Excise is required to be satisfied upon such application that "the whole or any part of the duty of excise paid by the applicant is refundable," and thereupon "he may make an order accordingly and the amount so determined shall be credited to the Fund". The "Fund" is defined by Sec.2(cc) to mean the consumer Welfare Fund established under Sec.120 and the money credited to the fund is required by reason of Sec.12-D, to be utilised by the Central Government for the welfare of consumers in accordance with Rules in that behalf that it might make.

It is submitted, and rightly, that the order under appeal can operate only subject to the aforesaid provisions. Thus, the writ petitioner shall now have to establish before the first appellant that the incidence of the excise duty in question had not been passed on by it to any other person and if any amount is found to be refundable, the first appellant shall credit the same to the said consumer Welfare Fund." The Division Bench of the Karnataka High Court in the above decision taking such a view modified the order of the learned single Judge directing the Central Government to refund to the respondent in that appeal the excise duty paid by the later under the Act and allowed the writ appeal.

9. M/s.Brooke Bond India Ltd. v. Union of India and another, W.P.No.1047 of 1987, dated 10.10.1991, the Division Bench of the Andhra Pradesh High Court dealing with the effect of the amendment introduced to Sec.11-B of the Act by Act XL of 1991 was the procedure to be adopted in matters pending in writ petitions observed as follows:

"We are of the opinion that it is for the petitioner to seek refund of the concerned amount from the Assistant Collector of Customs as provided in Sec.11-B(1) and (2) of the Central Excise Act as amended by Amending Act, 1991, and in compliance with the rules and regulations framed thereunder. It is for the petitioner to comply with the provisions contained in the Act, Rules and the Regulations as amended primarily, so as to seek enforcement of his claim for refund.

In view of the above it is not necessary this Court now to consider the relief which the petitioner seeks in this writ petition. The writ petition is disposed of without prejudice to the right of the petitioner to file an application in the prescribed form before the competent authority. No costs."

10. In view of the above position of law, the order of the refund sum of Rs.16,59,721.30 to the respondent is liable to be set aside and accordingly it is set aside. However, the judgment in this writ appeal is without prejudice to the right of the respondent to file an application for refund afresh in the manner known to law and it is open to the respondent to seek refund of the amount concerned, afresh, from the Assistant Collector of Central Excise as provided under Sec.11-B(1)(2) of the Act as amended by Act XL of 1991. The respondent is directed to submit his application for refund before the competent authority within 8 weeks from today and the Department is directed to pass orders on the refund application according to law within three months from the date of receipt of the application for refund. It is needless to say that the question of limitation prescribed under Sec.11-B does not arise in this case, because admittedly the duty was paid by the respondent during the relevant period under protest. Further, the order of the Collector (Appeals) (the 3rd appellant herein) dated 8.5.1989 in Appeal No.48 of 1989 (C.B.E.) rejecting the appeal filed against the order of the first appellant dated 18.8.1988, will not stand in the way of the competent authority considering the respondent's application claiming refund afresh, because the order of the third appellant dated 8.5.1989 was not passed on merits and the said appeal was dismissed by the third appellant on the ground that the same matter was pending before this Court in W.P.No.6260 of 1987.

11. In the result, the writ appeal is allowed and the order of the learned single Judge is set aside subject to the above directions. No costs.

B.S.

Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present: K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

W.P.No.2173 of 1991

17th July, 1992.

P.Devendran

...Petitioner

The State of Tamil Nadu and another

...Respondents.

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Secs.4(i), 6 and Proviso as inserted by Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act (LXVIII of 1984), Sec.4(1) - Notification published on 9.8.1978 - Declaration under Sec.6 published on 8.8.1981 - Declaration challenged in writ petition - Stay of declaration not obtained - Writ petition allowed and appeal against dismissed on 1.3.1990 - Fresh declaration published afterwards - Legality - Limitation prescribed by Proviso to Sec.6 if applies - Decision in Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, held would apply and not that in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269. The Government sought to acquire certain lands including the petitioner's lands by a notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act which was published in the Gazette on 9.8.1978. The declaration under Sec.6 of the Act was published in the Gazette on 8.8.1981. The petitioner challenged the declaration under Sec.6 by way of a writ petition. It was allowed and on appeal against the order was dismissed on 1.3.1990. Thereafter, the petitioner received a notice on 28.1.1991 calling on him to appear and submit his objections to the notification under Sec.4(1) dated 9.8.1978. He filed a petition challenging the proceedings contending that a declaration cannot be made after three years after the publication of the notification under Sec.4(1). He relied on the proviso to Sec.6 inserted by Central Act LXVIII of 1984. He further contended that the ratio in Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, would apply to the facts of this case. Relying on the Full Bench decision in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, it was contended by the respondent that it was enough if the first declaration was made within three years from the date of notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act.

Held: The Court of the view that the facts of the case which are placed before it, in all force are one and the same to the case decided in Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219. The reliance of the decision of a Full Bench of this Court in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, is wholly unsustainable. That was a case which arose before the Central Act LXVIII of 1984 came into force. After coming into force of Act LXVIII of 1984, the principle laid down by the Full Bench of this Court in the above mentioned case will not hold good. The Full Bench of this Court in the decision cited supra, applied the maxim actus curiae neminem gravabit and took note of the fact that there was no stay in that case in favour of the petitioner. After the passing of the Central Act LXVIII of 1984, an express provision has been made regarding the period of limitation when a stay order of the court is in operation. So, the decision in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, will not apply to the facts of this case.

[Paras 7 and 8]

Cases referred to:

Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269. [Paras 4 and 8]

Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219. [Paras 5, 6 and 7]

Lakshmi Venkatesan (Minor) v. Special Tahsildar Land Acquisition, (1978)91 L.W. 1. [Para 8]

Director, Income-tax v. Pooran, (1975)4 S.C.C. 568. [Para 8]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorari calling for the records of the first respondent in his notification G.O.Ms.No.1096/78, dated 17.7.1978, Housing and Urban Development Department, published in Tamil Nadu Government Gazette on 9th August, 1978 made under Sec.4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act regarding the petitioner's land in Survey No.85/2, 85/3 and 85/5 of an extent of 0.27 acres, 5.26 acres and 1.90 acres respectively in Thiruvannamiyur Village, Mylapore and Triplicane Taluk and quash the same.

M.Raghavan, Senior Counsel for M.Subramanian, for Petitioner.

Mrs.Kalaiselvi, Government Advocate (Housing), on behalf of Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER: The petitioner challenges the acquisition proceedings of certain lands in S.Nos.85/2, 85/3 and 85/5 for an extent of 0.27 acres, 5.26 acres and 1.90 acres respectively in Thiruvannamiyur village.

2. For the implementation of the Besant Nagar Phase II Scheme by the Tamil Nadu Housing Board, the Government sought to acquire certain lands including the petitioner's lands by a notification under Sec.4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act') which was published in the Gazette on 9.8.1978. The declaration under Sec.6 of the Act was published in the Gazette on 8.8.1981. The petitioner challenged the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act by way of Writ Petition No.10128 of 1981 in respect of those lands, mentioned above, on the ground that he has got an approved layout in respect of S.No.85/3 prior to the publication of notice under Sec.4(1) of the Act and that he is entitled to get exclusion of layouts approved prior to the publication of notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act. Mohan, J. (as he then was) allowed the Writ Petition No.10128 of 1981 by order dated 23.1.1984 thereby quashing the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act. The learned Judge remitted the matter back to the Government. Subsequently the State preferred a writ appeal in W.A.No.304 of 1985 against this order. The First Bench of this Court dismissed the writ appeal on 1.3.1990. After the disposal of the writ appeal, the petitioner received a notice on 28.1.1991 calling upon him to appear submit his objections to the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act dated 9.8.1978. The petitioner having filed objections, has come up to this Court challenging the land acquisition proceedings issued under Sec.4(1) of the Act and published on 9.8.1978. The petitioner alleges in the affidavit that the notice issued to the petitioner is not valid in law since a declaration under Sec.6 of the Act cannot be made after three years after the publication of notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act. It is also alleged that there has been a gross and culpable inaction on the part of the respondents in not implementing the orders of this Court within a reasonable time. It is also stated that the respondents themselves exempted the lands abutting the petitioner's lands on all the sides and that their proceeding with the petitioner's land alone is discriminatory and arbitrary and violative of Art.14 of the Constitution. It is also pointed out in the affidavit that if the acquisition is allowed to be proceeded with, the petitioner will be paid compensation at the market rate of the year 1978 whereas the lands, if acquired after 1990, the compensation will be illusory. With these allegations, the petitioner is before me with the prayer as stated above.

3. Notice of motion has been ordered by this Court on 20.2.1991.

4. A counter affidavit has been filed by respondents 1 and 2. The facts upto the disposal of the W.A.No.304 of 1985 dated 1.3.1990 are not disputed in the counter. Subsequent to the disposal of the writ appeal, the Government was addressed by the Special Tahsildar (Land Acquisition) to inform whether any decision has been taken by the Government in the light of the judgment in W.P.No.10128 of 1981. At that stage, the Government, it seems instructed the Special Tahsildar (Land Acquisition) to proceed with fresh enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act in respect of the lands covered in W.P.No.10128 of 1981 and in W.A.No.304 of 1985 and to submit draft declaration under Sec.6 of the Act immediately. In view of that it seems that a notice has been issued to the petitioner under Sec.5-A of the Act. It is contended in the counter affidavit that it is enough if the first declaration is made within three years from the date of notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act and the decision in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, is relied upon in the counter-affidavit, for the proposition that if the first declaration is made within three years from the date of notification, it serves the purpose and that it cannot be contended that the second declaration should also be within a period of three years from the date of notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act. It is also stated in the counter affidavit that the writ appeal filed by the Government was dismissed on 1.3.1990, that till that date the petitioner has not applied to the Government, on the basis of the abovementioned judgments for exclusion, that fresh proceedings under Sec.3-A were initiated and that notice under Sec.5-A of the Act was issued on 28.1.1991.

5. Mr.Raghavan, the learned Senior Counsel mainly contends that the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act, issued in the year 1978 cannot be enforced against the petitioner at this stage. The learned counsel points out the proviso to Sec.6 of the Act which has been inserted by Central Act No.68 of 1984. Relying upon the said proviso, the learned Senior Counsel states that the State Government cannot take its own time and try to deprive the citizens of their property rights. The learned Senior Counsel points out that the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act is dated 9.8.1978 and the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act is dated 8.8.1981 and that the same were quashed by this Court earlier. It is also pointed out by the learned Senior Counsel that the writ appeal was filed by the State and that the petitioner has not obtained an order of stay of operation of the order in writ petition during the period of appeal. According to the learned Senior Counsel no proceedings can be taken under the Act based upon the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act dated 9.8.1978. The learned Senior Counsel draws my attention to the decision of this Court in Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, in which a decision has been taken by this Court with regard to certain lands for the very same purpose in the very same locality in almost similar circumstances. The learned Senior Counsel relies upon the said decision stating that the facts of the said case are almost similar to the facts of this case and as such the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act made in this case, in so far as the petitioner's lands are concerned, should be set aside.

6. Mrs.Kalaiselvi, the learned Government Advocate (Housing) who appears for the respondents reiterates the contentions raised in the counter affidavit. Further the learned Government Advocate is not able to controvert the contentions of the learned Senior counsel that the ratio in Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, would apply to the facts of this case.

7. Considering the arguments of the learned

Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner and of the learned Government Advocate (Housing), I am of the view that the facts of the case which are placed before me, in all force are one and the same to the case decided in Vadari alias Chellappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1990)1 M.L.J. 219, cited supra. In my view the judgment of this Court, mentioned supra, squarely applies to the facts of this case and the respondents cannot escape from that.

8. The reliance of the decision of a Full Bench of this Court in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, in my view, is wholly unsustainable. That was a case which arose before the Central Act 68 of 1984 came into force. After coming into force of Act 68 of 1984, I do not think the principle laid down by the Full Bench of this Court in the above mentioned case will not hold good. The Full Bench of this Court, in the decision cited supra, applied the maxim actus curiae neminem gravabit and took note of the fact that there was no stay in that case in favour of the petitioner and observed at page 278 as follows:

“..... We will now proceed to consider the application of the maxim actus curiae neminem gravabit to the proceedings in question. This maxim “is founded upon justice and good sense; and affords a safe and certain guide for the administration of the law”. (Vide Broom’s Legal Maxims, Page 99). We have already adverted to the period during which W.P.No.2544 of 1970 remained pending on the file of the court. During that period there was an order of stay in favour of the petitioners. The Government was not therefore, a free agent during that period to set right any mistakes committed by it. In spite it, can time run out against Government so as to denude it of its full period of three years to make a declaration under Sec.6(1) of the Act for acquiring the petitioners’ lands? It is this anomaly which has been pointed out by Ismail, J., in W.P.No.642 of 1969 in the following words:-

“The anomaly of the acceptance of the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner in this behalf will become apparent in such a case because, without there being any delay on the part of the Government, it will be said to have been disabled from completing that acquisition.”

The Division Bench which disposed of Lakshmi Venkatesan (Minor) v. Special Tahsildar Land Acquisition, (1978)91 L.W. 1, has conceded, “that the principle that an act of Court shall prejudice nobody is well established”. It, however, refused to apply the principle to a case of land acquisition, because, the period of three years specified in the proviso is absolute”. The Supreme Court has however, taken a different view in Director, Income-tax v. Pooran, (1975)4 S.C.C. 568. This decision had not been placed for consideration by the Division Bench of this Court. At page 71, of the report their Lordships have stated as follows:

“It is a well-established principle of judicial procedure that where any proceedings are stayed by an order of a Court or by an injunction issued by any Court, that period should be excluded in computing any period of limitation laid down by law. Especially after the Limitation Act, 1963, the provisions of which are now applicable to all proceedings, a provision like Explanation (1) to Sec.132 is superfluous and no argument can be based on it”.

Therefore, the view of the Division Bench that the maxim actus curiae neminem gravabit will not apply to a specific legislative measure providing limitation which does not except from its domain causes which are delayed by reason of issuance of a Court’s order, cannot be held a correct one. We therefore hold that as per the ratio laid down by the Supreme Court in Director, Income-tax v. Pooran, (1975)4 S.C.C. 568, the maxim under consideration will apply to the legislative measure contained in the first proviso to Sec.6(1) of the Act notwithstanding there being no express provision in the proviso to causes which are delayed by reason of issuance of a Court’s order.....”

After the passing of the Central Act LXVIII of 1984, an express provision has been made, regarding the period of limitation when a stay order of the court is in operation. So, I do not think that the reliance of the learned Judge in Chinnathambi Gounder v. Government of Tamil Nadu, (1980)2 M.L.J. 269, will not apply to the facts of this case. 9. However, the learned counsel appearing for the petitioner points out that with regard to S.No.85/3 measuring about 5.26 acres, acquisition proceedings have been withdrawn by the Government on 1.7.1992. Therefore, as I have already stated the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act is quashed and the writ petition shall stand allowed in so far as S.Nos.85/2 and 85/5 measuring about 0.27 and 1.90 acres respectively are concerned. However, there will be no order as to costs. However, it is open to the respondent State to proceed with the land acquisition proceedings a fresh if it thinks necessary as the acquisition is for the public purpose, exercising its power of eminent domain.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Thanikkachalam, J.

S.A.No.521 of 1982 15th July, 1992.

Pachaiyappan and others ...Appellants
v.
Sri Kamatchi Amman Koil Devasthanam represented by its President Gopal Pathar and others ...Respondents.

French Civil Code, Art.745 - 'Descendant' - Meaning of - If includes wife.

According to the definition of the term 'descendant' as contained in Art.745 of the French Civil Code a wife cannot claim herself as the descendant of her deceased husband. Further, this Court while considering the meaning of the word 'santhathi' in Sundaram Iyer v. Sarojini, (1984) 1 M.L.J. 255, took a similar view. In view of the abovesaid decision and on the plain reading of Art.745 of the French Civil Code it remains to be seen that the plaintiff in the present suit cannot claim herself as the descendant of her husband. If that is so, she would not have any right under the Will dated 1.1.1913 either to collect the rental income from the suit property or to perform the Thai Poosam festival as claimed by her. [Para 9]

Cases referred to:

Sundaram Iyer v. Sarojini, (1984) 1 M.L.J. 255. [Para 9]

Indramani Devi v. Raghu Nath Bhanya Birbar Jagadeb, A.I.R. 1961 Ori 9. [Para 9]

R.Gopalakrishnan, for Appellants.

K.S.Ahmed, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER: The legal representatives of the plaintiff are appellants herein. The plaintiff filed O.S.No.254 of 1972 for declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to collect the rent and to perform Thai Poosam Festivals as per the terms of the will dated 1.1.1913 executed by one Sundarambal, wife of Palani Pathar. The case of the plaintiff is as under:

The suit property originally belonged to one Palani Pathar, who died leaving behind him his wife Sundarambal as his sole Legal Representative. They did not have any issues. Sundarambal in turn executed a will dated 1.1.1913 in respect of the suit property stating that 1/4th of the rent accrued from the suit property shall be utilised for the payment of taxes and towards repairing charges. The remaining portion of 3/4th of the rent should be spent for Subramanya deity of Kamatchiamman temple during Poosam Festivals in the month of Thai. It was also stated therein that the Testator's brother-in-law Pavadai Pathar and Vaiyapuri Pathar and after them their descendants shall collect the income from the suit property and utilise the same for the purposes as stated above. It was further submitted that after the death of Pavadai Pathar and his son Vyapuri Pathar, their descendants should celebrate the Thai Poosam festivals as stated above. The plaintiff is the wife of Vyapuri Pathar. According to her, after the death of her husband, she was celebrating the Poosam festivals as stipulated in the abovesaid Will. The second defendant is the lessee under the plaintiff and had been paying the rent to her. For the past 12 months the second defendant did not pay the rent representing that the first defendant is claiming the rent and the same has been paid to him. The first defendant is stated to be Kamatchi Amman Koil Devasthanam, represented by its President, Gopal Pathar. According to the plaintiff, the first and second defendants have colluded together in order to deprive the plaintiff of her rights of management as per the will dated 1.1.1913. The plaintiff issued a notice dated 9.2.1972 to the first and second defendants reiterating her rights. The first and second defendants sent their respective replies through their Advocates. The third defendant is the lessee under the second defendant. Hence, the suit.

2. The case of the first defendant is as under:

It is not correct to state that the plaintiff was performing the Thai Poosam festivals as alleged by her. The plaintiff is not a descendant of the said Vyāpuri Pathar. Therefore, she is not entitled to collect the rent from the suit property and perform the Poosam festivals as per the will dated 1.1.1913. The plaintiff never conducted the Poosam festivals as alleged by her. After the death of Vyapuri Pathar the second defendant was conducting the Poosam festivals on behalf of Agana Group. The second defendant became one of the member in the temple Committee and performed the festivals. Since the public was dissatisfied with his performance of festivals, the temple committee took over the performance of the festival for the past ten years. The second defendant occupied the house as a lessee of the first defendant, and executed a registered lease deed to that effect. The second defendant was paying the rent to the first defendant. Since the first defendant took steps to evict the second defendant, he colluded with the plaintiff in filing the present suit. According to the will dated 1.1.1913, the real intention of the testatrix was that if the descendants of Vyapuri Pathar failed to conduct the Poosam festivals, the Agana Group would conduct and if they also failed, the temple committee would conduct the Poosam festivals by collecting the rent from the suit property. It was therefore, pleaded that the suit as framed and filed by the plaintiff is not maintainable.

3. The case of the second defendant is that he is a lessee under the first defendant. He executed a lease deed in favour of the first defendant and he was also paying the rent to the first defendant. As per the terms of the will, the plaintiff is not entitled to collect the rent from the second defendant. It is not correct to state that the plaintiff was repairing the suit property. It was, therefore, pleaded that the suit filed by the plaintiff is not maintainable.

4. The case of the third defendant is that there is no cause of action to file the suit against this defendant. The second defendant represented to this defendant that he was the owner of the suit property. When this defendant came to know that the Kamatchi Amman Koil Devasthanam was the owner of the property, he started paying the rent to the first defendant. This defendant also denies the allegation that the plaintiff got the right to collect the rent. It is under the instigation of the second defendant, the plaintiff filed the present suit. This defendant is not a necessary party. Therefore the suit is liable to be dismissed.

5. On these pleadings, the trial court framed six issues. The plaintiff filed 4 documents, No document was filed on the side of the defendants. Angammal examined herself as P.W.1. One Dorai kannu and Krishna Pathar were examined as P.Ws.2 and 3 respectively. Gopal Pathar examined himself as D.W.1. Considering the facts arising in this case, the trial court decreed the suit as prayed for with costs. However, on appeal, the first appellate court considering the facts arising in this case, held that the plaintiff is not entitled to maintain the suit. Accordingly, the first appellate court set aside the judgment and decree of the trial court allowed the appeal and dismissed the suit. It is against this judgment and decree, the legal representatives of the plaintiff are in appeal before this court.

6. The learned counsel appearing for the appellants herein submitted as under:

As per Will dated 1.1.1913 executed by Sundarambal, Pavadai Pathar and his son Vyapuri Pathar are directed to perform the Poosam festivals from the rental collection of the suit property. After the life time of Pavadai Pathar and Vyapuri Pathar, their descendants are directed to perform the Poosam festivals from and out of the rental income. The plaintiff is the wife of Vyapuri Pathar. Therefore, she is entitled to perform the Thai Poosam festivals out of the rental collection from the suit property. In fact, for the past many years, she was collecting the rent from the suit properties and she was also performing the Thai Poosam festivals as directed under the above said Will. Latter on, the intervention of the first defendant she was unable to carry out the instruction as given in the abovesaid Will. Since Vyapuri Pathar and the plaintiff have no issues, the plaintiff, being the wife of Vyapuri Pathar should be considered as the descendant and permitted to carry out the obligations as given in the above said Will. The first appellate court was not correct in stating that the plaintiff is not the descendant. Further, the first appellate court was also not correct in stating that the first defendant is entitled to collect the rental income from the suit property and perform the Poosam festivals. Even according to the Will dated 1.1.1913, if the plaintiff cannot be considered as a descendant of Vyapuri Pathar, the next line of descendant mentioned in the above said will would be the community people of Agana Group and at no stretch of imagination the first defendant could claim any right to perform the festival by collecting the rental income from the suit properties. It was, therefore pleaded that the judgment and decree of the first appellate court are liable to be set aside and that of the trial court restored.

7. On the other hand, the learned counsel appearing from the first defendant/first respondent herein submitted as under:

The plaintiff cannot call herself as descendant of her husband Vyapuri Pathar. As per the will dated 1.1.1913, it is only the descendants of Vyapuri Pathar alone can perform the Thai Poosam festivals from and out of the rental income from the suit property. It is not correct to state that the plaintiff was conducting the Thai Poosam festivals as alleged by her. The first defendant is collecting the rent from the second defendant since he is the tenant under the first defendant. In the absence of any document to the said Vyapuri Pathar, the next line of descendant would be the first defendant. Therefore, the first defendant is entitled to collect the rent from the suit property and perform the Thai Poosam festival. The term 'Descendant' is explained in Art.745 of French Civil Code. According to the said Article, a wife is not considered as a descendant of her deceased husband. In order to support his contention, the learned counsel also relied upon a decision of this Court rendered in Sundaram Iyer v. Sarojini, (1984) 1 M.L.J. 255. For all these reasons, the learned counsel submitted that the first appellate court was correct in holding that the plaintiff is not entitled to perform the Thai Poosam festivals. Ultimately, it was pleaded that the first appellate court was correct in holding that the first defendant is entitled to collect the rental income from the suit property and perform Thai Poosam festival. It was, therefore, submitted that inasmuch as the conclusion arrived at by the first appellate court was in accordance with the abovesaid provisions of the French Civil Code and the decision of this Court stated supra no interference is called for.

8. I have heard the rival submissions.

9. The only point that arises for my consideration in this second appeal is whether the plaintiff can call herself as the descendant of her husband Vyapuri Pathar. In order to decide this point, we have to depend upon the Will executed by one Sundarambal dated 1.1.1913. The plaintiff is the wife of one Pavadai Pathar. The suit property originally belonged to the said Pavadai Pathar. After his death, his wife Sundarambal inherited the same and the said Sundarambal executed a will dated 1.1.1913 in the said will, she dedicated the suit property to Subramanya Deity at Kamatchi Amman temple. She also directed that 1/4th of the income from the suit property should be utilised for the payment of taxes and towards repairs. The remaining 3/4th of the income should be spent for Subramanya deity at Kamatchi Amman temple during Poosam festivals in the month of Thai. In the said will, it was stipulated that the testator's brother-in-law Pavadai Pathar and his son Vyapuri Pathar should collect the income from the suit property without having any right to sell or donate or gift and shall celebrate the Poosam festival in the month of Thai. It was further stipulated that after the death of Pavadai Pathar and his son Vyapuri Pathar, their descendant should perform the Poosam festival out of the income from the suit house. The plaintiff is the wife of Vyapuri Pathar. Pavadai Pathar and Vyapuri Pathar died subsequently. Vyapuri Pathar and his wife, the plaintiff in the suit, have no issues. Now the plaintiff claims that as the descendant she is entitled to carry out the instructions as given in the aforesaid will. The point is whether the plaintiff can call herself as the descendant of her husband Vyapuri Pathar. The plaintiff was residing in the French territory at Pondicherry. According to the French Civil Code, Art.745 the term 'Descendant' has been explained in the following manner:

"745. Children or their descendants inherit the property of their father and mother, grandparents or other ancestors, without distinction of sex or right of primogeniture, even if they are the issues of different marriages. They inherit equally or per capita when they are all related in the first degree to the deceased and entitled in their own right; they succeed per stripes when all or some of them inherit by representation."

Therefore, according to the abovesaid definition of the term 'descendant' as contained in Art.745 of the French Civil Code a wife cannot claim herself as the descendant of her deceased husband. Further, this Court while considering the meaning of the word 'Descendant' in the decision reported in Sundaram Iyer. v. Sarojini, (1984)1 M.L.J. 255, wherein it has been held as under:

"From the abovesaid decisions it is clear that "Hairs" (Varsu) would mean both males and females who are entitled to the property of another under the law of inheritance. Another term used in the trust deed which requires to be considered is the word 'santhathi'. In the Tamil Lexicon, published under the authority of the University of Madras, Vol.3 Part I 1928 Edition at page 1262 the word "santhathi" is given the following meaning:

"Santhathi" descendant, heir son, lineage pendigrsa". It is clear from the decision of the Orissa High Court in Indramani Devi v. Raghunath Bhanja Birbar Jagadeb, A.I.R. 1961 Ori. 9, that according to Mistakshara of Vignaneswara, the word 'Santhathi' would mean only male issues. Further even though the expression 'Santhathi' according to the dictionary meaning connotes all classes of issues or heirs, whether male or female, yet in a particular context they may be restricted to male heirs only."

In view of the abovesaid decision of this Court and on a plain reading of Art.745 of the French Civil Code, it remains to be seen that the plaintiff in the present suit cannot call herself as the descendant of her husband. If that is so, she would not have any right as contemplated under the Will dated 1.1.1913 either to collect the rental income from the suit property or to perform the Tahi Poosam festival as claimed by her. In such circumstances, when the plaintiff has got no right to collect the rental income and to perform the Poosam festival as per the Will dated 1.1.1913, we need not delve into this matter any further. In fact, the suit was filed by the plaintiff for a declaration to declare her right to perform the festival and for collecting the rental income. Since the plaintiff failed to establish her right to collect the rental income and to perform the festival as per the Will dated 1.1.1913, the suit is liable to be dismissed. The first appellate court further went into the matter and observed that the first defendant is entitled to collect the rental income from the suit property and perform the festival. The observation made by the first appellate court is not only incorrect but also out of context. The question, viz. after Vyapuri Pathar who will perform the Poosam festival and collect the rent is altogether a different matter which has got to be agitated in a separate forum. In the present proceedings, this Court cannot give any direction in that regard. In that view of the matter, the conclusions arrived at by the first appellate court are confirmed and the second appeal is dismissed.

10. In the result, the judgment and decree of the first appellate court are confirmed and this second appeal is dismissed. However, there will be no order as to costs.

V.K.

Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Lakshmanan, J.

W.M.P.No.11880 of 1992 in W.P.No.8211 of 1992
14th July, 1992.

A.M.Jain College by Honorary Secretary, Madras
...Petitioner

v.

Government of Tamil Nadu and another

...Respondents.

(A) Constitution of India (1950), Art.30(1) - Minority institution - Admission of students from minority communities to - Resolution of State Government Order directing the institution to make available not less than 30% of annual permitted strength in each branch - Faculty to other condition - If valid - Supreme Court's direction that minority institutions shall make available atleast 50% of annual admission to members of communities other than the minority community - Interpretation.

(B) Constitution of India (1950), Arts.29(2) and 30(1) - Minority institution giving preference to the religious minority candidate in their own institution - If amounts to discrimination and violative of Art.29(2).

The petitioner A.M.Jain College was founded in 1952 and was primarily meant for the benefit of the young men of the Jain community, but it is open to young men of all communities. The institution has been declared a minority institution. As the Jain community is essentially engaged the trading business and industry, education in commerce and business related subjects were taught to the Jain students. In 1992, 124 Jain students were admitted to B.Com., (evening college) as against the capacity of 150. Similarly, the day college provisional admission cards were issued to 103 Jain students-Jain students were given preference in B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) courses. The Supreme Court in St. Stephen's College v. The University of Delhi, (1992)1 S.C.C. 558: (1991)2 Scale 1217, directed that the minority institution shall make available at least 50% of annual admissions to members of communities other than the minority community. After referring to the above decision the State Government issued G.O.Ms.No.561, Education, dated 15.6.1992 directing that the intake of candidates of minority communities should not exceed 50% of the annual permitted strength in each Branch/Faculty and that the minority educational institutions shall make available not less than 50% of the annual permitted strength in each Branch/Faculty to the members of the community other than the minority community. The petitioner challenged the order on behalf of the State, it was contended that the 50% directed by the Supreme Court indicated only 50% of seats in every Branch/Faculty and that the institutional preference for admission based on religious was violative of Art.29(2) of the Constitution of India.

Held: The Supreme Court states that the State may regulate the intake of students from the minority community with due regard to the need of the community in the area which the institution intended to serve. The petitioner college is undoubtedly intend to serve the Jain community in Madras, Tamil Nadu. The Jain students in Madras generally and basically join B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) course and not in other courses. The impugned G.O. restricting intake of minority community students to 50% in each Branch/Faculty affects the Jain community students in B.Com and B.A. (Corporate) courses also. This will very adversely affect the Jain community people in Madras, which the petitioner college intend to serve, and this also violates the law and the judgment of the Supreme Court. It will also violate Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. The impugned G.O. is trying to stretch the Supreme Court judgment beyond its scope and intends and lays down fresh rule which interferes with the right guaranteed under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. The language used by the Apex Court should be interpreted by to reason that 50% of the total number of seats in the annual admission of the institution should made available to students of other communities and not 50% in each Branch/Faculty as directed by the State Government in the impugned G.O. [Paras 12 and 16]

Any preference given to the religious minority candidate in their own institution cannot be a discrimination falling under Art.29(2) of the Constitution of India. The institution in answer is established for the transit of the Jain community and if they are prevented from admitting their own community candidate, the very purpose of establishing the institution would be defeated. Minority institutions are entitled to admit their candidates by preference or by reservation. They are also entitled to admit them to the exclusion of all others and that right, flows from the right to establish and administer the educational institutions guaranteed under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. The State can lay down reasonable conditions for obtaining and for admission of students in their institutions but the State has no right to compel the minority institutions to give up their right under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. [Para 13]

Case referred to:

St. Stephen's College v. The University of Delhi, (1992)1 S.C.C. 558: (1991)2 Scale 1217. [Paras 6, 15, 18]
R. Krishnamurthi, Senior Advocate, for M/s. Surana and Surana, for Petitioner.

P. Shanmugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The main writ petition has been filed by the petitioner college through its Honourary Secretary for the following relief: To issue a writ of certiorari or any other appropriate writ, order or direction, calling for the records from the 1st respondent in G.O.Ms.No.561, Education, dated 15.6.1992, conveyed to the petitioner in the proceedings of the 2nd respondent in Rc.No.25393/Ha.8/92 dated 17.6.1992 and quash the same.

2. The writ petition was admitted by this Court on 26.6.1992 and notice was ordered to the respondents on the same date in W.M.P.No.11880 of 1992. The prayer in W.M.P.No.11880 of 1992 is as follows: To stay the operation of the impugned

G.O.Ms.No.561, Education, dated 15.6.1992 in so far as it relates to B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) courses for Jain students in the petitioner college pending disposal of the writ petition.

3. The petitioner college is registered under the Societies Registration Act. It was founded in the year 1952 and primarily meant for the benefit of the young men of the Jain Community, but is open to the young men of the Jain Community, but is open to the young men of all communities. In W.P.No.1149 of 1975, this Court has held that Sri S.S.Jain Educational Society, which is conducting the petitioner college, is a minority institution within the meaning of Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. By G.O.Ms.No.549, dated 6.4.1988, Education Department of the Government of Tamil Nadu, the petitioner college has been declared as a minority institution on the basis of the order of this Court in W.P.No.1149 of 1975, and that the privileges provided in the Tamil Nadu College (Regulation) Act, 1967, and the rules framed thereunder are allowed to the petitioner college.

4. It is also an admitted fact that the Jain community in Madras, Tamil Nadu, is a religious and linguistic minority and is a educationally backward community. Basically, it is a community engaged in trading, business and industry. From the beginning of the college, education in commerce and business related subjects were taught to the Jain students with a view to encourage them to undergo college education at least in commerce and business related subjects, since the Jain Community in Madras is basically engaged in trading, commerce and industry. The petitioner college was one of the very few colleges from the beginning which had the B.Com. course. The object was to encourage Jain students, who were otherwise reluctant to undergo college education due to the general educational backward character of the community, to undergo B.Com. course which will be useful for their business career.

5. In the year 1992, admission, 124 Jain students have already been admitted to B.Com., (Evening College) as against the capacity of 150 seats. Similarly, the Day College also for the year 1992, more number of Jain students have applied than the seats available and the Principal was instructed to issue provisional admission cards to 103 Jain students. It is also stated that the non-Jain students are not totally denied admission in B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) courses and they do get admitted on merit in B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) courses. But, Jain students are given preference to meet the specific and peculiar need of the Jain community students.

6. While so, the petitioner received from the office of the 2nd respondent Proceedings Rc.No.25393/ Ha.8/92, dated 17.6.1992 enclosing therewith a copy of G.O.Ms.No.561, Education, dated 15.6.1992 for necessary action. G.O.Ms.No.561, Education, dated 15.6.1992, referred to the judgment of the Supreme Court dated 6.12.1991 in St. Stephen's College v. The University of Delhi, (1991) 2 Scale 1217: (1992) 1 S.C.C. 558. It is pertinent to extract or reproduce the relevant portion in that judgment.

"The Minority Aided Educational institutes are entitled to prefer their community candidates to maintain the minority character of the institution, subject, of course, to conformity with the University standard. The State may regulate the intake in this category with due regard to the need of the community in the area which the institutions is intended to serve. But, in any case, such intake shall not exceed 50% of the annual admission. The minority institution shall make available atleast 50% of annual admissions to members of communities other than the minority community. The admission of other community candidates shall be done purely on the basis of merit."

7. After referring to the Supreme Court judgment, the impugned G.O. directs as follows:

"(i) The minority aided colleges are permitted to admit their community candidates subject to the conditions that in case such intake shall exceed 50% of the annual permitted strength in each Branch/Faculty; and

(ii) The aided minority educational institutions shall make available not less than 50% of the annual permitted strength in each Branch/Faculty to the members of the community other than the minority community and such admissions shall be done purely on the basis of merit subject to the rules of reservation of the Government in force."

The impugned G.O. further states that it comes into force with effect from the academic year 1992-93. The said G.O. is challenged in the main writ petition.

8. I have heard Mr.R.Krishnamurthi, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner, as instructed by Mr. Surana, Advocate, and Mr. P. Shanmugham, learned Additional Government Pleader, for the respondents.

9. Mr. R. Krishnamurthy, learned Senior Advocate states, that the decision dated 6.12.1991 of the Supreme Court of India in the case of St. Stephen's College v. The University of Delhi, only states that (1) That State may regulate the intake of students of the minority community with due regard to the community in the area which the institution is intended to serve; and (2) This intake shall not exceed 50% of the annual admission. The balance of 50% of the annual admission should be made available to the members of the communities other than the minority community. He further submits that more than 50% of the total number of seats in the petitioner college every year (annual admission) are allowed to non-Jains and that the petitioner college is prepared to abide and is abiding by the decision of the Supreme Court of India, which stipulates that the intake of the students belonging to the minority community shall not exceed 50% of the annual admission. Mr. R. Krishnamurthy also submits that the Supreme Court only refers to 50% of the annual admission (total) and that annual admission can only mean that total annual admission in all the courses in the college put together and does not refer to each Branch/Faculty/Course offered by the college. According to him, however, the impugned G.O. directs that 50% of the admission for each branch/faculty should be from the members of the other communities. It also restricts admission of Jain students in each branch/faculty to 50% and that such a restriction is beyond the scope of the Supreme Court judgment and as such ultra vires.

10. It is useful to refer to the decision of the Supreme Court in this context. The Supreme Court says, the minority aided educational institutions are entitled to prefer their community candidates to maintain the minority character of the institutions, subject, of course, the conformity with the University standard. It further states that the State may regulate the intake in this category with due regard to the need of the community in the area which the institution is intended to serve. But, in no case, such intake shall exceed 50% of the annual admission. The minority institutions shall make available at least 50% of the annual admission to members of communities other than the minority community and that the admission of other community candidates shall be done purely on the basis of merit.

11. Mr. P. Shanmugham, learned Additional Government Pleader reiterates the points raised by the 2nd respondent/Director of Collegiate Education, in his counter affidavit. According to Mr. P. Shanmugham, the petitioner is mis-interpreting the judgment of the Supreme Court and if the contention of the petitioner is conceded, the spirit of the judgment will be lost. Strong reliance was placed on paragraph 78 of the judgment of the Supreme Court in St. Stephens College case. He also placed reliance on paragraph 81 of the said judgment. Referring to paragraphs 78 and 81 of the judgment, Mr. P. Shanmugham submitted that segregated faculties or universities for imparting general secular education are undesirable and that they may undermine secular democracy, which would be inconsistent with the central concept of secular and equality embedded in the Constitution.

12. I am of the prima facie view that the interpretation now made by the State Government of the Supreme Court judgment in St. Stephens College case is not proper and appropriate. However, it is a matter for decision ultimately in the main writ petition. The Supreme Court states that the State may regulate the intake of students from the minority community with due regard to the need of the community in the area which the institution intended to serve. The petitioner college, in my view, is undoubtedly intended to serve the Jain community in Madras, Tamil Nadu. As already stated, the Jain students in Madras generally and basically join B.Com. and B.A. (Corporate) course and not in other courses. The impugned G.O. restricting intake of minority community students to 50% in each Branch/Faculty affects the Jain community students in B.Com and B.A. (Corporate) courses also. This will very adversely affect the Jain community people in Madras, which the petitioner college intend to serve, and this also violates the law and the judgment of the Supreme Court. It will also violate Art. 30(1) of the Constitution of India. In my opinion, the impugned G.O. is trying to stretch the Supreme Court judgment beyond its scope and intends and lays down fresh rule which interfere with the right guaranteed under Art. 30(1) of the Constitution of India.

13. In the concluding part of his argument

Mr.P.Shanmugham submits that the institutional preference for admission based on religion is violative of Art.29(2) of the Constitution of India. He further submits that the petitioner college shall not prefer or deny admission to candidates on grounds of religion. Any preference given to the religious minority candidate in their own institution, in my view, cannot be a discrimination falling under Art.29(2) of the Constitution of India. The institution in question is established for the benefit of the Jain community and if they are prevented from admitting their own community candidates, the very purpose of establishing the institution would be defeated. In my view, minority institutions are entitled to admit their candidates by preference or by reservation. They are also entitled to admit them to the exclusion of all others, and that right, in my view, flows from administer the educational institutions guaranteed under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. In my view, the State can lay down reasonable conditions for obtaining and for admission of students in their institutions but the State has no right to compel the minority institutions to give up their right under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India.

14. Admittedly, the institution is a minority institution, which is entitled to protection under Art.30(1) of the Constitution of India. Of the 14 courses/faculties offered by the institution, the students from Jain community, for whose benefit the institution was originally founded, seek admission only to B.Com., and B.A. (Corporate) courses. Therefore, when the students of the minority community seek admission to a particular course, it will not be fair on the part of the State Government to compel the management to admit them in some other course, having in mind the fact that the institution is for their benefit and development.

15. Even the Apex Court in paragraph 102 of the judgment St.Stephen's College v. The University of Delhi, (1992)1 S.C.C. 558: (1991)2 Scale 1217, has observed as follows:

"In the light of all these principles and factors, and in view of the importance which the Constitution attaches to protective measures to minorities under Art.30(1), the minority aided educational institutions are entitled to prefer their community candidates to maintain the minority character of the institutions subject of course to conformity with the University standard. The State may regulate the intake in this category with due regard to the need of the community in the area which the institution is intended to serve. But in no case such intake shall exceed 50 per cent of the annual admission. The minority institutions shall make available at least 50 per cent of the annual admission to members of communities other than the minority community. The admission of other community candidates shall be done purely on the basis of merit." [Italicised is mine]

16. The language used by the Apex Court, in my considered opinion, should be interpreted by to reason that 50% of the total number of seats in the annual admission of the institution should be made available to students of other communities and not 50% in each Branch/Faculty as directed by the State Government in the impugned G.O.

17. It is also seen that applications have been received in large number from the students of the minority community only for B.Com., and B.A. (Corporate) courses. It is also stated that admission cards have already been issued to the minority students. Therefore, at this juncture, it would be unfair and unjust to unsettle the process of admission adopted by the management all these years.

18. It is also pertinent to note that the petitioner has sought stay of the impugned G.O. in so far as it relates to B.Com., and B.A. (Corporate) courses alone. Hence, all the other courses are available for students of other communities. Hence, I feel that the management has made out a prima facie case for grant of stay. The balance of convenience is also in favour of the management. Hence, there shall be a stay of the operation of the impugned G.O.Ms.No.561, Education, dated 15.6.1992, in so far as it relates to B.Com., and B.A. (Corporate) courses for the Jain students of the petitioner college. However, the petitioner management is directed to consider the applications of the students from other communities for filling up the seats in B.Com., and B.A. (Corporate) courses, which are available after admitting the Jain community students, who have applied prior to the passing of the impugned G.O. It is made clear that the stay granted above is with reference to the petitioner college alone. The Supreme Court in St.Stephen's College v. The University of Delhi, (1992)1 S.C.C. 558: (1991)2 Scale 1217, while issuing rule nisi in the writ petition by St.Stephen's College, had stayed the operation of the impugned Circular in that case and permitted the college to continue to follow its own admission policy, modality and schedule in the succeeding years - vide para 11 of the judgment of the Supreme Court. Hence, I feel justified in staying the impugned G.O. in the instant case, as prayed for.

19. For the fore-going reasons, there will be stay of the impugned G.O., as indicated above.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Venkataswami, J.

C.R.P.No.3376 of 1989 21st September, 1992.

J.Ramamurthy ...Petitioner
v.

M/s.Endas by Partner Moorjimal and others
...Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Secs.14(1)(b) and 19 - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.11 - Petition filed under Sec.14(1)(b) dismissed as not maintainable - Findings given on merits also - Finding if operates as res judicata or as bar under Sec.19.

The landlord's earlier petition for eviction under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act was dismissed on the ground that he was only a life estate holder and that his claim was not bona fide. After the decision of the Supreme Court in S.M.Gopala Krishna Chetty v. Ganeshan, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1750, holding that a life estate holder could also file an eviction petition, the petitioner filed another petition for eviction under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act. It was allowed by the Rent Controller but that order was set aside by the appellate authority on the ground that the petition was barred under Sec.19 of the Act. In revision, Held: A perusal of the judgments in Shankaralal Patwari v. Hiralal Murarka, A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 80, M.Govindarajulu v. M.Jayaraman, (1976)1 M.L.J.

406 and M/s.Associated Traders v. T.M.A.Abdul Hameed, (1983)2 M.L.J. 583, will clearly support the contention that when the dismissal of the earlier petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act was mainly on the ground that it was not maintainable any findings given on merits in that case will not operate as res judicata or as a bar under Sec.19 of the Act. [Para 14]

Cases referred to:

S.M.Gopala Krishna Chetty v. Ganeshan, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1750. [Para 7]

Shankaralal Patwari v. Hiralal Murarka, A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 80. [Para 7]

M.Govindarajulu v. M.Jayaraman, (1976)1 M.L.J. 406. [Paras 7, 13]

M/s.Associated Traders v. T.M.A.Abdul Hameed, (1983)2 M.L.J. 583. [Paras 7, 13]

S.Balasubramaniam v. Gulab Jan, 94 L.W.102. [Para 7]

B.Paras Devi v. M/s.Vijaya Auto Parts, 100 L.W. 319. [Para 7]

M/s.Variety Emporium v. R.M.Mohd. Ibrahim, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 207. [Para 7]

Gulabbai v. Nalim Nersi Yohra, (1991)3 S.C.C. 483. [Para 7]

K.A.Vadivelu v. R.Govindarajulu, (1992)1 L.W. 190. [Para 7]

Official Trustee v. S.N.Chatterjee, (1969)3 S.C.R. 92; (1969)2 S.C.J. 123; A.I.R. 1969 S.C. 823. [Para 14]

B.Yamuna Bai v. N.Ramaswamy, (1977)1 M.L.J. 223. [Paras 8, 14]

M/s.P.Orr. & Sons (P) Ltd. v. M/s.Associated Publishers, (1990)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 12; (1990)2 L.W.547. [Para 15]

K.Sarvabhauman, Senior Counsel for M.S.Krishnan and S.Parthasarathi, for Petitioner.

S.V.Jayaraman, for S.K.Narayanan, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- This revision petition, preferred by the landlord in rent control proceedings, is directed against a common judgment of the Appellate Authority in R.C.A.No.404, etc. of 1987, dated 17.8.1989.

2. The petitioner filed R.C.O.P.No.5140 of 1983 under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1960 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') against 12 tenants occupying different portions of the premises belonging to the landlord. When that R.C.O.P. was allowed in favour of the landlord, the tenants preferred different individual R.C.As. to the Appellate Authority. Hence there were number of Appeals before the Appellate Authority. Further, in addition to the petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act, the landlord also filed additional eviction petitions against some of the tenants under other provisions. But here we are not concerned with those. We are concerned now only with the case relating to eviction petition filed under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act.

3. It is the case of the landlord that the premises in the occupation of various tenants was in a dilapidated condition requiring demolition. He has means to demolish and reconstruct the same. According to the petitioner, the petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act was bona fide and he has undertaken to demolish and commence reconstruction within the period allowed by the Statute.

4. The tenants resisted the eviction petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act contending inter alia that the petition was not bona fide, that the building was not in a dilapidated condition as claimed by the landlord, and that a similar petition (R.C.O.P.No.479 of 1972) filed by the landlord having ended in dismissal, the present petition for eviction is barred under Sec.19 of the Act.

5. Before the Rent Controller, the petitioner (landlord) examined himself as P.W.1 and an engineer was examined as P.W.2, and two other witnesses were examined on the side of the petitioner as P.W.3 and 4 to support his case. The petitioner filed as many as 47 documents which were marked as Exs.P-1 to P-47. On the side of the tenants, eight witnesses were examined. Of them, except R.W.7 and R.W.8, an Engineer, the others, namely, R.Ws.1 to 6 were tenants. On the side of the respondents (tenants) Exs.R-1 to R-17 were marked. Exs.C-1 to C-5 were marked as Court exhibits.

6. The Rent Controller, on the basis of the pleadings, evidence both oral and documentary and the arguments advanced before him, found that the building was in a dilapidated condition requiring immediate demolition, that the claim for demolition was bona fide, that the petitioner has got sufficient means to demolish and reconstruct, that the petition was not barred under Sec.19 of the Act. Consequent to these findings, the Rent Controller ordered eviction. Aggrieved by that, as mentioned above, the tenants preferred independent appeals, and the Appellate Authority, on a reappreciation of evidence, came to a different conclusion and found that though the building was in a bad condition, the claim was not bona fide, and the petition was barred under Sec.19 of the Act. However, he found that the petitioner has got means to demolish and reconstruct. Ultimately, the Appellate Authority allowed the appeals preferred by the tenants against the order of eviction. Aggrieved by the judgment of the Appellate Authority dismissing the eviction petitions and allowing the tenant's appeals, the landlord has filed this revision petition.

7. Mr.K.Sarvabhauman, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner/landlord, took me through the order of the Rent Controller and the common judgment of the Appellate Authority. According to the learned Senior Counsel, the judgment of the Appellate Authority dismissing the eviction petition is unsustainable both on facts and on law. According to him, the Appellate Authority, having found that the building is in a bad condition, erred in dismissing the eviction petition on the ground that the claim was no bona fide and the petition for eviction was barred under Sec.19 of the Act. Learned Senior Counsel contended that the reasons given by the Appellate Authority for reaching the above two conclusions are totally unsustainable. According to the learned Senior Counsel, the principle of res judicata or the bar under Sec.19 of the Act cannot be pressed into service to the facts of this case. Because, the previous eviction petition, namely R.C.O.P.No.479 of 1972, filed under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act was dismissed by the Rent Controller on the ground that the eviction petition was not maintainable under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act at the instance of a life-estate holder. Having held so, the Rent Controller ought not to have gone into the other issue, namely, whether the claim was bona fide or not. According to the learned counsel, any findings given on merits after having found that the petition was not maintainable will not be of any consequence and cannot stand in the way of the landlord filing a fresh eviction petition. No doubt, the order of the Rent Controller was confirmed on appeal by the Appellate Authority and further by this Court is revision. It is only after the Supreme Court has declared the law in S.M.Gopala Krishna Chetty v. Ganeshan, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1750, holding the life-estate holder can also file eviction petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act, the petitioner has filed the present petition for eviction under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act and, therefore, the judgment of the Appellate Authority holding that the decision given in the earlier eviction petition regarding bona fides will operate as res judicata is not sustainable. In support of that, he cited the following decisions: Shankaralal Panwari v. Hiralal Murarka and others, A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 80, M.Govindarajulu v. M.Jayaraman, (1976)1 M.L.J. 406 and M/s.Associated Traders v. T.M.A.Abdul Hameed, (1983)2 M.L.J. 583. He also submitted that apart from holding that the finding regarding bona fides rendered in the earlier eviction petition will operate as res judicata, the Appellate Authority, in the present case, has found that the sanction for demolition and reconstruction was obtained subsequent to the filing of the R.C.O.P. and therefore the claim was not bona fide. This reasoning is not against sustainable in view of several decisions of this Court, namely S.Balasubramaniam v. Gulab Jan, 94 L.W.102, B.Paras Devi v. M/s.Vijaya Auto Parts by its Proprietor M.Gulapchand, Madras, 100 L.W. 319 and K.A.Vadivelu v. R.Govindarajulu, (1992)1 L.W. 190. Finally, he brought to my notice certain subsequent events which will have some relevance to decide the issue regarding the condition of the building in this case. It is stated that some of the tenants have filed R.C.O.Ps. for direction to the landlord to carry out repairs to the respective portions in their occupation. In that proceedings, the Court seems to have appointed a civil engineer as Commissioner and has filed a report which would show that presently the building is in a dangerous condition and it is likely to crumble at any time, and repairs cannot be carried out and the only solution is demolition. Learned counsel also placed reliance on a notice issued by the Corporation on 27.6.1986 under Sec.258 of the Madras City Municipal Corporation Act, 1991 bringing to the notice of the landlord about the dangerous condition of the building and calling upon him to take necessary steps to prevent the danger. In support of his contention that the subsequent events can be relied upon, learned counsel placed reliance on two judgments of the Supreme Court, namely, M/s.Variety Emporium v. R.M.Mohd. Ibrahim, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 207 and Gulabbai v. Nalim Nersi Yohra and others, (1991)3 S.C.C. 483.

8. Mr.S.V.Jayaraman learned counsel appearing for the tenants, in his usual fairness, has submitted that as regards the condition of the building, in the light of the findings and the evidence available, he cannot possibly contend contra. However, he strongly pressed into service two arguments, namely, that there were no bona fides in the claim of the landlord, and that the petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act is barred under Sec.19 of the Act. In support of his argument that the present petition for eviction is barred under Sec.19 of the Act, he placed reliance on a judgment of this Court in B.Yamuna Bai v. N.Ramaswamy, (1977)1 M.L.J. 223.

9. I have considered the rival submissions.

10. From the recent report of the Civil Engineer (Ex.C-5) who was appointed a Commissioner by the Rent Controller, it is quite clear that the building is in a dangerous condition requiring immediate demolition. The conclusion in the report Ex.C-5 reads as follows:

"1. Entire superstructure of the said portion already collapsed 1 year ago to the best of my opinion.

2. Madras terraced portion both the ground first floor are completely collapsed and dumped at site excepting main door.

3. The flooring both ground and first floor are also the same like above which cannot be used for business or any other purpose on account of the dilapidated condition. At any time, the entire building may collapse, or one part may collapse and the other part may collapse some time later.

4. I certify that the whole building is in a dilapidated condition and cannot be repaired or altered under any circumstances, excepting demolishing the whole building for reconstruction with all modern type of amenities as required to a non-residential accommodation in a civilized city like Madras."

11. In the light of the above Report, the notice issued by the Corporation of Madras under Sec.258 of the Madras City Municipal Corporation Act, 1919 also gives an idea about the condition of the building presumably, realising this, Mr.S.V.Jayaraman, learned counsel appearing for the tenants, has not seriously attacked the condition of the building.

12. The other two points that were urged by the learned counsel for the respondents have to be considered now.

13. Let me first consider the position whether the present eviction petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act is barred either on the principle of res judicata or under Sec.18 of the Act.

14. In Shankarlal Patwari v. Hiralal Murarka, A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 80, Head-note 'a' reads as follows:

"Court holding that suit is not maintainable by reason of failure to comply with Sec.80 - Findings given on merits are obiter and do not support plea or res judicata either in favour of or against party."

In M.Govindarajulu v. M.Jayaraman, (1976)1 M.L.J. 406, Gokulakrishnan, J., as he then was, while considering a similar question, has found as follows:

"There is no difficulty in accepting the said contention. But it is for the Court to find out as to whether the finding given by the Court on issues which are not necessary to dispose of the suit is an observation without the seal of finding or is ab initio void as per the provisions of the particular enactment. Sec.10(4) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1960 states:

"No order for eviction shall be passed under Sub-sec.(3)-(i) against any tenant who is engaged in any employment or class of employment not filed by the Government as essential service for the purpose of this subsection unless the landlord is himself engaged in any employment or class of employment which has been so notified."

The prior eviction proceeding was dismissed because of this provision in Sec.10(4). Subsequently, the landlord obtained exemption, as far as this section is concerned, from the Government under Sec.29 of the Act. After obtaining exemption, the landlord has filed the present eviction petition. It is unnecessary for the Rent Controller's Court, which decided the prior proceeding, to go into the question of bona fides in as much as Sec.10(4) specifically states that no order for eviction shall be passed in such cases. When there is such a mandatory direction prohibiting the court to pass any eviction order against that person who comes squarely under Sec.10(4)(i) of the Act, the finding on others issues regarding the bona fides must be construed as ab initio void. In cases wherein want of notice was raised and the same was decided as one of the issues along with other issues, there is no prohibition to go into such issues along with the question of want of notice. In those circumstances, the cases cited by Mr. Viswanatha Rao, held that the findings which went against a party concerned, even though he succeeded on the question of notice or lost on the question of notice will constitute a bar for the subsequent proceedings on the same issues. In as much as the present finding in the prior proceedings has to be construed as ab initio void in view of Sec.10(4)(i) of the Act. I am of the view that Sec.19 is not a bar for the present proceedings. Further, in Official Trustee v. S.N.Chatterjee, (1969)2 S.C.J. 123: (1969)3 S.C.R. 92: A.I.R. 1969 S.C. 823, the Supreme Court has held:

"It is clear that before a court can be held to have jurisdiction to decide a particular matter it must not only have jurisdiction to try the suit brought but must also have the authority to pass the orders sought for. It is not sufficient that it has some jurisdiction in relation to the subject-matter of the suit. Its jurisdiction must include the power to hear and decide the question at issue, the authority to hear and decide the particular controversy that has arisen between the parties."

Thus, it is clear from the abovesaid decision that the Rent Control Court in the prior proceeding should not have decided the other issues in view of the clear prohibition contained in Sec.10(4)(i) of the Act.

In those circumstances, the civil revision petition is dismissed and the order of eviction passed by the Courts below is confirmed. There will be no order as to costs. Time to vacate two months." [paragraphs 10 & 11]

In M/s.Associated Traders v. T.M.A.Abdul Hameed, (1983)2 M.L.J. 583, a Division Bench of this Court, while considering a question whether a petition filed under Sec.10(3)(c) will operate as res judicata when an application was subsequently filed under Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) of the Act, held that 'any decision given by the Rent Controller on an application for eviction filed under Sec.10(3)(c) cannot therefore operate as a bar under Sec.19 to an application for eviction filed under Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) of the Act'. The Division Bench further held as follows:

"The question whether the hardship that might be caused to a tenant by granting an order of eviction will outweigh the advantage to landlord will arise only in dealing with an application under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act filed by the landlord for additional accommodation. When the application by the landlord is itself dismissed as not maintainable, the Appellate Authority had no jurisdiction to give any finding as to whether the hardship that might be caused to the tenant by granting the application would outweigh the advantage to the landlord. In the circumstances, we are of the opinion that the finding that was given by the appellate authority and heavily relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioners was obliter. Similarly, when once the appellate authority had come to the conclusion that the application for eviction of the revision petitioners was not maintainable under Sec.10(3)(c) of the Act in as much as the respondent was not carrying on any business in any portion of the building, the appellate authority was equally not competent to go into the question whether the respondent needed the premises for the purpose of the business which he was carrying on. We are therefore of the view that the present petition for eviction filed under Sec.10(3)(a)(iii) of the Act is not barred by Sec.19 of the Act by the principle of res judicata enacted in the section....." A perusal of the above judgments will clearly support the contention that when the dismissal of the earlier petition under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act was mainly on the ground that it was not maintainable, any findings given on merits in that case will not operate as res judicata or as a bar under Sec.19 of the Act. The decision relied on by the learned counsel for the respondent, namely B.Yamuna Bai v. N.Ramaswamy, (1977)1 M.L.J. 223, is not apposite, and, as a matter of fact, the very same decision was relied on before the Division Bench that rendered the decision reported in M/s.Associated Traders v. T.M.A Abdul Hameed, (1983)2 M.L.J. 583 and the Division Bench has distinguished the same. Therefore, I do not think that the decision reported in B.Yamuna Bai v. N.Ramaswamy, (1977)1 M.L.J. 223, will apply to the facts of this case. In the circumstances, I hold that the learned Rent Controller was right in holding that the earlier dismissal of the application under Sec.14(1)(c) of the Act will not operate either as res judicata or as a bar under Sec.19 of the Act.

15. A con tion u also f tion an accords regards the question of bona fides. the no bonafide was that apart from filing an application was to edge Sec.14 plaintiffs at any cost. I do not consider that the contention can be accepted having regard to the condition of the building. In M/s.P.Orr. & Sons (P) Ltd. v. M/s.Associated Publishers (Madras) Ltd., (1990)2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 12: (1990)2 L.W.547, the Supreme Court, on the scope of Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act has held as follows:

“We accordingly hold that Sec. 14(1)(b) is satisfied only if the building is bona fide required by the landlord for the “immediate”, i.e., direct, sole and timely purpose of demolishing it with a view to erecting a new building on the site of the existing building. Various circumstances such as the capacity of the landlord, the size of the existing building, the demand for additional, space, the condition of the place, the economic advantage and other factors justifying investment of capital on reconstruction may be taken into account by the concerned authority in considering an application for recovery; but the essential and overriding consideration which, in the general interests of the public and for the protection of the tenants from unreasonable eviction, the legislature has in mind is the condition of the building that demands timely demolition by reason of the extent of damage to its structure making it uneconomical or unsafe to undertake repairs. While the condition of the building by itself may not necessarily establish the bona fide requirement under C1(b), that condition is not only one of the various circumstances which may be taken into account by the Controller, but it is the essential condition in the absence of landlord to prove that he has a bona fide requirement which is timely, directly and solely for the purpose of demolition of the building. The Act does not accept the requirement by the landlord as a bona fide requirement within the meaning of the provision unless the condition of the building, in the context of the relevant circumstances, requires demolition. These are matters which are to be proved by evidence.”

... no ...
... not be ...
... earlier ...
... dismissed. It ...
The ...
may be noted that both the ...
have found concurrently about the solvency of the ... petitioner to demolish and reconstruct.

16. For all these reasons, I hold that the judgment of the Appellate Authority cannot be sustained on both on law and on facts. Accordingly, the same is set aside, and the order of the Rent Controller on the application under Sec.14(1)(b) of the Act is restored. The civil revision petition is allowed. However, there will be no order as to costs.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Ramnam, J.

C.R.P.No.1411 of 1992 21st August, 1992.

M/s.Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited
...Petitioner

v.
M/s.Karthikeyan Agencies represented by its Partners ...Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), O.8, Rules 10, 6, 9 and 9(2) - Civil Rules of Practice, Rule 32 - Suit instituted against four persons initially - Petitioner added as fifth defendant - Not filing any written statement in spite of grant of time - Set ex parte - Suit dismissed for default against all the defendants - Plaintiff filing application for restoration of suit - Petitioner not made party - Suit restored - Ex parte decree passed against the defendants 1 to 4 and also the petitioner - Sustainability.

The respondent instituted a suit O.S.No.143 of 1977 for declaration and for permanent injunction. Defendants 1 to 4 were originally the defendants. On 16.6.1978, it was brought to the notice of the court that the first defendant stood amalgamated with Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited the petitioner herein. The petitioner was impleaded as the fifth defendant. The petitioner did not file any written statement and he was set ex parte. The court did not pronounce judgment against the petitioner. The respondent filed an application to restore the suit. The petitioner was not made a party to it. The suit was restored. After several adjournments, on 16.11.1989, an ex parte decree was passed against the petitioner as well as the other defendants. The petitioner prayed that the ex parte decree passed against it on 16.11.1989, be set aside. It was dismissed and an appeal against that order was also dismissed. The correctness of the order was questioned in revision.

Held, apart from Rule 32 of the Civil Rules of Practice even under O.9, Rule 9(2), Code of Civil Procedure, notice of the application should be served on the opposite party. However, what had happened in this case is that one of the opposite parties, viz. the petitioner herein was not made a party at all, with the result that was no restoration. Whatever of the suit dismissed for default against the petitioner and the subsequent proceedings taken on the footing that the suit against the petitioner had also been restored and that the petitioner had remained ex parte which justified the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner, are not in order. In other words, it would follow that having regard to the dismissal of the suit against the petitioner on the earlier occasion and the failure on the part of the respondent to have it restored against the petitioner also, the trial court was in error in proceeding to deal with the suit as if the suit had been restored against the petitioner also and that for the absence of the petitioner on 16.11.1989, there was justification for the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner. Inasmuch as the view above taken, there was no restoration of the suit dismissed for default against the petitioner there was no question thereafter of the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner on 16.11.1989 as if the suit against the petitioner was pending on that date. Under those circumstances, the courts below fell into an error in dismissing the application filed by the petitioner for setting aside the ex parte decree.

[Para 3]

Case referred to:

Narayanaswamy v. Sundari, (1980) 1 M.L.J. 278. [Para 3]

Petition under Sec.115 of Act V of 1908 praying the High Court to revise the Order of the Court of Subordinate Judge, Sankari, dated 16.7.1991 and made in C.M.A.No.1 of 1991 (I.A.No.2372 of 1989 in O.S.No.867 of 1982, District Munsif's Court, Tiruchengode).

R.Krishnamurthy, for K.Kumar, for Petitioner.

S.Parthasarathy, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- This civil revision petition has been preferred by the fifth defendant in O.S.No.143 of 1977, Sub Court, Salem, later transferred to the District Munsif's Court, Tiruchengode and renumbered as O.S.No.867 of 1982, against the orders of the Courts below rejecting the application filed by the petitioner in I.A.No.2372 of 1989 in O.S.No.867 of 1982 praying that the ex parte decree passed against it on 16.11.1989 should be set aside and the petitioner permitted to contest the suit.

2. Briefly stated, the circumstances giving rise to this civil revision petition are as follows: On 15.3.1977, the respondent herein instituted O.S.No.143 of 1977, Sub Court, Salem (later O.S.No.867 of 1982, District Munsif's Court, Tiruchengode), praying for the relief of declaration that the respondent was a dealer in petroleum products and for a permanent injunction restraining defendants 1 to 4 in the suit from interfering with the carrying on of the business by the respondent. After service of summons on defendants 1 to 4 in the suit, written statements on behalf of defendants 1 and 2 were filed on 29.4.1977, which was adopted by the third defendant, while, on behalf of the fourth defendant also, a written statement was filed on 5.7.1977. By a memo filed on behalf of the first defendant in the suit on 16.6.1978, it was brought to the notice of the Court that the first defendant, viz., Caltex Oil Refining (India) Ltd., stood amalgamated with Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd., the petitioner herein, and the latter was the successor of the former and as such, the petitioner should be brought on record as a successor-in-interest of the first defendant in the suit, without prejudice to its right to defend the suit by continuing the defence already put forward. Consequent upon the memo so filed, on 31.7.1978, I.A.No.390 of 1978 in O.S.No.143 of 1977, Sub Court, Salem, was filed to implead the petitioner, viz., Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd., as the fifth defendant in the suit and by an order dated 16.11.1979, I.A.No.390 of 1978 was allowed and the petitioner was impleaded as the fifth defendant in the suit. Thereafter, the petitioner entered appearance through counsel and was directed on 17.7.1980 to file a statement by 25.8.1980 and subsequently, time for filing the written statement was extended upto 27.10.1980, by which time, the petitioner had not filed any written statement and that led to the petitioner being set ex parte. When the suit was called on 3.1.1981, it was dismissed for default against all the defendants in the suit on the counsel for the respondent herein reporting no instructions. The respondent, however, filed I.A.No.155 of 1981 in O.S.No.143 of 1977, Sub Court, Salem, which was later re-numbered as I.A.No.1993 of 1981 in O.S.No.867 of 1982, District Munsif's Court, Tiruchengode, for the restoration of the suit dismissed for default on 3.1.1981. To this application for restoration, the petitioner was not made a party and eventually, by an order dated 19.11.1982, I.A.No.1993 of 1981 was allowed and the suit was restored. Thereafter, after several adjournments, on 16.11.1989, an ex parte decree was passed against the petitioner as well as others. In I.A.No.2372 of 1989 in O.S.No.867 of 1982, the petitioner prayed that the ex parte decree passed against it on 16.11.1989 should be set aside. In the affidavit filed in support of that application, the petitioner, after referring to the posting of the suit on 7.11.1989 and its adjournment to 16.11.1989 and the filing of the application to set aside the ex parte order on that date, it was stated that the counsel for the respondent informed the counsel for the petitioner that he intended to file an application to amend the plaint and, therefore, counsel for the petitioner need not come to Tiruchengode and on 16.11.1989, a memo adopting the statement of the first defendant had been kept ready and further time was prayed for, but the request for time was turned down by dismissing the application filed in that regard and ex parte evidence was taken and the suit decreed ex parte on that date and that the petitioner should be given an opportunity to contest the suit, especially when the other defendants in the suit did not have any interest whatever. In the counter filed by the respondent, it was stated that nothing prevented the petitioner from appearing in Court on 16.11.1989 and the reasons given for setting aside the ex parte decree passed on 16.11.1989 were also not acceptable. The learned District Munsif, who heard this application, took the view that the reasons given by the petitioner for non-appearance in court on 16.11.1989 cannot be accepted and that the failure on the part of the petitioner to take steps to rescind the ex parte order passed against it on 27.10.1980 established that the petitioner was indifferent to the court proceedings and, therefore, the petitioner was not entitled to any indulgence. In the view so taken, the application was dismissed. Thereupon the petitioner preferred an appeal in C.M.A.No.1 of 1991 before the Sub Court, Sankari. The learned Subordinate Judge, after referring to the provision of O.9, Rule 13, Code of Civil Procedure, held that the grounds stated in the application filed by the petitioner were not acceptable and, therefore, the learned District Munsif was right in dismissing the application filed by the petitioner. Consequently upon that, the appeal was also dismissed, the correctness of which is questioned in this civil revision petition.

3. From the orders of the courts below, it is very clear that they have omitted to bestow attention on the state of affairs as revealed by the records and had come to an erroneous conclusion. After the petitioner was impleaded and time for the filing of the written statement had been granted to it on several occasions, it was undoubtedly the duty of the petitioner to have filed a written statement either within the original time granted or within the extended time. That, however, was not done. From the certified copy of the 'B' Diary, it is seen that on 27.10.1980, an entry had been made to the effect that "written statement of the fifth respondent (the petitioner herein) with the petition not filed and trial by 8.12.1980." To the situation that obtained on 27.10.1980, viz., the non-filing of the written statement by the petitioner despite adequate time having been granted to it, the provisions of O.8, Rule 10, Code of Civil Procedure became applicable and the Court did not proceed to pronounce judgment against the petitioner, but had merely posted the suit for trial to 8.12.1980. On 8.12.1980, since both the parties were not ready, the suit was adjourned to 3.1.1981, on which date, the respondent was absent and its counsel also reported no instructions and that led to the dismissal of the suit with costs of the defendants. The dismissal so made has necessarily to be regarded as one against the petitioner as well, especially when on 27.10.1980, the Court had not proceeded to pronounce judgment against the petitioner for its failure to file a written statement, but made only an order posting the suit for trial on

8.12.1980. Subsequently, the respondent, in I.A.No.1993 of 1981, sought for and obtained a restoration of the suit dismissed for default on 3.1.1981. To this application, the petitioner was not impleaded as a party at all and the restoration of the suit as thus limited to defendants 1 to 4 in the suit and the suit had been restored by the order passed on 19.11.1982. At best, this restoration could be considered to be valid and effective only in so far as defendants 1 to 4 in the suit are concerned and not against the petitioner, as the dismissal of the suit against it had not been set aside at all. In this state of affairs, it is surprising that the trial court thereafter had posted the suit for trial even as against the petitioner herein and had also decreed the suit ex parte against the petitioner on 16.11.1989, when the earlier dismissal of the suit for default against the petitioner herein had not been set aside. Learned counsel for the petitioner placed strong reliance upon the decision reported in Narayanaswamy v. Sundari, (1980)1 M.L.J. 278. In that case, in a petition for annulment of marriage filed by the husband against the wife, the wife had been set ex parte and the petition was adjourned for evidence of the husband to a particular date and on his absence on that date, the petition itself was dismissed for default. An application was filed to set aside the order of dismissal for default and that was allowed even without notice to the wife, with the result that she did not have any knowledge whatever of the passing of the ex parte order. It was in this context that it was pointed out that though on a strict interpretation of O.9, Rule 4, Code of Civil Procedure, no notice as such is contemplated, yet, the Civil Rules of Practice provide for giving of such a notice even in interlocutory applications to the other side and no distinction is made whether the other party had earlier appeared or not. It was also further pointed out that even on the footing that the wife had earlier remained ex parte, after the termination of the proceedings in her favour by the dismissal of the proceedings for default, the requirement as to the service of notice as contemplated by Rule 32 of the Civil Rules of Practice in an interlocutory application of the nature under O.9, Rule 4, Code of Civil Procedure, cannot be dispensed with as an order passed on such an application would vitally affect the interests of the defendant secured under the adjudication by

1991

10th July, 1992

Sudhakaran and another

...Petitioners

The Corporation of Madras and another

...Respondents.

at been ex ex parte order. In regard to petitioner on on the part of against the
was in error in suit as if the suit had the petitioner also and that for the absence of the petitioner on 16.11.1989, there was justification for the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner. Inasmuch as the view above taken, there was no restoration of the suit dismissed for default against the petitioner there was no question thereafter of the passing of an ex parte decree against the petitioner on 16.11.1989 as if the suit against the petitioner was pending on that date. Under those circumstances, the courts below fell into an error in dismissing the application filed by the petitioner for setting aside the ex parte decree. Consequently, the civil revision petition is allowed and the orders of the courts below are set aside and the ex parte decree passed against the petitioner will also stand set aside. There will be, however, no order as to costs.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

Constitution of India (1950), Arts. 226, 14 and 16 - Writ - If can be issued for violation of any non-statutory direction.

It is well-settled that any violation of any non-statutory direction cannot be made a cause of action to approach the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution unless the provisions of the Constitution are violated especially Arts. 14 and 16 of the Constitution. [Para 7]

Case referred to:

*M/s. International Ore and Fertilisers (India) Pvt.
Ltd. v. E.S.I. Corporation, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 78. [Para
5]*

Petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorarified mandamus calling for the records on the file of the 2nd respondent relating to the order bearing No.M.D.C.No.C1/14058/90, dated 29.11.1990 quash the same and consequently direct the respondents to permit the petitioners 8 to continue as Sanitary Inspectors in Division
Nos. 45 and 130 respectively award costs.

Miss.R.Vaigai, for Petitioners.

R.Swaminathan, Standing Counsel, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER: The petitioners are working as Sanitary Inspectors in the Corporation of Madras, the respondents herein. They challenge an order of the respondent-Corporation dated 29.11.1990 by which they were posted exclusively to attend the duty in the burial grounds. In the impugned order it is stated that the petitioners are immediately relieved from the normal divisional duties and they should (1) supervise the work of staff posted in the burial ground, (2) collect the details of the

and there, (3) and in a tidy manner and (4) irregularly engender discipline among the Vettiyans and to the complaints and criticism from the public.

2. The petitioners alleged in the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition that paragraph 716 of the Madras City Municipal Code (hereinafter referred to as 'the Code') deals with management of burial grounds, that paragraph 887 of the Code prescribes the duties of Sanitary Inspectors, that 20 functions are enumerated in paragraph 887 of the Code and that the petitioners have been asked to relieve other duties and that it amounts to a demotion to them. It is also alleged in the affidavit that inspecting a burial ground is one of the functions of the Sanitary Inspectors, that Sanitary Inspectors have got technical qualifications and that the impugned order passed by the respondent-Corporation in so far as it directs the petitioners to look after a burial ground, relieving from other divisional duties is too harsh. It is also alleged in the affidavit that the action of the respondent-Corporation asking the petitioners to do the functions which are really that of the peons, which is clear from what is described in paragraphs 716 of the Code and that it amounts to a demotion to the petitioners to Class IV posts whereas the petitioners are belonging to Class III. It is also alleged in the affidavit that when the Code prescribes certain conditions of service, it is not correct on the part of the Corporation to change it by the impugned order of the respondent-Corporation. It is also alleged in the affidavit that the action of the respondent-Corporation is arbitrary and violation of Art.14 of the Constitution of India, since the petitioners have been picked up when there are other Sanitary Inspectors with the respondent-Corporation.

3. Notice of motion has been ordered by this Court on 8.1.1991.

4. A counter-affidavit has been filed by the respondent-Corporation. It is stated in the counter affidavit that with a view to ameliorate the problems faced by the public in using the Corporation burial grounds particularly the problem of extraction of exorbitant amounts collected by vettiyans unauthorisedly has proposed to take remedial measures. It by the Corporation at W in the grounds to the duties of Sanitary Inspectors. In the affidavit that Sanitary Inspectors and see to their deaths from danger the Code prescribes for burial grounds the major work Office Assistants of the burial ground and that the responsibility lies with Sanitary Inspector of that Division. A reference to para 724 of the Code has been made in the counter affidavit. It is also claimed in the counter affidavit that the impugned order has been validly passed in the interest of the public and for the proper administration of burial grounds and that the said order does not affect the interest of the petitioners in respect of their salary, allowances, cadre or benefits in services under the Corporation. It is admitted in the counter affidavit that the petitioners are Class III employees under the respondent-Corporation stating that the posting of the petitioners for exclusive supervision of burial and burning grounds does not in any way reduce their status. It is also claimed in the counter affidavit that there is no demotion in the cadre of the petitioners. It is also stated in the counter affidavit that the impugned order is not in any way punitive or working against the interest of the petitioners, and that the posting of the Sanitary Inspectors has been done only to correct the remedy for the problems faced by the public. A reference to Sec.19 (obviously a mistake of Sec.9 of the Madras City Municipal Corporation Act has been made in the counter affidavit under which the Commissioner is empowered to prescribe the duties can have a dialogue with the association of the Sanitary Inspectors and decide about the future course of action appointing the Sanitary Inspectors permanently to supervise the burial grounds and burning grounds.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present: Lakshmanan, J.

W.P.No.13173 of 1990 21st September, 1992.

P.R.Chockalingam ...Petitioner
v.

The Director of Tourism, Government of Tamil Nadu and others ...Respondents.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.16(4) - Reservations to public appointments - Only one post to be filled up - If rule of reservation can be applied.

In the selection to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and counter service, the fourth respondent was selected in preference to the petitioner though the latter was placed in the waiting list No.1 on the sole ground that the Executive Committee had decided to fill up the vacancy from backward classes. The petitioner challenged the selection.

Held: The decisions reported in Dr.Chakradhar Paswan v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 959 and Dr.Rajkumar v. Gulbarga University, A.I.R. 1990 Kant. 320, are very clear that when there is only one post, the same has to be filled up without applying the rule of reservation. Admittedly, the Executive Committee after interview had decided to fill up the post from Backward Community candidate. This is not at all permissible in law. The competent authority has decided to fill up the post only from open competition. On the sole ground, the impugned order is liable to be set aside.

[Paras 16 and 17]

Cases referred to:

Dr.Chakradhar Paswan v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 959. [Para 14]

Dr.Rajkumar v. Gulbarga University, A.I.R. 1990 Kant. 320. [Para 15]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorarified mandamus calling for the records relating to the proceedings of Staff Selection Committee/Executive Committee consisting of respondents 1 to 3 Food Craft Institute, Tiruchirappalli, on 30.7.1990 in so far as the selection of the fourth respondent to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and counter service is concerned and quash the same and directing the Staff Selection Committee and Executive Committee, Food Craft Institute, Thuvakkudi, Tiruchi to appoint the petitioner to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and counter service in Food Craft Institute, Thuvakkudi, Tiruchirappalli.

R.Krishnamurthi, Senior Counsel, for

M.S.Kandasami, K.Sukumar and

V.G.Ravichandrababu, for Petitioner.

P.Shannugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondent Nos.1 and 2.

K.Sridhar, for Respondent No.3.

R.Ganesan, for Respondent No.4.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The petitioner abovenamed has filed the writ petition for the following relief:

To issue a writ of certiorarified mandamus, calling for the records relating to the proceedings of the Staff Selection Committee/Executive Committee consisting of respondents 1 to 3, Food Craft Institute, Tiruchirappalli, on 30.7.1990 in so far as the selection of the 4th respondent to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service is concerned and quash the same and direct the Staff Selection Committee and Executive Committee, Food Craft Institute, Thuvakkudi, Tiruchirappalli, to appoint the petitioner to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service in Food Craft Institute, Thuvakkudi, Tiruchirappalli.

2. The petitioner, after the completion of his school studies, joined the Certificate Course of Bakery and Confectionery in the year 1983. The State Board of Technical Education and Training, Department of Technical Education, issued the certificate of Bakery and Confectionery, after the completion of Crafts-manship Course of Institution in Bakery and Confectionery. Thereafter, the petitioner joined the three year course in Diploma in Hotel Management and Catering Technology in Bangalore. The course was for three years. After the completion of three years, examination held in May, 1986, and the petitioner was issued Diploma in Hotel Management and Catering Technology. After the completion of diploma course, the petitioner joined as Manager in the Royala Hindu Restaurant from 1986 to February, 1989. From 21.12.1989, he has been working as Assistant Food and Beverages Manager in Rajali Hotel, Tiruchirappalli.

3. After obtaining the diploma, the petitioner registered himself in the District Employment Office, Tiruchirappalli, on 27.11.1987 and his registration number is 15983 of 1987. For the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service, the 3rd respondent by his letter dated 17.5.1990, called for a list of candidates from the District Employment Office and the Employment Exchange by its letter dated 28.5.1990 sent the petitioner's name alone to the 3rd respondent. The petitioner was not called for interview for the said post for the reasons best known to the 3rd respondent. To accommodate the 4th respondent, the 3rd respondent appeared to have called for some more candidates from the District Employment Exchange along with the 4th respondent. The District Employment Exchange obliged the 3rd respondent by sending another list of candidates on 16.7.1990. It is pertinent to mention that originally the 3rd respondent called for the candidates by his letter dated 17.5.1990. On 18.5.1990, the 4th respondent registered himself with the District Employment Exchange and his registration number is 4857 of 1990, and the sequence of events in the matter of appointment of the 4th respondent clearly show that the appointment is a predetermined one and that there was no fair selection to the said post. According to the petitioner, respondents 1 to 3 are public servants and a duty is cast upon them to conduct the fair selection in the matter of appointment. Since the appointment to the post and the interview was not done in a fair manner, the petitioner has filed the above writ petition challenging the selection of the 4th respondent to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor on the grounds mentioned in the affidavit.

4. According to the petitioner, he is having the necessary qualification and prescribed by the norms of the selection and as a candidate he has fulfilled the qualification more than the 4th respondent. The 4th respondent on the date of selection was already in the Central Government service as Member Administrative Superintendent in the Centre for Development Telematics, Telecom Technology Centre, Government of India, Bangalore. As requested in the interview letter issued on 24.7.1990 by the 3rd respondent, the 4th respondent has not produced the no objection certificate from the authorities. As required by G.O.Ms.No.40, Employment Services Department, dated 14.3.1984, there was not even the minimum ten days for the candidates who report for the interview as disclosed in the letter dated 28.5.1990 sent by the District Employment Exchange. Thus, according to the petitioner the appointment of the 4th respondent is pre-determined one and the appointment by respondents 1 to 3 in a hurried manner would confirm that the selection was not done in a fair manner.

5. Respondents 1 and 2 have filed a counter affidavit. According to them, the Executive Committee is the competent authority for recruitment to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service, and the Principal of the Institute, who is the Secretary to the Executive Committee, issues the appointment order for that post. The Principal and Secretary, Food Craft Institute, sent a requisition to the District Employment Exchange, Trichy, on 17.5.1990, to sponsor candidates for the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service and Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, for House Keeping which were vacant on that dates. The qualifications prescribed for both the posts are as follows:

“Essential:- Three year Diploma in Hotel Management and Catering Technology - Equivalent from Government recognised Institute.

Desirable:- (1) Post Diploma in Hotel Management from recognised Institute. (2) A craft Certificate in the relevant field, i.e., in Restaurant and Counter Service.

Experience:- At least one year Teaching/Practical Experience in the relevant field in an educational Institute/Industry.”

6. Since it was difficult to get candidates with the qualification of Diploma in Hotel Management and Catering Technology, the District Employment Exchange, Tiruchirapalli, was required to circulate among other Exchange about these vacancies in order to get enough candidates for this interview and to select the right candidates for this teaching post. It was also requested to sponsor candidates for open competition comprising of all the communities. The petitioner's name was sponsored by the District Employment Exchange, Tiruchirapalli, in his letter dated 28.5.1990 for the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service. No interview was held as only one candidate was sponsored. In the Institute's letter dated 17.5.1990 addressed to the District Employment Exchange, Tiruchirapalli, it was indicated that the requisition made by the Institute for sponsoring suitable candidates may be circulated to other Employment Exchanges also in case local candidates are not available. The Assistant Director, District Employment Exchange, Tiruchirapalli, by his letter dated 28.5.1990 sponsored one candidate and again on 16.7.1990 sponsored three candidates. Later, the District Employment Officer, Technical Professional Employment Exchange, Madras by his letter dated 18.7.1990, has sponsored five candidates and again on 23.7.1990 has sponsored 14 more candidates for filling up the vacancy of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service.

7. The interview was fixed on 30.7.1990 at the Food Crafts Institute, Tiruchirapalli. The Call letters to 19 candidates, who were qualified were dispatched by speed post on 23.7.1990. The petitioner was called for interview. He attended the interview on 30.7.1990 along with eight other candidates. The Institute is not concerned regarding the dates on which the candidates would have registered their names in the Employment Exchange. In the call letter, it has also been clearly stated that the fact that she/he been called for the interview does not guarantee selection of the post. It is further stated that the selection of the 4th respondent was done in a fair manner and due opportunity was provided to all candidates who attended the interview to expose their technical knowledge and ability. All the nine candidates who attended the interview possessed the basic qualifications. The petitioner and the 4th respondent also possessed the basic qualification. 8. Along with the vacancy of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service, one more vacancy of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, House Keeping was also to be filled up. Both the vacancies carry the same basic qualification with minimum one year experience in the relevant field with same scale of pay. Hence, the list of candidates were called for the Open Competition for the above two posts with preference for lady candidates for House Keeping. The Employment Exchange has recommended 23 candidates which included 13 Backward Classes, 7 Open Competitions and 3 Scheduled Castes for Restaurant and Counter Service and 3 candidates which included 2 Backward Classes and 1 Scheduled Caste for House Keeping. The Executive Committee, which is the competent authority to make appointment to the above posts, decided to fill up the vacancy for the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service, from Backward Class and Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor for House Keeping from Open Competition, preferably lady candidates according to communal rotation.

9. Both the petitioner and the 4th respondent possess the essential technical qualification and experience and based on their performance at the interview, a panel of three candidates as mentioned below was approved by the competent authority;

1. Thiru P.Prakash Kumar (B.C.) - Selected.
2. Thiru P.R.Chockalingam (W.L.) No.1
3. Thiru K.Ravi (B.C.) W.L.No.2.

The Employment Exchange, Trichy, has sponsored four candidates from Trichy and 19 candidates from Madras. Call letters were sent by speed post on 23.7.1990. The petitioner himself had received it on 24.7.1990 and he had intimated that he was willing to appear for the interview to be conducted on 30.7.1990 - vide his letter dated 24.7.1990. He attended the interview along with others on 30.7.1990. Hence, the question of allowing ten days time need not be considered in view of the urgency and since the Institution had reopened on 23.7.1990. Thus, it is submitted by respondents 1 and 2 that the selection of the 4th respondent was made on the basis of the performance in the interview and therefore, his appointment was made in a fair manner and that the same cannot be challenged in the writ petition.

10. The counter affidavit filed by the 3rd respondent is also on the same lines as that of respondents 1 and 2.

11. The 4th respondent has filed a counter affidavit dated 10.7.1992 and stated that he has the desirable qualification since he possesses a Crafts Certificate. He further states that the selection was based on community, that he belonged to Backward Community and that there is no bar for a B.C. community candidate being selected even against Open Competition. He also states that the selection was made by a competent committee of three officers. The selection was not tainted with any favouritism of mala fide. Therefore, he submits that the writ petition has no merits and hence the same is liable to be dismissed.

12. I have heard Mr.R.Krishnamurthi, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner, Mr. P.Shanmugham, learned Additional Government Pleader for respondents 1 and 2, Mr.K.Sridhar, learned counsel for the 3rd respondent and Mr.R.Ganesan, learned counsel for the 4th respondent.

13. As could be seen from the counter affidavit filed on behalf of respondents 1 and 2, the petitioner and the 4th respondent possess the essential technical qualification and experience. It is also admitted that the Executive Committee is the competent authority to make the appointment to the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, and the said committee decided to fill up the vacancy for the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, for Restaurant and Counter Service from Backward Classes and Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor for House Keeping from "O.C.", preferably lady candidates according to communal rotation. It cannot be gain-said that when there is only one post, there can be no reservation at all. In this connection, two judgments can be usefully referred to, one by the Apex Court and the other by the Karnataka High Court.

14. The decision reported in Dr.Chakradhar Paswan v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 959, can be usefully referred to in this context, The Supreme Court has observed as follows:

"It is quite clear after the decision in Devadasan's case, that no reservation could be made under Art.16(4) so as to create a monopoly. Otherwise, it would render the guarantee of equal opportunity contained in Arts.16(1) and 16(2) wholly meaningless and illusory. These principles unmistakably lead us to the conclusion that if there is only one post in the cadre, there can be no reservation with reference to that post either for recruitment at the initial stage or for filling up a future vacancy in respect of that post. A reservation which would come under Art.16(4) pre-supposes the availability of atleast more than one post in that cadre."

15. The next decision to be considered is the judgment of a Full Bench of Karnataka High Court reported in Dr.Rajkumar v. Gulbarga University, A.I.R. 1990 Karn. 320, wherein the Full Bench has observed as follows:

"The next question for consideration is, as to whether in respect of categories of Professors, Lecturers or Readers, as the case may be, if there is only one post, could there be reservation at all. As far as this aspect is concerned, the matter is no longer res integra. The question is concluded by the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Dr.Chakradhar Paswan v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 959. The relevant paragraph 16 of the judgment reads;

16. It is quite clear after the decision in Devadasan's case, that no reservation could be made under Art.16(4) so as to create a monopoly. Otherwise, it would render the guarantee of equal opportunity contained in Arts.16(1) and 16(2) wholly meaningless and illusory. These principles unmistakably lead us to the conclusion that if there is only one post in the cadre, there can be no reservation with reference to that post either for recruitment at the initial stage or for filling up a future vacancy in respect of that post. As reservation which would come under Art.16(4), pre-supposes the availability of at least more than one post in that cadre."

In the above paragraph, the Supreme Court has ruled that in respect of cadres where there is only one post, it does not admit of any reservation at all."

16. The above decisions, in my view, are very clear that when there is only one post, the same has to be filled up without applying the rule of reservation.

17. Admittedly, the Executive Committee, after interview had decided to fill up the post from Backward Community candidate. This in my view, is not at all permissible in law. The competent authority has decided to fill up the post only from Open Competition. On this sole ground, the impugned order is liable to be set aside.

18. In view of my finding on the above point, it is not necessary to go into the other points raised by the learned counsel appearing for the petitioner and the respondents.

- 19. For the foregoing reasons, I am of the view that the writ petitioner should succeed. Accordingly, the impugned proceedings dated 30.7.1990 selecting the 4th respondent for the post of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service in Food Craft Institute, Thuvakkudi, Tiruchirapalli is set aside. It is not in dispute that the 4th respondent registered himself with the Employment Exchange only on 18.5.1990 after respondents 1 and 2 requested the Employment Exchange to sponsor names for appointment as Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor. The 4th respondent was also in the employment of the Central Government at that time. It is also not in dispute that the writ petitioner's name has been selected and he is No.1 in the waiting list. Respondents 1 and 2 do admit that the writ petitioner possesses all the essential technical qualification and experience as required. I, therefore, direct the Executive Committee/Staff Selection Committee, Food Craft Institute, Tiruchirapalli, to consider the name of the writ petitioner for appointment of Assistant Lecturer-cum-Assistant Instructor, Restaurant and Counter Service, within one month from the date of receipt of a copy of this order, and pass orders accordingly taking into account all the observations made in this judgment. The writ petition is allowed. No costs.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present: Srinivasan, J.

W.P.Nos.7061 to 7064 of 1986 24th August, 1992.

Meenakshi Apartments, Unit of MIG. Flats, Madurai-20 and others ...Petitioners
v.

The Tamil Nadu Housing Board, Madras-35

...Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Housing Boards Act (XVII of 1961) and Rules made thereunder - Contract between Housing Board and allottee of flat providing for recovery of difference of cost within a stipulated period - Housing Board, if entitled to fix final cost beyond that period.

This Court held in S.A.No.83 of 1982 by judgment dated 20.8.1982 that the clause fixing a period for determination of the final cost is a clause of limitation. The respondents (Tamil Nadu Housing Board and the Executive Engineer and Administrative Officer, Madurai Housing Unit) are not entitled to make any demand over and above the cost already fixed in the contract as the respondents are not entitled to fix the final cost beyond the period of limitation prescribed in the contract.

[Para 7]

Petitions under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the respective affidavits filed therewith, the High Court will be pleased to issue writs of mandamus forbearing the respondents in all the petitions from in any manner recovering or enforcing the demand towards the alleged difference between the final cost and tentative cost of the MIG flat with respect to the members of the schedule pursuant to the impugned demand made by the 2nd respondent in all the petitions in his office letter No.R3/8770/79, dated 24.6.1986 (in W.P.No.7061 of 1986) 14.6.1986 and 24.6.1986 (in W.P.No.7062 of 1986) 24.6.1986 (in W.P.No.7063 of 1986) and 17.6.1986 (in W.P.No.7064 of 1986) respectively or in any manner increasing the cost of Flat over and above the cost mentioned in the respective allotment letter and making a demand for the same from the members of the respective petitioner Association in purported exercise of the provisions of the Tamil Nadu Housing Board Act, 1961 and the Rules made thereunder.

E. Padmanabhan, for Petitioners.

S. Doraisami, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- In these writ petitions, the petitioners have prayed for issue of a writ of mandamus for bearing the respondents from recovering or enforcing the demand towards alleged difference by way of final cost and tentative cost of M.I.G. flats with respect to the members of the petitioner's associations whose names are set out in the schedules to the petitions. The members of the associations were allotted middle income group flats in 1979-80. With respect to the petitioner association in W.P.No.7061 of 1986 the allotment letter was issued on 23.3.1980. Tentative cost was fixed at Rs.42,200 for ground floor and first floor and Rs.40,100 for the second floor. Clause 9 of the letter which is the crucial clause reads thus:

"Final cost of the flat will be intimated within a period of 3 years. The difference of cost if any is to be paid in one lump sum or in monthly instalment from the beginning."

It is only in 1986 the respondents demanded additional payment from the petitioners on the footing that final cost is fixed at a higher rate. Difference varies from Rs.6,900 to Rs.14,300 per flat. Aggrieved by the same, the petitioners have preferred these writ petitions.

2. In a similar case, this Court held in S.A.No.83 of 1982 by judgment dated 20.8.1982 that the clause fixing a period for determination of the final cost is a clause of limitation and after the expiry of the said period it is not open to the respondents to fix the final cost. However, it was held in the case that the respondents could fix within a reasonable time that portion of the enhancement in the sale value in so far as it relates to excess compensation awarded for the land owners under the acquisition proceedings.

3. The said judgment was affirmed on appeal by the Supreme Court in C.A.No.3002 of 1983. The Apex Court has accepted the construction put upon the clause by this Court and held that after expiry of the period mentioned in the clause it is not open to the respondents to fix the final cost and thereby increase the cost payable by the allottees.

4. In W.P.Nos.4527 and 7642 etc., of 1984 S. Ramalingam, J., held on 7.2.1989 that after the expiry of the period of limitation set out in similar clauses it is not open to the respondents to increase the cost under the guise of fixing the final cost. That judgment was affirmed on appeal by a Division Bench of this Court on 16.7.1990 in W.A.Nos.460 to 464 of 1990. In W.P.No.1441 of 1989 Justice Raju has taken a similar view in his judgment dated 21.2.1992.

5. According to learned counsel for the respondents the aforesaid judgments would not apply to these cases and the matter would be governed by the judgment of Justice Raju sitting singly in W.P.Nos.9603 and 9604 of 1990. On a perusal of the said judgment, it is seen that in those cases there was no clause fixing the period of limitation. The terms of contracts were also in dispute and the learned Judge held that the remedy of the parties was to go before a civil court in a civil suit and agitate their claims. On that footing, the writ petitions were dismissed.

6. I am of the view that the judgment in W.P.Nos.9603 and 9604 of 1990 has no bearing on this case. In the present case there is a specific clause fixing a period of limitation of three years. Hence, the reasoning in that judgment will not apply and this will be governed by other judgments already referred to by me.

7. This is not case in which a direction similar to that given by Justice Balasubramanyam in S.A.No.83 of 1982 can be given. It is specifically alleged in the affidavit filed in support of the petitions that the land cost was already fixed as the acquisition proceedings were over even before 1972. In paragraph 7 of the affidavit, it is alleged that there has been no increase in land acquisition proceedings compensation after 1975. Consequently, the respondents cannot claim on the footing that they had to pay more money by way of compensation to the owners of land in the acquisition proceedings. The respondents have filed a counter affidavit only today, that is after a period of six years since the filing of the writ petition. In the long counter affidavit running to 11 pages no particulars are given with regard to necessity for increase in the final cost. Nothing has been stated in the affidavit as to how final cost is worked out by the respondents in this case. It is generally alleged that final cost is liable to differ from the initial cost on account of escalation and other charges which are increasing considerably every year and inevitable reasons like the cost of development charges, tender excess etc. It is also stated that the delay in fixing the cost is due to administrative reasons and the sanction of the board has to be obtained for fixing the final cost. I do not accept the explanation as a proper ground for the inordinate delay in fixing the final cost. The clause in the contract prescribes a period of three years. The final cost is determined only after a period of six years in this case and communicated to the allottees. In the circumstances, I hold that the respondents are not entitled to make any demand over and above the cost already fixed in the contract as the respondents are not entitled to fix the final cost beyond the period of limitation prescribed in the contract.

8. It is stated in the counter affidavit that among the members of the petitioners' associations 33 allottees have complied with the demand issued to them and they have also remitted the amount demanded and obtained sale deeds in their favour since 5.4.1989 till date without any reservation whatsoever. It is further stated that five allottees have remitted the difference of cost and applied for issuance of sale deed and the sale deeds will be issued to them within two or three weeks depending upon the exigencies of time. A list is attached to the counter affidavit. It is seen therefrom that Nos.1 to 10 in the list relate to some of the petitioners in W.P.No.7064 of 1986; Nos.11 to 15 and 17 relate to some of the petitioners in W.P.No.7061 of 1986. Though No.16 mentions the flat No.A-12/3 one of the flats concerned in W.P.No.7061 of 1986, the name of the allottee differs. Nos.18 to 23 relate to some of the petitioners in W.P.No.7063 of 1986. Nos.28 to 31 and 33 relate to some of the petitioners in W.P.No.7062 of 1986. The flats mentioned in other numbers are not found in any of the writ petitions.

9. The copy of the counter affidavit has been served on the counsel for the petitioners only today. He is not in a position to say whether the persons who have remitted the difference as per the demands made by them have done so voluntarily without any reservation whatsoever. Assuming that the statement made in the counter affidavit is correct, I am of the view that the following course will meet the ends of justice. If the persons who have remitted the amounts demanded are taking a stand that they did not make payments voluntarily and made payments under protest and they will be entitled to the benefit of the order in these writ petitions and claim a refund of the amounts paid by them, it is for them to agitate their rights in an appropriate proceedings in a civil suit and establish the same. With this liberty, the writ petitions are allowed in so far as the petitioners listed in the schedules to the writ petitions are concerned excepting the persons who are found in the list attached to the counter filed by the respondents today under Nos.1 to 15, 16 to 23, 28 to 31 and 33. The respondents shall not enforce their demands for any payment towards the cost, apart from the amounts already received by them from the petitioners referred to above. The respondents should execute the sale deeds to the petitioners within a reasonable time say, within three months from this date, provided other formalities required by the rules are complied with. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Petitions allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Appellate Jurisdiction]

Present: Mishra and Mrs. Padmini Jesudurai, JJ.

O.S.A.Nos.93 and 94 of 1992. 12th August, 1992.

Radhika Konel Parekh

...Appellant

v.

Konel Parekh.

...Respondent.

(A) Letters Patent (Madras), Clause 15 - Order passed on application for stay of proceedings - If 'judgment' - Appeal from such order, if maintainable - (Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.10).
 (B) Hindu Marriage Act (XXV of 1955), Secs.13(1-A) and 26 - Suit for divorce and for declaration that she is entitled to the custody of her minor child filed by wife in Family Court, Bombay - Husband filing petition in Madras High Court seeking his appointment as guardian of the minor son and for grant of interim custody - Questions involved in both proceedings if same - Judgment of one court delivered earlier, if would operate as res judicata in the other.
 (C) Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.10 - Matter directly and substantially in issue in former and subsequent suits' - Whether should be the same in all respects.

Respondent Konel Parekh and the appellant Radhika were married in accordance with Hindu rites on 1st April, 1990 and a male child was born to them on 30th March, 1991. On 16.12.1991 the respondent filed O.P.No.694 of 1991 in the Madras High Court seeking his appointment as the guardian of the son and also for other reliefs. He applied for a direction that he be given interim custody of the minor son in an application in that petition. The appellant stated in reply that she had moved the Family Court at Bombay seeking reliefs inter alia of divorce and the interim custody of the minor and restraint orders and that the Bombay Family Court had restrained appellant from removing the minor from her custody. She filed an application for stay of the proceedings in this Court. A learned single Judge was of the view that the question involved in the O.P.No.694 of 1991 and the proceedings in the Family Court at Bombay could not be the same and that therefore there could be no stay of proceedings. He rejected the request of the respondent for the interim custody of the minor, but permitted him to visit the child as frequently as he felt so with liberty to take the child for outings also. The appellant filed two appeals. The respondent contended that as an order passed as an application for stay of the proceedings under Sec.10, Civil Procedure Code was not a judgment, no appeal could be maintained against that order.

Held: Since the Supreme Court has already declared the law in Shah Babulal Khimji v. Jayaben, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 1786 and the Court is obliged to follow it, it has to be held notwithstanding the judgment of the Full Bench of this Court in Central Brokers v. Ramnarayana Podder & Company, A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057 (F.B.), that the appeal is maintainable. [Para 13]

A mere glance at this provisions shows that in a suit seeking divorce, the Court can make provisions in the decree itself with respect to the custody of the child and may after the decree upon application by petition filed for the purpose, make from time to time, all such orders and provisions with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of such children as might have been made by such decree. Thus, the prayer in the Family Court suit at Bombay for a decree cannot be equated with the decree for interim custody in the sense of an order pendente lite. In most of the cases custody orders have to be made for limited purpose. No minor can be ordered to be always in custody of another, the limit being the statutory age of majority. Once however, the question of custody of a minor child is an issue on fact and law in the proceeding before the Family Court, if the same issue is brought between the same parties in another court, the judgment of one delivered earlier has to operate as res judicata in the other. It is not in dispute that the child is below five years. Ordinarily thus the custody has to be with the mother. The mother has accordingly prayed for a decree for such a custody in the Family Court at Bombay. The father, who is the respondent can have every say and thus can say to the court that the child's custody with the mother may not be in the interest of child. The court is constrained to observe that the suit has been filed in this Court by the respondent has brought in substantially the same questions of fact with respect to the custody of the child which have to be decided by the Family Court.

[Paras 15, 16, 22]

It is not necessary, as has been held by different High Courts and about there is a consensus of judicial opinion, that the matter directly and substantially in issue in former as well as subsequent suits, should be the same in all respects. [Para 17]

Cases referred to:

Central Brokers v. Beemnarayappa Podder and Company, A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057: (1954)2 M.L.J. 525: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 1052. [Paras 5, 7, 8, 13]
Abdul Nabbi Saheb v. Ramadossmalesh, A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 371. [Para 5]
Asrumatidebi v. Surendra Deb, A.I.R. 1953 S.C. 198: (1953)1 M.L.J. 710: 1953 S.C.J. 300. 1953 S.C.R. 1159. [Paras 5, 6, 8]
Angadu Narasimhalu Chettiar v. Selvarajan, (1991)2 M.L.J. (N.R.C.) 1. [Paras 6, 7]
Govindarajulu v. Devar and Company, A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 240: (1953)2 M.L.J. 413: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 399. [Paras 6, 7]
Shah Babulal Khimji v. Jayaben, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 1786. [Paras 8, 9]
Pulchand Motilal v. Madhar Lall, A.I.R. 1973 Pat. 196. [Para 17]
A.C. Industries Ltd. v. Rishabh Manufacturers, A.I.R. 1972 Cal. 128. [Para 18]
 Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Lakshmanan, J., dated 31.3.1992 and made in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court in Application Nos.6404 of 1991 and 69 of 1992 respectively in C.P.No.694 of 1991.

C.A.Sundaram, for Appellant.

R.Krishnaswami, for Respondent.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.: Respondent Konel Parekh and the appellant Radhika were married in accordance with Hindu rites on 1st of April, 1990 and a male child was born to them on 30th March, 1991. On 16.12.1991, however Konel filed O.P.No.694 of 1991 in this Court seeking his appointment as the guardian of the son born on 30th March, 1991, named Parthiv and also for other reliefs. He applied for a direction that he be given interim custody of Parthiv in Application No.6404 of 1991 in the said petition, O.P.No.694 of 1991. Radhika, the appellant, respondent to the notice stating inter alia that she had moved the Family Court at Bombay seeking reliefs inter alia of divorce and for the interim custody of the minor child Parthiv, maintenance and restraint orders on 6.12.1991. The Family Court at Bombay on 11.12.1991 by an order, restrained Konel from forcibly removing the child from her custody. She stated in her return that the order of restraint became necessary in view of the fact that the respondent had physically deprived her of the company of her then seven month old minor child between the period 10.11.1991 and 2.12.1991 and had in fact sought to leave the country with the minor child on the night of 2.12.1991 which the appellant with the intervention of the police and pursuant to a complaint to the police was able to stop at the last minute. She said in her return as follows:

“.....In fact, the respondent with the minor child had gone to the airport to leave the country and was stopped by the airport staff from checking in for the flight on account of the police complaint and it was only pursuant thereto that the applicant was able to recover the custody of the minor child.”

2. In his reply to the return of Radhika, Konel, however, said,

“I submit that during the period November 10, 1991 to December 2, 1991 the minor child was under the custody of the respondent herein. The events that had happened during this period have been stated by me in my statement made to the police as reply to the F.I.R. filed by the applicant.

I wish to state that on 7.11.1991 I, by chance ascertained that my wife was expecting a child. This was the second child. On Friday the 8th November, 1991 the pregnancy was confirmed and the doctor declared that the applicant was seven weeks pregnant. My wife insisted that she wanted to have an abortion as she did not want this child. I pleaded before her of the religious intention among Jains against adopting abortion. I made my earnest request before her not to kill the child in the womb. When she knew that I was against her wish, she wanted to leave for her parents' place in Bombay. Thereupon on Sunday the 10th November, 1991. I escorted her to the airport and purchased for her a round trip air ticket to Bombay and she left the child with me. I requested her to rethink her decision and stay at Madras at least for one more day on 11th November, 1991 being my birth-day. All my requests had no effect on her. As expected I was informed by my father-in-law on 16th November, 1991 that my wife had an abortion at Bombay. This act of my wife totally shattered me and I flew to Bombay on 17th November, 1991 and reached their home around 9 a.m. I was denied an audience with my wife by her parents and they told me that she is taking rest under Doctor's instructions. I did not therefore meet my wife and came back to Madras. I came to know thereafter that on 19th November, 1991 she had visited Madras and she had no decency or courtesy to inform me about her stay in Madras. Thereafter she had proceeded to Central Bank of India, Haddows Road Branch, Madras which is hardly a furlong from our house and she had operated the joint safe deposit locker and emptied the contents therein. I came to know of the incident on the afternoon of 2nd December, 1991 in front of our house and I enquired about that. On 30th November, 1991 she called me over phone and at that time I informed her that I was going to Singapore for three days' work. I asked her to return to Madras so that I could travel to Singapore leaving the child to her custody and care. She refused to return to Madras saying that she has not fully recovered from her illness. Even during her stay at Madras with me, child was looked after by the governess since she had refused to come down to Madras to take care of the child. Thereafter

I informed her that I will take the child with me to Singapore for three days along with my mother and will be back on 6th December, 1991 by the same airline. In fact I had purchased a return ticket for all of us and the return journey was also confirmed for Friday the 6th December, 1991. While so, taking advantage of the fact that I was taking the child to Singapore she made a false complaint to the police as if I am taking the child out of India for ever and she made a false complaint to the police on 2nd December, 1991 presumably under the Dowry Prohibition Act so that the police will take immediate action. The F.I.R. filed with the police is full of false statements and for the first time the case of ill-treatment by my parents and demand for jewellery and cash had been stated."

3. It has, however, transpired that Konel, who is an Indian born has, however, become a citizen of the United States of America. He intended to visit Singapore with the child and that a Police complaint was filed which stopped him from taking away the child to Singapore, according to him for a temporary period; according to Radhika with a view to taking away the child from her permanently. The filing of the case for divorce in the family Court at Bombay on 6.12.1991 and the order dated 11.12.1991 are such facts that are not in doubt, according to Konel, however, he did not know about the filing of the case in the Family Court at Bombay or any order passed in any petition that Radhika had filed in the Family Court when he moved in O.P.No.694 of 1991 or the application in Application No 6404 of 1991. Radhika moved in Application No.69 of 1992 for stay of the proceedings in this Court and both the applications; viz., Application No.6404 of 1991 filed by Konel for interim custody of the child and Application No.69 of 1992 filed by Radhika for stay of the proceedings were taken together. The learned Judge, who heard the parties, however, has ordered as follows:

"One thing not in dispute between the parties is that their child is an infant just one year old. It is really unfortunate that estrangement between spouses should have arisen within a year of birth of a child when normally they should have been happy with the child born to them to live in amity for a long and happy life. Anyway the wife has filed an application in the Family Court"

"at Bombay for the following relief:

The petitioner therefore prays:

- "(a) that the said marriage between the petitioner and the respondent solemnized on 1.4.1990 be dissolved by a decree of divorce;
- (b) that the Hon'ble Court be pleased to declare that the petitioner is entitled to the custody of her minor child, the said Parthiv;
- (c) that the respondent be ordered and decreed to pay to the petitioner the maintenance at the rate of Rs.1,00,000 per month for herself and her minor child the said Parthiv;
- (d) that it may be declared that the petitioner is entitled to the articles of jewellery, gold and silverware ornaments and silverware;
- (e) that the respondent be ordered, and directed to pay the petitioner a sum of Rs.50,000 as and by way of costs of prosecuting this petition;
- (f) that the respondent be restrained by this Hon'ble Court from travelling abroad or leaving India without the permission of this Hon'ble court till the bearing and final disposal of the petition;
- (g) that the respondent be ordered and/or directed by this Hon'ble Court to furnish adequate security to the satisfaction of this Hon'ble Court and sufficient to meet the petitioner's claim" for alimony/pendente lite, costs that are likely to be awarded to the petitioner to meet the costs of the prosecuting of the petitioner and for her appearance in court;
- (h) that the respondent be directed to deposit his passport in court;
- (i) that the respondent be ordered and directed to return all the clothes and personal effects, ornaments and silverware of the petitioner which are in the matrimonial home;
- (j) that ad interim and interim reliefs; in terms of prayer (c) to (i) hereinabove
- (k) and for such other and further reliefs as this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the circumstances of the case."

"It is significant to notice that the main relief is for divorce. Interim custody of the child is only ancillary to the main relief"

"On the other hand O.P.No.694 of 1991 filed by the husband is for being appointed as the guardian of the minor's person and property. Therefore, it is plain that the questions involved in the O.P.No.694 of 1991 of this Court and the proceedings in the Family Court cannot be the same although there may be a little overlapping in the matter of evidence to be adduced in both. Therefore unless the matter in issue in an earlier proceeding is identically in issue in the later proceeding, there cannot be a stay of the latter proceeding. That is the principle under Sec.10, C.P.C. which whether applicable to the proceedings in question or not has to be appreciated. By application of the said principle been to these proceedings I do not see any basis for stay as prayed for by the wife. Hence Application No.69 of 1992 is dismissed. No costs."

"As regards the interim custody prayed for by the father of the child, one insurmountable difficulty which the father has got to confront is that the child is just one year old. In guardianship proceedings it is well settled law that the Court is concerned mostly for the welfare of the child which is paramount. Hence the father cannot have interim custody of the child, at any rate, at this age of the minor child. The child has to be with the mother. I am of this view not on the grounds set forth by the wife in her application for stay but on the only ground that the child being one year old it has to be with the mother."

"However the father should not be left helpless. he is equally interested in the child and bound to have affection. Therefore, it is not just to deprive him of that affection."

"Therefore, it is but proper that the father should be permitted to visit the child as frequently as he feels so at Bombay at the residence of his wife and with liberty to take the child for the outings as he desires subject to his leaving the child in the custody of the wife while returning from Bombay. This is the utmost that this Court can grant pending disposal of the main Original Petition."

4. Radhika has appealed in O.S.A.No.93 of 1992 against the order in Application No.6404 of 1991 and O.S.A.No.94 of 1992 against the order in Application No.69 of 1992.

5. Before we proceeded to hear the appeal, learned counsel for the respondent questioned the maintainability of O.S.A.No.94 of 1992 arising out of the order in Application No.69 of 1992 on the ground that an order passed on an application for stay of the proceedings under Sec.10, C.P.C. is not a 'judgment' and thus no appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent is maintainable. He relied upon a Full Bench decision of this Court in Central Brokers v. Beemnarayappa Podder and Company, (1954)2 M.L.J. 525: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 1052 (F.B.), in which overruling an earlier judgment of this Court in Abdul Nabbi Saheb v. Ramadosmahesh, A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 371, the Court expressed that an order made under Sec.10, C.P.C., or any other provision of law for the stay of trial of a suit is not a judgment within the meaning of that term in Clause 15 of the Letters Patent and would, therefore, be not appealable. The Full Bench of this Court in this behalf mainly relied upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in Asrmatidebi v. Surendra Deb, (1953)1 M.L.J. 710: A.I.R. 1953 S.C. 198: 1953 S.C.J. 300: 1953 S.C.R. 1159, in which two tests have been laid down to find out whether an adjudication in a particular proceeding is a judgment or not; if they are so, (1) whether it terminates the suit or proceeding and (2) whether it affects the merits of the controversy between the parties in the suit itself.

6. Learned counsel for the respondent has cited, however, another judgment of this Court in Angadu Narasimhalu Chettiar v. Selvarajan, (1991)2 M.L.J. (NRC.) 1 (D.B.), in which an order of transfer of a suit from one court to another was sought to be challenged and in which case reliance was placed upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in Asrmatidebi v. Surendra Deb, (1953)1 M.L.J. 710: A.I.R. 1953 S.C. 198. 1953 S.C.J. 300: 1953 S.C.R. 1159. In that case, the Division Bench observed,

"In yet another decision Govindarajulu v. Devar and Company, (1953)2 M.L.J. 413: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 240: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 399, Rajamannar, C.J., and Venkatarama Aiyer, J., had to consider the maintainability of an appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against an order transferring a suit from one court to another. While holding that the appeal so preferred was incompetent the Division Bench pointed out that the appeal purporting to be under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent was directed against an order of the learned Judge transferring a suit and that according to the decision of the Supreme Court referred to earlier such an order transferring a suit from one Court to another, is not a judgment within the meaning of Clause 15 of the Letters Patent. Therefore, it is held that the order of the learned Judge neither affects the merits of the controversy between the parties nor does it put an end to or terminate or dispose of the suit on any other ground but merely transfers the suit now pending before one court to another Court and such an order cannot by any stretch of imagination be said to be a judgment within Clause 15 of the Letters Patent."

7. The decision in the case of Govindarajulu v. Devar and Company, (1953)2 M.L.J. 413: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 240: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 399, or in Angadu Narasimhalu Chettiar v. Selvarajan, (1991)2 M.L.J. (NRC.) 1 (D.B.), in which it has been held that an order transferring a suit from one court to another is not a judgment within the meaning of Clause 15 of the Letters Patent, stands on a different footing and distinguishable from the Full Bench Judgment in the case of Central Brokers v. Beeminarayappa Podder and Company, (1954)2 M.L.J. 525: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 1052 (F.B.), in which it has been held that an order made under Sec.10, C.P.C. or any other provision of law for the stay of trial of a suit is not a judgment within the meaning of that term in Clause 15 of the Letter Patent and would, therefore, be not appealable. Govindarajulu v. Devar and Company, (1953)2 M.L.J. 413: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 240: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 399 and Angadu Narasimhalu Chettiar v. Selvarajan, (1991)2 M.L.J. (NRC.) 1 (D.B.), are distinguishable for the reason that there may not be any occasion, in the case of an order to transfer a suit or refuse to transfer a suit from one Court to another, for a judgment a suit from one Court to another, for a judgment at interlocutory stage which will be an order of moment or effecting any party.

8. We are, however, spared of any exercise of distinguishing the Full Bench judgment which, on the face of it, cannot be distinguished from the facts of the instant case or of recording any difference of opinion and a reference thus to a larger bench or request to the Chief Justice for such an order for the reason of a Judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Shah Babulal Khimji v. Jayaben, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 1786, in which this aspect of the matter has been fully gone into and it is stated in no uncertain terms that an order staying or refusing to stay a suit under Sec.10, C.P.C. is appealable under Clause 15 of the Letter Patent. There is, however, no reference in this judgment of the Supreme Court to the Full Bench judgment of this Court in the case of Central Brokers v. Beeminarayappa Podder & Company, (1954)2 M.L.J. 525: A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057: I.L.R. 1954 Mad. 1052 (F.B.), but the case of Asrumatidebi v. Surendra Deb, (1953)1 M.L.J. 710: 1953 S.C.J. 300: A.I.R. 1953 S.C. 198: 1953 S.C.R. 1159, which has been relied upon by the Full Bench of this Court as stating the law on the subject, has been referred to and the Supreme Court has, said as follows:

"This Court also has incidentally gone into the interpretation of the word 'judgment' and has made certain observations but seems to have decided the cases before it on the peculiar facts of each case without settling the conflict or the controversy resulting from the divergent views of the High Courts. This Court, however, has expressed a solemn desired and a pious wish that the controversy and the conflict between the various decisions of the High Courts has to be settled once for all some time or the other. In this connection, in Asrumatidebi v. Surendra Deb, (1953)1 M.L.J. 710: A.I.R. 1953 S.C. 198: 1953 S.C.J. 300: 1953 S.C.R. 1159, this Court observed as follows:

"In view of this wide divergence of judicial opinion, it may be necessary for this Court at some time or other to examine carefully the principles upon which the different views mentioned above purport to be based and attempt to determine with so much definiteness as possible the true meaning and scope of the word 'judgment' as it occurs in Clause 15 of the Letter Patent of the Calcutta High Court and in the corresponding clauses of the Letters Patent of the other High Courts. We are, however, relieved from embarking on such enquiry in the present case as we are satisfied that in none of the views referred to above could an order of the character which we have before us, be regarded as a 'judgment' within the meaning of Clause 15 of the Letters Patent."

9. After referring however to the various other judgments of the Supreme Court and analysing the entire ambit of the scheme of the Letters Patent and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, both old and new, the Supreme Court in Shah Babulal Khimji v. Jayaben, A.I.R. 1981 S.C.

1786, has stated as follows:

"Thus, under the Code of Civil Procedure, a judgment consists of the reasons and grounds for a decree passed by a court. As a judgment constitutes the reasons for the decree it follows as a matter of course that the judgment must be a formal adjudication which conclusively determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy. The concept of a judgment as defined by the Code of Civil Procedure seems to be rather narrow and the limitations engrafted by Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.2 cannot be physically imported into the definition of the word 'judgment' as used in Clause 15 of the Letters Patent because the Letters Patent has advisedly not used the term 'order' or 'decree' anywhere. The intention, therefore of the givers of the Letters Patent was that the word 'judgment' should receive much wider and more liberal interpretation than the word 'Judgment' used in the Code of Civil Procedure. At the same time, it cannot be said that any order passed by a trial judge would amount to a judgment; otherwise there will be no end to the number of orders which would be appealable under the Letters Patent. It seems to us that the word 'judgment' has undoubtedly a concept of finality in a broader and not a narrower sense. In other words, a judgment can be of three kinds:

(1) A final judgment-A judgment which decides all the questions or issues in controversy so far as the trial Judge is concerned and leaves, nothing else to be decided. This would mean that by virtue of the judgment, the suit or action brought by the plaintiff is dismissed or decreed in part or in full. Such an order passed by the trial judge indisputably and unquestionably is a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent and even amounts to a decree so that an appeal would lie from such a judgment to a Division Bench.

(2) A preliminary judgment-This kind of a judgment may take two forms (a) where the trial Judge by an order dismisses the suit without going into the merits of the suit but only on a preliminary objection raised by the defendant or the party opposing on the ground that the suit is not maintainable. Here also, as the suit is finally decided one way or the other, the order passed by the trial Judge would be a judgment finally deciding the cause so far as the trial Judge is concerned and, therefore, appealable to the larger Bench. (b) another shape which a preliminary judgment may take is that where the trial Judge passes an order after hearing the preliminary objections raised by the defendant relation to maintainability of the suit, e.g., bar of jurisdiction, res judicata, a manifest defect in the suit, absence of notice under Sec.80 and the like, and these objections are decided by the trial Judge against the defendant, the suit is not terminated but continues and has to be tried on merits but the order of the trial Judge rejecting the objections doubtless adversely affects a valuable right of the defendant who, if his objections are valid, is entitled to get the suit dismissed on preliminary grounds. Thus, such an order even though it keeps the suit alive, undoubtedly decides an important aspect of the trial which affects a vital right of the defendant and must, therefore, be construed to be a judgment, so as to be appealable to a larger Bench.

(3) Intermediary or interlocutory judgment-Most of the interlocutory orders which contain the quality of finality are clearly specified in clauses (a) to (w) of O.43, Rule 1 and have already been held by us to be judgments within the meaning of the Letters Patent and, therefore, appealable. There may also be interlocutory orders which are not covered by O.43, Rule 1, but which also possess the characteristics and trappings of finality in that, the orders may adversely affect a valuable right of the party or decide an important aspect of the trial in an ancillary proceeding. Before such an order can be a judgment the adverse effect on the party concerned must be direct and immediate rather than indirect or remote. For instance, where the trial Judge in a suit under O.37 of the Code of Civil Procedure refuses the defendant leave to defend the suit, the order directly affects the defendant because he loses a valuable right to defend the suit and his remedy is confined only to contest the plaintiff's case on his own evidence without being given a chance to rebut that evidence. As such an order vitally affects a valuable right of the defendant it will undoubtedly be treated as a judgment within the meaning of the letters patent so as to be appealable to a larger Bench. Take the converse case in a similar suit where the trial Judge allows the defendant to defend the suit in which case although the plaintiff is adversely affected but the damage or prejudice caused to him is not direct or immediate but of a minimal nature and rather too remote because the plaintiff still possesses his full right to show that the defence is false and succeed in the suit. Thus, such an order passed by the trial Judge would not amount to a judgment within the meaning of Clause 15 of the Letters Patent but will be purely an interlocutory order.

Similarly, suppose the trial Judge passes an order setting aside an ex parte decree against the defendant, which is not appealable under any of the clauses of O.43, Rule 1 though an order rejecting an application to set aside the decree passed ex parte falls within O.43, Rule 1, Clause (d) and is appealable, the serious question that arises is whether or not the order first mentioned is a judgment within the meaning of letters patent. The fact, however, remains that the order setting aside the ex parte decree puts the defendant to a great advantage and works serious injustice to the plaintiff because as a consequence of the order, the plaintiff has now to contest the suit and is deprived of the fruits of the decree passed in his favour. In these circumstances, therefore, the order passed by the trial Judge setting aside the ex parte decree vitally affects the valuable rights of the plaintiff and hence amounts to an interlocutory judgment and is therefore, appealable to a larger Bench."

10. After stating as above the Supreme Court has pointed out that "in the course of the trial, the trial Judge may pass a number of orders whereby some of the various steps to be taken by the parties in prosecution of the suit may be of a routine nature while other orders may cause some inconvenience to one party or the other, e.g., an order refusing an adjournment, an order refusing to summon an additional witness or documents after the first date of hearing an order of costs to one of the parties for its default or an order exercising discretion in respect of a procedural matter against one party or the other. Such orders are purely interlocutory and cannot constitute judgments because it will always be open to the aggrieved party to make a grievance of the order passed against the party concerned in the appeal against the final judgment passed by the trial Judge. Thus, in other words every interlocutory order cannot be regarded as a judgment but only those orders would be judgments which decide matters of moment or affect vital and valuable rights of the parties and which work serious injustice to the party concerned. Similarly, orders passed by the trial Judge deciding question of admissibility or relevancy of a document also cannot be treated as judgments because the grievance on this score can be corrected by the appellate Court against the final judgment."

11. After stating some more examples the Supreme Court has said,

"Thus, these are some of the principles which might guide a Division Bench in deciding whether an order passed by the trial Judge amounts to a judgment within the meaning of the letters patent. We might, however, at the risk of repetition give illustrations of interlocutory orders which may be treated as judgments;

- (1) An order granting leave to amend the plaint by introducing a new cause of action which completely alters the nature of the suit and take away a vested right of limitation or any other valuable right accrued to the defendant.
- (2) An order rejecting the plaint,
- (3) An order refusing leave to defend the suit in an action under O.37, Code of Civil Procedure,
- (4) An order rescinding leave of the trial judge granted by him under Clause 12 of the Letters Patent,
- (5) An order deciding a preliminary objection to the maintainability of the suit on the ground of limitation, absence of notice under Sec.80, bar against competency of the suit against the defendant even though the suit is kept alive."
- (6) An order rejecting an application for a judgment on admission under O.12, Rule 6.
- (7) An order refusing to add necessary parties in a suit under Sec.92 of the Code of Civil Procedure.
- (8) An order varying or amending a decree,
- (9) An order refusing leave to sue in forma pauperis,
- (10) An order granting review;
- (11) An order allowing withdrawal of the suit with liberty to file a fresh one,
- (12) An order holding that the defendants are not agriculturists within the meaning of the special law,

(13) An order staying or refusing to stay a suit under Sec.10 of the Code of Civil Procedure,

(14) An order granting or refusing to stay execution of the decree,

(15) An order deciding payment of court-fees against the plaintiff.”

Item No.13 is an order staying or refusing to stay a suit under Sec.10, C.P.C., the order impugned in the instant appeal.

12. Addressing itself to a question as to the maintainability of an appeal falling outside the scope of Sec.39(1) of the Arbitration Act, a Full Bench of this Court in Loyal Textile Mills Ltd., Madras v. Allenberg Cotton Company, etc., Tennessee, United States of America represented by its Chairman, O.S.A.No.103 of 1989, judgment dated 3 10.1991, has gone into some details of the law on the subject and has said as follows:

“In the context of the origin of the letters patent appellate power of this Court and the scope and ambit of the appeal against a judgment on the Original Side of the Court, we have no hesitation in holding that, if all the conditions for an appeal against a judgment under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent are satisfied and when there is no specific bar, merely because some other law is providing appeals against certain types of orders and says that against the other orders, there shall be no appeal to a Court, it cannot be inferred that, even if it is appealable under clause 15 of the Letters Patent, since it is not appealable under Sec.39(1) of the Arbitration Act, 1940, there shall be no appeal.”

In coming to the above conclusion the Full Bench adverted to almost every aspect of the law on the subject and noticed that, “there has been unanimity among the Chartered High Courts that the word “judgment” in Clause 15 embraces not only judgments given in the exercise of jurisdictions specifically mentioned in the letters patent but also in the exercise of jurisdictions not so mentioned” and that, “Clause 15, Letters Patent of the Chartered High Courts gives a right of appeal from the judgment within the meaning of that term as used in that clause of a single judge of the High Court to a Division Bench of that High Court and there is no qualification or limitation as to the nature of the jurisdiction exercised by the single judge while passing his judgment provided an appeal is not barred by any statute (for example, Sec.100-A of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908) and provided the conditions laid down by Clause 15 itself are fulfilled.

13. Since the Supreme Court has already declared the law and we are obliged to follow it, we have to hold notwithstanding the judgment of the Full Bench of this Court in Central Brokers v. Ramnarayana Podder and Company, A.I.R. 1954 Mad. 1057 (F.B.), that the appeal is maintainable.

14. The learned single Judge has said that the question involved in the O.P.No.694 of 1991 of this Court and the proceedings in the Family Court cannot be the same although there may be a little overlapping in the matter of evidence to be adduced in both. We have, however, noticed that Radhika has moved the Family Court at Bombay in a suit for divorce which is under Sec.13(1A) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and a declaration that she is entitled to the custody of her minor child. The Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 has got a salutary provision in Sec.26 thereof which reads as follows:

“In any proceeding under this act, the Court may, from time to time, pass such interim orders and make such provisions in the decree as it may deem just and proper with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of minor children, consistently with their wishes, wherever possible, and may, after the decree, upon application by petition for the purpose, make from time to time, all such orders and provisions with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of such children as might have been made by such decree or interim orders in case the proceeding for obtaining such decree were still pending, and the court may also from time to time revoke, suspend or vary any such orders and provisions previously made.”

15. A mere glance at this provisions shows that in a suit seeking divorce, the court can make provisions in the decree itself with respect to the custody of the child and may after the decree upon application by petition filed for the purpose, make from time to time, all such orders and provisions with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of such children as might have been made by such decree. Thus, the prayer in the Family Court suit at Bombay for a decree cannot be equated with the decree for interim custody in the sense of an order pendente lite.

16. In most of the cases custody orders have to be made for limited purpose. No minor can be ordered to be always in custody of another, the limit being the statutory age of majority. Once however, the question of custody of a minor child is an issue on fact and law in the proceeding before the Family Court, if the same issue is brought between the same parties in another court, the judgment of one delivered earlier has to operate as res judicata in the other.

17. It is not necessary, as has been held by different High Courts and about there is a consensus of judicial opinion, that the matter directly and substantially in issue in former as well as subsequent suits, should be the same in all respects. After referring to quite a few decisions on the subject cited at the Bar a learned single Judge of the Patna High Court in Pulchand Moulal v. Madhar Lall, A.I.R. 1973 Pat. 196, has said,

"I do not propose to deal with these cases because, while they are undoubtedly instructive, they do no more than illustrate the true scope of Sec.10 of the Code. In my opinion, therefore, it will be more profitable to examine the requirements of Sec.10, the provisions of which are really not in doubt. Under this section, the Court is prohibited from proceeding with the trial of a suit where two conditions exist, namely, (i) where there is a previously instituted suit between the same parties and (ii) where the matter directly and substantially in issue in both the suits is the same. The first of these requirements of Sec.10 can present no difficulty, and, for determining whether the second one exists or not, the court has to direct its attention to the pleadings of both the suits and to determine what is the matter directly and substantially in issue in the two suits. Having ascertained this, the Court has further to consider whether or not the matter directly and substantially in issue in both the suits is the same. The test to be applied for this purpose is not whether the cause of action or the reliefs claimed in both the suits are the same, nor whether one of the issues arising in both of them is the same. The test is whether the decision of the matter directly and substantially arising in the former suit will decide not merely that suit, but will also operate as res judicata in the subsequent suit between the same parties. It will be noticed that the expression 'directly and substantially in issue', which has been employed in Sec.10, is also to be found in Sec.11 of the Code. While Sec.10 relates to res subjudice that is, a matter which is pending a judicial adjudication, Sec.11 relates to res judicata, that is to say, a matter already adjudicated upon by a competent Court. Whereas Sec.10 bars the trial of a suit in which the matter directly and substantially in issue is pending adjudication in a previous suit, Sec.11 bars the trial of a suit or an issue in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has already been adjudicated upon in a former suit. The object of both the sections is similar, namely, to protect the parties from being vexed twice, for the trial of the same cause and to achieve the public policy that there should be an end of litigation. Therefore, one of the objects of Sec.10 is to prevent competent courts of concurrent jurisdiction from having to try parallel suits in respect of the same matter in issue, and thereby to pave the way for the application of the rule of res judicata contained in the next following section. So, what the Court has really to see is if the decision of the matter directly and substantially in issue in the former suit will or will not lead to the decision of the matter directly and substantially in issue in the subsequent suit, and if it is satisfied that it will, then it must stay the trial of the subsequent suit and await the decision in the former suit."

18. A similar view is also taken by a bench of the Calcutta High Court in A.C. Industrial Ltd. v. Rishabab Manufacturers, A.I.R. 1972 Cal. 128, wherein it has said,

"The matter for determination in the case of an application for stay under Sec.10 is not what the basis of the claim in the two suits is but what is the matter in issue in the two suits. The two different basis of claim, namely, one based on a contract and the other on a tort would not make the matters in issue in the two suits different merely on that ground. If a claim based on a contract in one suit, is sought to be avoided and repelled on the ground of fraudulent misrepresentation and a subsequent suit is filed claiming damages on the basis of a fraudulent misrepresentation with regard to the same contract, the issues nevertheless in the two suits would be substantially the same, even though the basis of the claim in the two suits are altogether different."

19. There is a special Act called the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act (XXXII of 1956) which in Sec.4(a) defines a 'minor' to mean a person who has not completed the age of eighteen years and in Sec.4(b) a 'guardian' to mean a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property or of both his person and property and includes-(i) a natural guardian, (ii) a guardian appointed by the Will of the minor's father or mother, (iii) a guardian appointed or declared by a Court, and (iv) a person empowered to act as such by or under any enactment relating to any Court of Wards; and in Sec.4(c) 'natural guardian' to mean any of the guardians sanctioned in Sec.6, namely, in respect of the minor's property, in the case of a boy or an unmarried girl-the father, and after him, the mother; provided that the custody of a minor who has not completed the age of five years shall ordinarily be with the mother; in the case of an illegitimate boy or an illegitimate unmarried girl-the mother and after her, the father and in the case of a married girl-the husband. The powers of the natural guardian are circumscribed by the provisions in Sec.8 of the said Act which besides other things, states that the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, shall apply to and in respect of an application for obtaining the permission of the Court under Sub-sec.(2) in all respects as if it were an application for obtaining the permission of the Court under Sec.29 of the Act (VIII of 1890) and in particular-proceedings in connection with the application shall be deemed to be proceedings under that Act within the meaning of Sec.4-A thereof; and the Court shall observe the procedure and have the powers specified in Sub-secs.(2), (3) and (4) of Sec.31 of that Act and that an appeal shall lie from an order of the Court refusing permission to the natural guardian to do any of the acts mentioned in Sub-sec.(2) of this Section to the Court to which appeals ordinarily lie from the decisions of that Court.

20. The provisions in the Guardians and Wards Act, however, show that the natural guardian needs no order by the court for exercising the powers of a natural guardian and that in case a ward is found leaving or removed from the custody of the guardian the power is given to the Court to make suitable orders. Sec.25(1) of this Act reads as follows:

"If a ward leaves or is removed from the custody of a guardian of his person, the Court, if it is of opinion that it will be for the welfare of the ward to return to the custody of his guardian, may make an order of his return and for the purpose of enforcing the order may cause the ward to be arrested and to be delivered into the custody of the guardian."

21. We do not propose, since we are not disposing of O.P.No.694 of 1991, to say anything on the question as to why then the respondent has filed a petition for a declaration that he is the guardian when in the Bombay case it is clearly stated that he is the father of the child and a prayer has been made for the custody of the child by the appellant Radhika, his wife if not for the purpose of getting some order for the custody of the child, a matter which is directly and substantially in issue in the Family Court at Bombay.

22. It is not in dispute that the child is below five years. Ordinarily thus the custody has to be with the mother. The mother has accordingly prayed for a decree for such a custody in the Family Court at Bombay. The father, who is the respondent can have every say and thus can say to the Court that the child's custody with the mother may not be in the interest of child. We are constrained to observe that the suit has been filed in this Court by the respondent has brought in substantially the same questions of fact with respect to the custody of the child which have to be decided by the Family Court. We are not, therefore, in agreement with the view expressed by the learned single judge that the questions involved in O.P.No.694 of 1991 in this Court and the proceedings in the Family Court cannot be the same although there may be a little overlapping in the matter of evidence to be adduced in both.

23. Since we are of opinion that the suit in this Court should be stayed until the disposal of the issue as to the custody of the child in the Family Court at Bombay we have no hesitation in holding that any direction on the application of the respondent-husband as to the right of the respondent visiting the child or to take away the child as long as he desired for the outings subject to his leaving the child in the custody of the wife while returning from Bombay will not be justifiable. We have no reason to think that the Family Court where the issue is pending shall not exercise its judicial discretion properly and shall not thus bestow all relevant considerations to the rights of the respondent-husband vis-a-vis that of the wife (appellant) as well as their liabilities and responsibility. It shall always be open to any of the parties including the respondent to move for appropriate directions before the Family Court where the suit for divorce in which a decree for custody of the child is sought for is pending.

24. In the result both the appeals are allowed and the impugned orders are set aside. Application No.69 of 1992 is allowed and O.P.No.694 of 1991 is stayed until the disposal of the suit in the Family Court at Bombay, viz., M.J. petition No.A-1744 of 1991. In so far as the relief as to the custody of the child is concerned Application No.6404 of 1991 is dismissed. In the facts and circumstances of the case, there shall be no order as to costs.

B.S. ---- Appeals allowed Application and petition ordered.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present: Srinivasan, J.

W.P.No.10018 of 1992 7th August, 1992.

L.Subbian ...Petitioner
v.

The Deputy Commissioner of Labour,
Coimbatore and another ...Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act (XXXVI of 1947), Secs.4(1)(a), 5 and 41(2) - Act, if applicable to person employed in a position of management?

The petitioner who was employed as a supervisor for more than 35 years in the second respondent-company drawing a salary of Rs.2,075 per mensem was discharged from service by oral order on 1.11.1988. In spite of his demand for restoration of services, the second respondent was not inclined to do so. The petitioner filed an appeal under Sec.41(2) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act to the first respondent. Holding that the Act did not apply to a person employed in a position of management, the first respondent dismissed the appeal. He filed a petition for the issue of a writ of certiorarified mandamus to quash the orders of termination.

Sec.4(1)(a) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act provides that nothing contained in Act shall apply only to the persons employed in any establishment in a position of management. But Sec.5 thereof empowers the Government to issue a notification applying all or any of the provisions of the Act to any class of persons or establishments mentioned in Sec.4 of the Act, other than those mentioned in Clauses (e) and (f) of Sub-sec.(1). Thus, with regard to Sec.4(1)(a) of the Act, the Government is entitled to issue a notification to the effect that the Act will apply to persons covered by the said sub-section. The Government has issued a notification G.O.Ms.No.4074, Industrial Labour and Housing (Labour), dated 5th October, 1966 by exercising the powers conferred under Sec.5 of the Act, applying all the provisions of the Act to the clause of persons mentioned in Clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Sec.4. Thus, the Act applied to all persons who are employed in any establishment in a position of management. Hence, the Act will apply to the petitioner also, though he is employed as a supervisor, in a position of management. Hence, the first respondent is clearly wrong in dismissing the appeal of the petitioner on that ground.

[Paras 4 and 5]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorarified mandamus calling for the records for the concerned records pertaining to the first respondent TNSE No.1/89 quash the order dated 20.4.1992 and consequently direct the first respondent to dispose of the appeal in TNSE No.1/89 on its merits in accordance with law.

K.Chandru, for Petitioner.

T.S.Gopalan, for Respondents

The Court made the following

ORDER: The writ petition is taken up with the consent of the parties. Mr.T.S.Gopalan has stated that he has filed vakalat today for the second respondent.

2. The prayer in the writ petition is to issue a certiorarified mandamus calling for the concerned records of the first respondent in TNSE Case No.1

of 1989 and quash the order made therein with a consequential direction to the first respondent to dispose of the appeal on merits. The petitioner was employed for more than 35 years in the second respondent-company as a Supervisor drawing a salary of Rs 2,075 per mensem. On 1.11.1988 the second respondent stated that the management had changed hands and the services of the petitioner were no longer required. The petitioner protested stating that he was entitled to continue in service till attained the age of 58 years. But his services were terminated by oral orders from 1.11.1988. Against the oral order of termination, the petitioner sent a letter on 2.12.1988 and demanded restoration of services. The second respondent sent a letter stating that further time was required to send a reply. Subsequently, the petitioner received a lawyer's notice dated 6.1.1989 to which he sent a reply on 1.8.1989. As the second respondent was not inclined to restore the petitioner to service, the petitioner filed an appeal to the first Respondent, as he is competent authority to hear an appeal under Sec.41(2) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act, 1947.

3. The appeal was contested on several grounds. One of the same was that the appeal was filed out of time. The first respondent passed an order in which he has discussed at length the question of condonation of delay, but he has not given a definite finding as to whether the delay is condoned. However, he proceeded to hold that a person employed in a position of management in any establishment, is exempted from the purview of the Act by virtue of Sec.4(1)(a) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act. Thus, holding that the Act will not apply to the petitioner herein, he dismissed the appeal. Aggrieved by the same, the petitioner has preferred this writ petition.

4. The view taken by the first respondent that the Act will not apply to the petitioner is clearly erroneous. Sec.4(1)(a) of the Tamil Nadu Shops and Establishments Act provides that nothing contained in the Act shall apply to the persons employed in any establishment in a position of management. But, Sec.5 thereof empowers the Government to issue a notification applying all or any of the provisions of the Act to any class of persons or establishments mentioned in Sec.4 of the Act, other than those mentioned in clauses (c) and (f) of Sub-sec.(1). Thus, with regard to Sec.4(1)(a) of the Act, the Government is entitled to issue a notification to the effect that the Act will apply to persons covered by the said sub-section 5. The Government has issued a notification G.O.Ms.No.4074, Industries, Labour and Housing (Labour), dated 5th October, 1966 by exercising the powers conferred under Sec.5 of the Act, applying all the provisions of the Act to the class of persons mentioned in clause (a) of Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.4. Thus, the Act applied to all persons who are employed in any establishment in a position of management. Hence, the Act will apply to the petitioner also, though he is employed as a Supervisor, in a position of management. Hence, the first respondent is clearly wrong in dismissing the appeal of the petitioner on that ground.

6. In the result, the order of the first respondent in TNSE Case No.1 of 1989 dated 20.4.1992 is quashed and the matter is remanded to the file of the first respondent for fresh disposal in accordance with law. As the first respondent has not decided any of the questions including the question of limitation raised before him by the parties he shall consider the entire appeal and decide all the questions raised by the parties, in accordance with law.

7. The writ petition is allowed accordingly. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Maruthamuthu, J.

C.R.P.No.3072 of 1991

7th August, 1992

Sectharaman
v.

...Petitioner

Vaduvambal

...Respondent.

Hindu Marriage Act (XXV of 1955), Secs.27 and 28(1) and (2) - Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.105(1) - Petition by wife under Sec.27 of Hindu Marriage Act for return of jewellery - Dismissed - Appeal against dismissal, if can be maintained.

Sec.105 of the Code of Civil Procedure makes it clear that the respondent cannot prefer an appeal against the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989. The order against which the respondent seeks to prefer appeal is not one passed under the Civil Procedure Code, but under Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act. In view of Sec.28(1) of the Hindu Marriage Act, it can be stated that the decree passed by the trial court for dissolution of marriage under Sec.3 is a decree which is appealable, but it cannot be so in the case of the order passed under Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act in I.A.No.184 of 1989. The said order is only an order passed in an interim application and not decree. A combined reading of Sec.28(1)(2) makes it abundantly clear that appeals can be only from orders of permanent nature under Secs.25 and 26. Since the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989 for return of the jewels is an interim order and not of a permanent nature as contemplated under Sec.28, it has to be said that the respondent is not entitled to maintain an appeal against the said order.

[Para 5]

Cases referred to:

Gurbaksh Singh v. Taran Jit, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 66. [Para 6]

Dhani Rani v. Sushila, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 83. [Para 6]

Narain Singh v. Rukmani, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 93. [Para 6]

Petition under Sec.115 of Act V of 1908 praying the High Court to revise the order of the District Court, South Arcot District at Cuddalore, dated 3.10.1991 and made in C.M.A.No.29 of 1990.

V.Prabhakar, for Petitioner.

R.Yashodhavaradhan, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER: The revision petitioner herein is the husband and the respondent herein is his wife. The revision petitioner filed the petition H.M.O.P.No.83 of 1987 under Sec.13(1)(b) of the Hindu Marriage Act (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'), praying for a decree for divorce against the respondent. The revision petitioner alleged in his petition that the marriage between him and the respondent took place at Panruti on 19.8.1983 and the respondent was not ordinarily and continuously living with the revision petitioner subsequent to the marriage and had chosen to live with her parents after deserting the revision petitioner and that the panchayat convened for the purpose of settlement became in vain. The revision petitioner has added that he filed H.M.O.P.No.667 of 1985 for restitution of conjugal rights and obtained an ex parte decree on 23.4.1987 and that the even thereafter the respondent had refused to go and live with the revision petitioner. After exhausting the steps to get at the respondent, the revision petitioner hastened to file the petition for divorce. This was resisted by the respondent. Of course, she admitted her marriage with the revision petitioner as true and valid, but she all that the revision petitioner had treated her with cruelty by compelling her to get Sridhana from her parents' house quite often. She contended that she was deserted by the revision petitioner in June, 1984. She however stated that she was willing to go and live with the revision petitioner, when the revision petitioner filed H.M.O.P.No.667 of 1985. She finally contended that there is no reason for granting a decree of divorce against her. Pending enquiry on the original petition, the respondent wife filed I.A.No.184 of 1989 under Sec.27 of the Act praying for a direction to the revision petitioner to return the gold jewels mentioned in the petition of the respondent. She alleged therein that the revision petitioner has married a second wife by name Gunabushani and that she is wearing the gold necklace of the respondent, weighing 40 grams, which is not to the liking of the respondent, stated that of the various items of jewellery, a gold coin weighing one sovereign, presented to her as 'Scer' during the first Deepavali, is with the revision petitioner. This was opposed by the revision petitioner stating that he is not in possession of any gold jewels belonging to the respondent. He also denied the allegation that he has married a second wife by name Gunabushani.

2. After enquiry of the main original petition and the interlocutory application, the learned Subordinate Judge, Cuddalore, granted a decree of divorce on the ground that the respondent deserted the revision petitioner and allowed the original petition. As regards the return of the jewels, the learned Subordinate Judge, Cuddalore, rejected the claim of the wife/respondent. Aggrieved by the said order of the learned Subordinate Judge, Cuddalore, the respondent herein preferred C.M.A.No.29 of 1990 as a single appeal, before the District Judge, South Arcot at Cuddalore. On the objection raised on behalf of the revision petitioner that no single appeal can be maintained on two orders passed by the Sub Court in O.P. and I.A., and that appeal could be filed on the orders, in I.A. The learned District Judge, South Arcot at Cuddalore.

"The prayer in the memo of appeal is for accepting this appeal and the petition for return of jewel in I.A.No.184 of 1989. Therefore, no separate appeal is necessary for I.A.No.184 of 1989. Appeal is maintainable for both orders....."

Now, the revision petitioner has come forward with the present Civil Revision Petition challenging the correctness of the said order of the learned District Judge, South Arcot at Cuddalore. He would reiterate his contention that no single appeal as C.M.A.No.29 of 1990 is maintainable for two orders passed by the Subordinate Judge. On two different subjects and that though appeal can lie as against the order passed in H.M.O.P.No.83 of 1987, no appeal can be maintained with regard to the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989, which is an order passed under Sec.27 of the Act. The learned Counsel for the revision petitioner contended that if at all, a revision alone can lie as against the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989 and that as the same has not been filed by the respondent so far, her claim for the return of the jewels asked for in I.A.No.184 of 1989 and rejected by the Subordinate Judge cannot be gone into by the lower appellate court.

3. On a consideration of the respective claims and contentions, I am afraid I may have to agree with the contentions raised on behalf of the petitioner. No doubt, the petitioner has filed a petition under Sec.13(1)(i-b) of the Hindu Marriage Act seeking a decree of divorce against the respondent and in the course of the same proceedings, the respondent has preferred an application I.A.No.184 of 1989 purporting the same as one under Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act praying for the return of the gold jewels mentioned in the said application to her in the event of grant of a decree of divorce. A casual scrutiny of the said application I.A.No.184 of 1989 shows that it is very difficult to hold that it is an application to come within the ambit of Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act. Sec.27 of the Act runs as follows:

"In any proceeding under this Act, the court may make such provisions in the decree as it deems just and proper with respect to any property presented, at or about the time of marriage, which may belong jointly to both the husband and the wife."

It only means and implies that in respect of any property presented at or about the time of marriage which may belong jointly to both the spouses can be claimed under Sec.27. In respect of other properties which do not belong to both the parties or which were not given to them at or about the time of marriage, any dispute with reference to such property must be settled in the ordinary court of the country and cannot be a matter for provision in the decree in the matrimonial proceeding. In fact, this is the objection raised on behalf of the petitioner. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that in as much as the gold jewels in respect of which an order is sought for by the respondent, have not been alleged to be those presented at or about the time of marriage, belonging to both of them, the application I.A.No.184 of 1989 is not maintainable and even the provision of law quoted as Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act is misconceived. According to it to file a suit for recovery of gold jewels. It may be noted here that the respondent alleges in her application that only a gold coin (one sovereign) was presented to her as 'seer' during first Deepavali and that the rest of the gold jewels, gold necklace weighing 40 grams and gold ring of half a sovereign merely belong to the respondent. She has not clearly alleged that those jewels were presented to her and the petitioner at or about the time of marriage.

4. Learned counsel for the respondent will not be right in invoking Sec.105(1) and (2), C.P.C. which is as follows:

"105. Other Orders: (1) Save as otherwise expressly provided, no appeal shall lie from any order made by a court in the exercise of its original or appellate jurisdiction; but where a decree is appealed from any error, defect or irregularity in any order, affecting the decision of the case, may be set forth as a ground of objection in the memorandum of appeal.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in Subsec.(1), where any party aggrieved by an order of remand from which an appeal, lies does not appeal therefrom, he shall thereafter be precluded from disputing its correctness."

Nor he will be entitled to rely on O.43, Rule 1-A, C.P.C. either, which is as follows:

"1-A. Right to challenge non-appealable orders in appeal against decrees: (1) Where any order is made under this Code against a party and thereupon any judgment is pronounced against such party and a decree is drawn up, such party, may in an appeal against the decree contend that such order should not have been made and the judgment should not have been pronounced."

The first part of Sec.105(1) reiterates that no appeal lies from any order unless such right is expressly given by the Code, but even if an interlocutory order be appealable, a party is not bound to prefer an appeal at once, and under the second part when he appeals against the decree after final decision he can make any error, defect or irregularity in the order affecting the decision of the case, a ground of objection in the appeal. The provision under O.43, Rule 1-A has been newly inserted in the Code. This rule makes an express provision to clarify the position consequent on the abolition of the right of appeal on order under O.8, Rule 10, O.10, Rule 4 and O.16, Rule 20, C.P.C., that in an appeal from the decrees passed as a result of the orders party can take the same point as he could have taken in appeal under those orders in order to avoid doubts which may arise, because the judgment pronounced will be regarded as final in the appeal against the decree. However, Sec.105 makes it sufficiently clear that an interlocutory order which had not been appealed from either because no appeal lay or even though an appeal lay, an appeal was not taken, could be challenged in an appeal from the final decree or order. Here, the point is whether the respondent against whom an order has been passed by the trial court in I.A.No.184 of 1989 in respect of the return of the jewellery, is entitled to prefer an appeal along with the Judgment of the trial court delivered in respect of the dissolution of marriage. The above provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure makes it clear that the respondent cannot prefer an appeal against the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989. The order against which the respondent seeks to prefer appeal is not one passed under the Civil Procedure Code, but under Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act.

5. The next point to be considered is whether there is provision in the Hindu Marriage Act for preferring an appeal against the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989. Sec.28 of the Act will be relevant and it is as follows:

"28. Appeals from decree and orders: (1) All decrees made by the court in any proceeding under this Act shall, subject to the provisions of sub-Sec.(3) be appealable as decrees of the court made in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, and every such appeal shall lie to the court to which appeals ordinarily lie from the decisions of the court given in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction.

(2) Orders made by the court in any proceeding under this Act, under Sec.25 or Sec.26 shall, subject to the provisions of Sub-sec.(3), be appealable if they are not interim orders, and every such appeal shall lie to the court to which appeals ordinarily lie from the decision of the court given in exercise of its original civil jurisdiction.

(3) There shall be no appeal under this section on the subject of costs only.

(4) Every appeal under this section shall be preferred within a period of thirty days from the date of the decree or order."

In view of Sec.28(1) of the Hindu Marriage Act, it can be stated that the decree passed by the trial court for dissolution of marriage under Sec.3 is a decree which is appealable, but it cannot be so in the case of the order passed under Sec.27 of the Hindu Marriage Act in I.A.No.184 of 1989. The said order is only an order passed in an interim application and not decree. A combined reading of Sec.28(1) and (2) makes it abundantly clear that appeals can be only from orders of permanent nature under Secs.25 and 26. Since the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989 for return of the jewels is an interim order and not of a permanent nature as contemplated under Sec.28, it has to be said that the respondent is not entitled to maintain an appeal against the said order.

6. In Gurbaksh Singh v. Taranjit, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 66, it has been observed as follows:

"A bare perusal of Sec.28 as amended would show that it makes only the decrees made by the court in any proceedings under this Act appealable. There is no mention of the orders as it stood under the old unamended Sec.28."

Similar view has been expressed in Dhani Ram v. Sushila, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 83, which is as follows:

"The decrees are order mentioned in Sec.28 of the Hindu Marriage Act, which provides for appeals are the decrees and orders specifically referred to by the Act itself. Certain other orders, it was held, were also appealable. Those are orders made under the Code of Civil Procedure by virtue of Sec.21 of the Hindu Marriage Act. Those orders are appealable if they have been made appealable expressly under the Code itself. No other order made in the course of trying in a petition under the Hindu Marriage Act is appealable. The order impugned in this appeal is an order staying the proceedings in the divorce petition until the application under Sec.24 of the Act is disposed of. No appeal lies against such an order."

In Narain Singh v. Rukmani, A.I.R. 1977 H.P. 93, it has been observed as follows: (Headnote).

"Under the amended Sec.28, an appeal is provided against those orders only which are made under Secs.25 and 26 of the Act; provided they are not interim orders. No appeal, therefore is contemplated under the amended law against an order under Sec.24 of the Act. What has not been expressly included in the new section must be implied to have been excluded. Therefore, no appeal lies now against an order under Sec.24."

It may be noted here that Sec.28 of the Act does not include Sec.24 with regard to the filing of appeal. Sec.24 deals with maintenance to be awarded pendente lite and expenses of proceedings.

7. Considering all aspects, I hold that the respondent is not entitled to prefer appeal against the order passed in I.A.No.184 of 1989 and that the appeal filed in the District Court, South Arcot at Cuddalore in C.M.A.No.29 of 1990 must be deemed to relate to the decree of divorce. The learned District Judge shall treat the said appeal accordingly and dispose of it expeditiously in accordance with law. The civil revision petition is allowed. No costs.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- K.S.Bakthavatsalam, J.

W.P.No.13380 of 1992 4th September, 1992.

D.S.Ravindradoss

...Petitioner

v.

The Government of Tamil Nadu, represented by its Secretary to Government, Health, Indian Medicine Homopathy and Family Welfare Department and others ... Respondents.

(A) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Natural justice - Principles of - Nature of.

It is well settled that principles of natural justice cannot be put into straight jacket formula and principle is flexible. It varies from case to case and depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, nature of right which may be affected.

[Para 7]

(B) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Writ petition under - If can be maintained by an unregistered association.

It has been held by this Court repeatedly that an unregistered association cannot maintain a writ petition.

[Para 7]

(C) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Public interest litigation - Maintainability of - Conditions for.

To entertain a petition as a 'public interest litigation', there should be a breach of public duty or violation of some provisions of the Constitution. The weapon of 'public interest litigation' as a safeguard must be utilised and invoked by the court with great deal of circumspection and caution. While it is the duty of this Court to enforce fundamental rights, it is also the duty of this Court to ensure that the weapon under Art.226 of the Constitution should not be misused or permitted to be misused. This Court has to protect the society from the so-called 'protectors'.

[Paras 10 and 11]

Case referred to:

Shri Sachidanand Pandey v. State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 1109. [Para 10]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorari calling upon the production of the order relating to the notice undated made in DIPR/MS/92 Ex.T., passed by the Government of Tamil Nadu represented by the 1st Respondent and quash the same.

S.Senthilnathan, for Petitioner

The Court made the following

ORDER: The prayer in the writ petition is as follows:

“.....to issue a writ or order or direction and in particular a writ of certiorari calling upon the production of the order relating to the notice undated made in DIPR/MS/92 Ext. passed by the Government of Tamil Nadu represented by the 1st respondent, quash the same and pass.....”

2. The petitioner is the father of a student studying in II year M.B.B.S. in the third respondent college. Obviously, the petitioner has admitted his daughter when the college was under the control of the Government.

3. Originally the third respondent college was run by a Trust and it was taken over by the then Government in 1989. This was challenged by the Trust before this Court. This Court dismissed the writ petition, upholding the takeover of the third respondent college by the Government. However, this Court directed the Government to pay compensation to the trust within a particular period. On appeal, a Division Bench of this Court consisting of Venkataswami and Abdul Hadi, JJ. reversed the order of this Court and upheld the contentions of the Management that the take-over of the college itself is bad. The result is the college run by the Trust, which is called Sri Ramachandra Medical College has to be handed over to the Trust. That judgment has become final. At this stage, the petitioner has come-up to this Court stating that as a parent he would prefer his daughter to study in a Government Medical College, since the Government Medical Colleges are attached to General Hospitals where students can gain more knowledge and experience.

4. To continue the narration after the order of the Division Bench of this Court, it is alleged that Government of Tamil Nadu decided to handover the said college to the third respondent and it was a rude shock to the student community as well as the parents and the students of the said college started agitation against the handing over of the college to the Trust. It is alleged in the affidavit that supporting the agitation by the students of Sri Ramachandra Medical College, medical students all over Tamil Nadu commenced agitation protesting the decision of the Government and demanding the take over by appropriate action. It is also alleged that the police was let loose to suppress the students and the agitators. In view of that the parents of the students of Sri Ramachandra Medical College have formed an Association by name Sri Ramachandra Medical College Parent's Association and the petitioner alleged that he is the Convenor of the said Association. However, it is not a registered Association.

5. At this stage, it is alleged that the Government is resorting to various measures to suppress, defeat and divide the agitating students and one of the methods adopted by the Government according to the petitioner is an announcement made by the Minister for Health in newspapers to the effect that the parents had discussed the matter with the Government and some of them wanted their wards to be transferred to Government Medical College from the third respondent college and the Government has consented. As such an announcement has been made in newspapers that students who jointed the said college in 1990-91 and 1991-92 should give written requisition to the second respondent before 4.9.1992 for such transfer. The application forms will be available at the office of the second respondent. The petitioner alleges that the announcement made by the Minister for Health as published in the newspapers is illegal, mala fide and arbitrary. It is also alleged that this action is against all canons of natural justice and the Notification seeking requisition from the students for transfer from the said Sri Ramachandra Medical College to Government Medical Colleges is contrary to the Indian Medical Council (Amendment) Ordinance, 1992. It is alleged that such transfer cannot be done without the prior approval of the Medical Council of India. It is also stated in the affidavit that the impugned notice has been issued to defeat the agitation of the students and parents. It is also stated in the affidavit that only a very few parents were compelled to go for talks and the decision of the Government was thrust upon them and out of 200 parents/guardians, 170 persons are with the petitioner. It is also alleged that the decision of the Government is mala fide and the Government is very keen only in breaking the unity and agitation of the students and parents. Just to confuse and divide the students, the Government has come forward with this offer. It is also alleged that the Government has not at all passed any Government Order in this respect and even the impugned notice does not contain the date of issue of the same. It is also stated that the impugned notice is a public announcement made in newspapers.

6. With these allegations, the petitioner has come up to this Court with the above said prayer. Mr.S.Senthilnathan, learned counsel for the petitioner strenuously contends that the petitioner is very much interested in his daughter studying in Sri Ramachandra Medical College, but that college should continue to be a Government college. The learned counsel further states that the notice issued by Minister concerned is not correct as the parents of the students did not meet the Minister concerned and it is a mala fide exercise of power just to defeat the parents and students of the college not to get into the agitation or continue the agitation. That apart, as per the recent Ordinance issued by the Government of India, consent of the Medical Council is necessary for starting Medical College or increasing these and as such, the learned counsel placing reliance upon this Ordinance contends that the announcement made by the Minister concerned is impossible as no permission of the Medical Council has been obtained by the Government of Tamil Nadu and as such the announcement itself is mala fide. That apart, the learned counsel states that this writ petition has been filed in the interests of the students community who are studying in Sri Ramachandra Medical College and on behalf of the parents of the students who are studying in the third respondent college.

7. I have given my careful consideration to the arguments of Mr.Senthilnathan, learned counsel for the petitioner. I may say immediately that I am not convinced that this is not a matter to be entertained in a writ petition by exercising discretionary jurisdiction under Art.226 of the Constitution. It is true that the third respondent college was managed by the Government when the petitioner's daughter was admitted into the college. However, it seems the college has been handed over to the Trust again by the present Government when a Division Bench of this Court has held that the taking over of the college by the Government is bad in law. The result is the order of the Division Bench of this Court has got to be obeyed by the State Government and what all the State Government has done is the implementation of the order passed by the Division Bench of this Court. As I have already stated that it is nowhere alleged in the affidavit that any appeal has been filed against the order of the Division Bench except a statement made before this Court by the learned counsel that an appeal is being filed before the Apex Court of the land against the order of the Division Bench of this Court, Maybe to, As it is the order of the Division Bench of this Court is binding on me, which has held that the taking over of the college by the Government in 1989 is bad in law, and as such the Government has got to comply with the order of the Division Bench of this Court, which the Government it seems has now complied with by handing over the college to the Trust, that cannot be a subject-matter before this Court, and if any order is passed by this Court, it will amount to reviewing of the order of the Division Bench of this Court. It cannot be done by this Court. The notice which is shown before me, is an announcement made by the Minister for Health in the interests of the students and parents as I can see from the notice. If the students or parents are aggrieved that the college has been handed over to a private Management and if they want to continue their studies they are given an option to join in a Government Medical College and if they want to continue in the same college, i.e. Sri Ramachandra Medical College they would pay only the fees applicable in other Government Colleges and this has been accepted by the Management. As such, the Government has come out with a Notification just to sort out the issue by way of compromise that such of those medical students, who joined Sri Ramachandra Medical College in 1990-91 and 1991-92 may give it in writing to the second respondent before 4.9.1992 their application seeking such transfer to Government Medical Colleges. Similarly, students in other medical colleges, who seek transfer to Sri Ramachandra Medical College may also apply to the second respondent. It is made clear in the announcement itself that the requests would be processed as per the guidelines of Medical Council of India. So, from the notice it is very clear that the Government in the interests of the student community has come out with this statement, in my view correctly, that if they want to continue their studies in a private college, they need not pay extra fees to the management. So also if the students do not want to continue their studies in the private college, they can get themselves transferred to any Government Medical College. In my view, this statement cannot be said to be mala fide or arbitrary. I am unable to accept what Mr.S.Senthilnathan means that principles of natural justice has been violated. It is well settled that principles of natural justice cannot be put into straight jacket formula and principle is flexible. It varies from case to case and depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, nature of right which may be affected. Here is a case where in the matter of taking over of a college by private management, an amicable solution has been given by the State Government and it is for the petitioner either to accept it or reject it. I do not think that it can give rise to a cause of action to come before this Court, especially by invoking the extraordinary jurisdiction of this Court under Art.226 of the Constitution. It is true that right to education is held to be a fundamental right. But I do not think that this fundamental right can be stretched to the extent as a right to study in a private college or Government college. So, on the simple ground that the petitioner has no locus standi in the sense that he has no right to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of this Court, the writ petition shall stand dismissed. That apart, the petitioner alleges in the affidavit that the parents have formed an Association and it is an unregistered association, but it has been held by this Court repeatedly that an unregistered association cannot maintain a writ petition.

8. At any rate, since I take the view that this is not a matter to be sorted out in the writ petition and this Court cannot be used so as to come to the aid of the petitioner when the Government has issued a Notification in newspapers with regard to some solution to sort out the agitation. This Court sitting under Art.226 of the Constitution, in my view, should see the interests of the students community as well as the management, to whom the college has been handed over in pursuance of the order of the Division Bench of this Court. To strike a balance, in my view, the Government has taken a right decision by publishing a notice in the newspapers. The contention that this method adopted by the Government is to break the unity of the students and to suppress the agitation of the students and parents, is not appealing to me. This is not a place where such contentions have got to be placed and surely not in a writ court.

9. The Notification which has been published in the newspapers, which is attacked in this writ petition, in my view, do not compel anybody to resort to any method. Any student can act voluntarily according to the Notification. So I am not able to accept the contention that the students and parents are coerced on giving consent for transfer etc. and such vague allegations cannot be countenanced.

10. There is an allegation made in the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition that the writ petition is to be treated as 'public interest litigation'. It is true that Art.226 of the Constitution of India is wide enough to enable this Court to issue a writ for any purpose and it is not confined to enforcement of Fundamental Rights. It has been held by the apex Court of the land in Shri Sachidanand Pandey and another v. The State of West Bengal, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 1109, by Khalid, J. as follows:

".....It is only when courts are apprised of gross violation of fundamental rights by a ground or a class action or when basic human rights are invaded or when there are complaints of such acts as shock the judicial conscience that the courts, especially this Court should leave aside procedural shackles and hear such petitions and extend its jurisdiction under all available provisions for remedying the hardships and miseries of the needy, the underdog and the neglected. I will be second to none in extending help when such help is required. But this does not mean that the doors of this Court are always open for anyone to talk in. It is necessary to have some self imposed restraint on public interest litigants."

On the facts and circumstances of the case on hand, I am of the opinion that this is not a writ petition filed to see enforcement of any public duty and observance of any constitutional or legal provision. To entertain a petition as a 'public interest litigation', there should be a breach of public duty or violation of some provisions of the Constitution. In my view, none is present here. As Khalid, J. has put it in the abovementioned case, such cases are filed without any rhyme or reasons. To quote the words of Khalid, J. in the abovementioned case, it runs thus. (at p. 1134)

"...Today public spirited litigants rush to Courts to file cases in profusion under this attractive name. They must inspire confidence in Courts and among public. They must be above suspicions. See the facts of this case and the end result...."

So I am of the view that this writ petition cannot be entertained as 'public interest litigation' and accordingly it has to fail."

11. Moreover, in my view of the weapon of 'public interest litigation' as a safeguard must be utilised and invoked by the Court with great deal of circumspection and caution. While it is the duty of this Court to enforce fundamental rights, it is also the duty of this Court to ensure that the weapon under Art.226 of the Constitution should not be misused or permitted to be misused. This Court has to protect the society from the so-called 'protectors'. As such, I am of the view that this writ petition is legally devoid of any merit or principles of public interest and public protection. Such writ petitions will certainly create bottlenecks in courts, which is an abuse of process of this Court. In view of that, this writ petition shall stand dismissed.

12. If any extension is asked for by any of the students or parents with regard to the cut-off date fixed in the Notification, I am sure that the State Government will consider it in the proper perspective.

B.S. --- Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Abdul Hadi, J.

A.S.No.198 of 1982 9th April, 1992.

Munuswami Chetty (Died) and others
...Petitioners
v.
Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.), Madras and others
...Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XXII of 1959), Sec.6(11) - Hereditary trusteeship - Title to - If can be acquired by prescription in the absence of any trustee against whom adverse possession could be claimed - Hereditary trustees - Kinds of.

The plaintiffs filed a petition before the Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) for declaration that they were the hereditary trustees of the suit temple. The prayer was negatived and their appeal before the Commissioner also failed. They then filed a suit under Sec.70 of the Tamil Nadu Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1959, before the Sub-court, Tiruvallur. It was dismissed. In appeal, it was contended that since the plaintiffs' family alone was in management of the temple from 1938, they should be declared the hereditary trustees and that at any rate they perfected title to the office by prescription. It was countered by the respondents with the objection that since there was no properly constituted trustee of the temple, there was no question of any prescriptive title.

Held:- In view of the observations in Kameswara Rao v. Somanna, A.I.R. 1955 A.P. 212, and other cases the objection of the respondents was valid and there is no scope for any prescriptive title to the plaintiffs in the present case with reference to the trusteeship of the temple. [Para 7]

There are three kinds of hereditary trustees as per the definition of that term found in Sec.6(11) of the Act. 1. A trustee, succession to whose office devolves by hereditary right. 2. A trustee, succession to whose office is regulated by usage. 3. A trustee, succession to whose office is specifically provided for by the founder. [Para 8]

Cases referred to:

Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Board v. Sidhivmayaga Mudaliar, (1971) 1 M.L.J. 422. [Paras 7 and 8]

Kameswara Rao v. Somanna, A.I.R. 1955 A.P. 212. [Para 7]

Palaniyandi Malayarayan v. Vadamalali Vidayan, 29 M.L.J. 685; A.I.R. 1916 Mad. 1001; 2 L.W. 723. [Para 7]

Manickam Pillai v. Thanikachallam Pillai, A.I.R. 1917 Mad. 706(1)(B). [Para 7]

Seeni Kutti v. Kunhi Pathumma, 33 M.L.J. 320; I.L.R. 40 Mad. 1040; A.I.R. 1919 Mad. 972. [Para 7]

Sambudamurthi Mudaliar v. State of Madras, (1970) 2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 5. [Para 8]

In re. Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1941, 1941 F.L.J. 1: (1941) 2 M.L.J. 12; 1941 F.C.R. 12. [Para 8]

Sri Mahant Paramananda Das Goswami v. Radhakrishna Das, (1926)51 M.L.J. 258. [Paras 8 and 9]

Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. v. Maliga and Shop Varthagar Sangam, (1976)1 M.L.J. 17. [Para 9]

Subramania Pillai v. Trustees, Temple Group, (1981)2 M.L.J. 77. [Para 11]

Executive Officer, Arulnighu Ranganathaswami Devasthanam v. H.H. Srivan Setagopa Sri Vedantha Desika Yathindra Mahadesigan, (1989)1 L.W. 361. [Para 14]

State of Maharashtra v. Sh. Chandra Kant, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 148; (1977)1 S.C.R. 993. [Para 14]

S.M. Chinna Kandar v. Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., I.L.R. (1980)2 Mad. 213. [Para 14]

Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. v. Kacherichamy, (1981)2 M.L.J. 375. [Para 14]

Lakshmana Shah v. Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., (1971)2 M.L.J. 495. [Para 14]

Dhian Singh Sobha Singh v. The Union of India, A.I.R. 1958 S.C. 274; 1958 S.C.R. 781. [Para 14]

Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. v. P. Kannappan Naicker, (1989) T.L.N.J. 232. [Para 14]

T. Viswanatha Rao, for Appellant.

Bhaskaran, A.G.P., for Respondent No.1.

T.L. Ram Mohan for M/s. M. Subramanian Rao, for Respondents.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT: The unsuccessful plaintiffs, ten in number, are the appellants. Having initially failed before the authorities under the Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1959, (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'), in their O.A.No.20 of 1969 on the file of the Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) Department and the subsequent appeal, A.P.No.56 of 1975, on the file of the Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) Department, they filed O.S.No.61 of 1979 on the file of the Sub Court, Tiruvallur, to set aside the order in A.P.No.56 of 1975 and consequently to allow their petition, O.A.No.20 of 1969. The said suit filed under Sec.70 of the Act was dismissed and hence this appeal.

2. The abovesaid authorities negated the plaintiff's prayer for declaration that they are the hereditary trustees of the suit temple. According to the plaint, suit temple was built by the father of plaintiffs 1 and 2 with the funds supplied by the family of all plaintiffs in the year 1921, all of them hail from a common ancestor and they and their predecessors alone have been the hereditary trustees of the suit temple all along for over five decades. They also pleaded that they have perfected their right to be such hereditary trustees by continuous, uninterrupted and open enjoyment thereof adverse to the interest of any other person.

3. The first defendant, who died pending the suit and whose legal heirs are defendants 3 to 9, filed a written statement repudiating the claim of the plaintiffs. According to him, the management of the temple was with the elders of the village representing various castes, with the consent of the villagers. The second defendant Commissioner of the Department, filed a written statement also stating that the suit temple has been managed by the villagers and that the claim of the plaintiff was untenable.

4. The court below has held that the plaintiffs are not the hereditary trustees and that the abovesaid order of the Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. is not liable to set aside, but it did not go into the question of the plaintiff's claim of title to the office by adverse possession.

5. The court below also found that the allegation that the suit temple was constructed by the ancestors of the plaintiffs is not proved. Against this finding there is no attack by the learned counsel for the appellants, but he only made before me two submissions. The first one is that it is in evidence that right from 1938, the plaintiffs family was alone in management of the suit temple and so they should be declared hereditary trustees as defined under Sec.6(11) of the Act. His second submission is that at any rate the plaintiffs have perfected title to the said office by prescription. In this appeal I have to consider these two submissions only.

6. The said claim of the learned counsel for the appellants is strongly rebutted by both the learned counsel for the first respondent/Commissioner and for the other respondents the legal representatives of the deceased first defendant.

7. Let me first of all dispose of the question of title by adverse possession. No doubt, as pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellants, this Court held in Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Board v. Sidhivmayaga Mudahar, (1971)1 M.L.J. 422, that even the office of hereditary trusteeship could be acquired by prescription. But the learned counsel for the respondents 2 to 8 relied on Kameswara Rao v. Somanna, A.I.R. 1955 A.P. 212, to contend that unless there is a rightful claimant to the office, no person can set up title by adverse possession and the question of adverse possession would not arise at all in such a case. According to the learned counsel for respondents 2 to 8, in the present case though the villagers had the right to elect the trustees for the temple, it is not shown by the plaintiffs that there was any trustee or trustees elected or nominated at any point of time by the villagers, against whom adverse possession could be claimed by the plaintiffs. The relevant passage in Kameswara Rao v. Somanna, A.I.R. 1955 A.P. 212, runs as follows:-

"The learned Advocate for the respondents relied on Palaniyandi Malavarayan v. Vad-amalali Vidayan, 29 M.L.J. 685: A.I.R. 1916 Mad. 1001: 2 L.W. 723. The headnote sets out the legal position correctly and is in the following terms; 'The right to trusteeship of a temple cannot be acquired by adverse possession so long as there is no lawful trustee who could claim to recover the office from the person who claims to hold it adversely to him' "

.....

This decision was followed in Manickam Pillai v. Thanikachallam Pillai, A.I.R. 1917 Mad. 706(1)(B). The relevant observations are as follows:

'Since however there were no properly constituted trustees of the plaintiff temple there was no person with knowledge of the acts of the defendants or capable of taking proceedings necessary for the protection of the suit property and therefore, possession was not adverse until the appointment of trustees in 1900'

In Seeni Kuttu v. Kunhi Pathumma, 33 M.L.J. 320: I.L.R. 40 Mad. 1040: A.I.R. 1919 Mad. 972 (F.B.) at pages 984-985 (C), Srinivasa Iyengar, J. followed the two decisions referred to above."

In view of the observations, I think there is no scope for any prescriptive title to the plaintiffs in the present case with reference to the trusteeship of the temple.

8. Coming to the other question, it has to be seen whether the plaintiffs could be termed 'hereditary trustees' of the suit temple as per the definition of that term found in Sec.6(11) of the Act. Sec.6(11) of the Act runs as follows:

"Hereditary trustee' means the trustee of a religious institution, the succession to whose office devolves by hereditary right or is regulated by usage or is specifically provided for by the founder, so long as such scheme of succession is in force."

So there are three kinds of hereditary trustees as per the definition;

1. A trustee, succession to whose office devolves by hereditary right.
2. A trustee, succession to whose office is regulated by usage.
3. A trustee, succession to whose office is specifically provided for by the founder.

Admittedly, in the present case, the last category will not apply, because first of all there is no evidence as to who actually founded the suit temple and whether there was any specific provision made by the founder relating to the trusteeship. Regarding the second category, viz., a trustee, 'succession to whose office is regulated by usage', it has been held by the Supreme Court in Sambudamurthi Mudaliar v. State of Madras, (1970) 2 M.L.J. (S.C.) 5, as follows:

"The phrase 'regulated by usage' in Sec.6(9) of the Act must be construed along with the phrase 'succession to this office' and when so construed that part of the definition would only apply where the ordinary rules of succession under the Hindu Law are modified by usage and succession has to be determined in accordance with the modified rules. The word 'succession' in relation to property and rights and interests in property generally implies 'passing of an interest from one person to another' (vide: In re. Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1941, 1941 F.L.J. 1: (1941) 2 M.L.J. 12: 1941 F.C.R. 12) (emphasis supplied), (Sec.6(9) above referred to is of the old Act corresponding to the present 6(11) of the Act.)

Now, in the present case, there is no plea in the plaint that the succession to the office is regulated by usage. No doubt there is such a plea in the application, O.A.No.20 of 1969, before the Deputy Commissioner, as follows:

"...Office of the trusteeship is regulated by usage, that is the eldest male member of the family to hold office and in that the first petitioner has been holding the office for over 40 years."

Thus the regulation by usage is only regarding who actually among the members of the plaintiffs family is to hold office. If that is so, it is not known first of all how all the plaintiffs claimed in the present suit that all of them are hereditary trustees. Any way only to the extent that the elder male member could hold the trusteeship, there is a 'modified rule'. If at all, only the first plaintiff, who was the first petitioner in O.A.No.20 of 1969, can claim the hereditary trusteeship. But I find from the evidence of P.W.1, the first plaintiff himself that there was another person called Elumalai Chettiar, elder to the first plaintiff. If that is so, the first plaintiffs also cannot claim the hereditary trusteeship. The above said Elumalai Chettiar's name is no doubt mentioned as one of the nine trustees along with the first plaintiff, of the suit temple in Ex.A-3, the invitation for Kumbabishekam for this temple sent in the year 1938. But P.W.1 admitted as follows:-

“எக். ஏ.3. கும்பாபிஷேக பத்திரிகையில் 9 பேரி செட்டியார்களும் தேவாலய தர்மகர்த்தாக்கள் என்று போட்டிருப்பது தவறு”

Further P.W.1 also admitted as follows:

“தாவா கோவில் கிராமத்தைச் சேர்ந்த கோவில், அந்த அம்மன் கிராம தேவதை. அது பொதுவான கோவில், எங்கள் குடும்பத்துக்குச் சொந்தமான கோவில் அல்ல.

தாவா கோவில் இடிந்து போனபின் ஊரார் சரீர் ஒத்தாசை செய்து நாங்கள் பணம் போட்டு புதுப்பித்து கட்டினோம்.

334ம் நம்பர் பட்டாவில் கண்ட 1 ஏக்கர் 24 செண்டுக்கு இப்போது 8 வருஷமாகத்தான் 1ம் பிரதிவாதி கிஸ்தி செலுத்தி வந்தார். அதற்கு முன்பு லிங்கப்ப முதலி தான் அந்த பட்டாவுக்கு கிஸ்தி செலுத்தி வந்தார். 1917ம் வருடம் அம்மயப்ப முதலி தாவா கோயிலுக்கு அர்ச்சகராக இருந்தார். எனக்கு தெரிந்து 10 வருஷமாக இருந்தார். அவர் இறந்த பின் 1927ம் வருஷமிருந்து அவர் மகன் லிங்கப்ப முதலி 1942ம் வருஷம் அர்ச்சகராக இருந்தார்..... தாவா கோவிலில் எல்லோருக்கும் பாதியதை உண்டு. ஏக்.ஏ.3 பத்திரிக்கை போட்டதிலிருந்து ஊரிலுள்ளவர்கள் கலாட்டா செய்து தகராறு செய்ய ஆரம்பித்தார்கள்.

(emphasis supplied). (The abovesaid 1.24 acres one of the two landed properties of the suit temple is admittedly not with the plaintiffs all along; nor have they taken any steps to recover the same from the first defendant.) In the light of the above admission, it is clear that the plaintiffs can lay no claim to hereditary trusteeship of the first or second type above stated.

Further, in the above said connection, I may also point out the following observations in the decision reported in Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Board v. Siddhivinayaga Mudaliar, (1971)1 M.L.J. 422, (above referred to):

“The distinction between custom and usage as brought out in this decision has been clearly expressed in the following passage at page 15 of “Hindu Law” by N.R.Raghavachariar, 5th Edn.

Though usage and custom are often used as convertible terms, the antiquity, the uniformity and the notoriety which are required in the case of a custom are not necessary in proving a valid usage. It is sufficient if it is shown that the usage is so well-known and acquiesced in that it may be reasonably presumed to have been tacitly imported by the parties into their transactions.”

In the light of the above referred to evidence in the present case, and alleged usage cannot also be reasonably presumed to have been tacitly imported by the parties into their transactions. Therefore also the plaintiffs cannot claim to come under the above-referred to second type of hereditary trusteeship defined under Sec.6(11) of the Act. Further, though in the temple was only with Beri Chetty community to which the plaintiffs belong, it was not so stated in the plaint at all. Further P.W.1 admitted that it was not so stated in O.A.No.20 of 1969 proceedings. All these clearly show that the plaintiffs have taken out different stands at different times regarding their claim to hereditary trusteeship.

9. In this connection, I must point out the following passage from Sri Mahant Paramananda Das Goswami v. Radhakrishna Das, (1926)51 M.L.J. 258, which is also quoted with implied approval in the above-referred to in Sumbudamurthi Mudaliar v. State of Madras, (1970)2 M.L.J. 58, (S.C)

“Hereditary succession is succession by the heir to the deceased under the law, the office must be transmitted to the successor according to some definite rules for descent which by their own force designate the person to succeed.” (emphasis supplied).

Further in Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. v. Maligai and Shop Varthagar Sangam, (1976)1 M.L.J. 17, also, I find the following passage:

“The usage’ can have relevancy, meaning and significance only if a particular method of succession has been proved to be in existence over a long period during which more than one succession had been taken place.” (emphasis supplied)

But the plaintiffs as stated above is not having any specific case of such ‘definite rules of descent’ or ‘particular method of succession’. So also the plaintiffs cannot claim to be ‘hereditary trustees’ under the abovesaid Sec.6(11) of the Act either of the second or first type stated above.

10. No doubt, the learned counsel for the appellants brought to my notice the following features of the case; (1) In Ex.A-44, survey register of the suit temple properties, the first plaintiff is described as Dharmakarthā. The said document is signed and approved by the officers of the H.R. & C.E. Department. (2) An admission by D.W.1, the only witness examined on the side of the defendants is as follows:

— “1938ம் வருடம் லிங்கப்ப முதலி கோவிலைப் பூட்டி சாவியை பி.டபிள்யூ.1 இடம் ஒப்படைத்தார். அப்போதிருந்து சாவி அவரிடம்தான் இருக்கிறது. அதைப் பற்றி 1ம் பிரதி வாதியோ, மற்றவர்களோ எந்த தகராறும் செய்யவில்லை. பி.டபிள்யூ.1 கதவைத் திறந்து கோயில் விளக்கு ஏற்றுவார். அவர் விளக்கு ஏற்றுவதை நான் பார்த்து இருக்கிறேன்.

(3) The plaintiffs have examined three elderly persons in the village as P.Ws.2 to 4. They all support the case of the plaintiffs. P.W.2 is aged about 85, P.W.3, is aged 90 and P.W.4 is aged 65. (4) Right from 1947 to 1971 the appellants alone have paid kist in relation to one of the suit temple properties, as borne out by Exs.A-4 to A-42, the kist receipts. (5) As per Ex.A-49, photo, there is an inscription in the temple that a portion of the temple was constructed by Ramasami Chetty of the plaintiffs’ family.

11. Learned counsel for the appellants also relied on Subramania Pillai v. Trustees, Temple Group, (1981) 2 M.L.J. 77. There, after referring to several decisions, the Division Bench has observed that when members of a particular family alone were exercising rights of trusteeship, they would be ‘hereditary trustees’ under the abovesaid Sec.6(11) of the Act, that it is not necessary that the trusteeship should develop from father to son and so on and that as regards the person to act as trustee at any particular point of time, it would be open to the family to decide the matter as and when the question arises. Despite all these, I find the following features referred to by the learned counsel for the first respondent, apart from all that I have pointed out earlier; in Ex.B-53, the order in A.P.No.56 of 1975 passed by the Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. Department, it is observed that the appellants filed earlier O.S.No.129 of 1965 to get a declaration that they are the hereditary trustees of the suit temple and the said suit was dismissed and their subsequent appeal in A.S.No.323 of 1966 was also dismissed. No doubt, in this connection, the learned counsel for the appellants pointed out that in view of Sec.108 of the Act, the decisions in O.S.No.129 of 1965 and A.S.No.323 of 1966 are without jurisdiction, since the abovesaid declaration could be got only from the relevant authorities and not from a civil court. The said Sec.108 of the Act no doubt runs as follows:

“108. Bar of suits in respect of Administration or Management of Religious Institutions, etc.: No suit or other legal proceeding in respect of the administration or management of a religious institution or any other matter or dispute for determining or deciding which provision is made in this Act shall be instituted in any Court of law, except under, and in conformity with, the provisions of this Act.”

Sec.63(b) of the Act reads as follows:

“Deputy Commissioner to decide certain disputes and matters: Subject to the rights of suit or appeal hereinafter provided, the Deputy Commissioner shall have power to inquire into and decide the following disputes and matters;

(a)

(b) Whether a trustee holds or held office as a hereditary trustee.”

Therefore, according to the learned counsel for the appellants, the civil court has no jurisdiction in the above matter and the abovesaid dismissal of the suit and the appeal can have no effect. He also pointed out that there is no reference to the abovesaid decisions in O.S.No.129 of 1965 and A.S.No.323 of 1966 in the written statement of the Commissioner in the suit.

12. But the judgments in O.S.No.129 of 1965 and A.S.No.323 of 1966 have not been exhibited in this proceeding and it cannot be said definitely why the said suit and the appeal were dismissed. So in the absence of those documents (judgment copies), it will not proper for me to infer that the abovesaid suit and appeal are without jurisdiction, particularly when the plaintiffs have chosen to suppress the same in their plaint. If really they were without jurisdiction, the plaintiffs would have certainly referred to them and stated so in the plaint.

13. That apart, learned counsel for the first respondent/Commissioner brought to my notice another important admission by P.W.1, the first plaintiff in his deposition before the Deputy Commissioner in the abovesaid proceeding, O.A.No.20 of 1969 itself. (The said deposition is marked as Ex.B-2 in the suit). A portion of the said deposition is as follows:

"I belong to Beri Chetty community Kandappa Chetty is a Vaniya Chetty. There was no dispute about the honours. There was a dispute in 1938 about honours and there was panchayat on it and Ex.A-21 is the findings of the Panchayat. Kandappa Chetty was also in Management of the suit temple then." (emphasis supplied)

Ex.A-21, referred to in the passage quoted above, is the same as Ex.A-46, dated 24.12.1943 marked in the suit. It is the decision given by the panchayatdars when there was some dispute regarding temple honours in the suit temple between the first plaintiff and the above referred to Kandappa Chetty. In the abovesaid passage P.W.1 himself has admitted that Kandappa Chetty was also in management of the suit temple then. In the abovesaid context, the term 'then' therein should be taken as the period around the year '1943'.

14. Learned counsel for the first respondent/Commissioner also argued that without notice under Sec.80, Code of Civil Procedure the present suit filed is not maintainable and for this he relied on Executive Officer, Arulmighu Ranganathaswami Devasthanam v. H.H. Srivan Satagopa Sri Vedantha Desika Yathindra Mahadesigan and others, (1989)1 L.W. 361 and also State of Maharashtra v. Sh. Chandra Kant, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 148: (1977)1 S.C.R. 993. But the judgment reported in Executive Officer, Arulmighu Ranganathaswami Devasthanam v. H.H. Srivan Satagopa Sri Vedantha Desika Yathindra Mahadesigan and others, (1989)1 L.W. 361, has been set aside by the Supreme Court in H.H. Srivan Satagopa Sri Vedantha Desika Yathindra Mahadesigan and others, (1991)2 L.W. 599, wherein the Supreme Court has allowed the matter to be gone into on merits, despite the fact that the abovesaid Sec.80, C.P.C. notice was not there. That apart the learned counsel for the appellants relied on several earlier decisions of this Court like S.N.Chinna Kandar v. Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., I.L.R. (1980)2 Mad. 213, Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. v. Kacherichamy, (1981)2 M.L.J. 375, Lakshmana Shah v. Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., (1971)2 M.L.J. 495, wherein it was held differently from the decision reported in Executive Officer, Arulmighu Ranganathaswami Devasthanam v. H.H. Srivan Satagopa Sri Vedantha Desika Yathindra Mahadesigan and others, (1989)1 L.W. 361, holding that for the statutory suit under Sec.70 of the Act, notice under Sec.80, C.P.C. is not required. So far as State of Maharashtra v. Sh. Chandra Kant, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 148. (1977)1 S.C.R. 993, is concerned, that arises under M.P. Public Trusts Act, 1951 and there appears to be some differences between the relevant provisions in the said Act and Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1959, and so I am unable to follow the said decision. All these apart, the learned counsel for the appellants also pointed out that there could be waiver of notice required under Sec.80, C.P.C. and in that connection he relied on Dhian Singh Sobha Singh v. The Union of India, A.I.R. 1958 S.C. 274: 1958 S.C.R. 781 and Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. v. P.Kanniappan Naicker, (1989) T L.N.J. 232. This claim of waiver is submitted on the ground that in the written statement of the first respondent/Commissioner, the abovesaid notice question was not at all raised. In view of the abovesaid decisions, I hold that the suit is maintainable.

15. Yet, in view of my earlier mentioned conclusions, there is no merit in this appeal and hence it is dismissed. However, in the circumstances of the case, there will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Bellie, J.

Appeal No.255 of 1981

24th April, 1992.

M.Govindarajan and others ...Appellants
v.

The Indian Overseas Bank, Pondicherry by its Accountant ...Respondent.

Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act (XLV of 1988), Secs.2(a), 3, 4 and 7(1) - Sham and nominal transactions - If hit by Act - Parties if prohibited from contending that transaction is sham and no title passes under it.

Per Ramam, J. (on behalf of himself and Somasundaram, J.) on reference by Bellie, J.: Sham and nominal transactions would not be covered by the provisions of the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 and so it is open to the parties to contend that a transaction is sham and nominal and no title passes under it. [Para 9]

Kathoom Bivi Animal v. S.Mohamad alias Sheikh Mohamad, (1990)1 L.W. 284: (1990)2 M.L.J. 42, Overruled.

Ouseph Chacko v. Raman Nair, A.I.R. 1989 Ker. 317, Relied on.

The definition of 'benami transaction' in Sec.2(a) of the Act contemplates only real transaction when A sells property to B who pays consideration, but the document mentions X as the purchaser, while the real purchaser in this genuine sale is only B, X being the benamidar. There is an operative transfer resulting in the vesting of title in the transferee, though the consideration is provided by another and it is only this kind of transaction, which has been contemplated and also included in the definition of 'benami transaction' under Sec.2(a) of the Act. Thus in Secs.2, 3 and 4 of the Act there is absolutely no indication that sham and nominal transactions also were intended to be included within the definition of 'benami transactions' under the provisions of the Act. [Para 6]

The definition of 'benami transactions' in Sec.2(a) has to be read into Sec.4 of the Act also, while interpreting the words 'property held benami' and so read, only transactions answering the definition of a 'benami transaction' under Sec.2(a) of the Act, pursuant to which property is held benami, would be affected by Sec.4 of the Act. Sec.4 cannot be so interpreted as to include sham and nominal transactions, which are outside the scope of 'benami transaction' as defined by Sec.2(a) of the Act. [Para 9]

Similarly, the repeal by Sec.7(1) of the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, does not in any manner alter this position. The repeal by itself, would be of no avail to bring within the provisions of the Act, sham and nominal transactions. [Para 9]

Cases referred to:

Kathoom Bivi Animal v. S.Mohamad alias Sheikh Mohamad, (1990)1 L.W. 284: (1990)2 M.L.J. 42. [Paras 7,8 and 9]

Ouseph Chacko v. Raman Nair, A.I.R. 1989 Ker. 317. [Paras 10 and 8]

Meenakshi Mills Ltd. v. Commissioner of I.T., Madras (1957)1 M.L.J. 1: A.I.R. 1957 S.C. 49. [Para 3]

Bhim Singh v. Kan Singh, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 727. [Para 3]

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Karaikal, dated 17.1.1981 in O.S.No.17 of 1979.

K.Yamunan, for Appellants.

V.Narayanaswami, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER: The two defendants against whom the suit has been decreed is the appellants. The plaintiffs-Indian Overseas Bank, Pondicherry, got a money decree against the second defendant-Ramaswamy Mudaliar on 18.9.1975 by a Judgment of the High Court, for a sum of Rs.33,893. In execution of that decree in E.P.No.45 of 1976 the plaintiff attached the suit property-a house belonging to the second defendant on 24.10.1976. In the meanwhile, after filing of the suit on 19.11.1964, the second defendant on 21.11.1964 executed a sale deed in respect of the suit property in favour of the first defendant-his brother in law. First defendant filed a claim petition on the basis of the said sale deed, the certified copy of which is Ex.B-1 and claim petition was allowed on 16.11.1977. The plaintiff filed the present suit for setting aside that claim order, pleading that the alleged sale deed executed by the second defendant in favour of the first defendant is a benami transaction and only the second defendant was the owner in spite of the sale deed.

2. The suit was resisted by the defendants contending inter alia that the sale deed is true and genuine one and not a benami transaction as alleged and the suit is barred by limitation.

3. The learned trial Subordinate Judge who tried the suit accepted the plea of the plaintiff that the sale deed Ex.B-1 is benami and the title vests with the second defendant in spite of the sale deed. He further held that the suit is not barred by limitation. He answered the other issues raised in the suit also in favour of the plaintiff. In the result he decreed the suit as prayed for.

4. Mr.K. Yamunan, learned counsel for the appellant-defendants argued that

(i) the finding of the trial court that Ex.B-1 sale deed is a benami one and no title has passed under it contrary to the evidence and erroneous;

(ii) the sale deed in question comes within the mischief of Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 and therefore, the plaintiff cannot plead that the sale deed is a benami one; and

(iii) the finding of the trial Court that the suit is not barred by limitation is incorrect.

5. Though the plaintiff has pleaded that Ex.B-1 sale deed is a benami transaction, on a careful reading of the case in the plaint, the real case appears to be that Ex.B-1 sale deed is a sham and nominal one executed for the purpose of defeating the plaintiff from recovery of the amount due by the second defendant to them. As stated above, Ex.B-1 sale deed is executed by the second defendant in favour of the first defendant, which according to the plaintiff is not a valid one but fictitious with an anterior motive. Therefore the transaction according to the plaintiff is sham and nominal and not a benami transaction since in the case of a benami transaction one person passes consideration for the sale and gets the sale deed in the name of another person. Be that as it may, the question is, did the second defendant execute the sale deed Ex.B-1 in favour of the first defendant without any intention of passing title to the first defendant and with ulterior motive of secreting the property from the creditors (plaintiff).

[After discussing the facts His Lordship proceeded:]
6. As regards the plea of limitation, it is contended that in view of Art.2265 of the French Civil Code, the suit is barred by limitation. The said Art.2265 reads thus:

"A person who acquires an immovable in good faith and under an instrument which is on the face of it capable of giving a title, obtains a title by prescription to the land in ten years and district of the Court of Appeal, in which the owner lives is the same district as that in which the land lies, and in 20 years if the true owner lives outside such district."

A close reading of the Article shows that the condition prescribed for application of the Limitation in this Article is that the person must acquire the property in good faith. But as found above, Ex.B-1 sale deed is a sham ad nominal, and therefore the transaction is mala fide. Hence the trial court has rightly held that the suit is not barred by limitation.

7. The next contention of Mr.Yamunan is that in view of the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988, it is not open to the plaintiff to take the plea that Ex.B-1 is a sham and nominal sale. He submits that as per this Act it is not open to take a plea that a sale deed is sham and nominal, and no suit can be filed on such a plea. In support of this contention the learned counsel relies on a decision of a single Judge of this Court in Kathoom Bivi Ammal v. S.Mohamad alias Sheik Mohamad, (1990)1 L.W. 284; (1990)2 M.L.J. 284, wherein it has been held to the effect that a plea that a transaction is sham and nominal cannot be taken since such a transaction is hit by the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act. This view has been arrived at mainly on the ground that Sec.7 of the Act declares that Sec.81 and Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 along with some other provisions have been repealed.

8. Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 is as follows:-

"Where the owner of property transfers or bequeaths and it cannot be inferred consistently with the attendant circumstances that he intended to dispose of the beneficial interest therein, the transferee or legatee must hold such property for the benefit of the owner or his legal representative."

And Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act reads thus:

"Where property is transferred to one person for a consideration paid or provided by another person, and it appears that such other person did not intend to pay or provide such consideration for the benefit of the transferee, the transferee must hold the property for the benefit of the person paying or providing the consideration."

A reading of Sec.82 shows that it relates to benami transaction and therefore we are not concerned with that Sec.81 relates to sham and nominal transactions. A reading of this only conveys the meaning that in a sham and nominal transaction the transferee or legatee must hold such property for the benefit of the owner or his legal representative. In other words this section creates a statutory obligation on the part of the transferee or the legatee towards the transferor or the testator or his legal representative. So such a statutory obligation is removed when this section is repealed. This does not mean that a sham and nominal transaction itself is prohibited or it is not open for anyone to make a plea that a transaction is sham and nominal.

9. From the title of the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 itself it could be seen that what is prohibited under the Act is benami transactions and not any other transactions like sham and nominal transactions. The benami transaction has been defined in Sec.2(a) of the Act as meaning, 'any transaction in which property is transferred to one person for a consideration paid or provided by any other person'. Certainly a sham and nominal transaction does not come within the meaning of this definition. Therefore with great respect I am unable to agree with the decision of the learned single Judge of this Court in the case referred to above the sham and nominal transactions are also hit by the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act.

10. This view of mine is supported by a decision of the Kerala High Court in Ouseph Chacko v. Raman Nair Raghavan Nair, A.I.R. 1989 Ker. 317, wherein it has been held that,

"A right under the general law for a declaration from a Court of law that a transaction is fictitious, sham or nominal and that it has not been acted upon and was never intended to be acted, is not taken away by the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act. That right survives."

In this view of mine, I think it would be necessary and appropriate to refer the matter to a Division Bench on the point where the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act prohibits sham and nominal transactions also and it is not open to contend that a transaction is sham and nominal and no title passed under it.

11. Hence, the office will place the matter before my Lord the Chief Justice for necessary orders for posting the matter before a Division Bench. After a decision on this point, the matter will be placed before me for final disposal of the appeal.

This appeal having posted for answering a reference, before The Honourable Mr. Justice Ratnam and The Honourable Mr. Justice Somasundaram, on Monday, the 1st day, Tuesday the 2nd day, Monday the 15th day, Tuesday the 16th days of April 1991, upon perusing the grounds of appeal, the judgment and decree of the lower Court and the material papers in the suit and upon hearing the arguments of Mr. K. Yamunan, Advocate for the appellants and of Mr. V. Narayanaswami, Advocate for the respondent and having stood over for consideration till Tuesday the 11th day of June, 1991,

The Order of the Court was made by

Ratnam, J.:

"Whether the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 (45 of 1988) prohibits sham and nominal transactions also and it is not open to contend that a transaction is sham and nominal and no title passed under it."

is the question that has been referred to us for decision.

2. Inasmuch as the reference has arisen in the course of the hearing of an appeal, which still awaits consideration and disposal at the hands of the learned single Judge who made the reference, we have refrained from referring to the factual background giving rise to the pending appeal with a view to enable the learned Judge to further deal with the matter in the light of the answer to the reference and on the facts as may be found on the evidence.

3. The answer to the question referred would depend upon the types of transactions comprehended within the expression "benami transactions" and the scope of the impact of the provisions of the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 (45 of 1988) (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') and its fore-runner the Benami Transactions (Prohibition of the Right to Recover Property Ordinance, 1988) (Ordinance No.2 of 1988) (hereinafter referred to as 'the Ordinance'), on such transactions. Whatever views might have been earlier entertained with regard to the types of transactions, which could be called "benami transactions", considerable light had been thrown on the types of transactions, which can be appropriately comprehended within the expression

"benami" by two decisions of the Supreme Court in Meenakshi Mills Ltd. v. Commissioner of I.T., Madras (1957) 1 M.L.J. 1: A.I.R. 1957 S.C. 49 and Bhim Singh v. Kan Singh, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 727. In the first decision, viz., Meenakshi Mills Ltd. v. Commissioner of I.T., Madras, (1957) 1 M.L.J. 1: A.I.R. 1957 S.C. 49, though arising under the provisions of the Income Tax Act, 1922, the Supreme Court had to deal with the question, whether certain intermediaries of the assessee-company, were benamidars for the assessee. In that connection, Venkatarama Ayyar, J., speaking for the court, clearly set out the types of the transactions comprehended by the word 'benami', in the following terms:-

".....it is necessary to note that the word 'benami' is used to denote two classes of transactions, which differ from each other in their legal character and incidents. In one sense, it signifies a transaction which is real, as for example, when A sells properties to B, but the sale deed mentions X as the purchaser. Here the sale itself is genuine, but the real purchaser is B, X being his benamidar. This is the class of transactions which is usually termed as benami. But the word 'benami' is also occasionally used, perhaps not quite accurately, to refer to a sham transaction, as for example, when A purports to sell his property to B without intending that his title should cease or pass to B. The fundamental difference between these two classes of transactions is that whereas in the former there is an operative transfer resulting in the vesting of title in the transferee, in the latter, there is none such, the transferor continuing to retain the title notwithstanding the execution of the transfer deed. It is only in the former class of cases that it would be necessary, when a dispute arises as to whether the person named in the deed is the real transferee or B, to enquire into the question as to who paid the consideration for the transfer, X or B. But in the latter class of cases, when the question is whether the transfer is genuine or sham, the point for decision would be, not who paid the consideration, but whether any consideration was paid....."

Again, in Bhim Singh v. Kan Singh, A.I.R. 1980 S.C. 727, the Supreme Court dealt with the kinds of benami transactions generally recognized in this country. In that context, the Supreme Court observed at page 732 as follows:

".....Two kinds of benami transactions are generally recognized in India. Where a person buys a property with his own money, but in the name of another person, without any intention to benefit such other person, the transaction is called benami. In that case, the transferee, holds the property for the benefit of the person, who has contributed the purchase money, and he is the real owner. The second case, which is loosely termed as a benami transaction, is a case, where a person who is the owner of the property, executes a conveyance in favour of another, without the intention of transferring the title to the property thereunder. In this case, the transferor continues to be the real owner. The difference between the two kinds of benami transactions referred to above lies in one fact that whereas in the former case there is an operative transfer from the transferor to the transferee though the transferee holds the property for the benefit of the person who has contributed the purchase money, in the latter case, there is no operative transfer at all and the title rests with the transferor, notwithstanding the execution of the conveyance. One common feature, however, in both these cases is that the real title is divorced from the ostensible title and they are vested in different persons. The question whether a transaction is a benami transaction or not mainly depends upon the intention of the person, who has contributed the purchase money in the former case and not the intention of the person, who has executed the conveyance in the latter case. The principle underlying the former case is also statutorily recognized in Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, which provides that where property is transferred to one person, for a consideration paid or provided by another person and it appears that such other person did not intend to pay or provide such consideration for the benefit of the transferee, the transferee must hold the property for the benefit of the person paying or providing the consideration....."

From the aforesaid decisions of the Supreme Court it is clear that the two types of transactions, which can be regarded as 'benami' are

- (i) where a person buys property with his own funds or money, but in the name of another without any intention to benefit such other person; and

(ii) where a person executes a conveyance in favour of another, without any intention to transfer the beneficial interest in the property to that person.

The first type of transaction, according to the Supreme Court, is, without doubt, a benami transaction. However, the second type of transaction, which is only a transaction as such in name and not in reality, is also, in a loose and erroneous sense, called a benami.

4. It is in the aforesaid conceptual background relating to benami transactions, the provisions of the Ordinance and the Act, have to be examined to ascertain whether benami transactions, strictly so called or even otherwise loosely called so, had been dealt with, under its respective provisions. The provisions of the Ordinance may first be taken up for consideration. The object of the Ordinance was to prohibit the right to recover property held benami and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. Sec.2(1) of the Ordinance prohibited the enforcement of any right in respect of any property held benami, in a suit, claim or action at the instance of a real owner or on his behalf, against the benamidar or any other person. Under Sec.2(2) of the Ordinance, in a suit, claim or action, by or on behalf of a person claiming to be the owner of the property, though held benami, no defence based on benami, could be raised by the real owner, against the person in whose name the property is held or any other person. Sec.2(3) of the Ordinance provided for exceptions, in relation to the applicability of Sec.2(1) and (2) of the Ordinance in the two specified cases enumerated thereunder. Sec.3 of the Ordinance contained a provision to the effect that nothing therein shall affect the provisions of Sec.53 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (4 of 1882) or any law relating to transfers for an illegal purpose. Under Sec.4(1) of the Ordinance, Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 (2 of 1882), Sec.66 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) and Sec.281-A of the Income Tax Act, 1961 (43 of 1961) were repealed. Sec.4(2) of the Ordinance declared that nothing in Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.4 of the Ordinance, shall affect the continued operation of Sec.281-A of the Income Tax Act, 1961, in so far as the State of Jammu and Kashmir is concerned. Though the provisions of the Ordinance, under

Sec.1(3) thereof, came into force on 19.5.1988, the Law Commission was requested to take up the provisions of the Ordinance for detailed examination and give its considered views, so that on the basis of the recommendations of the Law Commission, the Ordinance could be replaced by an appropriate act. In its One Hundred Thirtieth Report on Benami Transactions, the Law Commission had made some recommendations and purporting to incorporate those recommendations, as could be seen from the Statement of Objects and Reasons, the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 came to be passed repealing the Ordinance. The objects of the Act are wider than the objects of the Ordinance and are two fold, viz., (i) to prohibit benami transactions; and (ii) to prohibit the right to recover property held benami. Secs.3, 5 and 8 of the Act came into force on 6.9.1988 and its other provisions were deemed to have come into force on 19.5.1988, when the repealed Ordinance was promulgated. Consistent with one of the objects of the Act, viz., prohibition of benami transactions, it became necessary in the Act, to define a 'benami' transaction. Sec.2(a) of the Act defines a 'benami transaction' as meaning any transaction, in which property is transferred to one person, for a consideration paid or provided by another person. 'Property' has been defined under Sec.2(c) of the Act, as meaning property of any kind, whether movable or immovable, tangible or intangible, and includes any right or interest in such property. Sec.3(1) of the Act prohibited a person from entering into any 'benami' transaction. Under Sec.3(2) of the Act, the purchase of property by a person in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter was taken outside the operation of Sec.3(1) of the Act and a presumption had also been enacted in that such property so purchased shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, to be for the benefit of the wife or the unmarried daughter. Sec.3(3) of the Act makes the entering into benami transaction, a punishable offence with imprisonment for a term, which may extend to three years or with fine or with both and under Sec.3(4) of the Act, such an offence, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, is declared to be non-cognizable and bailable. Sec.4 of the Act prohibited the right to recover property held benami and this is couched in language identical to that found in Sec.2 of the Ordinance. Sec.5 of the Act provides for acquisition of properties held benami by such authority, and in such manner and after following such procedure, as may be prescribed, and no amount shall be payable for the acquisition of any property. Sec.6 of the Act corresponds to Sec.3 of the Ordinance. Sec.7(1) of the Act provides for repeal of Secs.81, 82 and 94 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, Sec.66 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 and Sec.281-A of the Income Tax Act, 1961. Sec.7(2) of the Act corresponds to Sec.4(2) of the Ordinance. Sec.8 of the Act provides for the making of the Rules for carrying out the objects and purposes of the Act. Under Sec.9(1) of the Act, the Ordinance has been repealed and Sec.9(2) of the Act saves the Acts, done or action taken under the Ordinance, as having been done or taken under the corresponding provisions of the Act.

5. On a close scrutiny and comparison of the provisions of the Ordinance and the Act, it is at once seen that the object of the Act is wider, viz., to prohibit benami transactions and also to interdict the right to recover property held benami. The prohibition of 'benami transaction' was not in contemplation of the Ordinance at all. The provision for prohibition of benami transaction under Sec.3 of the Act necessitated a definition of benami transaction and Sec.2(a) of the Act provided that unless the context otherwise requires, 'benami transaction' means a transaction in which property is transferred to one person for a consideration paid or provided by another person. The definition of 'benami transaction' under Sec.2(a) of the Act, is nothing but a reproduction of the opening part of Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. There is no indication in the definition under Sec.2(a) of the Act that the other type of benami transaction, loosely so called, according to the Supreme Court, was even contemplated. Besides, in furtherance of the objects of the Act, Sec.3(1) of the Act prohibited the entering into of a benami transaction as defined in the act, subject to the exception contained in Sec.3(2) of the Act and had made it a non-cognizable and bailable offence punishable with imprisonment for three years or with fine or with both. Likewise, consistent with the other object of the Act to interdict the right to recover property held benami, the ostensible title has been declared to be indefeasible either by way of action or even defence. This prohibition under Sec.4 of the Act has been made applicable with reference to property held benami. The expression 'held benami' connotes the state of holding property as a result of and referable to a benami transaction and defined in Sec.2(a) of the Act. The repeal of Secs.82 and 94 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, would appear to indicate that such a repeal was called for, in view of the provisions made in the Act, with reference to matters, which fell under those provisions of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. The definition of a 'benami transaction' based on the opening words of Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, has been already referred to. Regarding the latter part of Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, in view of the interdict on the right to recover property provided under Sec.4 of the Act and the enactment of a presumption, though rebuttable under Sec.3(2) of the Act, the retention of that part of Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, had become unnecessary. Thus, by the combined operation of Secs.2(a) and 4 of the Act, Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 has been rendered wholly unnecessary and that is the reason why, under Sec.7(1) of the Act, Sec.82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 has been repealed. Likewise, even as regards Sec.94 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, in view of Sec.4 of the Act, that section has been rendered unnecessary and that accounts for the repeal of Sec.94 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. In other words, the repeal of Secs.82 and 94 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 had been done under Sec.7(1) of the Act, as provision has been made already in the Act, to deal with matters, which had already been dealt with under Secs.82 and 94 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. However, with reference to Sec.81 occurring in Chapter IX of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, relating to certain obligations in the nature of trust, it appears to us that a situation contemplated by that provision, is not covered by the definition in Sec.2(a) of the Act and it is, therefore, not possible to infer from the repeal of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, provided under Sec.7(1) of the Act, that even transfers not at all intended to dispose of the beneficial interest, were also contemplated, as cases falling under the provisions of the Act. At best, the repeal of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 by Sec.7(1) of the Act, may discharge the transferee or the legatee from the obligation of holding the property for the benefit of the owner, but that cannot be pressed into service to include transactions, only in name and not in reality, also, as falling within the provisions of the Act. Thus, released from an obligation in the nature of a trust under Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, it may be still open to a person to contend that notwithstanding the execution of a document, it is only a transaction in name and not in reality and in fact not acted upon and remained only as a transaction on paper without divesting any right of the transferor and without in any manner being affected by the provisions of the Act.

6. Learned counsel for the appellants first contended that the avowed object of the Act is to do away with benami transactions, inclusive of sham and nominal transactions, which have also been understood as belonging to the category of benami transactions, though in a loose sense. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the definition of 'benami transaction' in the Act does not purport to cover sham and nominal transactions, as ordinarily understood and, therefore, the definition cannot be extended or expanded to include other types of transactions, not at all contemplated by the definition, as transactions dealt with by the Act. The definition of 'benami transaction' has already been referred to and it takes in only one kind of transaction, in which the property is transferred to one person, for consideration paid or provided by another person. In other words, the only transaction recognised as a 'benami transaction' under the definition in the Act is the first category of transactions referred to by the Supreme Court in the decisions already noticed. The definition contemplates only real transaction when A sells property to B who pays consideration, but the document mentions X as the purchaser, while the real purchaser in this genuine sale is only B, X being the benamidar. There is an operative transfer resulting in the vesting of title in the transferee, though the consideration is provided by another and it is only this kind of transaction, which has been contemplated and also included in the definition of 'benami transaction' under Sec.2(a) of the Act. Thus, in Secs.2, 3 and 4 of the Act, there is absolutely no indication that sham and nominal transactions also were intended to be included within the definition of 'benami transaction' and dealt with under the provisions of the Act. This contention of learned counsel for the appellants has, therefore, to be rejected.

7. Learned counsel for the appellants next contended that the words 'benami' and 'held benami' occurring in Secs.3 and 4 of the Act have to be read differently and that while it may be that the definition of 'benami transaction' occurring in Sec.2(a) of the Act may apply to Sec.3 of the Act, it may not apply to Sec.4 of the Act, as the expression 'benami transaction' does not occur therein, but only the words 'held benami' have been used. It has earlier been noticed that the twin objects of the Act are to prohibit benami transactions and also the establishment of rights over property held benami, either on a cause of action or defence, based on benami. The prohibition of benami transactions is sought to be achieved by preventing persons from entering into such transactions and making it a punishable offence, except in cases provided for under Sec.3(2) of the Act. The prohibition contained in Sec.4 of the Act is aimed at securing the other object of the Act, viz., to put an end to the right to recover property held benami and to vest the title to the property in the benamidar or the ostensible owner. In other words, in order to accomplish the twin objects earlier referred, provision has been made in the Act to prohibit the entering into of benami transactions and also to put an end to the right of a person claiming to be the real owner, either on a cause of action or by way of defence, and it is with reference to the latter class of cases, the words used are 'held benami'. Those words would mean the state of holding property, as a result of entering into a benami transaction or pursuant to such a transaction and necessarily, the definition of a 'benami transaction' found in Sec.2(a) of the Act, has to be read into and applied in interpreting the words 'property held benami' occurring in Sec.4 of the Act. In view of that, this argument of learned counsel for the appellants also cannot be accepted.

8. Learned counsel for the appellants next contended that there was no reason to confine the operation of the provisions of the Act only to those transactions falling under Sec.2 (a) of the Act and further that the repeal of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, also indicated that sham and nominal transactions, were also intended to be brought under the operation of the provisions of the Act. Reference was also made in this connection to the decision in Kathoom Bivi Ammal v. S.Mohamad alias Sheik Mohamad, (1990)1 L.W. 284. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the provisions of the Act, as they are found, have to be interpreted and given effect to and in view of the definition under Sec.2(a) of the Act relating to 'benami transaction', its scope cannot be widened to include sham and nominal transactions also and that the repeal of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 would not in any manner affect the position at all, as the effect of such repeal, would only be to release the sham and nominal transaction from the scope of the obligation arising under Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, but nevertheless leaving it open to the parties to contend that the transaction is a sham and a nominal one and has been entered into only in name and not in reality. Strong reliance in this connection was also placed by learned counsel for the respondent upon the decision reported in Ouseph Chacko v. Raman Nair Raghavan Nair, A.I.R. 1989 Ker. 317. In addition, learned counsel for the respondent also attempted to characterise certain observations occurring in Kathoom Bivi Ammal v. S.Mohamad alias Sheik Mohamad, (1990)1 L.W. 284, as obiter.

9. On a careful consideration of the rival submissions, we find it difficult to accept the contention of learned counsel for the appellants. When the expression 'benami transaction' has been defined in the Act, the expression 'property held benami' has to be interpreted in the light of the definition occurring in the Act relating to a benami transaction and also as referable to property held, as a result of or attributable to, such a transaction. In the absence of a benami transaction preceding, it is difficult to conceive of the holding of any property benami. Necessarily, therefore, the definition of 'benami transactions' in Sec.2(a) has to be read into Sec.4 of the Act also, while interpreting the words 'property held benami' and so read, only transactions answering the definition of a 'benami transaction' under Sec.2(a) of the Act, pursuant to which property is held benami, would be affected by Sec.4 of the Act. Sec.4 of the act cannot be so interpreted as to include sham and nominal transactions, which are outside the scope of 'benami transaction' as defined by Sec.2(a) of the Act. Similarly, the repeal of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, does not in any manner assist the appellants, as pointed out earlier. A situation contemplated under Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, in so far as we have been able to ascertain from the provisions of the Act, has not been provided for, while provision has been made, as pointed out earlier, with reference to matters falling under Secs.82 and 94 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. In other words, it looks as though Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 has been repealed, but that would have only the effect of releasing the property from the obligation of being held in accordance with Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. The decision in Kathoom Bivi Ammal v. S.Mohamad alias Sheik Mohamad, (1990)1 L.W. 284; (1990)2 M.L.J. 42, proceeded to hold that the repeal of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, by Sec.7(1) of the Act, would suffice to include sham and nominal transactions also within the scope of the provisions of the Act. It is difficult to persuade ourselves to the line of reasoning adopted in that decision. Further, it is seen that apart from the repeal of Secs.81 and 82 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, no other has aspect has been adverted to and examined and on a careful consideration of the scope and ambit of the provisions of the Ordinance and the Act, we have earlier pointed out that the repeal of Sec.81 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 by itself, would be of no avail to bring within the provisions of the Act, sham and nominal transactions. We, therefore, hold that the decision in Kathoom Bivi Ammal v. S.Mohamad alias Sheik Mohamad, (1990)1 L.W. 284, in so far as it held that sham and nominal transactions are also covered by the provisions of the Act, is not correct. It is seen that in Ouseph Chacko v. Raman Nair, A.I.R. 1989 Ker. 317, the view has been expressed that a sham and nominal transaction is not a benami transaction and Sec.4 of the Act would not apply. We find on a careful consideration of the reasoning in that decision that it accords generally with the view we have earlier expressed on all the aspects relating to the exclusion of sham and nominal transactions from the scope of the provisions of the Act and we hold that decision has laid down the law correctly. Though learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the provisions of the Act would be inapplicable to the decree-holder/respondent, who had attached the property in execution of the decree, adverse to the interest of the judgment-debtor, we do not express any opinion thereon, as that aspect of the matter would be totally outside the scope of the reference. We, therefore, hold that sham and nominal transactions would not be covered by the provisions of the Act and that it is open to the parties to contend that a transaction is sham and nominal and no title passed under it. We answer the reference made to us accordingly.

This appeal coming on for hearing on this day after the reference being answered by the Honourable Mr. Justice Ratnam and The Honourable Mr. Justice Somasundaram, upon perusing the grounds of appeal, the judgment papers in the suit, and upon hearing the arguments of Mr. K. Yamunan, Advocate for the appellants and of Mr. V. Narayanaswami, Advocate for the Respondent.

The Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT: In answer to the reference made to the Division Bench on the point whether sham and nominal documents are also covered by the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, the Division Bench which heard the reference answered it in the negative. All other points in the appeal have already been decided. The final judgment that would follow is dismissal of the appeal. Accordingly the appeal is dismissed. There will be no order as to costs.

V.K. ----- Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- Somasundaram, J.

W.P.Nos.17663 and 18628 of 1991 139, 1067, 1176, 1177, 1587, 3098, 3099, 4048, 5245, 5572, 6160 and 7435 of 1992
4th September, 1992.

G.Suseela and others ...Petitioners
v.

State of Tamil Nadu and others ...Respondents.

Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Relief - Subsequent events - Court, if can take note of to grant relief.

In view of the position of law enunciated in Director of School Education v. G.Gunaraj, 1991 Writ L.R. 94, the High Court taking note of the events that have taken place during the pendency of the proceedings can mould and grant appropriate reliefs to which the petitioners are entitled to. [Para 11]

Cases referred to:

Director of School Education v. G.Gunaraj, 1991 Writ L.R. 94. [Para 10]

Deepak Saibal v. Punjab University, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 903. [Para 12]

Aja Hasia v. Khalid Mujib, A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 487: (1981)1 Lab.L.J. 103: (1981)1 S.C.C. 732. [Para 12]

Vinaj Rampal v. State of J.& K., A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 1199. [Para 12]

Punjab Engineering College v. Sanjay Gulati, A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 580: (1983)3 S.C.C. 517: (1983)2 S.C.J. 26. [Para 13].

Madras Port Trust v. Hymanshaw International, A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 1144. [Para 9].

Petitions under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the respective affidavits filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of mandamus, (1) directing the first respondent to consider the representations of the petitioners dated 11.11.1991 and to allot seats for the petitioners in the I year M.B.B.S., Course for the academic year 1991-92 as per the directions of the Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc. dated 29.10.1991 (W.P.No.17663 of 1991) etc.

N.R.Chandran, Senior Counsel, for S.Natarajan, Mrs.Vijayakumari Natarajan, K.Mohanram, R.Subramaniam, P.Shannmugam, M.Shakir Ali, D.Jermiah, N.Ganapathy, S.Viswanathan, Mrs.Nalini Chidambaram Senior Counsel for S.Silambanan and B.Sai Chandravadhan, for Petitioners.
M.Veluswamy, for Respondent No.1.

P.Balasubramaniam, Government Advocate, for Respondent Nos.2 to 4.

The Court made the following

ORDER: These writ petitions are filed for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the respondents herein to allot seats for the petitioners for the first year M.B.B.S., Course for the academic year 1991-92 in pursuance to the judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 dated 29.10.1991. As the point involved in all these writ petitions is one and the same, they are disposed of by this common order. For the sake of convenience, the respondents are referred to in this order as per their nomenclature given in W.P.No.4048 of 1992.

2. To understand the point involved in these writ petitions, it is sufficient if we notice the facts averred in the affidavit filed in support of

W.P.No.4048 of 1992, which are to the following effect; The petitioners are aspirants for admission to the first year M.B.B.S., Course of study of the Tamil Nadu Dr.M.G.R. Medical University for the academic year 1991-92. They all studied higher secondary courses (plus two courses). In G.O.Ms.No.381, Education, dated 20.2.1980 read with G.L.No.63484/IV/80-2, Education, dated 30.12.1980, the Government issued orders that private candidates appearing for higher secondary examination should not be allowed to re-appear in the subjects which they have already passed. Subsequently, the Government in G.O.Ms.No.1457, Education Department, dated 7.10.1989 directed that the candidates who studied higher secondary courses be allowed to improve their performance in the subjects in which they have passed in the higher secondary courses examination two times and the higher marks obtained in each subject will be the qualifying mark in the higher secondary course. The petitioners appeared for regular appearance of the higher secondary course examination in March, 1990 and on the basis of G.O.No.1457, dated 7.10.1989, they also appeared in September, 1991. and in March, 1992. When the applications were called for the year 1991-92 Entrance Examinations for Medicine, the petitioners applied on the basis of the higher marks obtained after the two improvement examinations taken by them. The prospectus for the admission to the M.B.B.S./B.D.S./B.Pharm Courses, issued by the Government Medical Colleges in Tamil Nadu for 1991-92 stated that the improvement marks obtained in the first appearance only in the qualifying examination will be considered for selection. The prospectus referred above was issued by the Government Medical College in Tamil Nadu on the basis of G.O.Ms.No.811, Health and Family Welfare Department, dated 3.6.1991, stating that only the first improvement mark will be taken into consideration for medical selection. In those circumstances, the petitioners and other filed W.P.No.9489 of 1991 etc., batch challenging G.O.Ms.No.811, Health and Family Welfare Department, dated 3.6.1991. The above batch of writ petitions were dismissed by a learned single Judge of this Court. As against the order of the learned single Judge, the petitioners and others filed W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch a Division Bench of this Court by its judgment dated 29.10.1991, while allowing the W.A.No.1004/91 etc., batch held as follows:

"It is thus clear that the impugned Government Order G.O.Ms.No.811, Health and Family Welfare Department, dated 3.6.1991, which has got a tendency of entering into the field occupied by Sec.35 read with Sec.43 and Sec.44 of the Act 37 of 1987, is ultra vires the Act and beyond the executive power of the State Government. The same for the said reason is fit to be quashed. It is obvious that the conditions to the said effect in the prospectus for medical selection are invalid for the said reasons and are also liable to be quashed."

However, since Dr.M.G.R. Medical University, the 4th respondent in W.P.No.4048 of 1992 was not a party to the above writ appeals, the appellants in the writ appeals were permitted by the Division Bench to represent their case to the competent university body or authority. The Division Bench further held that if the students who obtained lesser marks than the petitioners who were appellants in the writ appeals, have been admitted, the competent university or authority shall be obliged to consider the petitioner's case for admission to the M.B.B.S. course for the year 1991-92. Thereafter, on 11.11.1991, the petitioners made the representation to the 4th respondent university praying for allotment of seats in medical course since the marks obtained by them are more than cut-off marks. Copies of the representations were also sent to the Director of Medical Education, Co-ordination Committee, The Secretary, Health Department and also to the Chancellor of Tamil Nadu Dr.M.G.R. University. Since no reply was received from the 4th respondent, the petitioners sent a registered letter through their advocate on 11.12.1991 to consider their applications as per the pronouncement of the Division Bench in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 batch and to allot seats for the first year M.B.B.S. Course in the year 1991-92. Then the petitioners also filed W.P.No.17663 of 1991 before this Court to issue a writ of mandamus directing the 4th respondent university to consider the representations of the petitioners dated 11.11.1991 and to allot seats for the academic year 1991-92 as per the directions of the Division Bench in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch. The above writ petition was admitted on 17.12.1991. In the meantime, the petitioners received a communication from the 4th respondent University on 19.12.1991 as a reply to the petitioner's representations stating as follows:

"I am by direction to state that all the Medical Colleges/Institutions affiliated to this University are under the Management of the Government/Private Trust/Societies and responsibility of admitting students to the medical courses of studies rests with the management of the respective colleges/Institutions. Hence your representation seeking admission to I-M.B.B.S. course in pursuance to the orders of the High Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., has been forwarded to the Government, of Tamil Nadu which is the management of the Government Medical Colleges for action in accordance with law."

Thereafter some of the petitioners filed contempt petitions in 24/92, 72/92 and 73/92 against the Vice-Chancellor of the 4th respondent University and notice was ordered by the Division Bench of this Court in the contempt applications to the Vice Chancellor of the 4th respondent University. The Vice-Chancellor of the 4th respondent University filed a counter in the contempt applications. In the said counter filed by the 4th respondent University, it has taken the stand that all the medical colleges affiliated to the university are under the management of the Government and Private Trusts/Societies and the admission of students for the first year M.B.B.S. course rests with the management of the said colleges and that the university is not making any admission of students to the medical courses in any college. In view of the counter filed by the 4th respondent university, the Division Bench of this Court dismissed the contempt petitions on 6.3.1992 observing that if there is any grievance to the petitioners, they may agitate the same in appropriate proceedings. In the above circumstances, in view of the fact that the allotment of seats to the first year M.B.B.S. Course are to be made by the Government, the petitioners filed the present W.P.No.4048 of 1992 for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the respondents to allot seats to the petitioners for the first year M.B.B.S. course for the academic year 1991-92. The other writ petitions were also filed under similar circumstances seeking similar relief.

3. The respondents 1 to 3 filed a common counter affidavit in all these writ petitions contending that the writ petitions are liable to be dismissed on the ground of laches. It is further contended that in all these cases, the respective petitioners seek for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the respondents to admit them in the medical courses for the year 1991-92 and in as much as the said academic year is over, no relief can be granted to the petitioners. In para 5 of the counter affidavit the respondents 1 to 3 further contended as follows:

"Based on the judgment, the writ appellants approached the University, As the University does not own any medical colleges, forwarded their application to Government for necessary action. Since the judgment of the Division Bench had taken away the power of selection of candidates for admission to First year M.B.B.S. course, the Government was not also in a position to do anything on this."

4. The 4th respondent university filed a common counter affidavit contending that since the 4th respondent university does not own any medical college or institution and all the medical colleges Institutions affiliated to the 4th respondent university are under the management of the Government/Private trust/society and the admission of students are dealt with by the management of the respective colleges, the university is not making admission of students to the medical courses in any medical college. The 4th respondent in the counter affidavit further contended that as the 4th respondent university is not running any medical college, the selection and admission of students to medical colleges do not come in its purview.

5. The learned counsel appearing for the petitioners in all these cases vehemently contended that the Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch while declaring the G.O.Ms.No.811, Health and Family Welfare, dated 3.6.1991 is ultra vires the Act 37 of 1987 and quashing the said G.O. permitted the petitioners to represent their case to the competent university body or authority; that the Division Bench further held that in case it is found that the petitioners are otherwise qualified and students who obtained lesser marks than the petitioners have been admitted to the M.B.B.S. course 1991-92, the Competent university body or authority shall be obliged to consider the case of the petitioners for admission; and that in view of the Division Bench judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch the marks obtained by the petitioners in the second improvement examination must be taken into consideration and if so taken into account, the marks obtained by the petitioners are above the cut-off marks fixed for selection for the M.B.B.S. course for the year 1991-92. The learned counsel for the petitioners further contended that in as much as the respondents 1 to 3 are parties to the judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 batch, they cannot take the stand that the judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch is not binding on them, particularly when the 4th respondent University had forwarded the representations of the petitioners to the 1st respondents and when the 4th respondent is also willing to approve the increased number of seats to accommodate the petitioners in the first year M.B.B.S. course. The learned counsel for the petitioners again submitted that even though the academic year 1991-92 is over, in view of the fact that the petitioners were wrongly denied admission to the M.B.B.S. course for 1991-92, by applying the invalid G.O.Ms.No.811 and in view of the judgment of the Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch which has become final, the respondents should be directed to admit the petitioners to the first year M.B.B.S. course for the current academic year 1992-93, if necessary by increasing the number of seats. There is merit in the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners.

6. The Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1992 batch speaking through Mishra, J., while quashing G.O.Ms.No.811, Health and Family Welfare Department, dated 3.6.1991 and the conditions in the prospectus for medical selection for the year 1991-92 as ultra vires of the Act 37 of 1987 issued the following directions.

"In the instant case, however, we are not in a position to issue any mandamus or direction to the University for, the University is not a party respondent in the writ petitions or the appeals. It will, however, be open to the writ petitioners/appellants to represent their case before the competent university Body of Authority and in case it is found that they are otherwise qualified and students who obtained lesser marks than the writ petitioners/appellants have been admitted (inclusive of the improvement marks of the petitioners/appellants) they shall be obliged to consider their case for admission."

The judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 batch was delivered on 29.10.1991. On 11.11.1991, the petitioners made the representations to the 4th respondent University and prayed for allotment of seats in the first year M.B.B.S. course for the year 1991-92, as they have obtained more than the cut-off marks. The copies of the representations were also sent to the Director of Medical Education, Co-ordination Committee, the Secretary, Health Department who are respondents 1 to 3 in W.A.No.4048 of 1992. On 11.12.1991, the petitioners also sent a registered letter through their advocate to the 4th respondent university requesting the 4th respondent to consider their representations as per the bench judgment and allot seats for the first year M.B.B.S. course for the year 1991-92. On 19.12.1991, the 4th respondent sent a reply to the petitioners' representation stating that their representations seeking admission to first year M.B.B.S. course have been forwarded to the Government of Tamil Nadu. On 10.2.1992, the 4th respondent University had also passed a resolution to the following effect:

Resolved to inform the Government as follows:

This University does not own any Medical College or Institution. All the Medical Colleges/Institutions affiliated to this University are under the management of the Government/Private Trust/Societies and the responsibility of admitting of students to the medical courses of studies rests with the management of the respective colleges/institutions. The provisions in the Statutes/regulations prescribed by the University regarding admission of student to Medical courses under the powers vested by the Tamil Nadu Dr.M.G.R. Medical University, Madras Act, 1987 (Tamil Nadu Act 37 of 1987) have to be followed by the managements of the medical colleges/institutions. The regulations of this University in this regard prescribe only the minimum eligibility for admission to the M.B.B.S. Course, which is checked by the University at the time of registration of the candidate with the University for the respective courses. The University is not making admission of students to Medical courses of students in any college. Hence all the representations received from the Writ Appellant and others in pursuance to the orders of the High Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., may be forwarded to the Government for disposal and a reply given to the petitioners on the above lines."

Thereafter, some of the petitioners filed Contempt Petitions No.24 of 1992 etc. before the Division Bench. It is useful here to refer certain averments in the counter affidavit filed by the 4th respondent University in the Contempt Petition No.24 of 1992 etc. In para 3 of the counter affidavit filed in the contempt petition the 4th respondent has stated that after receiving the representation from the petitioners, the University had written to the Government on 5.12.1991 to instruct the Director of the Medical Education, the second respondent herein to withheld the admission of candidates from the waiting list to the first year M.B.B.S. course for 1991-92 until further reference from the medical University in this regard. The Vice Chancellor of the 4th respondent University in paras.7 and 8 of the counter affidavit in the contempt petitions has further stated as follows:

"The particulars regarding petitioners/appellants and others, in pursuance to the orders of the High Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., had been sent to the Government for necessary action and it has also been mentioned in that letter that if the writ appellants are eligible for admission to the Medical Course with reference to the eligibility criteria prescribed by the University and secured the aggregate marks above the level of cut off marks and if candidates who had secured lesser marks than these writ appellants had been admitted to the course in the process of selection by the Selection Committee under the control of Director of Medical Education, the writ appellants who have got favourable orders from the High Court may be admitted to the M.B.B.S. course provided the order of High Court are not agitated upon by the Government in the appellate Court. The Director of Medical Education has to apply to this University, after obtaining sanction of the Government for regularising the excess admissions if any. The Government has also been requested to intimate the follow up action taken by the Government in this regard. The action taken by the University in this regard was intimated to the individuals separately. The Secretary, Selection Committee for M.B.B.S. course, Madras in his letter dated 14.2.1992 has now sent the details called for in this University's letter dated 27.11.1991 and 5.12.1991."

The 4th respondent University both in the counter affidavit filed in the contempt petition as well as in the common counter affidavit filed in these writ petitions has taken the stand that all the medical colleges affiliated to the 4th respondent University are in the management of the Government and private trusts/Societies and the University is nothing to do with the admission of students for the first year M.B.B.S. course in the medical colleges. In these circumstances, the 4th respondent has taken all the reasonable steps to see that the direction given by the Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 batch is complied with. on 19.12.1991, the 4th respondent has also sent a reply to the petitioners informing them the actual position and also informing the petitioners that their representations have been forwarded to the Government for disposal. Again on 10.2.1991 the 4th respondent University had also passed a resolution of forward the representations of the petitioners to the Government. Again on 19.12.1991 the Vice Chancellor of the 4th respondent University addressed a D.O. Letter No.31734/AC-II (1/91) to the first respondent and para 5 of the said D.O.Letter reads thus:

"In these circumstances, particulars regarding petitioners/appellants and others in pursuance to the orders of the High Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., are forwarded to the Government for necessary action. (Vide Annexure). If the writ appellants are eligible for admission to the Medical Course with reference to the eligibility criteria prescribed by the University and secured the aggregate marks above the level of cut off marks and if candidates who had secured lesser marks than these writ appellants, have been admitted to the courses in the process of selection by the Selection Committee under the control of the Director of Medical Education, the writ appellants who have got favourable orders from the High Court may be admitted to the M.B.B.S. course and allocated to the Medical Colleges wherever possible provided the orders of High Court are not agitated upon by the Government in the appellate court. The Director of Medical Education has to apply to this University, after obtaining sanction of the Government, for regularising the excess admissions if any. The follow-up action taken by the Government may be intimated to this University."

Para 5 of the D.O. letter referred above clearly shows that the Vice Chancellor of the 4th respondent University has recommended to the first respondent the case of the petitioners for admission to the first year M.B.B.S. course. In the said D.O. letter, it is also stated that the Director of Medical Education has to apply to the University, after obtaining sanction of the Government, for regularising the excess admissions if any. In view of the above stand taken by the 4th respondent University, we have to examine the question whether the respondents 1 to 3 are justified in taking the stand in para 5 of the counter affidavit that the Government is not in a position to do anything in the matter of admitting the petitioners to the M.B.B.S. course for 1991-92 on the ground that the judgment of the Division Bench W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., had taken away its power of selection of candidates for admission to first year M.B.B.S. course. I may straight away say that the respondents 1 to 3 are not at all justified in taking such a stand. I have extracted the relevant portion of the judgment of the Division Bench in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch in the earlier portion of this order. I have carefully gone through the judgment of the Division Bench in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch. There is nothing in the judgment of the Division Bench of this Court to show that it has taken away the power of the Government admit students to M.B.B.S. course. All that the Division Bench has stated in the judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch is that G.O.No.811, dated 3.6.1991 is ultra vires of Act 37 of 1987 and that it is invalid and consequently quashed the said G.O. By no stretch of imagination, it can be said that the Division Bench Judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1992 etc., batch has taken away the power of the Government to admit the students to M.B.B.S. course. It is seen from the common counter affidavit filed by the 4th respondent in these writ petitions and also from the resolution of the 4th respondent University dated 10.2.1992 that all the Medical Colleges/Institutions affiliated to the 4th respondent University are under the management of the Government/Private Trusts/Societies and that the responsibility of admitting the students to the medical courses rests with the management of the respective colleges/institutions. This position is not denied by the respondents 1 to 3 either in the counter affidavit or even before me, in the course of arguments. Therefore, there is no difficulty in holding that all medical colleges are under the management of the Government/Private Trust/Societies and that the responsibility of admitting the students to the medical courses rests with the Government. This position was not brought to the notice of the Division Bench of this Court when it disposed of W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch either at the time when the Division Bench pronounced the judgment in the W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch or immediately thereafter. If it had been brought to the notice of the Division Bench that the 4th respondent has nothing to do with the admission to the medical courses and only the Government is entrusted with the responsibility of admitting students to the medical courses, I am inclined to think that the Division Bench would have certainly granted reliefs to the petitioners in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 batch itself. For some reason or other, the real position with regard to the management of the medical colleges was not brought to the notice of the Division Bench when it disposed of the writ appeals in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., Batch.

7. It must be remembered that respondents 1 to 3 are parties to writ appeals in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch and that the said judgment of the Division Bench has become final, and it is binding on the respondents 1 to 3. Therefore, it is the duty of the respondents 1 to 3 also to see that the directions given by the Division Bench in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch are complied with, particularly when the 4th respondent university had forwarded the representations of the petitioners to the first respondent and when the 4th respondent is also willing to grant permission for increasing the number of seats in the medical colleges to accommodate the petitioners. The direction issued by the Division Bench in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch is that it is open to the petitioners to represent their case before the competent university body or authority and in case it is found that the petitioners otherwise qualified and the students who obtained lesser marks than the petitioners have been admitted in the medical course for the year 1991-92, the competent university body or authority shall be obliged to consider the case of the petitioners for admission. The direction given by this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch to the petitioners is to approach the competent University body or the competent authority. From the materials on record, it transpires that the competent authority to deal with the question of admission to M.B.B.S. course is the Government. When the petitioners sent representations to the 4th respondent, they sent copies of the representations to the respondents 1 to 3. The 4th respondent passed a resolution dated 10.2.1992 stating that the representations received from the petitioners in pursuance to the judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch may be forwarded to the Government for disposal. On 19.12.1991, the Vice-Chancellor of the 4th respondent University also wrote a D.O. letter to the first respondent stating that the particulars regarding the petitioners in pursuance of the judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch have been forwarded to the Government for necessary action. Thus, when the representations of the petitioners were placed before the first respondent by the 4th respondent, the Government being the competent authority to admit the students to M.B.B.S. course, ought to have respected the judgment of the Division Bench in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch particularly when the Government represented by respondents 1 to 3 are parties to the said judgment, in the writ appeals. In these circumstances, the respondents ought to have granted relief to the petitioners particularly when the respondents 1 to 3 by applying the invalid G.O.811 have denied the petitioners admission to the M.B.B.S. course. It is not the case of the respondents that the marks obtained by the petitioners is less than the cut-off marks prescribed for medical admission in the year 1991-92.

8. Mr.P.Balasubramaniam, the learned Additional Government Pleader contended in the first place that these writ petitions relate to admission to M.B.B.S. course for the academic year 1991-92 and that the writ petitions are liable to be dismissed on the ground of laches. There is no substance in this contention of the learned Additional Government Pleader. The various proceedings initiated by the petitioners from 24.6.1991, namely from the time when the prospectus from medical admission for 1991-92 was issued, by filing writ petitions and writ appeals referred to above and the representations made by the petitioners to the respondents will clearly go to show that the petitioners are diligently prosecuting the matter throughout and it cannot be said that the petitioners are guilty of laches.

9. The next contention of the learned Additional Government Pleader is that in all these cases the petitioners seek for the issue of writ of mandamus for directing the respondents to admit them in the medical courses for the year 1991-92 and in as much as the said academic year 1991-92 is over the writ petitions have become infructuous and the petitioners are not entitled to any relief. I am unable to accept the above contention of the learned Additional Government Pleader. It must be remembered the matter is pending before this Court from 1991. On 8.8.1991, the writ petitions were filed by the petitioners challenging the G.O.Ms.No.811. When the writ petitions were dismissed, they filed W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch. On 29.10.1991 the writ appeals were allowed. Again on 17.12.1991 first of these W.P.No.17663 of 1991 has been filed and thereafter the other writ petitions have been filed in February and March, 1992, and they are pending before this Court since then. The 4th respondent filed a counter in these writ petitions in March 1992, whereas the respondents 1 to 3 filed counter affidavit in this batch of writ petitions only on 17.8.1992 and only thereafter the respondents 1 to 3 were ready to get on with these writ petitions. On 16.4.1992 as the present writ petitions could not be disposed of immediately, the learned single Judge of this Court in W.M.P.No.189 of 1992 etc., batch directed the respondents to keep seats reserved for the petitioners in the first M.B.B.S. course for the academic year 1991-92. From the above facts, it is clear that this matter is pending before this Court from 8.8.1991 and the petitioners cannot be made to suffer on account of the delay in disposing of the writ petitions. The maxim is an act of court shall prejudice no man (actus curiae neminem gravabit). Therefore, the petitioners cannot be denied the relief of the ground that of the academic year 1991-92 is over, particularly when they are in no way responsible for the delay. Further, it is not denied by the respondents that the marks obtained by the petitioners in all these cases are above the cut-off marks fixed for medical admission for the year 1991-92. Again the technical plea of laches and the plea that the academic year 1991-92 is over are not available to the respondents to defeat the rights of the petitioners to get admission to the medical course in view of the decision of the Supreme Court reported in Madras Port Trust v. Hymanshaw International, (A.I.R. 1979 S.C. 1144). In view of the above discussions, it has to be held that the respondents 1 to 3 are bound to comply with the directions given by the Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch and admit the petitioners to the first year M.B.B.S. course.

10. Now, let us examine what is the nature of relief that can be granted to the petitioners who are 19 in number, in exercise of the writ powers under Art.226 of the Constitution. As pointed out by the Division Bench of this Court in Director of School Education v. G.Gunaraj, 1991 Writ L.R. 94, this Court while exercising the writ powers, is not scuttled down to the exact prayer projected in the writ petition. The Division Bench further observed as follows:-

"This Court can always take note of subsequent events for the purpose of giving complete, effective and appropriate reliefs to the parties. The facts exposed and the points involved and resolved, can certainly guide the court to give the appropriate reliefs to the parties. The jurisdiction of this Court under Art.226 is invoked only in furtherance of justice."

11. In view of the above position of law, this Court taking note of the events that have taken place during the pendency of the proceedings, can mould and grant appropriate reliefs to which the petitioners are entitled to. In the above circumstances, I am inclined to think that it will be no answer to say that since the academic year 1991-92 is over, the petitioners cannot be granted any relief in these writ petitions. Therefore, the proper course open to this Court is to direct the respondents to admit the petitioners to the first M.B.B.S. course for the academic year 1992-93 as it is represented that though the admissions for 92-93 are over, the instructions for the first M.B.B.S. Course have not yet commenced.

12. Equally, it is no answer to say that all the seats fixed for the first M.B.B.S. course for the academic year 1992-93 have been filled up. The seats that will be allotted to the petitioners pursuant to the order in these writ petitions for the academic year 1992-93 will be in addition to the normal in-take of the students for the various medical colleges for the academic year 1992-93. The Supreme Court has made similar directions in cases of admissions to the colleges in the following decisions:

(1) Deepak Saibal v. Punjab University, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 903, (2) Aja Hasia v. Khalid Mujib,

A.I.R. 1981 S.C. 487; (1981)1 Lab.L.J. 103; (1981)1 S.C.C. 732, (3) Vinaj Rampal v. State of J.& K., A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 1199.

It must be also remembered that these are all exceptional cases where this kind of directions have to be given because earlier the petitioners were wrongly denied admission applying the invalid G.O.No.811. In fact the 4th respondent is inclined to grant permission for increasing the number of seats to accommodate the petitioners. 13. Mr.P.Balasubramaniām, the learned Additional Government Pleader further submitted that the seats cannot be increased for the academic year 1992-93 since the State Government cannot meet additional expenses which will be caused by increasing the number of seats and that the Indian Medical Council will not sanction additional seats. I am unable to accept this contention of the learned Additional Government Pleader. In the first place, the respondents 1 to 3 have not raised such a plea in the counter affidavit filed in these writ petitions. In Punjab Engineering College v. Sanjay Gulati, A.I.R. 1983 S.C. 580; (1983)3 S.C.C. 517; (1983)2 S.C.J. 26, the Supreme Court frowned upon a similar contention raised before it in the following terms:

"It is strange in all such cases, the authorities who make admissions by ignoring the rules of admissions contend that the seats cannot correspondingly be increased, since the State Government cannot meet the..... additional expenditure which will be caused by increasing the number of seats or that the institution will not be able to cope up with the additional influx of students. An additional plea available in regard to Medical Colleges is that the Indian Medical Council will not sanction additional seats. We cannot entertain this submission. Those who infringe the rules must pay for their lapse and the wrong done to the deserving students who ought to have been admitted has to be rectified. The best solution under the circumstances is to ensure that the strength of seats is increased in proportion to the wrong admissions made."

14. In the present case, admittedly the petitioners who have obtained more marks than the cut off marks for the year 1991-92 were wrongly denied admission to the first year M.B.B.S. course applying the invalid G.O.811 and the wrong done to the deserving students who ought to have been admitted to the Medical course in the year 1991-92, has to be rectified by directing the respondents to comply with the directions given by the Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch and admit them to the first year M.B.B.S. course for the year 1992-93. As pointed out by the Supreme Court, the best solution is to direct the respondent to increase the strength of the seats to accommodate the petitioners in this batch of writ petitions who are 19 in number 15. It must be mentioned that the petitioner in W.P.No.7435 of 1992 approached this Court for the first time now seeking the issue of writ of mandamus for directing the respondent to admit him in the first year M.B.B.S. course. He has not earlier filed a writ petition or writ appeal as in the case of the other petitioners in this batch. However, it must be pointed out that the Division Bench Judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch declares that G.O.Ms.No.811 is invalid and directed the appellants therein to approach the competent authority for necessary relief. Since the Division Bench Judgment in W.A.No.1004 of 1991 etc., batch declared that G.O.811 is invalid, the petitioner in W.P.No.7435 of 1992 has also taken advantage of the Division Bench Judgment and submitted representations to the 4th respondent along with the other petitioners requesting the 4th respondent to consider his case for admission to first year M.B.B.S. course on the basis of the marks obtained in the second improvement examination and on the ground that he has obtained marks above the cut-off marks fixed for the year 1991-92. His representation was also forwarded by the 4th respondent to the respondents 1 to 3. In these circumstances, I am inclined to hold that the petitioner in W.P.No.7435 of 1992 also is entitled to get admission to the first year M.B.B.S. course for the year 1992-93.

16. In the result, there will be a direction in these writ petitions to the respondents to provide seats to the petitioners in all these writ petitions in the first year M.B.B.S. course for the current academic year 1992-93 within two weeks from today, if necessary by increasing the number of seats by 19. The 4th respondent is directed to give the necessary permission for the additional seats to accommodate the petitioners. I don't think it is an impossibility for the respondents 1 to 3 to increase the seats, since it is represented that in the past seats were increased on the directions issued by this Court. Consequently, all the writ petitions are allowed and the respondents are directed to admit the petitioners in these writ petitions in the first year M.B.B.S. course for the current academic year 1992-93, within two weeks from today, if necessary by increasing the number of seats by 19. No costs.

B.S. ---- Petitions allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: A.R. Lakshmanan, J.

W.M.P.Nos.9519, 11856, 15082 and 15083 of 1992 in W.P.No.6640 of 1992 3rd August, 1992.

M/s. Varalakshmi Chemind Pvt. Ltd. ...Petitioner v.

The Commissioner of Prohibition and Excise, Madras and others ...Respondents.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), Sec.115 - State Government allotting rectified spirit to petitioner company - Petitioner putting up plant and machinery at a huge cost - Commissioner of Prohibition allotting denatured spirit with 5% ether instead of rectified spirit - Legality - Government if estopped.

It is seen from the impugned proceedings that in view of the decision of the Government in G.O.(D) No.188, P and E III Department, dated 30.3.1991, the 50,000 litres of denatured spirit with 5% ether has been allotted to the petitioner company for trial run of the plant to manufacture solvent ether and ethylene ether and other chemicals. It is pertinent to note that the 1st respondent has failed to note that the Government in their letter dated 12.5.1991 issued after G.O.Ms.No.188, P and E III Department, dated 13.3.1991 has directed the petitioner company to commence the production positively before June, 1992, to enable them to have the allotment of industrial alcohol as per G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E III Department, dated 5.2.1982. There was no reference to G.O.Ms.No.188, P and E III Department, dated 13.3.1991 or modification of the allotment of denatured spirit instead of rectified spirit. The 1st respondent, contrary to the orders of the Government had directed that denatured spirit, with 5% ether alone will be supplied to the petitioner company for trial run. The above decision of the first respondent made in the impugned proceedings is not sustainable in law. The plant which has been put up by the petitioner company is designed to have only rectified spirit as the raw material. Such a substitution of raw material will adversely affect the production, ability, capacity and viability of the plant. It is seen from the G.O.Ms.No.188 Home, P and E III Department, dated 13.3.1991, that the Government have clearly indicated that if any industry persists in the allocation of rectified spirit alone, the same alone could be allotted enforcing stringent formalities. When the policy decision of the Government is unambiguous, the first respondent, without any authority or power, has chosen to order that denatured spirit of 5,000 litres with 5% ether would be allotted to the petitioner for trial run. The first respondent failed to notice that only after G.O.Ms.No.188 Home, P and E III Department, dated 13.3.1991 was issued, the Secretary, P and E Department issued the letter dated 12.6.1991 directing the petitioner to commence production on or before June, 1992 and if they failed to do so, the allotment of 12 million litres of industrial alcohol by the Government as per G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E III Department, dated 5.2.1982 would be cancelled. When the Government have not imposed any condition and in the letter only allotment of industrial alcohol has been indicated, the 1st respondent has no authority to allot denatured spirit instead of rectified spirit. Without affording any opportunity to the petitioner company, the first respondent has arbitrarily ordered in the impugned proceedings that denatured spirit of 50,000 litres will be allotted to the petitioner company for trial run. The order of the 1st respondent is erroneous and improper. Another important thing which the Government have failed to see is that the Petitioner Company has designed the plant and machinery to have only rectified spirit as the raw material to manufacture ether anesthetic products classified under Indian Pharmacopoeia. According to the writ petitioner if denatured spirit with 5% ether is used as the basic raw material, then the design and the storage facilities have to be modified accordingly incurring considerable expenditure. It is also stated that transporting and storing of denatured spirit with 5% ether denaturant is hazardous and is security risk and that the present fabricated structures are not fit to store and the plant is not capable to process the denatured spirit. When the present design of the plant and machinery cannot have denatured spirit as the raw material and only with the modification the same can be done, the Government is not entitled to modify its earlier order and insist upon the supply of denatured spirit. The court, is, therefore, of the view that the Government is estopped from imposing such unreasonable condition on the petitioner.

[Paras 15, 17, 18 and 19]

S.Govind Swaminathan, Senior Advocate for N.S.Sivam, G.Anbumani and C.R.Prakash, for Petitioner.

M.A.Sadanand, Government Pleader, assisted by P.Shanmugham, Additional Government Pleader, for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The petitioner abovenamed has filed the main writ petition to issue a writ of certiorari by calling for the records from the 1st respondent culminated in Proceedings Rc.No.D2/12184/91-15, dated 29.4.1992 and quash the same. While admitting the writ petition, this Court in W.M.P.No.9519 of 1992 issued interim directions to the 1st respondent to allot 50,000 litres of rectified spirit without any further delay to the petitioner company to have the trial run of their plant and machinery become operational by June, 1992, as ordered by the Government in Letter No.6979/P and E III/91-2, dated 12.6.1991, pending disposal of the writ petition. The petitioner has filed W.M.P.No.11856 of 1992 to clarify the order dated 5.5.1992 in W.M.P.No.9519 of 1992 and this Court on 29.6.1992 clarified the same. The respondents have filed W.M.P.Nos.15082 and 15083 of 1992 to vacate the interim direction and also the clarification issued by this Court in W.M.P.Nos.9519 and 11856 of 1992.

2. I have heard Mr.S.Govind Swaminathan, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner and Mr. M.A.Sadanand, learned Government Pleader for the respondents.

3. The petitioner company was incorporated in the year 1982. The object of the company is to produce, manufacture, purchase, sell and generally to deal with ethyl alcohol, ether solvent, ether anesthetic grade and other alcohol based chemicals. The manufacture of the above ether anesthetic products is mainly based on industrial alcohol, commonly known as rectified spirit available in the State distilleries in large surplus more than the use and consumption in the State. Since industrial alcohol is regulated by the Tamil Nadu Rectified Spirit Rules, 1959, necessary allotments of the same as raw material have to be made by the Government to the industrial concerns that manufacture products based on industrial alcohol. The petitioner company applied to the State Government for allotment of industrial alcohol and the Government after due consideration, issued G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E (III) Department, dated 5.2.1982, permitting the request of the petitioner-company to establish an alcohol based industry in the North Arcot District. The Government has allotted 12 million litres of alcohol per annum to the petitioner company for the manufacture of ether anesthetic products. The only condition imposed in the order was the availability of the alcohol in each year in the State. The petitioner company took steps to put up the plant and machinery at a cost of Rs.1 crore. The Indian Bank has also sanctioned a term loan of Rs.15 lakhs. The petitioner also secured other loans in the local market and has put up the plant and machinery at a cost of Rs.1.25 crores. According to the petitioner, the plant is now ready for trial and to commence production.

4. On 1.1.1990, the 1st respondent issued a notice to the petitioner informing that the Government in G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E (III) Department, dated 5.2.1982 had ordered committing to supply 12 million litres of rectified spirit and even after lapse of eight years, the petitioner had not commenced production and that therefore, the petitioner company should show cause to the Government why the allotment of rectified spirit ordered by the Government should not be withdrawn. On receipt of the above notice, the petitioner submitted to the 3rd respondent that they had put up the plant and machinery and because of administrative delay in getting the electricity and clearance of pollution control, the early commencement of production had become delayed, and considering the steps taken by the petitioner, the Government should withdraw the notice issued by the 1st respondent. The Government after due consideration of the above representation, by letter No.6979/P & E (III) Department, dated 12.6.1991 informed the petitioner that the request of the petitioner has been considered and that Government grants time till June, 1992, to commence production, and if production is not commenced by the end of June, 1992, the allotment issued by the Government in G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E (III) Department, dated 5.2.1982, would be cancelled. According to the petitioner, all the governmental agencies have completed their formalities and the petitioner company is ready to operate the plant and commence production. The petitioner also on 12.12.1991 informed the Industries Commissioner and Director of Industries and Commerce, Madras, that their plant is ready for operation and the Department could depute its officers for inspection. The Department after due inspection has informed the Government that necessary industrial alcohol can be allotted to the petitioner company to have the trial run.

5. While so, the petitioner company has received the proceedings Rc.No.D2/12184/91-15, dated 29.4.1992 of the 1st respondent stating that 50,000 litres of denatured spirit with 5% ether would be allotted to the petitioner company from M/s. E.I.D. Parry (India) Ltd., Nellikuppam, for trial run for five days and the petitioner with the allotted denatured spirit shall have the trial run. The above proceedings of the 1st respondent is impugned in the present writ petition. The 1st respondent has stated in the impugned proceedings that in view of the decision of the Government G.O.Ms.No.188, P and E (III) Department, dated 30.3.1991, the 50,000 litres of denatured spirit with 5% ether has been allotted to the petitioner company for the trial run of the plant to manufacture solvent ether and theyene ether and other chemicals.

6. According to the petitioner, the decision of the 1st respondent made in the impugned proceedings is not sustainable in law. In November, 1990, the 1st respondent proposed to the Government that instead of rectified spirit, denatured spirit could be allotted to various manufacturers of ether solvent. The Government also convened a meeting of the various users of the rectified spirit and ascertained their views about the change of policy proposed by the 1st respondent to allot denatured spirit instead of rectified spirit. The participants submitted to the Government that such change would adversely affect their production. After due consideration, the Government issued G.O.Ms. No.188 Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991 indicating the decision of the Government concerning the proposal of the 1st respondent. The petitioner has designed the plant and machinery to have only the rectified spirit as the raw material to manufacture ether anesthetic products, classified under Indian Pharmacopoeia and that the design of the plant and machinery cannot have denatured spirit as the raw material. Thus, the petitioner has filed the above writ petition to call for the records of the 1st respondent culminated in the impugned proceedings dated 29.4.1992 and quash the same.

7. As stated above, the petitioner has filed W.M.P.No.9519 of 1992 for an interim direction to the 1st respondent to allot 50,000 litres of rectified spirit without any further delay to the petitioner company to have the trial run of their plant and machinery, so that the plant and machinery become operational by June, 1992, as ordered by the Government in their letter dated 12.6.1991. S.Govindaswami, J., granted interim direction on 5.5.1992. For clarification of the said order, the petitioner has filed W.M.P.No.11856 of 1992. The reason for filing the clarification petition has been clearly explained in paragraph 3 of the affidavit filed in support of that petition. It is stated therein that the respondents have wilfully and want only disobeyed the orders of this Court dated 5.5.1992 in W.M.P.No.9519 of 1992. S.Govindaswami, J., on 29.6.1992 has clarified his earlier order dated 5.5.1992, as under:

"It is a sorry state of affairs to come to know that in spite of this Court passing an order directing the authority to pass orders as expeditiously as possible, the Government has not passed any order for the reason that the Court has not fixed any time limit for effecting compliance. Once a direction is issued, the Government is directed to comply with, and failure to do so will amount to Contempt of Court. However, by way of indulgence, instead of issuing notice of contempt, this Court gives direction to the respondent to effect supply as directed in a period of two weeks from the date of receipt of this order. The directions are expected to be complied with and a report to that effect may be submitted to this Court. Accordingly, the petition is ordered. It is represented by the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner that the petitioner should commence the trial run on or before 30.6.1992 and in view of the fact that the respondents have not effected supply of rectified spirit, the petitioner could not commence the trial run on or before 30.6.1992. Time to commence trial run shall be extended by four weeks from the date of supply, and thereafter by four weeks for commercial run. The authority shall either on receipt of the copy of the order from the Court or from the parties effect supply within two weeks therefrom. Accordingly the petition is ordered."

8. The respondents have filed W.A.No.826 of 1992 alleging that the order dated 5.5.1992 was clarified by the order dated 29.6.1992 without giving any opportunity to the State to file the counter or to refute the contentions made by the writ petitioner. The Division Bench consisting of the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and K.Venkataswami, J., by order dated 22.7.1992 disposed of the writ appeal by giving the following direction:

"In view of this submission, we dispose of the appeal with a direction to the learned single Judge to hear the parties on the application by the Government Pleader for vacating the interim order if so filed. The impugned order dated 29.6.1992 shall remain in abeyance for ten days. In case the Government Pleader does not take steps in that regard within a period of ten days, the order passed to-day keeping the impugned order in abeyance shall automatically stand vacated. The writ appeal is disposed of accordingly. However, there shall be no order as to costs."

9. W.M.P.Nos.15083 and 15082 of 1992 were filed by the State to respectively vacate the order dated 5.5.1992 in W.M.P.No.9519 of 1992 and the order dated 29.6.1992 in W.M.P.No.11856 of 1992. All the above W.M.Ps. came up for hearing before me as directed by the Division Bench in the above writ appeal.

10. Mr.M.A.Sadanand, learned Government Pleader submits that from 21.2.1991 to 11.6.1991, the petitioner company was not having any assurance or commitment from the Government for the supply of alcohol. It was during this period, there was a change of policy by the Government as per G.O.(D) No.188, Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991 substituting denatured spirit in lieu of rectified spirit for industrial purpose. The Government have taken the view that in order to prevent the misuse of rectified spirit after eliciting the views of the chemical industries, who have consented to the use of denatured spirit, directed to constitute a Technical Expert Committee to look into the claims of the industries from the point of view of technical difficulty in implementing the scheme. The Government granted extension of time upto 31.7.1991 to switch over from rectified spirit to denatured spirit by the concerned industries. The Government's letter dated 12.6.1991 was issued to the petitioner company when the extension of time was in force for switch over from rectified spirit to denatured spirit. Hence, according to Mr.M.A.Sadanand, learned Government Pleader, there was no reference to G.O.(D) No.188, Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991. Therefore, according to him, the question of affording opportunity to the petitioner company about the change of policy stated above did not arise. The petitioner company in their letter dated 12.12.1991 represented that the project was completed and the plant was ready for production. Therefore, there was an inspection by the Assistant Chemical Engineer of the Directorate of Industries and Commerce. According to his report, the company was completed the erection of plant and machinery but it was yet to get the consent order from the Tamil Nadu Pollution Control Board and the work regarding the effluent treatment was under progress. After examining these reports, by the impugned order dated 29.4.1992 of the 1st respondent, the petitioner company was permitted to draw 50,000 litres of denatured spirit (denatured with 5% ether), which is impugned in the writ petition.

11. It is, therefore, urged by Mr.M.A.Sadanand, learned Government Pleader, that the order of allotment made by the 1st respondent in pursuance to the order of the Government in G.O.(D) No.188, Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991, is in order and that the contention of the petitioner that the delay in putting up of the machinery was administrative is far from the truth. By way of answer to the argument put forward by the petitioner's senior counsel with reference to the petitioner's representation that the plant is designed only to have rectified spirit as raw material, the learned Government Pleader submits that there was joint inspection by the Joint Commissioner II (Prohibition and Excise), the Joint Director (Chemicals) in charge and the Assistant Chemical Engineer on 2.6.1992 and the said committee has jointly reported that the petitioner has erected plant and machinery, and certain minor items of works are to be completed. The learned Government Pleader also invited my attention to the inspecting officers' report, which has been extracted at page 7 of the counter affidavit. The learned Government Pleader further submits that the apprehension of the petitioner of any accident or mishap because of denatured spirit containing ether is absolutely baseless. He also denies the statement of the petitioner that the supply of denatured spirit will result in closure of the industry. He submits that the rectified spirit can be diverted for the manufacture of spurious alcoholic drinks easily and in order to prevent such misuse, the rectified spirit is denatured and supplied so that it will not be possible for human consumption. By this process, the petitioner company is not in any way prejudiced.

12. Mr.M.A.Sadanand, learned Government Pleader then submits that if the petitioner is aggrieved by the impugned order of the 1st respondent, he should have preferred his claim before the Technical Expert Committee and got his grievance redressed. The petitioner has failed to do so but has straightaway approached this Court and filed the writ petition and thereby it has failed to exhaust the opportunities available before the administrative forums. On this ground alone, according to the learned Government Pleader, the direction petitions are to be dismissed. The learned Government Pleader further states that there are no sustainable grounds in the writ petition and the impugned order is valid in law and that the petitioner cannot compel the Government to supply rectified spirit contrary to the policy decision taken after due deliberation. The petitioner cannot be aggrieved by the impugned order and hence, if the interim directions given by this Court are not vacated, the interest of the Government will be greatly prejudiced.

13. I have carefully analysed the elaborate arguments advanced by the learned senior counsel for the petitioner and the learned Government Pleader, and I am unable to accept the arguments put forward by the learned Government Pleader, for the following reasons.

14. I am of the firm view that the interim directions were given by my learned Brother Govindaswami, J., only after considering and appreciating the arguments of the learned senior counsel for the petitioner. It is an admitted fact that only after due consideration of the representation of the petitioner, the Secretary to Government, Prohibition and Excise Department, by letter dated 12.6.1991 informed the petitioner that the request of the petitioner has been considered and the Government grants time till June, 1992, to commence production, and if production is not commenced by the end of June, 1992, the allotment of 12 million litres of industrial alcohol made by the Government in G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E (III) Department, dated 5.2.1982, would be cancelled. It is not in dispute that all the governmental agencies have completed their formalities and the petitioner company is ready to operate the plant and commence production. It is also a matter of record that only after due inspection, the Department has informed the Government that necessary industrial alcohol can be allotted to the petitioner company to have the trial run. But, the petitioner company to its dismay has received the impugned proceedings of the 1st respondent stating that 50,000 litres of denatured spirit with 5% ether denaturant would be allotted to the petitioner company from E.I.D. Parry (India) Ltd., Nellikuppam, for trial run for five days and the Assistant Commissioner (Excise), North Arcot and the Joint Director (Chemicals), shall monitor the trial run and report to the Government for further orders. I am of the prima facie view that the impugned proceedings are not tenable in law.

15. It is seen from the impugned proceedings that in view of the decision of the Government in G.O.(D) No.188, P and E III Department, dated 30.3.1991, the 50,000 litres of denatured spirit with 5% ether has been allotted to the petitioner company for trial run of the plant to manufacture solvent ether and ethylene ether and other chemicals. It is pertinent to note that the 1st respondent has failed to note that the Government in their letter dated 12.5.1991 issued after G.O.Ms.No.188 P and E III Department dated 13.3.1991, has directed the petitioner company to commence the production positively before June, 1992, to enable them to have the allotment of industrial alcohol as per G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E (III) Department, dated 5.2.1982. There was no reference to G.O.Ms.No.188 P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991 or modification of the allotment of denatured spirit instead of rectified spirit. The 1st respondent, contrary to the orders of the Government, had directed that denatured spirit, with 5% ether alone will be supplied to the petitioner company for trial run. I am of the view, that the above decision of the 1st respondent made in the impugned proceedings is not sustainable in law. The plant, which has been put up by the petitioner company, is designed to have only rectified spirit as the raw material. Such a substitution of raw material in my view, will adversely affect the production, ability, capacity and viability of the plant.

16. Mr.S.Govind Swaminathan, learned senior counsel for the petitioner, at the time of argument has also referred to certain other proceedings initiated by persons similarly placed as that of the writ petitioner. He referred to the proceedings in W.P.Nos.11614 and 11615 of 1991, which have been filed by other persons, wherein this Court has directed the Government to continue the existing arrangement of supplying only the rectified spirit to the alcohol based industries till the disposal of the writ petitions. He also referred to W.P.No.12585 of 1991 filed by one Kurunji Chemicals, similarly placed like the petitioner company, wherein also this Court has directed the Government to allot rectified spirit since the said plant is designed to have the same as raw material. It is not disputed by the learned Government Pleader that the above referred orders of this Court are still in force and the Government have not so far taken any steps to vacate the interim directions given by this Court in the above matters.

17. The Government have issued G.O.Ms.No.188, Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991, indicating the decision of the Government concerning the proposal of the 1st respondent. In this G.O., the Government have specifically ordered in paragraph 3 as under:

"The Government also direct the Commissioner of Prohibition and Excise to constitute a technical expert committee to look into the pleas of any industries from the point of technical difficulty in implementing the scheme. If any industry persists in the allocation of rectified spirit alone, it should be only under the stringent formalities."

It is seen from the above G.O., that the Government have clearly indicated that if any industry persists in the allocation of rectified spirit alone, the same alone could be allotted enforcing stringent formalities. When the policy decision of the Government is unambiguous, the 1st respondent, without any authority or power, has chosen to order that denatured spirit of 50,000 litres with 5% ether would be allotted to the petitioner for trial run. The 1st respondent has also erroneously stated that the policy of the Government was to switch over from rectified spirit to denatured spirit and the same has been ordered in G.O.Ms.No.188, Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991 and therefore, 50,000 litres of denatured spirit would be allotted to the petitioner. I am of the view, that the above conclusion of the 1st respondent is contrary to the policy decision of the Government. A mere reading of G.O.(D) No.188, Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991 will disclose that the Government have specifically ordered in the said G.O., that if any industry persists for the allocation of rectified spirit, then the same should be allotted imposing stringent conditions. This being the policy decision of the Government, the 1st respondent, in my view, ought to have allotted only rectified spirit to the petitioner company taking into consideration the nature of design of the plant and machinery.

18. The 1st respondent failed to notice a very important factor viz., that only after G.O.(D) No.188, Home, P and E (III) Department, dated 13.3.1991 was issued, the Secretary, P and E Department, issued the letter dated 12.6.1991 directing the petitioner to commence production on or before June, 1992, and if they failed to do so, the allotment of 12 million litres of industrial alcohol by the Government as per G.O.Ms.No.87, P and E (III) Department, dated 5.2.1982, would be cancelled. When the Government have not imposed any condition and in the letter only allotment of industrial alcohol has been indicated, the 1st respondent has no authority to allot denatured spirit to the petitioner. The 1st respondent, in my view, ought to have ascertained from the petitioner-company about the allotment of denatured spirit instead of rectified spirit. Without affording any opportunity to the petitioner company, the 1st respondent has arbitrarily ordered in the impugned proceedings that denatured spirit of 50,000 litres will be allotted to the petitioner company for trial run. In my opinion, the order of the 1st respondent is erroneous and improper. Hence, the same shall not be given effect to during the pendency of the writ petition.

19. Another important thing which the Government have failed to see is that the Petitioner Company has designed the plant and machinery to have only rectified spirit as the raw material to manufacture ether anesthetic products classified under Indian Pharmacopia. The design of the plant and machinery of the petitioner company cannot have denatured spirit as the raw material. According to the writ petitioner, if denatured spirit with 5% ether is used as the basic raw material, then the design and the storage facilities have to be modified accordingly incurring considerable expenditure. It is also stated that transporting and storing of denatured spirit with 5% ether denaturant is hazardous and is security risk, and that the present fabricated structures are not fit to store and the plant is not capable to process the denatured spirit. When the present design of the plant and machinery cannot have denatured spirit as the raw material and only with the modification the same can be done, the Government is not entitled to modify its earlier order and insist upon the supply of denatured spirit. I am, therefore, of the view, that the Government is estopped from imposing such unreasonable condition on the petitioner.

20. Balance of convenience is also only in favour of the petitioner. There are nearly 35 workers employed in the company and any denial of rectified spirit would result in closure of the factory, thereby throwing them out of employment. The petitioner has also invested borrowed capital from banks and other authorities. Interests of justice would be amply met only if the earlier directions given by this Court are allowed to continue pending disposal of the writ petition. I am of the view that my learned Brother S.Govindaswami, J., is right and well within his jurisdiction in issuing such interim directions pending disposal of the writ petition. The argument of the learned Government Pleader that this Court has no jurisdiction to pass interim orders without hearing the affected respondents is not tenable in law. I am of the firm view that this Court can issue such interim directions in suitable cases taking into consideration of the various aspects of the case and even without hearing the respondent, if necessary. In my view, this is eminently a fit case for issuing interim directions even without hearing the respondents, since this Court has only directed the respondents to act upon their own earlier commitment. In the instant case, various steps have been taken by the petitioner company only on the assurance and promise made by the Government in unequivocal terms for the allotment of rectified spirit. It is unfortunate that the 1st respondent has issued the impugned proceedings to the petitioner company which has already established the industry at huge cost and is ready to start trial run.

21. Since the matter was argued at length by both the learned counsel, I am compelled to write a detailed and elaborate order even in the W.M.Ps. As already stated, the writ petition was admitted on 5.5.1992 and interim direction was given on the same day. The same was clarified on 29.6.1992. My learned brother S. Govindaswami, J., has made it very clear that the Government is expected to comply with the directions and failure to do so will amount to contempt of Court. However, my learned Brother, instead of issuing notice of contempt, by way of indulgence, issued directions to the respondents to effect supply in a period of two weeks from the date of receipt of the order dated 29.6.1992. My learned Brother has also rightly extended the time to commence the trial run. However, the Government without complying with the clarified order dated 29.6.1992, have filed W.M.P.Nos.15082 and 15083 of 1992 on 29.7.1992. I am of the view, that the stand taken by the Government is unrealistic. The Government shall not delay any further in implementing the directions given by this Court on 5.5.1992 and clarified on 29.6.1992, and comply with the same within two weeks from to-day.

22. For the foregoing reasons, the interim directions given by this Court in W.M.P.Nos.9519 and 11856 of 1992 are made absolute. W.M.P.Nos.9519 and 11856 of 1992 are ordered and W.M.P.Nos.15082 and 15083 of 1992, which are filed by the Government to vacate the interim directions, are dismissed.

B.S.

Petitions ordered.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- K.M.Natarajan, J.

W.P.No.6587 of 1983 20th September, 1991.

N.Sivadasan

...Petitioner

v.

The Appellate Authority under the Payment of Gratuity Act and others ...Respondents.

Payment of Gratuity Act (XXXIX of 1972), Sec. 2(s) - "Wages" - If includes cash equivalent of tiffin and meals supplied.

It is clear from the definition of "wages" in the Payment of Gratuity Act that the value of tiffin and food supplied cannot be included in the term "wages". It is true that under the Tamil Nadu Catering Establishments Act, 1958, the cash equivalent of the meals and tiffin supplied to the employee free of charge is also included in the term "wages" as defined in that Act. But the same cannot be imported in the matter of payment of gratuity under the Payment of Gratuity Act.

[Paras 4 and 6]

Cases referred to:

The Delhi Cloth and General Mills Company Ltd. v.

The Workmen, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 919. [Para 6]

Lakshmi Coffee Hotel v. Their Workmen, (1967) 1

L.L.J. 258. [Para 7]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorarified mandamus calling for the records of the 1st respondent relating to payment of gratuity Appeal No.30 of 1980 dated 31.10.1980 confirming the 2nd respondent's order in P.G. Case No.252 of 1979 dated 5.12.1979 and quash the same in so far as it denies the petitioner from receiving full gratuity and consequently directing the 3rd respondent to pay the petitioner a sum of Rs.247.50 towards the balance of gratuity.

M/s. Anna Mathew, for Petitioner.

M.Liakat Ali, Government Advocate, for Respondent Nos.1 and 2.

The Court made the following

ORDER: This writ petition has been filed for the issue of a writ of certiorarified mandamus calling for the records of the 1st respondent relating to Payment of Gratuity Appeal No.30 of 1980, dated 31.10.1980 confirming the 2nd respondent's order in P.G. Case No.252 of 1979 dated 5.12.1979 and quashing the same in so far as it denies the petitioner from receiving full gratuity and consequently directing the 3rd respondent to pay the petitioner a sum of Rs.247.50 towards the balance of gratuity.

2. The brief facts which are necessary for the disposal of this writ petition can be stated as follows:

The writ petitioner herein filed a petition before the controlling authority under the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972, in which both parties made an endorsement to the effect that the parties agreed about the services of the applicant as six years and the parties agreed that the applicant's last drawn wages in cash is Rs.45 p.m. The contention of the petitioner was that the cash equivalent to the food value per mensem i.e. Rs.82.50 should be counted as wages while the respondents argued that the definition clause of wages refers only to the amount paid in cash and shall not include the food allowance or amount equivalent to the food or tiffin given along with wages as conditions of employment. The parties agreed that the Controlling Authority may pass orders on the basis of the endorsement. The controlling authority came to the conclusion that in view of the definition of wages under the Payment of Gratuity Act it is not possible to accept that the food equivalent is paid in cash, and as such the petitioner is entitled to claim gratuity on the basis of last drawn wages paid at Rs.45 p.m. and on the basis of the same he was awarded a sum of Rs.135. He was unsuccessful before the appellate authority. Hence the writ petition.

3. The learned counsel for the petitioner mainly submitted that the value of food supplied to the petitioner is also included in the wages and if it is included the salary of the petitioner would come to Rs.147 and the petitioner is entitled to get more gratuity and he would submit that for construing the terms 'wages' reliance should be placed on the definition in Tamil Nadu Catering Establishments Act, 1958. He also cited a decision reported in Lakshmi Coffee Hotel v. Their Workmen, (1967) 1 L.L.J. 258, which arose out of the Industrial Disputes Act.

4. The point that arises for determination in this petition is whether the definition of wages under the Tamil Nadu Payment of Gratuity Act, would include the value of food provided. According to the learned counsel for the petitioner it would come under the word 'wages' in accordance with the terms and conditions of the employment even though the same was not paid in cash. For proper appreciation of the rival contentions it is worthwhile to consider the relevant definition of "wages" under the Payment of Gratuity Act.

" 'Wages' means all emoluments which are earned by an employee while on duty or on leave in accordance with the terms and conditions of his employment and which are paid or are payable to him in cash and includes dearness allowance but does not include any bonus commission house-rent allowance, overtime wages and any other allowance."

It is seen from this definition that all emoluments which are earned by an employee while on duty or on leave in accordance with the terms and conditions of his employment and which are paid or are payable to him in cash and includes dearness allowance but does not include any bonus can be termed as wages. As per the definition bonus commission house rent allowance overtime wages and any other allowance cannot be included in the definition of "Wages".

5. Sec.2(13)(A) of the Tamil Nadu Catering Establishments Act, 1958 defines wages:

" 'Wages' means the basic wages dearness allowance, the cash equivalent of the meals and tiffin supplied to the employee free of charge and the value of any other amenity or of service or of any concessional supply of foodgrains or other articles which can be computed in terms of money but does not include bonus."

It is clear from the above definition that the cash equivalent of the meals and tiffin supplied to the employees free of charge is also included in the term "wages". The learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that in view of the said definition in the abovesaid Act which is a special enactment the same can be imported in the case of the petitioner in the matter of granting payment of gratuity. I do not find any force in the said contention.

6. Now we will deal with the question of payment of gratuity. It is clear from the definition of "wages" in the Tamil Nadu Catering Establishments Act, 1958, (sic. Payment of Gratuity Act) that the value of food supplied cannot be included in the term of wages as it is only the amount paid as cash equivalent to the meals. In this connection the learned Government Advocate drew the attention of the court to the decision of the Supreme Court reported in The Delhi Cloth and General Mills Company Ltd. v. The Workmen, A.I.R. 1970 S.C. 919, wherein their Lordship had observed thus:

"In determining the scope of an industrial reference it cannot be held that the words used either in the claim advanced or in the order of reference made by Government under Sec.10 of the Industrial Disputes Act must have the meaning they have under the Industrial Disputes Act. Merely because the expression 'wages' includes D.A. within the meaning of the Industrial Disputes Act, the tribunal is not obliged to base a gratuity scheme on consolidated wages. Normally gratuity is based not on the consolidated wage but on basic wage."

7. The learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon a decision of this Court in Lakshmi Coffee Hotel v. Their Workmen, (1967) 1 L.L.J. 258, which arose under the Industrial Disputes Act and wherein Sec.2(rr) of the Industrial Disputes Act was considered. The definition of wages under Sec.2(rr) of the Act is very wide enough to include the free food and tiffin supplied to the employee. Sec.2(rr) of the Industrial Disputes Act reads as follows:

" 'Wages' means all remuneration capable of being expressed in terms of money which would if the terms of employment expressed or implied were fulfilled be payable to a workman in respect of his employment or of work done in such employment and includes--

(i) such allowances (including dearness allowance) as the workman is for the time being entitled to;

(ii) the value of any house accommodation or of supply of light, water, medical attendance or other amenity or of any concessional supply of foodgrains or other articles;

(iii) any travelling concession;

(iv) any commission payable on the promotion of sales or business or both, but does not include--

(a) any bonus;

(b) any contribution paid or payable by the employer to any pension fund or provident fund or for the benefit of the workman under any law for the time being in force;

(c) any gratuity payable on the termination of his service."

It is only in view of the definition under the said act it was held so in the said decision that the value of the food supplied forms part of the wages. The decision cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner is not applicable to the fact of this case. On a careful consideration of the entire material and the relevant provisions with regard to the definition of wages under the Payment of Gratuity Act, I am of the view that the authorities have rightly interpreted the word 'wages' while granting relief to the petitioner and as such no case is made out for the issue of a writ of certiorari and mandamus as prayed for.

8. In the result, the writ petition fails and is dismissed. There will be no order as to costs.

V.K.

Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- Srinivasan, J.

W.P.No.183 of 1985

18th August, 1992.

M.Devan

...Petitioner

v.

The Tamil Nadu Civil Supplies Corporation Limited, Dharmapuri District ... Respondent.

Domestic enquiry - Charges framed against petitioner for tampering with document - Document not produced during enquiry - Petitioner not given opportunity to make submissions with reference to the said document - Enquiry not concluded having been adjourned at the instance of the petitioner - Termination of services of petitioner, held illegal.

Two charges were framed against the petitioner that he concealed the fact that he did not have the requisite educational qualification for the post of Assistant Quality Inspector and obtained that appointment by giving an application containing false information and that he tampered with the temporary certificate issued by the University by erasing the word 'Mathematics' and writing the word 'Botany' and thus forged the certificates. The petitioner denied the charges and prayed for the production of the documents on which reliance was placed by the respondent. The Enquiry Officer put some questions to the petitioner on 19.9.1984. The petitioner filed a petition for adjournment till the production of the relevant documents. The Enquiry Officer made an endorsement that the enquiry was adjourned. But he submitted a report stating that both the charges were proved to be correct and his services were terminated on the basis of the report. The order was challenged by way of a writ petition.

Held: There can be no doubt whatever that the enquiry has not been conducted properly in accordance with law apart from the fact that the enquiry was not conducted by the Enquiry Officer and sufficient evidence was not on record to substantiate the two charges framed against the petitioner. The respondent ought to have produced the documents before the Enquiry Officer which are relevant for the purposes of the enquiry and which prove the two charges framed against the petitioner and the petitioner ought to have been given an opportunity to make his submissions with reference to the said documents. As the said procedure has not been followed, the court has no option, but to quash the impugned order passed by the respondent. [Para 8]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorari calling for the records relating to the proceedings No.N.K.22282 of 1983 E1, dated 20.11.1984 of the respondent herein, quash the same.

Venkataraman, for Petitioner.

V.V.Bhanu for G.Bhaskaran, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER: When the writ petition was taken up for hearing it was represented on behalf of learned counsel appearing for the respondent that a letter has been received by them from the respondent this morning to the effect that their services as counsel for the respondent have been terminated. The letter has been produced before me. I find that according to the letter a new panel of advocates has been prepared and the present advocates on record have been requested to hand over the records in all the pending cases to the respondent so that they could entrust the same to the new advocates. Hence learned counsel expressed his dilemma in continuing with the arguments in the case. This writ petition was taken up for hearing on 11.8.1992. It was part-heard on that day and I posted it to 17.8.1992. It could not be heard yesterday and it was adjourned to this date. As this matter is part-heard, the letter of the respondent will not certainly prevent the counsel on record from continuing the arguments and concluding the same. I directed the learned counsel for the respondent on record to complete the arguments. Pursuant to my direction arguments were advanced by learned counsel for the respondent.

2. This writ petition has to be allowed on a very short ground. The prayer of the petition is to quash the order dated 20.11.1984 passed against him by the respondent terminating his services on the ground that though he was not qualified for the post of Assistant Quality Inspector he made false representation and produced false certificates and got promoted as Assistant Quality Inspector.

3. According to the petitioner he never made false representation and he gave the correct information in his application that he had passed B.Sc., with Chemistry as main subject and Physics and Mathematics as ancillaries. It is his further case that the documents which are said to be forged are not tampered by him and when they were handed over by him to the respondent they contained only the correct entries to the effect that he had passed B.Sc., Chemistry with Mathematics and Physics as ancillary subjects.

4. Two charges were framed against the petitioner on 9.5.1984 as follows:

(1) The petitioner concealed the fact that he did not have the requisite educational qualification for the post of Assistant Quality Inspector and gave an application on 9.7.1982 containing false information thus, cheating the officials and obtained an appointment as Assistant Quality Inspector.

(2) He tampered with the temporary certificates issued by the University by erasing the word Mathematics and writing the word Botany thereon and thus forged the certificates.

The petitioner denied the charges and prayed for production of the documents on which reliance is placed by the respondent.

5. The Enquiry Officer posted the matter to 19.9.1984 from 14.9.1984 on which later date the enquiry, commenced at 3.00 p.m. The Enquiry Officer put some questions to the petitioner as to whether he was denying the charges. The petitioner denied the charges. The Enquiry Officer put in all six questions. The petitioner only reiterated his stand taken earlier and ultimately he stated that the relevant documents, viz. his applications as well as the certificates should be produced for the enquiry as they were necessary thereafter. The last question put by the Enquiry Officer as whether the petitioner wanted to say anything. The answer of the petitioner was that he was presenting an application. The said application was one for adjournment till the production of the relevant documents. The Enquiry Officer received the application. An endorsement was made on the minutes of the proceedings that the enquiry was adjourned. The Tamil expression used is

6. Thereafter, the Enquiry Officer submitted a report to the disciplinary authorities stating that both the charges against the petitioner were proved to be correct. In the report, the Enquiry Officer had stated about the allegations, replies given by the petitioner and his conclusions. The proceedings submitted along with the report only contained the questions put by the Enquiry Officer to the petitioner and his answers to which I have already made a reference. The entry as to adjournment is also found in the proceedings submitted by the Enquiry Officer and it is significant to note that the signature of the petitioner and the endorsement made by him that he had read the proceedings and found them to be correct are at the bottom below the endorsement relating to adjournment. Therefore, it is clear that the petitioner was informed by the Enquiry Officer that the enquiry was adjourned.

7. Admittedly, no further enquiry was held and the petitioner was not informed that his application for adjournment was refused or rejected by the Enquiry Officer submitted a report on the basis of which the disciplinary authority passed the impugned order.

8. There can be no doubt whatever that the enquiry has not been conducted properly in accordance with law, apart from the fact that the enquiry was not conducted by the Enquiry Officer and sufficient evidence was not on record to substantiate the two charges framed against the petitioner. The respondent ought to have produced the documents before the Enquiry Officer which are relevant for the purposes of the enquiry and which prove the two charges framed against the petitioner and the petitioner ought to have been given an opportunity to make his submissions with reference to the said documents. As the said procedure has not been followed, I have no option but to quash the impugned order passed by the respondent. The order dated 20.11.1984 in N.K.No.22282/83 E1 on the file of the respondent is quashed. The writ petition is allowed. The respondent, if it so desires may continue the enquiry from the stage at which it was left and conclude the same in accordance with law. There will be no order as to costs.

9. As the order of termination is quashed, the petitioner will be deemed to be in service and the order of suspension made against him previously will get revived. Hence the petitioner will be treated as an employee under suspension until further orders are passed by the respondent.

10. It is necessary to mention that the respondent filed a criminal complaint against the petitioner by forwarding a complaint to the Inspector of Police, District Crime Branch, Dharmapuri on 21.3.1983. That was taken on file and a case was registered under Secs.420 and 468 of the I.P.C. Now the case is pending as C.C.No.85 of 1984 on the file of the Judicial Magistrate No.1, Dharmapuri. The petitioner has filed CrI.O.P.No.3780 of 1991 in this court for quashing the said proceedings. In CrI.M.P.No.2321 of 1991 an order of stay of the criminal proceedings has been passed on 12.6.1991. I am of the view that the CrI.O.P.No.3780 of 1991 shall be disposed of immediately on its merits as the relevant question as to whether the petitioner is guilty of forgery or not shall be decided. The petitioner states that the ground on which he seeks to have the criminal proceedings quashed is that the proceedings have been unduly delayed for over eight years and they should not be continued. If this court thinks that the proceedings can be quashed on that ground, it is for the court to decide accordingly. At any rate, the proceedings which was initiated in 1984 should not be kept stayed indefinitely by virtue of an order of this court in a proceedings for quashing the same under Sec.482 of the CrI.P.C.

11. The registry is directed to post CrI.O.P.No.3780 of 1991 and CrI.2324 of 1991 before the concerned Judge on 20.8.1992 for orders as to fixing the date for hearing.

B.S. ---- Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present:- Raju, J.

W.P.Nos.14595, 15225 and 15226 of 1990
27th August, 1992.

Muthuswamy and others ...Petitioners
v.

The State of Tamil Nadu represented by Secretary to Government Adi-Dravidar and Tribal Welfare Department, Madras and another ...Respondents.

(A) Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Sec.4(1) - Acquisition of land - Notification under - Delay of 25 days in publication of substance of notification at convenient places in the locality and in public offices - Effect.

Held:- The publication within 25 days of the Sec.4(1) notification cannot be said to be an infirmity in law or that it cannot be legitimately said to be not a simultaneous publication. [Para 9]

(B) Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Sec.6, Proviso - Notification for acquisition of land published in gazette on 16.11.1988 - Substance of notification published in public office on 20.12.1988 - Declaration under Sec.6 issued on 20.11.1989 and published in gazette on 27.11.1989 - Declaration, if within one year of publication.

Factually, the details disclosed would show that the declaration has been made and issued under the Act within the stipulated period of one year from the date of the publication of the notification having regard to the fact that as held by a Division Bench of this Court, in Government of Tamil Nadu v. S.Jayaraman, 1992 Writ L.R. 332, the period of one year has to be computed with reference to the date of the last of the category of various kinds of publications contemplated under Sec.4 of the Notification. [Para 9]

(C) Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Sec.6 - Declaration under - Name of owner found in, known to be dead to the authorities - Notification, if valid.

Admittedly, the respondents were aware of the fact that the original owner of the lands had died long before. In spite of the said factual position under Sec.6 of the Act, the name of the erstwhile owner whose death was known to the respondents is found published. On this ground alone, the impugned order of acquisition deserves to be quashed. [Para 10]

(D) Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), Sec.5-A - Enquiry under - Owner of land to be acquired, dead - Authorities not making proper enquiries to find out heirs of owner - Accepting claim made by son-in-law that the lands had been given to him by some arrangement - Allowing him to participate in enquiry - Entire proceedings if vitiated.

It is beyond comprehension as to how the responsible authorities discharging statutory functions under the Act were very much indifferent in making due enquiries to ascertain about the heirs of the deceased owner and were so gullible to readily accept a claim by someone that the lands have been given to him by mutual and oral understanding. The person who made such a claim claimed to be the son-in-law of the erstwhile owner. Such contentions coming from responsible statutory functionaries cannot be either justified or sustained in a Court of Law. The authorities have miserably failed to verify properly about the heirs of the deceased pattadar and the fact that such heirs have not themselves come on record cannot be a valid plea in a case of the nature involving the issue of a notification or a declaration in the name of a dead person. The procedure adopted by the respondents cannot be approved by a Court of Law. On account of the irregularities and lapses committed in the part of the respondents in properly verifying about the ownership or the legal ownership the petitioners have been seriously prejudiced. This vitiates the impugned land acquisition proceedings. [Para 10].

Case referred to:

Government of Tamil Nadu v. S.Jayaraman, 1992 Writ L.R. 332. [Para 6]

Petitions under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writs of certiorari calling for the records relating to the Declaration under Sec.6 of the Land Acquisition Act made in G.O.Ms. No.2171, Adi Dravidar and Tribal Welfare, dated 20.11.89 and published in the Tamil Nadu Government Gazette (Extraordinary), Part II, Sec.2, dated 27.11.89 and quash the same in so far as the petitioners.

1. in S.F.No.138/12B measuring about 0.15.5 hectares at 94, Nattar Mangalam Village, Perambalur Taluk, Trichy District (in W.P. No.14595/90), etc. V.Nicholas and M/s.K.Venkataraman and R.K.Ravindran, for Petitioners.

P.Balasubramanian, Additional Government Pleader for Respondents.

The Court made the following

ORDER: These three writ petitions can be considered, and disposed of together since they relate to the same acquisition and declaration under Sec.6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 and the learned counsel appearing on either side also made submissions in common.

2. The above writ petitions have been filed seeking for quashing the declaration issued under Sec.6 of the Act and in G.O.Ms.No.2171, Adi Dravidar and Tribal Welfare, dated 20.11.1989 in so far as the lands of the respective writ petitioners are concerned. The petitioners in W.P.No.14595 of 1990 claimed to be the sons of late Ramasamy Moopanar, S/o.Muthusamy Moopanar, the original owner of Survey No.138/12B. The petitioner in W.P.No.15225 of 1990 claims to be the owner of the property in Survey No.138/13B. W.P.No.15226 of 1990 has been filed by a person claiming to be the owner of Survey No.138/10 and he claims title under a Will said to have been executed on 6.7.1963 by his aunt by name Poonjolai Ammal, stated to be the original owner of the said item of land.

3. Notice of motion has been ordered by this Court in W.P.No.14595 of 1990 on 10.9.1990 and the other two writ petitions on 18.9.1990 and at that time, interim stay of dispossession alone was granted with liberty to proceed with further proceedings. Notices have been served and the respondents have entered appearance. A counter-affidavit has also been filed for the respondents.

4. Mr. V.Nicholas, learned counsel appearing for the petitioners in all these cases contended in common for all the writ petitions, that (a) No personal service of notices for the enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act has been served on the petitioners; (b) that the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act came to be made beyond a period of one year from the date of notification under Sec.4 of the Act in contravention of the Proviso to Sec.6 of the Act; and (c) There was no simultaneous publication of the substance of the notification and that this infirmity vitiates the acquisition proceedings.

5. While meeting the above contentions, learned counsel for the respondents points out from the averments contained in the counter filed that the acquisition in question relating to dry lands measuring about 0.99.0 hectares in S.F.Nos.138/10, 138/12B, 138/13B and 138/14B of Nattarmangalam Village, Perambalur Taluk, Trichy District was for the purpose of providing house sites to 40 houseless Adi-Dravidar families, that the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act was issued in G.O.Ms.No.334 (ADTW), dated 1.11.1988 and published on 16.11.1988 in the Tamil Nadu Government Gazette that the same was published in the Tamil daily newspapers on 17.11.1988, that the substance of the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act was published at the convenient places in the locality on 9.12.1988 as required under the Act and that the substance of the notification was also published in Form 3 under the Act at the Collector's Office, Trichy Taluk Office, Perambalur Sub Registrar's Office, Chettikulam and Police Station at Padalur on 20.12.1988 and that individual notices for enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act in the prescribed Form 3-A were served on the land owners and interested persons in the lands on 25.1.1989. While elaborating the above submission regarding the personal service of notice, it is pointed out for the respondents that so far as the owner in respect of Survey No.138/12B is concerned, the pattadar was said to have died long before and that one Ramasamy, S/o.Arunachala Moopanar claiming to be the son-in-law of the deceased represented that the lands were given to him by oral agreement and mutual understanding and that he has been served with notice in respect of the said survey number treating to him to be the owner and enjoyer. In respect of the land which is the subject matter of W.P.No.15225 of 1990 it is claimed that Ramasamy, S/o. Arunachala Moopanar who claimed to be also the son-in-law of the owner of the land which is the subject matter of W.P.No.14595 of 1990 has been served with notice and that he did also appear for the enquiry by participating in it. So far as the owner of the land which is the subject matter of W.P.No.15226 of 1990 is concerned, it is claimed that on the refusal of the petitioner to receive the notice the same was served by affixure and that the petitioner also participated in the enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act and, therefore, no valid objection could be taken on behalf of the said writ petitioner making a grievance of absence of personal service. It is admitted that so far as the writ petitioners in W.P.No.14595 of 1990 is concerned, no notices have been served on them and that they have not also participated in the enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act.

6. So far as the contention based on the alleged violation of the Proviso to Sec.6 of the Act is concerned, it is pointed out for the respondents that the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act came to be made in G.O.Ms.No.2171, ADTW, dated 20.11.1989 and published in the Tamil Nadu Government Gazette on 27.11.1989 and having regard to the date of the last of the different kinds of publication of the notification under Sec.4(1) of the Act referred to already the proviso to Sec.6 of the Act could not be said to have been violated and that the declaration was made well within the period of one year from the date of the last of such publication viz. 20.12.1988 (Vide: Government of Tamil Nadu v. S.Jarayaman, 1992 Writ L.R. 332).

7. So far as the ground and grievance made on the absence of simultaneous publication, the learned counsel for the petitioner himself fairly stated on going through the materials and details furnished in the counter-affidavit that the publication has been effected within 25 days. The same could not be said to suffer any infirmity in law.

8. I have carefully considered the arguments of the learned counsel appearing on either side. So far as the petitioners in W.P.Nos.15225 and 15226 of 1990 are concerned, the plea of absence of personal notice cannot be countenanced in the light of the details furnished in the counter-affidavit which has been referred to supra. The writ petitioner in W.P.No.15225 of 1990 has been served and he has participated in the enquiry too. Though the writ petitioner in W.P.No.15226 of 1990 has not been personally served, it was only due to the refusal of the petitioner to receive the notice and in the wake of such refusal it is claimed for the respondents that the notice has been served by affixure. The procedure adopted cannot be said to be bad in law particularly when the said person actually participated in the enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act. So far as the said writ petitioners are concerned, the grievance projected on the ground of alleged absence of personal service of notice has to fail in the light of the facts stated and my conclusions referred to above.

9. So far as the ground relating to the absence of simultaneous publication is concerned, the details furnished in the counter-affidavit to which a reference has been already made would belie the claim of the petitioners and the publication within 25 days of the notification cannot be said to be an infirmity in law or that it cannot be legitimately said to be not a simultaneous publication. This ground of challenge also does not merit acceptance. Equally untenable is the ground of challenge based on the proviso to Sec.6 of the Act. Factually the details disclosed would show that the declaration has been made and issued under the Act within the stipulated period of one year from the date of the publication of the notification, having regard to the fact that as held by a Division Bench of this Court the period of one year has to be computed with reference to the date of the last of the category of various kinds of publications contemplated under Sec.4 of the Notification.

10. So far as the absence of personal service of notice on the petitioners in W.P.No.14595 of 1990 is concerned, the only answer of the respondent is that the son-in-law of the erstwhile owner represented that the lands have been given to him on a mutual arrangement and that therefore notice was served on such persons, that he has participated in the enquiry under Sec.5-A of the Act and that therefore no objection could be taken to the enquiry conducted or the absence of personal notice to the petitioners. The stand taken by the respondents in this regard cannot be countenanced in law. Admittedly, the respondents were aware of the fact that the original owner of the lands comprised in S.F.No.138/12B by name Ramasamy Moopanar, S/o.Muthusamy Moopanar died long before. In spite of the said factual position, it is surprising that even in the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act the name of the erstwhile owner whose death was known to the respondents is found published. On this ground alone, the impugned order in so far as it seriously relates to S.F.No.138/12B deserves to be quashed. That apart, it is beyond comprehension as to how the responsible authorities discharging statutory functions under the Act were very much indifferent in making due enquiries to ascertain about the heirs of the deceased owner and were so gullible to readily accept a claim by someone that the lands have been given to him by mutual and oral understanding. The person who made such a claim claimed to be the son-in-law of the erstwhile owner. Such contentions coming from responsible statutory functionaries cannot be either justified or sustained in a Court of Law. The authorities, in my view have miserably failed to verify properly about the heirs of the deceased pattadar and the fact that such heirs have not themselves come on record cannot be a valid plea in a case of the nature involving the death of the only owner of the land or justify the issue of a notification or a declaration in the name of a dead person. The procedure adopted by the respondents cannot be approved by a Court of Law. On account of the irregularities and lapses committed on the part of the respondents in properly verifying about the ownership or the legal heirship in respect of S.F.No.138/12B, the petitioners have been seriously prejudiced. This vitiates the impugned land acquisition proceedings in so far as it relates to S.F.No.138/12B. The grievance made on the absence of notice as well as the manner of issue of notification and the declaration under Sec.6 of the Act in so far as it relates to the land of the petitioners in W.P.No.14595 of 1990 deserves to be sustained.

11. For all the reasons stated above, W.P.No.14595 of 1990 shall stand allowed as prayed for in so far as it relates to the lands of the petitioners are concerned, they fail and shall stand dismissed. But, in the circumstances, there is no order as to costs.

B.S.

Petitions ordered.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Ratnam and Somasundaram, JJ.

W.A.Nos.551 and 552 of 1988

21st September, 1992.

L.T.Morais

...Appellant

v.

J.A.James and others

...Respondents.

Civil Services - Seniority - Ad hoc Advice, if can be counted - Person appointed as Section Officer on 1.7.1963 - Rule requiring three years previous' experience for initial appointment introduced subsequently - Appointment if can be said to have been made not according to rules - Seniority if can be reckoned from 1.7.1963.

Held: It is a settled position of law that ad hoc service cannot be counted for determining seniority. If the initial appointment is not according to rules, subsequent regularisation of service does not entitle the employee to the benefit of the intervening ad hoc service for seniority. Seniority has to be reckoned from the date of regular appointment and not to be counted from the date of any stop-gap appointment. [Para 6]

The admitted factual position is that on 1.7.1963 when the appellant was appointed as Section Officer, there was no rule prescribing the condition that for initial appointment as Section Officer, a person should have three years of previous service. In the absence of such a rule, it cannot be said that the initial appointment of the appellant was not made according to the rules and that the appellant's initial appointment as Section Officer on 1.7.1963 was only ad hoc appointment. There is nothing on record to indicate that the appellant's initial appointment as Section Officer was only on ad hoc basis particularly when his appointment was made in respect of a post sanctioned by the ministry and that the appellant was immediately put on probation. It necessarily follows that the appellant's service has to be reckoned from 1.7.1963 for the purpose of fixing seniority. [Para 7]

Cases referred to:

Direct Recruit Class II Engg. Officers' Association v. State of Maharashtra, A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 1607; 1990 Lab.I.C. 1304; (1990) 2 S.C.C. 715. [Paras 4, 6]
P.S.Mahal v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 1291;

1984 Lab.I.C. 176: (1984)2 Serv.L.J. 197: (1984)2 Lab.L.J. 282. [Para 4]

Delhi W.S. & S. Disposal Committee v. R.K.Kashyap, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 278. [Para 4]

Keshav Chandra Joshi v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1991 S.C. 204. [Para 5]

Union of India v. S.K.Sharma, (1992)2 S.C.C. 728. [Para 5]

A.L.Somayaji, for Appellant.

R.Muthukumaraswamy for B.S.Gnanadesikan, for Respondent No.1 in W.A.No.551 of 1988.

R.Ganesan, for Respondent No.1 in W.A.No.552 of 1988.

Venkatachalapathy, for Respondent Nos.2 and 3 in both cases.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Somasundaram, J.: These writ appeals have been filed against the common order allowing Writ Petition Nos.2684 of 1983 and 2733 of 1986 filed by the first respondent in Writ Appeal Nos.551 and 552 of 1988 respectively, and setting aside the seniority list dated 15.3.1983 and restoring the seniority list published on 24.9.1981. The appellant herein is the 4th respondent in both the writ petitions referred to above.

2. By the order dated 18.8.1959, the appellant was appointed as apprentice in the Tuticorin Port Trust and the period of apprenticeship ended on 19.8.1960. Between 27.1.1961 and 23.2.1963, the appellant was employed in the Madras Electricity Board as construction foreman. Again on 27.3.1963, the appellant was appointed as Tracer in the scale of pay of Rs.110-4-150-EB-4-170-5-180-EB-5-200 in the Tuticorin Port Trust. Thereafter, by the order dated 8.7.1963, the appellant was appointed as Section Officer (Civil) in the scale of pay of Rs.180-10-290-EB-380 with effect from 1.7.1963 against the post sanctioned by the Ministry. On 17.7.1963 an advertisement inviting applications for the post of Section Officer in the Tuticorin Port Trust was issued. On the basis of the said advertisement, the first respondent in W.A.No.551 of 1988 applied for appointment as Section Officer and on 6.11.1963 he was appointed as Section Officer. Similarly, on 11.11.1963 Shri A.S. Ganapathi, the first respondent in W.A.No.552 of 1988 was appointed as Section Officer. Subsequently, questions arose regarding the inter se seniority of the diploma holders like the appellant and the first respondent in these writ appeals in the category of Section Officer/Junior Engineer, working in the Tuticorin Port Trust. This question eventually came to be agitated before this Court in Writ Petition Nos.6700, 6701 of 1973 and W.P.Nos.161 of 1974, 1852 of 1974 filed by the first respondent in Writ Appeal No.551 of 1988 and in Writ Petition No.6704 of 1973 filed by one Thiru Vetrivelsamy. All the writ petitions referred above were dismissed by a single Judge of this Court. Against the dismissal of W.P.No.6704 of 1973 Thiru Vetrivelsamy filed Writ Appeal No.446 of 1974 and against the dismissal of Writ Petition No.6700 of 1973, Writ Appeal Nos.591 to 594 of 1974 have been filed. By the judgment dated 15.11.1977, a Division Bench of this Court disposed of the above writ appeals. The question of fixation of inter se seniority in the category of Section Officer/Junior Engineer was dealt in Writ Appeal No.594 of 1974 and the Division Bench in Writ Appeal No.594 of 1974 directed that the inter se seniority of Section Officer/Junior Engineers should be re-fixed after publishing the draft seniority list, inviting objections and representations and finalising the seniority list after giving reasons and making a speaking order. Pursuant to the judgment of the Division Bench dated 15.11.1977, by his proceedings dated 1.7.1981, the third respondent circulated the draft seniority list as on 31.3.1980. In the said draft seniority list, the seniority of the first respondent in W.A.No.551 of 1988 was shown against Sl.No.2. In the said draft seniority list, the period of service of the appellant from 1.7.1963 to 27.3.1966 in the Tuticorin Harbour Project was shown as ad hoc service and it was further shown that the appellant was deemed to have been regularly appointed as Section Officer with effect from 28.3.1966. In fixing the inter se seniority, the 3rd respondent also invited objections and representations. After receiving the same, the 3rd respondent by his proceedings dated 24.9.1981 published the final seniority list. In the final seniority list, the first respondent in W.A.No.551 of 1988 was shown against Serial No.2 and the appellant was shown against Serial No.11. Subsequently, the third respondent found that the seniority list dated 24.9.1981 was inherently defective and erroneous and consequently another draft seniority list was prepared by the 3rd respondent on 31.7.1982 and circulated to all the interested parties who were given an opportunity to raise objections if any to the draft seniority list dated 31.7.1982. After considering the objections of the interested parties, on 15.3.1983, the seniority list of Section Officers/Junior Engineers was finalised as on 8.8.1973. In the seniority list dated 15.3.1983, the first respondent in W.A.No.551 of 1988 was shown as No.4 and the first respondent in W.A.No.552 of 1988 shown as No.8 and the appellant was shown as No.2. Aggrieved by the seniority list dated 15.3.1983, the first respondent in these writ appeals filed W.P.Nos.2684 of 1983 and 2733 of 1986 respectively to quash the said seniority list dated 15.3.1983 so far as it relates to the appellant and one Chinna Kaliapillai and to implement the seniority list dated 24.9.1984.

3. It was contended before the learned single Judge on behalf of the writ petitioners that the order of regularisation passed on 1.7.1981 by the 3rd respondent pursuant to the judgment in W.A.Nos.446 of 1974, 591 of 1974 to 594 of 1974 being correct and appropriate, there was no justification for the 3rd respondent to issue the proceedings dated 15.3.1983 refixing the inter se seniority of the Section Officer/Junior Engineers and therefore, the proceedings of the third respondent dated 15.3.1983 is illegal and liable to be set aside. The learned single Judge took the view that the appellant and one Thiru Chinna Kaliapillai were temporarily appointed on 1.7.1963 and 6.8.1962 respectively as Section Officers and that they did not possess the required three years previous experience. The learned single Judge also held that the regularisation process started only after the rules were framed for the first time by the Government of India by issuing notification dated 31.12.1968 and by the time the regularisation could be done, the experience qualification having become applicable to the appellant and Thiru Chinna Kaliapillai, they cannot claim to be differently treated from all others who could be considered for regularisation on that date. The learned single Judge further found that the Division Bench in Writ Appeal Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 has held that the condition of three years prior experience would apply to all appointments in the category of Section Officer/Junior Engineers. Consequently, the learned single Judge by a common order allowed the writ petitions and set aside the impugned proceedings of the 3rd respondent dated 15.3.1983 and restored the proceedings of the 3rd respondent dated 1.7.1981 which was published on 24.9.1981. Aggrieved by the common order of the learned single Judge, the appellant who is the 4th respondent in both the writ petitions has preferred these writ appeals.

4. Before us Mr.A.L.Somayaji, the learned counsel appearing for the appellant contended that the learned single Judge erred in thinking that the Division Bench in Writ Appeal Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 has laid down the principle for fixing the inter se seniority of the Section Officers. The learned counsel further contended that the period of service rendered by the appellant from 1.7.1963 has to be reckoned for fixing the inter se seniority because at the time when the appellant was appointed as section officer on 1.7.1963 there was no rule prescribing previous experience of 3 years as an essential qualification for appointment as Section Officer and such experience qualification was prescribed for the first time only. On 17.7.1963. The learned counsel also contended that the learned single Judge erred in applying the rules prescribing experience qualification to the case of the appellant who was appointed as Section Officer on 1.7.1963 and admittedly there was no rule at that time. The further contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is that persons like the appellant who were appointed prior to 17.7.1963 cannot be covered by the subsequent rules and the subsequent rules cannot be invoked for fixing the seniority of persons who were appointed prior to the coming into force of the said rules. Mr.A.L.Somayaji again contended that even temporary service and ad hoc service should also be reckoned for the purpose of seniority and in support of his contention, the learned counsel relied on the following decisions:

- (1) Direct Recruit Class II Engg. Officer's Association v. State of Maharashtra, A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 1607; 1990 Lab.I.C. 1304; (1990) 2 S.C.C. 715,
- (2) P.S.Mahal v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1984 S.C. 1291; 1984 Lab.I.C. 176; (1984) 2 Serv.L.J. 197; (1984) 2 Lab.L.J. 282, (3) Delhi W.S. & S. Disposal Committee v. R.K.Kashyap, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 278.

5. Per contra, Mr.R.Muthukumaraswamy, the learned counsel appearing for the first respondent in W.A.No.551 of 1988 and Mr.R.Ganesan, the learned counsel appearing for the first respondent in W.A.No.552 of 1988 submitted that the Division Bench in W.A.Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 has found that the 3 year experience qualification is necessary for regularisation of the services of the appellant and others as Section Officers that the finding of the Division Bench is binding on the appellant and therefore he cannot contend that the three year experience rule will not apply to him. The learned counsel further contended that the experience gained by the appellant as a result of ad hoc appointment cannot be taken into account for the purpose of fixing the seniority. The learned counsel for the first respondent also contended that on 1.7.1981, on the basis of the Division Bench Judgment in W.A.Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 the 3rd respondent passed an order of regularisation. The said order of regularisation dated 1.7.1981 shows that during the period from 1.7.1963 to 27.3.1966, the appointment of the appellant was an ad hoc appointment and therefore, the experience gained by the appellants as a result of the ad hoc appointment cannot be taken into account for the purpose of seniority. In support of this contention, the learned counsel relied on the decisions,

(1) Keshav Chandra Joshi v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1991 S.C. 204. (2) Union of India v. S.K.Sharma, (1992) 2 S.C.C. 728.

6. First let us examine the position of law on this aspect before going into the factual details of this case. It is a settled position of law that ad hoc service cannot be counted for determining seniority. If the initial appointment is not according to the rules, subsequent regularisation of service does not entitle the employee to the benefit of the intervening ad hoc service for seniority. Seniority has to be reckoned from the date of regular appointment and not to be counted from the date of any stop-gap appointment. In Direct Recruit Class II Engg. Officer's Association v. State of Maharashtra, A.I.R. 1990 S.C. 1607; 1990 Lab.I.C. 1304; (1990) 2 S.C.C. 715, the Supreme Court has summarised the position of law on this aspect in the following terms:

"To sum up, we hold that.

(A) Once an incumbent is appointed to a post according to rule, his seniority has to be counted from the date of his appointment and not according to the date of his confirmation. The corollary of the above rule is that where the initial appointment is only ad hoc and not according to the rules and made as a stop-gap arrangement, the officiation in such post cannot be taken into account for considering the seniority.

(B) If the initial appointment is not made by following the procedure laid down by the rules but the appointee continues in the post uninterruptedly till the regularisation of his service in accordance with the rules, the period of officiating service will be counted."

7. The question was have to examine in this case is whether the appellant's appointment as Section Officer on 1.7.1963 can be considered as an ad hoc appointment and whether his services from 1.7.1963 to 27.3.1966 can be considered only as ad hoc service. It must be remembered that on 1.7.1963 when the appellant was appointed as Section Officer there was no rule prescribing three year experience qualification as an essential qualification for appointment as a Section Officer and therefore, it cannot be said that his initial appointment was made according to rules. By the order dated 8.7.1963, the appellant was appointed as Section Officer (Civil) with effect from 1.7.1963 against the post sanctioned by the ministry. There is nothing in the order of appointment to show that the appellant's appointment is an ad hoc appointment. On the other hand, the order of appointment shows that the petitioner was appointed against the post sanctioned by the ministry and that he was put on probation. On 5.10.1971, the appellant was promoted temporarily as Assistant Engineer. Further on 14.2.1972, quasi promotion status of the appellant was declared in the post of Section Officer with effect from 1.7.1966. Again on 30.4.1975, the appellant was confirmed as Junior Engineer with effect from 18.12.1973. The appellant was also confirmed as Assistant Engineer with effect from 11.7.1977 by the order dated 20.10.1977. The above factual materials go to show that the appellant continued in the post of Section Officer-uninterruptedly till he was promoted to the next post. It is seen from the counter affidavit filed in the writ petition by the 3rd respondent herein that the condition that for initial appointment as Section Officer, the person should have got three years previous experience was first introduced only by the employment notice issued by the Tuticorin Harbour Project on 17.7.1963 and there was no such condition prior to the said notice. As pointed out by the learned single Judge, the following are the four categories of Section Officer/Junior Engineer appointed in the Tuticorin Port Trust:

1. Persons appointed as Section Officers prior to 17.7.1963.

2. Persons appointed between 17.7.1963 and 30.12.1968.

3. Persons appointed between 30.12.1968 and 1.4.1979.

4. Persons appointed on or after 1.4.1979.

However, the observation of the learned single Judge that out of these four categories of persons employed as Section Officers, the appellant who was appointed on 1.7.1963, did not possess the required three years experience is not correct because on the date when the appellant was appointed as Section Officer on 1.7.1963, no rule prescribing three years experience qualification was in force. The 3rd respondent has stated in detail the circumstances under which the first seniority list dated 24.9.1981 was prepared and the circumstances which necessitated the preparation and the circumstances which necessitated the preparation of the revised seniority list dated 15.3.1983 in para 9 of the counter affidavit filed in the writ petitions in the following terms:

"It is true a draft seniority list as on 31.3.1980 was circulated by me in proceedings No.A/U2/23021/81/D5587, dated 1.7.1981 as averred in para (7) of Petitioner's affidavit. It is also true that in the draft seniority list petitioner's seniority was shown against S.No.2 and the date of his regular appointment was given as 6.11.1963. But it is not correct to state that this is as it ought to be. It is true that in that seniority list 3rd respondent was shown against S.No.9 and 4th respondent was shown against S.No.11. But it is not correct to state that the 3rd and the 4th respondents must be deemed to have been regularly appointed with effect from 6.8.1965 and 28.3.1966 and that these dates viz., 6.8.1965 and 28.3.1966 are as they ought to be. The seniority list dated 24.9.1981 above referred to having been found to be inherently erroneous was later revised and a correct seniority list was formulated by me on the advice of the 1st respondent on 31.7.1982. It is therefore not open to the petitioner to make any contention based on the seniority list dated 24.9.1981. The contention made by the petitioner that the period of service of the 3rd respondent between 6.8.1962 to 5.8.1965 was to be treated as ad hoc appointment and he must be deemed to have been regularly appointed with effect from 6.8.1966 and the period of service of 4th respondent from 1.7.1963 to 27.3.1966 in the Tuticorin Harbour Project was, to be treated as ad hoc appointment, and he must be deemed to have been regularly appointed with effect from 28.3.1966 are quite untenable. As there was no pre-condition of three years experience for appointment as Section Officer/Junior Engineer on the dates of their appointment, the contentions of the petitioner as regards the deemed dates of appointment in the case of 3rd and 4th respondents, are baseless and unwarranted. It is true that I have faithfully followed the judgment of this Honourable Court dated 15.11.1977, in fixing the inter se seniority. But in implementing the Judgment an error was committed by not applying the correct principles and the seniority list published on 24.9.1981 had therefore to be set right by rectifying the error. The condition of 3 years previous experience for appointment as Section Officers/Junior Engineer in the Tuticorin Harbour Project was for the first time introduced only by the Employment Notice issued on 17.7.1963. This condition cannot therefore be supplied retrospectively to those appointed before 17.7.1963. The seniority list published on 24.9.1981 had been formulated by me without taking into consideration the fact that the condition of 3 years previous experience cannot be applied to those appointed prior to 17.7.1963. The list therefore suffered from an apparent error. This error was pointed out to me by the 1st respondent and I corrected the error and prepared and published a revised list on 31.7.1982 vide proceedings No.A2/23021/82/D.4789, taking into account that the condition of 3 years previous experience will not apply to respondents 3 and 4 who were appointed prior to 17.7.1963. It is therefore submitted that the seniority list published on 13.7.1982 after rectifying the mistake originally committed is alone in conformity with the judgment of this Hon'ble Court dated 15.11.1977."

On a careful examination of the circumstances mentioned in para 9 of the counter affidavit we are fully satisfied that the 3rd respondent is justified in revising the seniority list dated 24.9.1981 and issuing a final seniority list dated 15.3.1983 because in the seniority list dated 24.9.1981, the 3rd respondent proceeded on the wrong basis that three year experience qualification is essential even in respect of appointment of Section Officers made prior to 17.7.1963, even though no such rule was in force prior to 17.7.1963. It is also seen from the counter affidavit of the 3rd respondent that when the draft seniority list dated 1.7.1981 was circulated to the appellant he submitted his representation dated 14.10.1981 objecting to the seniority list dated 1.7.1981. The admitted factual position is that on 1.7.1963 when the appellant was appointed as Section Officer, there was no rule prescribing the condition that for initial appointment as Section Officer, a person should have been three years of previous experience. In the absence of such a rule it cannot be said that the initial appointment of the appellant was not made according to the rules and that the appellant's initial appointment as Section Officer on 1.7.1963 was only ad hoc appointment. There is nothing on record to indicate that the appellant's initial appointment as Section Officer was only on ad hoc basis particularly when his appointment was made in respect of a post sanctioned by the ministry and that the appellant was immediately put on probation. In as much as we come to the conclusion Section Officer on 1.7.1963 was not an ad hoc appointment, it necessarily follows that the appellant's service has to be reckoned from 1.7.1963 for the purpose of fixing seniority. If the appellant's service as Section Officer has to be reckoned from 1.7.1963, the appellant is admittedly senior to the first respondent in both these writ appeals and therefore, we see no infirmity in the seniority list dated 15.3.1983 fixing the inter se seniority of the appellant, the first respondent in these writ appeals and others. The decisions relied on by the learned counsel for the first respondent are not helpful to the first respondent's case because they are clearly distinguishable on facts. Admittedly, in the present case, on the relevant date, viz., 1.7.1963, there was a rule prescribing the service qualification and that is not the position in the decisions relied on by the learned counsel for the first respondent.

8. The learned single Judge, proceeds on the basis that in Writ Appeal Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 batch, the Division Bench of this court by the judgment dated 15.11.1977 has held that the condition of 3 years prior experience would apply to all appointments in the category of Section Officer/Junior Engineers. However, we must point out that the learned single Judge has overlooked the fact that it was not brought to the notice of the Division Bench which disposed of W.A.Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 batch, that there was no rule at the time when the appellant was appointed as Section Officer prescribing the condition that three years experience is necessary for the initial appointment as Section Officers. Further, the Division Bench dismissed the W.A.Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 batch on the ground that during the pendency of those writ appeals, the writ appellants have been promoted to the next post. In such circumstances, the learned single Judge ought to have seen that the observation of the Division Bench that the condition of three years previous experience would apply to all appointments of Section Officers was quite unnecessary for disposing of the W.A.Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974. A careful reading of the judgment in W.A.Nos.446, 591 to 594 of 1974 batch shows that the Division Bench has not laid down any principle with regard to the fixation of the inter se seniority of the Section Officers/Junior Engineers. For the reasons stated above, we are unable to agree with the conclusion arrived at by the learned single Judge for quashing the proceedings in Mo.CE/23021/82-A/U2/D 1528 dated 15.3.1983.

9. In view of the above discussions of ours, we are obliged to interfere with the common order of the learned single Judge in W.P.Nos.2684 of 1983 and 2733 of 1986, in these Writ Appeals. Consequently the writ appeals are allowed, the order of the learned single Judge is set aside and W.P.Nos.2684 of 1983 and 2733 of 1986 shall stand dismissed. No costs.

B.S.

Appeals allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Mishra and Swamidurai, JJ.

O.S.A.No.166 of 1983

24th April, 1992.

A.K.Gopal and others

...Appellants

v.

S.Vasanthan and others

...Respondents.

Wills - Execution - Proof - Cordin al principles.

Proof of execution of the Will is accepted only if the three cardinal questions are answered in the affirmative, namely, has the testator signed the Will? Did he understand the nature and effect of the dispositions in the Will? Did he put his signature to the Will knowing what is contained? and whether the special requirements of attestation prescribed by Sec.63 of the Indian Succession Act had been complied with.

[Para 5]

Cases referred to:

Venkatachala v. B.N.Thimmajamma, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 443. [Para 5].

Jones v. Great Westmen, (1930)47 B.L.R. 39. [Para 11]

Shyam Sunder v. State of Rajasthan, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 890. [Para 11]

O.S.Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Singaravelu, J. dated 25.7.1983 and made in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court in T.O.S.No.3 of 1982 (O.P.No.363 of 1981).

P.Veeraraghavan, for Appellants.

G.M.Nathan, for Respondent Nos.1 and 2.

P.Seshadri, for Respondent Nos.3 to 6.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- The caveators/defendants in a testamentary proceeding have appealed questioning the grant of probate of the last Will and Testament of late K.Kulasekaran alias A.K.Sekhar who died on 6th August, 1976. Under the said Will Sekhar bequeathed certain properties to his three daughters appointing two sons-in-law as executors of the Will. The Will had been deposited in the Bank of Baroda by the testator himself.

2. In response to the citation issued, the appellants who are the sons of the testator A.K.Sekhar contested the case of the bequeath to the daughters only alleging that there was no occasion for the testator to execute the Will in their favour since he had already gifted jewels and cash to them. They brought on record the fact that in the year 1972, the testator had executed settlement deeds and gifted one house each to his four sons. He never thus, according to them intended to give any property to his daughters and alleged that the Will must have been obtained by the sons-in-law and the daughters exercising undue influence and compulsion upon the testator and that the Will could not have been written by their father with the free mind and without any pressure. They accordingly alleged that the Will appeared to be a fraudulent document got up by the daughters to defeat the rights of the sons. The testator who died four years after the execution of the Will was an Art Director in Film Studios. He had good wealth gained by the learning and profession of Art Director and in the property that he had acquired were five houses with appurtenant grounds in the City of Madras. In the year 1972 he executed a deed of settlement and gave four houses to his four sons, one house each. More than four years after the gifts deed in favour of the sons, he executed the impugned Will bequeathing the house property in a posh locality of the City of Madras to his three daughters.

3. The Will however which was brought to the Court from the Bank of Baroda, has been proved by one of the two attestors P.W.1, who also has been Assistant Director of Films at Madras. According to him, A.K.Sekhar executed a Will in his house at Mahadeva Iyer Street. Besides himself, one Thota Venkateswara Rao who was also an Assistant Art Director and working along with the testator, attested the Will. He deposed that the testator sent for him and when he went to his (testator's) house, he found the other witness Thota Venkateswara Rao there. The testator showed him the papers and explained to him that he was making a Will and requested him and Thota Venkateswara Rao to attest the Will. After telling them about the Will, the testator signed the Will in their presence in each page of the document. Thereafter, P.W.1 and Thota Venkateswara Rao attested the Will by affixing their signature. Thus, according to this witness, both the attesting witnesses as well as the testator signed the Will after knowing about its contents in the presence of each other. On the question about the health condition of the testator P.W.1 stated that he was hale and healthy at the time of the execution of the Will and that the entire Will as written by the testator himself in his own hand. He claimed familiarity with the handwriting of the testator. The trial Court has found on the basis of the evidence that the execution of the Will has been proved. Noticing the cross-examination and some contentions as to the testimony of this witness, learned trial Judge has stated:

“Though there was lot of cross-examination of this witness, nothing worth mentioning was elicited from him. It is not challenged that P.W.1 was the Assistant Director in films while the testator was the Art Director of prestigious studios at Madras like Vauhini Studios, A.V.M.Studios. The other attester is assistant Art Director, who the testator know for more than a quarter century. Therefore, these are the most competent and natural witnesses to attest the bequest of the testator who was working in the Film Studio. It is not suggested that P.W.1 is a stranger or a chance witness to this Will. On the other hand, it was suggested in cross-examination that the testator came to the house of the witness at Mouni Road and took his signature in the document. The evidence of P.W.1 is unshakable and he is a witness of truth and a man of status he has no axe to grind against the defendants. The result is the evidence of P.W.1 is sufficient proof of the execution of the Will according to law.”

4. Some comments however have been made before us on the deposition of P.W.1 and it is contended that the court should reject the evidence of this witness as he is not consistent in his deposition that he arrived at the house of A.K.Sekhar because he had been called by him and that he was not a stranger or a chance witness to the Will. An attempt has also been made to suggest that many others including the caveators/appellants who lived in the house, never saw P.W.1 or Thota Venkateswara Rao arriving at A.K.Sekhar's residence at Mahadeva Iyer Street. In any case when there was another attesting witness and it is not the case that he was not available to depose as a witness, on the sole testimony of P.W.1 the court should not have held that the Will is proved according to law. We have gone through the evidence of this witness and found that it has clearly come out that he had been visiting A.K.Sekhar's house frequently and that A.K.Sekhar had in fact sent a message to call him and since he received the message he arrived only to find that Sekhar intended to execute a Will and wanted him and Thota Venkateswara Rao to attest the Will. Why however Thota Venkateswara Rao has not been examined as a witness of the respondents, is also explained in the facts that he (Thota Venkateswara Rao) had been hobnobbing with the caveators/respondents and came to court with them on few occasions, however, he never appeared to depose, it seems he decided to abstain.

5. In Venkatachala v. B.N.Thimmajamma, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 443, the Supreme Court has stated what is the true legal position in the matter of proof of Wills. In the words of Supreme Court:

“It is well known that the proof of Wills presents a recurring topic for decision in Courts and there are a large number of judicial Pronouncements on the subject. The party propounding a Will or otherwise making a claim under a Will is no doubt seeking to prove a document and, in deciding how it is to be proved, we must inevitably refer to the statutory provisions which govern the proof of documents. Secs.67 and 68, Evidence Act are relevant for this purpose. Under Sec.67, if a document is alleged to be signed by any person, the signature of the said person must be proved to be in his handwriting, and for proving such a handwriting under Secs.45 and 47 of the Act the opinions of experts and of persons acquainted with the handwriting of the person concerned are made relevant. Sec.68 deals with the proof of the execution of the document required by law to be attested; and it provides that such a document shall not be used as evidence until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution. These provisions prescribe the requirements and the nature of proof which must be satisfied by the party who relies on a document in a court of law. Similarly, Secs.59 and 63 of the Indian Succession Act are also relevant. Sec.59 provides that every person of sound mind, not being a minor, may dispose of his property by Will and the three illustrations to this section indicate what is meant by the expression ‘a person of sound mind’ in the context. Sec.63 requires that the testator shall sign or affix his mark to the Will or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction and that the signature or mark shall be so made that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a Will. This section also requires that the Will shall be attested by two or more witnesses as prescribed. Thus the question as to whether the Will set up by the propounder is proved to be the last Will of the testator has to be decided in the light of these provisions. Has the testator signed the Will? Did he understand the nature and effect of the dispositions in the Will? Did he put his signature to the Will knowing what it contained? Stated broadly it is the decision of these questions which determines the nature of the finding on the question of proof of Wills. It would prima facie be true to say that the Will has to be proved like any other document except as to the special requirements of attestation prescribed by Sec.63 of the Indian Succession Act. As in the case of proof of other documents so in the case of proof of Wills it would be idle to expect proof with mathematical certainty. The test to be applied would be the usual test of the satisfaction of the prudent mind in such matters."

We have chosen this authority of the Supreme Court for the reason that the above principle has invariably been quoted in almost all subsequent judgments of the Supreme Court as well as the High Courts and proof of execution of the Will is accepted only if the three cardinal questions are answered in the affirmative, namely, has the testator signed the Will? Did he understand the nature and effect of the dispositions in the Will? Did he put his signature to the Will knowing what it contained? and whether the special requirements of attestation prescribed by Sec.63 of the Indian Succession Act had been complied with? In the instant case, it is clear on the evidence of P.W.1 that the testator not only signed the Will in the presence of the other attesting witness, but the entire contents of the Will had been in his hand writing. As the author, of the contents of the Will he fully know, that he was writing. He also fully understood, according to the witness the nature and effect of the dispositions in the Will for he clearly told P.W.1 as well as the other attesting witness that he intended to execute a Will in favour of his daughters.

6. A simple and legalistic approach, however, is not approved by the Supreme Court and in the Judgment in the case of H.Venkatachala v.

B.N.Thimmajanna, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 443, it is stated as follows:

"However, there is one important feature which distinguishes Wills from other documents. Unlike other documents the Will speaks from the death of the testator, and so, when it is propounded or produced before a court, the testator who has already departed the world, cannot say whether it is his Will or not; and this aspect naturally introduces an element of solemnity in the decision of the question as to whether the document propounded is proved to be the last Will and testament of the departed testator. Even so, in dealing with the proof of Wills the Court will start on the same enquiry as in the case of the proof of documents. The propounder would be called upon to show by satisfactory evidence that the Will was signed by the testator, that the testator at the relevant time was in a sound and disposing state of mind, that he understood the nature and effect of the dispositions and put his signature to the document of his own free Will. Ordinarily when the evidence adduced in support of the Will is disinterested, satisfactory and sufficient to prove the sound and disposing state of the testators' mind and his signature as required by law, Courts would be justified in making a finding in favour of the propounder. In other words, the onus on the propounder, can be taken to be discharged on proof of the essential facts just indicated."

We have no reason, while exercising the caution as indicated above in the judgment of the Supreme Court, to take any different view than the view expressed by the learned trial Judge that P.W.1 who is one of the two attesting witnesses has given disinterested and satisfactory evidence which constitutes sufficient proof of the execution of the Will by A.K.Sekhar. The evidence of this witness is also to the effect that A.K.Sekhar was in a sound and disposing state of mind when he put his signature upon the Will which has been written by him and when the attesting witnesses put their signatures upon the Will.

7. It has almost become ritualistic for all caveators and defendants in a testamentary proceeding to allege (1) that the testator had no sound and disposing state of mind, (2) that he acted under undue influence of the beneficiaries under the Will or subjected to coercion fraud etc and invariably is every case, the execution of the Will is alleged to be surrounded by suspicious circumstances. This is always so even though there has not been one or more circumstances suggesting any suspicion as to the execution of the Will. The Supreme Court has also pointed out in the above judgment that there may be causes in which the execution of the Will may be surrounded by suspicious circumstances and added as follows:

"The alleged signature of the testator may be very shaky and doubtful and evidence in support of the propounder's case that the signature in question is the signature of the attestor may not remove the doubt created by the appearance of the signature; the condition of the testator's mind may appear to be very feeble and debilitated; and evidence adduced may not succeed in removing the legitimate doubt as to the mental capacity of the testator; the dispositions made in the Will may appear to be unnatural, improbable or unfair in the light of relevant circumstances; or, the Will may otherwise indicate that the said dispositions may not be the result of the testator's free Will and mind. In such cases the Court would naturally expect that all legitimate suspicions should be completely removed before the document is accepted as the last Will of the testator. The presence of such suspicious circumstances naturally tends to make the initial onus very heavy; and unless it is satisfactorily discharged, Courts would be reluctant to treat the document as the last Will of the testator. It is true that, if a caveat is filed alleging the exercise of undue influence, fraud or coercion in respect of the execution of the Will propounded, such pleas may have to be proved by the caveators; but, even without such pleas circumstances may raise a doubt as to whether the testator was acting of his own free Will in executing the Will, and in such circumstances, it would be a part of the initial onus to remove any such legitimate doubts in the matter."

8. On the touch stone of the above, it is not possible in the instant case to say that the signature of the testator has been shaky doubtful and that the evidence of P.W.1 has not removed any doubt or suspicion as to the genuineness of the signature of the testator. There is also nothing preceding or proceeding the execution of the Will to create any doubt as to the disposing state of mind of the testator. The Will after execution, was deposited in a Bank. The testator, however did not register the Will. But then, that alone is not a suspicious circumstance. There is nothing unnatural also for a father to divide his only remaining self acquisition amongst his daughters for the benefit of his daughters after his death. It is nothing unnatural for the father to demise the only self-acquired house property left in his hands after giving one house each to his four sons, for the benefit of his three daughters. Yet some allegations have been made by the caveators/appellants and some arguments have also been advanced before the learned single Judge in this regard. We shall be doing no better job than what has been done by the learned Single Judge in this behalf by ourselves entering into each such circumstance that according to the caveators/appellants are suspicious, or grave suspicion about the execution of the Will. It will be sufficient, in our opinion if we reiterate in the words of the trial Judge and indicate how on the basis of the evidence that has been adduced on behalf of the party nothing is show to the court to entertain any suspicion or doubt and in any case, the defendants/appellants have not been able to discharge the onus which as the Supreme Court has itself stated "if a caveat is filed alleging the exercise of undue influence, fraud or coercion in respect of the execution of the Will propounded, such pleas may have to be proved by the caveators".

Learned trial Judge has stated:

"Though vanquished the defendants could not reconcile themselves with the Will of the father bequeathing one house to his three daughters and picked holes in the plaintiffs' case by contending that there are certain suspicious circumstances in the execution of the Will. According to them the suspicious circumstances are as follows:

Firstly it was contended on behalf of the defendants that the father had studied only upto the 9th standard and therefore he could not have written the terms of the Will in English Language as found in Ex.P-1. The evidence is that Ex.P-1 was written by the testator in his own hand writing throughout and this handwriting has not been challenged by the defendants. Their grievance is that the father who was educated only upto 9th standard would not have written the Will in such chaste English and that it might have been copied. This argument is bankrupt if we probe into the evidence. The defendants themselves have filed a number of documents like account books, pass books, letters viz., Exs.D-39, D-28, D-27, D-25, D-24, D-23, D-22, D-11, D-12 and D-13 which clearly establishes that A.K.Shekhar's knowledge of English was sound at that has was maintaining accounts in English. He was having correspondence with his daughters only in English and it is not denied that he wrote the contents of the Will in his own hand. He was a very knowing man being a leading Film Art Director in the City of Madras over 35 years of backing. Just because his school education was only upto 9th standard it is futile to contend that he had no sufficient knowledge in English. The documents stated supra clearly show that he has acquired more than sufficient knowledge of English and even the daughters write letters to him only in English.

The second contention of the defendants was that the father used to sign only as A.K.Sekhar and that he never signed in two places one as A.K.Sekhar and the other as A.Kulasekaran. The argument also is devoid of substance A.K.Sekhar is only an abbreviation of A.Kulasekaran. While executing valuable document, viz., Will the testator was careful enough not only to sign the name of A.K.Sekar, but also signed as A.Kulasekaran. If fact he has signed in two places in Ex.P-2 namely, sealed cover under which he deposited the Will with the Bank of Baroda on 6.8.1976. Even on the top of the sealed cover, he has clearly mentioned A.Kulasekaran alias A.K.Sekar signed in two places. Therefore, nothing turns upon the facts that the testator signed in his own hand his abbreviated name and the full name. The defendants then contended half-heartedly that the signature in the disputed document is different from the admitted signature in Exs. D-33 and D-34 and that the former does not stand for comparison. This argument can be characterised as desperate as it is very clear even to the naked eye that the signature in Ex.P-1 and the admitted signature in Exs.D-33 and D-34 are exactly similar and identical. There is no iota of difference between the two. As already pointed out, if the defendants are serious about this contention, they could have very well sent the disputed signature for the handwriting expert for comparison and opinion. They dare not do it. And as already pointed out their main attack is that the Will was executed under pressure from the daughters. The result of my discussion is that I do not see any suspicious circumstances whatsoever in Ex.P-1 executed by the testator. On the other hand it is the natural Will of any prudent man. There are no intrinsic improbabilities of the execution of the Will. The father (testator) had already settled four houses on each of the four sons and the remaining house was given to his 3 daughters jointly. In other words he gave one house each to four of his sons and he gave only one house jointly to all the three daughters. It is not as if he gave the house property to the daughters free from encumbrances. He directed the daughters and son-in-law who are beneficiaries under the Will to pay all incidental taxes on the property to pay all the maintenance charges of the property, to pay all taxes due on his behalf, to pay estate duty for the abovesaid property and to meet all his death and funeral expenses and medical expenses incurred for him. The Will recites "after meeting the above and other incidental expenses the remaining amount shall be shared equally amongst my three daughters mentioned here below". All the three daughters had been already married and they are living with their husbands in different places. One son-in-law was in L.I.C., the other a Co-operative Sub Registrar in Andhra Pradesh and the third son-in-law a Chartered Accountant at Coimbatore. Therefore, the Will is a natural Will of the father who in his last days thought he should provide the daughters also with some properties. It is important to note that the admitted evidence is that the father's relationship with the sons was very cordial at the time of execution of the Will and he was living with his last son at West Mambalam. What is more under this Will he gave all his personal furniture and other art materials, library etc., to his last son Srinivasalu. That the Testator was a strong Willed and an independent man is evident from the fact that even though he lived with his last son in the last few years of his life, he was paying Rs. 350 per month for his stay and food to his own son-vide admission of D.W.1 in cross-examination. It was while he was residing in his last son's house he executed the Will in that house and that too on an auspicious 'Varalakshmi Viradham' day, perhaps with the knowledge of his sons. The father executed the Will openly and he had, nothing to hide from his sons and he was careful enough to deposit the same on the very same day of execution in the back with directions to open the same only after his death. Now with reference to Ex.P-2 the sons are not able to reconcile with the Will of the father bequeathing some property to the daughters and they are uncharitably questioning the Will of their father after his death."

9. Learned counsel for the appellants has reiterated each of the circumstance and taken us through the evidence of witnesses and several documents produced by one of the other party to emphasis (i) the father had no natural love for the daughters so as to exclude his sons from inheritance in the most valuable property that he possessed: (ii) that sons-in-law of the testator were or at their instigation, his daughters were every time coercing him to part with either cash or kind and there is every reason for him to say that it was under their coercion that the testator executed the Will and (iii) the testator always signed as M.K.Sekhar excepting the Will where he signed as Kulasekaran alias A.K.Sekhar. Why he wrote his full name when in any other document he only used only part of his name and that it is suspicious why the execution of the Will was kept a secret and not disclosed until the demise of the testator to the caveators/appellants particularly when there are documents on the record to show that the propounders knew about the above execution of the Will before the death of the testator.

10. It is indeed the rule and the Supreme Court has also in the abovesaid judgment in Venkatachala v. B.N.Thimmajamma, A.I.R. 1989 S.C. 443, said that when the propounders themselves take a prominent part in the execution of the Will which confers on them substantial benefits, this itself is a suspicious circumstances attending the execution of the Will. But on the facts that had been presented in the instant case, it will be wholly unnatural to be guided by such remote suggestion as fallen from the caveators/appellants that it appears that the sons-in-law exercised undue influence upon the testator and the applicant or they coerced him to execute the Will. The evidence in this regard is generally too remote to be relevant both in point of time as well as in exercise of any influence. Sons were too Willing to appropriate the houses settled in their favour by their father; but not ready to reconcile with the division of one house between the three daughters. If the Will is viewed independently, the entire house has been given to the three daughters and sons had been left out. But if the narration of the facts is kept in mind, it is fully evident that the father gave almost equal care to the interest of the sons by giving to each one of them a house and no less care to the daughters by providing them equal share in the 5th house that he had acquired as gain of his own monies. There are absolutely no circumstances beyond as noticed by the learned single judge and by us which create even a semblance of doubt as to the validity as the Will.

11. Before we part with this judgment, we may indicate that we had been careful in keeping in mind the dividing line between conjecture and inference - Lord Macmillan said in his dissenting judgment in Jones v. Great Westmen, (1930)47 B.L.R. 39:

"The dividing line between conjecture and inference is of course a very difficult one to draw. A conjecture was be plausible but it is of no legal value, for its essence is that it is a mere guess. An inference, in the legal sense, on the other hand, is a deduction from the evidence, and if it is a reasonable deduction it may have the validity of legal proof."

The above passage has been quoted with approval by the Supreme Court in the landmark judgment in Shyam Sunder v. State of Rajasthan, A.I.R. 1974 S.C. 890. The entire evidence that is brought on record on behalf of the caveators/appellants is nothing but bundle of informations showing certain correspondence between the daughter and the father or between brothers and sisters or between brothers-in-law themselves. In these there are one of the other sentence or word that appears to suggest either a demand of a daughter to receive some money from the father or a demand of the sister to receive some money from the brother or such payments made either by the father or the brother to the daughter or the sister, or that there has been some complaints against the attitude of one of the other about the properties covered by the Will. Unless one reports to conjectures which

Will not be of value, it is not possible to draw any reasonable deduction as to the validity of the execution of the Will by the testator.

12. For the reasons aforementioned, we find no merit in the above appeal. The appeal is accordingly dismissed. However, there will be no order as to costs.

B.S. ----- Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Srinivasan, J.

C.R.P.No.3209 of 1991 9th September, 1992.

M.A.A.Mahab and another ...Petitioners
v.

Jayams Engineering & Co. Ltd., Madras. ...Respondent.

(A) Evidence Act (I of 1872), Sec.17 - Admission made by landlord in application for fixation of fair rent - Can be explained by him. [Para 5]

(B) Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.4 - Proceedings for fixation of fair rent - Market value of site - To be considered on the basis of entire evidence on record. [Para 5]

Cases referred to:

M/s.Dovo Tax Company v. T.R.Ramnath, 99 L.W. 269. [Para 5]

Krishnaswamy Mudaliar v. The Controller and Authorised Officer of Buildings, 99 L.W. 705. [Para 5]

The Collector of Madras, Accommodation Wing, Madras v. A.R.Gajendran, (1988)2 L.W. 49. [Para 5]

A.Emberumanar v. K.Raghavan, (1988)1 L.W. 568. [Para 6]

Savani Transports (P) Ltd. v. Jamal Mohammed, (1989)1 L.W. 172. [Para 6]

B.Kumar, for Petitioners.

Jose Ukkur, for Respondent.

The Court made the following ORDER: This revision petition arises out of an application for fixation of fair rent filed by the landlord/petitioner herein. According to the petitioner, the ground floor of the building in No.138, Thambu Chetty Street, comprises of an area of 2,547 sq.ft. and it has been let out to the respondent for non-residential purposes. The agreed rent is Rs.1,200 per mensem. The landlord claimed Rs.16,516 as fair rent. The Rent Controller held that the area of the ground floor in the occupation of the respondent is only 2,356 sq.ft. He fixed the fair rent at Rs.2,861 per mensem. On appeal, the Appellate Authority increased it to Rs.4,055 per mensem. A revision was filed by the respondent in this Court in C.R.P.No.2355 of 1991. It was dismissed in limine on 27.9.1991.

2. The landlord has challenged the same order of the Appellate Authority in this revision petition. The main objection raised by the petitioner is that in the matter of calculating the cost of construction of the building and also the market value of the site, the Appellate Authority has clearly erred by not considering the relevant evidence on record and fixing the value unconnected with the evidence produced before the court. As regards cost of construction, the Appellate Authority has fixed it at Rs.85 per sq.ft. It is the contention of the petitioner that he has produced the Min-Technical Hand Book published by the Association of Engineers and Assistant Engineer's Association of the Tamil Nadu Public Works Department. That is published in the year 1990. That is marked as Ex.P-19. The petitioner contends that the Appellate Authority is in error in completely ignoring the said document on the ground that the petition having been filed in 1987, the rates mentioned in the hand book are not relevant. It is stated by learned counsel for the petitioner that evidence has been let in as to how the calculation should be made on the basis of Ex.P-19 for the relevant year 1987. No reference has been made by the Appellate Authority to any such evidence.

3. It is also contended that the worksheet filed by P.W.4, the Engineer examined by the landlord is based upon the figures contained in Ex.P-19 as calculated for the year 1987. There is no reference by the Appellate Authority to the evidence of P.W.4 or the work sheet filed by him.

4. Similarly with regard to the market value of the site, the Appellate Authority has stated that the relevant documents are Exs.P-26, P-27 and P-29 and the market value shall be fixed only with the help of the said documents. The Appellate Authority has rejected the documents filed by the tenant and also refused to accept the finding of the Rent Controller that the value of the site is Rs.4,50,000, per ground. But, unfortunately, the Appellate Authority has not considered the documents on record properly. There is no document marked as Ex.P-29. The total number of documents filed on the side of the landlord is only 28. Ex.P-26 is a photograph of a building. That does not in anyway help the Court in fixing the market value of the land. Thus, the Appellate Authority is in error in referring to Exs.P-26 and P-29 for fixing the market value of the land. However, Ex.P-27 is a relevant document which has been filed by the landlord. Similarly, Ex.P-17 is another document which is a said deed of the year 1985 filed by the landlord. While referring to Ex.P-17 at an earlier stage in the course of discussion, the Appellate Authority has stated that the value of the land is mentioned as Rs.9,00,000. That is clearly erroneous. The value mentioned in the document is Rs.19,00,000 and not Rs.9,00,000. It is based on that erroneous impression the Appellate Authority has ultimately fixed the value of the land at Rs.9,00,000 per ground. Hence, the order of the Appellate Authority is clearly vitiated.

5. It is argued by learned for the respondent that the landlord has himself mentioned the market value of the site is Rs.10,000 in the petition for fixation of fair rent. It is contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that the value mentioned in the petition is not conclusive and it is the duty of the Court which fixes the fair rent to take into account the evidence on record and arrive at the fair rent. He places reliance on the judgments of this Court in M/s.Dovo Tax Company v. T.R.Ramnath, 99 L.W. 269, Krishnaswamy Mudaliar v. The Controller and Authorised Officer of Buildings, 99 L.W. 705 and The Collector of Madras, Accommodation Wing, Madras v. A.R.Gajendran, (1988) 2 L.W. 49. Learned counsel for the respondent contends that the statement in the petition for fixing of fair rent would amount to an admission and it is not open to the landlord to go behind the same. But, it is settled law that admissions made by parties can be explained. The rulings referred to above and cited by learned counsel for the petitioner show that it is open to the fair rent court to fix the rent at a value higher than what is stated by landlord and therefore, the contention of learned counsel for the respondent cannot be accepted. But, the Court has to consider what is the market value of the site on the basis of the entire evidence on record. As the Appellate Authority has not considered the evidence on record properly, the matter has to go back and he has to decide the question in accordance with law. 6. With regard to P.W.1 it is for the Appellate Authority to take into account the entire documentary evidence including Ex.P-19 and the oral evidence of the parties and ascertain what the cost of construction is. It has been held by this Court in A.Emberumanar v. K.Raghavan, (1988) 1 L.W. 568 and Savani Transports (P) Ltd. v. Jamal Mohammed, (1989) 1 L.W. 172, that P.W.D. rates, are relevant for the purpose of fixing the cost of construction. The Appellate Authority shall bear in mind the principles laid down in the decisions of this Court and proceed to fix the fair rent in accordance with law.

7. In the result, the C.R.P. is allowed, the order of the Appellate Authority in R.C.A.No.1152 of 1990 is set aside and the matter is remanded to the Appellate Authority, viz the VIII Judge, Court of Small Causes, Madras, for fresh disposal according to law and in the light of the observations contained in this order and in accordance with the principles laid down in the various decisions of this Court. If the parties want to adduce any further evidence, they may file applications in that regard and the Appellate Authority may consider and dispose of the same in accordance with law. It is represented that the Court of VIII Judge in the Court of Small Causes, Madras, is now vacant. The Chief Judge, Court of Small Causes may assign the appeal to any other Judge who is empowered to deal with appeals under the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act. There will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Abdul Hadi, J.

C.R.P.No.173 of 1992 16th October, 1992.

S.A.Azizullah and another ...Petitioners
v.
Sakthivelu and others ...Respondents.

Decree - Execution - Decree granting possession of suit site to plaintiff with mandatory injunction to defendant to remove superstructure thereon - Execution petition - Decree for mandatory injunction alone time barred - Execution petition if liable to be dismissed in toto.

Where a decree in suit grants possession of the suit site and also grants a mandatory injunction directing the defendants to remove the superstructure put up by them on the suit site, an execution petition filed by the plaintiff cannot be dismissed in toto merely because the decree for mandatory injunction cannot be executed because of bar of limitation under Art.135 of the Limitation Act. The Court cannot dismiss the E.P. in toto, but should order the E.P., relating to the possession of the suit land. In such a case, the court should grant an opportunity to the judgment-debtors to remove the superstructure. If within the time allowed the judgment-debtors do not remove the superstructure, then the Executing Court shall direct delivery of both the site and superstructure to the decree-holder. [Paras 4 and 5]

Cases referred to:

Duraisami Mudaliar v. Ramasami Chettiar, 92 L.W. 144. [Para 2]

Ramrup Rai v. Gheodhari Kuer, A.I.R. 1980 Pat. 197. [Para 2]

Bashir Ahmed v. Menbdi Hasan, A.I.R. 1982 All. 321. [Para 2]

Kauk Sike v. Ong Hock Sein, A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 82. [Para 2]

Petition under Sec.115 of Act V of 1908 praying the High Court to revise the Order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Dharmapuri, dated 9.7.1991 and made in E.P.No.9 of 1990 in O.S.No.303 of 1977 (on the file of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Krishnagiri).

V.Krishnan, for Petitioners.

N.Sathiamoorthy, for Respondent No.3.

The Court made the following

ORDER: This civil revision petition is filed by the decree-holders against the dismissal of their E.P.No.9 of 1990 for executing the decree obtained by them in O.S.No.303 of 1977 on 15.10.1979. The material portion of the decree runs as follows:

"1. That the plaintiffs' title be and the same is hereby declared to the suit site."

2. That the defendants do deliver the possession of the suit property to the plaintiffs.

3. That the defendants do remove the superstructure put by them in the suit site by means of mandatory injunction at their own cost."

So clause 2 of the decree grants possession of the suit site to the plaintiffs/petitioners and since there is a superstructure on the suit site, as per the prayer in the suit, clause 3 grants a mandamus directing the defendants/respondents to remove the said superstructure put up by them in the suit site. The abovesaid E.P. is for executing the said decree for possession and for mandatory injunction to remove the abovesaid superstructure. The Court below has dismissed the E.P. in toto on the ground that the abovesaid clause 3 of the decree being a decree for mandatory injunction, cannot be executed in view of Art.135 of the Limitation Act, which prescribes only a three year period for the execution of the decree. The E.P., was filed on 2.3.1990, and as already stated, the decree is dated 15.10.1979. Since the said three years-period has elapsed, the Court below has refused to execute the decree in toto. Aggrieved by the said order in the E.P. the decree-holders have preferred this civil revision petition.

2. The learned counsel for the petitioners submits that even assuming that the portion of the decree, which grants the abovesaid mandatory injunction is not executable in view of Art.135 of the Limitation Act, the Court below should not have dismissed the E.P. in toto but should have ordered the E.P. in so far as the abovesaid Clause 2 of the decree relating to possession of the suit site. He also submits that the Court below has erred in distinguishing the decision in Duraisami Mudaliar v. Ramasami Chettiar, 92 L.W. 144. In the said case, there was no such mandatory injunction decree, though there was a decree for possession. In that context, this Court in the abovesaid decision observed thus:

"Where, however, the superstructure were put up before the institution of the suit and were not ordered to be removed as a part of the mandate in the decree, the proper course in appropriate cases would be to direct the judgment-debtor to remove the superstructures so put up by him so as to effectuate vacant delivery of the suit site to the decree-holder."

But the Court below has held that this decision is not applicable since in that case there was no decree for mandatory injunction for removal of the superstructure. The learned counsel for the petitioners also relied on the decisions in Ramrup Rai v. Gheodhari Kuter, A.I.R. 1980 Pat. 197, Bashir Ahmed v. Menbdi Hasan, A.I.R. 1982 All. 321 and Kauk Sike v. Ong Hock Sein, A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 82, for substantiating his abovesaid argument.

3. On the other hand, the learned counsel for the respondents argues that Duraisami Mudaliar v. Ramasami Chettiar, 92 L.W. 144, is distinguishable since in that case there is a specific decree for mandatory injunction.

4. I have considered the rival submissions. All that the learned counsel for the petitioners argues is that the possession decree, which is lawfully obtained, should at least be executed, since admittedly there is no bar of limitation with reference to that portion of the decree and that the petitioners should not be in a worse position than a person, who has only obtained a decree for possession of the suit site and not any mandatory injunction decree for removal of the superstructure over it. There is considerable force in the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioners. Because the mandatory injunction decree cannot be executed in view of the law of limitation, it cannot be said that the other portion of the decree, viz. the decree for possession, also cannot be executed. Just as in the abovesaid Duraisami Mudaliar v. Ramasami Chettiar, 92 L.W. 144 even in Ramrup Rai v. Gheodhari Kuter, A.I.R. 1980 Pat. 197, is also a case where there is no decree for mandatory injunction, but there is only a decree for possession of the site. There also, it has been observed as follows:

"It cannot be disputed that where the defendant put up construction pendente lite or after the passing of the decree, then the Executing Court can order demolition of the structures and deliver vacant possession. But, where the construction are put up before the institution of the suit, the Executing Court cannot order demolition of the structures, but would simply deliver possession of the land and the buildings after removal of the judgment-debtor therefrom. In either case, however, the court may before ordering delivery of possession give time to the judgment-debtor to remove himself the materials, if he so liked."

The other decisions cited by the learned counsel for the petitioners also reiterate the same view. No doubt, Bashir Ahmed v. Menbdi Hasan, A.I.R. 1982 All. 321, is a case of composite decree including a decree for mandatory injunction. But there too, though the mandatory injunction was not allowed to be executed, the other portion of the decree was allowed to be executed.

5. Therefore, the order of the Executing Court in E.P.No.9 of 1990 on the file of the Sub Judge, Dharmapuri in O.S.No.303 of 1977 on the file of the Sub Judge, Krishnagiri, is set aside and this civil revision petition is allowed, with costs. The Executing Court is directed to post the E.P. immediately after the receipt of the copy of this order (after giving short notice to the parties counsel), and give an opportunity to the judgment-debtors by granting four weeks time, for themselves removing the superstructure. If within the time allowed the judgment-debtors do not remove the superstructure, then the Executing Court shall direct delivery of both the site and the superstructure to the decree-holders.

V.K.

Petition allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Ratnam and Somasundaram, JJ.

W.A.No.519 of 1991

17th August, 1992.

The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board represented by its Chairman

...Appellant

v.

R.Srinivasan

.. Respondent.

Tamil Nadu Private Electricity Supply Undertakings (Acquisition) Act (1973), Sec.15 - Tamil Nadu Private Electricity Supply Undertakings

(Acquisition) Rules (1973), Rule 17(1) - Person in category of Engineer-in-charge under the Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company transferred to the Tamil Nadu Electricity Board on the former being taken over - Fitted into category of Assistant Divisional Engineer on the basis of his experience - Order, if sustainable.

The respondent joined the Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company as a Junior Engineer on 17.10.1963 and was promoted as Assistant Engineer in 1967 and as Engineer-in-charge in June, 1973. The Government of Tamil Nadu took over the Company under the Tamil Nadu Private Electricity Supply Undertakings (Acquisition) Act, 1973. The respondent was fitted in the post of Assistant Divisional Engineer. According to the respondent, he ought to have been appointed as a Divisional Engineer. In fact one Vasudevan who was also an Engineer-in-charge was appointed as Divisional Engineer. He filed a writ petition challenging the action. A learned single Judge allowed the petition. In appeal, Held:- The nature of the powers, duties and responsibilities of the Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company was higher and more onerous than that of a Divisional Engineer under the Board and it is perhaps for this reason that under the scheme of absorption, the post of Engineer-in-charge in the service of the licensee company was equated to that of Divisional Engineer in the service of the Board. It is significant that neither under the Act nor under the Rules nor even under the scheme of absorption, any weightage has to be given to experience. It may be that on the date of absorption, persons in the category of Engineers-in-charge might have put in varying or different years of service but that is not the criterion at all either under the Act or the Rules for the purposes of considering the fitment of the Engineers-in-charge in the erstwhile licensee companies in the service of the Board. It may also be observed that an Engineer-in-charge of the name of Thiru V. Vasudevan who was in the service of Tirunelveli-Tuticorin Electrical undertaking had been absorbed into the service of the Board on 1.12.1973 as a Divisional Engineer while the respondent who was also an Engineer-in-charge though in Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company was not so absorbed. It is in this context it has to be remembered that the nature of the powers, duties and responsibilities of Engineers-in-charge under the erstwhile licensee companies is the same but one such Engineer-in-charge viz., the respondent herein had been discriminated against in the matter of absorption into the service of the Board with reference to the other Thiru V. Vasudevan. When the provisions in the Act, Rules or even in the scheme of absorption do not refer to seniority as a criterion at all, it is difficult to uphold that fitment of the respondent who was an Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company as an Assistant Divisional Engineer while Thiru V. Vasudevan, similarly placed had been fitted as a Divisional Engineer. To put in differently, the respondent and Thiru V. Vasudevan who were both holding the post of Engineer-in-charge and discharging the same duties and responsibilities on the same scale of pay in the service of the erstwhile licensee companies had been fitted differently in that Thiru V. Vasudevan had been fitted in a higher post as a Divisional Engineer on a higher scale of pay while the respondent had been fitted against a lower post on a lesser scale of pay and this action of the appellant cannot at all be accepted or upheld. [Para 6]

Case referred to:

P. Savits v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 1124. [Paras 5, 6]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Kanakaraj, J., dated 25.7.1990 and made in the exercise of the Special Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in W.P.No.11437 of 1981 presented under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a writ of certiorari mandamus calling for the records relating to the orders of the respondent made in B.P.Ms.No.591, (Admn.) dated 30.9.1981 and the consequential seniority list published by the respondent in its proceedings B.P.Ms.No.629, (Admn.), dated 22.10.1981, quash the same in so far as they affect the petitioner here as and direct the respondent herein to absorb the petitioner in as equivalent category grade or cadre namely Divisional Engineer with effect from 1.12.1973 as per law.

R. Krishnamoorthy, Senior Counsel, for P.T. Narendravasan, for Appellant.

M.R. Narayanaswami, Senior Counsel, for M.R. Raghavan, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- This appeal has been preferred by the Tamil Nadu Electricity Board against the order in

W.P.No.11437 of 1981 allowing that writ petition filed by the respondent herein praying for the issue of a writ of certiorarified mandamus calling for the records relating to the orders of the appellant in B.P.Ms.No.591 (Admn.), dated 30.9.1981 and the consequential seniority list published by the appellant in its proceedings B.P.Ms.No.629 (Admn.), dated 22.10.1981 and quash the same in so far as they affected the respondent and to direct the appellant to absorb the respondent in an equivalent category, grade or cadre, viz., Divisional Engineer with effect from 1.12.1973.

2. Briefly stated, the facts giving rise to this writ appeal are as follows: On 17.10.1963, the respondent joined Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company as a Junior Engineer and was promoted as an Assistant Engineer from 1.1.1967. A further promotion as Engineer-in-charge was also given to the respondent in June, 1973. The Government of Tamil Nadu took over Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company under the Tamil Nadu Private Electricity Supply Undertakings (Acquisition) Act, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') and after the take over, the company was transferred to the Tamil Nadu Electricity Board. Under Sec.15 of the Act, provision was made in respect of the existing staff of licensees and thereunder, every person on the staff of the licensee immediately before the vesting date shall become on that date an employee of the Government and upon the transfer under sub-sec.(5) of Sec.6 to the Board, of the property, rights, liabilities and obligations of the Government, become an officer or a servant of the Board and shall hold his office or service under the Government or the Board, as the case may be, on the same terms and conditions and with the same rights to pension, gratuity and other matters as would have been admissible to him if the undertaking had not vested in the Government and continue to do so unless and until his employment under the Government or the Board is terminated or until his remuneration, terms and conditions of service are duly altered by the Government or the Board. Under Rule 17(1) of the Tamil Nadu Private Electricity Supply Undertakings (Acquisition) Rules, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Rules'), provision was made for absorption and fitment of the staff of the erstwhile licensee company, in the corresponding class, category or grade of the Board's service. Under that Rule, it was provided that the employees taken over by the Government under sub-sec.(1) of Sec.15 and transferred to the Board under sub-sec.(5) of Sec.6 of the Act, shall be absorbed in the corresponding class, category or grade of the Board's service, as the case may be. According to the respondent, he was expecting orders regarding absorption in the Board's service and that only after another person filed a writ petition calling upon the Board to discharge its duty under Sec.15 of the Act and Rule 17(1) of the Rules, the Board issued the proceedings in B.P.Ms.No.591 (Admn.), dated 30.9.1981 absorbing the respondent as Assistant Divisional Engineer and the inter se seniority of the officers so absorbed was fixed in B.P.Ms.No.621 (Admn.), dated 22.10.1981. The respondent claimed that at the time of the take over of Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company, he was an Engineer-in-charge and he should have been fitted in the service of the Board as a Divisional Engineer and not as an Assistant Divisional Engineer and thus aggrieved by his absorption in a lower post and consequent loss of seniority, the respondent approached this Court for relief under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, as stated earlier. Annexed to the affidavit of the respondent were three annexures regarding the duties and responsibilities of an Engineer-in-charge, a comparative statement of the powers exercised by the Engineer-in-charge of the company and the Assistant Divisional Engineer and the Divisional Engineer of the Board and hierarchy of posts in the company and the Board.

3. The appellant, in its counter, put forward the plea that the field experience, qualifications, duties and responsibilities as well as the area of work had all been taken into account before their absorption and the absorption of one Thiru V.Vasudevan, who was an Engineer-in-charge as a Divisional Engineer in the Board was on the basis of his experience, while the respondent had only 10 years of service and was incharge of a distribution system consisting of a lesser number of consumers. With reference to the details furnished by the respondent in the annexures referred to earlier, the Board did not come forward with any specific stand, but merely stated that it reserved its right to file a better counter-affidavit at a subsequent stage, which, however, was not done till the matter was heard. The appellant also maintained that the post of Engineer-in-charge was equated, to the post of Assistant

Divisional Engineer on the basis of criteria laid down by the Board, though there was no disclosure of what the criteria was.

4. On a consideration of the provisions of the Act and the Rules, the nature of the duties and responsibilities and also the criteria for absorption, the learned Judge took the view that the respondent had been discriminated against in the matter of his fitment into the service of the Board, as he had been treated differently from one Thiru V. Vasudevan who as an Engineer-in-charge in the company taken over, had been absorbed as a Divisional Engineer in the service of the Board and that the post of Divisional Engineer under the Board corresponded to the category of Engineer-in-charge in the service of the licensee company taken over and that the respondent was entitled to be absorbed by the appellant Board in the post of Divisional Engineer (as per the designation then in vogue) with effect from 1.12.1973 as the question of length of service or the work experience in the bigger power distribution system were not relevant under the Act or the Rules. In the view so taken, the learned Judge allowed the writ petition and directed the appellant Board to absorb the respondent in the post of Divisional Engineer and work out the monetary benefits available to him and fix his seniority appropriately and also give promotions on the basis of such absorption. It is the correctness of the order so passed that is questioned in this writ appeal.

5. Mr. R. Krishnamurthi, learned counsel for the appellant strenuously contended that the fitment of the respondent in the service of the Board was considered in the light of the nature of the duties performed by him in the erstwhile licensee company and the experience gathered by him and that the respondent though he was an Engineer-in-charge, had been found fit to be absorbed only as an Assistant Divisional Engineer and not as a Divisional Engineer, and therefore, no exception could be taken by the respondent to the order passed to that effect by the appellant. On the other hand, Mr. M. R. Narayanaswami, learned counsel for the respondent, pointed out that under the provisions of the Act, Rules as well as the scheme of absorption an Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company had to perform more onerous duties and discharge higher responsibilities than even a Divisional Engineer in the Board and that no weightage could be given to experience either under the provisions of the Act or the Rules or even under the scheme of absorption and that in any event, the respondent had also put in more than 10 years of service on the date of absorption, though by itself that would not be a criterion. It was also further pointed out by learned counsel that another person Thiru V. Vasudevan, who was also similarly placed like the respondent as an Engineer-in-charge in the service of another erstwhile licensee company, had been absorbed as a Divisional Engineer, while the respondent had not been so absorbed and this demonstrated that discrimination was writ large in the matter of fitment of the respondent and Thiru V. Vasudevan in the service of the Board. Referring to the details given in the annexures I to III in the affidavit, learned counsel submitted that the nature of the duties performed by the Engineer-in-charge is more onerous and responsible than that of the Divisional Engineer and, therefore, even looked at from the point of view of higher responsibility in the discharge of the duties, the respondent ought to have been absorbed into the service of the Board as a Divisional Engineer with effect from 1.12.1973 and not as an Assistant Divisional Engineer. Reliance in support of these was also placed upon the decision of the Supreme Court reported in P. Savits v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 1124.

6. In Annexure-I to the affidavit filed by the respondent in support of the writ petition, he had set out the nature of the duties and responsibilities of an Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company as on the vesting date under the different heads, like workload, technical, financial and accounts, stores, administration, annual responsibilities, etc. In Annexure-II, the respondent had given a comparative statement of the powers, duties and responsibilities of the Divisional Engineer of the Board and the Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company. From columns 3 and 5 of that annexure, it is seen that the financial powers of the Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company were unlimited in regard to improvement and also improvement of original works. Even as regards temporary supply, repairs to vehicles, etc., the Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company had higher financial powers. In regard to tools and plants, powers of purchase, appointments, administration, billing, stores, etc. the powers and responsibilities of an Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company were far higher than that of a Divisional Engineer of the Board. Annexure-III sets out the hierarchy of posts in the Board and also in the erstwhile licensee company and the post of Divisional Engineer in the Board corresponds to that of an Engineer-in-charge. It has also to be borne in mind that the appellant has not in any manner demurred to the contents of the annexures referred to above. From the contents of the annexures, we are clearly of the view that the nature of the powers, duties and responsibilities of the Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company was higher and more onerous than that of a Divisional Engineer under the Board and it is perhaps for this reason that under the scheme of absorption, the post of Engineer-in-charge in the service of the licensee company was equated to that of Divisional Engineer in the service of the Board. It is significant that neither under the Act nor under the Rules nor even under the scheme of absorption, any weightage has to be given to experience. It may be that on the date of absorption, persons in the category of Engineers-in-charge might have put in varying or different years of service but that is not the criterion at all either under the Act or the Rules for the purposes of considering the fitment of the Engineers-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee companies in the service of the Board. We may also observe that an Engineer-in-charge of the name of Thiru V. Vasudevan, who was in the service of Tirunelveli-Tuticorin Electrical undertaking had been absorbed into the service of the Board on 1.12.1973 as a Divisional Engineer while the respondent, who was also an Engineer-in-charge though in Salem-Erode Electricity Distribution Company, was not so absorbed. It is in this context it has to be remembered that the nature of the powers, duties and responsibilities of Engineers-in-charge under the erstwhile licensee companies is the same but one such Engineer-in-charge viz., the respondent herein had been discriminated against in the matter of absorption into the service of the Board with reference to the other Thiru V. Vasudevan. In this connection, the decision of the Supreme Court in P. Savits v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 1124, is relevant. In that case, between the two classes of senior draughtsmen, a distinction was made by providing two different scales of pay based on seniority and the denial of a higher scale of pay to one class of senior draftsmen based on the ground of length of service only, was challenged. In that context, the Supreme Court pointed out that for the same work and same functions, one class of senior draftsmen would get less pay than the other group and when the draftsmen do equal and same work, the classification of the draftsmen into two groups for purposes of different pay based on seniority was violative of Art. 14 of the Constitution of India. In this case also, we find that when the provisions in the Act, Rules or even in the scheme of absorption do not refer to seniority as a criterion at all, it is difficult to uphold that fitment of the respondent, who was an Engineer-in-charge in the service of the erstwhile licensee company as an Assistant Divisional Engineer while Thiru V. Vasudevan, similarly placed had been fitted as a Divisional Engineer. To put it differently, the respondent and Thiru V. Vasudevan who were both holding the post of Engineer-in-charge and discharging the same duties and responsibilities on the same scale of pay in the service of the erstwhile licensee companies, had been fitted differently in that Thiru V. Vasudevan, had been fitted in a higher post as a Divisional Engineer on a higher scale of pay, while the respondent had been fitted against a lower post on a lesser scale of pay and this action of the appellant cannot at all be accepted or upheld. We are, therefore, of the view that no case is made out to interfere with the order of the learned Judge. The writ appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

B.S.

Appeal dismissed

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Mishra and Swaminudurai, JJ.

L.P.A.No.4 of 1988 4th September, 1992.

Abdul Sathar and others ...Appellants
v.

Muhammad Ali and others ...Respondents.

(A) Mohamedan Law - Gift of undivided share in property which is capable of partition or division - Whether valid.

The law applicable to the Mohamedans in India accepts a valid gift of an undivided share in property which is not capable of partition or division and holds a gift of an undivided share in property which is capable of division fasid, that is to say irregular, but not batil, that is to say not void. Such a gift can be perfected by subsequent partition and delivery to the donee of the share given to him. Until, however, possession is taken by the donee, the gift is not validated. Exceptions to the above rule however, are: (1) A gift of an undivided share is capable of division from the moment of the gift in the case where the gift is made by one co-heir to another. See Kanij Fatima v. Narain, (1944) 23 Pat. 216. (2) A gift of a share in free hold property in a large commercial town See Ibrahimi Goolam Ariff v. Saidoo, I.L.R. 35 Cal. 1, etc. [Para 4]

(B) Mohamedan Law - Gift - Validity of - Delivery of actual physical possession of subject-matter of gift - If essential - Construction possession, if sufficient.

Instead of actual physical possession, even constructive possession of the subject matter of the gift would do for the purpose of the validity of a hiba (gift) notwithstanding the fact physical delivery of the same has not been given. It will, however, depend on the nature of the interest in the property which is sought to be transferred, whether in the facts and circumstances of the case, only constructive or actual physical possession would be required. [Para 14]

(C) Mohamedan Law - Gift - Objection to validity on the plea of 'musha' - Effect.

The objection as to the hiba being invalid can be based upon the plea of Musha as in the instant case and unless there is an answer to the validity on account of Musha, only on a finding as to delivery of possession, a gift can not be declared to be valid. [Para 16]

Cases referred to:

- Vahzullah Sahib v. Boyapati Nagayya*, I.L.R. 30 Mad. 519; 17 M.L.J. 562. [Para 7]
Alabi Koya v. Mussa Koya, I.L.R. 24 Mad. 513; 11 M.L.J. 227. [Para 7]
Bawa Saib v. Mohamed, I.L.R. 19 Mad. 343. [Para 7]
Hussain v. Shaik Mira, I.L.R. 13 Mad. 46. [Para 7]
Nabob Amiruddaula Muhammad Kakya Hussain Khan Bahadur Anirjung v. Nateri Srinivasan Charlu, 6 M.H.C.R. 356. [Para 7]
Mohamed Buksh Khan v. Hosseini Bibi, I.L.R. 15 Cal. 684. [Para 7]
Gobind Dayal v. Inayatullah, I.L.R. 7 All. 775. [Para 7]
Mogulsha v. Mohammed Sahib, I.L.R. 11 Bom. 517. [Para 7]
Ismal v. Ranji Sambhaji, I.L.R. 28 Bom. 682. [Para 7]
Mullick Abdool Gaffoor v. Muleka, I.L.R. 10 Cal. 1112. [Para 7]
Sheikh Muhammad Mumtaz Ahmad v. Zubaida Jan, L.R. 16 I.A. 205. [Para 7]
Bibi Khaver Sultan v. Bibi Bukha Sultan, 6 Bom. L.R. 983. [Para 7]
Chaudhri Mehdi Hasan v. Mohammed Hasan, L.R. 33 I.A. 68. [Para 7]
Shaik Ibrahim v. Shaik Suleman, I.L.R. 9 Bom. 146. [Para 7]
Humera Bibi v. Najmun-nissa Bibi, I.L.R. 28 All. 147. [Para 7]
Jayanabibi v. Jayarabi, (1950) 1 M.L.J. 209. [Para 9]
Mohamed Sadic Ali Khan v. Fakir Jahan Begum, (1931) 62 M.L.J. 320. [Para 9]
Bibi Kanig Fathima v. Jainarayan, A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 334. [Para 10]
Emnabai v. Hajirabai, I.L.R. 13 Bom. 352. [Para 11]
Ameeroonissa Khatoon v. Abadoonissa Khatoon, 16 Beng. L.R. 67; L.R. 2 I.A. 87. [Para 12]
Jiwan Baksh v. Imtiaz Begum, I.L.R. 2 All. 93. [Para 12]
Kasim Hussain v. Sharif-un-nissa, I.L.R. 5 All. 287. [Para 12]
Ameena Bibee v. Zeifa Bibee, 3 Cal. W.R. Civ. Rule 37. [Para 12]
Fathima Bivi v. Bhavasa Maracair, (1979) 1 M.L.J. 409. [Para 13]
Para Prasanna Sen v. Shandi Bibi, (1922) I.L.R. 49

Cal. 68. [Para 13]

Munni v. Bai Abdul Gani, A.I.R. 1939 M.P. 225.

[Para 13]

Yusuf Rowther v. Yusuf Rowther, (1958) 1 M.L.J. 14.

[Para 14]

Sheikh Muhammad Muntaz Ahmed v. Zubaida Jan, (1889) L.R. 16 I.A. 205; I.L.R. 11 All. 460.

[Para 14]

Mohammad Sadiq Alikhan v. Fakhir Jahan Begum, (1931) 62 M.L.J. 320. [Para 14]

Nurbai v. Abhram Muhammad, A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 149. [Para 14]

V. Raghavachari, for Appellants.

Sundararajan, for Respondents.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- Defendants 2, 4 and 6 in a suit for declaration of title to 26/35 shares in the plaint schedule properties by the plaintiff/respondent have preferred this appeal against the judgment of this Court, by which the learned single Judge has confirmed the trial court's judgment and decree based on a deed of gift. The original plaintiff who is the second wife of the alleged donee (eighth defendant in the suit) filed the suit stating that defendants 1 to 3 were the sons and defendants 4 and 6 were the daughters of the eighth defendant through his predeceased first wife. After the death of his first wife, the eighth defendant married the plaintiff as his second wife, who herself was the widow of another through whom she had four children. She did not beget any child for the eighth defendant. The seventh defendant was the brother of the eighth defendant. The plaintiff claimed that the eighth defendant was entitled to 26/35 shares in the schedule mentioned properties. On 14.10.1965 he executed a registered deed of gift in favour of the plaintiff in respect of his 26/35 shares in the schedule mentioned properties and handed over the deed of gift to her, who accepted it and accordingly, the plaintiff was put in possession of the schedule mentioned properties. According to the original plaintiff, she continued to be in possession of the 26/35 shares in the schedule mentioned properties, but found that the defendants enraged by the execution of the deed of gift attempted to trespass into the suit properties. Defendants 9 to 18 were added as party/defendants as the heirs and legal representatives of the seventh defendant, who died during the pendency of the suit. The eighth defendant also died pending suit and the plaintiff and defendants 1 to 6 were recorded as his legal representatives.

2. In a common written statement, defendants 1 to 6 admitted the relationship set out in the plaint, but contended that the suit houses were purchased by their mother, the first wife of the eighth defendant from out of her moneys in the name of the eighth defendant, his brother, the seventh defendant, their another brother, their sister and mother, all benami for her. The eighth defendant, therefore, had no right in the suit properties. He had executed a letter of undertaking on 11.4.1958 admitting that the suit house was purchased out of consideration provided by his first wife and mother of defendants 1 to 6. As he had no right in the suit properties, the gift deed executed by him in favour of the plaintiff was void in law. The defendants 1 to 6 disputed the plaintiff's claim that she was in possession of the suit properties and alleged that they also resided in the suit house where the plaintiff lived as the second wife of the eighth defendant and not in her independent right. They also maintained that the gift deed had been procured by the plaintiff by coercing the eighth defendant which was as a result of the undue influence of the plaintiff upon him and not out of his own free will and volition.

3. There has been no other contest except by defendants 1 to 6. The trial court answered the two main questions viz., whether the deed of gift dated 14.10.1985 was true, valid in law and binding on the defendants 1 to 6 and whether the gift was hit by doctrine of musha in favour of the plaintiff. The same two points, however, were canvassed before the learned single Judge, who has held that the donor has done all that he could do to put the donee in possession and the donee has continued in possession since then. Learned Single Judge has accordingly dismissed the appeal.

4. It is on record that the plaintiff is the second wife of the eighth defendant and before she married the eighth defendant, she had been married to another and had four sons through the other husband. She never got any child for the eighth defendant. Musha is an undivided share in property either moveable or immovable. The law applicable to the Mohamedans in India accepts a valid gift of an undivided share in property which is not capable of partition or division and holds a gift of an undivided share in property which is capable of division fasid, that is to say irregular, but not batil, that is to say not void. Such a gift can be perfected by subsequent partition and delivery to the donee of the share given to him. Until, however, possession is taken by the donee, the gift is not validated. Exceptions to the above rule however, are:

- (1) A gift of an undivided share is capable of division from the moment of the gift in the case where the gift is made by one co-heir to another. See Kanij Fatima v. Narain, (1944) 23 Pat. 216;
 - (2) A gift of a share in free hold property in a large commercial town. See Ibrahim Goolam Ariff v. Saidoo, I.L.R. 35 Cal. 1, etc.
5. Learned single Judge has noticed the three essentials for the validity of a gift under Muslim Law that is to say declaration of gift by the donor, acceptance of the gift express or implied by the donee and delivery of the subject matter of the gift by the donor to the donee. He has also extracted from the deed of gift its contents, which are as follows:

“அடியில் கண்ட மொத்த சொத்தில் பொதுவில் 26/35 பாகம் எனக்கு பாத்தியப் பட்டு என்னுடைய சுவாதீன அனுபவத்தில் இருந்து வரும் ரூபாய் 9000 ஒன்பதாயிரம் மதிப்புள்ள சொத்தை என்னுடைய மனைவியாய் இருப்பதாலும் என்னால் உமக்கு ஒரு ஆஸ்தியை ஏற்படுத்தி வைக்கவேண்டும் என்ற நல்ல எண்ணத்திலும் அதைநான் இன்று தேதியில் உமக்கு ஹிப்பா என்னும் செட்டில் மெண்டு செய்து கொடுத்து இன்று தினமே உம் முனைய சுவாதீனம் செய்து கொடுத்து விட்டேன்.”

and found on facts that it is not a case of actual delivery of possession or separate possession to the donee by the donor but said,

“It was held by the Judicial Committee that having regard to the declaration in the deed and it handed over to the donee, the gift was valid and that in the case of an intended gift by a husband to his wife, the Muslim Law does not require actual vacation by the husband and an actual taking of separate possession by the wife. In the deed on hand there is an express declaration that the possession has been delivered to the wife, the deed has been handed over to, received and retained by the wife. She has been living with her husband and in the circumstances, the gift is perfectly valid.”

6. It is only after recording as above, he has taken notice of the doctrine of musha and declared on the basis that the donor did everything in his power to put the donee in possession and that he declared that possession had been handed over to the donee, delivered the deed and relinquished all his rights thus delivering possession to the donee. 7. In one of the earliest judgments on the subject in the beginning of the present century in the case of Alabi Koya v. Mussa Koya, I.L.R. 24 Mad. 513: 11 M.L.J. 227, there had been certain observations which created a doubt as to whether law of Musha applied in the State of Madras (now Tamil Nadu) but soon thereafter a Bench of this Court in case of Vahzullah Sahib v. Boyapati Nagayya, I.L.R. 30 Mad. 519: 17 M.L.J. 562, entered into this question and made a candid study in the light of the pronouncements of the Courts on the subject available until then. It was a case in which the issue contested was whether, when the donor did not part with the possession of the property comprised in the deed of gift and later he himself alienated the property to another, any right could be claimed under the gift or not. The judgment proceeded to consider the case stating as follows:

“Both the lower Courts have held the Mohammadan Law inapplicable to gifts by registered instrument on the authority of certain observations of Benson, J. in the case of Alabi Koya v. Mussa Koya, I.L.R. 24 Mad. 513: 11 M.L.J. 227. It was held by that learned Judge that Sec.16 of the Madras Civil Court Act did not expressly make the Mohammadan Law applicable to gifts, that gifts of Mohammedans must be governed by justice, equity and good conscience, and that it was open to doubt whether the Mohammadan rule as to delivery of possession being necessary to validate the gift, was adapted to modern requirements, and whether the mode of transfer laid down as obligatory on Europeans and Hindus by Sec.123 of the Transfer of Property Act and adopted by the parties in that case, viz., by registered instrument attested by two witnesses and signed by the donor, ought not, in equity and good conscience, to be held as efficacious as delivery of possession in the case of Mohammadans. These observations were not necessary for the decision, as the learned Judge proceeded to hold that the requirements of Mohammadan Law as to delivery of possession had been sufficiently complied with in that case, nor were they concurred in by Mr. Justice Shephard who held that, assuming the Mohammadan Law to apply, the gift was good. On the other hand we have been referred to Bawa Saib v. Muhomed, I.L.R. 19 Mad. 343, in which the Mohammadan Law was held applicable to gifts in this Presidency, a case which does not appear to have been cited in the case of Alabi Koya v. Mussa Koya, I.L.R. 24 Mad. 513: 11 M.L.J. 227. In that case the gift was made orally, but this fact cannot in our opinion make any difference, as if a gift is bad by Mohammadan Law for want of possession when made orally, there is nothing in the provisions of the Registration Act III of 1877 or the Transfer of Property Act IV of 1882 to render such gift valid when made by registered instrument. There are also earlier cases in which gifts between Mohammadan Law, viz., Hussain v. Shaik Mira, I.L.R. 13 Mad. 46, Nabob Amiruddaula Muhammad Kakya Hussain Khan Bahadur Amirjung v. Nateri Srinivasan Charlu, 6 M.H.C.R. 356. Under Sec. 24 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871, the terms of which for the present purpose are substantially identical with those of Sec. 16 of the Madras Civil Court Act III of 1873, the Mohammadan Law has been applied by the Privy Council to gifts between Mohammadans vide Mohamed Buksh Khan v. Hosseini Bibi, I.L.R. 15 Cal. 684, and in the North-West Provinces the same section has been expressly construed as rendering Mohammadan Law applicable to such gifts, see North-West Province High Court Reports, 1874, page 2, and ibid., page 28, cited in the case of Gobind Dayal v. Inayanullah, I.L.R. 7 All. 775. In these two cases the Courts were unanimous that Mohammadan Law was applicable, but there was a difference of opinion as to the grounds on which it was applicable, the majority holding that in the circumstances it was applicable as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience, while the minority were of opinion that questions as to gift, between Mohammadans were covered by the express provisions as to questions regarding succession, inheritance, marriage or caste or any religious usage or institution. Lastly in Bombay it has been expressly held that gifts between Mohammadans by registered instrument are invalid unless the requirements of Mohammadan Law as to possession are complied with—vide Mogulsha v. Mohammed Sahib, I.L.R. 11 Bom. 517 and Ismael v. Ranji Sambhaji, I.L.R. 28 Bom. 682. We are therefore of opinion that Mohammadan Law is applicable to gifts between Mohammadans even when effected by registered instrument and that the lower Courts were wrong in deciding otherwise. It must however, be borne in mind that the task of discovering and applying the rules of Mohammadan Law to the circumstances of this country is often one of great difficulty as pointed out by Garth, C.J., in the case of Mullick Abdool Gaffoor v. Muleka, I.L.R. 10 Cal. 1112 at p. 1123, and that in choosing between conflicting authorities the principles of justice, equity and good conscience must be regarded vide Sheikh Muhammad Mumtaz Ahmad v. Zubaida Jan, L.R. 16 I.A. 205, and Bibi Khaver Sultan v. Bibi Bukha Sultan, 6 Bom. L.R. 983. Assuming Mohammadan Law to be applicable, as laid down in Chaudhri Mehdi Hasan v. Mohammed Hasan, L.R. 33 I.A. 68 at p. 75, it is incumbent on a party claiming under a gift to show very clearly that the requirements of Muhammadan Law have been met, and consequently, if he relies on a gift without consideration, to show that there has been delivery of the thing given, so far as it is capable of delivery. The appellant has also contended on the authority of Bawa Saib v. Muhomed, I.L.R. 19 Mad. 343, that the fact of the donor of the house continuing to live in it would invalidate the gift, while on the other side we have been referred to the cases of Shaik Ibrahim v. Shaik Suleman, I.L.R. 9 Bom. 146, Humera Bibi v. Najmun-nissa Bibi, I.L.R. 28 All. 147, to which may be added the case of Bibi Khaver Sultan v. Bibi Bukha Sultan, 6 Bom. L.R. 983."

8. After stating the law as above, the Bench, however said,

"Mohammadan Law being applicable, a finding is necessary as to whether the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 have shown that the gift under which they claim has satisfied the requirements of that law as to transmutation of possession and otherwise. Apart from the question of the continuing residence of the donor in the house, there appears to be some conflict of evidence on the point, and we direct the District Judge to return a distinct finding on this issue within six weeks. Seven days will be allowed for filing objections.”

9. This Court has, however, followed the above principle and when occasion arose in the case of Jayanabibi v. Jayarabi, (1950)1 M.L.J. 209, this Court reiterated the law in these words:

“The property was in the hands of tenants at the time of Ex.D-8. Under it, firstly the settlor reserves to himself the right to receive rents during his lifetime and secondly he also undertakes to pay municipal taxes. It is contended by Mr.Suryanarayana, learned counsel for the appellant, that notwithstanding these two undisputed facts there was sufficient delivery of possession as required by the Mohammadan Law by the mere declaration to that effect in the document. It is said that the intention to deliver which is unequivocally manifested by the clause of the document

“I have delivered possession of the property to you even “now” need not be followed up by any attornment of the tenants to the donee or by any perception of the rents and profits by her. Reliance is placed by the learned counsel on the ruling of the Privy Council in Mohamed Sadic Ali Khan v. Fakir Jahan Begum, (1931)62 M.L.J. 320, and in particular on the observation at page 18 which is in these terms:

“In the case of a gift by a husband to his wife their Lordships do not think that the Mohammadan Law requires actual vacation by the husband and an actual taking of separate possession by the wife. In their opinion the declaration made by the husband followed by the handing over of the deed are amply sufficient to establish a transfer of possession.”

The observation must however be understood in relation to the facts of that case which was a case of the husband and wife living together in the house at the time of its gift by the one to the other, and in the light of West, J’s statement of the law relied upon by their Lordships in a question which they make, namely,

“that when a person is present on the premises proposed to be delivered to him a declaration of the person previously possessed puts him into possession.”

Moreover, the effect of acts such as the two referred to above as existing in the present case did not fall to be considered by their Lordships in the ruling relied upon by the learned Counsel for the appellant before me.”

10. A Bench of the Patna High Court in Bibi Kanig Fathima v. Jainarayan, A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 334, has said,

“All that the law is concerned to find is that before the validity of such a gift is declared, the donor must have parted with complete possession in favour of the donee and then it is the look out of the donee as to whether he wants a partition or not. If the donor had partitioned the property and given it to a donee in a definite share the donee could still hold the property as a tenant in common with his co-sharers and no question could have been raised regarding the validity of the gift. The same result in my opinion should follow provided the donee has been found to be in possession. Possession of a co-owner or a co-tenant is possession which has to be recognised by the law. I desire to observe that in almost every one of these cases which have been cited and which could be cited the importance was rightly given to the question whether possession was obtained by the donee or not.”

11. A Bench of the Bombay High Court dealt with a case in Emnabai v. Hajirabai, I.L.R. 13 Bom. 352, in which there were two hibas, one relating to a house which, at the time of the gift and upto the death of the donor, was occupied by tenants and the other under which an undivided moiety of a house in which the donor and the donee resided (husband and wife) and to which the donor and his brother were entitled to equal shares, fell for consideration. As to the former, the Bench said,

“It is not in dispute that, after this execution of the deed of gift, Haji Gazi continued to collect the rents as before and that they were entered in his books and drawn upon for family purposes in the same manner as they had always been. But in 1876 the house was transferred into the name of the wife in the municipal books; and in 1877 the fazandari bill was made out in her name. Lastly, in 1881-81 Haji Gazi had an account of the rents of the first house prepared in the name of Hajirabai from 1871-72 up to date. Much reliance was placed by the plaintiffs on the circumstances that the donor had continued to collect the rents as before; but this circumstance in the case of gift from a husband to a wife may be accounted for by the husband (as the person upon whom the task would naturally devolve), collecting the rents as his wife's manager; and slight evidence to show that such was the case may well, in our opinion, be accepted as sufficient, in a case like the present, of a formal instrument of gift accompanied by registration."

12. With respect to the second hiba, however, the Court said as follows:

"As to the second hiba, the subject of which was an undivided moiety of a house in which Haji Gazi and his wife resided and to which Haji Gazi and his brother were entitled in equal shares; it was objected that it was invalid as being a gift of a "moosha," or undivided part, in a thing susceptible of partition. The rule of Mohammedan Law is stated thus in the Hydaya, Vol. III; p. 293: "That seisin in cases of gift is expressly ordained, and consequently a complete seisin is a necessary condition; but a complete seisin is impracticable with respect to an indefinite part of divisible things, as it is impossible, in such, to make seisin of the thing given without its conjunction with something that is not given; and that is a defective seisin." And again the Shurhi Viquaya: "A gift of part of a thing which is capable of division is not valid, unless such part be divided off, so that seisin may be definite and not include anything else." In Ameeroonissa Khatoon v. Abadoonissa Khatoon, 16 Beng. L.R. 67: L.R. 2 I.A. 87, it was held by the Privy Council that "shares in samindaris, from the special legislation relating to them and before any partition of the land, were definite estates capable of distinct enjoyment by perception of the separate and defined rents belonging to them, and therefore, not falling within the principle and reason of the law relating to mushaa." In Jiwan Baksh v. Intiaz Begum, I.L.R. 2 All. 93, in which the last case was referred to, the Allahabad High Court held that a defined share in a landed estate was a separate estate, and not open to the objection which attaches under Mohammedan Law to the gift of joint and undivided property. The landed estates in that case were zamindari villages, and the Court said their view was sanctioned by the rulings of the Privy Council-referring, we presume, to the decision of the Privy Council we have already mentioned, as there is none of them, that we are aware of, in which the rule is discussed, In Kasim Hussain v. Sharif-un-nissa,

I.L.R. 5 All. 287, the donor's gift was of the one-twelfth share in a "muaf" estate, and the Court supported the gift on the ground that a gift of a "specific share is not open to objection under Mohammedan Law" - meaning, we apprehend, a share recognized and a separate estate capable of distinct enjoyment. In the Tagore Lectures for 1884 the author refers to these decisions as only applicable to the large landed estates in the North-West of India. The above decisions do not, therefore, touch the present question, viz., whether a gift by the donor of his undivided share in a house, or ordinary lands, not forming part of estates as they are found in Northern India, is open to objection under Mohammedan Law. It was said that the rule did not apply, unless the donor retained some share of the property. The objection was taken in Ameeroonissa Khatoon v. Abadoonissa Khatoon, 16 Beng. L.R. 67: L.R. 2 I.A. 87, already referred to, but not decided by the Privy Council, as it was not necessary, in their view of that case, to consider it. In Case VIII of Macnaghten's Precedents of Gifts it is assumed that a gift by one of several co-sharers of his share to a stranger is invalid. Alluding to the widow's gift to the donee, the answer at the bottom of page 204 continues: "A gift even of her own portion (as one of the heirs) is invalid, that being undefined and not admitting of legal seisin." Again, in the note to Case X, p. 208, the author, after alluding to the supervenient indefiniteness arising from the discovery that the donor was not the sole proprietor, says: "It would have been otherwise had the right of a third person been recognized to exist at the time of the gift, which would in that case have been null and void ab initio." However in Ameena Bibee v. Zeifa Bibee, 3 Cal. W.R. Civ. Rule 37, it was held, on the authority of Case XIII of Macnaghten's Precedents of Mohammedan Law, that one of two sharers in lands and houses can give over his share to the other co-sharer even before division; and this ruling was extended by the Privy Council, in Mohamed Buksh Khan v. Hossein Bibi, I.L.R. 15 Cal. 701, to the case of the gift by one of three co-sharers (and, therefore, of any number of co-sharers) of his share to one of the others, on the ground that not to do so would in their Lordships' opinion, be refining on a refinement amounting almost to a reductio ad absurdum. In the present case the object of the gift is an undivided moiety of a house which had admittedly not been partitioned, and the donee is not a co-sharer, but a third person. The case, therefore, is not governed by any of the above judicial decisions, and falls within the rule as interpreted by the cases in Macnaghten's Precedents, and which we think this Court ought to follow. Whether such a gift is void, or only invalid, as to which there would appear to be some difference of opinion between Mohammedan lawyers, is not a question which arises in this case, as there had been no partition, and defendant had not been put into possession of any specific portion of the house as her husband's share before her husband's death."

13. It seems, however, that without in any manner departing from the above rule when occasion came to decide whether on the facts of a particular case, the liberal understanding of the condition of hiba under the personal law of Muslims as to the delivery of possession should be zealously adhered to or for the reasons of equity and good conscience, departure should be permitted, a Bench of this Court in the case of Fathima Bivi v. Bhavasa Maracair. (1979)1 M.L.J. 409, has considered whether a gift of equity of redemption is possible and if such a gift is made, how to account for the delivery of possession. The Bench has observed,

"At one time, there was a controversy whether a gift of an equity of redemption as in this case was valid at all. We have seen that the property was usufructually mortgaged under Ex.B-1. The first defendant's case is that it was gifted to her orally, which is possible under the Muslim law, by her husband when the property was subject to the aforesaid mortgage with possession with the father of defendants 4 and 5. The question is whether a gift by a mortgagor of his equity of redemption is possible at all. As we said, delivery of possession, if understood as the sine qua non under all circumstances, of the subject-matter of the gift, then, on such a word understanding of one of the terms of a hiba, such a gift would be hit by the principle underlying it. But as observed by the Judicial Committee, taking possession of the subject-matter of the gift by the donee either actually or constructively is sufficient to complete the gift. Therefore, sufficient inroads were made in very early times into the necessity to deliver physical possession of the subject matter of gift in order to make it a valid gift. The Bombay High Court, however, took a different view that a gift of equity of redemption where the mortgagee is in possession of the mortgaged property at the date of the gift is not valid. Many of the High Court in our country took a different view. It appears that even the Bombay High Court watered down their earlier strict view of the position as is seen from the illustration given by the author Mulla in the eighteenth edition of the Principles of Mohammedan Law at page 154. The illustration runs as follows:-

"A owns six immovable properties. He mortgages three with possession to M. He then makes a gift of all the six properties to D and puts him in possession of the three properties not mortgaged to M. The High Court of Bombay has held that in such a case the gift of all the six properties is valid...."

This puritanic view of the Bombay High Court itself is no longer the view of that High Court. Further, a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court stated in Para Prasanna Sen v. Shandi Bibi, (1922) I.L.R. 49 Cal: 68.

"In British Courts the Mohammedan Law of Gift is administered as between Mohamedans on the ground of equity and good conscience...." Therefore, equity made a sufficient dent upon the necessity to deliver physical possession of properties in order to make a complete and valid gift. The learned Judges in the said decision continued to say:

".....We are of the opinion that the right of the equity of redemption which is under consideration in this case and such similar rights which are termed in some of the decided cases as incorporeal rights, as distinguished from the corpus, may, in view of the exigencies and necessities of modern conditions and conception of legal rights of property, be subjects of a valid gift, the mode of delivery of possession varying according to the nature of the right conveyed."

Hidayatullah, C.J. as he then was in Munni v. Bai Abdul Gani, A.I.R. 1939 M.P. 225, in his usual style made the following observation:

"..... three conditions which are necessary for a valid gift under the Mohammedan Law are: (1) manifestation of the wish to give on the part of the donor; (2) acceptance of the donee, either expressly or impliedly and (3) taking of possession of the subject-matter of the gift by the donee, either actually or constructively....."

Dealing with the third aspect, the learned Chief Justice stated that delivery of possession can be made in such manner as the subject of the gift is susceptible of.

Another learned author Tyabji on Muslim Law, Fourth Edition at page 343 reiterated what the other author stated and added that possession of the equity of redemption of immovable property in the possession of a mortgage may be transferred by the donor giving to the mortgagee notice of his having conveyed to the donee the property subject to the mortgage and permitting the donee to exercise all acts of ownership that may be exercised by the owner of the equity redemption.

Therefore it follows that constructive possession of the subject-matter of the gift provided could be made out in a given case and it would be sufficient to make a hiba valid notwithstanding the fact that physical delivery of the same has not been given. It is only such possession as the subject-matter is capable of or susceptible of that could be thought of and if once such available possession is given by the donor to the donee and as a follow-up, the donee exercises rights of ownership over the property taken over by him though constructively that would be sufficient evidence to establish that there was a valid hiba as is known in Mohammedan Law."

14. The law thus has gone for that instead of actual physical possession, even constructive possession of the subject matter of the gift would do for the purpose of the validity of a hiba (gift) notwithstanding the fact physical delivery of the same has not been given. It will, however, depend on the nature of the interest in the property which is sought to be transferred, whether in the facts and circumstances of the case, only constructive possession would be enough or actual physical possession would be required. This view has been stated by a learned single Judge of this Court in Yusuf Rowther v. Yusuf Rowther, (1958) 1 M.L.J. 14, in these words:

"It is no doubt true that delivery of possession of gifted properties is an essential condition of the validity of the gift and its operative nature under the Muslim Law and it would be for the donees to establish it. But the Courts below have failed to appreciate the evidentiary value of the declaration by the donor which constitutes an admission as against him and those claiming under him. In Ex.B-1 the donor said: "I have by means of this document settled on you, the immovable properties....which are described hereunder which belong to me absolutely and which are in my possession and enjoyment and left them in your possession. Both of you shall from this day onwards hold and enjoy in peace the gift properties with absolute right and with powers of alienation..... You shall if you so desire enjoy the settlement property jointly in common or enjoy the same by dividing by metes and bounds."

The effect of a recital of this type by a donor was the subject of consideration in any early decision of the Privy Council reported in Sheikh Muhammad Muntaz Ahmed v. Zubaida Jan, (1889) L.R. 16 I.A. 205; I.L.R. 11 All. 460 (P.C.). One of the points in controversy in that case related to the validity of a deed of gift and one of the grounds upon which the operative character of the deed was challenged was that possession had not been delivered by the donor in pursuance of the deed. Sir Barnes Peacock who delivered the judgment of the Privy Council said:

"In the deed of gift (the donor) declared (an admission by which Uşman as her heir and all persons claiming through him were bound) that she had made the donee; that she had abandoned all connection with them; and that the donor was to have complete control of every kind in respect thereof."

This is therefore authority for the position that a declaration by the donor of having parted with possession of the property was an admission and one which was binding upon those who claimed under him. This question was again before the Judicial Committee in Mohammad Sadiq Alikhan v. Fakhir Jahan Begum, (1931) 62 M.L.J. 320. The opinion of the Council was delivered by Sir George Lowndes who said in dealing with the conditions necessary to be satisfied before a gift by a Muslim could be upheld:

"The second objection involves some consideration of the Mohammedan Law. It is not disputed that a gift of immovable property must ordinarily be completed by a transfer of possession and there seems to be no difference on this point between Hanafi and Shia Law. The Chief Court thought it was clear that Fakhr Jahan had taken actual possession but it is pointed out that this was only after her husband's death. So long as Baquar Ali was alive she merely resided there with him and no change seems to have been made in the method of their joint occupation. But in the first place the deed contains the statement; 'I deliver possession of the gifted property to my said wife' and this as a declaration of fact must be regarded as binding on the heirs of the donor. (See Sheikh Muhammad Munir Ahmed v. Zubaida Jan, (1889) L.R. 16 I.A. 205; I.L.R. 11 All. 460 (P.C.). In their opinion the declaration made by the husband, followed by the handing over of the deed, are amply sufficient to establish a transfer of possession."

These two decisions were cited to the Courts below but they held that their effect was somewhat modified and that the law as laid down by them was dependent upon the special circumstances of each of those cases, relying on a decision of the Bombay High Court in Nurbai v. Abhram Muhammad, A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 149. I am unable to concur in this view. The learned Judges of the Bombay High Court distinguished the observations of the Privy Council which I have extracted earlier on the specific ground that in the case before them the person who challenged the deed was not claiming under the donor, but under an independent title. But this apart, there was also the further fact that on the facts proved in the Bombay case those who impugned the gift had been able to establish that possession was not in fact transferred. In my judgment there are no such circumstances in the present case. The proper rule to apply here as regards the burden of proof would be to hold that the declaration by the donor of his having parted with possession was an admission binding upon the plaintiffs and the 3rd defendant which however they might by cogent evidence disprove but that in the absence of independent proof by them the presumption raised by the admission ought to suffice to support the deed."

15. The above, however, was observed in a case in which all the properties dealt with in the settlement deed were specified divided portions of properties and were in the enjoyment of the settlor till the date of the settlement and they were as per enjoyment delivered over to defendants 1 and 2. Learned single Judge while dealing with the objection on the plea of Musha has said,

"I have already set out the issues and it would be seen that this objection to the gift on the ground of Musha did not figure in them; nor was it the subject of discussion in either of the Courts below. This objection is based upon the description of some of the items, conveyed under Ex.B-1 as if they were undivided shares belonging to the donor. There is nothing in the evidence of the plaintiff's witnesses pointing to their reliance on this feature of the gift deed. Nor was there anything suggested during the cross-examination of the defence witnesses indicating such reliance. I have already pointed out that during the course of the argument in the two Courts this was not put forward as an objection to the deed. In these circumstances, I am inclined to hold that this objection even if indicated in the pleadings was really not thought to have been put forward seriously and was in any event abandoned during the proceedings anterior to the hearing before me. I am not therefore inclined to include this as a point on which any further evidence should be permitted to be led."

16. The above thus is a clear enunciation of the principle as to the validity of the gift in the case of undivided interest. The objection as to the hiba being invalid can be based upon the plea of Musha as in the instant case and unless there is an answer to the validity on account of Musha, only on a finding as to delivery of possession, a gift cannot be declared to be valid.

17. According to the plaintiff, the eighth defendant was entitled to 26/35 shares in the schedule mentioned properties and he executed a deed of gift of the said undivided share only. If it is found that the plaintiff was a stranger to the family in the sense that she had no interest of her own in the estate of the eighth defendant in common with other defendants, the case will be one as indicated in the judgment of the Bombay High Court in the case of Emnabai v. Hajirabai, I.L.R. 13 Bom. 352, (second hiba) and governed by the case in Macnaghten's Precedents. The plaintiff, who was inducted as the wife in the house by the eighth defendant brought with her other strangers to the family viz., children of her first husband. Learned single Judge no doubt found that there has been a clear declaration of gift by the donor and the donor handed over the deed of gift to the donee, who accepted the gift and there being also a declaration as to the delivery of possession therein, it has to be held that the hiba was valid by delivery of possession. He has, however, held that the gift is not affected by the doctrine of musha only on this ground and not on account of the rule for which musha stands, that is, how undivided share the donor transferred to the donee viz., his second wife, who was a stranger to the family in the sense that she had no share in the property from before. In this respect, in our opinion, the learned trial Judge has committed an error of law. It is a fit case for the said reason for a re-consideration of the whole matter on the evidence adduced by the parties. Since this aspect of the case has not been adverted to by the learned single Judge at all in the appeal, we are inclined to set aside the judgment and remit the case to the trial court for a re-hearing and disposal in accordance with law. 18. Taking notice, however, of the delay which has already occurred, we indicate to the parties that it was a case in which they could arrive at some amicable settlement and while other members of the undivided family, who were tenants-in-common should not be denied interest in the share of their father, the second wife should also not be excluded altogether. In this attempt we found the appellants responding favourably and agreeable to a division of the properties of the eighth defendant, who is since dead in equal moiety between the plaintiffs (since the plaintiff died, her children of the first husband were added as plaintiffs) and the children of the eighth defendant from his first wife. The heirs of the original plaintiff/respondents have expressed disinclination to any amicable settlement. We have no alternative in such a situation except to remit the case to the trial court for a re-hearing and disposal in accordance with law.

19. In the result, the appeal is allowed. The impugned Judgment is set aside. The case is remitted to the trial court for a re-hearing and disposal in accordance with law. No costs.

B.S. ---- Appeal allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present: Srinivasan, J.

W.P.No.10284 of 1992

12th August, 1992.

Tvl.Pattukkottai Azhagiri Transport Corporation Ltd., Rangapuram, Vellore ...Petitioner v.

Tvl.V.K.Velayutham and Sons., Imperial Motor Service, Vellore and others ...Respondents.

(A) Motor Vehicles Act (XLVII of 1982), Secs.89(ii)(a) and 103(2)(a) and (3) - Regional Transport Authority mentioning in order that 'application is rejected as not in consonance with public interest' - Order does not amount to refusal to entertain the application - Order is appealable.

(B) Motor Vehicles Act (XLVII of 1982), Sec.90 - Order of Regional Transport Authority found improper and illegal - Order, if can be revised by State Transport Appellate Tribunal.

(C) Motor Vehicles Act (XLVII of 1982), Sec.72(1) - State Transport Appellate Tribunal if can curtail the permit by suitable modification.

(D) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Locus standi - Writ if can be maintained at instance of person not aggrieved.

The first respondent made an application for the grant of stage carriage permit before the Regional Transport Authority (second respondent) in respect of the route 'Vellore to Alangayam'. The second respondent rejected it as one not in consonance with public interest. The first respondent preferred an appeal to the State Transport Appellate Tribunal (third respondent) which set aside the order and directed the second respondent to issue a permit to the first respondent curtailing the portion of 0.2 km. which overlapped the approved scheme at one end. The third respondent held that the second respondent was in error in taking into account the history sheet of the first respondent and some lapses committed by him 15 years previously. The petitioner who was not a party to the proceedings before the second and third respondents filed a writ petition contending, (1) that appeal to the third respondent against the order of the second respondent was not maintainable, (2) that power of revision could not be exercised by the third respondent as provisions of Chapter VI override the provisions of Chapter V and (3) that the power of curtailment was not available to the third respondent. The 1st respondent contended that the petitioner had no locus standi to maintain the writ petition.

Held:- The second respondent has referred to the merits of the claim made by the first respondent by taking into consideration the public interest in the matter. In fact, the reason given by him in his order is that introduction of an additional bus facility would lead to unhealthy competition endangering the public safety. He has set out the overlapping of the route only as the second reason. The third reason given by him is based on his history sheet of the first respondent. Ultimately, the last sentence of the order of the second respondent reads that 'the application is therefore rejected as not in consonance with public interest'. That also makes it clear that the second respondent entertained the application and considered the merits of the same and passed an order on merits. It is futile to contend that the second respondent refused to entertain the application of the first respondent and consequently no appeal would lie against the said order. There is no doubt whatever that the order of the second respondent amounted to a refusal to grant a permit within the meaning of Sec.89(1)(a) of the Act and, therefore, appealable. [Para 7]

The finding of the third respondent is that the second respondent's order was improper and illegal. No doubt, the third respondent has not stated anywhere that it is exercising the power of revision in the view that the appeal before it is not maintainable. Even if it is found that the appeal was incompetent, the Order passed by the third respondent could be justified under Sec.90 of the Act which confers powers of revision on the third respondent. The contention of the learned counsel that the provisions of Chapter VI override the provisions of Chapter V and the other laws and in view of the same, power of revision could not be exercised by the third respondent is without any substance. The language of Sec.90 of the Act is very wide and all orders of the State Transport Authority or Regional Transport Authority against which no appeal lies will be subject to the power of revision under that section. [Para 9]

It is settled law that the powers of the tribunal are co-extensive with those of the Regional Transport

Authority. It is in exercise of the said power under Sec.72(1) of the Act, the third respondent has curtailed the permit by suitable modification thereby excluding the overlapping portion. [Para 14] It has been repeatedly held that for maintaining a writ petition, the petitioner should be a person aggrieved and even in cases of statutory violations, a writ cannot be entertained at the instance of a person who is not aggrieved. Mere violation of a provision of law is not sufficient to enable the third party who is not aggrieved to challenge the order in question. The sine qua non is a public injury. [Paras 18 and 21]

Cases referred to:

Samarth Transport Corporation (P) Ltd. v. The Regional Transport Authority, Nagpur, A.I.R. 1961 S.C. 93. [Para 6]
Nilkanth Prasad v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1135: (1962)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 728. [Para 8]
Cheran Transport Corporation (P) Ltd. v. The State Transport Appellate Tribunal, (1978)2 M.L.J. 136. [Para 11]
Pandiyan Roadways Corporation Ltd. v. Thiru M.A.Egappan, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 958. [Para 12]
A.P.State Road Transport Corporation v. P.V.Rammohan Chowdhary, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 888. [Para 13]
N.Sambandam v. S.Khadar Sheriff, A.I.R. 1966 Mad. 1: I.L.R. (1964)2 Mad. 631. [Para 14]
Ramkrishna Verma v. State of U.P., Jt. (1992)2 S.C. 545. [Para 15]
Mithilesh Garg v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 447. [Paras 17, 20]
Kalyan Singh v. State of U.P., A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1183. [Para 18]
The Nagar Rice and Flour Mills and others v. N.Teekappa Gowda & Brothers and others, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 246. [Para 19]
Nasbhai Motibhai Desai v. Roshan Kumar, Haji Bashir Ahmed, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 578. [Para 19]
M.L.Krishnamurthy v. The District Revenue Officer, Vellore, (1989)2 L.W. 442. [Para 20]
Surendra Rao v. Regional Transport Authority, Gorakhpur, A.I.R. 1992 All. 211. [Para 21]
Quilon District Private Bus Operators Association v. State Transport Appellate Tribunal, Ernakulam, A.I.R. 1992 Ker. 267. [Para 21]
Mohammed Swalleh v. IIIrd Additional District Judge, Meerut, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 94. [Para 22]
 Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein, and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of certiorari calling for the records of the third respondent, pertaining to the order made in Appeal No.79 of 1991, dated 11.2.1991, in granting stage carriage permit, in favour of first-respondent to ply on the route officer's Line to Alangayam and quash the same.

M.Palani, for the Petitioner.

M.Krishnappan, for Respondent No.1.

V.P.Sengottuvel, Government Advocate, for Respondent No.2.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The petitioner is a State owned transport undertaking, operating stage carriage services in the entire North Arcot Ambedkar District/ Tiruvannamalai-Sambuvarayar District and also on the inter district and inter-state routes. The first respondent made an application for the grant of stage carriage permit before the second respondent in respect of the route Vellore to Alangayam, on 14.9.1989. The second respondent rejected the same as one not in consonance with public interest, by order dated 11.2.1991. In his order he stated that there was no representation from the public or any quarters that additional services had to be provided on the route in question and there were already adequate number of buses owned by the private operators and State Transport Undertakings on the route and the introduction of any additional, but facility would lead to unhealthy competition endangering public safety. It was also observed by him that the sector of the route in question, from Vellore Bus Stand to Officer's Line, of a length of 0.2 km. overlapped the approved scheme route Vellore to Kadapakkam, published in G.O.Ms.No.2290, Home, dated 24.9.1974 in Tamil Nadu Government Gazette No.43(J), dated 6.11.1974, by the State Transport undertakings. He referred to the decision of the Supreme Court of India in P.R.C. v. Egappan, C.A No.1758 of 1986 dated 24.2.1987, and observed that no permit or variation could be granted to persons other than the State transport undertakings on a route or part thereof covered by approved scheme. He also referred to the applicant's history sheet during his tenure as a bus operator and observed that punishments for offences of non-payment of tax and overload of passengers had been imposed on the applicant and there was no reason to show any special consideration just because their application seeking renewal of their existing permit on the route Katpadi-Thorapadi and subsequent applications for grant of permit were rejected by the Regional Transport Authority, which was only a reflection of the applicant's past performance and lack of merits.

2. Aggrieved by the order, the first respondent preferred an appeal to the third respondent under Sec.89 of the Motor Vehicles Act (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'). By order dated 17.12.1991, the third respondent allowed the appeal, set aside the order of the second respondent and directed the latter to issue a permit to the applicant curtailing the portion of 0.2 km. which overlapped the approved scheme at one end. It was also clarified by the third respondent that a permit shall be issued to the applicant from the officer's Line, Vellore to Alangayam and the bus of the applicant shall not enter the Vellore Bus Stand on any account. The third respondent held that the second respondent was in error in taking into account the history sheet and some lapses committed by the first respondent 15 years previously and in observing that grant of permit would lead to unhealthy competition endangering public safety. It was also held by the third respondent that the overlapping portion of 0.2 km. was very negligible and the second respondent could well have curtailed and granted the permit in respect of the remaining portion. He observed that adding one more but in the route will not create any competition, much less unhealthy competition.

3. The petitioner was not a party to the proceedings before the second respondent or the third respondent. He has filed this writ petition on the ground that the third respondent had acted in excess of jurisdiction and the order passed by the third respondent suffers from errors of law and material irregularity. It is prayed in the writ petition that the order of the third respondent granting permit to the first respondent shall be quashed.

4. The first contention put forward by learned counsel for the petitioner is that the appeal filed by the first respondent before the third respondent against the order of the second respondent was not maintainable in view of the provisions of Sec.103(2)(a) and (3) of the Act. According to him, the order of the second respondent is one of refusal to entertain the application of the first respondent under Sec.103(2)(a) of the Act, with the result, Sub-sec.(3) of the said section would apply and no appeal shall lie against the same. Sec.103 occurs in Chapter VI of the Act, which contains special provisions relating to State Transport Undertakings. Sec.98 of the Act provides that the provisions of the chapter and the rules and orders made thereunder shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in Chapter V or in any other law for the time being in force or in any other law for the time being in force in any instrument having effect by virtue of any such law. Sec.103 of the Act relates to issue of permits to State transport undertakings. Sub-sec.(1) of Sec.103 of the Act is to the effect that where, in pursuance of an approved scheme, any state transport undertaking applies in the prescribed manner for a stage carriage permit or a goods carriage permit or a contract carriage permit in respect of a notified area or notified route, the State Transport Authority concerned shall issue such permit to the State transport undertaking, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in Chapter V. Sub-secs.(2) and (3) of the said section are in the following terms:

“(2) For the purpose of giving effect to the approved scheme in respect of a notified area or notified route, the State Transport Authority or, as the case may be, the Regional Transport Authority concerned may, by order:

(a) refuse to entertain any application for the grant or renewal of any other permit or reject any such application as may be pending;

(b) cancel any existing permit;

(c) modify the terms of any existing permit so as to:

(i) render the permit ineffective beyond a specified date;

(ii) reduce the number of vehicle authorised to be used under the permit;

(iii) curtail the area or route covered by the permit in so far as such permit relates to the notified area or notified route.

(3) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that no appeal shall lie against any action taken, or order passed, by the State Transport Authority or any Regional Transport Authority under sub-sec.(1) or sub-sec.(2).”

5. It is argued that when the second respondent rejected that application of the first respondent, on the ground that a part of the route for which the application was made overlapped the approved scheme route Vellore to Kadapakkam, it tantamounts to a refusal on the part of the second respondent to entertain the application within the meaning of clause (a) of sub-sec.(2) of Sec.103 of the Act. It is contended that the fact that the second respondent had referred to the history sheet of the first respondent and the public interest in the matter of grant of permit, would not change the character of the order and it would nonetheless be a refusal to entertain the application.

6. I do not agree with the contention. If the second respondent had intended to refuse to entertain the application under clause (a) of Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.103 of the Act, he ought to have done so in limine, without referring to any other factor. The meaning of the word “entertain” has been subject matter of consideration in Samarth Transport Corporation (P) Ltd. v. The Regional Transport Authority, Nagpur, A.I.R. 1961 S.C. 93. The court observed,

“The word “entertain” may mean to receive on file or keep on file”, and in that sense the Authority may refuse to keep an application on its file by rejecting it either at the time it is filed or thereafter. It does not cannote any time but only described the scope of the duty under that clause. It can only mean that the authority cannot dispose of the application on merits but can reject it as not maintainable. Any other meaning given to this word leads to an anomalous position, for even if the approval of the scheme had been brought to the notice of the Regional Transport Authority, it would have to order the renewal of the permit and thereafter it would have to cancel the permit, presumably, on an application filed by the State transport undertaking.”

7. The second respondent has referred to the merits of the claim made by the first respondent by taking into consideration the public interest in the matter. In fact, the reason given by him in his order is that introduction of an additional bus facility would lead to unhealthy competition endangering the public safety. He has set out the overlapping of the route only as the second reason. The third reason given by him is based on his history sheet of the first respondent. Ultimately, the last sentence of the order of the second respondent reads that ‘the application is therefore rejected as not in consonance with public interest’. That also makes it clear that the second respondent entertained the application and considered the merits of the same and passed an Order on merits. It is futile to contend that the second respondent refused to entertain the application of the first respondent and consequently no appeal would lie against the said order. There is no doubt whatever that the order of the second respondent amounted to a refusal to grant a permit within the meaning of Sec.89(1)(a) of the Act and, therefore, appealable.

8. It is argued by learned counsel for the first respondent that even if the order of the second respondent was not an appealable one, it could be revised by the third respondent by exercise of its powers of revision under Sec.90 of the Act. According to him, the fee payable for an appeal and revision under the Act is the same and the period of limitation is also the same. Reliance is placed on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Nilkanth Prasad v. State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1135: (1962)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 728, in which it has been held that the appellate authority was entitled to revise the order of the Regional Transport Authority, even if the appeal was incompetent, as the Regional Transport Authority had not done its duty under the law and that the appeal board had vast powers of revision.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that power of revision could be exercised only if the order of the State Transport Authority or the Regional Transport Authority is improper or illegal and in this case the third respondent has found in its order that the second respondent's refusal to grant permit on the ground that it would lead to unhealthy competition endangering public safety, was not in accordance with law. It is also found by the third respondent that the second respondent had not acted properly inasmuch as it had failed to exercise the power to curtail the area which overlapped the approved scheme route, particularly when the overlapping portion was of very negligible length of 0.2 km. Thus, the finding of the third respondent is that the second respondent's order was improper and illegal. No doubt, the third respondent has not stated anywhere that it is exercising the power of revision in the view that the appeal before it is not maintainable. I have already held that the appeal was maintainable. Even if it is found that the appeal was incompetent, the order passed by the third respondent could be justified under Sec.90 of the Act, which confers powers of revision on the third respondent. The contention of the learned counsel that the provisions of Chapter VI override the provisions of Chapter V and the other laws and in view of the same, power of revision could not be exercised by the third respondent is without any substance. The language of Sec.90 of the Act is very wide and all orders of the State Transport Authority or Regional Transport Authority against which no appeal lies will be subject to the power of revision under that section.

10. It is next contended by the petitioner's counsel that curtailment of a route can be granted only with reference to an existing permit and in the present case, a fresh permit is being issued to the first respondent and the power of curtailment is not available to the third respondent. For this purpose, reliance is placed on Sec.103(2)(c) of the Act. That part of the Section has already been extracted. Under sub-sec.(c) thereof, the State Transport Authority or the Regional Transport Authority, may modify the terms of the existing permit so as to curtail the area or route covered by the permit in so far as such permit relates to the notified area or notified route.

11. Reliance is placed on the judgment in Cheran Transport Corporation (P) Ltd. v. The State Transport Appellate Tribunal, (1978)2 M.L.J. 136. It was held in that case that the Tribunal erred in exercising its discretion and granting interim directions without having regard to Sec.68-F (1-D) of the old Act. The facts of that case have no relevance to the present case.

12. Learned counsel refers to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Pandiyam Roadways Corporation Ltd. v. Thiru M.A.Egappan, A.I.R. 1987 S.C. 958, which is the one cited by the second respondent in his order. In that case, under a scheme for a route published in the gazette it was proposed to exclude completely all other persons from operating their stage carriage services under permits covering the entire route, except those persons mentioned in Annexure II to the said scheme and the operators whose names had been mentioned in Annexure II to the Scheme were existing operators on different sectors of the notified route on the date of publication of the scheme. It was held that an operator whose name was not included in the Annexure to the scheme and an operator who was operating on a non-scheme route could not operate the stage carriage on the notified route or a portion thereof even though he might have been granted variation of his permit to operate on a sector of the notified route. It was held that an application for the variation of a permit held by the operator in question was in fact an application for a permit and it fell within the mischief of Sec.68-F(1-D) of the old Act. The court pointed out that the principle underlying Sec.68-F(1-D) is that the number of services on such a route should be frozen of the publication of a scheme under Sec.68-C. That judgment will have no bearing on the present case.

13. My attention is drawn to a recent judgment of the Supreme Court in A.P. State Road Transport Corporation v. P.V. Rammohan Chowdhary, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 888. It was held that even on a partial overlapping approved scheme, private operators have been totally prohibited to have corridor shelters and could no longer enter into the frozen area, route or part thereof and obtain permit to render transport service to the travelling public. That judgment also will not help the petitioner.

14. In the present case, the overlapping part has been excluded and the grant of permit has been curtailed. The application filed by the first respondent is one under Sec.70 of the Act. Sec.72(1) of the Act enables a Regional Transport Authority to grant a stage carriage permit in accordance with the application or with such modifications as it deems fit the power was available to the second respondent to grant permit with such modifications as were necessary and the same power is undoubtedly available to the appellate authority viz., the third respondent. It is settled law that the powers of the Tribunal are co-extensive with those of the Regional Transport Authority. N.Sambandam v. S.Khadar Sheriff, A.I.R. 1966 Mad. 1; I.L.R. (1964) 2 Mad. 631. It is in exercise of the said power under Sec.72(1) of the Act, the third respondent has curtailed the permit by suitable modification, thereby excluding the overlapping portion.

15. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also relied on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Ramkrishna Verma v. State of U.P., Jr. (1992) 2 S.C. 545, in support of his contention that the provisions of Chapter VI of the Act override the provisions of Chapter V. Reliance is placed on the observation that no corridor protection to private operators is permissible with reference to scheme routes and no private operator has a right to apply under Sec.80 of the Act for and obtain permits to ply the stage carriages on the approved or notified route/routes or areas or portion thereof. The ruling has no bearing on the facts of this case.

16. In view of the curtailment of the permit and exclusion of the overlapping portion, the notified scheme is not in any manner affected and the route for which permit is now directed to be granted by the third respondent falls entirely outside the area of the scheme. The petitioner cannot have any grievance against the same.

17. The first respondent has raised an objection that the petitioner is not an aggrieved person and he cannot maintain the writ petition challenging the grant of permit in his favour. He has also referred to the fact that under the present Act, the policy regarding grant of permits has been considerably liberalised and the State Transport Authority shall not ordinarily refuse to grant an application for permit. Reliance is placed on the observations made by the Supreme Court in Mithilesh Garg v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 447. The following passages in the judgment are very instructive and worth reproduction:

"5. A comparative reading of the provisions of the Act and the old Act makes it clear that the procedure for grant of permits under the Act has been liberalised to such an extent that an intended operator can get a permit for asking irrespective of the number of operators already in the field. Under Sec.57 read with Sec.47(1) of the old Act an application for a stage carriage permit was to be published and kept for inspection in the office of the Regional Transport Authority so that the existing operators could file representations/objections against the said application. The application, along with objections, was required to be decided in a quasi judicial manner. Sec.47(3) of the old Act further permitted the imposition of limit on the grant of permits in any region, area or on a particular route. It is thus obvious that the main features of Chapter IV "control of transport vehicles" under old Act were as under:

1. The application for grant of permits were published and were made available in the office of the Regional Transport Authority so that the existing operators could file representations;

2. The applications for grant of permits along with the representations were to be decided in quasi judicial manner; and

3. The Regional Transport Authority was to decide the applications for grant of permits keeping in view the criteria laid down in Sec.47(1) and also keeping in view the limit fixed under Sec.47(3) of the Act. An application for grant of permit beyond the limited number fixed under Sec.47(3) was to be rejected summarily.

6. The Parliament in its wisdom has completely effaced the above features. The scheme envisaged under Secs.47 and 57 of the old Act has been completely done away with by the Act. The right of existing - operators to file objections and the provision to impose limit on the number of permits have been taken away. There is no similar provision to that of Sec.47 and Sec.57 under the Act. The Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Act shows that the purpose of bringing in the Act was to liberalise the grant of permits. Sec.71(1) of the Act provides that while considering an application for a stage carriage permit the Regional Transport Authority shall have regard to the objects of the Act. Sec.80(2), which is the harbinger of Liberalisation, provides that a Regional Transport Authority shall not ordinarily refuse to grant an application for permit of any kind made at any time under the Act. There is no provision under the Act like that of Sec.47(3) of the old Act and as such no limit for the grant of permits can be fixed under the Act. There is, however, a provision under Sec.71(3)(a) of the Act under which a limit can be fixed for the grant of permits in respect of the routes which are within a town having population of more than five lakhs.

... ..

More operators mean healthy-competition and efficient transport system. Over-crowded buses, passengers standing in the aisle, clinging to the bus-doors and even sitting on the roof-tops are some of the common sights in this country. More over one finds a bus which has noisy engine, old upholstery, uncomfortable seats and continuous emission of black-smoke from the exhaust pipe. It is, therefore, necessary that there should be plenty of operators on every route to provide ample choice to the commuter-public to board the vehicle of their choice and patronise the operator who is providing the best service. Even otherwise, the liberal policy is likely to help in the elimination of corruption and favouritism in the process of granting permits. Restricted licensing under the old Act led to the concentration of business in the hands of few persons thereby giving rise to a kind of monopoly, adversely affecting the public interest. The apprehensions of the petitioners that too many operators on a route are likely to affect adversely the interest of weaker section of the profession is without any basis. The transport business is bound to be ironed-out ultimately by the rationale of demand and supply cost of a vehicle being as it is the business requires huge investment. The intending operators are likely to be conscious of the economics underlying the profession. Only such number of vehicles would finally remain in operation on a particular route as are economically viable. In any case the transport system in a state is meant for the benefit and convenience of the public. The policy to grant permits liberally under the Act is directed towards the said goal.

... ..

It is thus a guaranteed right of every citizen whether rich or poor to take up and carry on, if he so wishes, the motor transport business. It is only the State which can impose reasonable restrictions within the ambit of Art.19(6) of the Constitution of India. Secs.47(3) and 57 of the old Act were some of the restrictions which were imposed by the State on the enjoyment of the right under Art.19(1)(g) so far as the motor transport business was concerned. The said restrictions have been taken away and the provisions of Sec.47(3) and 57 of the old Act have been repealed from the statute book. The Act provides liberal policy for the grant of permits to those who intend to enter the motor transport business. The provisions of the Act are in conformity with Art.19(1)(g) of the Constitution of India. The petitioners are asking this Court to do what the Parliament has undone. When the State has chosen not to impose any restriction under Art.19(6) of the Constitution of India in respect of motor transport business and has left the citizens to enjoy their right under Art.19(1)(g) there can be no cause for complaint by the petitioners."

18. It is, therefore, clear that the petitioner cannot make any complaint against the grant of permit for a route which does not fall within the area of the scheme. The grant of permit to the first respondent with the curtailment as directed by the third respondent cannot be objected to by the petitioner. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the statutory authority viz., the third respondent is bound to act in accordance with law and when the statutory provisions are ignored or violated, the petitioner is certainly entitled to bring it to the notice of this court and get the order of the third respondent quashed. There is no substance in this contention, as it has been repeatedly held that for maintaining a writ petition, the petitioner should be a person aggrieved and even in cases of statutory violations, a writ cannot be entertained at the instance of a person who is not aggrieved. The Supreme Court has in Kalyan Singh v. State of U.P., A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 1183, held that a person whose right to ply his buses had been lawfully extinguished, was not entitled to maintain an appeal challenging the right of the State Transport Undertaking to ply their buses with or without permits and a petition under Art.232 of the Constitution of India could not be maintained.

19. In the Nagar Rice and Flour Mills and others v. N.Teekappa Gowda & Brothers and others, A.I.R. 1971 S.C. 246, it was held that a rice mill owner had no locus standi to challenge under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, the setting up of a new rice mill by another, even if it was in contravention of Sec.8(3)(c) of the Rice Milling Industry (Regulation) Act, 1958, because no right vested in such a person was infringed. The position was reiterated in Nashbai Motibhai Desai v. Roshan Kumar, Haji Bashir Ahmed, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 578. It was held that a rival in trade, in that case a cinema theatre owner, had no locus standi to invoke the special jurisdiction under Art.226 of the Constitution of India.

20. Following the said rulings, a Full Bench of this Court held in M.L.Krishnamurthy v. The District Revenue Officer, Vellore, (1989) 2 L.W. 442, that an existing rice mill owner was not a person aggrieved, when permit or licence under the Rice Milling Industry (Regulation) Act was granted to another person, for entitling him to file a writ petition challenging the grant. In Mithilesh Garg, etc. v. Union of India and others etc. etc., A.I.R. 1992 S.C. 443, already referred to in this judgment, the Apex Court has quoted in extenso the observations made by Sarkaria, J., in J.M.Desai's case, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 578, and reiterated the proposition. In the circumstances, the petitioner is not a person aggrieved to maintain the writ petition against the grant of permit to the first respondent with curtailment.

21. Learned counsel for the petitioner places reliance on the decisions in Surendra Rao v. Regional Transport Authority, Gorakhpur, A.I.R. 1992 All. 211 and Quilon District Private Bus Operators Association v. State Transport Appellate Tribunal Ernakulam, A.I.R. 1992 Ker. 267. In the former case it is held that an existing operator has an alternative remedy of revision before the tribunal against the order of the regional Transport Authority granting stage carriage permit to an applicant. That has no relevance in this case. In the latter case, it is held that any member of the public having sufficient interest can maintain an action for judicial redress for public injury arising from breach of public duty or violation of some provision of the Constitution or the law and seek enforcement of such public duty and observance of such constitutional or legal provision. The sine qua non is a public injury. Mere violation of a provision of law is not sufficient to enable the third party who is not aggrieved, to challenge the order in question. Hence, that judgment also does not hold the petitioner.

22. It is held in Mohammed Swalleh and others v. Illrd Additional District Judge, Meerut and another, A.I.R. 1988 S.C. 94, that the discretion under Art.226 of the Constitution of India shall not be exercised if there is no failure of justice. In the present case, there is absolutely no failure of justice and in fact justice has been done by the third respondent in directing issue of permit with curtailment, thus excluding the negligible overlapping portion of 0.2 km. between Vellore Bus Stand and Officers' Line. The third respondent has also taken care to issue a direction that the bus of the first respondent shall stop with officers' line and shall not enter the Vellore Bus Stand on any account. In those circumstances, the petitioner cannot make any grievance whatever against the grant of the permit.

23. In the result, the writ petition, fails and it is dismissed, with costs. Counsel's fee Rs.1,000.

B.S.

Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

[Special Original Jurisdiction]

Present: D.Raju, J.

W.P.No.5756 of 1992 23rd April, 1992.

R.Parthasarathy ...Petitioner
v.

The Union of India ...Respondent.

(A) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Public interest litigation - What is - When can be entertained.

(B) Constitution of India (1950), Art.226 - Action complained of, against person whose office is not situate within territorial jurisdiction of High Court - Order impugned having no impact in State in which High Court is situate - Petition under Art.226 - Maintainability.

The petitioner filed a writ petition in the Tamil Nadu High Court for a declaration declaring the Presidential Proclamation dated 2.4.1992 imposing Central Rule over the State of Nagaland under Art.356 of the Constitution of India as null and void and unconstitutional and ultra vires.

Held: Public interest litigation does not mean that anyone can institute proceedings anywhere and that too a writ petition for any cause or purpose irrespective of the fact whether he has any semblance of interest either in his personal or representative capacity in the subject-matter concerned or involved in the case. Courts have been encouraging public interest litigation deviating from the normal rule of locus standi and the principle of personal grievance or personal injury only in respect of matters where it involved denial of fundamental rights to innocent citizens who cannot protect themselves or where it is to espouse the cause of some helpless individual or representative group who have no vigilance or where withal or the required stamina to have recourse to courts and to fight to secure relief for themselves. Except in such extraordinary situations entertaining of writ petitions on any and every issue at the instance of anyone from the public irrespective of such matter is not to be countenanced. Otherwise, it will lead to serious repercussions and encourage all types of unethical litigation which is to be otherwise severely repelled by Courts of Justice.

[Para 3]

The action complained of is against the respondent whose office is not situated within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court. Further, the order of Proclamation issued under Art.356 has no impact whatsoever in this area or State over which this Court has jurisdiction. No cause of action wholly or in part could be said to have arisen within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court. The effect of proclamation could not be said to have been felt or suffered legally in any manner, by anyone including the petitioner in this State and consequently, the relief prayed for as well as this writ petition cannot be entertained before this Court, under Art.226 of the Constitution. [Paras 4 & 5]

Case referred to:

Sachidanand Pandey v. State of West Bengal, (1987) 2 S.C.C. 295. [Para 4]

Petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to issue a writ of declaration declaring the Presidential Proclamation dated 2.4.1992, relating to the State of Nagaland, as null and void and unconstitutional and ultra vires.

R.Parthasarathy, for Petitioner.

The Court made the following

ORDER: The writ petition has been filed for the issue of a writ of declaration, declaring that the Presidential Proclamation dated 2.4.1992 under Art.356 of the Constitution of India relating to the State of Nagaland is null and void, unconstitutional and ultra vires. The petitioner has made available the xerox copy of a news item containing the gist of the Presidential Proclamation. By virtue of the Presidential Proclamation issued under Art.356 of the Constitution of India, the Administration of the State of Nagaland was brought under the President's rule. Another xerox copy of a news item made available by the petitioner contains the details of advice which appears to have been tendered to the President of India, who issued the proclamation under Art.356 in relation to the State of Nagaland; the sum and substance of it appears to be that the very ground relied upon by the Governor to dissolve the Assembly shows that it was not possible to carry on the administration of the State in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

2. The petitioner appeared as party in person and-argued the case by referring to several judgments of the Apex Court as well as various High Courts. In substance his contention was that the circumstances which prevailed in the said State at the crucial point of time did not warrant or justify recourse to Art.356 of the Constitution of India. In the light of the view, I propose to take in disposing of the writ petition, I consider it unnecessary to deal with extensively the various aspects of the submissions made and referred to, in detail, in the several judgments quoted by the petitioner. In my view, the writ petition is liable to be dismissed for the very simple reason that the petitioner would have no locus standi to maintain this writ petition and that at any rate no part of the cause of action for the writ petition arose at all, either wholly or in part, within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court.

3. Though the petitioner has chosen to institute the present writ petition as a public interest litigation, there is no controversy over the fact that he claims to be an Indian citizen and only a voter in the State of Tamil Nadu. Public interest litigation does not mean that anyone can institute proceedings any where and that too the writ petition for any cause or purpose, irrespective of the fact whether he has any semblance of interest either in his personal or representative capacity in the subject matter concerned or involved in the case. Courts have been encouraging public interest litigation deviating from the normal rule of locus standi and the principle of personal grievance or personal injury, only in respect of matters where it involved denial of fundamental right to innocent citizen who cannot protect themselves, or where it is to espouse the cause of some helpless individual or a representative group who have no vigilance or wherewithal or the required stamina to have recourse to courts and to fight to secure relief for themselves. Except in such extraordinary situations, entertaining of writ petitions on any and every issue at the instance of anyone from the public irrespective of the nature of the cause or his legitimate concern in respect of such matters, in my view is not to be countenanced. Otherwise, it will lead to serious repercussions and encourage all types of unethical litigation which is to be otherwise severely repelled by Courts of justice.

4. The Supreme Court had an occasion to consider the nature and type of public interest litigation that is of late coming before courts and held that a cautious approach is to be adopted in countenancing such litigation. Learned Judge, V.Khalid, J. while delivering a supporting, but a separate opinion in Sachidanand Pandey v. State of West Bengal, (1987)2 S.C.C. 295, has observed as follows:

"My learned brother has considered the facts in detail and the questions of law relevant for the purpose of this appeal. I fully agree with his conclusions. This short tailpiece is with a purpose. This case goes by the name "Public Interest Litigation". I wish to delineate the parameters of public interest litigation concisely, against the background of the facts of this case, so that this salutary type of litigation does not lose its credibility. Today public spirited litigants rush to courts to file cases in profusion under this attractive name. They must inspire confidence in courts and among the public. They must be above suspicion. See the facts of this case and the end result.

.....

My purpose in adding these few lines of my own is to highlight the need for restraint on the part of the public interest litigants when they move courts. Public interest litigation has now come to stay. But one is led to think that it poses a threat to courts and public alike. Such cases are now filed without any rhyme or reason. It is, therefore, necessary to lay down clear guidelines and to outline the correct parameters for entertainment of such petitions. If Courts do not restrict the free flow of such cases in the name of public interest litigations, the traditional litigation will suffer and the courts of law, instead of dispensing justice, will have to take upon themselves administrative and executive functions.

.....

It is only when courts are apprised of gross violation of fundamental rights by a group or a class action or when basic human rights are invaded or when there are complaints of such acts as shock the judicial conscience that the courts, especially this Court should leave aside procedural shackles and hear such petitions and extend its jurisdiction under all available provisions for remedying the hardships and miseries of the needy, the underdog and the neglected. I will be second to none in extending help when such help is required. But this does not mean that the doors of this Court are always open for anyone to walk in. It is necessary to have some self-imposed restraint on public interest litigants."

The apprehension about the indiscriminate volume of litigation under the guise of public interest litigation expressed by the learned Judge applies in my view on all fours to the case on hand. The person or persons, if at all concerned about the action complained of, cannot be said to be one or those who cannot look after themselves or more for protection, if they and so wish the writ petition in my view is instituted more by way of publicity for the self rather than for really serving any practical or useful public purpose.

5. That apart the action complained of is against the respondent whose office is not situated within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court. Further, the order of proclamation issued under Art.356 has no impact whatsoever in this area or State over which this Court has jurisdiction. No cause of action, either wholly or in part could be said to have arisen within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court. The effect of proclamation could not be said to have been felt or suffered legally in any manner by any one including the petitioner in this State and consequently I am of the view that the relief prayed for as well as this writ petition cannot be maintained before this Court under Art.226 of the Constitution.

6. For all the reasons stated above, the writ petition shall stand dismissed.

B.S. ----- Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Mishra and Swamidurai, JJ.

L.P.A.No.60 of 1985

28th April, 1992.

K.Varadhan

...Appellant

v.

Pattammal (dead) and others

...Respondents

Evidence Act (I of 1872), Secs.101 and 102 - Plaintiff illiterate woman signing document, unaware of contents - Later on alleging mis-representation and fraud - Onus of proof - On whom lies. Maxim non est factum".

Courts in India have, on the rule of evidence enshrined in Secs.101 and 102 in Chapter VII of the Evidence Act, particularly in cases of woman in India who in some parts and some communities are pardaneshin and in most parts of the country illiterate for the reason that they transact their business generally through malefolk only, men always dominated women, and women lived a life dominated by men, this being the curse that always surrounded women folk even though law recognised their independent rights, they failed invariably in exercising such rights, accepted that onus lies upon the defendant to show that there has been no fraud, undue influence or coercion in the transaction. One could easily, since the plaintiff alleged mis-representation and fraud, ask her to prove the mis-representation and fraud. But not in a case where a woman being an illiterate and unaware of the contents signed the document. Unless fully and faithfully informed about the contents, she cannot be asked to bring evidence to prove her case. The learned Single Judge is right in holding that the Court will not ask the plaintiff to prove the allegation but demand from the defendant to disprove the allegation of mis-representation and fraud. [Para 8]

Cases referred to:

Foster v. Mackinnon, (1969) L.R. 4 C.P. 704.

[Para 6]

Gallie v. Lee, 1971 A.C. 1004. [Para 7]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Mohan, J. dated 14.2.1985 and made in the exercise of the Appellate Jurisdiction of the High Court in Appeal No.120 of 1979. (O.S.No.39 of 1975 on the file of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Chidambaram).

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- This appeal is directed by the defendant in a suit for declaration and injunction.

2. The plaintiff/1st respondent, it is not in dispute, owned the schedule B property-house, lived in a portion of the same, while the other portion was occupied by tenants. She mortgaged the property to one Murugesu Asari, borrowing a sum of Rs.1,200 from him. In the middle of December, 1972, however, when she needed further money, the defendant/Appellant who was a close relative volunteered to help her stating that he would advance further sum required by her, that he would discharge the subsisting mortgage and take in his name a fresh mortgage for the amount advanced by him and the amount paid for discharging the earlier mortgage. According to the plaintiff, thus representing, the defendant obtained a document from her on 1.1.1973 and paid a sum of Rs.1,000. The plaintiff/1st respondent, according to her case, was all along under the impression that the document dated 1.1.1973 was only a mortgage deed for a sum of Rs.2,500 consisting of Rs.1,500 to be paid in discharge of the earlier mortgage and Rs.1,000 to be paid to her in cash at the time of registration. Notwithstanding the execution of the document, however, the plaintiff-1st respondent continued to live in the portion in which she was living.

3. A year prior to the institution of the suit, according to the 1st plaintiff an advocate's notice was served upon her. However, she was not made aware of the contents of the notice by the defendant to whom also the lawyer's notice was intended. He represented to her that he would make arrangements to send a suitable reply. The 1st plaintiff relied solely on the defendant and so she was not aware of the reply sent on her behalf. In April, 1974 she however came to know that the defendant had played a fraud on her and obtained a sale deed instead of a mortgage deed. She, thereafter, obtained a copy of the sale deed dated 1.1.1973 and sent a notice to the defendant calling upon him to cancel the deed and accept the amount advanced by him, and when the defendant did not comply with the demand made by her, she filed the suit.

4. The defendant-appellant in the written statement however stated that apart from the money due to Murugesu Asari, the 1st plaintiff had borrowed a sum of Rs.1,000 from one Mariappan, the brother of the defendant, on a promissory note dated 5.8.1971. Likewise, she had borrowed various sums from the defendant on various occasions totalling in all to Rs.1,800. The first plaintiff wanted to discharge these debts. She also required more money since after the discharge of the debt, she decided to settle down at Madras. It was, in those circumstances, she approached the defendant pressing for the acceptance of the property for Rs.6,000. Even though the property was not even worth Rs.5,000 at that time, on account of the 1st plaintiff's insistence, the defendant agreed to purchase the property. Out of this amount, a sum of Rs.1,500 was paid to Murugesu, a sum of Rs.1,200 to Mariappa and Rs.1,800 was adjusted towards the hand-loan borrowed by the 1st plaintiff from the defendant. Out of the balance, Rs.500 was paid to the 1st plaintiff on the date of execution of the sale deed and the balance of Rs.1,000 was paid to her at the time of registration. The defendant-appellant disputed the allegation of the 1st plaintiff that she was unaware of the contents of the document and asserted that she was fully aware as to what she was doing. She was fully aware as to what she was doing and she had conducted several litigations herself. There was no fraud or misrepresentation as alleged by the first plaintiff. After the sale, the municipal registry as well as the electric supply connection have been transferred in the name of the defendant. Denying the occupation as claimed by the 1st plaintiff of a portion of the building, the defendant-appellant asserted that the 1st plaintiff only recently trespassed into the house and forcibly occupied a room therein.

5. The trial court held that the 1st plaintiff failed to establish that the sale deed dated 1.1.1973 had been obtained from her by exercise of fraud or misrepresentation and accordingly decided the suit against the 1st plaintiff. The learned single Judge who heard the appeal, however, found that it was a case of non est factum in which the onus lay upon the defendant to show that the 1st plaintiff was fully aware of the real nature of the transaction and that, therefore, there was no fraud or misrepresentation on his part and held that in the absence of any evidence to contradict the stand of the 1st plaintiff that she was not aware of what she was doing, the principle of non est factum would have to be applied in the case and granted a decree in favour of the 1st plaintiff as prayed for.

6. "Non est factum, scriptum predictum non est factum sum "assumed great significance in course of time. In Cheshire and Fifoot's Law of Contract, Tenth Edition at p.229 the principle is found stated and the learned single Judge has also noted this:

"In the course of its development, this plea of non est factum was made available to a defendant who could not read, whether owing to illiteracy or blindness, so as to enable him to escape liability upon proof that the written terms of the deed did not correspond with its effect as explained to him before he put his seal to it. In 1952, for instance, in Thoroughgood's case, (1582) 2 Co. Rep. 9a, William Chicken, being in arrears with his rent, tendered to his landlord, thorough good, a deed by which he was relieved from 'all demands whatsoever' which Thoroughgood had against him. Thus the dispensation on its face comprised not only arrears of rent, but also the right to recover the land. Thoroughgood was illiterate, but a bystander, affecting to be helpful, seized the deed and said; 'The effect of it is this, that you do release to William Chicken all the arrears of rent that he doth owe you and no otherwise, and thus you shall have your land back again.' After replying, 'if it be no otherwise, I am content.' Thoroughgood sealed the deed. Chicken subsequently sold the land to an innocent purchaser."

Thorough good sued in trespass quare clausum fregit and recovered his land. It was said by the court of Common Pleas to be 'the usual course of pleading' that the defendant was a layman and without learning, and that he had been deceived by a distorted recital of the contents of the deed.

The plea, as its language showed, was confined to cases where the defendant was sued on a deed and at a time when illiteracy was frequent enough to demand special protection, it was unexceptionable. It might have been wiser, therefore, to have discarded it altogether when society became more sophisticated; but in the course of the nineteenth century the courts extended it with little reflection and without warrant to cases of simple contracts, and abandoned the requirement of illiteracy. The justification for these extensions was now said to be want of consent. On this view, the contract was complete nullity. Thus in 1869, the Foster v. Mackinnon, (1969) L.R. 4 C.P. 704, the following passage occurs in the judgment of a strong court delivered by Byles, J.,

"It seems plain on principle and on authority that if a blind man, or a man who cannot read or who for some reason (not implying negligence) forbears to read, had a written contract falsely read over to him, the reader misreading to such a degree that the written contract is of a nature altogether different from the contract pretended to be read from the paper which the blind or illiterate man afterwards signs; then, at least if there be no negligence, the signature so obtained is of no force. And it is invalid not merely on the ground of fraud, where fraud exists, but on the ground that the mind of the signer did not accompany the signature; in other words that he never intended to sign, and therefore in contemplation of law never did sign, the contract to which his name is appended (ibid at 711)".

At page 233 again it is stated as under:

"The final question is, whether the plea of non est factum will be withheld from a party if the mistake was due to his own negligence. In Foster v. Mackinnon, (1969) L.R. 4 C.P. 704, the Court of Common Pleas stated in unambiguous terms that a signatory is barred by his negligence from pleading his mistake against an innocent third party who was acted to his less upon the faith of the document.

The action before the Court was against the defendant, described as 'a gentleman far advanced in years', as indorser of a bill of exchange. It appeared that one Callow took the bill to him and asked him to sign it, telling him that it was a guarantee. The defendant, in the belief that he was signing a guarantee similar to one which he had given before, signed the bill on the back. He looked only at the back of the paper, but it was in the ordinary shape of a bill of exchange, and it bore a stamp the impress of which was visible through the paper. The bill was later negotiated to the plaintiff who took it without notice of the fraud.

The action was first tried by the Lord Chief Justice, who told the jury that if the defendant signed the paper without knowing that it was a bill and under the belief that it was a guarantee, and if he was not guilty of any negligence in so signing the paper, then he was entitled to their verdict.

"The jury found that the defendant had not been negligent and returned a verdict in his favour. On appeal, the Court of Common Pleas endorsed the direction given by the trial Judge, but ordered a fresh trial on the ground that the issue of negligence had not been fully and satisfactorily considered. In the result, therefore, the right of the defendant to sustain the plea of non est factum was to depend upon whether he was eventually found to have been guilty of negligence."

7. It is useful to extract from the judgment of the learned single Judge the authorities on this principle, not many, but useful only such as the case of Gallie v. Lee, 1971 A.C. 1004. That was a case in which a 78 year old widow who had a lease-hold interest in a house, gave the deeds to her trusted nephew. She intended to make a gift to him to take effect immediately. She knew that her nephew wished to raise money on the house and that L, her nephew's business associate, was to collaborate with the nephew in raising money on the house.

"In June, 1962, L asked her to sign a document. She had broken her spectacles and could not read it. She asked what it was and L told her that it was a deed of gift of the house to her nephew. She executed it in that belief, and the nephew witnessed the execution, it being part of his arrangements with L, that L should raise money on the house and repay it to the nephew by instalments. The document signed was in fact an assignment of the house by her to L for $ 3,000. The $ 3,000 was never paid for intended to be paid to her. L, having obtained the deeds and a reference as to his reliability from the nephew, mortgaged the house for $ 2,000 to a building society, but used the money so raised to pay his debts and defaulted on the mortgage instalments. The building society sought to obtain possession of the house.

G., at the nephew's instigation, began an action, in which she pleaded non est factum, against L, and the building society and asked for a declaration that the assignment was void and that the title deeds should be delivered to her. The Judge found that G did not read the document, the L represented it to her as a deed of gift to the nephew; that she executed it in that belief; and that a sale or gift to L was something which she did not and would not ever have contemplated; and he held that the plea of non est factum was established and granted declaration asked for."

The Court of Appeal reversed the decision. Certain passages occurring in the judgment are vital to the case on hand. At page 1016 Lord Reid States thus:

"The plea cannot be available to anyone who was content to sign without taking the trouble to try to find out at least the general effect of the document. Many people do frequently sign documents put before them for signature by their solicitor or other trusted advisers without making any inquiry as to their purpose or effect. But the essence of the plea non est factum is that the person signing believed that the document he signed had one character or one effect whereas in fact its character or effect was quite different. He could not have such a belief unless he had taken steps or been given information which gave him some grounds for his belief. The amount of information he must have and the sufficiency of the particularity of his belief must depend on the circumstances of each case."

The passage relied on by Mr. Srinivasan, learned counsel for the respondent does not help him in any manner. On the contrary, the following observations of Lord Reid are important.

"We find in many of the authorities statements that a man's deed is not his deed if his mind does not go with his pen."

No doubt, Lord Reid stated that, that is far too wide. But that observation that "That is far too wide" will have to be applied only to the facts of the case before the House of Lords. Again at page 1021, Viscount Dilhorne observes as follows:

"What are the matters which have to be established for the plea to succeed? First, in my opinion, it must be shown that the document signed was radically different in character from that which the signer thought it was"

Lord Wilberforce at page 1027 holds as follows:

"As to persons who are illiterates, or blind, or lacking in understanding, the law is in a dilemma, On the one hand, the law is traditionally, and rightly, ready to relieve them against hardship and imposition. On the other hand, regard has to be paid to the position of innocent third parties who cannot be expected, and often would have no means, to know the condition or status of the signer. I do not think that a defined solution can be provided for all cases.

The law ought, in my opinion, to give relief if satisfied that consent was truly lacking but will require of signers even in this class that they act responsibly and carefully according in their circumstances in putting their signature to legal documents."

8. Courts in India have on the rule of evidence enshrined in Secs. 101 and 102 in Chapter VII of the Evidence Act, particularly in cases of women in India who in some parts and some communities are pardanashin and in most parts of the country illiterate, for the reason that they transact their business generally through malefolk only, men always dominated women, and women lived a life dominated by men, this being the curse that always surrounded women folk even though law recognised their independent rights, they failed invariably in exercising such rights, accepted that onus lies upon the defendant to show that there has been no fraud, undue influence or coercion in the transaction. One could easily, since the plaintiff alleged mis-representation and fraud, ask her to prove the mis-representation and fraud. But not in a case where a woman being an illiterate and unaware of the contents signed the document. Unless fully and faithfully informed about the contents, she cannot be asked to bring evidence to prove her case. Learned Single Judge, in our opinion, is right in holding that the Court will not ask the plaintiff to prove the allegation but demand from the defendant to disprove the allegation of mis-representation and fraud. The learned single Judge, in our opinion, has taken the correct view of the law on the fact that the 1st plaintiff is an illiterate woman who merely affixed her thumb impression. She is a woman who possibly could not act without help.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant has however, made a serious endeavour before us to show that the 1st plaintiff has been dealing herself in her affairs and not depending upon any help and that in the instant case, there are circumstances to show that she willingly executed the sale deed to discharge the earlier debts, but later instituted the suit on a false plea that she was unaware of the real nature of the transaction. In his endeavour, he has taken us through the evidence of the witnesses and the documents on record. We, however, see no reason to differ from the findings recorded by the learned single Judge in this behalf. The property in dispute is the only house belonging to the 1st plaintiff. With the transfer of title in this house, she was to become homeless. The theory propounded by the defendant-appellant that the 1st plaintiff wanted to discharge the debts and therefore she required money and after discharging the debts, she desired to settle down at Madras looks ridiculous. Equally ridiculous is the plea that the woman who had already been in possession after transfer of the property in favour of the defendant-appellant, once again trespassed into the house and occupied a room only to create a basis for the suit for declaration and injunction. The learned single Judge has noted these facts as follows:

"The plaintiff-appellant is an illiterate. She has merely affixed her thumb impression. Though an argument was raised on behalf of the respondent that the appellant might be in a position to read but not write, that is made only at the bar and not supported by evidence. She has no male help. The defendant is a trusted relation who has been acting on her behalf with regard to the collection of rents and payment of municipal taxes as spoken to by her.

This is the only house belonging to her and therefore she would not have thought it prudent to sell away that only house to deprive herself of even her right of residence. The plea of the respondent that she wanted to dispose of the property and settle in Madras has been disbelieved by the learned Subordinate Judge. Equally, his theory of trespass. As spoken to by her she continued to be in occupation of that one room throughout even after the execution of Ex. 1.

There was no demand by the mortgagee. The payment of Rs. 1700 on the promissory note debt Ex. X-13 cannot be believed at all because what was required to be paid even assuming there was a borrowing of Rs. 1,000 under that promissory note, together with interest, would only amount to Rs. 1,075 why, therefore, Rs. 1,200 was stated to have been paid has not been explained. The promisee is none other than the defendant's brother.

There is no evidence with regard to the so-called handloans advanced by the defendant.

It is rather curious that all these documents were attested by the same set of attesters in that Arumugham happens to be the attester in respect of documents, Exs.X-2, X-13 and X-1. All these circumstances taken together with the evidence of P.W.1 clearly prove her case.

10. On the fact of the above, we have no hesitation in holding that the onus lay upon the defendant-appellant to show that the 1st plaintiff fully knew about the contents of the document of sale and that her story that she was made to believe that she was document is not true. The defendant appellant has failed to discharge the onus in this behalf and the evidence as above positively proved that the sale is hit by the doctrine of non est factum. We, accordingly, find no merit in this appeal. The appeal is dismissed. On the facts of this case, however, there shall be no order as to costs.

B.S. ----- Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Venkataswami and Abdul Hadi, JJ.

A.A.O.Nos.340 and 341 of 1985 31st March, 1992.

The Superintending Engineer, National Highways, Salem
...Appellant
v.
Vcl.Somasundaram ...Respondent.

Arbitration Act (X of 1940) - Arbitrator appointed under - It has power to send for documents required by any of the parties - Court if can direct production of documents.

It is clear from the decision in Y.Ranganathan v. P.L.N.Gupta, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 348, that the arbitrator has the power to send for documents required by any of the parties before him and that the Court has no such power, to give directions for the production of the documents. The decision in Bombay Ammonia Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1987 Del. 148, also shows that the arbitrator has power to procure necessary document for deciding the dispute before him. The observation in K.P.Poulose v. State of Kerala, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1259, also shows that the arbitrator has the abovesaid power to send for the relevant documents.

[Paras 5, 6 and 7]

Cases referred to:

Y.Ranganathan v. P.L.N.Gupta, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 348. [Para 5]

M/s.Bombay Ammonia Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1987 Del. 148. [Para 6]

K.P.Poulose v. State of Kerala, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1259. [Para 7]

R.Swaminathan, Government Pleader, for Appellant.

R.Subramaniam, for Respondent.

The Judgment of the Court was made by Abdul Hadi, J.: A short legal point is alone involved in those two appeals arising out of arbitration proceedings. The point is, whether an arbitrator has power to send for the documents required by any of the parties before him. The appellant's contention is that an arbitrator has no such power and the party requiring any document to be sent for could only move the court for necessary directions. But the contention of the respondent is that an arbitrator himself has such a power.

2. The facts which are necessary for the disposal of those two appeals may now be stated: The dispute is between the contractor, the respondent in both the appeals, and the Superintending Engineer, National Highways, Salem, who is the appellant in both the appeals. Since the contractor could not carry on the work, the appellant terminated the contract. According to the contractor, he could not carry on the work because the appellant who had to supply hot mix plant pavers, etc., did not supply them. The dispute was referred to the named arbitrator, who passed an award rejecting the claim of the contractor that the Government (Appellant) should supply the same and holding that the stand of the Government was correct. Hence, O.P.No.160 of 1978 was filed by the contractor to set aside the award dated 19.7.1978 and also O.P.No.228 of 1980 to prevent the Government from enforcing the bank guarantee given by him till the disposal of the O.P.No.228 of 1980. By a common order dated 25.10.1984 both O.P.Nos.160 of 1978 and 228 of 1980 were allowed in that in O.P.No.160 of 1978 the award was set aside and remitted back to the arbitrator for fresh disposal according to law, in the light of the observations made in that order and in the light of additional documents produced by both parties.

3. As against order in O.P.No.160 of 1978, A.A.O.No.340 of 1985 has been preferred and as against the order in O.P.No.228 of 1980, A.A.O.No.341 of 1985 has been filed by the appellant. The ground on which the abovesaid common order was passed by the court below is that since the required documents were not sent for by the arbitrator, there is a mistake apparent on the face of the record causing prejudice to the contractor which amount to a legal misconduct by the arbitrator.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant contends that the arbitrator has no such power to send for any relevant document required by any of the parties and if at all the party requiring the document could only move the civil court for getting necessary directions and that the arbitrator himself could not send for the document. But, on the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent/contractor drew our attention to three decisions, which we find, support his contention that the arbitrator has such power to send for the documents.

5. The first decision is: Y.Ranganathan v. P.L.N.Gupta, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 348, where a Division Bench of this Court held that any direction by the court to produce documents, while the proceedings before the arbitrator is pending, is not maintainable. The relevant passage in the said decision appearing in paragraph 10 is as follows:

"The present prayer for a direction to produce the documents, in our view, is not contemplated by the second schedule to Sec.41 of the Arbitration Act, nor can Sec.31(3) and (4) of the Act be interpreted to include such type of prayers. The Arbitrator is seized of that matter and he has also made certain observations and given some directions on the applications filed by the appellants, which we have extracted in paragraph supra. To allow such petitions to be filed before court for directions to produce documents will open the floodgates of litigation and the court will be mulcted with many number of petitions of this nature leaving the Arbitrator helpless. Arbitration proceedings are intended to give speedy remedy without burdening the court with cases in which the parties opt for arbitration. If such types of applications, which are not contemplated by the Arbitration Act either under Sec.31 or under Sec.41 or under the Second Schedule thereof, are allowed to be filed, the purpose of the Arbitration Act itself will be frustrated." Therefore, it is clear that the court has no such power, but the arbitrator himself has such a power. 6. In the second decision, viz., M/s.Bombay Ammonia Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1987 Del. 148, it was found that the arbitrator therein made no efforts to procure vital documents and the award was made by him without considering the vital documents and in such circumstances, the Delhi High Court held that the award was liable to be set aside. This decision also shows that the arbitrator has power to procure necessary document for deciding the dispute before him.

7. In the third decision cited by the learned counsel for the respondent, viz., K.P.Poulose v. State of Kerala, A.I.R. 1975 S.C. 1259, the award of the arbitrator therein was set aside by the Supreme Court, since the arbitrator ignored certain very material documents relevant to the controversy between the parties. In that context, the Supreme Court observed as follows:

"In the background of the controversy in this case even if the Department did not produce these documents before the Arbitrator it was incumbent upon him to get hold of all the relevant documents...."

This observation also shows that the arbitrator has the abovesaid power to send for the relevant documents. No other point was argued before in.

8. Therefore, the decisions taken by the Court below cannot be said to be in any way erroneous. The appeals are dismissed with costs.

B.S.

Appeals dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

W.P.No.9908 of 1992 and W.M.P.Nos.14296 and 14925 of 1992 3rd September, 1992.

Sri Mahalakshmi Temple, represented by its Founder Managing Trustee M.R.Srinivasa Varadachariar ...Petitioner
v.

The Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.)
Department, Madras and another ...Respondents.

(A) Tamil Nadu Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XXII of 1959), Sec.45(1) - Temple of recent origin - Office of trusteeship of temple cannot be claimed to be hereditary - Temple held to have been built by raising funds from public - Commissioner of Endowments if can appoint executive for administration of the temple.

Held: The temple in question is admittedly of a recent origin and the office of the trusteeship of the temple cannot be claimed to be hereditary.
That apart, even assuming that the petitioner is to make a claim in this regard, until the same is finally established in a manner known to law, it cannot be assumed that the temple is under the management of hereditary trustee. The findings rendered by the authorities constituted under the Act, the City Civil Court and this Court go to show that the temple in question had been built by raising funds from the public. Having regard to the facts, it would be perfectly within the powers of the Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., to appoint an Executive Officer for the temple in question. [Para 15]

(B) Tamil Nadu Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XXII of 1959), Secs.6(20) and 45(1) - Temple in question held to be a religious institution - Founder of temple not a hereditary trustee, if entitled to notice under Sec.45(1), before appointment of Executive Officer for temple.

Held: This Court categorically held that the institution in question is a religious institution within the meaning of Sec.6(20) of the Act. Hence, the petitioner has absolutely to right to claim that he is entitled to a notice under Sec.45(1) of the Act before the appointment of an Executive Officer.
The only circumstance under which the first respondent (Commissioner) cannot appoint an Executive Officer for a temple is where there is a hereditary trustee in which case, the 1st respondent has to give notice of the proposed appointment and consider the objections of the hereditary trustee regarding such appointment. In the instant case, the petitioner has miserably failed to prove that he is the hereditary trustee and hence he is entitled to notice preceded by the appointment of the Executive Officer. [Paras 21 and 22]

Cases referred to:

*Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras v.
K.Jothiramalingam, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 341.* [Paras
5, 23]

Nagarajan v. Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras, (1970)2 M.L.J. 599: A.I.R. 1971 Mad. 295. [Para
23]

*Roopalunga Chettiar v. Deputy Commissioner, H.R.
& C.E., Madras, 97 L.W. 424.* [Para 24]

G.Subramaniam, Senior Counsel for W.C.Thiruvengadam, for Petitioner.

P.M.Bhaskaran, Government Advocate, for Respondent No.1.

R.Krishnamurthi, Senior Counsel for R.Muthukumaraswami, for Respondent No.2.

The Court made the following

ORDER: The petitioner has filed the above writ petition in his capacity as the Founder Managing Trustee of Sri Mahalakshmi Temple, Madras-90, for the following relief:

To issue a writ of certiorari or any other appropriate writ, order or direction, calling for the records of the 1st respondent relating to the appointment of the 2nd respondent as Executive Officer of Sri Mahalakshmi Temple, Besant Nagar, Madras-90, issued in Rc.No.51321/92-L1, dated 16.7.1992 and quash the same.

2. According to the petitioner, he is the founder Managing Trustee of Sri Mahalakshmi Temple.
The subject matter of challenge in this writ petition is the order of the 1st respondent in Proceedings No.51321/92-L1, dated 16.7.1992 appointing the 2nd respondent as the Executive Officer of the Sri Mahalakshmi Temple, Madras-90, for better administration of this temple. The order was passed by the 1st respondent in exercise of the powers vested in him under Sec.45(1) of the Tamil Nadu Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1959 (Act 22 of 1959), hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'. The powers and duties of the Executive Officer and the non-hereditary trustee have already been set out in detail in the Annexure to the order impugned in the writ petition. According to the writ petitioner, he is the founder of the temple and the City Civil Court, Madras, has given a finding in his favour, which clearly establishes his position in the temple ever since its inception. Even though the Courts have held that Sri Mahalakshmi Temple is a public religious institution coming under the provisions of the Act, that cannot be a reason for the appointment of an Executive Officer for the temple without notice and that the present appointment of an Executive Officer for the temple practically replaces the petitioner from his position as founder-cum-managing trustee of the temple. In the circumstances, it is stated, that the petitioner should get a notice before an order is passed under Sec.45(1) of the Act. It is further stated that the dismissal of L.P.A.No.115 of 1992 by a Division Bench of this Court has not given any special power to the 1st respondent to proceed with the appointment of an Executive Officer for the institution in question and hence, the impugned order of the 1st respondent is ex facie illegal and is liable to be set aside.

3. The above writ petition was admitted by this Court on 22.7.1992. Along with the writ petition, W.M.P.No.14296 of 1992 was filed to stay the operation of the impugned order of the 1st respondent dated 16.7.1992 in appointing the 2nd respondent as the Executive Officer of the temple in question. S.Govindasamy, J. was pleased to grant interim stay for two weeks on 22.7.1992. To vacate the same, the 2nd respondent has filed W.M.P.No.14925 of 1992. The 2nd respondent has also filed a detailed counter in this case. Likewise, the 1st respondent has also filed a detailed counter affidavit denying the allegations contained in the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition.

4. By consent of all parties, the main writ petition itself was taken up for final hearing and I have heard Mr.G.Subramaniam, learned Senior Advocate on behalf of the petitioner, Mr. R.Krishnamurthi, learned Senior Advocate on behalf of the 2nd respondent and Mr.P.M. Bhaskaran, learned Government Advocate for the 1st respondent.

5. Mr.G.Subramaniam, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner, at the time of hearing has raised the following only contention. The 1st respondent has no authority to appoint an Executive Officer for the temple in question without any notice to the person in management. According to him, it has been admitted by all the authorities below and the City Civil Court and this Court, that the petitioner is the founder of the temple. Placing strong reliance on the Division Bench judgment of this Court, Mr.G.Subramaniam further contends, that an enquiry has to be held after giving notice to the person in management before the appointment of an Executive Officer under Sec.45(1) of the Act to any temple and since no such notice has been given to the petitioner by the 1st respondent, the impugned proceedings of the 1st respondent appointing an Executive Officer violates all principles of natural justice. Strong reliance was placed on the Division Bench decision of this Court reported in Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras v. K.Jothiramalingam, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 341. (G.Ramanujam and V.Ratnam, JJ.).

6. Per contra, Mr.R.Krishnamurthi, learned Senior Advocate, on behalf of the 2nd respondent submits that the writ petition is misconceived and devoid of merit, and as admitted by the petitioner himself the temple in question has been declared to be a public temple and a religious institution within the meaning of the Act. Since the claim of the petitioner that the said temple is a private temple has been rejected by the authorities constituted under the Act, and the statutory suit filed by the petitioner in O.S.No.3510 of 1981 on the file of the City Civil Court, Madras, was dismissed upholding the findings of the authorities under the Act, and when the appeal filed by the petitioner in A.S.No.853 of 1981 on the file of this Court was dismissed confirming the order of the authorities below and the further appeal in L.P.A.No.115 of 1992 was also dismissed by a Division Bench of this Court finally declaring the temple in question to be a public temple and a religious institution to which all the provisions of the Act would apply, the contention of the petitioner has absolutely no merit and the same has to be rejected in view of the various proceedings and the pronouncements of the authorities constituted under the Act and the legal pronouncements of the City Civil Court, Madras and also this Court.

7. Mr.P.M.Bhaskaran, learned Government Advocate for the 1st respondent, has also supported the contentions raised by Mr. R.Krishnamurthi on behalf of the 2nd respondent. He also reiterated the contentions raised by the 1st respondent in his counter affidavit.

8. I have carefully considered the rival submissions made by the respective senior counsel. The only claim put forward in the present writ petition is that the appointment in question is invalid in law as it had not been preceded by a notice, which according to the petitioner, is mandatory. The petitioner has also relied upon a judgment of this Court in this regard. I am of the view that the aforesaid claim of the petitioner is not tenable in law and on facts. As referred to already, the only issue projected by the petitioner all through was that the temple in question is a private one, to which the provisions of the Act would not apply. That issue, as stated already, had been concluded against the petitioner and in favour of the Department. At no point of time had the petitioner projected a claim that the temple is administered by a hereditary trustee. As a matter of fact, the said claim has also not been averred in the affidavit filed in support of the present writ petition. Let me now advert to the findings already given by the authorities constituted under the Act, the City Civil Court and also this Court in the various proceedings referred to above and see whether in view of such categorical and unassailable findings, the petitioner will be entitled to any notice as claimed by him.

9. The first order in this context to be referred to is the order passed by the Deputy Commissioner (Judicial), H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) Department, Madras-34, in O.A.No.60 of 1977 dated 5.1.1979. That is an application under Sec.63(a) of the Act filed by M.R.Srinivasa Varadachariar. It is clearly mentioned in that order that the public at large have donated about Rs.11 lakhs for the construction of the temple and that Sri Mahalakshmi Trust as such was found to be a public trust. According to the Deputy Commissioner, Ex.A-1 filed before him is the deed of declaration of trust, which itself confirms the above fact. In paragraph 2 of Ex.A-1, the following is stated categorically:

“Whereas the founder herein has decided to declare and execute a public charitable and religious trust in the name and style of Shri Mahalakshmi Trust.”

Admittedly, public have contributed for the construction of the said temple and that by itself would, in my view, establish that the temple in question is a public temple under the provisions of the Act. The Deputy Commissioner has found that the temple in question is of public character as defined under Sec.6(20) of the Act, and has been used for public religious worship and that the same has been dedicated to and for the benefit of and use as of right by Hindus as a public religious worship as laid down in the several rulings referred to in the order. Therefore, the Deputy Commissioner has dismissed the petition filed by the writ petitioner under Sec.63(a) of the Act seeking a declaration that the temple does not fall under the purview of the Act.

10. An appeal was preferred in A.P.No.32 of 1979 against the abovesaid order of the Deputy Commissioner before the Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) Department, Madras-34. The Commissioner has also dismissed the appeal preferred under Sec.69(i) of the Act and confirmed the finding of the Deputy Commissioner that the institution known as Sri Mahalakshmi Temple, Besant Nagar, Madras-90, is a religious institution within the meaning of Sec.6(20) of the Act.

11. The writ petitioner thereafter filed a suit in O.S.No.5 of 1980 on the file of the Sub Court, Chengalpattu, which was later transferred to the City Civil Court, Madras and numbered as O.S.No.3510 of 1981. The suit was disposed of on merits by T.N.Singaravelu, J. as he then was, by his judgment dated 17.8.1981. While referring to the evidence of the writ petitioner M.R.Srinivasa Varadachariar as P.W.1 in the suit, the learned Judge says that the petitioner hails from the village of Mukkoor and has no other occupation or avocation and that he has taken up this occupation as the means of the livelihood from 1942 onwards and that he is not an income-tax assessee and he never submitted returns to the Income-tax Department. Therefore, the learned Judge has found prima facie that the petitioner is not in a position to contribute any amount towards the temple and in any event, there is no acceptable evidence showing his financial contribution to the temple. While referring to his chief-examination, the learned Judge states that the petitioner has admitted that from the sale proceeds of the Ashtalakshmi Pictures, he discharged the bank loan of Rs.40,000. It was also elicited from him that Sri Mahalakshmi Trust, which came into existence in 1972, had no funds of its own and that he purchased the site for the temple only from out of the donations from the public and through the sale of the Ashtalakshmi Pictures to the devotees. The other admissions elicited from P.W.1, the petitioner herein, is that the temple had been constructed according to Agama Sastras and it is a Vaishnava temple of Vadagalai cult following Pancharathra Agamam and that the temple was built only for the worship of the public.

12. The above answers given by the writ petitioner as P.W.1 in the civil suit speak for themselves and no further comments, in my view, are necessary. These admissions further bear out that the temple is dedicated for public religious worship and for the benefit of the Hindu community. P.W.1 was the solitary witness to speak to his case and none of the other trustees or other witnesses has chosen to support his claim. D.W.5, G.K.Sundaram, Managing Director of Lakshmi Mills Group, Coimbatore, who contributed major donation, has given evidence also denying the claim of P.W.1, the petitioner herein. It is useful to extract the findings of the learned Judge in paragraph 53 of his judgment:

"Now, the action of the Trustee in filing this suit is nothing but a retrograde step which is likely to hurt the sentiments and feelings of the large number of worshipping public, especially those who have made large donations in cash and kind to this Deity. In other words, this is a luxurious suit launched by the defacto trustee, which is neither beneficial to the public nor to the Trust, of which P.W.1 claimed to be the founder."

Thus, on a deep consideration of law and facts, the learned Judge dismissed the suit.

13. The fourth proceeding is the appeal filed by the writ petitioner in A.S.No.853 of 1981 and C.M.P.No.2812 of 1992. E.J.Bellie, J., on an elaborate consideration of the facts and law, has confirmed the judgment and decree of the Principal Judge, City Civil Court, Madras and dismissed the appeal and C.M.P.No.2812 of 1992 which was filed to amend the cause title.

14. The matter was taken up on further appeal by way of L.P.A.No.115 of 1992, which was dismissed by P.S.Mishra and Padmini Jesudurai, JJ., at the time of admission itself. It is relevant to reproduce the judgment of the Division Bench in this context:

"Heard. The findings with regard to the character of a deity and the temple based on such evidence that was adduced by the parties, in our opinion are unassailable. Faced with this situation, learned counsel for the appellant has argued that taking shelter under the impugned judgment, some of the officers of the Hindu Religious Endowments Department of the State have interfered with their right of administration of the properties of the temple in question. Since there has not been any such controversy either in the suit or before the learned single Judge, who had disposed of the appeal, we do not think it will be possible for the appellant to show anything in this regard at the stage of the appeal invoking Clause 15 of the Letters Patent of this Court. If there is any such right of administration and if there is any interference in the said administration by any of the authorities of the respondent-Endowment Board, it shall be open to the appellant to raise the dispute in accordance with law. Any further dispute, however shall not be allowed with respect to the character of the temple in question. Since we do not find any merit in this appeal, it is dismissed."

Thus, it is seen from the legal proceedings referred to above, that the character of the temple in question has been finally adjudicated upon and decided.

15. The temple in question is admittedly of a recent origin and the office of the trusteeship of the temple cannot be claimed to hereditary. In fact, the petitioner has not claimed the said office to be hereditary. That apart, even assuming that the petitioner is to make a claim in this regard, until the same is finally established in a manner known to law, it cannot be assumed that the temple is under the management of hereditary trustee. The findings rendered by the authorities constituted under the Act, the City Civil Court and this Court go to show that the temple in question had been built by raising funds from the public. Having regard to the above facts, I am of the firm view, that it would be perfectly within the powers of the 1st respondent to appoint an Executive Officer for the temple in question and hence, I reject the contention of the writ petitioner raised on this ground.

16. In fact, the Department has waited patiently for the litigation initiated by the writ petitioner under Sec.63(a) of the Act reading its finality and then only the matter was considered by the Department and the impugned order appointing an Executive Officer came to be passed. In fact, the matter was considered by the Department and it was felt necessary that an Executive Officer should be appointed to the temple in question in the interest of the temple as well as the public. In the impugned order it is stated that since large number of pilgrims used to visit the temple and that there were reasons to believe that the income of the temple from various sources are not properly accounted for and after the disposal of the cases in the Civil Courts, there was an attempt not to account for the income of the temple from various sources, it was felt necessary that the appointment of an Executive Officer was in the interest of the institution as well as the devotees. Therefore, the 1st respondent, by the impugned proceedings, appointed an Executive Officer to the petitioner temple. It is also seen from the records that the petitioner, though undertook to submit the audited accounts by a registered auditor to the Board on 10th April of every year, has miserably failed to comply with the said order of this Court in C.M.P.No.13806 of 1981 in A.S.No.853 of 1981. When once the petitioner has failed to comply with a solemn undertaking given before this Court in A.S.No.853 of 1981, on which ground he was allowed to manage the trust properties, the Department is justified in raising a presumption that the income might be misused for the personal ends of the petitioner and certain other interested persons. In fact, this is one of the reasons which compelled the 1st respondent to appoint an Executive Officer and this reason has also been explicitly stated in paragraph 6(v) and (vi) of the impugned order. Further, Mr.G.Subramaniam, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner, at the time of hearing, produced the accounts books said to have been maintained and audited by the registered auditor, and requested this Court to verify the correctness of the accounts, etc. I refused to look into the same since it has not been submitted to the Board by 10th April of every year. I am of the view, that person like the petitioner, who has violated and disobeyed the orders of this Court, is not entitled to any indulgence at the hands of this Court. The Department, in my view, is right in appointing an Executive Officer to manage the temple in the interest of the temple in question and the public at large, who have contributed sizable amount for the construction of the temple and for its maintenance.

17. Mr.G.Subramaniam, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner, at the time of hearing the writ petition and the writ miscellaneous petitions, while referring to the letter given by the petitioner on 20.7.1992 to the 2nd respondent, submitted that the letter was written by the 2nd respondent himself and the petitioner was forced to sign the same. According to him, in this letter it has been mentioned that the petitioner has commenced to hand over charge of the temple properties to the Executive Officer, that the charge has not been fully handed over and that the completion of handing over charge will be done on 22.7.1992 without any hesitation. Before 22.7.1992, the writ petition was moved in this Court on 21.7.1992 and interim stay was obtained on 21.7.1992 itself. Hence, according to the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner charge was not fully handed over to the 2nd respondent. I am straightaway reject this contention as wholly baseless. This argument has been invented only at the time of hearing. There is absolutely no whisper about this argument in the affidavit filed in support of the main writ petition. The same affidavit has been filed in the stay petition also. Nowhere in the affidavit it is stated that the petitioner was compelled or forced to hand over management and charge of the temple to the 2nd respondent and that the petitioner was threatened and coerced to hand over charge.

18. It is true that the petitioner has signed in English in this letter dated 20.7.1992 written by the 2nd respondent, in English. It is useful to reproduce this letter.

“From Sri Mukkoor Srinivasa Varadachariar, Person in Management,
A/M. Mahalakshmi Temple,
Besant Nagar,
Madras-90

To
The Executive Officer,
A/M. Parthasarathy Temple,
Madras-5.

I am to state that to-day I have commenced to hand over charge of A/M. Mahalakshmi Temple, Besant Nagar, Madras-90 to the Executive Officer of A/M. Parthasarathy Temple, Triplicane. I shall complete the charge on Wednesday the 22nd day of July without any hesitation. This is for your information.
For Sri Mahalakshmi Trust,

(Sd.) M.R.Srinivasa Varadachariar, Founder & Managing Trustee,
20.7.1992.

Witness:

M.S.Srinivasa Raghavan,
20.7.1992.
33, Mahalakshmi Colony,
Besant Nagar,
Madras-90."

This letter has been witnessed by the petitioner's son M.S.Srinivasa Raghavan, residing at No.33, Mahalakshmi Colony, Besant Nagar, Madras-90. He has also put the date as 20.7.1992. The petitioner has only stated in paragraph 7 of the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition that the 2nd respondent armed with the impugned order has come to his temple and making attempt to take over the management ignoring his right in the temple as its founder. In the circumstances, the petitioner has prayed this Court to stay the operation of the impugned order of the 1st respondent in appointing the 2nd respondent as its Executive Officer pending disposal of the writ petition. This Court also, on the basis of the allegation contained in paragraph 7 of the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition, has granted interim stay only for two weeks on 22.7.1992. But the fact remains otherwise.

19. The original letter and the other records pertaining to take over of the temple on 20.7.1992 and 21.7.1992 have been produced before me for perusal. The petitioner having commenced to hand over charge on 20.7.1992 to the 2nd respondent without any protest or demur, has however, filed an affidavit before this Court (sworn to on 21.7.1992 and filed in this Court on the same date) with an entirely different version. Hence, I do not find any merit in the contention of Mr.G.Subramaniam, that the process of handing over was only commenced and not completed. Once possession is handed over voluntarily, the petitioner has no right to be in management of the temple and its properties any further even assuming that the petitioner was a person in management of the temple. Hence, on the facts and circumstances of the case and on a perusal of the records produced before me, I hold that the 2nd respondent has commenced to take charge on 20.7.1992 and the petitioner had voluntarily handed over charge on the same date and the interim order, which was granted only for two weeks and expired by now, cannot continue. Accordingly, I dismiss W.M.P. No.14296 of 1992 and allow W.M.P.No.14925 of 1992.

20. It is also seen from the records produced by the 2nd respondent that he has taken a list of items of properties and has also made arrangements for sale of archana tickets and prasadam tickets and tickets for other ceremonies in the temple. The Hundials were sealed on 3.7.1992 and all the Bhatachariars have given the list of articles entrusted to them in their respective sub-shrines. The 2nd respondent has also made payment to third parties through cheque and the balance amount available in bank deposit is Rs.1,965 as on 24.7.1992, the date of signing the affidavit. The 2nd respondent also reports that the daily collection from the institution is nearly Rs.2,000 which is apart from the collections through Hundials, and on verification of the accounts, it is seen that the petitioner is keeping only a very small sum in the bank account. According to the 1st respondent, the temple is getting a sum of about Rs.2,000 per day as on 24.7.1992 by way of sale of archana and prasadam tickets and after meeting the expenses, a sum of Rs.1,965 was remitted to the bank on 21.7.1992 and that therefore, one can reasonably apprehend that the minimum income of the temple would be about Rs.2 lakhs per month through the collection of hundials, sale of archana tickets and prasadam tickets, etc. The amount outstanding in the bank was also very negligible.

21. Mr.G.Subramaniam, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner has also produced before this Court a true copy of the petition filed by the writ petitioner under Sec.63(b) of the Act before the Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) Department, Madras-34, praying to enquire into the matter and declare that the petitioner is a person entitled to hold office as founder-cum-hereditary trustee of Sri Mahalakshmi Temple, Besant Nagar, Madras-90, controlled by Sri Mahalakshmi Trust, which has been registered under the Societies Registraion Act, within the meaning of Secs.6(11) and 63(b) of the Act, and pass suitable orders. The said petition has been filed on 26.7.1992, i.e., after the judgment of this Court in L.P.A.No.115 of 1992 dated 9.7.1992 and after the admission of the present writ petition and grant of stay by this Court on 22.7.1992. The said petition is still pending. Unless and until the said petition filed under Sec.63(b) of the Act is finally adjudicated upon by the Board, the petitioner cannot raise any claim to be in management of the temple. As stated above, he has failed before all the statutory authorities constituted under the Act and before the City Civil Court and this Court. This Court has categorically held that the institution in question is a religious institution within the meaning of Sec.6(20) of the Act. Hence, the petitioner has absolutely no right to claim that he is entitled to a notice under Sec.45(i) of the Act before the appointment of an Executive Officer.

22. It is also seen from the order impugned in the writ petition that the 1st respondent has specifically stated in that order that the power has been exercised for the better and proper administration of the temple in question, which in my view, is a relevant consideration. In my view, the power under Sec.45(i) of the Act has been exercised by the 1st respondent only in accordance with the provisions of the Act. Since the 1st respondent has exercised his power under Sec.45(i) of the Act only on relevant considerations, I am of the view, that the exercise of such power cannot be challenged by the petitioner as being outside the purview of Sec.45 of the Act. The only circumstance under which the 1st respondent cannot appoint an Executive Officer for a temple is where there is a hereditary trustee, in which case, the 1st respondent has to give notice of the proposed appointment and consider the objections of the hereditary trustee regarding such appointment. In the instant case, the petitioner has miserably failed to prove that he is the hereditary trustee and hence he is entitled to notice preceded by the appointment of the Executive Officer.

23. Strong reliance was placed by Mr.G.Subramaniam, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner on the decision of a Division Bench of this Court reported in Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) Department, Madras v. K. Jothiramalingam, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 341, to show that show cause notice against such appointment is essential under Sec.45 of the Act. That was a case of a hereditary trustee, having been so declared by the judgment of this Court in A.S.No.157 of 1961 dated 27.11.1963. According to the respondent in the above decision (K.Jothiramalingam), he had been in his capacity as such hereditary trustee submitting budgets, dhittam, etc., as contemplated under the provisions of the Act and had been looking after the administration and management of the temple and maintaining its accounts, which has also been duly audited by the appropriate authorities under the Act. While matter stood thus, proceedings were initiated by the Assistant Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. Department, Cuddalore, to associate non-hereditary trustees with the respondent under Sec.49 read with Sec.47(2) of the Act on certain grounds and though the respondent submitted his objections, without affording any opportunity to him, the Assistant Commissioner called for applications for appointment of non-hereditary trustees, which led to the filing of R.P.No.242 of 1974 by the respondent and his obtaining stay of the notification calling for applications for appointment of non-hereditary trustees. Ignoring the order secured by the respondent, the Assistant Commissioner proceeded to appoint two non-hereditary trustees to be associated with the respondent and that led to the filing of another application R.P.No.41 of 1975 before the Commissioner, wherein also the respondent secured an order of stay. Later, the order of appointment of non-hereditary trustees was set aside by the Commissioner on the ground that the respondent was not given adequate opportunity to set out his objections. Despite these proceedings, the Commissioner in the purported exercise of the powers vested in him under Sec.45(1) of the Act, initiated proceedings for the appointment of an Executive Officer on the ground that such appointment will pave the way for the better administration of the temple. The writ petition filed by the respondent to quash the order of the Commissioner was allowed on the ground that no opportunity was given to the respondent. The Department filed writ appeal. The Division Bench held that the Commissioner exercised his power under Sec.45(i) of the Act by straightaway appointing an Executive Officer without issuing notice to the respondent therein and after giving him opportunity to show cause against such appointment. Under those circumstances, the Division Bench held that the order of the Commissioner deserves to be quashed and was rightly quashed by the learned single Judge, and no case for interference with that order was made out and dismissed the writ appeal with costs. In my view, the above decision will be of no assistance to the writ petitioner herein, for, that decision was rendered on the basis that the respondent therein is a hereditary trustee. Admittedly, the respondent therein is a hereditary trustee and the Department proceeded to appoint non-hereditary trustees and Executive Officer without giving notice or opportunity or even holding an enquiry as to the need for the appointment of such an Executive Officer. Hence, the Division Bench was of the view that any appointment of an Executive Officer or a non-hereditary trustee should be preceded by the issue of a notice to the hereditary trustee to show cause why an Executive Officer should not be appointed. They also refer to the decision in Nagarajan v. Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras, (1970) 2 M.L.J. 599: A.I.R. 1971 Mad. 295, which has considered the very question arising in the writ appeal, wherein it has been laid down in no uncertain terms that notice is necessary for a hereditary trustee before the appointment of a non-hereditary trustee under Sec.45 of the Act. Hence, the decision in Commissioner, H.R. & C.E. (Admn.) Department, Madras v. K.Jothiramalingam, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 341, is not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case, which is distinguishable on facts.

24. The next decision relied on by Mr.G. Subramaniam is an unreported judgment of a Division Bench of this Court in W.P.No.5474 of 1982, etc. batch dated 21.6.1983 (K.B.N.Singh, C.J. and S.Padmanabhan, J.). This judgment was cited for the proposition that the trustees who are functioning already should not be displaced during the pendency of the proceedings before the Commissioner. This judgment is not applicable to the present case for more than one reason, viz., (i) The writ petitioner was not appointed as trustee by any one including the Department; (ii) He is only a self-styled trustee; and (iii) The question of allowing the petitioner to function does not arise.

25. Mr.G.Subramaniam next contended that the properties of the temple should be recovered from the petitioner by taking steps under the appropriate provisions of the Act. In support of his contention he cited paragraph 10 in the decision reported in Roopalunga Chettiar v. Deputy Commissioner, H.R. & C.E., Madras, 97 L.W. 424, which is as follows:

"The question then for consideration is what shall be the date from which the non-hereditary trustees appointed under the Act would hold office. In all such cases, there should be a procedure under which the new appointee who is appointed as a trustee of a religious institution acknowledges in writing that he has assumed charge of his office. In cases where persons appointed by H.R. & C.E. authorities themselves, are holding the office, it is expected that they should also acknowledge in writing that they had handed over charge and the newly appointed trustees should equally acknowledge in writing that they have taken charge of their office. There may however be cases where non-hereditary trustees are appointed and the hereditary trustees who are already holding the office may not be willing to hand over charge to the newly appointed trustees. In such situations, it is expected that the newly appointed trustees should acknowledge in writing to the authorities concerned that they have assumed charge of their office and thereafter taking appropriate proceedings as provided in the Act for the recovery of the possession of the properties and records of the concerned institution. It is not clear from the counter affidavit whether such a procedure is being followed or not followed by the H.R. & C.E. Department. In all the cases before us it is not disputed that a fit person appointed by the Department itself was holding the office by the time when the petitioners were appointed as non-hereditary trustees. In such circumstances, there must be something in writing to show that the fit person who is in charge of the affairs of the religious institution handed over charge of his office to the newly appointed trustee and that the newly appointed trustee took over charge from the fit person. The date of such handing over charge and taking over charge would be the date from which normally the newly appointed trustee would commence to hold office and he shall be eligible to hold office under Sec.47 for a period of three years from the date of assumption of office. We make it clear that in future as and when new trustees are appointed the authorities should have it recorded in writing that the newly appointed trustees have taken over charge from the persons already holding the office and the latter had handed over the charge. In cases where hereditary trustees in whose place or along with him the newly appointed trustees are appointed refuse to hand over charge, the newly appointed trustees should record that they have assumed office notwithstanding the refusal of the existing trustees to hand over charge and that they would be taking appropriate steps to recover possession of the properties of the institution. This is implicit in Sec.47(3) itself where it provides that a trustee shall hold office for a term of three years."

This does not arise in the instant case since the petitioner herein has handed over charge without any protest. In view of this, the stay sought for, which had been granted on 22.7.1992, had become infructuous. The petitioner has suppressed the fact that the charge has been handed over by him and taken by the 2nd respondent on 20.7.1992. The 2nd respondent is functioning as Executive Officer with effect from 20.7.1992.

26. For the foregoing reasons, I dismiss the writ petition. However, there will be no order as to costs.

B.S. ---- Petition dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Ratnam and Somasundaram, JJ.

C.M.P.No.14049 of 1990 in App.No.730 of 1987
14th October, 1992.

Sri-la-Sri Sivasubramanyananda Swami ...Petitioner v.

Sri-la-Sri Arunachalasamy Chidambaram and another ...Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (V of 1908), Sec.151 and O.39, Rule 2-A - Exercise of inherent powers under Sec.151 - Scope - Civil Courts if can issue directions to police to extend their aid in the execution of decrees and orders or to implement orders of injunction passed by civil courts.

Sec.151 of the Civil Procedure Code confers power to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of process of court. Every court is constituted for the purpose of doing justice according to law and must be deemed to possess as a necessary corollary and as inherent in its very constitution, all such powers as may be necessary to do the right and to undo the wrong in the course of the administration of justice.

[Para 21]

There is no provision in the Code providing for the implementation of the order of temporary injunction or decree for perpetual injunction granted by the courts. Therefore, when a party has obtained an order of temporary injunction from a court under O.39, Rule 1 of the Code and the other party against whom the order of injunction is passed disobeys the same, the aggrieved party can certainly approach the court invoking the power of the Court under Sec.151 and pray for police aid for the enforcement of the order of temporary injunction.

[Para 22]

In view of the above position of law it has to be held that in appropriate cases, directions under Sec.151 of the Civil Procedure Code can be issued by the civil courts to the police authorities to extend their aid and assistance in the execution of decrees and orders or to render aid to aggrieved parties for the due and proper implementation of injunction orders granted by civil courts.

[Paras 23 and 30]

G.Krishnan v. Smt.Thulasi Ammal, (1991)1 L.W. 513, overruled.

View of Shanmukham, J. in C.M.P.No.352 of 1986 in A.S.No.297 of 1980, Approved.

Cases referred to:

Manohar Lal Chopra v. Rai Bahadur Rao Raja Seth Mirala, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 527. [Paras 6, 10]

Padam Sen v. The State of Bihar, (1961)1 S.C.R. 884. [Paras 7, 21]

M/s.Jaipur Mineral Development Syndicate, Jaipur. v. The Commissioner of Income-tax, New Delhi, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1348. [Para 8]

Century Flour Mills Ltd. v. Suppiah, (1975)2 M.L.J. 54. (F.B.) [Paras 9, 22]

Vidya Charan Shukla v. Tamil Nadu Olympic Association, A.I.R. 1991 Mad. 323. [Para 10]

Bhagat Singh Bugga v. Devan Jagbir Sawhney, A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 670. [Para 10]

Hari Nandan v. S.N.Pandita, A.I.R. 1975 All. 48. [Para 10]

Magna v. Rustom, A.I.R. 1963 Raj. 3. [Para 10]

Surjit Pal v. Prabin Kumar Sin, A.I.R. 1986 Cal. 220. [Para 10]

K.G.Gopal v. Lillybai by Power of Attorney Agent, A.C.Baktham, (1991)1 L.W. 559. [Para 11]

Kudiyar v. B.Ranganathan, (1991)1 L.W. 504. [Para 12]

Rayapati Audemma v. Pothineni Narasimhan, A.I.R.

1971 A.P. 53. [Paras 15, 27]
Subol Chandra Dutta v. Chimai Charan Nandy,
A.I.R. 1980 Cal. 126. [Para 16]
Saudamini Roy Chowdhury v. Satyendranath Sekar, 85 C.W.N. 958. [Para 16]
Sujit Pal v. Prahir Kumar Sen, A.I.R. 1986 Cal. 220.
 [Para 17]
Mohammed v. Mohammed Haji, 1986 K.L.T. 134.
 [Para 18]
Jaishi v. Salig Ram, A.I.R. 1981 N.O.C. 88. [Para
 19]
Subal Kumar Dey v. Purna Chandra Giri, A.I.R.
1989 Ori. 214. [Para 20]
N.S.Mills v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 1152.
 [Para 21]
Manoharlal v. Seth Hiralal, (1962)1 S.C.R. (Supp.)
450. [Para 21]
Sundaram Chetti v. The Queen, I.L.R. 6 Mad. 203.
 [Para 24, 27]
M.Viswanatha Rao v. Emperor, 38 L.W. 406. [Para 24, 27]
K.Murugappa v. Kuppuswami, (1948)2 M.L.J. 458.
 [Para 24]
G.Krishnan v. Smt.Thulasi Anmal, (1991)1 L.W.
513. [Para 25, 29]
R. v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, (1968)1
All E.R. 763. [Para 25]
Varadachariyar v. The Commissioner of Police,
Egmore, Madras, (1969)2 M.L.J. 1. [Para 25]
Viswanatha Rao, In re., I.L.R. 51 Mad. 1006; A.I.R.
1928 Mad. 1049. [Para 29]
Goswami Gordhan Lalji v. Goswami Maksudan
Ballabh, I.L.R. 40 All. 648. [Para 29]
Narasimhappa v. Hanumanthappa, (1976)2
Karn.L.J. 33 S.N.C. 40. [Para 29]
 Petition praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the affidavit filed therewith the High Court will be pleased to pass an order directing the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Thiruthuraipoondi, to afford police protection in order to preserve the movable properties situated in Sri Arunachala Gnanadesika Swamigal Vedantha Sravana Mutt, Panchanadikulam in order to prevent the stelthy cutting of casurina trees over the property forming subject matter of O.S.No.36 of 1984 on the file of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Nagapattinam, pending A.No.730 of 1987 preferred against the decree of the court of the Subordinate Judge Nagapattinam, dated 8.7.1987 passed in O.S.No.36 of 1984.
G.Subramaniam for B.Kumar, for Appellant.

A.Ilango, for Respondent.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Somasundaram, J.:- This C.M.P. has been referred to the Bench in as much as the view taken by Srinivasan, J., in G.Krishnan v. Tmt. Thulasi Anmal, (1991)1 L.W. 513, with regard to the scope of the inherent powers of the court under Sec.151, C.P.C.
 (hereinafter called the Code), is in conflict with the view taken by Shanmukham, J. in C.M.P.No.352 of 1986 in A.S.No.297 of 1980.

2. The petitioner filed a suit O.S.No.36 of 1984 on the file of Sub-Court, Nagapattinam for declaration that he is the Madathipathi and Adheenakartha of Shri Arunachala Gnanadesika Swamigal Vedanta Sravana Mutt, Panchanadikulam and for a consequential permanent injunction. After trial, the trial court came to the conclusion that the petitioner is entitled to the relief of declaration and permanent injunction and decreed the suit O.S.No.36 of 1984. As against the judgment and decree in O.S.No.36 of 1984, the respondents have preferred, A.S.No.730 of 1987 before this Court and the same is pending. In the said appeal the petitioner filed the present C.M.P. requesting this Court to direct the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Thiruthuraipoondi to afford police protection in order to preserve the movable properties situated in Sri Arunachala Gnanadesika Swamigal Vedanta Sravana Mutt, Panchanadikulam and to prevent the cutting of casurina trees in the property forming subject matter of O.S.No.36 of 1984 on the file of Sub-Court, Nagapattinam pending disposal of A.S.No.730 of 1987.

3. When the C.M.P. came up for hearing before Srinivasan, J., the learned Judge on 13.12.1990, passed the order of reference in the following terms:

"This is an application under Sec.151, C.P.C., for directing the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Thiruthuraipoondi to afford police protection in order to preserve the movable properties of the Mutt and trees situated on the land. In my judgment dated 12.12.1990 in C.R.P.No.2853 of 1990, I had taken a view that civil courts cannot issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the orders of civil court or implement the orders of injunction passed by civil courts. In that judgment, I have made a reference to the judgment of Shanmukham, J. in C.M.P.No.352 of 1986 in A.S.No.297 of 1980 wherein he had held that such orders could be passed. In my judgment in the civil revision petition, I had stated that the case before Shanmukham, J., arose in this Court in an appeal and the case in the civil revision petition arose in the lower court. Hence, I thought that there was no necessity to refer the matter to a Bench, though I had expressed a different view from that of Shanmukham, J., 2. But in this case the question arises directly for consideration. If I take the same view as I had taken in C.R.P.No.2853 of 1990, it will be in conflict with the view taken by Shanmukham, J. In the circumstances, I think it is better to refer the matter to a Division Bench for an authoritative pronouncement.

3. My order in C.R.P.No.2853 of 1990 dated 12.12.1990 may be treated as part of this order for referring the matter to a Bench. Hence the office is directed to place the papers before my Lord the Chief Justice for constituting a Bench to decide this question which arose for consideration in this case."

In these circumstances, the matter is referred to us and the short but important question we have to examine here is this.

"Whether the civil courts can issue directions to the Police Officials in order to execute the order of the civil courts or to implement the order of injunction passed by the civil courts."

4. Mr.G.Subramaniam, the learned counsel for the petitioner contended that there being no provision in the Code in this behalf, the civil court has inherent powers under Sec.151 of the Code to issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the orders of the civil courts or to implement the order of injunction passed by the civil court. On the other hand, Mr.Ilango, the learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the civil court has no jurisdiction to grant police aid particularly, with regard to the implementation of the orders of injunction granted by the civil courts. The learned counsel for the respondents further contended that O.39, Rule 2-A of the Code provides for the disobedience or breach of injunction and O.21, Rule 32 of the Code provides for execution of the decree for injunction; therefore, by invoking the inherent powers under Sec.151, the court cannot issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the decree of injunction or to implement the order of temporary injunction granted by them.

5. To appreciate the contention of the learned counsel for the parties, it is necessary to refer to Sec.151 of the Code which reads thus:

"151. Saving of inherent powers of court: Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the inherent power of the court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the court."

In the first place, we have to examine the back drop of law as laid down by the decisions of courts with regard to the scope of the inherent powers of the court under Sec.151 of the Code for the purpose of deciding the question referred to us.

6. In Manohar Lal Chopra v. Rai Bahadur Rao Raja Seth Mirala, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 527, the Apex Court of the land, while dealing with the powers of the civil court under Sec.151 of the Code has observed as follows:

"The section itself says that nothing in the Code shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the inherent power of the court to make orders necessary for the ends of justice. In the face of such a clear statement, it is not possible to hold that the provisions of the Code control the inherent power by limiting it or otherwise affecting it. The inherent power has not been conferred upon the court: it is a power inherent in the Court by virtue of its duty to do justice between the parties before it. Further, when the Code itself recognises the existence of the inherent power of the Court, there is no question of implying any powers outside the limits of the Code."

7. In Padam Sen v. The State of Bihar, (1961)1 S.C.R. 884, the question arose about the powers of the court to issue commission in the exercise of its powers under Sec.151 of the Code in circumstances not covered by Sec.75 and O.26 of the Code. The Supreme Court while holding that the court can issue a Commission in such circumstances observed thus:

"The inherent powers of the court are in Addition to the powers specifically conferred on the court by the Code. They are complementary to those powers and therefore it must be held that the court is free to exercise them for the purpose mentioned in Sec.151 of the Code when the exercise of those powers is not in any way in conflict with what has been expressly provided in the code or against the intentions of the Legislature.”

8. In M/s. Jaipur Mineral Development Syndicate, Jaipur v. The Commissioner of Income-tax, New Delhi, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1348, the Supreme Court dealt with the inherent powers of the High Court as follows:

“The courts have power, in the absence of any express or implied prohibition, to pass an order as may be necessary for the ends of Justice or to prevent the abuse of the process of the court. To hold otherwise would result in quite a number of cases in gross miscarriage of justice.”

9. In Century Flour Mills Ltd. v. Suppiah, (1975)2 M.L.J. 54, a Full Bench of this Court took the view that where in violation of a stay order or injunction against a party, something has been done in disobedience, it is the duty of the court as a matter of judicial policy to undo the wrong done in disobedience of the Court's order. The Full Bench, while holding that such power is available under Sec.151 of the Code observed thus:

“In our opinion, the inherent powers of this Court under Sec.151 of the Code of Civil Procedure are wide and are not subject to any limitation. Where in violation of a stay order or injunction against a party, something has been done in disobedience, it will be the duty of the court as a policy to set the wrong right and not allow the perpetuation of the wrong doing. In our view, the inherent power will not only be available in such a case, but it is bound to be exercised in that manner in the interest of justice. Even apart from Sec.151, we should, observe that, as a matter of judicial policy, the court should guard against itself being satisfied in circumstances like this by holding that it is powerless to undo a wrong done in disobedience of the court's orders. But in this case it is not necessary to go to that extent as we hold that the power is available under Sec.151 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

9. Mr. Panchapakasa Ayyar for the respondents, however, contends that our view as indicated above, would prevail only as between the parties in Court, but when third parties have acquired rights by reason of something happening, though it is in contravention or in disobedience of the orders of Court, the legal position would be different. He says that, since the resolutions had been passed at the meeting on 14th September, 1974, which had vested rights in third parties, it would be beyond the power of this Court to make an order, which will have the effect of affecting or interfering with or setting aside such rights in third parties. In our opinion, the question of third parties rights being affected does not arise in the context. We are concerned with a meeting which had been prohibited and not with what happened at the meeting. If the meeting held was in violation of the Court's order and the parties affected approach this Court and ask for relief on the ground that what happened at the meeting would be destructive of their stand point, this Court on a consideration of the entire circumstances and facts will have to put back the parties in the position where they stood prior to the holding of the meeting. That is not to say that, in doing so, the court interferes with third parties' rights. All that this Court would do in such circumstances is that, since the meeting was prohibited, but all the same it was held, in violation of the order of this Court, it would refuse to recognise the holding of the meeting as a legal one.”

10. In Vidya Charan Shukla v. Tamil Nadu Olympic Association, A.I.R. 1991 Mad. 323, another Full Bench of this Court while holding that in that case of violation disobedience of temporary injunction besides the remedy provided under O.39, Rule 2-A of the Code, the court can also exercise the inherent powers to undo the wrong, has observed as follows:

“.....We have already noticed that there are provisions in O.39, Rule 2-A of the Code of Civil Procedure as a remedy for the violation of temporary or interim injunction. Besides what is contemplated under O.39, Rule 2-A of the Code of Civil Procedure, Courts have found another source of power in Sec.151 of the Code of Civil Procedure and if that is also ignored for a moment, this Court's power as Court of Record and a court of Special Jurisdiction is preserved under Arts.215 and 225 of the Constitution of India. There have been cases before several courts in which when faced with situations that some order or direction was violated and the violation resulted in grave and serious injury, the courts took the view that the Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive. There are cases which say that if remedy to do justice is not provided for in the Code or any other Act, the High Court must not fold its hands and allow injustice to be done.

In Bhagat Singh Dugga v. Devan Jagbir, A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 670, a learned Judge of the Calcutta High Court observed that the law cannot make express provisions against all inconveniences and that the court had, therefore, in many cases where the circumstances warranted it, and the necessities of the case required it, acted upon the assumption of the possession of an inherent power to act ex debito justiae and to do that real and substantial justice for the administration of which alone it exists.

In Manohar Lal Chopra v. Rai Bahadur Rao Raja Seth Mirala, A.I.R. 1962 S.C. 527, the Supreme Court approved the above statement of law.

"In Hari Nandan v. S.N. Pandita, A.I.R. 1975 All. 48, the Allahabad High Court has taken the same view, namely that when a party has been dispossessed in disobedience of the order of injunction, the court can, in exercise of its inherent power, pass such order for ends of justice as would undo the wrong done to the aggrieved party. A similar view has been expressed in Magna v. Rustom, A.I.R. 1963 Raj 3. Kerr on Injunctions, 6th Edition, page 41 has said:

"But where the injury is of so serious or material a character that the restoring things to their former condition is the only remedy which will meet the requirements of the case, or the defendant has been guilty of sharp practices or unfair conduct, or has shown a desire to steal a march upon the plaintiff, or to evade the jurisdiction of the Court, the injunction will issue, notwithstanding the amount of inconvenience to the other party, and though the expense thereby caused to him will be out of proportion to any advantage the plaintiff may derive from it."

In one of the recent judgments in Surjit Pal v. Prabin Kumar Sin, A.I.R. 1986 Cal. 220, a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court has reiterated this view and stated that "no technicality can prevent the court from doing justice in exercise of its inherent power. O.39, Rule 2-A lays down a punitive measure for the purpose of compelling a party to comply with the order of injunction. The process as contemplated by the said provision may or may not be ultimately effective but, in any event, the procedure laid down in O.38, Rule 2-A is incapable of granting an immediate relief to a party who has been forcibly disposed in violation of an order of injunction. In such a case, the court is not powerless to grant relief to the aggrieved party in exercise of its inherent power."

11. In K.G. Gopal and others v. Lillybai by power of Attoreey Agent, A.C. Baktham, (1991) 1 L.W. 559, one of us (Ratnam, J.,) while upholding the invocation of the powers of the Court under Sec.151 of the Code to resort to the law enforcement machinery to see that its order is obeyed has held as follows:

"By ordering the police help to the respondent, the court below had merely taken the follow-up steps to implement its earlier order of injunction. When the court finds that a litigant, who had secured an order from court is not in a position to have its full benefit owing either to obstruction or non-co-operation of the other side, it is always open to the court to resort to the law enforcement machinery to see that its order is obeyed and there is nothing illegal or irregular in that."

12. A similar view is expressed by one of us (Ratnam, J.,) in Kuriyan and five others v. Ranganathan, (1991) 1 L.W. 604, in the following terms:

"By ordering police help the court below had merely taken the follow up steps to implement its earlier order of injunction. The objection that a direction of that nature cannot be issued to the police authorities, who are not parties to the proceedings, raised by the petitioners has no substance. When the court finds that a litigant, who had obtained an order from its is not in a position to have its full benefit owing to either the obstruction or non-cooperation of the other party to the proceedings, it is always open to the court to resort to the law enforcement machinery to see that its order is obeyed and I do not see anything illegal or irregular about it. The civil revision petition is dismissed with costs."

13. In C.M.P.No.352 of 1986 in A.S.No.297 of 1980, Shanmukham, J. passed an order on 22.1.1986 granting the prayer made by the petitioner for a direction to the Superintendent of Police, Vellore and Sub-Inspector of Police, Virinjipuram, Vellore Taluk, North Arcot District to give police aid and protection to the petitioner to enforce and implement the injunction order passed by this Court on 30.10.1980 in C.M.P.No.10914 of 1980 restraining the respondents from interfering with the petitioner's possession and cultivation of suit properties. The learned Judge relied on the Judgment of the Andhra Pradesh High Court in Rayapati Audemma's case. The learned Judge observed as follows:

"The power enshrined in Sec.151, Code of Civil Procedure, are rather unlimited. At any rate, the court shall not abdicate its rights to see that its orders are obeyed strictly according to their terms. As rightly pointed out by the Andhra Pradesh High Court, this Court in exercise of the powers under Sec.151, is competent to pass any orders so that its orders are duly complied with and obeyed. In this case, the petitioner apprehended that there will be an interference by the respondents with reference to the petitioner's enjoyment of the properties notwithstanding the order of injunction made by this Court. According to the petitioner, such interference will prevent the petitioner from enjoying the properties. In that event, the order passed by this Court will be of no assistance to the petitioner. In other words, what the petitioner apprehends is, a breach of peace if he were to enjoy the properties in respect of which an injunction has been granted. In the above circumstances, it is no answer to say that the petitioner shall wait till the order is disobeyed and then resort to the remedy prescribed under O.39, Rule 2-A, Civil Procedure Code. What he really wants by means of this application is that there should not be any breach of peace because, in his view, the respondents would high-handedly interfere with his enjoyment of the properties notwithstanding the order of injunction."

14. Now, we have to examine the views expressed by other High Courts, with regard to the inherent powers of the court under Sec.151 of the Code to order police aid for effective implementation of the order of injunction. The High Courts of Andhra Pradesh, Calcutta, Himachal Pradesh, Kerala and Orissa have taken view that directions can be issued under Sec.151 of the Code of the Police officials by the civil court to protect the possession of one party against the another private party against whom an order of injunction had been made by the civil court. The contrary view is taken by Allahabad High Court and Karnataka High Court.

15. In Rayapati Audemma v. Pothineni Narasimhan, A.I.R. 1971 A.P. 53, a Division Bench of the Andhra Pradesh High Court, while holding that the Civil Court can give appropriate directions to the police authorities under Sec.151 of the Code to render aid to the aggrieved parties for the due and proper implementation of the orders of the courts, held as follows:

"It has to be noticed that O.39, Rule 2(3), Civil Procedure Code provides only for punishment by attachment of the property or by detention in civil prison of the person who committed breach. But it does not further provide for implementation of the order of injunction itself. O.39, Rule 2(3) cannot be said to be an express provision with respect to implementation of the order of injunction, but is only a provision which provides penalty for disobedience of the order. In such a case there being no other express provision in the code for enforcement of the order, it is not only proper but also necessary that the courts should render all aid to the aggrieved party to derive full benefits of the order. Though the order of injunction under O.38, Civil Procedure Code is only interim in nature, still it clothes the person who obtained the order with certain rights and he is entitled to enforce the aforesaid right against the party who is bound by the order. No doubt in such a case, the aggrieved party himself could approach the police authorities to prevent the obstruction to the enforcement of the order or to exercise of the right which he derives under the order of court. But we do not see why when the same person brings to the notice of the court that enforcement of the order is sought to be prevented or obstructed, the court should not exercise its inherent power under Sec.151, Civil Procedure Code and direct the police authorities to render all aid to the aggrieved party in the implementation of the court's order.

In our opinion the exercise of such power is necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process and the civil court has ample jurisdiction to pass such order under Sec.151, Civil Procedure Code."

16. The Calcutta High Court in Subol Chandra Dutta and others v. Chimai Charan Nandy and others, A.I.R. 1980 Cal. 126, held that there being no express provision in the Code for enforcement of the order of injunction, it was not only proper but also necessary the courts should render all aid to the aggrieved party to derive full benefit of the order. A similar view was taken by the Calcutta High Court in Saidamini Roy Chowdhury v. Sayendranath Sekar, 85 C.W.N. 958.

17. In Sujit Pal v. Prahir Kumar Sen and others, A.I.R. 1986 Cal. 220, a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court held that the police could be directed to restore possession to the plaintiff when the defendants forcibly dispossessed the plaintiff in utter violation of an order of interim injunction passed by the court. The Bench referred to the observations of the Supreme Court in Manoharlal v. Seth Hiralal, (1962)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 450, as regards the inherent powers of court and observed as follows:

"Thus it is apparent from the said observation of the Supreme Court that no technicality can prevent the court from doing justice in exercise of its inherent power. O.39, Rule 2-A lays down a punitive measure for the purpose of compelling a party to comply with the order of injunction. The process as contemplated by the said provision may or may not be ultimately effective but, in any event, the procedure laid down in O.39, Rule 2-A is incapable of granting an immediate relief to a party who has been forcibly dispossessed in violation of an order of injunction. We do not think that in such a case the court is powerless to grant to the aggrieved party in exercise of its inherent power. The very object for which O.39, Rule 2-A has been enacted will be fulfilled by the grant of a temporary mandatory injunction and restoration of possession of the aggrieved party. The inherent power of the court as recognised in Sec.151 of the Code is in addition to the power conferred on the court under the provisions of the Code. All that the court is concerned is to prevent abuse of the process of court and to do justice by immediately intervening under circumstances which required such intervention by the court."

18. The Kerala High Court in Mohammed v. Mohammed Haji, 1986 K.L.T. 134, held that though action can be taken by the High Court for violation of the injunction under O.39, Rule 2-A of the court, it is open to the court to implement its order by exercising its inherent powers under Sec.151 of the Code and give directions to the police authorities to render aid to the aggrieved parties with regard to the implementation of the orders of the court or the exercise of the rights created under orders of the court.

19. The Himachal Pradesh High Court in Jaishi v. Salig Ram, A.I.R. 1981 N.O.C. 88, (Himachal Pradesh), took a similar view that the civil court in exercise of its inherent powers under Sec.151 can issue directions to the police authorities for enforcement of the order of injunction.

20. In Subal Kumar Dey v. Purna Chandra Giri, A.I.R. 1989 Ori. 214, the Orissa High Court taking a similar view has observed as follows:

"Inherent power is wide in its nature to protect the interest of the parties in a given case. It is not a power to be exercised for implementation of an order of the court. Where violation of the order would be so prejudicial to a party that remedies or penalty for violation of the order available under the statute would not be sufficient, inherent power may be exercised. Therefore, a Court is to be careful before taking external help of police for implementation of the order."

21. The position of law which emerges from the principles laid down by the decisions referred to above is this; Sec.151 of the Civil Procedure Code confers power to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of process of court. Every court is constituted for the purpose of doing justice according to law and must be deemed to possess, as a necessary corollary, and as inherent in its very constitution, all such powers as may be necessary to do the right and to undo the wrong in the course of the administration of justice. As pointed out by the Apex Court of the land in N.S.Mills v. Union of India, A.I.R. 1976 S.C. 1152, the inherent power of the court has its roots in necessity and its breath is co-extensive with the necessity. Sec.151 does not confer any powers, but only indicates that there is a power to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice and to prevent the abuse of process of court. As observed by the Supreme Court in Manoharlal v. Seth Hiralal, (1962)1 S.C.R. (Supp.) 450, the inherent power has not been conferred on the court; it is a power inherent in the court by virtue of its duty to do justice between the parties before it. As pointed out by the Supreme Court in Padam Sen v. The State of Bihar, (1961) 1 S.C.R. 884, the inherent powers of the court are in addition to the powers specifically conferred on the court by the Code. They are complementary to those powers and therefore, it must be held that the court is free to exercise them for the purpose mentioned in Sec.151 of the Code, when the exercise of those powers is not in any way in conflict with what has been expressly provided in the Code or against the intentions of the Legislature. The language of Sec.151 of the Code is wide enough to clothe the civil courts with inherent powers to do the right and undo the wrong in the course of administration of justice.

22. We must bear in mind that when an order of temporary injunction is granted by the court under O.39, Rule 1 of the Code or when a decree for permanent injunction is passed by the civil court, it involves the following three stages:

The first stage is the issue of an order of temporary injunction or passing of a decree for permanent injunction. When a petition under O.39, Rule 1 of the Code is filed by a party, the court being satisfied that the conditions prescribed under O.39, Rule 1 of the Code are satisfied, may issue an order of temporary injunction in favour of the party, who has applied for the same. Similarly, the court after full trial of a suit and upon the merits of the case, may pass a decree for permanent injunction in favour of a party. There is specific provision in the Code namely O.39, Rule 1 dealing with the grant of the order of temporary injunction. Sec.38 of the Specific Relief Act deals with the circumstances under which a decree for perpetual injunction can be passed by the courts.

The second stage is the implementation of the order of temporary injunction or decree granting perpetual injunction. There is no specific provision under the Code dealing with the implementation of the order of temporary injunction or a decree for perpetual injunction.

The third stage is the punishment for disobedience of the order of injunction. O.39, Rule 2-A of the Code deals with the consequences of disobedience or breach of injunction or other orders made under O.39, Rule 1 of the Code. O.21, Rule 32 of the Code says that where a party against whom a decree for injunction has been passed, has had an opportunity of obeying the decree but has willfully failed to obey it, the decree for injunction may be enforced by his detention in civil prison or by the attachment of his property or by both. Thus, the Code contains specific provision with regard to the grant of an order of temporary injunction and for punishing the party who disobeys the order of temporary injunction and the decree for perpetual injunction. However, there is ~~no~~ provision in the Code providing for the implementation of the order of temporary injunction or decree for perpetual injunction granted by the courts. When there is no specific provision of law which is sufficient to implement the order of temporary injunction or the decree for perpetual injunction granted by the court, we do not see why the provisions of Sec.151 of the Code cannot be invoked for the said purpose to render justice or to redress the wrong, because, the courts should not only have the power to pass an order, but also should have the power to implement the said order. Therefore, when a party has obtained an order of temporary injunction from a court under O.39, Rule 1 of the Code and the other party against whom the order of injunction is passed disobeys the same, the aggrieved party can certainly approach the court invoking the power of the court under Sec.151 and pray for police aid for the enforcement of the order of temporary injunction. When it is brought to the notice of the court that the enforcement of the order of temporary injunction is sought to be prevented or obstructed, the court in exercise of the inherent powers under Sec.151, can direct the police authorities to render all aid to the aggrieved party in the enforcement of the order of the injunction granted by the court in order to render complete justice. It must be remembered, by ordering police help to the party who has obtained an order of temporary injunction, the court merely takes the follow-up steps to implement its earlier order of injunction. In appropriate cases, where the court finds that a party who had secured an order of injunction from the court is not in a position to have its full benefit owing either to obstruction or non-co-operation of the other side, it is always open to the court to direct the police authorities to see that its order is obeyed. As observed by the Full Bench of this Court in Century Flour Mills Ltd. v. Suppiah, (1975) 2 M.L.J. 54, when there is a violation of an order of injunction granted by the civil court, or when something has been done in disobedience of such an order of injunction, it is the duty of the court as a matter of judicial Policy to undo the wrong done in disobedience of the court's order and the power to enforce the order of injunction by ordering police aid is available under Sec.151 of the Code.

23. In view of the above position of law, it has to be held that in appropriate cases, directions under Sec.151 of the Civil Procedure Code can be issued by the civil courts to the police authorities to extend their aid and assistance in the execution of decrees and orders or to render aid to aggrieved parties for the due and proper implementation of the order of temporary injunction or a decree for permanent injunction granted by civil courts.

24. Then we have to examine the contrary view taken by Srinivasan, J., in G.Krishnan v. Smt. Thulasi Ammal, (1991)1 L.W. 513. In the above case, the petitioner filed an injunction petition before the lower court for restraining the respondent from interfering with his possession and enjoyment of the suit properties, and it was ordered after contest. The petitioner filed another petition with a prayer that the District Munsif should order police protection to him with appropriate direction to see that the order of injunction passed was not violated. The lower court dismissed the application taking the view that the order of injunction ceased to have effect on the filing of the appeal by the respondent in the District Court. C.R.P.No.2853 of 1990 was preferred against that order. The learned Judge took the view that the civil court cannot issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the orders of the civil courts or to implement the orders of injunction passed by the civil courts and consequently held that the petitioner's application filed before the trial court with a prayer that the trial court should order police protection is not maintainable and on that ground, dismissed the C.R.P. The learned Judge gives the following three reasons for holding that civil courts cannot issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the orders of the civil court or to implement the orders of injunction passed by the civil court:

(a) The order or judgment up-holding the claim of a party to be in possession of a particular property and granting injunction restraining the opposite party, from interfering with such possession, is only a judgment in personam and not a judgment in rem. It is binding only on the parties thereto. Hence in a suit for injunction against a particular party, the court is not entitled to pass any order or issue any direction against the police officer who is a stranger to the suit and who has nothing to do with the parties to the suit.

(b) The civil court cannot fetter the discretion of the police officials or the Magistrates in such matters. If it is only a question of protecting the possession of a party concerned, it is for him to apply to the police officials for necessary safeguard and if they fail to do their duties, he shall approach the High Court with a petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India.

(c) In view of the fundamental principles set out in Sundaram Chetti v. The Queen, I.L.R. 6 Mad. 203, and in M.Viswanatha Rao v. Emperor, 28 L.W. 406 and the reasoning of Yahya Ali, J. in K.Murugappa v. Kuppuswami, (1948)2 M.L.J. 458, the inherent powers of the court preserved under Sec.151 of the Code will not enable the courts to issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the orders of civil courts or implement the order of injunction passed by the civil courts.

25. With due respect to the learned Judge, we are unable to agree with the reasons given by him for coming to the above conclusion. The learned Judge in para-8 of the order in G.Krishnan v. Smt. Thulasi Ammal, (1991)1 L.W. 513, has observed as follows:

"It should not be forgotten that in a writ petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, the Police Officials are impleaded as parties and directions are sought against them. The basic requirements of a writ of mandamus are that there should be public duty on the part of the Officials and there is failure to perform the duty in spite of their being called upon to do so. Both the requirements will be absent if in a civil proceeding, to which the police officials are not parties, a direction is sought from the court to the police officials without any approach to them in the first instance by the party who seeks relief."

26. We must remember that the police authorities owe a legal duty to the public to enforce law. The above position is clear from the decision of the court of appeal reported in R. v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, (1968)1 All E.R. 763, where

Lord Denning, M.R. observed at page 769 as follows:

"I hold it to be the duty of the Commissioner of Police, as it is of every chief constable to enforce the law of the land..... but in all these things he is not the servant of anyone, save of the law itself. The responsibility for law enforcement lies on him. He is answerable to the law and to the law alone."

27. In Varadachariyar v. The Commissioner of Police, (1969) 2 M.L.J. 1, Kailasam, J., as he then was, referred to the above view of Lord Denning, M.R. in R. v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, (1968) 1 All E.R. 763, observed as follows:

"The plea of the Commissioner that it is within him discretion to take action or not has no basis in law. It is his duty to enforce the law of the land. As ruled by Edmund Davies, L.J., this plea should never have been advanced."

28. When the police authorities owe a legal duty to enforce law and when the public are entitled to seek directions under Art. 226 of the Constitution for discharge of such duties by the police Authorities, as pointed out by the learned Judge himself, we see no reason to hold that the civil courts cannot in an appropriate case issue directions under Sec. 151 of the Code for the proper implementation of the order of injunction granted by the court. In view of the above position, we are unable to share the view of Srinivasan, J. that a direction to the police authorities cannot be issued under Sec. 151 of the Code to enforce the order of temporary injunction the proceedings where an order of temporary injunction was passed.

29. Secondly, the learned Judge has taken the view that the party who has obtained an order of injunction from a civil court can himself approach the police authorities directly for necessary safeguards for the purpose of enforcing the orders of injunction obtained by him. When a party himself can approach the police authorities directly for necessary safeguards for the purpose of enforcing the orders of injunction obtained by him, we do not see any reason why the court should not exercise its inherent powers under Sec. 151 of the Code and direct the police authorities to implement the order of injunction passed by it, when such party who has obtained the order of injunction seeks the aid of the court for issue of necessary direction to the police authorities for the proper implementation of the order of injunction. The view of ours derive support from the decision in Rayapati Audemma v. Pothineni Narasimhan, A.I.R. 1971 A.P. 53.

30. In Sundaram Chetti v. The Queen, I.L.R. 6 Mad. 203 and in M. Viswanatha Rao v. Emperor, 28 L.W. 406, the Full Benches of this Court while dealing with the powers of the police and Magistrate to enforce law and order, have taken the view that in the event of a conflict between private right declared by the Civil Court and public order, the police authorities and the Magistrates can take such steps for the preservation of public order uninfluenced by the civil court's decree or order. The Full Bench in M. Viswanatha Rao v. Emperor, 28 L.W. 406, observed that where there was a conflict between public interest and private right, the former must prevail. The ratio of the above Full Bench decisions has no bearing to the question which we are called upon to decide namely whether the civil court can issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the orders of civil court or implement the orders of injunction passed by the civil court.

31. The learned Judge, in para 40 of the judgment in G. Krishnan v. Smt. Thulasi Ammal, (1991) 1 L.W. 513, concludes by observing as follows:

"If the reasoning of Yahya Ali, J., in K. Murugappa v. Kuppuswami, (1948) 2 M.L.J. 458, which was based on the judgment of the Full Bench, is applied, there is no escape from the conclusion that the petitioner's application in the court below was not maintainable."

32. With due respect to the learned Judge, the ratio of the decision in K. Murugappa v. Kuppuswami, (1948) 2 M.L.J. 458, is wrongly applied to the facts of the case dealt with by him. In the above case, Yahya Ali, J., was disposing of a criminal revision filed against the order passed by the Magistrate under Sec. 144, CrI.P.C., prohibiting the performance of certain festival in respect of which the revision petitioners had obtained a decree for injunction. Yahya Ali, J., observed in that context that in exercise of their power under Sec. 144, CrI.P.C. the police shall have due regard to the orders of the civil courts, but, the paramount consideration should be that of maintenance of law and order. It is in that context, Yahya Ali, J., refers to the decision in M. Viswanatha Rao, In re., I.L.R. 51 Mad. 1006; A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1049, and observed as follows:

"It was then conceded that it is not the duty of the authorities who are responsible for the preservation of the public peace to enforce a civil court decree in all circumstances and at all costs."

33. It was also pointed out by Yahya Ali, J., that preservation of public peace is the function of the police authorities and the Magistracy and in the performance of that function it may be necessary for them, to over ride temporarily private rights and that where there is a conflict between the public interest and a private right the former must prevail. We must remember that in the present case and in the case dealt with by Srinivasan, J., we are not concerned with the question what the police authorities and the Magistrates should do in the event of conflict between public interest and private rights, but we are concerned with the question whether the civil courts can issue directions to the police officials in order to execute the order of civil courts or implement the orders of injunction passed by the courts. Therefore, we are unable to agree with the view taken by Srinivasan, J. in G. Krishnan v. Smt. Thulasi Ammal, (1991) 1 L.W. 513. For the same reasons, we do not agree with the view expressed by the Allahabad High Court in the case reported in Goswami Gordhan Lalji v. Goswami Maksudan Ballabh, I.L.R. 40 All. 648 and by the Karnataka High Court in Narasimhappa v. Hanumanthappa, (1976) 2 Kar.L.J. 33 S.N.C.40.

34. In the light of the above discussion of ours, the question referred is answered as follows:

"In appropriate cases, the civil court has the power and is indeed under a duty, to issue suitable directions to police officials, as servants of law, to extend their aid and assistance in the execution of decrees and orders of the civil courts or in implementing an order of injunction passed by it."

35. We accordingly approve of the view taken by Shanmukham, J. in the order dated 22.1.1986 in C.M.P.No.352 of 1986 in A.S.No.297 of 1980 and further hold that the decision in G. Krishnan v. Smt. Thulasi Ammal, (1991) 1 L.W. 513, has not been correctly decided. Since the entire matter has been referred to the Bench for its opinion we are disposed to do away with the formality of again placing the proceedings for further orders before the learned single Judge. The petition is, therefore, allowed as prayed for. There will be no order as to costs.

V.K.

Petition allowed.

[Full Bench]

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present: Ratnam, Srinivasan and Somasundaram, JJ.

W.A.No.73 of 1992

31st July, 1992

R.Paramasivam

...Appellant

v.

The Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation Limited and others

...Respondents.

(A) Practice and Procedure - Reference to a Full Bench - When can be made - Writ Petition dismissed in limine - L.P. Appeal admitted - Notice ordered to Respondents - Matter referred to Full Bench without giving opportunity to respondents to state their case - If justified - No pre-existing conflict of opinions - Order not stating that even if there was no conflict of opinions, the question arising in the case was of such importance that it should be decided by a Full Bench - No formulation of any question of law - Reference to Full Bench, held improper.

(B) State Financial Corporations Act (LXIII of 1951), Sec.29 - Agreement between Corporation and debtor concern - Terms of Agreement authorising seizure of hypothecated assets without notice - Non-issue of notice whether opposed to principles of natural justice.

(C) State Financial Corporations Act (LXIII of 1951), Sec.48 - Legal Manual containing instructions to Officers of Corporation - Binding nature of.

(D) State Financial Corporations Act (LXIII of 1951), Sec.2(c)(iv) - 'Industrial concern' - Meaning of - Lorry or motor vehicle, whether an 'Industrial concern'.

Held:- The writ petition was dismissed in limine without notice to the Respondents and there was no opportunity to the Respondents to place the facts before the Court. When the Letters Patent appeal was admitted and notice was directed for the Respondents in the normal course, the Court should have waited for the service of notice and given an opportunity to the Respondents to state their case before deciding the scope of the lis or formulating the questions which arise for consideration in the appeal. Without doing so, the Division Bench has chosen to make a reference straightway to a Full Bench observing that an authoritative judgment should be given in this appeal. A reference to a Full Bench can be made if there is a conflict of opinions already between the judgments of this Court or if a question of law of general importance arises which requires to be decided by a Bench comprising more than two Judges. Here, there was no pre-existing conflict of opinions. The observations contained in the judgment in W.P.No.12959 of 1989 made by a Single Judge and referred to in the order of reference were obiter dicta and unnecessary to the judgment in that case. In the said case, there was a seizure of R.C. book of a hypothecated vehicle by a Tahsildar of the Corporation which was held by the learned Single Judge to be not an action falling under Sec.29 of the State Financial Corporations Act. The learned Judge said clearly that he was bound by the pronouncement of the Bench in W.A.No.530 of 1990 (K.Vidhya Kumari v. Managing Director, The Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation and another). There was no conflict between the judgment of the Division Bench in W.A.No.530 of 1990 and any other judgment of this Court. A reference was made to the judgment of the Orissa High Court in M/s.Kharavela Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Orissa State Financial Corporation, A.I.R. 1985 Ori. 153, in the Order made in W.P.No.12959 of 1989. If the Division Bench in the present case had opined that the view taken by this Court in W.A.No.530 of 1990 was in conflict with the view taken by the Orissa High Court and that the Division Bench preferred to agree with the view of the Orissa High Court, it should have stated so in the order of reference. No such statement is found either in the Order of reference or in the Order of the Single Judge in W.P.No.12959 of 1989. In the absence of an expression of opinion which would run counter to the decision taken in W.A.No.530 of 1990 by a Division Bench of this Court which is binding on this Court until it is overruled by a larger Bench, no question of reference to a Full Bench will arise. It is also not stated in the Order of reference that even if there is no conflict of opinions, the question which arises for consideration in the present case is one of such great importance as to be decided by a Bench comprising of more than two Judges. The Division Bench has neither decided the facts of the case nor formulated any question of law. Without considering the question whether the finding of the learned single judge is correct or not, it is difficult to understand how a reference to a Full Bench can be made by a Division Bench. The proper course for the Division Bench would have been to wait for the respondents to appear before court on receipt of notice and after ascertaining their stand, to decide whether the decision given by the learned single Judge was correct if they had differed from the view taken by the learned single Judge, then only the Division Bench could have made a reference to a larger Bench. [Paras 12, 13 and 14] Clause 10 of the hypothecation deed provides expressly for seizure of the hypothecated assets in the event of default in the payment of amounts due to the Corporation. The Corporation is certainly entitled to exercise its powers and enforce the terms of the contract. There is nothing in Sec.29 of the State Financial Corporations Act which would prevent the Corporation from enforcing the terms of the contract by seizure of the hypothecated assets, without notice of seizure. [Paras 17 and 18] Sec.29 of the Act enables the financial Corporation to take over the management or possession or both of the industrial concern which is under a liability to the Corporation under an agreement and which makes a default in repayment of loan or advance or any instalment thereof or in meeting its obligations in relation to any guarantee given to the Corporation. The section also provides that the Corporation has a right to transfer by way of lease or sale and realise the property mortgaged, hypothecated or assigned to it. Sec.30 of the Act provides that notwithstanding anything in the agreement to the contrary, the Financial Corporation may, by notice in writing require any industrial concern to which it has granted any loan or advance to discharge forthwith in full its liabilities to the Financial Corporation. Under Sec.31 of the Act, the Corporation may apply to the District Judge within the limits of whose jurisdiction the industrial concern carries on the whole or a substantial part of its business for one or more reliefs set out in the section. Such a right to apply to the District Judge is without prejudice to the provisions of Sec.29 of the Act and Sec.69 of the Transfer of Property Act. The right may be exercised where an industrial concern in breach of any agreement makes any default in repayment of any loan or advance or instalment thereof or otherwise fails to comply with the terms of the agreement or where the financial Corporation requires an industrial concern to make immediate repayment of any loan or advance under Sec.30 of the Act and the latter fails to make such repayments. In all, Sec.31 of the Act shows that if a notice is issued under Sec.30 of the Act and not complied with, the Corporation is empowered to exercise (1) its rights under Sec.29 of the Act (2) its rights under Sec.69 of the Transfer of Property Act and (3) its rights under Sec.31 of the Act. The Corporation may choose any one of them. [Para 20]

It is seen from the facts of the present case that a notice of foreclosure has been issued under Sec.30 of the Act and the impugned auction has been held only after sufficient time has elapsed after the receipt of such notice by the appellant. Hence, there is no illegality whatsoever in the auction held by the respondents. There was no necessity for a notice of seizure before the lorry was seized. But, actually there was a notice calling upon the appellant to pay the amount due as on 1.9.1991. In spite of the notice to pay, the appellant did not move his little finger. Naturally, the Corporation was obliged to take action in order to protect the interests of the Corporation by seizing the lorry. There was no violation of any principle of natural justice in the seizure of the lorry, particularly when the Corporation was only enforcing the terms of the contract and exercising its power under Clause 10 of the hypothecation deed.

[Paras 21 and 22]

It cannot be stated as an absolute proportion of law that in every case an action taken by the Corporation under Sec.29 of the Act without notice to the borrower is contrary to the principles of natural justice and vitiated thereby. It has to be decided in each case by the Court whether the particular action taken by the Corporation required the issue of a prior notice to the borrower. Such decision will naturally depend on the exigencies of the situation and the nature of the hypothecated assets. It is futile to contend that though Sec.29 of the Act does not provide for issue of notice before taking action thereunder, principles of natural justice require such a notice to be issued in every case before any kind of action is taken. The fact that the legislature has made a provision for notice in Sec.30 but has omitted to do so in Sec.29 is not without significance.

[Paras 23 and 25]

The Legal Manual containing instructions to the Officers of the Corporation is not admittedly a regulation framed under Sec.48 of the Act by the Board. It was not published in any official gazette. It is conceded that they are not regulations as contemplated under Sec.48 of the Act. But, however, it is contended that the instructions contained in the Manual confer a right on the borrowers and they are enforceable at the instance of the borrowers. The Court does not agree. The instructions are merely guidelines to be generally followed by the officers in order to avoid any legal tangles. Moreover, the paragraphs in the Legal Manual which are relied on by learned counsel relate only to taking over of industrial units and taking possession of immovable properties do not apply to seizure of vehicles or the sale thereof.

[Para 27]

The expression used by Sec.2(c)(iv) of the Act is 'concern'. The Act does not define that expression. One of the meanings of 'concern' is a 'business'. A lorry or motor vehicle is not a business though it may be a business asset. Hence, the contention that a lorry is an 'industrial concern' within the meaning of the Act cannot be accepted.

[Para 28]

Cases referred to:

M/s.Kharavela Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Orissa State Financial Corporation, A.I.R. 1985 Ori. 153. [Paras 13, 16]

Alka Ceramics v. Gujarat State Financial Corporation, Ahmedabad, A.I.R. 1990 Guj. 105. [Para 24]

Union of India v. Tulsiram Patel, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 1416. [Para 25]

Mahesh Chandra v. Regional Manager, U.P. Financial Corporation, Jt. (1992) 2 S.C. 326. [Para 26]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Raju, J., dated 7.1.1992 and made in the exercise of the Special Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in W.P.No.85 of 1992 presented under Art.226 of the Constitution of India to issue a Writ of Mandamus directing respondents 1 and 2 to accept the outstanding amount due from the petitioner i.e., Rs.2,15,140-91 and release the Ashok Layland Lorry bearing Registration No.TCY 5425 in favour of the petitioner by declaring the auction conducted by the second respondent as null and void and illegal. R.Singaravelan, for Appellants.

R.Vidudhalai, for Respondent.

The Judgment of the Full Bench was delivered by Srinivasan, J.:- Though in our view the reference to the Full Bench is unnecessary in this case, we have proceeded to hear the appeal, as the entire case is placed before us. We have also taken into account the fact that the parties would be put to unnecessary hardship, if we return the reference.

2. The appellant borrowed a sum of Rs.2,10,000 from the first respondent Corporation for the purchase of a lorry to be plied as a public carrier with a National Permit. The loan was sanctioned subject to the terms and conditions specified and the appellant accepted the same. The entire loan was disbursed in three instalments as follows:

1. 5.3.1987	Rs.1,71,500.00
2. 13.3.1987	Rs. 28,564.25
3. 24.4.1987	Rs. 9,935.75

The amount was to be repaid in 56 monthly instalments commencing after three months from the date of first disbursement. A Schedule of repayment was stipulated in the sanction order as follows:

First 10 monthly instalments of Rs.4600	Rs. 46,000
Next 10 monthly instalments of Rs.4300	43,000
Next 10 monthly instalments of Rs.4200	42,000
Next 10 monthly instalments of Rs.4100	41,000
Next 10 monthly instalments of Rs.3200	32,000
Next 6 monthly instalments of Rs.1000	6,000

	2,10,000

It was agreed that interest at the rate of 14.5% per annum with a rebate of 2% per annum for prompt payment, should be paid along with the principal. The repayment commenced from 1.7.1987 and was to end on 1.3.1992. The vehicle which was purchased, bearing registration number TCY 5425 was given as security under a hypothecation bond dated 23.2.1987.

3. The appellant admittedly did not adhere to the schedule of repayment. He was making payments irregularly. The lowest payment was Rs.413.90 and the highest payment was Rs.20,000. He was not making payments every month. He chose to pay as and when he pleased. Thus, the appellant had been committing default from the beginning. But the Corporation had not taken any steps to enforce the repayment schedule. By notice dated 29.8.1991, the Corporation informed the appellant that a sum of Rs.1,93,601.81 was due towards principal and a sum of Rs.25,756.25 was due towards interest as on 20.8.1991 and he was required to pay the same. The notice also called upon him to intimate the Corporation within a fortnight of the receipt thereof, if there was any discrepancy in the figures mentioned as per his records, failing which it would be construed that the liability to the Corporation as stated in the notice had been accepted by him. There was no response and admittedly the appellant did not make any payment after that notice. The Corporation seized the lorry on 1.10.1991 by exercising its powers under Clause 10 of the hypothecation agreement, which empowered the Corporation to take possession of the hypothecated assets in default of payment of moneys and/or instalments due to the Corporation. Therefore, the appellant made a payment of Rs.15,000 on 4.10.1991. According to the Corporation, he promised to pay the entire amount due within one month therefrom. The appellant gives a different version to which we will make a reference a little later. The fact remains that no amount was paid thereafter by the appellant to the Corporation. A notice was issued on 14.11.1991 by the Corporation styling itself as foreclosure notice. The appellant was called upon to pay the entire amount due under the transaction within 15 days from the receipt thereof. The appellant was informed that if there was a failure on his part to clear the dues, the Corporation would, without any further intimation or reference to him, proceed to enforce the rights reserved under the hypothecation deed including the right to exercise the power of sale etc., under the provisions of the State Financial Corporations Act. The last paragraph of the notice read thus:

"Please note that we will be constrained to take action under Sec.29 and/or 32-G of the S.F.C.'s Act without prejudice to our other rights of recovery of your failure to repay the amount as indicated above."

4. The appellant claims to have sent a letter by registered post on 26.11.1991 praying for grant of one month's time to pay the balance and close the account. According to the Corporation it did not receive such a letter. The Corporation made a newspaper publication on 6.12.1991 that the lorry would be sold in public auction on 12.12.1991. The auction was held on 12.12.1991 and the third respondent herein was the highest bidder for Rs.2,58,500. His bid was accepted by the Corporation and the sale was confirmed in his favour as he had complied with the terms of auction and paid the entire amount.

5. The writ petition, out of which this appeal arises, was presented in this Court by the appellant on 6.1.1992. In the affidavit filed in support of the petition, the appellant admitted that he had not been paying the instalments within the stipulated time limits. According to him, the lorry was seized on 3.10.1991 without any prior notice of seizure or a memo calling upon him to repay the amount due within a stipulated time limited. He proceeded to state in the affidavit as follows:

"However, immediately after seizure, I had gone to the office of the second respondent and met him personally on 4.10.1991. I had explained my inconvenience and grievances in detail and requested him to release the vehicle on payment of Rs.15,000. He had agreed to release the vehicle on payment of the said amount and I paid the amount on 5.10.1991. After the payment of Rs.15,000 made by me, the second respondent refused to release the vehicle and asked me to pay a further sum of Rs.50,000 for the release of the vehicle granting me 3 weeks time. Accordingly, I had gone to the office of the second respondent with a sum of Rs.50,000 and met him on 17.11.1991. But, he refused to accept the said amount and asked me to bring a further sum of Rs.35,000. Thus he asked me to pay a total sum of Rs.85,000 for the release of the vehicle. I requested him to accept the amount of Rs.50,000 at first. But, for no reasons stated, he had refused to accept it. Hence, I turned back vexatiously. While I was making arrangement for collecting a further sum of Rs.35,000 a notice dated 14.11.1991 in Ref.No.TIIC/TRY/Bo/Legal/91-92 was served on me by registered post with acknowledgment due foreclosing the loan and calling upon me to pay to the first respondent within 15 days from the date of receipt of the said notice, a sum of Rs.2,12,337-16 being the entire principal amount of the loan and the interest etc., thereon upto 13.11.1991 and other charges and dues amounting to Rs.200 aggregating to Rs.2,12,537.16 with further interest and additional interest at the prevailing rates till the date of payment and other charges and dues. In the said notice it had been stated that a sum of Rs.1,90,601.81 being the instalments of principal and a sum of Rs.18,735.35 being the interest upto 13.11.1991 were over due besides commitment charges, sundry dues, expenses and other charges.

I humbly submit that the above said notice was served on me on 19.11.1991 and immediately after receiving the same I had forwarded a letter dated 26.11.1991 by registered post with acknowledgment due to the second respondent herein agreeing to repay the entire amount due to be paid to the first respondent within 30 days as 15 days time granted by the second respondent was not sufficient. I have not yet received the acknowledgment from the second respondent. After forwarding the above dated letter, I had been making arrangements for the entire payment due to the first respondent Corporation."

6. He claimed to have gone to the office of the second respondent on 16.12.1991 to make the entire payment due and get the vehicle released, where he was informed that the vehicle was sold in public auction on 12.12.1991. According to him, he requested the second respondent to cancel the auction accepting the entire amount from him, but the latter refused to do so. It was stated in the affidavit that he went again on 20.12.1991 and 23.12.1991 to meet the second respondent. According to him, on 23.12.1991, the second respondent refused to accept his offer of payment and directed the third respondent to pay the balance due as per the auction terms.

7. A reference was made thereafter to the petition given by the appellant to the General Manager (followup) of the first respondent Corporation on 31.12.1991 requesting him to accept the balance of money and return the lorry to him. According to him, his offer was not accepted and hence he moved this Court with the writ petition under Art.226 of the Constitution of India. The prayer in the writ petition was to issue a writ of mandamus directing respondents 1 and 2 to accept the outstanding amount due from the petitioner and release the lorry by declaring the auction conducted by the second respondent as null and void and illegal.

8. Before proceeding further, it is necessary to point out that the averments made by the appellant in the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition were not true as is evident from the records placed before us. The passage in the affidavit extracted above is one relating to the happenings between 4.10.1991 and 17.11.1991. According to the aforesaid portion, when a sum of Rs.15,000 was paid by him after the seizure of the lorry, he was directed to pay a sum of Rs.50,000 in the first instance and then a further sum of Rs.35,000 when he took the sum of Rs.50,000 to be paid to the second respondent. He had given a different story in his letter dated 3.12.1991 written to the General Manager (follow up) of the first respondent. A copy of the letter has been produced by the appellant himself and included in his typed set. According to the said letter, the payments made by him before 3.10.1991 were sufficient only to meet the interest. After the seizure of lorry on 3.10.1991, he met the Branch Manager, who wanted him to pay a sum of Rs.25,000 and he paid the same. He was directed to pay a further sum of Rs.75,000 and before he could make the money ready, the lorry was sold for a low price and that the Branch Manager was not willing to give the lorry in spite of his offer to pay the entire balance. The letter bears the date 31.12.1991 and the affidavit in the writ petition bears the date 6.1.1992. Within an interval of a week, the appellant has chosen to give two different versions contradictory to each other. Hence, the appellant is not entitled to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of this Court under Art.226 of the Constitution of India, as he has failed to disclose the facts truthfully and correctly.

9. The writ petition was dismissed in limine by a learned single Judge of this Court on 7.9.1992. The learned Judge held that the foreclosure notice dated 14.11.1991 issued by the Corporation was sufficient in law for the purpose of Sec.29 of the State Financial Corporations Act, 1951 and rejected the contention of the appellant that the principles of natural justice had been violated. It was also held by the learned Judge that after the third respondent had purchased the vehicle in the auction, it was not for this Court to interfere with the exercise of rights of parties flowing from the bilateral contracts, merely because one of the parties happens to be a State Undertaking and the remedy of the appellant was only to vindicate his rights, if so advised, before some other forum in accordance with law. Obviously, the learned Judge meant that the appellant had to approach only the civil Court, if he had any right to be vindicated.

10. Aggrieved by the dismissal of the writ petition, the appellant preferred this appeal. When it came for admission, a Division Bench of this Court admitted the same and ordered notice to the respondents. But, at the same time, the Division Bench passed an order referring the appeal to a larger Bench and directed the records to be placed before the Hon'ble the Chief Justice for posting the case before a Full Bench. The order made by the Division Bench reads as follows:

"Sitting alone to dispose of W.P.No.12959 of 1989, R.Kailasanathan v. The Managing Director, Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation Ltd., Madras-14 and two others, one of us observed with reference to Sec.29 of the State Financial Corporation Act as follows: "Whether action has been taken under Sec.29 of the Act or not however is a different question. But without giving any formal notice to the loanee in default and thus without complying with the requirements of principles of natural justice, a contention may naturally arise, whether the Corporation infringed any legal right of the petitioner or not. This question however has been answered by a Division Bench of this Court in W.A.No.520 of 1990 (judgment dated 11.6.1990. (K.Vidhya Kumari v. Managing Director, The Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation)) saying that the very terms of the borrowing impelled the borrower to make payment and it will not be proper to insist that there should be a formal notice before action is taken. I am however bound by the said pronouncement of the Bench, but, feel like observing that it is one thing to say that the terms of the borrowing contemplate action in the event of default under Sec.29 of the Act, but it will be against the rules of a fair play, if it is always assumed that the corporation committed no wrong even if it ignored the defence of the borrower and decided to take action under Sec.29 of the Act. Proper procedure to be adopted for the purpose of realisation of its claims from the borrower would be to first give a notice and if default is unexplainable take action under Sec.29. The case in hand is one in which such a plea may arise. Parties are at dispute as to whether there has been any default in the payment of the instalments or not. However to assume that Corporation is right and the borrower is wrong in asserting that there has been a default or there has been no default? On a notice being given to the petitioner informing him that he had fallen in default and that corporation intended to proceed against him under Sec.29 of the Act, the petitioner would have brought to the notice of the competent authorities in the corporation that there was no deliberate default and that the Financial Corporation would not be justified in taking action against the petitioner in accordance with Sec.29 of the Act. While some Courts in India have taken the view that Sec.29 excludes the application of the principles of natural justice, some courts have taken the view that Sec.29 does not exclude the application of principles of natural justice (see M/s.Kharavela Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Orissa State Financial Corporation, A.I.R. 1985 Ori. 153). In view of the conflict arising on account of the Bench decision of this Court, I would have decided to refer the case to a Division Bench, had I been satisfied that the Corporation's action fails under Sec.29 of the Act.....".

The instant appeal is one, in our opinion, in which this Court should give an authoritative judgment. Accordingly, we refer the appeal to a larger Bench..."

11. Frankly speaking, we are unable to appreciate the course followed by the Division Bench. The writ petition was dismissed in limine without notice to the respondents and there was no opportunity to the respondents to place the facts before the Court. When the appeal was admitted and notice was directed for the respondents, in the normal course, the court should have waited for the service of notice and given an opportunity to the respondents to state their case before deciding the scope of the lis or formulating the questions which arise for consideration in the appeal. Without doing so, the Division Bench has chosen to make a reference straightaway to a Full Bench observing that an authoritative judgment should be given in this appeal. A reference to a Full Bench can be made if there is a conflict of opinions already between the judgments of this Court or if a question of law of general importance arises, which requires to be decided by a Bench comprising more than two Judges.

12. Here, there was no pre-existing conflict of opinions. The observations contained in the judgment in W.P.No.12959 of 1989 made by a single Judge and referred to in the order of reference were obiter dicta and unnecessary to the judgment in that case, there was a seizure of R.C. Book of a hypothecated vehicle by a Tahsildar of the Corporation, which was held by the learned Single Judge to be not an action falling under Sec.29 of the State Financial Corporations Act. The learned Judge said clearly that he was bound by the pronouncement of the Bench in W.A.No.530 of 1990 (K.Vidhya Kumari v. Managing Director, The Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation and another). He proceeded to dispose of the writ petition on the footing that Sec.29 of the said Act was not applicable to the action taken by the Tahsildar of the Corporation and the same was without jurisdiction. Consequently, he allowed the writ petition and directed the return of the R.C. book to the writ petitioner therein without delay. There was an appeal against the said order in W.A.No.104 of 1991. A Division Bench, one of the members of which was a party to the earlier judgment in W.A.No.530 of 1990, dismissed the appeal on 19.3.1991 without admitting it, holding that there was no dispute before them, that there was no sanction in law for the seizure of the R.C. book of the vehicle. As the proposition of law laid down by the learned single Judge that the seizure of R.C. book of a vehicle did not fall under Sec.29 of the Act, was not challenged before the Bench, the latter dismissed the appeal after recording the fact that the direction given by the learned single Judge to return the book had been complied with by the appellants before them.

13. Thus, there was no conflict between the judgment of the Division Bench in W.A.No.530 of 1990 and any other judgment of this Court. A reference was made to the judgment of the Orissa High Court in M/s.Kharavela Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Orissa State Financial Corporation, A.I.R. 1985, Ori. 153, in the order made in W.P.No.12959 of 1989. If the Division Bench in the present case had opined that the view taken by this Court in W.A.No.530 of 1990 K.Vidhya Kumari, Proprietrix, M/s.K.R.Engineering v. The Managing Director, The Tamil Nadu Industrial Investment Corporation Ltd., Madras-14 and another was in conflict with the view taken by the Orissa High Court and that the Division Bench preferred to agree with the view of the Orissa High Court, it should have stated so in the order of reference. We do not find any such statement is found either in the order of reference or in the order of the single Judge in W.P.No.12959 of 1989. In the absence of an expression of opinion which would run counter to the decision taken in W.A.No.530 of 1990 by a Division Bench of this Court, which is binding on this Court, until it is overruled by a larger Bench, no question of reference to a Full Bench will arise.

14. It is also not stated in the Order of reference that even if there is no conflict of opinions, the question which arises for consideration in the present case is one of such great importance as to be decided by a Bench comprising of more than two Judges. The Division Bench has neither decided the facts of the case, nor formulated any question of law. It is seen from the facts that a notice had been admittedly issued on 14.11.1991 to the appellant calling upon him to pay the entire amount due within 15 days therefrom and informing him in unmistakable terms that on his failure to do so, action will be taken under Secs.29 and 32-G of the State Financial Corporations Act without prejudice to the other rights of recovery of the Corporation. The learned single Judge, who has dismissed the writ petition in limine, has given a clear finding that the said notice dated 14.11.1991 satisfies the requirements of the provisions of the Act. Without considering the question whether the finding of the learned single judge is correct or not, we are at a loss to know how a reference to a Full Bench can be made by a Division Bench. The proper course for the Division Bench would have been to wait for the respondents to appear before court on receipt of notice and after ascertaining their stand, to decide whether the notice dated 14.11.1991 satisfies the requirement of the Act and if they had differed from the view taken by the learned single Judge, then only the Division Bench could have made a reference to a larger Bench.

15. However, as stated earlier, we were not inclined to return the reference as such a course would only delay the disposal of the matter and cause hardship to the parties. Thus, as the entire appeal has been preferred to us by the Hon'ble the Chief Justice we have heard counsel on both sides fully on the merits of the appeal.

16. The main contention urged by learned counsel for the appellant is that the principles of natural justice had been violated and before any action under Sec.29 of the State Financial Corporation Act, a notice should be given to the borrower as to the proposed action and adequate opportunity should be given to him to make his representations. Reliance is placed on the judgment of the Orissa High Court in M/s.Kharavela Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Orissa State Financial Corporation, A.I.R. 1985 Ori. 153, for the proposition that Sec.29 of the Act does not exclude the application of the principles of natural justice and unless the said principles are complied with in a particular case, the action taken by the Corporation is null and void. According to him, the seizure of the vehicle in this case was without any notice and it was, therefore, illegal. It is argued that as the seizure was illegal, the auction sale of the vehicle is null and void and the respondents are bound to hand over the vehicle to the appellant after accepting the entire amount due. It is also submitted that the instructions contained in the Legal Manual issued by the Corporation have not been followed in the present case and, therefore, the auction held by the respondents is vitiated. It is further submitted that the appellant has been repeatedly making attempts to pay the amounts due, after the seizure of the vehicle and the respondents had high-handedly refused to accept the same and proceeded with the auction sale and confirmation of the same.

17. We have already referred to the facts chronologically and also pointed out that the version given by the appellant in the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition is not true. We have referred to the notice dated 29.8.1991 informing the appellant the amount due as on 20.8.1991 and calling on him to pay the arrears as well as the instalments due on 1.9.1991. The appellant was also told by the notice that if he disputed the figures mentioned therein on the basis of his records, he should intimate the Corporation within a fortnight of the receipt thereof. In spite of the receipt of such notice, the appellant did not take steps to make any payment. That is an admitted fact. It is only thereafter, the respondents seized the vehicle on 1.10.1991. While in the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition the appellant has stated that the vehicle was seized on 3.10.1991, in a letter dated 18.2.1992 written by him to the Motor Vehicles authority, he has given the date as 2.10.1991. A copy of that letter is included in the typed set by the appellant himself. That letter is written after the admission of the writ appeal. There is no explanation for the discrepancy in the dates given by him. However, it does not matter whether the vehicle was seized on 1.10.1991 or 2.10.1991 or 3.10.1991. The grievance of the appellant is that the vehicle was seized without a notice of seizure. As rightly pointed out by learned counsel for the respondents, if a notice of seizure had been given, the vehicle would have disappeared from the normal area of operation. The appellant would have taken it beyond the reach of the respondents, anywhere in the country as he is holding a national permit. There is no substance in the contention that the seizure is illegal in the absence of notice of seizure. Clause 10 of the hypothecation deed provides expressly for seizure of the hypothecated assets in the event of default in the payment of amounts due to the Corporation. The Corporation is certainly entitled to exercise its powers and enforce the terms of the contract.

18. There is nothing in Sec.29 of the State Financial Corporations Act which would prevent the Corporation from enforcing the terms of the contract by seizure of the hypothecated assets, without notice of seizure.

19. It should be remembered at this stage that one of the objects of the State Financial Corporations Act is to enable financial institutions to recover the money invested by an advancement of loans as speedily as possible. Before the Act was passed, financial institutions were finding it difficult to freely invest their money in industrial concerns, as they were required to adopt lengthy and cumbersome procedure of sale through Courts in cases of defaults by the borrowers. Thus, the funds of the financial institutions were getting locked up for a long time and were not available to as many industrial concerns and as quickly as possible. For the purpose of quick industrial progress, it was felt necessary that the flow of credit remained smooth, unimpaired and quick. It was for that reason, the Parliament enacted that State Financial Corporations Act and incorporated Secs.29 to 31 conferring certain rights on the Corporation. The scheme of the Act shows that the Parliament wanted special financial institutions to be established for giving financial accommodations to industrial concerns and at the same time confer on them special rights for recovery of their dues in case of defaults by the borrowers. Such recovery is made possible even without an adjudication by judicial authorities. Sec.29 of the Act confers particular rights to take over the management or possession or both of the industrial concern and to realise the property pledged, mortgaged, hypothecated or assigned by transfer either by lease or sale.

20. In our view, Secs.29 to 31 of the Act should be read together. Sec.29 thereof enables the financial Corporation to take over the management or possession or both of the industrial concern, which is under a liability to the Corporation under an agreement and which makes a default in repayment of loan or advance or any instalment thereof or in meeting its obligations in relation to any guarantee given to the Corporation. The section also provides that the Corporation has a right to transfer by way of lease or sale and realise the property pledged, mortgaged, hypothecated or assigned to it. Sec.30 of the Act provides that notwithstanding anything in the agreement to the contrary, the Financial Corporation may, by notice in writing, require any industrial concern to which it has granted any loan or advance to discharge forthwith in full its liabilities to the Financial Corporation. The contingencies in which such notice may be issued are set out in clauses (a) to (f). Suffice it to refer to clauses (b) and (f) thereof. Clause (b) reads,

"if the industrial concern has failed to comply with the terms of its contract with the Financial Corporation in the matter of the loan or advance?"

Clause (f) reads,

"if for any reason it is necessary to protect the interests of the Financial Corporation."

Under Sec.31 of the Act, the Corporation may apply to the District Judge within the limits of whose jurisdiction the industrial concern carries on the whole or a substantial part of its business for one or more reliefs set out in the section. Such a right to apply to the District Judge is without prejudice to the provisions of Sec.29 of the Act and Sec.69 of the Transfer of Property Act. The right may be exercised where an industrial concern in breach of any agreement makes any default in repayment of any loan or advance or instalment thereof or otherwise fails to comply with the terms of the agreement or where the Financial Corporation requires an industrial concern to make immediate repayment of any loan or advance under Sec.30 of the Act and the latter fails to make such repayments. In all, Sec.31 of the Act shows that if a notice is issued under Sec.30 of the Act and not complied with, the Corporation is empowered to exercise (1) its rights under Sec.29 of the Act (2) its rights under Sec.69 of the Transfer of Property Act and (3) its rights under Sec.31 of the Act. The Corporation may choose any one of them.

21. It is seen from the facts of the present case that a notice of foreclosure has been issued under Sec.30 of the Act and the impugned auction has been held only after sufficient time has elapsed after the receipt of such notice by the appellant. The notice was admittedly received by the appellant on 19.11.1991. The auction sale was announced and advertised by publication in newspapers on 6.12.1991. The auction was fixed to take place on 12.12.1991. The appellant had 23 days after the receipt of the foreclosure notice, to pay the amount and stop the auction. Even according to him, he wanted only a month's time for payment of the entire amount and he wrote a letter praying for grant of such time on 26.11.1991. If he had made an attempt to pay the money or a substantial part thereof before 12.12.1991, the Corporation would certainly have accepted the same and stopped the auction. Even after the publication of the notice of public auction, the appellant did not take any step to pay the amount due. Hence, there is no illegality whatever in the auction held by the respondents on 12.12.1991.

22. As pointed out already, there was no necessity for a notice of seizure before the lorry was seized. But, factually there was a notice calling upon the appellant to pay the amount due as on 1.9.1991. That notice was dated 29.8.1991. In spite of the notice to pay, the appellant did not move his little finger. Naturally, the Corporation was obliged to take action in order to protect the interests of the Corporation by seizing the lorry. There was no violation of any principle of natural justice in the seizure of the lorry, particularly when the Corporation was only enforcing the terms of the contract and exercising its power under Clause 10 of the hypothecation deed.

23. The judgment of the Orissa High Court cited by the appellant's counsel does not lay down any absolute proposition of law as contended by him. The facts in that case were somewhat peculiar. A notice was given by the Financial Corporation to the industries as to the default position and its decision to take over possession on failure of the industries to pay the instalments. Subsequently, the industries made some payments and the earlier order to take over possession was not given effect to. Again another order for taking possession of the industrial was passed, without giving any notice, though substantial payments had been made by the industries. In those circumstances, the Division Bench held that the Corporation had failed in its duty to give reasonable notice to the industries that it was going to take over the concerns and a minimum opportunity to the concerns to put forth their case before the Corporation ought to have been given. It was held that the earlier order of the Corporation complied with the principles of natural justice, but the subsequent order failed to give any opportunity whatsoever and therefore, the action taken by the Corporation was struck down. However, the Bench took care to observe that in a given case, whether the rules of natural justice have been complied with or not depends upon the facts and circumstances of that case. Hence, it cannot be stated as an absolute proportion of law that in every case an action taken by the Corporation under Sec.29 of the Act without notice to the borrower is contrary to the principles of natural justice and vitiated thereby. It has to be decided in each case by the Court whether the particular action taken by the Corporation required the issue of a prior notice to the borrower. Such decision will naturally depend on the exigencies of the situation and the nature of the hypothecated assets.

24. Referring to the Judgment of the Orissa Bench, a Division Bench of the Gujarat High Court in Alka Ceramics v. Gujarat State Financial Corporation, Ahmedabad, A.I.R. 1990 Guj. 105, observed as follows:

"However, we wish to make it clear that merely because there is some subsequent payment, it would not nullify the earlier notice and action u/s. 29 unless the payment is substantial, say about one third of the outstanding and there is concrete and reasonable proposal and promise to pay the balance within a reasonable period. If such substantial payment and proposal are made, the Corporation has to consider afresh whether to proceed under Sec.29 after taking into account the reasonableness and reliability of the offer."

Therefore, it is clear that the Orissa Bench has not laid down any proposition of law in the abstract without any reference to the facts of the case.

25. At this stage it is worthwhile referring to the dictum of the Supreme Court in Union of India v. Tulsiram Patel, A.I.R. 1985 S.C. 1416, on the principles of natural justice. The relevant passages are as follows:

"Though the two rules of natural justice namely, nemo judex in causa sua and audi alteram partem, have now a definite meaning and connotation in law and their content and implications are well understood and firmly established, they are none the less not statutory rules. Each of these rules yields to an changes with the exigencies of different situations. They do not apply in the same manner to situations which are not alike. These rules are not cast in a rigid mould nor can they be put in a legal strait-jacket. They are not immutable but flexible.

... ..

So far as the audi alteram partem rule is concerned, both in England and in India, it is well established that where a right to a prior notice and an opportunity to be heard before an order is passed would obstruct the taking of prompt action, such a right can be excluded. This right can also be excluded where the nature of the action to be taken, its object and purpose and the scheme of the relevant statutory provisions warrant its exclusion; nor can the audi alteram partem rule be invoked if importing it would have the effect of paralysing the administrative process or where the need for promptitude or the urgency of taking action so demands, as pointed out in Maneka Gandhi's case, at page 681 of (1978) 2 S.C.R. 621: A.I.R. 1978 S.C. 597 at p. 629".

Therefore, it is futile to contend that though Sec.29 of the Act does not provide for issue of notice before taking action thereunder, principles of natural justice require such a notice to be issued in every case before any kind of action is taken. The fact that the legislature has made a provision for notice in Sec.30 but has omitted to do so in Sec.29 is not without significance.

26. Reliance is placed by learned counsel on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Mahesh Chandra v. Regional Manager, U.P. Financial Corporation and others, Jt. (1992) 2 S.C. 326. It was a case in which the Financial Corporation did not disburse the loan fully and when the industrial concern was in need of funds, the Corporation acted indifferently and took action under Sec.29 of the Act. Condemning the action taken by the Corporation in the context of the facts of the case, the Supreme Court laid down that the basic philosophy enshrined in Sec.24 of the Act should be kept in mind before any action is taken under Sec.29 of the Act. The Court also prescribed the guideline for exercising the power under Sec.29 of the Act. Sec.24 of the Act to which reference was made by the Supreme Court requires the Board of Directors of the Financial Corporation to discharge its functions on business principles, due regard having been had to the interests of industry, commerce and the general public. It was held by the Court that on the facts of the case it was clear that the interest of the industry were completely ignored by the Financial Corporation. The following passage is referred to by learned counsel:

"15. Sec.29 confers very wide power on the Corporation to ensure prompt by arming it with effective measure to realise the arrears. But the simplicity of the language is not an index to enormous power stored in it. From notice to pay the arrears, it extends to taking over management and even possession with a right to transfer it by sale. Every wide power, the exercise of which has far reaching repercussion, has inherent limitation on it. It should be exercised to effectuate the purpose of the Act. In legislations enacted for general benefit and common good the responsibility is far graver. It demands purposeful approach. The exercise the discretion should be objective. Test of reasonableness is more strict. The public functionaries should be duty conscious rather than power charged. Its actions and decisions which touch the common man have to be tested on the touchstone of fairness and justice. That which is not fair and just is unreasonable. And what is unreasonable is arbitrary. An arbitrary action is ultra vires. It does not become bona fide and in good faith merely because no personal gain or benefit to the person exercising discretion should be established. An action is mala fide if it is contrary to the purpose for which it was authorised to be exercised. Dishonesty in discharge of duty vitiates the action without anything more. An action is bad even without proof of motive of dishonesty, if the authority is found to have acted contrary to reason. Power under Sec.29 of the Act to take possession of a defaulting unit and transfer it by sale requires the authority to act cautiously, honestly fairly and reasonably. Default in payment of loan may attract Sec.29. But that alone is insufficient either to assume possession or to sell the property. Neither should be resorted to unless it is imperative. Even though no rules appear to have been framed nor any guideline framed by the Corporation was placed, yet the basic philosophy enshrined in Sec.24 has to be kept in mind. Rationale has to be judged in the light of it. Lack of reasonableness or even fairness at either of the two stages renders the take over and transfer invalid."

Nothing in the above passage suggests that a special notice should be issued under Sec.29 of the Act. On the other hand, the Court has referred only to a notice to pay arrears. Nowhere in the judgment of the Apex Court we find any prescription of a special notice being issued under Sec.29 of the Act before taking action. The ruling does not help the appellant in any manner, particularly when in this case a notice to pay has been issued on 29.8.1991 before the seizure of the lorry and a foreclosure notice has been issued on 14.11.1991 before the auction sale informing clearly the appellant that action will be taken under Secs.29 and 32-G of the Act.

27. Learned counsel for the appellant places reliance on the instructions contained in the Legal Manual issued to the Officers of the Corporation. According to him, they are Regulations within the meaning of Sec.48(2) of the Act. Under Sec.48 of the Act, the Board of Directors after consultation with the Development Bank and with the previous sanction of the State Government, may make regulations not inconsistent with the Act and the rules made thereunder to provide for all matters for which provision is necessary or expedient for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of the Act. Certain categories have been set out in Sub-sec.(2) thereof, without prejudice to the generality of the power given in Sub-clause (1) of Sec.48 of the Act. Clause (1) of Sub-sec.(2) of Sec.48 of the Act provides for taking over of the management of any industrial concern on a breach of its agreement with the Financial Corporation. Sub-sec.(3) enjoins that all regulations made under the Section shall be published in the Official Gazette and any such regulation shall have effect from such earlier or later date as may be specified in the regulations. Thus, if the Board makes any regulations, they shall be published in the Official Gazette in order to be treated as Regulations. The Legal Manual containing instructions to the Officers of the Corporation is not admittedly a regulation framed under Sec.48 of the Act by the Board. It was not published in any Official Gazette. It is conceded that they are not regulations as contemplated under Sec.48 of the Act. But, however, it is contended that the instructions contained in the Manual confer a right on the borrowers and they are enforceable at the instance of the borrowers. We do not agree. The instructions are merely guidelines to be generally followed by the officers in order to avoid any legal tangles. Moreover, the paragraphs in the Legal Manual which are relied on by learned counsel relate only to taking over of industrial units and taking possession of immovable properties. We agree with the view taken by the learned single Judge in this case that the instructions contained in the Legal Manual referred to by learned counsel for the appellant do not apply to seizure of vehicles or the sale thereof.

28. Learned counsel submits that a lorry or a motor vehicle is also an industrial concern as defined by the Act. We do not find any substance in the contention. According to him, Sec.2(c)(iv) of the Act would mean a motor vehicle. The said sub-section reads thus:

"industrial concern" means any concern engaged or to be engaged in---

.... and

(iv) the transport of passengers or goods by road or by water or by air or by ropeway or by life."

The expression used by Sec.2(c)(iv) of the Act is 'concern'. The Act does not define that expression. One of the meanings of 'concern' is a 'business'. A lorry or motor vehicle is not a business though it may be a business asset. Hence, the contention that a lorry is an 'industrial concern' within the meaning of the Act cannot be accepted.

29. Nothing has been placed before us to show that the auction is not conducted fairly or properly. On the other hand, the records show that proper public notice was given by publication in the newspapers and several members of the public had taken part in the auction. Ultimately, the vehicle has been sold for a sum of Rs.2,58,500 which is more than the amount due to the Corporation. The Corporation has stated in its counter affidavit filed here before us that a sum of Rs.30,000 is remaining as a surplus, which is payable to the appellant herein. Thus, the appellant cannot make any grievance against the auction as such. There is absolutely nothing to show that the Corporation had acted vindictively or arbitrarily against the appellant. He was given more than ample opportunity to discharge the debt due by him. Yet, he had not availed of the same.

30. We find no merit whatever in the appeal. We are entirely in agreement with the view taken by the learned single Judge. The facts of the case fully justify the dismissal of the writ petition in limine. In fine, the writ appeal suffers dismissal. In view of the fact that the appellant has made false statements in his affidavit filed in the writ petition, we direct him to pay costs in this appeal. Counsel's fee Rs.1,000.

B.S. ----- Appeal dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Thanikkachalam, J.

C.R.P.No.2184 of 1989

17th June, 1992.

V.K.Veeraraghava Reddiar ...Petitioner
v.
Urudu Madarasa (Arabic School) by Secretary and another ...Respondents.

Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), Sec.10(2)(ii)(a) - Subletting - What is - Premises let out for partnership business - Partnership dissolved - Business allotted to a partner - Tenancy, if amounts to subletting.

Where a tenant took the petitioner premises for the purpose of conducting his business and in the course of his business, if he formed a partnership and doing partnership business in the rented premises, it would not amount to subletting the premises because there is no parting with the possession of the premises. So also, if the premises was let out for a partnership business and after the dissolution of the partnership, if the business is allotted to an erstwhile partner, then also there is no subletting. If on a stoppage of business, one of the partners is handed-over the entire business premises in which he carries on his business, thereafter, it is not a case of subletting. [Paras 9 and 12]

Cases referred to:

Sunkur Subramanian Chetty v. V.K.R.Gurusami Chetty and Co., (1972)1 M.L.J. (S.N.) 37. [Para 12]
Subba Chetty v. Madras Stainless Emporium, (1979)1 M.L.J. 504. [Paras 5, 12]

K.V.Sankaran, Senior Counsel, for R.Mohan and T.K.Sadagopan, for Petitioner.

R.Krishnamoorthy, Senior Counsel, for R.Muthukumarasamy, for Respondent No.1.

K.Krishnaswamy, for Respondent No.2.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- The second respondent in the eviction petition is the petitioner herein. The petition for eviction was filed under Sec.10(2)(ii)(a) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (XVIII of 1960), hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'. Urudu Madarasa (Arabic School), represented by Secretary is the owner of the petition premises. The first respondent in the eviction petition is the tenant in respect of the shop No.1 in Madras Building Shopping Complex, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. The case of the landlord is as under:

The petition premises was let out to the first respondent in the year 1971. The building is a non-residential one and the tenancy is monthly tenancy. Originally the rent was at Rs.80 per month, later on it was enhanced to Rs.100 per month and at present the rent is at Rs.120 per month. The first respondent paid an advance of Rs.8,000 and this has to be adjusted from a portion of the monthly rent payable by the tenant. Thus, at present out of Rs.120 per month payable by the tenant, Rs.60 per month is adjustable towards the advance amount and the tenant is to pay a sum of Rs.60 per month. According to the landlord, the first respondent without the written consent of the landlord sublet the petition premises to the second respondent. Hence, the landlord gave notice dated 24.11.1980 calling upon the tenant to quit and deliver vacant possession of the petition premises since the same was let out unauthorisedly without prior permission of the landlord to the second respondent. The first respondent sent a reply, denying the sub-tenancy. The second respondent sent a notice to the landlord dated 12.12.1980 alleging that there was no sub-tenancy in this case, since the petition premises was let out to the partnership firm, in which the second respondent was a partner.

2. The case of the first respondent is as under: The petition premises was let out to a partnership concern. The partnership consisting of one Lakshminarayanan, Gengadara Naicker and Veeraraghava Reddy and one minor Harikrishnan was admitted to the benefit of the partnership. It is not correct to state that the petition premises was let out to the first respondent. The name of the firm is "Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy". The partnership business has been now dissolved and the business is now being carried on by the second respondent. Therefore, there is no subletting in this case as alleged by the landlord.

3. The case of the second respondent is as under: Mr.M.K.N.Mohammed Gani is not the authorised agent of the alleged Urudu Madarasa (Arabic School). Mr.M.K.N.Mohammed Gani is not entitled to represent the Urudu Madarasa. The petition premises was let out to the partnership concern, Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy. It is not correct to state that the property was let out to the first respondent. The partnership was started in the year 1970 and it was carrying on business under the name and style of "Sri Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy". A sum of Rs.8,000 was paid as advance on behalf of the partnership firm by the first respondent. Therefore, the sum of Rs.8,000 was not paid by the first respondent in his individual capacity. The partnership firm was paying the rent ever since the inception of the tenancy. Now the partnership is dissolved and the second respondent is carrying on the business. Therefore, there is no subletting as alleged by the petitioner in this case. The petitioner is a public trust and hence the rent controller has got no jurisdiction to entertain the petition.

4. The petitioner filed as many as thirty documents and the respondents filed 190 documents. Mohammed Gani examined himself as P.W.1. V.K. Veeraraghavan examined himself as R.W.1. One Ariyappa was examined as R.W.2. Considering the facts arising in this case, the Rent Controller dismissed the petition for eviction. On appeal, the Rent Control Appellate Authority considering the facts arising in this case held that the first respondent sublet the petition premises to the second respondent without the written consent of the landlord. Accordingly, the Rent Control Appellate Authority set aside the order passed by the Rent Controller, allowed the appeal and ordered eviction. It is against this order, the present revision has been preferred by the second respondent.

5. The learned counsel appearing for the second respondent/petitioner herein submitted as under: The Appellate Authority was not correct in coming to the conclusion that since two cheques were issued by Govindasamy Reddiar, the tenancy is in favour of the said Govindasamy Reddiar in his individual capacity. There is no evidence on record to show that the advance were paid by Govindasamy Reddiar in individual capacity. The partnership firm Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy was formed in August, 1970 as evidenced by Ex. B-7. Since the partnership firm desires to have a branch, the petition premises was taken on lease and the advance was paid. The petition premises itself was constructed in April, 1971 as can be seen from Ex.B-190. The firm started functioning in the premises soon after the construction was over in April, 1971 as evidenced by Ex.B-3, dated 26.3.1971. The firm applied for registration of the firm. Ex.B-4 is the application for registration with the Income-tax authorities. It is not correct to state that the firm did not do any business in the petition premises. The account books, licences, telephone bills, salary books, registers maintained under the Labour Act, Income-tax Assessment Order and other correspondence like Exs.B-12 to B-190 would go to show that the firm was doing business in the petition premises. The Appellate Authority misdirected itself in interpreting the documents filed by the petitioner herein. In Ex.B-1 and Ex.B-2, it is shown that the business is known as Thiru Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy. Because of the word "Thiru", the Appellate Authority came to the conclusion that the tenancy is in the individual name of Govindasamy Reddiar. Therefore, the first Appellate Authority held that the lease was in favour of Govindasamy Reddiar in his individual capacity. The partnership firm was recognised as a tenant in March, 1980. Therefore, it cannot be said that the second respondent is an unauthorised sub-tenant on the dissolution of the partnership as it has been held in 99 L.W. 741. There cannot be any sub-tenancy when a dissolution of the partnership takes place or when a partner retires, as per the decision of this court in Subba Chetty v. Madras Stainless Emporium, (1979)1 M.L.J. 504. Ex.A-10 was not proved in accordance with law. In Ex.A-12, the second respondent intimated about the dissolution and that he has been doing the business after the dissolution. Therefore, there cannot be any sub-tenancy as alleged by the landlord. It is not correct to state that on the basis of Exs.A-10 to A-14 and A-30, that the original tenancy was in favour of Govindasamy Reddiar in his individual capacity. Ex.A-16 reply was not considered by the Appellate Authority. The first respondent was not examined as a witness. P.W.1 in his Chief-examination has clearly stated that he let out the premises to the partnership firm. It was therefore pleaded that the Rent Control Appellate Authority was not correct in reversing the well considered decision of the Rent Controller. It was therefore pleaded that the order of the Rent Control Appellate Authority is liable to be set aside.

6. On the other hand, the learned counsel appearing for the respondent/landlord submitted as under: The petition premises was let out to the first respondent in his individual capacity. It was not let out to the partnership firm as alleged by the petitioner herein. A sum of Rs.8,000 was paid by the first respondent in his individual capacity. There is no mention at the time of payment that this was paid on behalf of the partnership firm. The possession was parted with by the first respondent in the eviction petition in favour of the second respondent, hence there is subletting. The advance of Rs.8,000 was paid by way of cheque by the first respondent. It is not correct to state that the partnership was started in the year 1970. The partnership was not doing its business in the petition premises. The first respondent was doing the business in the petition premises and sublet to the second respondent without the written consent of the landlord. In order to prove their case, the first respondent was not examined. The first respondent requested the landlord to transfer the tenancy in favour of the second respondent. Till 4.10.1980, the rent was received from the first respondent. In Ex.B-2 the name of Govindasamy Reddiar is mentioned as tenant. His name was preceded by the word "Thiru" and the initial. Therefore, it cannot be said that the petition premises was taken on lease by the partnership firm.

The second respondent was not consistent in saying under what mode the advance of Rs.8,000 was paid. It was therefore pleaded that the Rent Control Appellate Authority was correct in ordering eviction.

7. I have heard the rival submissions.

8. The petition for eviction was filed under Sec.10(2)(ii)(a) of the Act. According to the landlord, the petition premises was originally let out to the first respondent in his individual capacity and the first respondent without any written consent of the landlord sublet the petition premises to the second respondent. Therefore, the respondents are liable to be evicted. According to the second respondent/petitioner herein, the petition premises was let out to a partnership concern, in which first and second respondents and others were partners and after the dissolution of the partnership, the second respondent is now carrying on the business and therefore there is no subletting as alleged by the landlord. The first point for consideration this revision is to whom does the petition premises was let out, whether to the first respondent in his individual capacity or to the partnership firm as alleged by the second respondent. There is no written lease agreement in this case. Ex.A-30 is the copy of the current statement of account furnished by the Indian Overseas Bank, Tambaram Branch. This document shows the account maintained by Mr.T.G.Govindasamy Reddiar No.48, Mudichur Road, Tambaram. According to this document, a cheque for Rs.6,000 dated 9.3.1970 was given. So also on 14.12.1970, another cheque for Rs.2000 was given. The landlord accepted that these sums were paid by Govindasamy Reddiar towards advance. The advance was paid even before the construction was completed with regard to the petition premises. After the construction was completed in 1971, the petition premises was let out to the first respondent according to the landlord. According to the second respondent, this advance was paid by Govindasamy Reddiar on behalf of the partnership firm "Thiru Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy". A partnership was in existence from 7.8.1970 under the name and style of "Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy". T.G.Lakshminarayanan, Veerarghava Reddiar, Gengadara Naicker are partners and Harikrishnan who was a minor was admitted to the benefit of the partnership firm. The principal place of business is shown as No.48, Mudichur

Road, Tambaram, Madras-45. According to the landlord, this partnership firm was not functioning in the petition premises. It was functioning at No.48, Mudichur Road, Tambaram, Madras-45. Though the partnership came into existence, on 7.8.1970, the partnership deed was written on 16.5.1970. This firm was dissolved by a deed of dissolution dated 10.9.1980. The firm was dissolved on 30.4.1980. According to the dissolution deed, the business carried on at No.1 Urudu Madarasa Building, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram was allotted to Veeraraghavan. Ex.A-10 is the letter dated 11.6.1980. This letter was written by Govindasamy Reddiar in which he asked the Secretary to furnish particulars about the amount due from his upto 31.5.1980. In the said letter, it is stated as under:

“இப்பவும் 31580 முடிய என் பேரில் உள்ள கடைக்காக நான் கொடுத்துள்ள வாடகை விபரம் அட்வான்ஸ் வரவு போக எவ்வளவு தொகை மீதி உள்ளது என்ற விபரத்தை தயவு செய்து தெரியப்படுத்துமாறு மிக்க தாழ்மையுடன் கேட்டுக் கொள்கிறேன்.”

The first respondent avoided the witness box. In view of these facts, the learned Appellate Authority pointed out that the partnership business was not carried on in the petition premises. Ex.A-11 is the reply to Ex.A-10. There was no reply for this from the first respondent. Instead of that the second respondent gave a reply Ex.A-12 dated 8.8.1980. From this letter, the landlord came to know that the petition premises was sublet by the first respondent to the second respondent. Thereafter, under Ex.A-13, the landlord sent a notice dated 23.8.1989, for which Ex.A-14 reply dated 25.9.1980 was given by the first respondent, wherein it is stated that he was doing the business along with the second respondent. Under Ex.A-14, the first respondent required the landlord to change the tenancy in favour of the second respondent. So also under Ex.A-12 the second respondent requested the landlord to change the tenancy in his favour. Upto March, 1980, according to the landlord the rent was received from the first respondent as a tenant. Exs.B-1 to 83 are pocket note books showing the payment of rent by Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy for the petition premises.

9. It is significant to note that where a tenant took the petition premises for the purpose of conducting his business and in the course of his business, if he formed a partnership and doing partnership business in the rented premises, it would not amount to subletting the premises, because there is no parting with the possession of the premises. So also, if the premises was let out for a partnership business and after the dissolution of the partnership if the business is allotted to an erstwhile partner, then also there is no subletting. But in the present case, the petitioner herein submitted that the partnership business though started in Mudichur Road, it was also functioning in the petition premises. Therefore, it is for the petitioner herein to establish that the partnership started in the year 1970 and dissolved in July, 1980 was functioning in the petition premises. If the petitioner herein established this fact, then he can escape from the eviction. Now the petitioner herein is conducting the business under the name and style of “Gangadaram Mundy” in the petition premises.

10. In order to support his contention that the partnership firm Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy was functioning in the petition premises ever since the petition premises was let out, the petitioner herein filed 190 documents. Ex.A-9 is the copy of the telephone directory at page No.64, wherein the telephone number 48610 was allotted to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, No.1 Shanmugham Road, Madras-45. Ex.A-12 is the letter written by Karur Vysaya Bank, Tambaram Branch. According to this letter, the current account No.150 is in the name of M/s.Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Tambaram, Madras, from 1976 to 1981. Ex.B-18 is the professional tax receipt issued by the Municipality. According to the said letter Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy is situate No.1, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, Madras-45. Ex.B-20 is the licence for industries and factories dated 13.2.1973. According to this document, Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy is functioning at No.1, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, Madras-45. Ex.B-25 is the receipt issued by the Municipality. According to this receipt, Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy is functioning at No.1, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, Madras-45. Ex.B-26 is the receipt for collection of fee for issue of licence for Industries and Factories. According to this document, Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy was functioning at No.1, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, on 29.2.1976.

Ex.B-27 is the receipt issued by Tambaram Municipality dated 23.12.1977, where it is stated that in 1977-78 Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy was functioning at No.1, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Ex.B-59 is the National Holidays Register maintained by Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy Mosque Building, Shanmugham Road and Ex.B-60 is the salary register maintained by Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy under Shops and Establishments Act. Ex.B-61 is National Holidays register. Ex.B-62 is the register maintained by Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy under the Shops and Establishments Act. Ex.B-63 is the labour inspector's notebook. Ex.B-65 and Ex.B-66 are receipts for collection of fees for Industries and Factories in the year 1971 from Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy. Ex.B-76 is the Income-tax assessment order for the year 1979-80. Ex.B-79 is the chalan for payment of tax for the assessment year 1977-78. Ex.B-83 is the assessment order for the assessment year 1980-81 for the registered firm M/s.Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, No.1, Mosque Building, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Ex.B-88 is the statement of account for Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy Mosque Building, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram Prepared by a chartered Accountant. Ex.B-90 is the current account passbook issued by the Karur Vysya Bank, Tambaram Branch. This passbook is issued in the name of Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. The accounts begins from the year 1977. Ex.B-92 is the receipt for payment of salestax for Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, dated 9.11.1976. Ex.B-94 document is series of 'C' Forms and 'F' Forms under General Sales Tax Act in the name of Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, Ex.D-99 is the letter dated 25.7.1981 issued by the Commercial Tax Officer to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Ex.B-100 is the notice of final assessment refund order to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Ex.B-10 is the proceedings of the Assistant Commercial Tax Officer dated 1.8.1981 relating to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Ex.B-103 is the letter from the Deputy Commissioner, Commercial Tax Office, to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, dated 8.1.1982. Ex.B-106 is the receipt for payment of sales tax for Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, dated 14.4.1976. Ex.B-109 is also receipt for payment of sales tax by Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Ex.B-112 is the summons under the Tamil Nadu General Sales Tax Act to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, dated 6.11.1976. Ex.B-113 is the summons under the Sales Tax Act to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, dated 13.12.1976. Ex.B-116 is the letter from the Tamil Nadu Government to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, dated 18.11.1974. Ex.B-117 is the licence issued to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, dated 6.1.1975. Ex.B-118 is the Quality Certificate issued by T.N.G.S.C. to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, dated 19.5.1977. Exs.B-124 and B-125 are the letters from the Assistant Commissioner to the District Supply Officer for issue of licence to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Ex.B-127 is the letter issued by Reserve Bank of India, Madras dated 11.1.1978 to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy, Shanmugham Road, Tambaram. Likewise upto Ex.R-190 there are numerous documents to show that Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy was functioning at the petition premises. Therefore, till the notice was issued by the landlord, for eviction, no objection was taken for functioning of the abovesaid partnership business in the petition premises.

11. Thus it remains to be seen that all the governmental authorities addressed there communication to Govindasamy Reddiar Rice Mundy to the shop at Shanmugham Road, Tambaram, where the petition premises is resituate. In fact, up to 1979, the landlord was receiving the rent from the second respondent in the eviction petition. In the oral evidence, R.W.1 himself accepted that the petition premises was let out to the partnership firm. Therefore at this stage the landlord cannot say that the partnership business was not functioning in the petition premises. According to the petitioner herein after dissolution of the partnership firm, the erstwhile partner, to whom the business was allotted to his share is now conducting the business.

12. If on a stoppage of business, one of the partners is handed-over the entire business premises in which he carries on his business, thereafter, it is not a case of subletting (See Sunkur Subramanian Chetty v. V.K.R. Gurusami Chetty and Co., (1972) 1 M.L.J. (S.N.) 37. So also in the case of Subba Chetty v. Madras Stainless Emporium, (1979) 1 M.L.J. 504, it was held that the occupation of the premises by the new partnership in which one of the partners was admittedly a partner of the dissolved partnership, which was the original tenant cannot be said to be as a result of subletting by the quandum dissolved firm.

13. Thus in the present case, even according to P.W.1 the premises was let out to the partnership firm. Further the fact that the partnership firm was functioning in the petition premises before dissolution was proved by filing overwhelming documentary evidence. After dissolution, one of the erstwhile partner is carrying on the business in the petition premises. Therefore there is no subletting by the first respondent to the second respondent as alleged by the petitioner in the eviction petition. On the facts available on record the Rent Control Appellate Authority filed to apply the correct legal principles on this point. Hence the order of eviction passed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority is liable to be set aside. Accordingly, I do so.

14. In that view of the matter, the order of eviction passed by the Rent Control Appellate Authority is set aside and that of the Rent Controller restored, and the petition for eviction is dismissed.

15. In the result, the revision is allowed. However, there will be no order as to costs.

B.S.

Revision allowed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- Mishra and Swamidurai, JJ.

L.P.A.Nos.73 and 74 of 1988 13th March, 1992.

Ramadoss Motor Transport, Kakinada

...Appellant

v.

New India Assurance Company, Kakinada and others

...Respondents.

Motor Vehicles Act (IV of 1939), Sec.95 - Motor accident - Persons travelling with their goods carried in lorry - Dying in accident caused by rash and negligent driving - No proof that owner had forbidden owner of the goods to travel with the goods or that driver had not authorised it - Liability of insurer and owner to pay compensation.

A lorry bearing registration number MSM 6072 collided with a stationary lorry on 3.7.1979 at about 3.00 a.m. Two persons who were travelling in the lorry along with their goods died. Alleging that the accident took place due to rashness and negligence on the part of the driver of the lorry the widows and parents of the deceased filed claim petitions before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal. The tribunal held that the Insurer appealed. A learned single Judge held that the insurer had no liability under Sec.95 of the Motor Vehicles Act as the victims were not covered by the insurance and that the owner of the vehicle was liable to compensate and pay the amounts fixed as compensation by the Tribunal. In appeal, Held:- It is not a case in which it can be said that the driver had not authorised or the owner of the vehicle had forbidden the owner of the goods to travel with the goods. It is a case, in which the insurer may not have any liability but the owner's vicarious liability cannot be doubted. [Para 14]

Cases referred to:

Commonwealth Assurance Company Ltd. v. V.P.Rahim Khan Sahib, A.I.R. 1971 Mad. 415: 1971 A.C.J. 295: 41 C.C. 727. [Paras 5, 9]

Narayana v. Madras State Palm Gar Sammelan, A.I.R. 1974 Mad. 281: 87 L.W. 39. [Paras 4, 11]

Sitaram Motilal v. Santanuprasad Jaishanker, A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1697. [Paras 7, 8]

Pushpa Bai v. Ranjig G.&P. Company, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1735. [Paras 6, 7]

Young v. Edward Box and Company, (1951)1 T.L.R. 789. [Para 8]

Grarod v. Crosville Motor Services Ltd., (1953)2 All E.R. 753. [Para 7]

The Vanguard Insurance Company Ltd. v. Chinammal, 1969 A.C.J. 226. [Para 8]

South India Insurance Company Ltd. v. P. Subramaniam, (1971)2 M.L.J. 198: A.I.R. 1972 Mad. 49. [Para 8]

Abdul Jabar v. Muniammal, A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 112. [Para 9]

C. Dhyanaand v. Jaamni Bi, (1982)1 M.L.J. 290: A.I.R. 1982 Mad. 311. [Para 11]

Pushparaipurushotham Udeshi v. Ranjit Ginning and Pressing Company, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1735: 1977 A.C.J. 345. [Para 10]

M. Kandaswamy v. Chinnaaswami, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 290. [Para 11]

Appeal under Clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the Order of Swamikannu, J. dated 2.9.1987 and made in the exercise of the Appellate jurisdiction of the High Court in A.A.O.Nos.65 and 64 of 1982 respectively preferred to this Court against the ward of the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (District Court) Dharmapuri at Krishnagiri, dated 3.7.1981 and made in M.A.C.T.O.P.Nos.47 of 1980 and 2 of 1980 respectively.

The Judgment of the Court was delivered by Mishra, J.:- The owner of a lorry which met with an accident and caused the death of two persons, who were travelling with their goods carried in the lorry, has appealed against the judgment of a learned Single Judge of this Court holding it liable to compensate and pay the amount fixed as compensation by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal in the applications filed under Sec.110 of the Motor Vehicles Act.

2. Facts which have been found to be established and are not disputed before us are as follows:

A lorry bearing registration number MSN-6072 collided with a stationary lorry on 3.7.1979 at about 3.00 a.m. from Krishnagiri in Krishnagiri-Madras Trunk Road. One Velmurugan and another Nagendran, who were travelling in the lorry along with their goods died. The widow and mother of the deceased Velmurugan and the mother and the father of the deceased Nagendran, filed their respective claim petitions before the Tribunal. They alleged that the accident took place due to rashness and negligence on the part of the driver of the lorry.

3. The driver of the lorry filed a counter, which the owner/appellant before us adopted as return to the allegations. The Insurance company filed a separate counter. It appears, however, that the Tribunal found that the accident took place due to rash and negligent driving of the lorry by the driver Mohammed Moosa. It however, held that the insurer was liable to pay the entire amount of compensation. The insurer appealed.

4. A learned single Judge of this Court, found that the victims were not covered by the insurance and that the insurer had no liability under Sec.95 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939. He, however found that since the victims suffered death in the accident that was caused on account of the rash and negligent driving of the lorry by the driver, the claimants were entitled to compensation and owner/appellant was liable to compensate and pay the amounts fixed as compensation by the tribunal.

5. The fact that the accident occurred as a result of rash and negligent driving has been questioned before us. A serious contention, however, has been raised on the ground that compensation has been awarded for the death of persons, who travelled without authority in the lorry and sustained injuries due to the negligence of the driver. Reliance has been placed on the judgments of a learned single Judge of this Court in the case of Commonwealth Assurance Company Ltd. v. V.P. Rahim Khan Sahib, A.I.R. 1971 Mad. 415: 1971 A.C.J. 295: 41 C.C. 727, and a Division Bench judgment of this Court in the case Narayana v. Madras State Palm Gar Sammelan, A.I.R. 1974 Mad. 281: 87 L.W. 39, to suggest that Sec.95 of the Motor Vehicles Act, would not cover the case of a person, who was not in employment or a passenger and it is asserted that the person, who was travelling without authorisation and was not in employment is not entitled to any compensation and if the victim accordingly would not be entitled to any compensation, the claimants are not entitled to claim either from the insurer or the owner of the lorry any compensation for the death of persons, who were travelling without authority in the lorry and sustained injuries due to the negligence of the driver.

6. The sheet-anchor shows the two aforementioned judgments of this Court, however, not more than the well understood principle that a passenger carried by a lorry will not be covered by the insurance policy and thus the insurer will have no liability and there is no provision in the Act to protect a person, who is not in employment and who travelled without authorisation in a lorry.

7. This Court in several cases and the Supreme Court in the case of Sitaram Motilal v. Santanuprasad Jaishanker, A.I.R. 1966 S.C. 1697 and Pushpa Bai v. Ranjig G. & P. Company, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1735, adopted the rule expressed by Lord Justice Denning in Young v. Edward Box and Company, (1951)1 T.L.R. 789, on the question as to whether the owner of the lorry is liable for the unauthorised carrying of a passenger in a lorry by its driver. The observations of Lord Denning are as follows:

"The next question is how far the employee are liable for their servant's conduct. In order to make the employees liable to the passenger it is not sufficient that they should be liable for their servants negligence in driving. They must also be responsible for his conduct in giving the man a lift. If the servant had been forbidden or is unauthorised to give any one a lift, then no doubt the passenger is a trespasser on the lorry so far as the owners are concerned, but that is not of itself an answer to the claim. In my opinion, when the owner of a lorry sends his servant on a journey with it, thereby putting the servant in a position not only to drive it but also to give people a lift in it, then he is answerable for the manner in which the servant conducts himself on the journey, not only in the driving of it, but also in giving lifts in it, provided, of course, that in so doing the servant is acting in the course of his employment."

8. In Pushpa Bai v. Ranjig G. & P. Company, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1735, the Supreme Court has examined the expression "in the course of the employment" and said,

"the master is not only liable for the negligence of the driver if that driver is his servant acting in the course of his employment but also when the driver is with the master's consent driving the vehicle as the master's business for the master's purposes."

The Supreme Court has further said:

".....the recent trend in law is to make the master liable for acts which do not strictly fall within the term "in the course of the employment" as ordinarily considered. We have referred to Sitaram Motilal Jalal v. Santanuprasad Jaishanker Bhati, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 1697, where this Court accepted the law laid down by Lord Denning in Grarod v. Crosville Motor Services Ltd., (1953)2 All E.R. 753, that the owner is not only liable for the negligence of the driver if that driver is his servant acting in the course of his employment but also when the driver is, with the owner's consent, driving the car on the owner's business of for the owner's purposes. This extension has been accepted by this Court. The law as laid down by Lord Denning in Young v. B. Edward Box and Company Ltd., (1951)1 T.L.R. 789, already referred to, i.e. the first question is to see whether the servant is liable and if the answer is yes, the second question is to see whether the employer must shoulder the servant's liability, has been uniformly accepted as stated in Salmond Law of Torts, 15th Edn. Page 606, in Crown Proceedings Act, 1947 and approved by the House of Lords in Staveley Iron and Chemical Co., Ltd. v. Jones, 1956 A.C. 627 and Imperial Chemical Industries v. Shatwell, 1965 A.C. 656.

9. In a series of judgments reported in The Vanguard Insurance Company Ltd. v. Chinnammal, 1969 A.C.J. 226, Commonwealth Assurance Company Ltd. v. V.P. Rahim Khan Sahib, A.I.R. 1971 Mad. 415; 1971 A.C.J. 295; 41 C.C. 727 and South India Insurance Company Ltd. v. P. Subramaniam, (1971)2 M.L.J. 198; A.I.R. 1972 Mad. 49, this Court has taken the view that the owner cannot award liability when the passenger travelling in the lorry in pursuance of a contract of employment with himself as the owner of the goods carried met with an accident death or injury. The court has uniformly held that a contract of employment referred to in Sec.95(2)(b) of the Motor Vehicles Act need not necessarily be with the owner of the insured vehicle and that it can also be with the owner of the goods transported in the vehicle.

10. In Abdul Jabbar v. Muniammal, A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 112, a Division Bench of this Court, after taking into consideration the various judgments of the Courts in India including the Supreme Court and the courts in England, has held,

"Thus following the decision of the Supreme Court above referred to which in turn approves the decision in Young v. Edward Box and Company, (1951)1 T.L.R. 789, we have to hold that the owner of the lorry is vicariously liable for the injuries caused to the appellant claimant who had travelled in the lorry with the permission of the driver of the lorry. As pointed out by Lord Justice Denning in Young v. Edward Box and Company, (1951) 1 T.L.R. 789, if the servant had been forbidden or is unauthorised to give anyone a lift, then no doubt the passenger is a trespasser on the lorry so far as the owners are concerned. But that is not by itself an answer to the claim."

11. In the case of C.Dhyamand v. Jaamni Bi, (1982) 1 M.L.J. 290; A.I.R. 1982 Mad. 311, a Bench of this Court has said,

"Lord Justice Denning concluded by observing that the passenger was therefore a trespasser, so far as the employers were concerned but nevertheless the driver was acting in the course of his employment and that is sufficient to make the employer liable. Relying on the decision and on the ostensible authority of the manager as a licensee to permit the deceased to travel with him, the Supreme Court held that the manager was acting in the course of his employment in giving leave to the deceased to travel with him and that the owner of the vehicle is liable. In deciding the liability of the Insurance Company, the Supreme Court after referring to Sec.95 of the Motor Vehicles Act, as amended by Act 56 of 1969 held that the insurance cover is not available to passengers in a case like the present one and that the proviso to Sub-sec.(ii) provides that a policy shall not be required except where the vehicle is a vehicle in which passengers are carried for hire or reward or by a reason of or in pursuance of a contract of employment to cover liability in respect of the death of or bodily injury to persons being carried in or upon or entering or mounting or alighting from the vehicle at the time of the occurrence of the event out of which a claim arises. In the case reported in K.R.Sivagami, Prop. Rajendran Tourist v. Mahabobh Niss Bi, (1981) 94 L.W.1: A.I.R. 1981 Mad. 138, a Division Bench of this Court, to which one of us was a party, in dealing with a case of a driver of a taxi carrying more than the permitted load of passengers which is contrary to the conditions of permit under which the vehicle was allowed to be used as a tourist taxi, held that the non observance of the rules relating to the number of passengers to be carried can only be said to be an improper performance of the driver's duty. Even assuming that the permit conditions not to take more than the permitted number of passengers is taken as a prohibition, limitation restriction, that relates only to the manner of performance of the driver's duties in the course of his employment and that cannot in any way limit the sphere of his employment. Therefore, the carrying of two excess passengers by the driver of the taxi will only amount to an improper performance of his duties as a driver of the taxi and therefore it cannot be taken to be outside the sphere of his employment and held that the owner of the taxi is vicariously liable for the tort committed by the driver of his taxi. In United India Fire and General Insurance Co., Ltd., Madurai v. M.S.Durairaj, A.I.R. 1982 Mad. 287, this Bench had occasion to consider a case where a senior clerk of the State Bank of India, Kodaikanal, while he was returning from Madurai to Kodaikanal in a car MDA 1194, met with an accident resulting in injuries to the said clerk. In regard to the claim for compensation by the injured clerk an objection was taken by the Insurance company that the injured was carried for their which is against the terms of the insurance policy and as such the insurer was not liable. Following the judgment of the Supreme Court reported in Pushparaipurushotham Udeshi v. Ranjit Ginning and Pressing Company, A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1735: 1977 A.C.J. 345, referred to supra, this Court negatived the liability of the insurance company."

12. The above view has been reiterated once again in M.Kandaswamy v. Chinnaswami, A.I.R. 1985 Mad. 290, by a Division Bench of this Court. This judgment is relevant, for it has referred to the case of Narayana v. Madras State Palm Gar Sammelan, A.I.R. 1974 Mad. 281: 87 L.W. 39, the judgment upon which learned counsel for the appellant has relied on heavily. The Bench has ruled:

"The immediate question is whether either the injured or the deceased who travelled in the lorry a long-with their goods can be said to be employed by a person insured by the policy and either the injury or death arose out of and in the course of his employment. On the evidence in this case, it is not possible to hold that either the injured or the deceased was an employee of the appellant lorry owner who had insured his lorry with the insurance company and that the injury or the death arose out of and in the course of his employment. We shall emphasise here that on the evidence it is established that both the injured and the deceased got into the lorry..... On the above evidence, it is too difficult to infer even an implied contract of employment between the appellant owner of the lorry and either of the injured or the deceased. Sec.95(1)(b)(i) refers to cases where the accident involves the death or bodily injury of any person or damage to any property of a third party and is also caused by or arising out of the use of the vehicle in a public place; it is needless to state that the vehicle may be a generic term and will include all types of vehicles visualised under the Act inclusive of goods vehicle or lorry and public service vehicle. The said provision does not cover the death of a person travelling in the vehicle itself. A reference to Sec.95(1)(b)(ii) will justify our above view. The same specifically refers to death of or bodily injury to any passenger of a public service vehicle caused by or arising out of the use of the vehicle in a public place. Thus, we find that the provisions in the Act do not by themselves support the contention advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant....

Quite rightly therefore the Tribunal held both in law and under the policy of insurance, the insurance company is not liable to the claim made in these proceedings."

13. It is useful, however, to extract the observations of the learned single Judge in the impugned judgment. He has said:

"In the instant case, it is common ground that the owner of the goods was travelling in the lorry along with his goods. As seen from the ratio decidendi this view has been taken that since the owner of the goods is not covered by the provisions of Sec.95 of the Motor Vehicles Act, on his death, during the transit along with the goods, his legal representatives cannot claim any compensation and as such, the insurance company is liable. In the instant case, Mr.G.Venkataraman, learned counsel for the owner of the vehicle also contends that the owner of the vehicle is not liable. Then is the owner of the goods, who was under the bona fide impression that he should protect the goods travelling in the very same goods vehicle in which his goods are being transported, to be considered as one which is not at all contemplated by the provisions of the Act at the time when he met with the death in such circumstances? Certainly not. The Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, cannot be said to be bereft of any provision relating to the death of the owner of the goods travelling along with the goods in a goods vehicle and the plight of the legal representatives of such owner. When the Act can be considered as one which comprehensively deals with the claims of the legal representatives of others travelling in a goods vehicle why not the same benefit be given to the legal representatives of the owner of the goods who meets his death while accompanying his own goods in a goods transporting vehicle, is the question, which can be legitimately asked by the legal representatives of such owner of the goods. There is no prohibition in law for the owner of the goods accompanying his own goods during the time of the transit by the goods vehicle. Perhaps, he may be over enthusiastic in his attempt to protect the goods that are being transported and accompanying the goods either sitting in the cabin or even along with the goods by keeping hold of the same during the time of transit."

14. We do not think any further elucidation of the legal position is necessary. It is not a case in which it can be said that the driver had not authorised or the owner of the vehicle had forbidden the owner of the goods to travel with the goods. It is a case in our opinion, in which the insurer may not have any liability, but the owner's vicarious liability cannot be doubted. The learned appellate Judge has taken the correct view of the law, which needs no interference. No question as to the quantum of compensation has been raised before us. There is no merit in the appeals. The appeals are accordingly dismissed. No costs.

B.S.

Appeals dismissed.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

Present:- A.R.Lakshmanan, J.

A.A.A.O.No.22 of 1992 2nd December, 1992.

G.Kaliyaperumal ...Appellant
v.

V.Annamalai Mudaliar ...Respondent.

(A) Tamil Nadu Agriculturists Relief Act (IV of 1938), Sec.20 (as amended by Act VIII of 1973) and Sec.19 - Judgment-debtor, making application under Sec.20 for stay of decree passed in respect of debt prior to 1.3.1972 - Duty of Court and judgment-debtor.

A reading of Sec.20 of the Act clearly discloses that stay under the said section is a must. The word used in the section is 'shall'. Hence, when an application is made by a judgment-debtor that he is an agriculturist coming under the definition of the Act and that a decree has been passed against him in respect of a debt which arose prior to 1.3.1972 and that the said decree is not in accordance with law as it has not taken note of the fact that the judgment-debtor is an agriculturist debtor entitled to the benefits of scaling down under the Act, then, the only thing that can be done by a Court which passed the decree is to stay the decree. It has nothing more to do or probe into the truth of what the judgment-debtor says. That has to be done only when a judgment-debtor files a petition under Sec.19 of the Act before the Court which is to execute the decree. Sec.20 of the Act also enjoins that within 60 days of obtaining the order for stay, the judgment-debtor shall apply to the executing Court under Sec.19 at the risk of the stay being vacated. [Para 3]

(B) Tamil Nadu Agriculturists Relief Act (IV of 1938), Sec.25-A as amended by Act (VIII of 1973) - Orders passed under the Act - Appeals against - Provisions of Civil Procedure Code - Applicability. Act IV of 1938 is a self-contained enactment providing for appeals being laid under the Orders passed under the Act. There is no need for invoking any statutory provision under the Code of Civil Procedure, namely, O.43 because Sec.25-A of Act IV of 1938 as amended by Act VIII of 1973 itself provides for appeal. It is, therefore, idle to discover any provision under O.43, C.P.C. for an appeal being laid, as no such provisions can possibly be found in that Act when already there is a provision in the Act itself for appeals. [Para 5] K.Jayaraman, for Appellant.

Mrs.Hema Sampath, for Respondent.

The Court made the following

ORDER:- This civil miscellaneous second appeal is against the order of the learned Additional Subordinate Judge, Cuddalore, in C.M.A.No.47 of 1991, dated 31.1.1992, which appeal was filed against the order dated 11.4.1991 in unnumbered execution application in O.S.No.507 of 1973 by the learned District Munsif, Cuddalore, rejecting the execution application filed by the appellant herein under Sec.20 of Act IV of 1938, as amended by Act VIII of 1973.

2. Sec.20 of Act IV of 1938, which is the relevant section for the purpose of deciding the dispute as follows:

"20. Stay of execution proceeding every court executing a decree: A decree passed against a person entitled to the benefits of the Act shall on application stay the proceedings until the Court which passed the decree has passed orders on an application made under Sec.19:

